Newsletter of the Killington Section,
Green Mountain Club

Original Dedication
April 1999

This set of copies of Smoke and Blazes is donated to the Rutland Historical Society in memory of my parents, Mary and Craigie Perkins and my aunt, Vera Perkins. They conceived the idea for a Killington Section newsletter in 1948 and served as editors and publishers for the first several years of its existence, cutting stencils, and running mimeograph copies in our living room. They continued as frequent contributors to the publication and as active members of the Club for over a half century. Fortunately, Dad had a packrat proclivity which I seem to have inherited. By combining his collection of Smoke & Blazes with mine, I have been able to put together this complete run of the publication.

May 2016

Since 1999 the Rutland Historical Society has continued to collect and save every issue of Smoke & Blazes. In 2015 and 2016 Society members Clifford Giffin and Doreen McCullough scanned the entire collection and prepared it for electronic archival. Smoke & Blazes is now published in electronic as well as paper format. The society plans to periodically update the archived collection.

SOMEBODY HAD AN IDEA.

You know how it is on hikes when everyone sits around after dinner and after the third cup of coffee the talk turns to trails, shelters, and future outings. There is always wishful thinking of things we hope to do some day. One of these ideas has been that we have a monthly news sheet for the Killington section. This might give some information on activities of members which would fill in between issues of The Long Trail News and supply Killington section members with news of interest to them which would often not be of interest to the main club.

We decided to do something about this idea. This sheet you are now reading is what we did.

At present it is in the experimental stage. The plan is to send out a news sheet each month between now and the annual meeting. You get Sept. through Jan. for free! The question of continuing the Project after Jan. will be presented at the annual meeting. If enough of you have liked it well enough to pay a small subscription price, just enough to cover expenses, it will be continued. Remember this is our first attempt. Reserve judgement until you have seen all five issues! Meanwhile suggestions and material from you will be welcome.

INTERSECTIONAL HIGHLIGHTS.

The annual Intersectional outing was held Sunday, Aug. 22 at the Monroe Farm at the foot of Camel's Hump. The crowd started to collect on Saturday afternoon with 14 spending the night in camp. By dinner time Sunday 45 were there, exchanging news and partaking of the famous G. M. C. coffee.

As the weather was hot, only a few of the hardier members made the hike to the top of the mountain.

When Worcester's Louis Bigelow arrived at camp, Proxy Goddard and his corps of Engineers pitched him a tent - but wrong side up - so Louis wouldn't have to sleep on the ground.

Imagine Craigie Perkins' surprise when he found that three and one half foot turtle in the back seat of his car.

While George Conlin and Ray Catozzi were at Camel's Hump a young man from New York came in over the Bolton Trail. He gave in no uncertain terms his opinion of the condition of the trail, the lack of tedeness of the huts and the slackness of the club in general. Finally Ray pointed to the sign in the hut stating that it was maintained by the New York section. Sudden quiet.

Ten members from the Killington section attended this hike. Five of our haroy ones climbed to the top.

In Aug. Churchill Scott's Trails and Shelters Committee held a sign raising on the Wallingford Gulf Road. Those attending were Gale Spaulding, Dud Bump, Ray Catozzi, Harold Valiquette, Craigie Perkins and Churchill Scott. The Green Mountain Avning Co. provided the necessary truck.

The sign was one of the big highway signs like that put up at East Clarendon last year. As the post was 10 inches through and 12 feet high, a post hole was badly needed. After considerable discussion, the boys decided to dig for one and only four feet below the surface they found one.

So the new sign was raised under the approving eyes of Mr. and Mrs. Stork who had so kindly given permission to have it placed in their yard.

Gale Spaulding and Mr. Stork have gained the consent of the owners of the land south of the highway to have the Trail cross The Gulf Road and continue directly south instead of jogging to the east as at present. Gale will build steps of his own design to help hikers get over the two fences "new style."

During the last month three Trail Clearing parties have worked from a half mile north of the Clement Shelter to the Clarendon Shelter. They found no bleached bones of hikers who had become lost and starved to death, but there were a few confusing spots on the trail. However all is now well in this area with the exception of the points where the trail enters and leaves The Lower Road. New arrows are needed here.

Clement Shelter is in fine shape. Roy Plumley fixed the table so it can no longer be used for a tester-tottrt.

Clarendon Shelter is in good condition with the exception of the paper on the outside walls which should be replaced.

The best piece of news to come from the Parent Club in a long time is that the Long Trail Patrol has been active this summer.

Under the personal leadership of Prof. R. O. Buchanan of Burlington four men have cleared the Club's Section of trail from Johnson to Hazens Notch and have built new camps at Hazens Notch and at Montcalair Glen. They have also given a quick once-over to the Appalachian Trail from the Long Trail Lodge toward Barnard. Prof. John Vondell of Amherst, Mass. assisted in this work.

The building of these two new camps leaves the Carmel location as the only open link in the chain of 51 camps and shelters on the Trail. Perhaps next year the Patrol will see fit to give us a new building at this site.

ON AND OFF THE TRAIL

Have you visited any of our State Parks lately? Branbury State Park is one you shouldn't miss. It is located on the eastern shore of Lake Dunmore about halfway between Middlebury and Brandon. It covers 23 acres which includes a thousand feet of sandy beach.

A service and maintenance fee of 25 cents per automobile of five persons or less is charged here. If you wish to swim, a basket and locker may be had for 10 cents per person.

This is an ideal spot for a summer or early fall picnic and hike. There are tables and fireplaces with plenty of cut wood ready for you to use.

The bathing will delight those who like to walk out into the water and know what the depth is. There is a roped off crib for young children and a float and diving board out where the water is deeper.

Summer Outings

The Spruce Knob hike ran into hard luck as usual. Last year it was "rained and flooded out!" This year, misinformed as to date by a Herald error in the write-up, the Fire Warden was at the tower all day Friday to welcome the G.M.C. hikers. However when the crowd(?) arrived on Saturday he was busy with road work so the fire tower was not open. This was a slight disadvantage when a shower came up about supper time. Nevertheless, the hiking party were all three able to take shelter on the stairway under the platform.

This was the first hike for a new member, Barbara Dee, Physical Therapist at the Rutland Hospital. Barbara is a member of, and has hiked extensively with, the Appalachian Club. Apparently she was not discouraged by her introduction into G.M.C. as she has been a regular hiker with us all summer. The other hikers on this trip were Cutting Ch. Ray Catozzi and Sec.- Treas. Eleanor Walker. On the trip back to Rutland our new member was given some interesting glimpses of Vermont back roads. Apparently the adage, "It's quality not quantity which counts," held true and a fine time was had by all. This hike has a stiff but short climb and the view is well worth it.

Vacation trips, jobs etc., certainly cut into the Cutting Program this season. Even the popular Spring Lake hike had a small attendance. It was a good trip but the absence of such regulars as Pearle Nichols, Eleanor Walker, The Jennings, The Valiquettes, The Perkins and The Fields was surely felt, as was that of some less regular hikers who are often on hand for this trip. We had hoped to see some of them as Jean and Jim Hayward with Carol, Ed and Ruth, and "Corkie" Wilber Baker and family.

The Outing at Bradder's Camp on Tinnmouth Channel was especially appropriate for the hot July Sunday on which it was held. There was a breeze there all day and the Bradder's ground level, stone-walled kitchen was a cool place to eat. The afternoon was spent in wading, exploring the Channel in the Bradder's canoe, and just sitting.

Ruth LaDrake and Janie Sabourin had more ambition than most. Ruth did some successful fishing and Janie snared a gorgeous turtle which she took home for a pet. We understand it disappeared from a pail in her backyard the same evening and has never been seen since. Could this have any relation to the one C. Perkins found?

The camp is in a pleasant and interesting spot and Mr. and Mrs. Bradder are perfect hosts. We recommend that you all be around for the next Tinnmouth Channel Outing. (We're hoping we will be invited again!)

Little Rocky Pond was perfect as always. Not many made it for overnight but those who did reported a fine night for camping. One of the highlights of this trip for those who came in for the day was seeing a white fringed orchid. We would have missed this but for the kindness of a Long Trail enthusiast from Pennsylvania who was camping at Little Rocky and pointed it out to us.

Incidentally he was one of those interesting people one often meets on the Trail. Born in Switzerland, he came to U.S.A. as a young man. He learned to speak English, worked at various types of jobs as he studied and is now working in the library at the University of Pennsylvania.

A good ending for a good day was the drive home, continuing on over the mountain to Landgrove and via Londonderry and Weston to Rutland.

The trail to Greenwall offers somewhat different hiking than other parts of the Trail hereabouts. It is less woodsy and goes in part through somewhat open fields and pastures. There are several fine views in route as well as the excellent one from the height of land above the shelter. At one point for a short distance the Trail follows an old road which would be interesting to explore.

Lake Pleiad and Texas Falls! This is always a big swimming day and a nicely varied outing. The trip starts with a pleasant drive up Route 7 to the Forestdale road, back of Lake Dunmore to Ripton, on past Breadloaf to where the Long Trail crosses the road at the top of the mountain. Here we leave the cars and after a short hike through the woods reach Lake Pleiad, a beautiful little woodland lake. It comes as somewhat of a surprise lying as it does seemingly almost on top of the mountain.

This year, as in other years dinner was cooked and eaten on the big rocks above the Lake. As always there was time for a swim while waiting for the coffee to boil.

With us on this trip, after a six weeks absence touring and camping throughout the U.S. were, Mary, Craigie and Peter Perkins. It was good to have them back.

After dinner came the usual trek to Texas Falls. A nice State Picnic area on the Hancock side of the mountain it offers a chance for some exciting swimming. Then on down the mountain to Hancock and home via Route 100.

RUMMAGE SALE

Last winter we cleared about $75 on the Rummage Sale. We want to make as much or more this year, so start looking through your attics and clothes closets for contributions.

We found that dishes and decorative nic-nacs sold very well. We also had a larger market than we could supply for men's and children's clothing and women's clothing in sizes 36 to 40, so we are hoping for a larger supply of these this year.

No date has yet been set but it will be sometime this fall as we hope to avoid a 20° below zero day such as we had last year. We'll tell you when.

OUR MASTHEAD

The attractive masthead and finis for "Smoke and Blazes" were designed and original drawings made by Janet Perkins. Besides being one of our best hikers Janet is well known to many of us for her hand-carved, wooden G.M.C. pins.

VOL-1 No 2

Oct. 1948

THIS and THAT

It is interesting to note that in many Outing Clubs as The Prairie Club of Chicago and the New York Section of G.M.C. it is necessary for prospective members to be recommended by at least two members; to be taken into membership for a trial period at first; and often even to wait for a vacancy in the membership. Membership in the Killington Section of G.M.C. is open immediately to anyone interested. Seems as though in a city of 18,000 more than 90 would be interested. Could it be it's too easy to get in?

There must be many people who hike the Trail in their own groups yet never think of joining G.M.C. Perhaps they feel they could seldom hike with us, or prefer planning and organizing their own hikes. We wonder if these people fully realize that G.M.C. is not just another social group. It was originally organized to make The Long Trail. It exists now primarily for the purpose of maintaining that Trail and it's shelters for the use of all hikers. Much enjoyable hiking would be impossible or less enjoyable without the work done by G.M.C. Why not pass this idea along? It might bring in some supporting memberships.

PHOTOGRAPHY CONTEST

Helen Field, Photography Chairman, has announced that two prizes will be awarded at our Annual Meeting in January. One will be given for the best black and white print, and one for the best colored print or slide submitted. More details later but in the meantime come out on the Club's hikes and get some good shots.

G.M.C. TRUSTEE

John H. Vondell of Amherst, Mass. was a winner in Class D, animals and pets, photography contest sponsored by the N.Y. Herald Tribune.

Mr. Vondell is a trustee of G.M.C. and chairman of publicity. He has collected and prepared a group of Kodachrome slides of The Long Trail which are available for club and public use.

His winning picture, a laughing duck, will be entered in the Newspaper National Snapshot Awards with a chance for top award of $1000. Best of luck John!

We extend our sympathy to Pearl Nichols on the recent death of her father.

KILLINGTON WORK PARTY.

Well, Churchill Scott's boys have finally got Cooper Lodge all tucked in for the winter.

This year's damage to the windows amounted to four lights of glass and two sash. The glass has been replaced and the last two usable spare sash put in place. Next year we will have to do something different.

The big job was the application of new roofing paper over the entire roof. Seven sixty-five pound rolls of paper were back-packed up the mountain.

The work party consisted of Fred Field, Churchill Scott, Robert Perkins, Dud Bump, Gale Spaulding, Ray Catozzi, Craig Perkins, Janet Perkins, and George Conlon.

On the week-end of Sept. 25 and 26 the deed was done. And right away there were difficulties! It was found that due to faulty construction, water had seeped between the old paper and the roof and had badly rotted away some of the roof boards. It was necessary to use a metal panel from the old "Tin Shelter" over one of the worst spots. Ray spent most of one day at the top of a ladder installing the missing flashings.

The work progressed and the roof is now "better than new" though we are still worried about those rotted roof boards.

The workers also accomplished the laying of bright new linoleum on the table and shelf - a big improvement.

Special citation should be awarded to the "Kitchen Patrol" who provided swell meals at the right times.

This work party was one of our largest and best in recent years and "a good time was had by all".

(Editor's note)

There must have been some strong backs on this work party. 455 lbs of paper - whow ! !

"DART" NOLAN REPORTS FROM CHICAGO

"Dart" Noyes, a loyal G.M.C. member currently located in Chicago, was in town for a few days early in Sept. She gave an interesting account of some of the activities of the Prairie Club of Chicago. This is a large Outing Club with a variety of activities scheduled each weekend. The club owns a 55 acre estate on the southern end of Lake Michigan offering swimming and boating as well as hiking. Club members and their guests may spend weekends or enjoy single day outings there. As "Dart" described the general set-up it appeared to be similar, tho on a larger scale, to G.M.C. New York Section's Thondara.

Another interesting activity of the Prairie Club is the organizing of a vacation trip each year. A different type of vacation spot is visited each year, usually at some distance from Chicago. Many members take their vacation annually with the Club group.

"Dart" has also been invited to attend the first fall meeting of the Chicago Mountain Club, which goes in specifically for mountain climbing.

"Dart" surely knows how to connect with Outing Clubs. She had been on duty as the Metropolitan nurse in Rutland only a short time when she came to a G.M.C. outing, joined up and became one of our most regular and enthusiastic hikers. She was transferred to Chicago this June and had been there just five days when she connected with the Prairie Club.

She said she found this club like our own G.M.C. including people of all ages. She also said, "They are grand people, like all Outing Club people."

(Thanks "Dart"!)

BIDDIE'S KNOB

It is a crisp, bright day with the leaves gay in their fall colors and we are off for Biddie's Knob! This is one of "the knobs" in the ridge of hills between Florence and Hubbardton. We drive to Florence and there take the Whipple Hollow road. Soon we branch onto a real back-road which winds along up hill and down, mostly up, toward the foot of the mountains. We leave our cars at an abandoned farm and start hiking. There is no trail here, so taking bearings from "the knob" we are aiming for, we strike out on a real cross-country hike. As we begin the actual ascent the fallen leaves make a colorful carpet but add to the hazards of the climb by concealing the rocks which abound in this area. Several times we think we are at the top only to hear from the advance guard, just as we are panting up what we think - and hope - is the last 100 yards, "Oh, here is the top over here"! Finally we do arrive on an open grassy summit from which there is a view of the valley and mountains in three directions. The climb is a bit rugged in spots but it is not long and the view is ample reward. We would like to try it from the Hubbardton side next time.

Incidentally where did the name Biddie's Knob originate, or is it really Biddle's Knob as we were once informed? Does anyone know?

(This isn't a $65 question but we'd be glad to print any information we receive on this in our next issue.)

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Catozzi on the birth of their son, Jimmy.

Jimmy is the youngest member of Killington Section G.A.C.

LONDON OVERNIGHT

Seventeen hikers enjoyed the week-end of Oct. 2nd and 3rd at the Perkins' Camp in London. Twelve of the group stayed over night. Everyone took a turn at kitchen work and this made the preparation and serving of meals a minor task and left plenty of time for hiking.

Saturday night one group walked up the road. Sunday morning another group climbed Blue Ridge. In the afternoon a party of six walked up the road and after some discussion decided to continue to Pittsfield. Two members hiked back to camp, commandeered a car and drove around to Pittsfield to pick up the hikers. The hikers reported seeing some interesting Beaver Dam work.

TRUNKAGE SALE

Place - Neighborhood Rooms

Time - Thursday, October 21

9:30 A.M. to ?

(open as long as we have customers and anything to sell)

Do you have some clothing that lacks the "new look"? We can use it. Or how about those "white elephants" you are tired of dusting? Somebody else might like 'em.

If you have friends who might have something, even though they aren't G.A.C. members, pass the word along. They might be glad of a chance to dispose of a few things and the proceeds would help buy a few nails or something to repair a shelter. Almost anything goes so bring whatever you can find to the Neighborhood Rooms, Wednesday, October 20th. We will be on hand to receive things from 10 A.M. to 4 P.M. If you have things but can't get them to us call Craig Perkins - 907-1 - before Wednesday and arrange with him to pick them up for you.

WHAT ABOUT THE ICE CAVE? (by Leone Smith)

A trip to the Ice Cave in Pittsford is just about what most anyone could ask for in the way of enjoying the great outdoors. The road commissioner of the town hasn't modernized the road to it, and so to start off, one gets the feel of getting well back in the country. Getting out of your car and climbing over the bar-way gives you the feel of a way-back farm.

Once over the fence it is a short, stiff climb through a pasture to the start of the narrow gulch which separates East Peak from Bald Peak. The trip up through this slippery path on a hodge-podge of rocks, nearly covered with bushes gives a hiker all the fun he wants to stay on his feet.

Coming to the mouth of the cave, one has hard work to find it unless he has the "Know". It doesn't take too long to decide to sit on the log across the open hole and "hitch" yourself along out to the ladder in the center. No one climbs out on this log but the feeling comes over him, "What's in that black hole below and can I make it?"

At the foot of the ladder is utter blackness. But a well organized party makes sure that the first fellow down has candles and matches. To each little rock projecting out, he puts a lighted candle. These are far ahead of flashlights, for when the rest of the party descend they see below them a great lighted cathedral. It is one of the prettiest sights you can imagine.

As for good fun, on the trip to the bottom, nothing beats the trip through the "lemon squeezer" and no one can avoid it. We have never measured the size of this "squeezer" but we warn you to go easy on your waist measure the week before.

Once having been "Squeeze" by the "Squeezer" the visitor is at the bottom of this big room. It is a wonderful construction by nature and a great place for a curiosity "hound".

If the trip wasn't in Nov. we would suggest you bring ice cream mix and a small freezer for we always make ice cream down there. This time of year is apt to be the only time there is no ice, but you will have seen one of the seven wonders of Rutland County when you've been there.

(Be on hand for this hike Sat. Nov. 6)

EQUINOX

We haven't had Equinox on the schedule since 1941. Perhaps it has taken us all this time to get up our courage to try it again! It is a fact that for seven years those who made this trip have been saying condescendingly at every opportunity, "Oh, you weren't on the Equinox trip were you? That was a climb!"

On Sunday, Oct. 24, 1948 we are going to try it again. If you didn't make it before, come along and see if it has been over-rated. If you were on that other trip, remember what a good time we had, so let's do it again.

Of course there is an auto road now to the top if you feel you must ride. The entrance fee is $3.00 per car, no charge for passengers. See you on top!

KILLINGTON SECTION G.M.C.

November 1948.

THIS and THAT

We are proud to say that we have 43 Junior members in the Killington Section of the G.M.C. Some of them are away at college, others are high school and grade school students while others aren't old enough to be hikers yet.

Junior members are important members in our club. In a few years they will be the leaders. Now is the time for them to learn about the trails and the mountains so that when their turn for leadership comes they will be ready.

Why do we have so few active Junior members? It is surprising that in a community the size of Rutland more boys and girls are not clamoring to get out on our mountain trails.

A day on Killington, a hike to a mountain lake, or a ski or snowshoe hike over mountain trails is an event worthwhile and enjoyable.

Come on boys and girls, get your gang together. Come out on our scheduled trips and have some fun. Let us hear what you would like in the way of a Junior program.

Fred and Helen Field have been busy all summer working on their new home. We are glad to see them back with us again this Fall.

COLLEGE CAPERS (by "Jan" Perkins)

Just thought the folks back home might like to know what some of their "inactive" members are doing away at College.

Since we can't hike with the Killington Section we are hiking with the U.V.M. Outing Club and occasionally with the Burlington Section G.M.C.

The O.C. is very active, having an Outing nearly every week. On the first hike of the year, to Camel's Hump, we had 67 people! (We were surprised too!). The weather was fine and the sun shone brightly on the "Hump" which towered above us when we started. We stopped for lunch at Montclair Glenn shelter and then were off for the top. The last part of the trip is pretty steep but all 67 made it!

Since then we have had one over-night at Mansfield which turned out to be a rather rough bout with the weather - wind, rain, sleet and later snow. However that doesn't discourage us - we have another trip on Mansfield planned for this week.

Last weekend we joined the Burlington Section G.M.C. and went over to N. Y. State and climbed "Po-ko-moonshine", a mountain in the Adirondacks near Lake Champlain.

Tho we are "inactive" with the Killington Section, we are still "active".

A TRIP TO LITTLE ROCK POND (by William Allard Jr.)

As many hikers do, Don Peer and I take a trip each summer on parts of the trail which are new to us. Last August we decided to cover the piece south from the Wallingford Gulf Road to Rocky Pond.

Starting early in the morning, we hitch-hiked to the place where the trail crosses the road. We got to Greenwall Shelter for lunch at noon and then continued over White Rocks and down to the pond. We slept well that night and rose early in the morning. After breakfast we put a sail on the rowboat and spent the morning cruising up and down the lake. That afternoon two more fellows came into camp and that night we played cards until midnight. We left the next morning by the South Wallingford Pond Road.

JUNIOR MEMBERS

This issue is dedicated to our Junior members. We like to have them with us and when they are away, we think of them.

Junior members away at school are:

PICO SHOWER

The hot hiker can no longer refresh himself at the cold shower at Pico Shelter. It is a luxury of the past. Perhaps our Trails and Shelters Committee may build it up again. We hope so. Did you ever try a cold shower from a mountain spring?

ON and OFF the TRAIL

Two of your editors (Vera and Mary Perkins) took a camping trip to Groton State Park in September. They camped for two days and two nights at the Stillwater area on Lake Groton.

This State Park is located about 15 miles northeast of Montpelier, just off Route U.S. 2 at Marshfield.

The campers were equipped with tent, sleeping bags, air mattresses, plenty of good food and a jug of water in case the water had been shut off. After setting up their tent on a tent platform, they took a tour of the Park (by car) to see what they could see.

The Park is so big, 15,300 acres, that they couldn't possibly see everything in a two day trip so they intend to go back at some future date. There are six bodies of water in the area. The largest, Lake Groton, is three miles long. There are picnic areas at Ricker Pond, Stillwater, and Osmore Pond. There are 30 miles of foot trails and 12 leantos in the woods.

Abandoning the car for a while, the campers took to the trails and climbed Mt. Owl's Head. This was a short climb. The view from the top was superb. It gave a grand impression of the vast wilderness beauty of the area. Three of the lakes were visible from this point. The foliage was starting to display a little color with a hint of what to expect in a week or two.

When the campers left, they both agreed, "What a wonderful spot for a vacation!"

We are all sorry that Mary Jennings has had to make such a long sojourn at the Mary Fletcher Hospital. We shall be glad to welcome her back and hope it will be soon.

Vera Perkins has just returned from North Carolina.

by

Donald Peer

On Saturday, January 22nd, Harold Valiquette organized a work party of Club members and friends with the aid of Craigie Perkins.

The long put-off job of moving the Blue Triangle shelter to Spring Lake was the task that brought Ray Catozzi, Tom Pease, Don Peer, Michael Jennings, Joe Valiquette, Tony Fusco, and Bill Allard out into the snow to tear the camp to pieces. Besides the hammer and crowbar boys, were the spoon and coffee pot wielders. These were Vera Perkins and Eleanor Walker.

Arriving at the camp later than expected, the crew broke the partially dissected shelter up into sections and waited quite a while for the truck to come to haul the load to Spring Lake.

Following this, a generous supply of hot frankfurters and beans was done away with.

Nail yanking was the feature just before the truck pulled in toward early afternoon. Everybody pitched in to load the walls and lumber onto the big platform truck and then followed it through Cuttingsville in their cars.

The steep hill was just barely climbed by the cars and the truck wasn't much luckier, but finally the south shore of the ice-covered lake was reached and the "Blue Triangle" swiftly unloaded. The snow was too deep to slide it across the ice, so the parts were just piled up. This concluded the work that could be done, and the party returned to Rutland.

The snow wasn't as deep as expected and the day was mild, making the trip satisfying and enjoyable.

Who made all those V shaped groups of tracks winding and looping around through the winter woods? If the tracks are very large, it was a "snow shoe rabbit". If the tracks are small, it may have been either a small snow shoe rabbit or a "cotton tail". Maybe some can tell the difference but it is hard to prove.

The "snow shoe rabbit" is the Varying Hare of the story books. His color changes from white to brown in the spring and back to white again in November. This is a valuable protective device against the predatory birds like the owl and the hawk, but he is quite helpless against the weasel, the fox and the bob cat.

To add to his troubles, disease periodically wipes out large numbers in limited areas. However since a mamma rabbit will raise from six to ten little ones each summer, the tribe continues to hold its place in society.

Living in wooded country the "snowshoe rabbit" eats bark, buds of treeshoots, berry bushes, and in fact, any growing thing he can reach. He feeds at night and is seldom seen by day.

He has no permanent home but sits in a spruce thicket or other light shelter through the coldest weather and wildest storms. When all is again calm, he comes forth and proceeds to make tracks - lots of them.

The "cottontail" is smaller and greyish in color with less marked change from summer to winter coat.

This fellow uses abandoned burrows of other animals occasionally but usually the only nest is a hollow on the surface of the ground concealed by leaves and lined with fur.

WINTER HIKING

A walk on a trail, through the woods and fields or on an abandoned road in any season is an enjoyable experience. In winter it is more than that. It is invigorating, soul satisfying, beautiful and inspiring.

After a fresh fall of snow, when the ground is carpeted thick and soft, there is a hushed stillness in the air. The evergreens look like marble statues. The air is clear and cold. The sky is so blue against the white! It is the time to be getting your lungs full of fresh air and seeing the woods in all their winter glory.

The flies will not be out to bother you. Heat will not oppress you. There will be interesting sights all along the way such as tracks here and there to speculate on. You will have time to think as you walk along. Problems will seem easier to solve, cares will feel lighter and you will wonder why you don't get out for a winter hike more often.

SPRING LAKE WORK PARTY

On Sunday, Feb. 13, the following ten men put in a big day of hard work at Spring Lake: Harold Valiquette, Fred Field, Ray Catozzi, Craigie Perkins, Lee Wilson, John Clark, Jerry McGloughlin, Joe Valiquette, Micheal Jennings, and Bill Allard.

Six trips were made across the lake with toboggans loaded with sections and loose boards for the new Spring Lake Camp. A small amount of material was moved to the top of the hill where the new camp will be located.

At 4:30 the men called it a day, built a fire and had a spaghetti supper along with the mince pies Maud Canty so generously contributed.

New schedules will be mailed with the next issue of "Smoke and Blazes".

Up to and including this issue the 1948 mailing list has been used in sending out copies of "Smoke and Blazes." All future mailings will be made from the 1949 Membership List.

Last year we had a membership of 94. This year, to date, we have only 54 members. This is most likely due to an oversight on the part of 40 of our old members. Attention to this matter will be greatly appreciated.

Even if you can't be actively engaged in the program of The Green Mountain Club, the loyal support of your continued membership is necessary if the Club is to continue to operate.

Send dues to Miss Eleanor Walker, 87 Baxter Street, Rutland, Vermont.

ANOTHER SPRING LAKE WORK PARTY

At the latest Spring Lake Work Party held February 20th, Harold Valiquette, Craigie Perkins, Bill Allard, Joe Valiquette and Jerry McLaughlin and Michael Jennings put in another day of good hard work.

In spite of the fog that hung over the area all day, the work of carrying rafters and boards up to the camp site went along smoothly.

The next party should be a big one for the wall sections still remain to be carried up.

It is encouraging to see so much accomplished in such a short time. The committee and workers deserve commendation from the rest of us. Keep up the good work boys, and before long Spring Lake Camp will be a reality.

A TRIP TO KILLINGTON

Ray Catozzi and George Conlon spent a recent weekend on Killington. They drove into the lumber camp and from there on found the going tough. There wasn't enough snow for snowshoes and the trail was so icy it made the trek up tedious. When they reached Cooper Lodge and tried to build a fire in the stove, the THING didn't work too well. The ventilation inside the camp was more than they wanted. The new windows will improve that situation sometime in the future.

MR. WHITEFOOT

Just sit quietly for a few minutes in almost any GMC camp and you will hear the rustle and scurry of our star boarder, the deer mouse. Now don't confuse him with the common household pest. He is quite different in appearance and manners.

Brownish grey on top and pure white underneath, his white legs give him the name, "Whitefoot". Approach him slowly and he will let you come within a few feet. Lacking the guilty conscience of his city cousin, he is friendly, and can be induced to take food from your fingers after an hour or so of patient tempting. It is said that in captivity he can be handled after a weeks time.

The nest is built of grass and leaves under a log, in a hollow tree, or sometimes in an abandoned bird's nest. The deer-mouse doesn't travel more than a few yards from home, and if taken to a distance will return from as far as a mile.

During daylight he remains quiet, but at night is very active. His food is composed of all kinds of seeds, nuts, and berries, plus an assortment of insects. Since he doesn't hibernate in the winter he must store up food and these caches are found in such unusual places as cupboards, and pockets of clothing left hanging in a camp.

A pair of deer mice might, in a years time, have over a thousand descendents, if their number were not controlled by the foxes, bobcats, weasels, skunks, owls, hawks, and blue-jays.

Even if we wouldn't care to live with these fellows all the time, they are interesting to watch and good company in camp.

SLIDES ENJOYED

Pres. Fred Field showed the G.M.C. slides at the Colony House Friday evening, March 11th.

TUCKER LODGE ON WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY by Diana Conlon

Our winter trip into Tucker Lodge turned out to be a hiking party although it did have skiing possibilities. We were surprised to see about a foot of snow in the wood. The hard crust however, made it ideal for hiking. We just skimmed along the top! In fact, hiking was so good that many of us took additional side-trail excursions from the lodge.

Early bird, Craigie Perkins, was on hand to greet the morning hikers. At this point may I mention Craigie's prowess at wood chopping.

The lodge was cozy and warm with a good fire blazing merrily away by the time the first hikers appeared. Some arrived in time for luncheon, while others hiked in during the afternoon for supper. Needless to say the coffee pot worked overtime!

We had a grand day and by mid-afternoon we numbered seventeen jolly souls. And there's something about a winter hike that makes the GMC coffee taste so good -- it's wonderful!

Snow was softly falling most of the day, just to remind us that it still was winter, but there was a definite Spring feeling and mildness in the air. We know of one hiker who had Spring Fever - Maude Canty! Maude suggested a Spring house-cleaning and window polishing bee at Tucker for the girls. It's an idea. See you at Tucker come Spring!

WHO WANTS TO HELP?

The windows for Cooper Lodge must be painted. Come, and bring a small brush, if possible, to Perkins' cellar Monday evening, March 21st, and every Monday after that until the job is done.

WINTER WEEK-END

It really was a winter week-end, much to everyone's amazement! Hats off to Outing Chairman Billy Allard for arranging such a perfect and timely snow-storm. According to Billy, he put his order in with Mr. Kirk three days in advance. (Mr. Kirk is an official weather observer and lives next door to Billy. We knew he was a friend of CMC, but hadn't realized just how good a friend!)

The first arrivals Saturday P.M. found camp open and warm, with Host Craigie Perkins already in residence. After having tea to refresh us from the hike in to camp, the party started off on an impromptu Scavenger Hunt. Articles hunted were those often easily found easily in the woods, but the covering of snow provided a challenge to the searchers. The woods were so beautiful with their fresh, white frosting, that many of us were too busy admiring, to hunt very diligently. Some of the groups, however, turned in a very good performance. They brought back such difficult to find items as; a blade of green grass, a bird's nest, and an animal track. The winning group was rewarded with candy bars by Chairman Allard.

After an excellent supper, Bernice Braislin showed pictures and told us of some of the highlights of her Youth Hostel travels in Europe last summer. A few of the more ambitious went out for some moonlight skiing, but most of us were too comfortable around the crackling wood fires to move. Everyone was on hand later for some sugar-on-snow. (Our thanks to Bernice B. for providing this treat.)

Sunday was spent in snowshoe and ski hikes to various points. Each one was free to choose his own objective and method of transportation. Some of our Jr. members had a fine time tobogganing. Everyone took time off from out-door activities at 1 P.M. Twenty-two were on hand then to enjoy another of the excellent meals planned by Pearle Nichols, Laude Canty, and Loraine Gorski.

The party broke up in the late afternoon, after what everyone agreed was one of the best of many grand CMC winter week-ends. (We challenge anyone to tell us of another place where one can get such a week-end, complete with meals and lodging, for $1.00)

COMING EVENTS

TIME - Sunday, Mar. 20th - II A.M.
PLACE - Clarendon Shelter.

This will be a combined Outing and Work Party. General cleaning up around the shelter will be done, to get it in readiness for the hiking season. There may be a chance for some Trail work if ground conditions permit. This is a short hike so there will be plenty of time too for exploring the Trail and searching for early signs of spring. The usual CMC coffee will be provided for all.

Let's get the spring hiking season off to a good start. So, bring your lunch and a cup, and meet us at the Meldon School at II A.M.

TIME - Saturday, April 2nd.
PLACE - ????????

Plans are not entirely completed at this time for the Maple Sugar Party. It will be an evening party, starting about 6:30 P.M. We can give you this definite information now; (1) it will be held April 2nd; (2) there will be sugar-on-snow, pickles, doughnuts, and coffee; (3) it will be fun! So save the date, and watch the Herald for a later announcement, [unclear] [unclear].

AN OLDTIMER REPORTS

by
Clyde Spaulding

Trying to recall what happened nearly forty years ago, should be attempted by one with a better memory than mine.

I could remember the big barge, the four horses, but could only recall the names of three others. I was sure we didn't need a barge and four horses to take us to Killington, but George Harmon came to my rescue with his scrap book.

There was plenty of straw to keep our feet warm and numberless buffalo robes to keep everyone comfortable except the unfortunate victims who were thrown "overboard" into the snow - robes and all. Trying to untangle oneself from a blanket in a soft drift seemed to generate a little more heat than was required, judging by the language issuing from the "Buffalo."

The scrap book shows several pictures along the trail, with the snow on the trees like a fairy land. I do recall that the ones who were breaking trail did not seem to appreciate the beauty as did the ones following.

Another picture taken beside the old hotel, shows twenty-two frost-rimmed individuals facing the camera and trying to look cheerful. But it does help us to identify Claude Place, Charlie Cheney, Lockerby, Collins, Bob Davis, Robert Hoag, and Dr. Herb Yarrington.

The pictures prove there was plenty of snow. While some of the crowd were building a fire from the old tumbled down barn, others located the spring. After considerable work with a piece of board, we got down to the water. Then I was held by the feet and lowered into the hole to dip up water. Somehow this remains one of the most vivid remembrance of the trip.

Everyone wore snowshoes on this trip but a year or two later, one daring individual made it on skis. We made considerable sport of him going up, especially on the steeper grades, but coming back it was different. In comparison, he was a streamliner and we a slow freight.

There is something about a trip of this nature that brings out the best in everyone. Even a party to Killington when the snow is deep and the thermometer down around zero, is something of an adventure. When standing on the top bracing against the wind, comes a feeling of self-reliance that no Emerson could describe.

The trip home is rather quiet. Too tired to even sing, we are filled with a quiet content that can only be experienced after a day in the out-of-doors.

There will be a meeting of the trustees of the G.M.C. (parent club) April 9th, at the Rutland Library.

Helen E. Frink, a Randolph member of our Section wrote in and said, "I enjoy reading "Smoke and Blazes" very much. Hope to get over to take part in a hike some day." (We hope so too, Helen.)

Ellen Russell of Providence, R. I., formerly of Rutland is a loyal supporter of our Section. Though far away, she is still a member. A few years ago Ellen was one of our most active members.

Pearl Nichols and Vera Perkins are in Boston and will attend the Flower Show there.

WANTED !

12 strong, able-bodied men; good workers; for Sunday, April 24th, to get the Spring Lake Camp sections to the camp-site.

The work party will leave Meldon School at 10 A.M. Dinner will be provided for workers, so call Craigue Perkins a few days before the 24th if you will be on hand.

This new camp has a fine location. Let's get out and help make it a reality in the near future. You'll enjoy it more if you help build it!

REPORT OF SUGAR PARTY, APRIL 2nd by Lorraine Gorski

Imagine a sugar-on-snow party featuring "Operation Sugar-house". Leone Smith was "boiling" during the prolonged arrival of The Green Mountaineers, at his Camp Sangamon in Pittsford, for their annual festival.

Imagine walking into the aromatic kitchen where Mrs. Smith was merrily readying the syrup for the snow. She graciously opened her cupboards from which the tables were attractively set. And then the waiting and waiting until "S" moment when the syrup was just right. Remember the very first taste....and the pickles, doughnuts, and coffee! Thirty-six forks or spoons scooped up taffy or whipped butter.

Then to the fireside for square dancing to the calls of Getty Page, a treat not to be resisted.

Imagine waiting a whole year for the next festival.

GREEN MOUNTAIN JUNIOR COLLEGE OUTING CLUB

On Wednesday evening April 6th, the Outing Club of Green Mountain Junior College met at Moses Hall and heard Fred Field, Harold Valiquette, and Craigue Perkins discuss hiking equipment and foods to take on the trail.

Thirty girls were on hand to see Fred's colored movies and watch him produce a complete set of cooking pots and pans from a pail ten inches in diameter and ten inches high. It's a good trick if you can do it and Fred can.

Harold Valiquette demonstrated a double sleeping bag and spoke of first-aid precautions on the trail.

Craigue Perkins displayed the Club's collection of photographs and described several near-by shelters. There was a discussion of possible menus for trail trips.

The Outing Club is planning a series of hikes on the trail, starting with an afternoon trip on April 16th to Tucker Lodge.

Congratulations to President Field for promoting this Development. Every school in Vermont should have an Outing Club to help the young people enjoy and appreciate the State. What school is to be next?

REMEMBER APRIL 24th!

THIS IS A HOT ONE.

Perhaps the most satisfying thing about hiking and camping is the fire. No matter how tired or wet you are, get a fire going and pretty soon everything seems all right.

There is only one right kind of fire. That's the kind that meets the particular purpose at hand. A high blazing fire is best for drying wet clothing, boiling water quickly, or baking by reflection. A bed of live coals is best for frying or broiling. Use an older bed of coals and hot ashes to cook cereal, pudding, vegetables etc. Sometimes all three can be had at one fireplace by raking a few embers to one side.

Don't build too big a fire. It wastes fuel and you can't get near enough to cook carefully.

Don't start your fire until a reasonable supply of fuel has been provided. And therein lies the secret of a good fire---the fuel.

Wood on the ground is generally damp and slow to burn. Get it from standing dead trees or limbs. If this wood is wet on the outside, split it. It is always dry on the inside. You need an axe for this. A hatchet is slower and more dangerous to use if you aren't an expert. Break or cut your fuel and sort it into piles of several sizes, from chunks two inches through down to shavings made with your jackknife. The surest tinder is birch bark.

Spruce and pine light most easily. They give a quick hot fire and are then gone. Maple or beach give a steady fire and long lasting coals.

If by chance you are at a GMC camp with a stove, take time to cut your fuel smaller, not over a foot long. The new "Valliquette Specials" at Buffam and Clement will burn practically any kind of fuel.

That Thing at Killington demands extra patience. After much cussing and discussing we have arrived at the following approximate formula: Keep the back half of the Thing full of ashes. Use only dry wood split very thin. Keep all your fire at the very front. Leave the dampers wide open 'till the Thing is full of burning wood. Then shut the pipe damper and cook.

Just remember you can't cook a good meal over a poor fire.

THE SPRING LAKE PROJECT.

By
Fred Field

Ever hear of Shrewsbury Pond? That's Guide Book language. In Killington Section it is fondly known as Spring Lake. A working party (Harold Valiquette, Bob Rogers, Churchill Scott, Craigie Perkins, Gale Spaulding, Dud Bump and Fred Field) slogged it's way through rain and mud Sunday, March 27th, up the winding road past Sarka's Ranch to put it's back to the task of trucking parts of the shelter up to its new location.

After a fine dinner of spaghetti, salad, bread and butter, coffee, doughnuts and oranges cooked by our special cooks, Mary and Vera Perkins, we commenced toting each section of the cabin up the hill.

The method was simple, the execution complicated. Three poles were put under a section so six men could carry it - three to a side. Even though a path had been cut some of us had to climb over trees, bushes, rocks and down into holes. This way five sections were put in position ready for erection. But in spite of all difficulties and words a good time was had by all. Another Spring Lake Work Party is coming soon. Join us!

MEPHRITIS

Noah Webster says "mephitis" means "stench". So when a mammalogist says "Mephitis mephitis" of course he means a skunk. Perhaps this is the origin of that well known phrase, "You can say that again!"

There are no less than fifteen varieties of skunks in North America but from a distance of a half mile there is little difference.

The skunk thrives on civilization. He will often forsake his home in a burrow or stone heap and move into town under someone's barn or chicken house.

His favorite foods include grasshoppers, grubs dug from sod, beetles, wasps, mice, fruit and berries. He occasionally robs a beehive or chicken coop and no doubt destroys many eggs of ground nesting birds. Though he hunts mostly at night he is frequently seen in the early evening busily engaged in minding his own business.

Sometimes Mama Skunk leads a single-file procession of half a dozen little ones. And do they hurry? They do not. They have little fear of man or beast. If unthreatened they will pass within a few feet of an observer giving no offence and asking only that their dignity be respected.

The skunk carries no odor with him. If attacked or frightened he ejects three drops of volatile musk-like fluid which puts to flight the intruder, while the skunk himself remains unpoluted.

In the Fall when the temperature drops to about 15degrees F, the skunk retires to his burrow. He does not really hibernate but comes out with every warm spell.

In the Spring four to ten young are born and the family stays together for almost a year.

This little animal is attractive and interesting. We should cultivate his acquaintance -- in a formal way of course.

COMING EVENTS

DATE - Sunday, April 17th
TIME - 1:30 at Meldon School
Place - Buffum Shelter

With nature starting new life all about us at this time of year, a few hours on the trail might be a good way to complete the observance of Easter Sunday.

This trip has less than a mile of easy hiking, mostly on an old wood road. Buffum Shelter is on the Trail north of Wallingford Gulf road.

Besides being a chance to enjoy the out-doors at one of the most interesting times of year, this trip will provide an opportunity to check up on the condition of the shelter and put it in readiness for the summer hiking season.

DATE - Saturday, April 30th &
Sunday, May 1st
PLACE- LITTLE ROCK POND

A fine over-night trip has been planned to usher in the trout fishing season. Come for the day if you can't make it for longer.

To reach Little Rock Pond we drive from Danby along the Mt. Tabor road to where the road meets the Long Trail. This drive in itself is a trip worth taking.

Two miles of good trail, most of it beside a small brook, brings us to Little Rock Pond. There is a log shelter, built by the U.S. Forest Service, on a small island at the N.W. end of the Pond. A picturesque foot-bridge leads to the island. It is a lovely spot to visit and spend some time.

So let the fishermen try their luck. For the rest there are interesting trips in a wood full of treasure. Last summer we experienced the thrill of seeing a delicate, white-fringed orchis there. Let's go and see what surprise may be waiting this year.

COOPER LODGE WINDOWS.

Well the windows for Cooper Lodge on Killington are all painted. The following members deserve the credit for a good job well done: Ray Catozzi, Gale Spaulding, Francis Rice, Churchill Scott, Craigie Perkins, Louise Newton, Loraine Gorski, Mary Perkins, Helen Bailey, Barbara Mellow and Vera Perkins.

First metal brackets were fastened to the corners of the windows to strengthen them and then two coats of red paint applied. The paint was donated by William Metzger and Fred Field.

There are sixteen sash weighing fourteen pounds each to be eased up the mountain as soon as the snow has gone. Also there will be a small bundle of lumber necessary for altering the frames of the new, thicker window sash. Nobody seems to be worrying too much about the transportation problem though. If cooperation continues to be as good as it has been so far this year, there just won't be any problem.

CLARENDON SHELTER WORK PARTY

By Francis Rice

We had a work party at Clarendon Shelter on March 20th and were very lucky in having a nice warm day.

On arriving at the shelter, we found it to be in good condition. The stove, an old kitchen range, was persuaded to burn after a rather smoky session of figuring out the drafts.

There was some wood in the shelter and C. S. Perkins and some of the others cut down a dead tree that was endangering the shelter in the rear. Thus we left a good supply of wood.

After dinner we cleaned out and repaired the bunks. Mary Perkins and Clarence Smith proved that the Work Party pays when they each found a quarter while cleaning one of the bunks. During the afternoon we also put tar paper on one side of the shelter.

Those present on the hike included Eleanor Walker, Maude Canty, Ruth Postman, Vera Perkins, Francis Rice, Craigie Perkins, Mary Perkins, Churchill Scott, Walter Scott, Pearl Nichols, Louise Newton, and William Allard. An old friend of the Section, Clarence Smith of Brandon, who shows up every so often appeared on the hike to every ones surprise.

At the meeting of the trustees of the G.M.C. held April 9th in Rutland, it was decided to have the Killington Section act as host for the Intersectional Hike to be held the last week-end in August.

It will be up to the Killington Section to decide on the place to hold this get-together.

Craigie and Bob Perkins went into Tucker this week and cleaned it up. They also improved the steps a little.

COMING EVENTS

DATE - Saturday and Sunday,
June 11th and 12th
PLACE- Clarendon Shelter

This is a good overnight trip for the novice as well as the veteran camper. The hike is an easy one, making it a short haul for overnight equipment.

A highlight of this outing will be a Pancake Breakfast, so bring along your favorite Pancake flour and all the "fixin's"!

If you can't be there for overnight, how about making an early start Sunday and joining us for breakfast?

This may be a good chance to check up on some of those "Summer Visitors". (see article in this issue.)

DATE - Saturday, June 26th.
PLACE- Hapgood Pond.

This is all "Outing" - no hiking required!

Hapgood Pond is a Green Mt. National Forest Area, which may be reached by car from Route 11, off the Manchester - Peru road.

This is a fine picnic area, with excellent swimming, for all grades of proficiency. There are bath-houses, outdoor fireplaces, and, in short, everything needed for a good summer outing.

Bring the whole family on this one!

HI THERE EVERYBODY!

I want to tell you all about the wonderful time we had on our hike to Little Rocky Pond, May 1st.

It was a lovely sunny day when we left at ten o'clock. The weather-man was sure on our side until we started for home, and then he sprinkled a few rain drops.

Mr. and Mrs. Conlin and Ray Catozzi were the ambitious members and hiked up Friday to stay the weekend. Although there seemed to be more fishermen than fish, they were lucky enough to catch four trout.

There were fourteen persons who enjoyed the outing, among them were two guests, Joan Colette and "Bev" Bruce, who plan to join our club.

The two miles of trail were in fairly good condition. The only complaint of the hikers was on the usual black bugs. The scenery and wild flowers were gorgeous.

All enjoyed the day and we're anxiously awaiting a swell weekend at Killington.

See you then,

Shirley Morris.

HOPEFUL HIKE
by Marjorie Wedge

Snow in April? No, impossible! Well.... maybe. We of the newly organized outing club, of Green Mountain Junior College, found ourselves starting out on the Long Trail. We were tenderfooted and anxious at the commencement of our hiking excursions, but ankle deep in, and blinded by, a blizzard of cold, wet snow. Of course we novices had come prepared not at all, for such circumstances. We needed mittens, but had none. We traipsed through the muddy terrain with no boots, and one of our misplaced tin cups wallowed its way down a vertical embankment. Following the white blazes which marked the trail, we hiked up inclines, cantered down slopes, stumbled over rocks, and arrived at our destination, Tucker Lodge, after a half hour of exhausting footwork.

Once at the lodge, which is a small, one-room shelter, some of us started gathering wood, building the fire, and warming our numbed extremities. Utter inertia followed, with the exception of the fanatical bidding of those several bridge fiends among us.

Soon the more energetic of those of our group began the preparation of the meal. In due time the sizzling hamburgs, tart pickles, and steaming cups of coffee were finding their way to our craving stomachs, and Oh, did they taste good!

The cameras cliked, the axes rang, and the nature lovers scoured the woods for "Sal Hepatica" and other varieties of wild flowers. In order to reach school at our pre-destined hour, we loaded up our knapsacks, tightened our shoe strings, adjusted our cosmetic make-up, and retraced the one treacherous mile of the Long Trail.

None the worse off for our new experience, we collapsed in the cars that were waiting for us, and burst forth in song; finding on our way home, the lingering thoughts of a well-spent day.

SUMMER VISITORS
by Henry Potter

The month of May with gentle rains and warm sunshine brings forth a host of insects; food for the swarms of newly arrived bird migrants from the South. It is perhaps then that the enthusiasm of the bird watcher reaches its peak.

Notable among the bird arrivals at this time is the large family of wood warblers, arriving in great numbers from their tropical home. Trooping through the hardwood forests and evergreen thickets on the hillsides, as well as along the river valleys, and in the apple orchards; these little feathered gems are a delight to the eye. One who has not witnessed a "wave" of these active spirits, nervously flitting among the branches in search of food, has missed one of the great delights offered by nature.

Many species are often met with feeding together, but space here does not permit of a description of the brilliant colors and markings of even the more common ones.

Kinds like the Chestnut Sided, Black-throated Green, Black-throated Blue, Magnolia, Blackburnian, Redstart, Yellow, and many others, commonly nest upon our wooded hillsides and in our valleys. A few species pass on into Canada to nest and are not found breeding at all south of the border, or are found sparingly at high altitudes in summer.

in June may be delighted by hearing the songs of the Black-poll, Canadian and Myrtle warbler, and rarely, that of the Bay-breasted. Here in the cool bracing air at 2000 feet altitude or higher, these species pleasingly mingle their songs with the flute-like melody of the Olive-backed and Bicknells thrushes, the rapid tinkle of winter wrens, the trill of Juncos, and the slow refrain of the White-throated Sparrow or Peabody bird.

SPRING LAKE

Another work party was held at Spring Lake on May 8th. It was a beautiful day and five of the reliable Section workers attended. Churchill Scott, Craigie Perkins, Michael Jennings, Joe Valquette and Bill Allard were the men present.

Work is progressing slowly. Now that good weather is here and cars may be driven almost to the Lake, more workers may show up next time.

THE INTERSECTIONAL

President Field has announced that the Intersectional Hike to be held sometime in August will have as its main point of interest, Blue Ridge Mountain. Camp sites and over night camping will be in Perkins' field near the foot of the mountain.

More details will be forthcoming later.

SCHEDULES

Chairman of the Outing Committee, Bill Allard reports that new schedules will be mailed out with the June issue of "Smoke and Blazes".

KILLINGTON

As this is being written, the Killington Hike of May 14 & 15 is in full swing. Details later.

WHAT SHALL I BRING TO EAT?

On most GMC hikes the Club furnishes coffee but you bring your own lunch. What will you bring? How should I know.

Some people bring tasty sandwiches and a bottle of pop. Some bring hot dogs and marshmallows. Some who like to really cook bring hamburgers or chops and potatoes to fry. Some even make biscuits or johnnie cake with more or less success.

So make up your mind how much cooking you want to do and plan accordingly. We are talking about a single meal. It is best for two or three people to plan together as this cuts down the waste and the weight of extra cooking utensils.

Well, for a main item how about canned roast beef, spam, hamburgers, chops, cube steak, or sausage? To go with that you can bring cooked potatoes to be cut up and fried or canned white or sweet potatoes which are inexpensive. So called "minute rice" can be prepared in about ten minutes and is very good. Don't forget the salt and oleo.

If you want another vegetable there is a wide choice of either fresh or canned. For dessert, fruit goes well on a hike. Oranges carry better than bananas, plums, peaches etc. Or you can make a vanilla or chocolate pudding allowing time enough for it to cool.

Suppose it's an overnight trip. What's for supper? Beans, hash, macaroni and cheese, canned gravy on toast, all are good with fruit, cookies and bread and butter. For breakfast better make some cooked cereal perhaps with raisins in it. Remember the milk and sugar for it. And a couple of eggs and bacon sound inviting. At least they do about seven AM on a chilly morning.

Too much work? OK then bring sandwiches and pop! See if I care.

THE GROUND HOG

February second is ground hog day to everybody except the ground hog. From October 'till April every woodchuck in Vermont is so deep in hibernation that he doesn't even know what month it is much less be worrying about his shadow.

When New England was first settled woodchucks lived in the woods but they soon accepted the easier living to be found in the farmer's fields. Grasses, flower buds, small fruits, and vegetables are his favorite items of diet.

As he is generally out in the day time everybody has seen him sitting up near his burrow. Greyish brown on the top and chestnut underneath he can be spotted against a green background a quarter of a mile away. But most likely he will spot you first. If you approach too closely there will be a shrill whistle and the brown spot will disappear.

He never goes but a few yards away from his burrow. This retreat is perhaps twenty-five feet long with two openings at the surface and a small underground chamber lined with leaves and grass. These burrows are often hi-jacked by skunks, rabbits, or foxes whereupon the woodchuck simply digs a new one.

The woodchuck's appetite for farm crops and the nuisance his burrows cause when the farmer tries to mow his meadow result in a continual state of war between the woodchuck on one side and the farmer, his son, and his dog on the other. In this struggle the woodchuck still has the advantage and is doing very nicely, thank you.

From April to October the woodchuck nearly doubles his weight due to his method of storing up food in the form of fat. While the fields are still green and food plentiful he goes underground for the long winter.

Hibernation is much deeper than mere sleep. The breathing and circulation are almost stopped. The animal's temperature falls nearly to the freezing point but not quite. If it should, he would wake up and dig deeper or die. Bears, skunks, bats, 'coons, and other animals also hibernate but they are easily roused and sometimes go outside on warm days. Not so the woodchuck. He stays put.

Two to five young are born about May first. They are very helpless for several weeks but about June first may be seen near the burrow playing like kittens.

If you can manage to get between the little ones and the burrow entrance they may be easily caught by throwing a coat or a sweater over them as they run toward the burrow. They may be handled safely by the scuff of the neck but don't forget those teeth were made for biting and the baby woodchuck knows it.

HIKE TO BUFFAM SHELTER.

On Easter Sunday April 17th, eleven GMC'ers gave Buffam Shelter its annual spring inspection. Bad news! Some of the paper has blown off the roof and must be replaced. Also we must make up a new grate for the stove.

The party worked trail over the top of Button Hill to the spring on the north side. Blazes were painted and a big brush pile removed where a new chopping has crossed the Trail.

Vice President Leone Smith of Pittsford and Richard Catozzi way up from Troy were with us. Come again soon.

GMC ANNUAL MEETING

No doubt you have received your notice of the Annual Meeting to be held Sat., May 28th at Long Trail Lodge. Plan to attend and get acquainted with the officers and workers of Vermont's finest club. It will be fun and informative. See you there.

SUMMER ACTIVITIES of STUDENT MEMBERS

Danny Jennings will be home from St. Michael's College for the month of July. We hope to see him on some of the hikes.

Bill Allard is to be a counsellor at Camp Holy Cross. Marjory Allard is going to work in the Arts and Crafts branch of the Rutland recreation department.

Janet Perkins is going to be a counsellor at Girl Scout Camp in Fairlee, Vt. Charles Sabourin will work at Carpenter's Drug Store in Rutland.

Marjory Perkins is going to the National Aquatic School at Camp Watitch, Boquet, Mass. to train for her Instructor's Certificate in swimming and life saving.

Bernard Lafond will work in his father's store at 48 Church street, Rutland.

Tony Fusco is to be a caretaker at the Rutland Golf Club.

Francis Rice has his name on call with Uncle Sam. He expects to join the navy soon.

Your roving reporters, Mary and Vera Perkins expect to tour the State Parks soon and will have a report next month on one of the finest mountain parkways in New England; Ascutney State Park.

VERMONT STATE PARKS AND VERMONT STATE FORESTS

If you are looking for an inexpensive vacation why not look to our State Parks and State Forest areas? These spots are ideal not only from the economic standpoint but they also offer far more than other crowded commercial resorts do.

We have in the state of Vermont forty-four state forests and state forest parks. These areas contain lakes, streams, and scenic mountain areas, parts of which have been developed. There are also wilderness areas with virgin timber still standing.

There is a service and maintenance fee of from 25 to 50 cents charged per day per group of five or less. Camping fees are 75 cents for tent platforms and one dollar for lean-tos per group of five or less. Fuel is furnished.

In the areas where camping is permitted you will find all the conveniences a camping vacationist requires. They are equipped with toilet facilities, pure drinking water, fire places, tables and fuel.

Speaking of State Parks, Diana and George Conlin have just returned from a vacation in Toronto, Canada. On their way there they camped at Green Lake State Park, 20 miles east of Syracuse.

KILLINGTON WORK PARTY by Churchill Scott

The annual overnight work party to Killington Peak was held on May 14th and 15th.

As usual Craigue Perkins went in a day early to carry the food for the party and to have it comfortable when they arrived.

Once again the work party consisting of Diana and George Conlin, Ray Catozzi and Churchill Scott found more work than they could do between Killington and Pico.

After clearing the trail as far as possible we continued on to Cooper Lodge where we enjoyed a warm shelter and tasty meal prepared by Craigue.

Sunday dawned clear and cold; a beautiful day for trail work. The party hiked south to "Consultation Point" and cleared the trail back to Killington.

We had a very nice dinner served by Diana and spent the afternoon working around the camp and visiting with a group of hikers who came in by the Bucklin Trail with Vera Perkins and Helen Bailey.

The work party did as much as we could, but as always we can stand more members in order to accomplish all we should do to the Trail. We also found that having someone prepare meals for the work party allows them to accomplish so very much more. We owe Diana a note of thanks for the nice Sunday dinner she prepared.

We finally arrived back at the Lodge at dusk after a very enjoyable week-end.

There is a lot of work to be done between Pico and Killington, and this fall we hope to have a one day work party to Pico shelter, if we can have enough volunteers.

Let the Trail and Shelter Committee know if you can help!

MEMORIAL DAY WEEK-END

At 10 AM on Sunday May 29th it was raining hard in Rutland. But Churchill Said, "Well, we planned to go, so we may as well go." So three of us drove in to Tessier's Lumber Camp and it stopped raining. There we found the new windows for Cooper Lodge and hung six of them around our shoulders to keep off the dew. Dew! As soon as we started to climb we ran into snow and at the top of Killington there was over an inch. It was cold too.

We built a fire and welcomed six other hikers from Burlington and Waterbury who came up an hour later. One of the Burlington boys saw a pack-load of lumber for the new windows beside the trail at Tessier's so he lugged it up the mountain for us. Thanks Bud.

On Memorial Day three of us made another trip up the mountain bringing three more windows. This time it rained most of the day with the usual result. We cooked up a hot meal and helped dry out two practically drowned couples from New York who had come in over the Trail from the Lodge. Quite a week-end!

GMC ANNUAL MEETING

At the annual meeting of the GMC held at Long Trail Lodge, May 28th, Prof. Roy Buchanan of the Univ. of Vt. was elected president.

Outgoing president Ted Goddard of Old Bennington announced plans for the summer hiking season. Besides the usual trails and shelter work, there will be a two week summer vacation camp from August 14th through August 28th. At the end of the summer vacation camp the club will hold its annual Intersectional Hike in the Blue Ridge Mountain area with the Killington Section acting as hosts.

Reports on the activities of the Sections were given by members present from the section.

CLARENDON SHELTER

The pan-cake breakfast of June 12th proved to be an early morning walk that lasted well past the middle of the day.

Four hikers, Loraine Gorski and a friend, Bill Allard and Craig Perkins, went in to Clarendon Shelter for breakfast. Then they went back down the road to the gorge and took the trail south to Spring Lake. On the way to the lake they cleared trail. It is now in good condition except for a little more brushing out.

The party returned to the gorge and had lunch.

COMING EVENTS

Date - Saturday, June 26th.

Place - Hapgood Pond

This was written up in the May issue of "Smoke and Blazes." Watch the "Herald" for further details in regard to the time of leaving Rutland for this delightful spot.

Date - Sunday, July 10th.

Place - Bradder's Camp on Tinnmouth Channel.

Remember what a grand time we had here last year exploring the channel, fishing, and loafing in the cool shade of the trees that hot summer day!

The new schedule is enclosed with this issue.

There are many interesting hikes and outings listed so mark your calendar on the dates that you won't want to miss.

REMINDER

Don't forget the Rummage Sale that we are having this Fall.

INTERSECTIONAL HIKE PLANS

This year the Killington Section acts as host to the other Sections for the famous Intersectional Hike scheduled for Saturday and Sunday August 27th and 28th.

Although these dates are far ahead Fred Field called an Executive Committee meeting on June 8th to draw up the first plans.

The gathering place will be near Perkins' Camp at the foot of Blue Ridge Mountain in Mendon. Turn left from Route 4 three miles east of Mendon village. The turn will be marked by a temporary blue arrow. The camping spot will be seen about one half mile up this road. Caution. Narrow road!

The fun will start as early Saturday as anyone can get there and will continue until Sunday evening. People planning to camp over night are requested to bring their own tents if possible. However some tentage can be supplied by the Committee if necessary.

From the central camping area a number of guided hikes have been arranged from which everyone may select those he prefers to take. These hikes include trips to Blue Ridge, Pico, Killington, Tucker Lodge, a tour of the Long Trail Lodge developments, and several shorter walks through the surrounding woods.

At 2 PM on Sunday comes the big gathering for GMC coffee at the camp site. All are expected to show up there at this time to register and have their picture taken. The Committee is working on plans for special events to be held at this time.

It is expected that this will be the biggest Intersectional crowd ever turned out so plan now to be there and share in the fun.

Remember the dates: August 27th and August 28th. We will see you there.

WHAT'S COOKING?

The greatest difficulty in outdoor cooking is management of the fire. So before you start unpacking the grub collect about twice as much good dry wood as you think you will need. If it is just for boiling, soft wood will do; but if you want to bake or fry get hard wood. It gives a steadier heat and lasts longer giving a good bed of coals.

Now just for the sake of argument let's say you are going to have boiled potatoes and carrots, hamburger, biscuit and chocolate pudding. (Please don't argue.) Unpack the stuff and arrange it where you can get at it easily but where other people won't walk all over it. Check through again to be sure you know what utensils you will use for each operation. Have a large dish or pail of cooking water at hand so you won't have to leave your fire at just the wrong time.

Get your fire going. Now what are you going to do? Get the pudding done so that it can be cooling, of course. With the new kinds just mix thoroughly with cold milk and bring to a boil. Stir almost constantly. When it thickens slightly, it is all done. Set it in a shallow pan in a cool place.

Now the vegetables. Cut them up in pieces not over one and one half inches through. Cover them with water and cover the dish. Bring to a boil over the blazing fire and then set at the side of the fire in a hot place. If you leave them over the fire they will boil over and you will have to watch them all the time.

Biscuits next. Use ready mixed flour. Make your dough fairly stiff. Grease the fry pan. (Anybody would know enough to do that. Oh yeah?) Spread out the dough to an even thickness and cook like a pan cake at low heat. This is only supposed to bake the bottom of the biscuit so when it is well browned that's enough. Be sure to have a hot blazing fire. Tip the fry pan up at an angle near the fire with a stone to hold it and the handle pointing to one side. The part nearest the fire will brown first. Then rotate the fry pan so that the handle points to the other side and brown the rest of the biscuit. When you think it has had enough remove from the fire and break it open. Hot bread always looks and feels doughy but if it doesn't stick to a knife it is done.

It won't take long to do your hamburger so don't start it 'till the vegetables and biscuit are done, and the fire is mostly coals. Take the biscuit out of the fry pan, add a little grease, and cook the hamburger slowly. It is better if you can cover the pan with a tin plate.

All right now, hot vegetables, hamburger, hot biscuit and butter, cool pudding and GMC coffee.

And if you top it off with a salad of minced "kabitzer" who would blame you.

COOPER LODGE WINDOWS

The last of the windows were back-packed up the mountain Tuesday, June 7th. Churchill Scott, Craigie Perkins, and Francis Rice completed the job.

Now that they are all painted and up at the Lodge, the work of installing them can go on whenever a good work party has the time and energy to put into it. We hope it will be soon.

INTERESTING NOTE

At the annual GMC meeting we met two retired New York school teachers who have been GMC members at large for the past twenty years but have never set foot on the trail. They enjoy supporting a good cause.

We recommended Tucker Lodge as an interesting short walk for them to take.

WILGUS STATE PARK

If you're planning a picnic you couldn't find a nicer spot, easily accessible to a main highway, than Wilgus State Park. It is located on the bank of the Connecticut River, bordering Route 5, a few miles south of Windsor.

Here you will find a nicely landscaped Ranger's cottage, a gift shop, green lawns, and, back from the highway on the shady bank of the river, picnic tables and fireplaces. All this is kept in fine condition by friendly Mr. Russell, the Forest Service representative in charge. A short hike away is a lookout affording a view of the winding course of the river.

One picnic area, a little apart from the rest, is especially adapted to large groups, as family reunions, club gatherings and the like. If you plan ahead, this area may be reserved for your group on a specific day.

Mr. Russell told us that Wilgus is a common meeting place for family groups from farther north and south. Meeting here halves the distance otherwise involved in a "get-to-gether". Frequently at these meetings families exchange children for the return trip. This gives the city-bred children a vacation in the country and vice-versa. After several weeks the trip is repeated and the children re-exchanged.

The land for Wilgus Park was given to the State by Col. Wilgus whose ancestors were among the first settlers of Ascutneyville.

There are a number of day length, or shorter, trips which could include a picnic dinner or supper at Wilgus Park. Why not get out your road map and plan the one you'll take? Or, if you would like to make it an overnight trip, how about a picnic lunch at Wilgus with a hike to the lookout, then a drive to the top of near-by Ascutney. There you could explore its trails and then return to the Mt. Ascutney camping area for a campfire supper and a good night's sleep. (We regret that lack of space prevented a report on the Mt. Ascutney area as promised. Look for it in the August issue.)

NEWS OF MEMBERS

Robert Perkins and Thelma Cole were married on Saturday, July 2nd in the Ira Allen Chapel, University of Vermont. Both are active members of the U.V.M. Outing Club of which Bob is president.

Louise Newton will be married to Mr. Percy Adams on Saturday, July 16th in the Congregational Church in Wallingford.

THE HAPGOOD POND OUTING

It looks as though a GMC Hapgood outing is bound to fail. For the second time this delightful spot has been scheduled for a summer hike. For the second time rain has come just at the wrong time.

When we started out Saturday afternoon, June 25th, the sky was grey but rain had held off for so long we were quite sure it would hold off for another day. We were just being optimistic! By the time we reached Hapgood Pond it was pouring.

Two of our party decided to go for a swim regardless of the rain, thunder and lightning. They just about got across the pool when the caretaker called them out saying that it was against the rules to be in the water during a storm. Well they got wet anyway.

After waiting without success for the storm to clear, we decided to journey on to the Perkins camp in Mendon.

Eleven of us piled into the two cars and were off again.

It was starting to clear as we reached camp and after supper was eaten it had stopped raining.

A group of the girls took a short walk up the road. When they returned the lights were lit and there was some lively conversation going on that lasted until after ten P.M. proving that the outing was not a failure after all!

SPRING LAKE WORK PARTY

On June 17th Bill Allard, Michael Jennings, Churchill Scott, "Scottie", Fred Field and Craig Perkins took part in another work party at Spring Lake.

All the lumber, except the last two big sections, is up at the camp site now.

Two more trips of eight men each and then the building will start going up.

The work parties have been very successful and the men have accomplished much this past year. Keep up the good work!

BRADDER'S CAMP

Ruth Labrako, who had charge of this trip insists that Bill Allard, Outing Ch. didn't tell her that she was supposed to arrange the weather. In spite of rain there were 15 present to enjoy the Bradder's Camp and their hospitality.

Some of our fishing enthusiasts put in a long day trying to outwit the fish. Two or three ambitious hikers really did some hiking, while the rest of us enjoyed a good indoor camp day with comfortable relaxation and conversation.

Those who made the trip up the Channel reported seeing some beavers moving about.

The Maxwell House coffee can that accompanied the coffee pot contained sand instead of coffee! How long has this been going on? Have we at last found the answer to "What is GMC coffee anyway?" We are not concerned with "Who Put The Overalls in Mrs. Murphy's Chowder?" but we would like to know who uses sand for GMC coffee? Anyone solving this riddle may carry the coffee pot on the next hike. (We had our coffee just the same, thanks to Mrs. Bradder.)

We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. MacMurray (Diana Conlon's parents), and a new member, Ted L'Ange, with us. Hope to see them often.

BACK ON THE TRAIL AGAIN

It is indeed good news to hear that Mary Jennings is hiking again. Along with seven others including Danny and Michael Jennings, Thelma and Joe Valiquette and two visiting cousins she hiked in to Little Rock Pond on July 6th.

There was some rain Wednesday but not enough to dampen their spirits. Thursday and Friday were beautiful days and the party enjoyed their stay here.

Mary and Thelma slept out under the stars

We'll be looking for you on the next hike, Mary.

NEWS FROM AN "END-TO-ENDER"

On learning at the Annual Meeting that Mrs. Violet Hall, a member of Killington Section, had received the "End-to-Ender" award we sent our congratulations and asked her to tell us something about the earning of it. In reply Mrs. Hall wrote in part as follows:

"My son and I have been hiking the Trail for about eight years now, since he was a lad of eight and carried a 15 lb. pack!  at this present moment my "End-to-Enders" award is hanging all duly framed over my desk.  I am far more proud of it than of my college sheepskin, which lies moldering in a trunk somewhere.  I've done some of it nearly every summer  about 70 or 80 miles of it I've done alone with a dog.  "Ain't you running an awful risk?" asked one old lumberman. "Why, what risk," I asked. "Well--Idunno", he said. I asked if there were any bears about, and he said, "Yes there are, but you won't see them in droves!" I've never seen one!  I had the satisfaction this spring to salve my conscience by going across the Winooski in a boat as per the Guide Book.  We did the Trail from Birch Glen to Bolton one day, after frost.  We had quite a time slipping and sliding over frozen leaves and ground, down to the Winooski at Bolton, where we arrived at nearly midnight, very glad to find our car waiting to take us over the river on a bridge. I told Mr. Vondell of it when I applied for my award and he said it was OK. But my tender conscience troubled me about that boat so, as we were in Montpelier this spring, we went out to Bolton, hunted up the young man and his boat and he rowed us over- tho the river was high and our boat was half full of water when we got across.  Now I've earned my award.

 I think my favorite camp is Jay - unless it be Little Rocky Pond.  No, there isn't a favorite, I love them all.

 The longest I've hiked in a day is 22 Mi. I carry from 30 to 50 lbs. or more in a pack - spend from week-ends to 3 wks. out at a time.  Took time out to do across a good deal of N.H. on the Appalachian Trail, and some in the Katahdin section of Maine, but my favorite is still the good old Long Trail."

We wish space had allowed us to reprint Mrs. Hall's interesting and friendly letter in full. We certainly enjoyed hearing from her and almost feel we know her already. We are proud to have her as a member of Killington Section and hope she may be able to join us on an Outing sometime.

COMING EVENTS

Date - Saturday, July 23rd.
Place - Cauty-Fostman Camp, Lake Bomoseen.

This sounds like a grand afternoon and evening at the lake. Maude and Ruth say, "The more the better and tell them to plan to come early and stay late."

Why not bring the family and make this a big outing? Official departure will be from Meldon School at 2 P.M. For any further information call 1910 - Vera Perkins.

Date - Sunday, Aug. 7th.
Place - White Rocks.

The summer schedule would not seem complete without "White Rocks". This is a good place for a "Cook-out", and is always a favorite picnic spot. George Conlin has charge of this one.

EXTRA ! EXTRA !

Cooper Lodge windows installed ! Work party puts in a long day and sixteen window sash.

Starting at eight A.M. on June 28th the boys worked all day cutting down the new sash to fit the old frames at the Lodge on Killington. By seven P.M. they were all in.

The party consisted of Robert and Craig Perkins and, guess who, Gale Spaulding. Ye-ah we finally got him out. Tommy Wilson and Jack Mullin who were staying a week on the mountain volunteered to clean up the mess of chips, shavings etc left after the operations.

This project has been in the works for over a year and now it is finished. We don't have to apologize for the boarded up openings any more.

Visitors can enjoy the grand view in three directions from within the camp. Come up and see it sometime !

TRAIL WORK

Churchill Scott and Ray Catozzi, co-chairmen of the Trail Committee report that two confusing spots on the Trail have been improved.

At the "lower road" in Shrewsbury small arrows have been put up and the Trail re-blazed along the road which it follows for about 100 yards.

At Clarendon Gorge the alternate route skipping the somewhat dangerous cliff edge has been cleared.

INTERSECTIONAL AUG. 27 & 28

Details in regard to the Intersectional were written up in the June issue of "Smoke and Blazes." Anyone desiring further information write to Fred Field, President of Killington Section, 98 Killington Ave., Rutland, Vt. More information in Aug. issue.

"I HAVEN'T A THING TO WEAR"

In deciding what clothing to wear on a summer hike several factors should be considered. Among them are the temperature, the likelihood of rain, the exertion to be made, the type of country traveled and your own personal notions.

Remember you are always much warmer walking than you are standing still. If you carry a pack or climb a mountain or hurry, that adds to the heat produced and you will require correspondingly less clothing. So don't start off with a lot of sweaters or coats that will have to be removed later, perhaps after you have become sweaty and in danger of being chilled when you stop. Do carry one extra wool shirt or jacket to put on when you rest. The summits of the higher mountains are generally cool and windy even in summer so plan accordingly.

Hard woven cotton clothing is generally best for summer wear. If flies or mosquitoes are apt to be out better wear a long sleeved shirt. For the same reason slacks are better than shorts for the ladies. Also nettles and blackberry bushes can make life miserable if they can get at you.

Never mind a raincoat. If it rains you will get wet anyway. If you wear a waterproof garment you will be soaked with sweat. It is better to just let it rain. In your waterproof pack you should have a dry shirt to put on when you get to camp.

If you stop off in the early morning on to a woody trail, it will be like taking a cold shower but you won't be cold while walking and in an hour or so your clothing will dry on you. Likewise after a rain.

So don't worry too much about details but get out on the Trail for a week or a day or even for an hour before cold weather makes heavy packs necessary.

Hikes can also be taken to Long Trail Lodge and Nature Trails.

The camp site for this Intersectional get-together is ideally situated not far from the Long Trail in open meadows surrounded by forests of evergreens with many nice walks available through these woods. There are brooks and good spring water close by.

Killington Section will furnish coffee, camping space, guides and fire wood. There will be someone on hand to give out information on all hikes. Saturday night we plan to have a community campfire where we can swap Section news and sing a song or two. If you miss this why not gossip with us at coffee time Sunday at 2 P.M.

That's the dope on the Big Intersectional, now get the gang together and come up for some fun.

CAMP SAGAMON BOYS

Leon Smith and a group of his Camp Sagamon boys held a work party at Spring Lake a few weeks ago. They carried the remaining sections of what is to be the new G.M.C. Killington Section, Spring Lake Cabin up to the camp site.

The Club appreciates the work and says "Thanks very much."

It would be a nice idea if other boy's camps had generous offers of help along this line.

CANTY-FOSTMAN CAMP

On Saturday, July 23rd, about twenty-five lucky people enjoyed a grand afternoon and evening at Lake Bomoseen.

This camp offered everything anyone could wish for. If there is a nicer spot on the Lake we haven't seen it. There was swimming, boating, a rubber raft to float around on, a large porch, shady lawn, and of course Maude and Ruth working most successfully to make everyone happy.

Harold Valiquette was there with his motor-boat and obligingly ran excursions, giving everybody a good ride.

If you weren't around for this one you missed one of the best Outings of this, or any, season. Thanks Maude and Ruth.

WHITE ROCKS HIKE

by Jim White

"It isn't as bad as it looks from here", according to Craigie Perkins, but no one cared to climb the cliffs at White Rocks when the GMC held an outing there Sunday, August 7th. The Club took a back road from which a short trail led to the west side of the rocks. The rocks had all the comforts of home, including air conditioning and ice-water. There Fred Field, who had hiked in from Little Rocky Pond with Bongo, joined the group. After a period of exploration, the meeting adjourned to Elfin Lake for a swim. Supper was cooked at the White Rocks Picnic area. A short hike followed so as to get a better view of the cliffs.

The hike was attended by Churchill Scott Sr. and Jr., Fred Field, Bob Rogers, Vera Perkins, Mary and Craigie Perkins, Thelma and Bob Perkins, and Jim White.

For a change, the fellows were in the majority.

COMING EVENTS

Date - Sunday, Sept. 11
Place- Mt. Carmel

This is always a good trip and should be especially interesting this year. The Trail Patrol of the Main Club has built a new Carmel Shelter this season, and this will be our first visit to it.

The road approach to Mt. Carmel is via the road to Mountain Top Tavern. Cars are left some distance beyond this point. The hike to the foot of the mountain is about 2 miles. Another 3/4 of a mile brings one to the top, where there is a fire tower and a good view.

Watch the Herald for details on starting time, or call Bill Allard.

WORCESTER SECTION NEWS

In a letter from Frances Green we learned that a group of six hikers from the Worcester Section climbed Pico over the Memorial Day week-end.

The trip was written up by James Marston, one of the group, and published in a Worcester paper with a good picture of Pico taken by Miss Green.

In his story of the trip, Marston told of the surprised look on the fire warden's face when he opened the door of his cabin and saw a hiker in shorts and thin shirt, for a snow storm was blowing on the peak and it was cold.

The next day the group hiked over five miles of the Long Trail from Wallingford north to Clarendon Gorge. They enjoyed the nearby views but the mountains were obscured by clouds. In a wooded section a doe was seen. At Clarendon Gorge they looked down at Mill river two hundred feet below, in a picturesque and beautiful setting.

TRAIL TRIP
by
Fred Field

For some time I have been very anxious to hike some of the Long Trail where I have never been before. Saturday, Aug. 6th the opportunity presented itself for an overnight to Little Rocky Pd. and White Rocks, so I started out. I took Pico Bongo, my Springer who is a section member with me.

Not being very experienced in knowing what to take I first followed Craigue Perkins' suggestions in "Smoke and Blazes" as to clothing for the summer trip. Then for food I wrote out what I would like to eat for each meal. Next, I crossed out half of it and changed a little. The final menus came to this:

Sat. Night: Fish, rice, corn
Kool-aid and fruit.
Sun. Morn: Orange & peach tea, bread or toast, eggs.
Sun. Noon: Chicken leg, rice, bread, Kool-aid,
fruit.
Sun. Night: Bread & jelly sand.
chicken leg, Kool-aid or tea, fruit.

Because it was very hot weather, I found the Kool-aid more useful and light to carry. I froze the meat before leaving and put it in ice-cream bags to keep it as long as possible. Rice is light, but be sure to cook it long enough. (I made that mistake once.) I took peaches and oranges, but had to eat the peaches first - oranges last better. Two eggs, raw, out of the shell in an olive bottle, kept well too. I had salt, sugar, butter, rice, all in small bottles.

Other things I carried were a summer sleeping bag, change of clothes, bathing trunks, canvas water pail, cameras, and playing cards.

Going in to Little Rocky Pond from Danby road Saturday, P.M., I arrived just in time to have a swim and supper. As usual I had plenty of company. Two boys were staying there for a two weeks vacation. They were from Philadelphia. A man and his wife were tenting near-by on their way south. In the shelter, beside Bongo and I, were Mr. & Mrs. Swehla from Turner's Falls, with their three daughters and another girl. The youngest daughter is seven. They had been on the Trail almost a week, going from Stratton Pond to the Long Trail Lodge. We kept company up to White Rocks where I left them to go down to the Picnic Area, and afterwards to meet the Section on its trip to the White Rocks ice caves.

The trip was really grand, the weather fine, but hot and except for the following incident all went well.

Because I was afraid the dog would go after a hedgehog at night I took him in my bunk with me. There was no nail where I could hitch him so I put his rope around my arm, thinking if he tried to go anywhere he would wake me and I could then stop him. In the middle of the night a porky commenced to chew on the back of the shelter. Of course I was sound asleep, but Bongo wanted to investigate, up he jumped, and up I jumped also! Well, it's all in a day's work.

WORK PARTY

On July 27th Jim White, Vera, Mary and Craigue Perkins covered a portion of the trail from the Governor Clement shelter north. A number of blow-downs were removed from the trail and the smaller growth was brushed out. All were back at the shelter for supper just before a thunderstorm broke. In spite of very hot weather a good day's work was done.

ASCUTNEY STATE FOREST PARK

If you want to climb a mountain in your car, take Ascutney mountain, elevation 3,144 feet. This mountain park can be reached from U.S. 5, four miles south of Windsor, Vermont.

At the park entrance, you stop at the caretaker's lodge, register and pay a 50¢ fee. Then you drive up the winding well paved mountain road for about four miles, park your car in the large parking area and proceed on foot to the summit. This is about a ten minute walk over a wide trail. Winding stone steps have been placed conveniently and artistically at several rises.

When you reach the summit you will want to climb the fire lookout tower from which you can see the meandering Connecticut river, mountains, hills and lakes of N.H. to the east, and Pico, Killington, Stratton, and Okemo to the west and south.

On your way down take the northerly trail to Brownsville Rock. You will get a grand view here of the main range of the Green Mountains and a patch work pattern of farm land, forests and villages which will fascinate you.

Perhaps you will wonder about the stone foundation of the remains of a building. Here is the story: In 1904 the Ascutney Mountain Association completed a stone house at this spot. On Labor Day of that year 500 people climbed the mountain to attend the dedication. Today, 45 years later, all that remains is a resemblance to a foundation.

Of course you have a picnic lunch in your car. Drive down to the picnic area where you will find complete facilities for a picnic; piped spring water, stone fireplaces, tables, and sanitary facilities.

Before you leave the park take a look at the camping area. You may want to come back some day to pitch your tent. This area is located near the caretaker's lodge at the base of the mountain. It has available, spring water, tables, stone fireplaces, tent platforms and sanitary facilities including showers.

You will be impressed by the cleanliness and the attractiveness of Vermont's State Forests and State Parks. Visit them and become acquainted with the quiet, peaceful beauty of our State.

NEWS FROM N.Y. SECTION

In an interesting letter from the N.Y. Section we learned about a worth while activity they participate in. Through a committee in their club they take part in Conservation work.

This committee is allowed a sum of money to spend for dues to large national organizations devoted to conservation. Magazines and booklets are received and studied by the committee and then taken to Thendara and kept on file. The committee includes a large percentage of older members who want to do club work but do not get out very often on hikes.

Helen Raymond, Conservation Chairman for the Section told of many interesting programs arranged by her committee. Walks are taken to observe experiments with stopping soil erosion. Dinner meetings are held and conservation films shown. A Saturday walk to a member's back yard beehives, with talks and explanations as to how bees help in conservation work made another informative trip.

All this gives us the idea that the Killington Section could do something similar (perhaps in a smaller way) that would be well worth while. How about it?

We wish to extend sympathy to Eleanor Walker for the loss of her mother on July 28th.

1949 INTERSECTIONAL

by
Fred Field

The Long Trail News mentioned recently that little had been heard from the different sections. If the Sections attended more get-togethers like the recent Intersectional, they would get all the news. This was one of the most interesting features of the meet in my opinion and to many others, I know. At the Saturday night campfire someone representing each Section present gave the highlights of their club activities and what they knew of trail conditions. We all were very interested and wished there had been more than 4 Sections present.

Altogether about 35 took advantage of the excellent weather and hiking offered by our hard working committee at the Perkins' camp in Mendon Aug. 27-28. Some of us were fortunate to be able to go up for the night of the 26 and others were less fortunate to be able to stay through the thunder storms of the night of the 28th. Hikes had been planned for not only Blue Ridge, but also Tucker, Pico, Killington, Noyes Pond, and other woodland trails. We waited until we knew how many wanted to go here or there and then off we went. There were at least 2 trips up Blue Ridge, and one to Noyes Pond, also one to the beaver dams north on the Elbow Road. The weather was warm and sunny so the scenery was beautiful and picture taking was in order.

The Section committee took care to see that plenty of coffee was available to the other campers, also wood, tents and fireplaces. Since I was a camper in a tent I can vouch for the super job done. The camping site was perfect and although I did chop wood, I did not have to go far to get it. The camping site had been arranged and built by some Girl Scouts, so there was nothing lacking.

Speaking of our sleeping, whereas most of us were in tents, there are now two of our clan who know the trials and tribulations of the tropical hammocks. At least they know not to swing them over a stone wall.

The three Sections represented beside Killington, were Bennington, Worcester, and Brattleboro. The Saturday night campfire featured also community singing with delightful solos by Jim Greene of Worcester and Harold Valiquette of Rutland. We even had some square dancing on the green in front of the house, a good baseball game with Thelma Perkins as the only lady batter, and several of the more ambitious played horseshoes. Ted Goddard and John Paulson furnished tender, yellow corn for everybody at Sunday dinner.

There is no doubt that everyone had a good time. We wished that more of the Sections could have taken part - it is good for us to get acquainted and learn about other Section activities.

Thank you again to all of you who worked so to put this over. You did a great job.

FIRE!

Our good friend W. E. Bradder of the State Forestry Department tells us they have had two small but expensive fires on The Long Trail this year. They occurred in the towns of Bolton and Jay, high in the mountains at a considerable distance from water.

They were apparently caused by the failure of hikers to extinguish lunch fires. At Mr. Bradder's suggestion we have sent fire prevention posters to all the GMC Sections with the hope that they will be placed in all camps on the trail.

The Long Trail attracts people to the most inaccessible parts of Vermont's forests at the very time of year when danger from fire is at its worst. It is definitely the responsibility of the Green Mountain Club to make every effort to prevent damage to private and public lands through which the Trail passes. Our guide book contains adequate warning regarding the care of fire and this should be repeatedly brought to the attention of hikers through posters in camps and references in other literature.

In dry weather it is physically impossible to extinguish a fire in thick woods without water, no matter how good the intentions. Fires built in the fireplaces provided at shelters are reasonably safe. No other fires should be built along the Trail except beside springs or brooks where water is available. Such suitable places for fires should be selected and marked by the GMC and their locations noted in the guide book.

Of course everybody expects the Killington Section to show the way so-----let's go.

We have received a request from the Assist. Librarian of Dartmouth College Library for all the back numbers of "Smoke & Blazes". He would also like future numbers as issued. We shall endeavor to fill this request.

MOUNT CARMEL HIKE

by
Jim White

Practically the entire local population turned out to welcome Killington Section to New Boston on Sunday, September 11. The group, in town for their hike to Mount Carmel, numbered seventeen.

Leaving their cars in New Boston, the club hiked two miles through the woods to the new Mount Carmel Shelter. This shelter, billed by its promoters as accommodating "five men or six porcupines", was built by some hunters last spring from the remains of the old camp. Better get your reservations in early for it would be crowded with more than four people in it.

The hikers cooked lunch at the camp. About a mile of hiking led to the steel tower on the top of the mountain. Those who could be persuaded to leave the terra firma, enjoyed a fine view of Chittenden Pond and the mountains. Two and a half year old Jimmy Hayward ascended the tower in luxury via pack basket.

The group went back to the shelter, tested the famous GMC coffee, and returned to the cars, testing and collecting apples on the way. After a little sightseeing in New Boston, they drove back to Rutland.

COMING EVENTS

Date - Sept. 24 & 25

Place - Mt. Killington

This may be the last year you will be able to drive as close to Killington as 1½ miles from the top so take advantage of the opportunity. There will be no set time of departure from Rutland. Just make up a party with your friends to leave at your convenience.

Date - Oct. 8 Saturday

Place - Noyes Pond

New schedules will be mailed with the next "Smoke & Blazes."

THREE DAYS ON THE TRAIL

by
Fred Field

As an aftermath of the Intersectional, Bob Rogers and I decided to get on the Trail for 3 days over the Labor Day weekend. We pooled our food, but later found that we had brought too much. Bob thought it a good idea to plan the menus ahead as I had done once before, then get supplies accordingly. Well the menu was alright, but some things in the store looked pretty good, so we got extra.

Anyhow, after a big turkey dinner at Bob's Sunday noon, we started north from the Long Trail Lodge about 2:45 P.M. A stop at Tucker was made where we met two boys staying for the weekend. They had a lot of supplies and guns. I am not sure what they were hunting but later we heard them shooting, probably at targets.

Six-thirty saw us at Noyes Pond. There we met Miss Virginia G. Wilson, Jr., of Venice, Fla., who said that she had been alone on the Trail for 2 months. She had started at Journey's End camp and had come south through Bolton and then skipped down to the Killington Section. She had been up over Pico and Killington and as far north as Pleiad. Miss Wilson gave me a lot of comments on the conditions up north and in our section. She had interest enough to make a regular porky stick for each shelter she had visited and to so mark it. Also she gave us a nice red dust-pan to take over and install in the Carmel shelter.

Monday A.M. we left Noyes Pond about 10 A.M. It was sprinkling a little and later it poured. We kept right on going through rain and mud the whole seven miles to Carmel. It was a rugged trip and a wet one. That dry pile of wood at Carmel shelter was the best sight I have seen in a long time. We changed to our dry clothes and got started drying out. Being nasty weather, we decided not to go further, but take it easy the next day and then to come down into Chittenden and home.

Anyone ever see Bob cook flapjacks? Well he volunteered to cook and I did not object since he had lugged the flour and syrup up there. They really were very tasty.

We now have 60 adult members and 35 junior members in the Killington Section of GMC.

Mr. Danforth, member at large from Waterbury, Vt., camped on the old Elbow Road in Mendon and climbed Blue Ridge recently. He called to inquire when the Intersectional was to be. We were sorry to dissappoint him by telling him it was all over.

Too bad publicity on this annual affair failed to reach so many members who may have been interested in it.

Janet Perkins had a group of Scouts camping at the foot of Blue Ridge. They sent us a poem about it. We hope to use it next time.

"PORKY"

Somebody gives the warning in a stage whisper. There is a muffled riot as everybody tries to find his shoes in the dark and locate the "just right clubs carefully set by the door at bed-time. "All set?" The lights flash on and there is a confused rushing around with "He's over here." "Don't let him get up that tree." "Why didn't you hit him?" Whack, whack. "Did you get him?" "Nope, he got into that brush." Another one gets away.

Ten minutes later after the army demobilizes he'll be back chawing at the door sill and conversing in grunts and whimpers with his six cousins who are working over the tin can dump.

Almost every GMC camp shows the effects of the nightly visits of Porky. The table tops have scalloped edges and are worn thin in spots where Porky has discovered a salty flavor from some food spilled years ago. Scattered quills make it inadvisable to walk around barefooted.

The woods are literally full of Porkies. It is easy to find trees that have been girdled and killed or the tops eaten away. The state of Vermont pays forty cents not for a pair of Porky ears because of the damage done to timber and farm buildings but this has little effect on the number of Porkies or the amount of damage.

Porky lives on bark and twigs and seems to eat day and night for twelve months of the year. If he finds a tree he likes he may spend several days in it. In the coldest weather he may stay in a den under a rock for a day or two, but he can be found climbing to a tree branch in temperatures below zero. He's a tough character.

Occasionally a fox or a bob cat will take a chance and attack a Porky. In such case he will tuck his head under a log or between his paws, plant his feet firmly, arch his back and present nothing more vulnerable than a mass of three inch barbed spikes. If danger comes too near he will swing around his heavy armed tail and drive quills into his opponent.

The young are born in the early spring, (often only one) complete with teeth and quills. A new born Porky weighs more than a new born bear. In two days he eats solid food and in a week is entirely independent.

Near camps Porkies should certainly be killed and properly disposed of. Along the trail, suit yourself. It is a novelty to meet an animal apparently more stupid than a human being.

No, he can't throw his quills.

Yes, he is good to eat.

Blueprint furnished on request.

RUMMAGE SALE COMING SOON

The last of October will be Rummage Sale time again. We want it to be bigger and better than ever this year, so start collecting.

Clothing is always good and we are apt to be short of sizes from 38 up. Children's clothing goes like "hot cakes", even with missing buttons and small repairs needed. Toys and children's books are good sellers too.

Dishes and articles for "dressing-up" the house are always in demand. This year we plan to have a novelty table. As one item for this we are preparing small pictures. This can be quite simply done by selecting an attractive print, mounting it under glass and binding it with passe-partout tape. If you have pictures you would like to prepare in this way they would be very welcome. Perhaps you can think of ideas for other novelties.

Let's build up a reputation for offering the best there is in Rummage Sales. It's good business for the GMC treasury!

The exact date of the Sale and details of arrangements will be given in the October issue.

Vol. 2 No. 10 Killington Section G.M.C. Oct. 1949

RUMMAGE SALE - NOV. 5

Saturday, Nov. 5th is the day of the big SALE! What Sale? The GMC Rummage Sale, of course.

Let's get busy and hunt out all those things we've been saving for it. Remember that beside clothing (children's clothing goes especially well), household utensils and decorative nic-nacs are good sellers.

We'd like all the material at THE NEIGHBORHOOD ROOMS, FRIDAY? NOV. 4th, so it can be priced and all arranged when the doors open for selling at 9 A.M. Saturday.

If you have material but can't get it to us, call Craigue Perkins' house, 907-M, before Friday and we'll arrange to collect it.

We need a lot of material to make the Sale the success it has been in the past. GMC can well use the money we earn.

All together now, LET'S GO.

Frances Green of the Worcester Section sent us three very good pictures taken at the Intersectional for the Section's collection.

Next time you visit the Perkins' Camp in Mendon, read the poem reporting their camping trip there, sent in by a group of Girl Scouts from Camp Wynona.

NEW SCHEDULES OUT

New Schedule cards were enclosed with your copy of 'Smoke and Blazes' this month.

Why not take time to amrk on your calendar the dates on which activities are schedules. By doing this you may be able to plan so that you can participate more often.

It's standard procedure for each person to provide for his own lunch and necessary utensils. GMC provides coffee.

In case you don't find the details of starting time, etc., in the Herald before a hike, call Outing Ch. Billy Allard.

Anyone is welcome to attend any Outing, so come and bring your friends. The more people who come, the better time we'll all have. You never know what you may be missing, so plan to be on hand as often as possible.

NOYES POND

No one showed up for this one, probably due to a mistake in starting time given (no fault of Ch. Billy Allard). Everyone thought we didn't mean it - which we didn't.

DANBY TO WEST WARDSBORO VIA THE LONG TRAIL
by Thelma Perkins

The two of us, after much preparation and discussion as to what packs and equipment to take, finally got off to an early start on The Long Trail at the Black Branch Road near Danby and headed South. Roaring Brook was certainly living up to its name due to the rain the night before. Upon our arrival at the designated place of crossing we had to take off our shoes and stockings and ford the stream.

This is a lovely section of the trail to cover. The trail follows an old logging road along the brook for about six miles; nearly to Griffith Lake. The slope is so gradual that we didn't even realize that we were climbing. It is a good place to start a hike, I think, because it takes one a while to get used to his pack.

Griffith Lake was a delightful spot. We immediately took advantage of the Lake and had a swim before going on to the shelter. Not long after we made the shelter four Boy Scouts from Chester arrived for the night. There was plenty of room for us all.

In the morning we got off to a very early start. It was cloudy on both Peru and Styles Peak so we were deprived of seeing the nice view. We were glad we were hiking from the north when we met five heavily burdened campers struggling up the steep southern side of the mountain. They had started from the Mass. state line and were bound for Sherburne Pass.

It was early when we arrived at Mad Tom Shelter so we decided to go on to Bromley Lodge. Bromley Mountain was another disappointment for us. The ladder which is mentioned in the Guidebook is a thing of the past. We did get a view, however, where

The Long Trail follows the ski trail, but it was cloudy.

We were two tired hikers when we arrived at Bromley Lodge. Two girls from New York were already there. They had the fire going and some good wood in. It rained not long after we arrived. Later in the evening a man and his wife from Philadelphia came in, and also two fellows who hiked over from Stratton Pond. We really had a camp full.

We started out for Swezey Camp the next day. This section of the trail was recently relocated. It was well marked but not very well worn. We hiked by blazes most of the way to Swezey. In a few spots the trail was originally painted blue and later repainted white. It rained again, but only a shower, and we dried out at Swezey.

At Swezey there are some Logging camp buildings as well as the old trail camp. The GMC has adopted the best of the logging buildings so there are two useable camps at this spot. We stayed in the old Swezey Shelter that night. It is the first time I had ever slept on hay. It is much more comfortable than cactus fibre, But I guess it won't last as long.

The trail wasn't very well brushed just south of Swezey. We had some difficulty in finding where the trail crossed the brook in one or two places. Different crossings suit different people, I guess.

The Worcester Section did a good job on the trail leading to Stratton Pond. It had just been brushed. We saw a deer on the trail here. She just stood and looked at us a while, then turned and jumped into the bushes. We got in to Stratton early. There are two open shelters as well as the closed lodge at the pond. We picked one of them. Again we took advantage of a beautiful pond and went swimming, altho it was rather cold. We found a raft which we enjoyed paddling around the pond.

The next morning we hiked the three miles out to the West Wardsboro road. It might as well have been to no-where, it was such a deserted road. We planned to call at the first house. Just a warning: the first phone is at least eight miles away.

All in all we thought it was a beautiful section of the trail, and fairly easy to hike.

KILLINGTON TRIP

Fourteen lucky people took advantage of the GMC hike to Killington on the week-end of Sept. 24, 25, and 26th. Some stayed over Saturday night, some Sunday night, and some came just for the day Sunday. All had fun.

Saturday morning it poured and a good supply of dry wood was hoped for but not expected. Nevertheless, believe it or not, the Camp was found spic and span with plenty of dry wood and kindling. In no time at all we had fried our sox and roasted our trousers.

Soon another party arrived to be wrung out and hung to dry.

Sunday morning there was a hard frost. The trees stayed white till nearly 10 AM and the rocks on the peak were quite slippery with a film of ice.

Toward noon the rest of the gang began to arrive. The boys replaced two broken window lights making the camp winter tight, we hope.

After dinner a trip was made to the top of the mountain for a look around. Hazy around the edges, but we could see from Mt. Monadnock, N.H. to Camel's Hump and from the White Mountains to the Adirondaks.

Soon the come-and-go-ers had to get going and the stay-over-ers cooked supper. After that there began a bruising card game known as "Have you got ninety?"

Early the next morning bacon and eggs took our attention. Then a few camp improvements were made and the wood supply was replenished. Late in the afternoon the party returned to Rutland.

Next year don't miss it.

SPRING LAKE CAMP

On Oct. 1st, Harold Valiquette, Art Westcott and Craig Perkins put in a day at Spring Lake. When they finally headed for home, the new camp boasted four walls and a ridge pole. The sections fitted together just the way Harold said they would. Of course there is a bit of patching and piecing to do here and there but all hands are greatly encouraged.

There will be another work party Sunday, Oct. 23rd. Come on up and make with the hammer and saw.

COMING EVENT

Date - Sunday Oct. 30th
Place - Mooselamoo

Many of you will remember this as a grand fall hike.

The first part of the hike is via an old road through the woods. There are plenty of fine places for cooking dinner along the stream.

It's a fairly stiff climb to the top, but the woods are a pleasant place to spend the afternoon, so if you don't care to make the top - well, that's up to you.

GMC SLIDES

Fred Field, Harold Valiquette and Craig Perkins took a trip to Burlington to show the GMC slide collection to the Outing Club of the University of Vermont. The members of the club enjoyed the slides and the talk and our Killington men enjoyed meeting this splendid group of mountain enthusiasts.

When these young men and women graduate from college, we would like to see them go on with their mountain interests in the GMC.

Bob Perkins, a Killington Sec. mem., is Pres. of the Outing Club.

THE BEAVER

Nearly everyone who has examined a beaver dam rates the beaver as our most intelligent wild animal. He not only is a skillful workman but he readily adapts his structures to fit the particular requirements of the place he chooses to live.

He has one serious fault, almost fatal, a most valuable fur. For two hundred years beaver skins were used as currency on the American frontier, and the beaver population was reduced to a low figure. Then styles changed and now he is coming back in most of the forested parts of the country.

The beaver is a large animal weighing up to fifty pounds. He has webbed hind feet, front feet that can be used as hands, and a broad flat tail used in swimming. His fur is dark brown.

He builds dams for two important reasons. In the first place he is an expert swimmer and can travel many yards under water or under ice to escape his enemies, so he builds a dam to form a pond in which he builds a brush lodge. If the lodge is attacked, the beaver can escape under water to a safe place.

In the second place the pond formed by the dam is used to store the large quantity of twigs and small logs on which the colony lives during the long winter months.

In building a dam, the beaver gnaws at the bases of trees until they fall. They are then gnawed into short lengths and dragged to the site of the dam where they are laid parallel to the stream flow and anchored with mud. Many layers of stones, wood and sticks are built up in this way to a height of two to six feet with a thickness of ten feet at the bottom and a length of several hundred feet in some cases.

In the pond thus formed a conical house is constructed of the same materials with an under water entrance and a living chamber at the top above the water line. The walls are so thick that this house remains warm in the coldest weather.

The chief food of the beaver is the bark and twigs of poplar, willow and birch. In the fall a great supply of this material is gathered and stored at the bottom of the pond near the lodge. It is held under water by a layer of mud until it becomes water logged.

In addition to building the dam and lodge, sometimes other dams are built below the main dam to relieve some of the pressure on it. Western beavers also dig canals leading from the pond back into the woods to clumps of trees to be felled for food. It is much easier for the beaver to swim, towing the short logs than to drag them cross country.

A colony consists of the two adults, four or five one year old immature young and four or five of the latest litter which are born in May. The following May the oldest group leave the home pond and start new colonies. At this rate the beaver population about doubles every year in suitable country where there is protection.

Eventually their dams flood roads and fields and they become so destructive to valuable timber that trapping has to be permitted.

Beavers are still protected in Vermont. There are several dams near Rutland where these interesting animals may sometimes be seen just before dark.

We were sorry to hear that Chairman of Hikes, Bill Allard, has been sick a short time with pneumonia.

Do you remember Bongo? He has gone to live in New Jersey. Bongo was quite a hiker!

Nov. 1949

LET'S GET ACQUAINTED

We have many good GMC members who seldom join with us in the activities of the section. We appreciate and value these supporting memberships. We wish, however, that more of these people might be active members, so that we could have a chance to know them better. It is through getting together on Work Parties, Hikes, and other Cutings, that members really have a chance to exchange ideas, become better acquainted and get more enjoyment from fellow membership.

We have felt for some time that perhaps we were at fault in not offering enough variety in our activities to interest a larger percentage of our total membership. Besides the hikes and work parties, there have been customarily only a few get-togethers during each year. The suggestion has been made that we might add some funds to our treasury and also provide an additional opportunity for a pleasant evening for Club members and their friends by sponsoring a card party.

Mary Jennings and Thelma Valiquette have been appointed Co-Chairman to plan such an event.

Watch for the details of this party in our next issue and try and arrange to be with us.

Let's make it a real get-together!

PROGRESS AT SPRING LAKE

Our new camp at Spring Lake is beginning to take on the shape of a building. It has, at present, four walls, ridge pole, one plate and one rafter in place. Stones have been put in under the posts and the building has been levelled.

The last work party was held on a cold, windy Sunday, October 23rd. The men of the party, Harold Valiquette, Michael Jennings and Craigie Perkins were met at the camp by Eleanor Walker, Pearl Nichols and Vera Perkins. The girls had hiked in over the trail from the gorge and reached camp in time to cook dinner for the men.

Harold improvised a table and dinner was served inside the roofless camp.

After dinner Churchill Scott, "Scottie" and Dana Bell showed up.

While the men were busy with the heavier work, the girls carried boards out of the woods and piled them neatly near the camp. They also scraped bark from the logs.

Progress is being made slowly but surely.

Ray Catozzi and Churchill Scott spent a day recently clearing the trail. They started at the lower Cold River Road and did a thorough job working north.

OVER $100 EARNED BY
RUMMAGE SALE

Our third annual Rummage Sale turned out to be the most profitable one yet. The net proceeds are $ 101.88. This successful outcome would not have been possible without fine co-operation.

The committee wishes to thank all the people who helped by contributing articles to be sold. A special "thank you" goes to Fred Field, who contributed space in the "Herald" and radio time for advertising, and to the following people who worked at the sale; Lorraine Gorski, Mary Jennings, Thelma Valiquette, Eleanor Walker, Helen and Fred Field.

DATE * Dec. 11 - Saturday
PLACE - Beechwood
SPECIAL ATTRACTION - Covered Dish Supper

It's almost time again for the Killington Section's big eating activity. For the benefit of new members who may not know what it is all about, here, briefly, is the general idea.

Each one comes bringing something for the supper, plus his own plate, cup, fork and spoon. Supper is served buffet style, so there is a chance to sample everything. We have found from past experience that there are some good cooks in GMC.

In order to make things come out right for the supper, you should call Vera Perkins - 1910 - if you are coming, and get your assignment of what type of food to bring.

The camp will be open from 2 o'clock on, so come early and have a good afternoon outdoors to work up an appetite for supper - you'll need it!

In the evening we hope to have some of the pictures taken during the year to show you. If you have any interesting ones bring them along.

Don't forget to call 1910 for this one.

OUR TRIP TO MOOSELAMOO
By Shirley Morris

Three cheers for the women club members. Yes, sir! Eleven turned out for a swell hike to Mooselamoo. Rain was forecasted for the day, but our spirits were lightened when a few rays of sunshine cracked through the trees.

There were five ambitious gals who hiked the stiff climb to the top, while others found interesting side trails. Killington was just barely visible and we couldn't see Pico at all. It was surprising to notice how much higher Silver Lake was than Dunmore.

We cooked our lunch in a cozy spot by the side of a stream. Vera and Eleanor did a fine job with the fire, seeing we were minus our men hikers who usually have that job.

We were glad to have Dart Noyes and Raic Hood from New Hampshire with us. Hope they will join us again soon.

TRAIL WORK PARTY

On Nov. 14th Richard and Ray Catozzi, Churchill Scott and Craigie Perkins finished working trail between the Lower and Upper Roads in Shrewsbury. "I don't remember any wet spots on that piece of trail," said Craigie. He does now! -Yup. He fell in Cold River all over.

EQUINOX HIKE

On Sat. Nov. 12th five courageous members of the Killington Section tackled Mt. Equinox. Of course we knew we couldn't reach the top before dark so we planned to eat supper near the big spring.

About dark a blazing fire was started by firemen Lindell and Allard. The water was soon boiling and Gretta Rowe proceeded to make the coffee by secret formula. It was good, honest!

At 5:30 PM the party started down the trail for home led by "Bloodhound Bill" Allard. No flashlights were needed. The coffee was still radio active and gave off a steady glow lighting the way.

A FALL CAMPING TRIP

By Mary Jennings

After several interruptions to prevent us from starting, we, Mary and Vera Perkins, Thelma Valiquette and myself, Mary Jennings, finally piled into Mary's car and were on our way. We started our three day camping trip the 17th of October. Our destination was Burke Mt. in the Darling State Forest Park, West Burke, Vt.

We were disappointed in not being able to go while the foliage was at its best. However, it was still beautiful, only the colors had changed to various greens, yellows and rustic browns. The sumac stood out prominently with its spikes of red.

Our trip took us over Sherburne Pass and on to White River Junction and then we followed the Connecticut River. We stopped at Wells River for dinner and then continued to West Burke where we found the Darling State Forest Park. A very good road leads to the top of the mountain which is about 3,500 feet high. In the Park we found camp grounds, picnic areas and good foot trails with lookouts commanding noteworthy views.

It was such a clear day that first we drove to the top for a view. It was truly beautiful looking off into the valley and the ranges and ranges of mountains. Then we went half way down the mountain to the camp site and picnic area where we found a huge pavilion with a large fireplace at one end. As no one else happened to be camping, we decided to set up our housekeeping there. We put up our tents just outside the shelter. We found an ample supply of wood, thanks to the caretaker, Mr. Austin. He and his wife were so hospitable and made us so welcome! We also had plenty of water as it had not been shut off. Of course we had our sleeping bags and plenty of warm clothing for all kinds of weather.

Community cooking was in order and did we do justice to our meals!

Craigie loaned us his gasoline lantern which gave us a wonderfully bright light and with the fireplace going, it was cozy and warm. We played Canasta till late, drank our hot cocoa and crept into our beds. Everyone slept fine and the only thing that disturbed us was a chipmunk.

I woke up early so got up and built a roaring fire and put on the coffee pot. The aroma of that soon got the other girls up.

After breakfast we drove to the top of the mountain, hiked around on the trails, enjoyed the view and took short naps in the sun.

At noon we had a picnic lunch outside the pavilion and rested again. But as the day was ending, we had an urge to go back to the top for another look, so this time we hiked up and watched the sun set. We were well rewarded as the colors were grand. Lake Willoughby was a picture between Mt. Pisgah and Mt. Hor.

Next morning we broke camp much to our sorrow.

We decided to come home by way of Groton State Park. This too, is a lovely spot with all its little lakes.

We stopped in Barre for a late dinner and then journeyed on toward home. At about 6:30 a tired but happy foursome reached Rutland.

Date - Nov. 27th - Sunday
Place - Tucker Lodge

This is a familiar hike to many of us and a favorite. It is a short walk of three fourths of a mile over the trail to one of our best closed lodges.

The schedule says "steak supper," so bring along something to cook. There is a good stove inside the lodge.

Watch the "Herald" for further notice of time and place of meeting. A big crowd usually turns out for this one. The older members, the younger members and the in-betweeners should make this hike.

DEER

If you are walking through the woods and hear a twig snap, look quickly and you may see the flash of a white flag bobbing out of sight in the brush.

During the daytime your deer usually keep to the thick cover of swamps and spruces coming out at night to browse in the open woods or along a stream or lake.

Alert, swift of foot, intelligent, and adaptable, deer are holding their own in all forested parts of northeastern America. They were essential to the existence of the early settlers, supplying food and clothing. They are now our most important big game animal.

Deer are generally seen in groups of three or four. The mating season is in October and the young are born in May. The fawn is "fawn" colored with white spots, quite different from the rusty red of the adult which turns to a greyish brown in winter.

The number of "points" on the buck's horns do not indicate his age. The horns grow during the summer being covered with skin called "velvet". In September this skin dies and is rubbed off. By the following February the antlers die and are shed. Then the process is repeated.

Deer browse rather than graze. Among their preferred foods are blackberry, raspberry, and blueberry bushes; hobblebush, choke cherry, maple, elderberry, poplar, beech, birch, water plants, ferns, mosses, as well as beech-nuts, acorns, and wild apples. They will also nibble at all the evergreens except perhaps spruce.

If too many deer attempt to find a living in an area the small branches will be nipped from the trees to a height of five feet and most small shrubs will be eaten to the ground. A careful inspection will indicate whether the range is over-crowded or not. If so the animals will be weakened and many will die from disease, starvation, or predators during the winter. Many times deer in an overcrowded area will not migrate to a nearby area with abundant food. When the snow is deep several deer will gather in a swamp and form a "yard" consisting of a network of paths along which they may find enough food to carry them through until spring.

When deer become too numerous they are destructive to forest growth, orchards, and farm crops and must be controlled by more extensive hunting. Bobcats occasionally kill fawns, hunters harvest considerably less than the annual increase, while disease, parasites, and starvation tend to keep the population in balance.

CAMP KEEPING

If our Shelters Chairman ever gets around to it he intends to post in each camp suggestions to the hiker on the proper care of the building. We also hope to supply most shelters with a water pail, a garbage pail, a dishpan, a broom, and a dust pan. These items should last about three years and are not too expensive if they encourage people to keep the camps clean.

Let's see now, what will we put on that suggestion list? Burn all burnable rubbish. Burn out all cans and squash flat. Put them in the can dump. Leave no food in camp unless it is in metal or glass containers. Pancake flour and odds and ends of food aren't worth saving and may result in a messy camp. Date any perishable food left. Leave all pails and pans clean and bottom side up. Wash off tables and shelves. Leave a neat pile of dry wood and tinder for starting a fire. Build no bonfires. Leave no unsightly rubbish near the camp.

Do this, don't do that, do this, don't do that! Will they ever learn!

EXTRA ! EXTRA! EXTRA !

CARD PARTY !

Mary Jennings and Thelma Valiquette, Co-chairmen of the Card Party have announced their plans. Here they are:

To raise money for the GMC Killington Section a card party will be held Tuesday evening Jan. 10th at 8 PM at the home of Vera Perkins, 242 South Main St., Rutland.

The cost will be 50 cents per person. Refreshments will be served. There will be a prize for each table and also a door prize. There will also be an opportunity for a few square dances at the end of the evening.

The committee plans to contact about 25 members to ask them to take charge of tables.

If you are not called to take charge of a table, and wish to do so, call either Mary Jennings or Thelma Valiquette. Also if you want a place at a table call the committee.

Any game may be played. The type being arranged for by the head of each table.

The tables may be filled by members or non-members, adults or children.

With co-operation this event can be another big success financially and socially.

The date is Tuesday Jan. 10th. The place, 242 South Main Street.

NOMINATING COMMITTEE

President Field has appointed the following to serve on the nominating committee to present a slate of officers to be voted on at the annual meeting in Jan. : Churchill Scott, chairman, and Maude Canty.

If members have any helpful suggestions to offer, the committee will be glad to receive them.

WINTER HIKING

Soon our woods and trails will be carpeted with snow soft as velvet. The trees will take on the appearance of sculptured statues and the sky will be a deep cloudless blue. There will be a hushed stillness in the woods and the sun will shine through the evergreens leaving a pattern not unlike stained glass windows of a beautiful cathedral.

That will be the time for all lovers of beauty to leave their fire-side chairs and take a winter hike.

When the winter schedule comes out mark your calendar on the dates of coming hikes that you don't want to miss.

Just an idea : Club memberships for your friends would make ideal Christmas gifts.

IT WAS QUIET IN THE WOODS

by

Thelma Valiquette

Sunday afternoon, Nov. 27th, it was quiet in the woods. Snow was falling softly. Here and there deer and rabbit tracks crossed our trail as seven of us wound our way into Tucker Lodge for our steak supper. The crowd was small but the time was large. First to arrive were Vera, Mary and Craigue Perkins so when Harold and I arrived the camp was nice and cozy. Last but not least, came Diane and George Conlin.

We all had steak - some of it turned out to be hamburger steak - and the aroma was something out of this world, and everyone lapped their plates clean.

We had a very enjoyable evening sitting around the fire and just chatting. About 8 o'clock we started for home. The tree-tops were swaying in a gentle breeze and with our lantern and flashlights we looked like a small village from the distance.

FOOD AND FUN

At the Beechwood party Sat. Dec. 10th, 35 hungry hikers walked around the heavily laden dining room table and served themselves with helpings of delicious food. There was plenty of everything and seconds of some.

Earlier in the afternoon small groups walked out in the woods to work up an appetite for the feast of the evening.

The Scavenger Hunt was won by the team of boys consisting of Pete Spaulding, Pete Perkins and Bill Allard. The prize was a box of chocolates.

Mr. Leone Smith showed some interesting Kodachrome slides and Churchill Scott showed a few reels of movies taken on the Long Trail.

Hats off to the dish washing brigade! The kitchen was in order in no time.

SAFETY ON THE TRAIL

Hiking is certainly not a hazardous pastime but there are some elements of danger that we may not recognize.

In the first place we are walking on rough trails, cooking over open fires, and using axes and other tools with which we may not be too expert. These all lead to unfamiliar situations requiring extra precautions and alertness.

Then too we may find ourselves injured several miles from the nearest road. A wrenched knee or deep cut is bad enough at home, but if it should happen way up back of Nowhere, it would develop into a pretty painful experience. Another reason for being extra cautious.

Now there are some things we just don't do at all. There is no approved method of kicking a porcupine out of an open shelter while barefoot. Also, people who chop wood in a tangle of overhanging branches are very poor insurance risks.

Then there are some things we know to be more or less dangerous but by using care and judgement we hope to avoid accident. We can carry a pack along the edge of Clarendon Gorge or climb the tower at Mt. Carmel with safety if we go slowly and keep our minds on what we are doing.

Perhaps the most likely sources of trouble are the little things like slippery logs on the trail or hot frying pan handles. They get in their dirty work before we have time to think, assuming that we intend to think at all. The victim always says, "I didn't think."

Diane and George Conlin have moved into their new home on North St. Extension.

Edith Ewald missed the Castle-ton bus by seconds so couldn't come to our Beechwood Party.

BROMLEY and SO FORTH

by
Lucy Bishop

Have you been wondering about the condition of Bromley Shelter, members of GMC? If the observations made by us seasoned hikers, namely, Joy Wingett, (whom you will all recall is a former GMC member), Martha Walsh and Betty O'Hara of Boston, Alice Rowe of Manchester, Vt., and I, can be considered reliable, I would say it is probably in very good condition. Honesty compels me to insert that word "probably" because privately I wonder whether any shelter could be in as good condition as Bromley seemed to be about 4:30 on the afternoon of November 11th. I have a sneaking suspicion that relief (with a capital R) at not having to spend a rainy night outside may have caused us to view that rough log structure through the well-known rose colored glasses. Furthermore it is also possible that we continued to wear them when we hobbled over its well-worn threshold. I am sure of only one thing - by the time we reached the shelter we were so cold, damp, hungry, and weary, that its cold, black fireplace, flanked by a huge pile of dry wood and a stove, looked exactly like an automatic oil burner, while three musty, hard bunks, in layers, closely resembled three soft inner-spring mattresses!

We had planned to spend Friday night at a hunting camp above Manchester; Saturday afternoon scaling Equinox with the GMC; Saturday night in a shelter; and Sunday morning hiking again. Alas! "The best laid plans of mice and men" - and WOMEN!

Shortly after the gang from Boston arrived in Manchester, we drove up to investigate the hunting camp and decided it was just what we wanted. Of course a key was necessary in order to move in and take over, so we set about securing one. The joke was on us. Would you believe it, with three keys to that lodge on the loose, we couldn't corral even one! The "key" man in each case was either out of town or just plain out! Since daylight was rapidly reaching its deadline, we felt that we had better hunt around for the Bromley shelter. Alice knew where to find the trail so after parking the car we appointed her leader-in-chief. We plodded up the trail after her, single file, wet leaves and mud providing interesting side trips at regular intervals. Along about the sixty-fourth side trip we began to feel a little skeptical. Not that we didn't trust Alice, you understand, we knew she'd find it eventually. We were just thinking of the careful of luggage we had to transport by hand over this same trail.

Our leader didn't let us down - she found the "gold in them thar hills" - a cabin with walls and a roof! A fireplace! Bunks! We made a hasty survey of what heaven had sent us and slipped back down to the car. You know one slips down much more quickly than one slips up! The reason is that you don't lose ground - every movement is ahead-way ahead!

We proceeded to transfer one sleeping bag and a small case per person, plus groceries for six from the car to our willing(?) shoulders as rapidly as possible. By this time it was really dark, so we made our second ascent by lantern light. Strictly speaking, the lead and the rear gals made it by lantern light, while us four in the middle made it by guess.

We soon discovered we hadn't seen nuthin' yet! Skating around on mud and wet leaves with both arms free, bears no resemblance to the same routine with a sleeping bag, case, and an armful of groceries for accessories. After countless rest periods and stops to shift from left to right, or from shoulder to underarm, we hadn't covered so much as half the distance. We held a council and revamped our plan of action with the result that about half the load was left on the trail to be picked up on the third trip.

Betty and I remained at the shelter to keep the fires roaring and cook our belated dinner by the light of one lantern, while the rest trod the now well-beaten path with the other to "git the rest of our goods." We hope everyone realizes what self-control we two exercised during this chapter in our saga. The transport committee didn't return for hours (we insist it was hours), but we ate nothing but a measly little handful of potato chips - what with hamburgers and such ready and within easy reach!

After eating dinner and clearing away, we had a grand evening around the fire, and curled up in our sleeping bags reasonably early. Aside from the fact that the fire went out leaving us practically frozen, Friday night was uneventful.

Saturday morning after the fires had brought the temperature up to a sweltering 52° and we had tucked away a quantity of bacon and eggs, we explored the grounds. I must say things look far different by daylight than they do by the light of the lantern!

We presently packed up our belongings, tidied up the shelter, replenished the wood supply, and concentrated on our pack-train stunt once more. Having learned by experience, we took only half our luggage this time. The trip down proved interesting. Why shouldn't it? It was a new trail to us since we hadn't seen a thing the night before. To heighten the interest a surprise awaited us! We were about half way down "when what to our wondering eyes should appear" - not St. Nick - but four big strong he-men from Brooklyn, heading for the shelter! What's more they had planned to spend the night before there, but couldn't find the trail! Who dares deny we were born under a lucky star?

They very thoughtfully helped us carry the rest of our equipment down to the car, for which we were profoundly grateful. But why, oh why, did we have to drag all that wood around before we took the first load down? After all four husky men would surely have said, "Don't bother!"

From that point on we were completely demoralized and went civilized. We, hikers of the first order, after five trips up and down the Bromley trail, actually ate our lunch in a Manchester restaurant on Saturday and didn't feel even a twinge of guilt! What's more we ascended Equinox in a car by way of the Skyline Drive instead of hiking on our own two feet, and still conscience did not even whisper. To climax our downfall we finally snagged a key to the hunting lodge and drove right up to the front porch!

We unloaded the car with a minimum of effort, real lamps gave us plenty of light, Betty and I didn't have to exercise our iron control because everyone was present and dinner was on time. A good state indeed, so that we could enjoy our evening to comfortable warmth! All this - and yet - shall I tell you a secret? We really didn't have as much fun on Saturday night as we did on Friday! Bromley shelter must have been all we thought it was!

We couldn't think of any new and fancy way to say it but we really mean it --

A MERRY CHRISTMAS
and
A HAPPY NEW YEAR

NOTICE

We regret that at this time no date can be given for the Annual Meeting. President Fred Field reports that it will be held some time this month. Cards announcing the date and place of the meeting will be mailed to members as soon as possible.

REPORT OF SMOKE & BLAZES

A report of Smoke and Blazes is being given at this time so that members may have the opportunity to think about the question of whether or not they want this publication continued. Come prepared to vote on it at the annual meeting.

The total cost for 12 issues of Smoke and Blazes for the year 1949 came to $42.98

To save expense only one copy is mailed to a family address although more than one member of the family may be a Killington Section member.

The object of the paper is to keep members interested in the Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club by reporting activities of the Section and also by giving general information about The Long Trail, shelters, hiking, plant and animal life found in Vermont.

Do you find this paper interesting? Do you want it continued?

SUGGESTIONS FOR 1950

Let's try to publicize The Green Mountain Club a little more. It is a unique organization that deserves a larger membership than it now enjoys. It almost seems to a loyal Vermonter that every Vermonter in the State should take pride in belonging to a club that does so much to preserve and uphold the natural beauty of this State.

If we co-ordinate our efforts in reaching out for new members, not only among our immediate friends and acquaintances but in out-lying communities, perhaps the story of The Long Trail would reach the thousands who have never heard it.

Membership is important, but what we in the Killington Section need to a greater degree is Manpower. We have money enough in our treasury to do a good job on our section of The Trail if we had the Manpower available to do the work. It's hard to believe that there aren't enough red-blooded men clamoring for a chance to go out on The Trail to put in a day of good body building exercise.

If lack of active participation in maintaining our section of The Trail keeps up, then we will have to hire our trail work done. Let's hope that day never comes. Perhaps we may resort to women workers.

$50.00 EARNED BY CARD PARTY

Under the capable direction of Mary Jennings and Thelma Valiquette, our first Card Party proved to be both a financial and a social success.

With a profit of $50 the committee deserves some well earned praise and they in turn wish to thank every individual who helped make the evening of January 10th a big success.

Many remarks such as, "Why don't you have more of these parties?" were heard. We are a hiking Club but it certainly does no harm to have included in our program some indoor recreation. It gave a splendid opportunity for our loyal members who are not the mountain climbing members to join in on a Killington Section activity. It was grand to have them. Close to 100 people got together, at the home of Vera Perkins, to play the games of their choice and to help our Section boost its funds.

ERROR?

In the November issue of the Long Trail News the date of the Annual meeting of the Parent Club was given as June 3rd.

According to the by-laws the Annual meeting of The Green Mountain Club Inc. is to be "on the Saturday which falls nearest to May thirtieth in each year."

May 30th is on a Tuesday this year. The nearest Saturday to it is May 27th.

How about it Mr. Editor of The Long Trail News?

NEW MASTHEAD

How do you like our "New Look"? Credit goes to Ray Catozzi for the design and stencil for the new Masthead. We had completely worn out our other stencil. Ray is a busy man and we certainly appreciate his donation of time and talent.

DO YOU RECOGNIZE THIS?

THE GMC COFFEE POT, OF COURSE!

This coffee pot has been attending Killington Section outings since 1938. Wears well doesn't it? - like all true GMCers!

Actually the coffee pot has stood up amazingly well considering that it has long been the battleground in the TO-SCOUR or NOT-TO-SCOUR conflict. One school of thought maintains that a coffee pot which gives such loyal service deserves to be kept clean and shining; that it will last longer; and anyway it's messy to carry when black. The opposition stoutly maintains that a camp coffee pot should be black; that since it just gets black again on the next trip why waste energy scouring! One of this group even designed and made a carrying case thus effectively silencing one of the best arguments of the PRO-SCOURERS. Every now and then the coffee pot gets into the hands of a PRO-SCOURER and appears at the next outing with a shining face. Then it will be in the hands of an ANTI-SCOURER for awhile and becomes black enough to delight the most ardent lover of black coffee pots! And so the battle rages!

Meanwhile, the good old reliable goes right on pouring out that famous GMC coffee -- never twice alike!

HAPPENINGS AT TUCKER

One of our favorite winter shelters suffered from a visit of hoodlums sometime during the holidays. Conditions seemed to indicate that Tucker was the scene of some type of Free-for-all; two windows were quite thoroughly demolished, screens torn off, sash and window panes broken; small equipment as lantern, broom etc. was wrecked, and the whole place left in general disorder.

Since the damage was discovered, a group of young people have been in and picked up the rubbish, boarded up the window openings, left a supply of wood and in general put the shelter back into a usable condition. Measurements have been taken for new window frames and these will be installed and any further repairs needed will be completed in the near future.

It is especially disappointing to have such an incident occur as Tucker had so recently been put in an A-I condition which was a source of enjoyment to its many legitimate users.

This shelter is not only popular with Killington Section GMC, but has many other visitors. A survey of a register which was installed at Tucker when the Long Trail Patrol was staying there in August to do Trail work, gives some interesting information.

In the three months between Aug. and Dec. 1949, Tucker had visitors from the following places; Rutland 21, elsewhere in Vermont 8, New York 16, Mass. 11, New Jersey 4, Ohio 2, Conn. 2, Colorado 1, and Washington, D.C. 2.

Two young men who visited Tucker in Sept. were on quite an extended trip at the end of a summer as Directors of Boy Scout Camps. They had been in upper Quebec, in the Mont Tremblant, and Diable River areas which they reported as, "beautiful and wonderful for canoeing, but the woods too dense for hiking." They had spent several days in the Mansfield area and were heading back there for a few more days after climbing Pico.

Three visitors from the Amherst Outing Club, at Tucker on Nov. 27th, reported quite a strenuous trip from Barnes Camp to Taft Lodge, Mt. Mansfield area, two days previously. Equipped with regular hiking shoes they hiked in snow up to their knees, taking 3½ hours to do two miles.

It is to be hoped that this time Tucker is put in order it may remain undisturbed to give welcome and service to the real hikers who use and appreciate it.

BUFFUM SHELTER

Through the generosity of Mr. Merton C. Fisher of New Bedford, Mass. new roofing has been applied to the Buffum Shelter.

Early last summer Mr. Fisher visited the shelter and noticed that the paper roofing was badly torn. He wrote asking permission to have it fixed. He got it! Now Buffum shelter is in good condition again.

We need more people like Mr. Fisher.

FIRST SNOWSHOE TRIP

Tired of waiting for snow for a GMC outing, Ruth LaBrake took advantage of the first reasonable facsimile of snow this winter by snowshoeing to work the morning after the ice storm. Ruth says it was the best way to get there as Davis St. was unploughed and her car in deep-freeze.

1950 DUES PAYABLE

Another year has rolled around. Let's get the Killington Section Treasury off to a good start by paying 1950 dues at our Annual Meeting later this month.

BLACK BEAR

In every forested part of North America we can find the black bear getting along just fine. He has nothing to fear but man and he can hear him or smell him half a mile away.

No danger of his starving either. He will eat about anything that grows from acorns to green corn, and insects through fish and frogs to an occasional sheep or calf. He is especially fond of all fruits in season. We have all seen where he has trampled a raspberry patch and broken down the shad bushes.

In Vermont bears generally weigh from two hundred to four hundred pounds. They have a clumsy shuffling walk and run that nevertheless get them over the ground surprisingly fast. Their claws are short but strong so they can climb trees easily. When danger threatens a mother bear will send her cubs up the nearest tree where they will stay till ordered down.

Whether a bear really hibernates or not is a much argued question. When freezing weather comes in the fall he finds a more or less sheltered spot, scrapes together a few leaves and curls up. If the den stays dry and not too cold he may sleep all winter, breathing but four or five times a minute and taking no food. However his temperature stays up nearly to normal and he is easily roused in most cases.

From one to four young are born in the dead of winter. They weigh less than a pound apiece and don't get their eyes open for about six weeks.

The black bear is easy to tame and can learn tricks readily but in the wild state he is not to be played with. Neither is he a clown but on the other hand is perhaps the most sensible and easily understood of all our wild animals. If you see a bear in the woods and he isn't running the other way, why, that means it's your turn to run! Elementry!

PARENT CLUB FINANCES

The present "unfortunate" financial condition of The Green Mountain Club Inc. comes as no surprise to anyone who has read the reports of the Corresponding Secretary and the Treasurer, and compared them, year after year, with the previous reports.

The expenses of the Club have increased, except during the war years when we were forced to neglect up-keep of trails and shelters. The income has not increased. Now we must use our cash reserves to pay the difference.

Can expenses be cut? Not likely. In fact more shelters and miles of trails now nominally in the care of the Sections may have to be taken over by the Parent Club.

Can income be increased? Well, it better be! We need more members-at-large and more effort to keep them as members after they have once joined. We need higher dues and improved services to our members. We need new sections here in Vermont and more help and encouragement to Sections already established.

What about the income from the Long Trail Lodge? All money received is used to pay off the debts connected with the Lodge development, and will be for another six years at least. On no account should this income be diverted to the regular running expenses of the Club. Nor should any more money be added to the investment at the Lodge by further expansion or improvements.

As members of the Killington Section we are automatically members of The Green Mountain Club Inc. For years we have light heartedly shrugged off all responsibility for facing the Parent Club's problems. The same has been true of the other Sections and the members-at-large. It is time we took a more active part in making plans and gave more assistance to the officers of the Club in carrying them out.

Killington Section G.M.C.

February 1950

ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual meeting of the Killington Section of the G.M.C. was held Saturday, Feb. 4th in the Neighborhood Rooms of the Marble Savings Bank.

President Fred Field presided. Reports were given by the treasurer, secretary, and committee chairmen.

The nominating committee presented a slate of officers for the coming year:

President - Churchill Scott
V. President - Raymond Catozzi
Sec. - Treas. - Eleanor Walker
This group was elected to office.

The photography contest was judged by Mr. George Tappan. Craigie Perkins won first prize for the best black and white. Fred Field was runner up. Ray Catozzi won first prize in the colored slide entries. Mr. Leone Smith had some outstanding pictures on display.

After the business meeting, Murray Crampton entertained the group with some magic tricks.

1950 MEMBERSHIP

The first 1950 membership list appears in this issue. Additional names will be added each month as memberships come in.

Dues are still $2.00 for adults and $.50 for Junior members and are payable to:

Miss Eleanor Walker
87 Baxter Street
Rutland, Vermont.

PLANS FOR 1950

by

Pres. Churchill Scott

In the year to come the Club has two big goals to accomplish. One is the completion of Spring Lake Camp. The other is the clearing out of numerous blowdowns along the Trail caused by the windstorms of the past winter.

The Club will need the participation of every single member whenever possible during the season to get this work done.

The membership committee reports that this year looks like a banner year, and although we like to see a large membership, we like much more to see every member an active member.

The following is a list of Committee Chairmen already appointed for the year:

Shelters - Harold Valiquette
Publicity and

Membership - Fred Field

Cuttings - Helen Bailey

Barbara Mellow

Photography - Shirley Morris

TRY THIS ONE

What tree is like a business man

Who tries to look the best he can?

This is the first in a series of riddles. Just in case you don't guess it, you will find the answer somewhere in this issue.

FRED FIELD'S REPORT

Killington Section has had a fine year. Our membership has increased to over 100. The trail at last observation was in excellent condition and the shelters were still holding together.

A great deal of trail clearing has been done over nearly the entire length of the Section. Work parties concentrated on clearing more than any one thing. Very few signs or blazes needed to be painted.

The Shelters were, as much as possible, fixed up where necessary and notes made for future repairs.

Spring Lake's new Shelter was and is the main project. Bringing the parts from Shrewsbury to Cuttingsville was the big task completed over last winter. The cabin stands with sides and roof beams in position now. Work parties are doing a fine job of it.

Our program of hikes was well planned and executed by Bill Allard. "Thanks, Bill, for that work." I've heard lots of compliments on the trips and parties this year. Here's a goal for which the new committee may strive.

More photographs came in this year than last. More, too, were entered in the contest. These photos together with the newspaper "Smoke and Blazes" form a good part of our publicity department. We need this publicity to inform our members of things of interest and to help broadcast our activities to the world.

"Thank you," to the staff of "Smoke and Blazes." The job has been handled so well the paper has become an urgent and important part of the Section's activities.

I do appreciate a great deal the help, advice and work all of the Section members have done while I have been an officer. I only hope in the future I can return at least some of this help to the new officers and committees.

So here goes for a bigger and better Killington Section year than ever before.

Fred Field.

The members of The Killington Section wish to let Fred know that they appreciate the splendid work he has done as President for the past two years.

BIG FREE OFFER!

For a limited time only, we offer free instruction in the art(?) of getting out a monthly bulletin! All phases of production will be demonstrated with ample opportunity for actual practice in: collecting material; fitting and arranging to fill 4 pages - no more and no less-; typing stencils; mimeograph operation, including inking and cleaning up after same; assembling and stapling pages; folding; addressing; and stamp licking. Where else could you get such a complete course at this low price? DON'T DELAY. Take advantage of this opportunity to develop a new and fascinating hobby.

Seriously, we do want people to work on Smoke and Blazes. If it is as useful to the Club as many of you seem to think, its continuation shouldn't depend on the whims of three people. Besides it's fun to get it out and we'd like more of you to share in the fun.

Shirley Morris has already said she would help. Let's have some more volunteers. We'll be hoping to hear from a number of you, soon.

HOW MUCH DO WE MISS?

Beginning soon and continuing for several months, is a season of great activity in the fields and woods. Birds are returning to make their summer homes, or are passing through en route farther north. Wildflowers are starting up after their winter's rest. How much of all this activity do we see?

We have a plan to help us keep in touch with what is going on. We'd like our readers to act as reporters. Here's the idea. You call and report whenever you spot a new arrival, either bird or wildflower. The names of the birds and flowers reported will be listed each month in SMOKE and Blazes, along with the name of the first person reporting each. Make your reports to Craigue or Mary Perkins (Tel. 907-M). Let's have lots of evidence that we aren't missing these interesting arrivals.

THE STRANGEST ANIMAL

As a conclusion to this series of sketches of our native animals let's take a look at that two legged calamity, "homo stupidimus."

Entirely without feathers and with insufficient hair to keep him warm he ventures into the forest only occasionally. At such times he protects himself from the weather by a makeshift covering of sheep's wool or seed hairs from the cotton plant. The lower part of his hind legs are cased in cow skin without which he could scarcely walk a mile on his tender deformed feet.

So that he will not become hopelessly lost he scrapes the bark from trees and coats the wound with a white earth mixed with oil from the seed of the flax plant. It is easy to see where he has passed by. The Trail is littered with the peelings of tropical fruit, the shells of birds eggs, and the wood fiber wrappings which, when darkened with ink, convince his simple mind that the enclosed material is good to eat.

When night comes on he must camp where he is. His eyesight is poor in broad day light. At night he is practically blind. He is afraid of the dark and burns a tiny torch of dried tobacco leaves to keep up his spirits, though it gives little heat or light. All day upon his back he has carried the dried and powdered seed of the coffee bush brought with great labor from a distant land. This he boils in water and eats. No ! He doesn't eat it ! He throws it away and drinks the colored water in which it has been boiled !

And so he crawls to his bed and pretends to sleep out the night. At dawn the first one up says it's a good morning whether it is or not, and all the others agree with him. Then each one wets his face with cold water and says that it feels good.

No wonder these strange creatures have had to give up trying to live in the forest. Instead they are huddled together in cities built of stone, baked mud, and splintered tree trunks where they are utterly dependent on one another in whom they quite properly have no confidence.

COMING EVENTS

Winter Week-end

Date Feb. 25 and Feb. 26

Place- Perkins' Camp, Mendon

This is the outing we have been waiting for. We had hoped it would be a snow party but regardless; rain, hail, snow, or sleet the party is on for Sat., Feb. 25th and Sun. Feb. 26th.

Craig Perkins is chairman of this one. If you wish to attend all or any part of this outing, make your reservations by calling him at 907M not later than Thursday night of that week.

As customary with this outing, meals will be prepared and served family style. Everyone will help with the work. The cost of the meals will be kept at a minimum. There is plenty of room so don't stay away because of the thought that you would be one too many.

Bring your own blankets.

MAPLE SUGAR PARTY

by
Helen Bailey

No sooner had the Outing Committee settled on Saturday, March 25, as the date for the Maple Sugar Party, than the thermometer dropped out of sight and sub-zero weather made us wonder if some Saturday in May might not be better. However we are keeping our fingers crossed.....

Mr. Smith has kindly consented to have us back and all those who attended last year agreed that Camp Sangamon is an ideal spot for such a party. Those who are interested only in sugar can drive nearly to the camp, yet the real hikers can get as much exercise as they wish in the surrounding woods. Mr. Smith plays host at the "Sugar House", explaining and demonstrating the art of sugar-making. Getty Page plans to be with us again this year to lead square dancing afterwards in the recreation hall. There will also be an opportunity for Canasta fans to get in a few rounds.

There will be a small charge for the eats (sugar-on-snow, doughnuts, pickles, and coffee) - how much we are unable to say at this time.

Reservations should be made before bedtime on the Friday preceding by calling 320. If you need transportation, let us know.

Supper about six-thirty.
Come and bring your friends.

NEW SCHEDULES CUT

Schedules for the spring and early summer Outings have been made up by Outing Ch. Helen Bailey and Barbara Mellow, and are enclosed with this issue of "Smoke and Blazes". From now on Helen and Barbara will write up the coming Outings, so consult your "Smoke and Blazes" each month for first hand information.

Seems like the new chairmen are off to a fine start. This schedule looks good to us.

CLARENDON SHELTER HIKE

The second outing on the new schedule is an old favorite. Plan to revisit Clarendon Shelter on Sunday, April 2nd. Watch the Herald for details as the starting time etc.

THAT COFFEE POT AGAIN

Information via our private underground discloses that the "Scourers" are now one up on the "Non-Scourers". Eleanor Walker somehow got possession of the coffee pot and -- you guess -- that's right, it's all bright and shining again! Don't let it spoil your fun, "Non-Scourers"!

WINTER WEEKEND * 1950

by
Dart Noyes

On Sat., Feb. 26, graced with excellent weather for outdoor activities, enthusiastic members of Killington Section, bearing the usual assortment of sleeping bags and other necessities and travelling on snowshoes, skis, or just walking, arrived at Perkins' camp in Mendon and were as grateful as ever for the annual welcoming cup of tea.

After a brief rest and exchange of greetings and ideas some of us went out on the trail for a while and gloried in the winter sunset, the snow-laden evergreens and another long-awaited look at the familiar pond and Blue Ridge in their winter hibernation.

Twenty-one members and guests partook of a wonderful new supper menu, after which an innovation was instituted when twobrousing games of Canasta got underway. The friendly (we hope) differences of opinion that this game brings to light are truly remarkable. A system of making popcorn while blindfolded was devised by the younger members due to conflict regarding the heat-producing qualities of the wood stove for this purpose.

When those not spending the night had sadly taken their leave, we who stayed over slid into our sleeping bags and deeply appreciated the privilege of listening to the alternating crackling of the wood fire and resounding silence - (those who slept that near to the fire, let me hasten to add')

Sunday dawned another beautiful day and brought the pleasures of camp breakfast, the welcoming of returning guests, morning outings, and the ever present enjoyment of good company before and after another of our famous meals.

Winter Weekend has come and gone again. Those of us who consider this event one of the most important on the Section's calendar regret that there has to be a year between them, but shall we reason that this keeps the magic in them?

AN OLD FAMILIAR HIKE

With a new fall of snow on Sunday, March 12th, we hiked into that "old familiar spot" Tucker Lodge. The snow shodding was the best it had been all season and the woods were beautiful. By noon the sun came out to add to our pleasure.

Eighteen of us shuffled around inside the Lodge at dinner time. Richard Catozzi remarked, "It's like a crowded dance floor."

The most unusual event of the day was observed by the ladies as they watched the men of the party wash the windows.

The camp was in very good condition for recently a group of Explorer Boy Scouts had spent a few days here installing the new windows, fixing the stove pipe, and laying in a big supply of wood. Young Norm Davis was the efficient carpenter. "Thanks" from the GMC, boys, we appreciate your help.

NO BIRDS OR FLOWERS?

We are sorry we haven't a report of any birds or flowers seen this spring. Perhaps it is too early. The hunt is still on so if you see a bird or flower report it by telephoning 907 M and we will list it in "Smoke & Blazes."

THE LOST HUT AND OTHER LOSSES INCLUDING THE TRAIL

by
Ernest E. Wheeler

Since 1937 my climbing has been in retrospect. In such memory hikes, "Smoke and Blazes" has been a great help - a breath of Green Mt. air that finds its way to my downtown Manhattan office and so sweetens my mail.

Years ago, my nephew and I have frequently had the loan of the Lodge (before it had been so greatly enlarged) for Washington's Birthday Holidays. We brought small parties of congenial spirits from New York and would generally break a snowshoe trail up Killington.

On the last of such visits, our party went directly to the Lodge, while my nephew and I planned to climb Killington from the Rutland side and spend the night in the little stone shelter on the top. My nephew insisted, against my violent protests, on bringing a tenderfoot friend who had never been on snowshoes.

There was little snow in the valleys. It soon became evident however, that all the season's snow that had fallen on Killington had stayed there.

We reached the "Tin" shelter just under the top, late in the afternoon. The drifts were so tremendous that nothing seemed familiar to me. The stone hut was not in its usual place nor anywhere to be found, even when we resorted to thrusting down a pole in an effort to find the roof. Finally a little showing of ledge quite a distance from where the hut should be caught my attention. It proved to be an exposed bit of the chimney!

We laborously uncovered the entrance sufficiently to open the door, which fortunately swung inwards. Finding it impossible to maintain a fire in the fireplace with the chimney half full of ice and snow, I decided we must go to the Lodge a distance of $5\frac{1}{2}$ miles. Our packs were not light and snow had begun to fall in the early dusk.

As we had a compass, all we had to do was to keep going down hill in a northerly direction. To hit the Lodge I insisted that we keep a little west of north, but my nephew argued for a more easterly course.

After crashing along for awhile, sometimes on and sometimes off the trail, my nephew suddenly stopped in a little clearing. The night had cleared, and in the starlight only fifty feet ahead was a magnificent, well antlered buck, standing with a forefoot raised. For perhaps a half minute we jacked him with our flash, and then with a great bound he disappeared into the black forest.

By my insistence as to our course (probably just luck) we did not miss the half-way, open lean-to. This success gave Ed an unjustified confidence in me. He stuck close to my back, even stepping on the tails of my snowshoes.

From the lean-to on, the trail is largely an old wood road, but I could not seem to hit it. I finally did and set up a glad shout. Just at this moment, with Ed as usual close behind, I plunged over a small precipice formed where a great boulder, concealed by the snow, diverted the trail around it. I went head foremost into the muck of a warm brook. An instant after striking bottom, I was hit a heavy blow on the back of my head, driving my face further into the slush. This I thought was Ed and for a moment murder was in my heart. The blow however was delivered by my pack which violently hinged over as I fell.

About a mile further, Ed announced that he was unable to take another step. I knew better for he had had no cramps in his calves, but I told him in that case we'd soon have a fire going, wrap snugly in our blankets and snooze until dawn. I advised him to sit down on a log and rest before we unpacked. This was my "mental" treatment. Unlike other mental healers, I do not dispute people when they say they are sick or in pain. I agree absolutely, sometimes to the extent of suggesting the situation is not only bad, but perhaps worse than they think. In many instances this results in a prompt and complete cure. In five minutes Ed was on his feet and ready to put one foot after the other for a while longer, which he did.

We reached the Lodge a little after midnight. When I cased off my pack in the big room before the dying embers, the sense of levitation was so great that it seemed to me I would crash the rafters.

(Editor's note) Mr. Wheeler of New York City has been a member of Killington Section since the days when the Trail was only blazed and the shelter under the summit of Killington was only a log Lean-to! We appreciate Mr. Wheeler taking time out from a Florida vacation to write us an account of one of his trips.

NEW ENGLAND TRAIL CONFERENCE

On Mar. 25th at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. The Mountaineering Section of the Recreation Conference will present a program of discussions and lectures which should be of interest to GMC members.

Among the subjects covered will be "The Condition of the Trails and Shelters all over N. E." "The Activities of the Amherst Outing Club" (with pic.), "Exploring the Juneau Ice Fields of Alaska" (with pic.), "The Sargent School of Out-of-doors" for adults at Peterborough, N. H., and "The Growth of The Appalachian Mountain Club in the White Mountains."

"Smoke & Blazes" can give details on time and places of Sessions.

SLIDE COLLECTIONS

In addition to the GMC collection the following slides may be obtained for showing by any interested group:

Appalachian Trail Conference collection of 150 slides on the entire Appalachian Trail.

Main Appalachian Trail Club collection of 100 slides covering that State.

Also a collection of 150 slides on Mt. Katahdin from the M.A.T.C.

While we are on this subject how does this sound? Instead of a single catch-all collection, suppose the GMC developed three collections of about 100 slides each more or less grouped as follows: Number One, a "Travelogue" consisting mostly of views of and from the Trail; Number Two, a "Nature" collection showing birds, animals, plants etc. found along the Trail with enough other slides for back ground; Number Three, "Hiking and Camping" pictures with some views and shots of people climbing, cooking, making camp etc.

No one questions the fact that the small investment made in the original collection has paid out many times over in good publicity. Let's have more of it.

LUNCH FIRES

Lunch fires should not be built where they can not be extinguished with water.

Along the Killington Section's part of The Long Trail there are about twelve lunch spots beside springs or brooks where it would be reasonably safe to build cooking fires. If we could mark these spots and build crude fire places we might discourage people from stopping to cook just anywhere the fancy strikes them. There should be a list of such places at each shelter with a warning against building fires in undesignated spots.

Some such plan would make a good State-wide program to adopt.

DO YOU ENJOY THE MOUNTAIN CLUB?

We do and we know you do- you've proved it ! How? Why, by attending our activities and by being an active member. Over One Hundred members joined last year. There were as many as thirty people on some of the trips. Nearly eighty came to the card party and recently sixty ate sugar on snow at Pittsford. That's interest and enthusiasm ! Of course there are hundreds more who use The Long Trail and its shelters in the summer and of whom we have no count.

Your officers have designed a dandy trip schedule for the coming year. There are, too, many things which must be done to maintain The Trail and repair its Shelters. This all takes money and manpower. Let's all get behind the Club with our memberships and our help. PUT OVER THE KILLINGTON SECTION NOW WITH A BANG!

MAPLE SUGAR PARTY

by Ruth A. Fostman

The annual maple sugar party was held Saturday, March 25th at Camp Sangamon in Pittsford. About sixty members and friends attended.

Some went early and watched the boiling down of sap at the Sugar House, presided over by our genial host Leone Smith.

It was a beautiful early spring day. Some of the party drove to the top of the hill but others decided to let their cars rest at the bottom of the hill and proceed on foot. The walk did us good and gave us a good appetite. It also gave us a chance to watch the flocks of crows circling around us and to listen to the chickadees talking to us.

On our arrival at camp we found several there ahead of us and the syrup boiling. We also found a hearty welcome in the kitchen. Our hostess, Mrs. Smith was there to make everyone happy and comfortable.

We soon sat down to bowls of hot syrup (cooked just right) and pans of snow, doughnuts, pickles, and coffee.

The Outing Committee, Helen Bailey and Barbara Mellow, and our President, Churchill Scott (and Mrs.), certainly gave us good service in every way. There was plenty of everything, even seconds on syrup. Some members with larger appetites brought sandwiches to augment their supper.

George Conlin being a good sport started in washing dishes. Mrs. Scott took over after a while and finished them up with several able and willing workers to dry and put away.

Later on we had square dancing in the Lodge where there was a roaring fire in the fireplace. Getty Page took care of this part of the program and did his usual good job of it. There were games for those who did not care to dance, so in all we had a most enjoyable evening.

We are very fortunate to have such a grand place for our Sugar Party and we are truly grateful to our friends the Leone Smiths.

CLARENDON SHELTER

?????

The short hike in to Clarendon Shelter is lovely at any time of year but especially so in the early spring as on Sunday, April 2nd, when the brooks were singing their spring songs and the trees were showing signs of life by sending out catkins. There were some especially pretty ones that looked like big fat pussy willows, but as they were growing on poplar trees someone was heard to remark, "Should we call them pussy poplars?"

Sixteen (including Mike Larsen's dog) made the trip, taking the weather man at his word that although it would rain during the morning it would clear before eleven - and it did! Of course it was rather wet underfoot after the rain, especially as there was still snow on the side road, but this made the dry shelter all the more welcome. After the ashes of ages had been cleared out of the camp stove and a little patching job done on the lining of the fire box, a roaring fire was soon going and coffee in the making.

By the time lunches were cooked and eaten more hiking was in order, however short ones satisfied as the wet snow along the Trail and in the woods made it hard going. The group broke up early with calls of, "See you in two weeks at Buffum!" Come on and join us perhaps we can find some early spring flowers along the Trail by then.

to brave the April showers and/or enjoy the April sunshine on the 6th at Buffum Shelter, the 30th at Governor Clement and May 16th at Little Rocky Pond. The early spring schedule was planned to cover our own territory first and to stretch unaccustomed muscles in preparation for the real workout at Stratton later. So come on out to pick the first flowers, count the early birds, or just to get some air and exercise in congenial company. As usual bring your own lunch and cup and meet at Meldon School. Watch the Herald for time of meeting.

REMEMBER THE RUMMAGE SALE

Another activity which comes along at about the same time as looking for the first flowers, spring fever and the like is housecleaning. We know you are all at it, or will be soon. Now is the time to start your collection for our next Fall's Rummage Sale. Put a box, the bigger the better, in some easily accessible place and as fast as you find something destined for the sale put it in the box. This will get things out of your way now and when October rolls around you won't have to say, "Oh, I had some things for the sale but I didn't have time to get them together." DO IT NOW!

ANOTHER RUMMAGE SALE THOUGHT

Remember those nice, brand new pictures we had at our last sale as a special value? There are a few left which we would be glad to sell at 35 to 50 cents each depending on size. Get in touch with us if you can use some. Incidentally, if we don't sell 'em now you may get 'em for prizes at our next Card Party! That's a warning!

In keeping with our tireless pursuit of the superlative in everything, The American Forestry Association has available a list of the largest specimens of all the varieties of trees in the U.S. The tabulation shows the name and the variety, the circumference four and one-half feet from the ground, the spread of the branches, the height, the location of the tree and the name of the person reporting it.

The only "largest" credited to Vermont is the Yellow Birch. This tree is thirteen feet, nine inches in circumference and eighty-eight feet high with a spread of sixty-three and one-half feet. It is located exactly on The Long Trail between the Hancock-Ripton Pass and Lake Pléiad. When we go on our GMC hike to Lake Pléiad June 24th we can examine it.

It would seem that a similiar list of the largest trees of each specie in Vermont would be interesting and would help maintain an interest in our forests. Perhaps some method could be found to protect these specimens from destruction and assure their accessibility to the public.

Well, all right then, let's start in Rutland County. Let's locate the largest Elm, largest Beech, largest Maple and so on. If you will send the locations in to SMOKE AND BLAZES we will make the measurements. Once we have a list established you will know what dimensions must be exceeded in order to get recognition for your favorite "Big Tree".

This can be a lot of fun for all of us if you people will just pass along the necessary information.

THE UNDERGROUND

Remember the good old days when we lived in nice safe caves equipped with running water, radiant heat and air conditioning? Well, maybe you don't individually, but as a race we can't get away from that memory. Caves have a great attraction for most of us.

Here in Vermont we have two kinds of caves. One type is found at the base of some steep mountain side where frost action, and perhaps glacial action, has broken large blocks of rock from the cliffs and piled them up at the bottom. Between these huge pieces of stone are spaces connected by a labyrinth of passage ways.

In the winter water runs down into these holes and freezes. In summer the temperature is not high enough for a long enough time to warm up the air in the caves sufficiently to melt the ice. This is often the case at the Pittsford Ice Cave and at the Wallingford Ice Beds. Other places with caves of this type are East Mountain, and Deer's Leap.

The other kind of cave in Vermont is the well known Limestone cave. Much of the western part of the state is underlain by a stratum of limestone. In some places it is at considerable depth and at others it is right at the surface.

Limestone will slowly but surely dissolve in rain water. Through cracks and crevices the water seeps downward dissolving the rock as it goes, gradually forming tunnels and rooms perhaps far below the surface.

Sometimes we are lucky enough to find openings at the surface through which we can enter the underground passages. For every one of these known caves there must be a hundred others with no open entrance at the surface or whose entrances are hidden by sand and gravel, or other debris.

Some of the Limestone caves near Rutland are the Chippenhook Cave, Plymouth Caves, Carver's Falls Cave, Cold River Cave, Mt. Acolus Cave, Nickwackette Cave, and Skinner's Hollow Cave on Equinox. All are worth visiting. Wear your old clothes and carry flashlights and a rope. Don't go alone. Perhaps you will find an unexplored passage way or a new entrance leading to an undiscovered cave.

Maybe a nice safe cave wasn't such a bad place after all !

FOOT NOTES

Before setting out on any extended hike a thorough check should be made of the feet and careful attention given to the shoes to be worn.

We are often guilty of wearing improper shoes and our feet are apt to be tender with corns or calluses. Try to have these removed before going on the Trail. Ankle supports or high arch supports should be worn only on a doctor's prescription. If your ankles are a little weak don't wear low shoes for hiking.

Blisters and sore feet may be caused by misfitting shoes, nails, torn or wrinkled shoe lining, torn or wrinkled sox, wrinkled tongues or tight laces. Correct any known imperfection in your shoes and sox before you start out.

Even with all these precautions things may go wrong. At the first sign of irritation a band-aid should be applied to the tender spot. If a blister has formed apply antiseptic and prick the edge of the blister with a needle or pin sterilized in a match flame. Press out the water and apply a band-aid.

If the sox are causing the trouble shift them from right to left foot and vice versa - but don't try it with shoes.

Just write your alphabet and see
It's J, K, L, M, N, O, P.

Killington Section G.M.C.

May 1950

FROM OUR OUTTING CHAIRMAN
Helen Bailey

SAVE THESE DATES * May 14,
May 27-28, and June 11

The official hike to Little Rock Pond sponsored by the GMC Killington Section is planned for Sunday May 14. Meet at Meldon School at ten o'clock and a pilot will be provided.

The annual meeting week-end May 27-28 is covered in a separate article in this issue. We hope, however, for a goodly turnout to welcome our guests (if any) to the Spring Lake Project.

Now for the really big event. For several years I have tried to promote a hike to Stratton Pond and have been put off with the protest that it was too far to drive, too far to walk, and generally too ambitious an undertaking. Consequently, my first thought on being asked to help plan the hikes this year was, "Now I can go to Stratton." So I am appealing to all loyal rooters to save the date, Sunday June 11, and let's show them we are really a hiking club. Let me quote the following from the Guide Book. "The Trail follows the highway eastward about 1.1 miles to an abandoned lumber village known as the Grout Job. Here it turns left and after $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles through a beautiful hardwood forest, for nearly half the distance beside a rushing stream - the headwaters of the Deerfield River - reaches Willis Ross Camp on Stratton Pond." Does that sound so difficult? Incidentally, I made the trip once and recall having had a grand time and no ill effects. Of course, what I would really like to do is to enlist a few real enthusiasts who will volunteer to go to the summit of Stratton Mountain (where I have never been) but which the Guide Book says is $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the road after a climb which is "steady but nowhere very steep". At the top is the "finest view from the southern part of the Trail, including parts of New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and New York as well as most of Southern Vermont." I ask you, where else could you see so much for so little? So think it over and let's make our motto "Stratton or bust."

TRUSTEES' MEETING

On April 15th the trustees of the G.M.C. met for an all day pow-wow. Much of the time was spent in discussing the Club's financial situation. The solution seems simple - take in more and spend less. Any suggestions?

HIKE TO BUFFUM SHELTER

by Warren Hoadley

Spring flowers were absent from the little jaunt to Buffum Shelter on Sunday, April 9th, but the remnants of our late winter snowstorm were quite visible. Many of us would gladly have traded our rubbers for tightly laced boots when we stepped into some of the deeper spots. Twenty-four reached the shelter with only a few with wet feet for company.

Soon we had a fire going and even though the trip was short, the appetites were large. Some of the younger followers, chasing through the woods, succeeded in "scaring-up" a rabbit and were no doubt as surprised as the rabbit. Incidentally, they agreed that the rabbit's tail was real cotton!

After a hearty lunch, three of our ambitious trailmen hiked up on the trail, clearing it of fallen trees and improving the marking. Many of the rest of us took short hikes up the trail enjoying the scenery and exhilarating spring atmosphere. Still another group cleaned the shelter preparing it for early summer hikers who, I am sure, will appreciate this service.

The return trip was much easier than we expected - under foot - because the sun had melted much of the snow.

TRAILS AND SHELTERS COMMITTEE

Recently a meeting was held at Churchill Scott's home to line up plans for work on our camps, and to set up a system of keeping track of trail conditions.

All information about each camp will be kept together and a record will be kept for each portion of our trail showing what has and has not been done during the year.

THE GOV. CLEMENT SHELTER HIKE

by Marilyn Trop

Twenty-one ambitious GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB hikers hiked to the Governor Clement Shelter Sunday April 30th. There were two guests along with us, Jackie Daley and Mrs. Jean Goddard. The weather forecast was "April showers" but as Mr. Kirk, Rutland's weather man, was along he changed it to a "bright and sunny" day.

Some of the more rugged individuals hiked about two miles up the trail, others collected pussy-willows, and the remaining few slept on the roof of the shelter.

We must give "three cheers" for the men. They balanced the unbalanced table, so now a person can sit down and enjoy his lunch without having it fall into his lap. The men also started to reconstruct the bunks. This job will be finished sometime in the future. Tar was put on several spots of the shelter's roof so it won't leak. Eleanor Walker helped the men carry some wood from an old shack to the shelter for the table. We wondered if she was looking for another dime like she found at the Buffum Shelter when cleaning the bunks.

On the next hike we decided to bring a first aid kit because as we played a rough game of "London Bridge", we had three casualties. We also square danced, played other childhood games; making our own music, and we had a tug of war. We really had a wonderful time and we hope to have a good time at Little Rock Pond the 14th also. Hope to see you there.

Don't forget the Inter-sectional Get-to-gether to be held the last week-end in August.

PLANS FOR THE ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of The Green Mountain Club will be held Saturday, May 27th at The Long Trail Lodge Annex.

This is the annual meeting of the parent organization including members of all Sections and members-at-large. It is the opportunity for the members to discuss the Club affairs, make suggestions, and to elect trustees to carry on the Club business. More member participation is badly needed and all are urged to try to be present.

At 11 A.M. on the 27th Pres. Buchanan will call the meeting to order. There will be reports of the various officers and committees.

Recess will be taken for dinner at 1 P.M. and the meeting resumed at 2 P.M.

Immediately following the close of the meeting there will be a Trustees meeting for the election of officers and other business. During this period there will be a choice of two hikes for those not involved in the Trustees meeting. One hike will be to Tucker Lodge and return, a total distance of 2.0 miles. The other will be to Tucker Lodge and back by way of the Circle Trail, a total distance of 2.5 miles.

Lunch will be at 6 P.M.

At 7 P.M. there will be a showing of slides brought in by various members, and movies of the 1949 Intersectional Get-together.

Square Dancing will be in order from 8 P.M. until exhaustion.

On Sunday, May 28th the Killington Section will have a hike to Spring Lake (Shrewsbury Pond). Coffee will be served at the new Spring Lake Camp at 12:30 P.M. There are three approaches to Spring Lake. From the North, drive to Clarendon Gorge and hike south 2.5 miles on The Long Trail. From the South, drive to The Long Trail crossing on the Wallingford Gulf Road and hike 2.8 miles north on The Long Trail. From the East drive up the Spring Lake Ranch Road which leaves Route 103 just south of an iron bridge between East Clarendon and Cuttingsville. If there is no mud, cars may be driven to the lake (use caution). From there it is about .5 mile to the site of the camp in the open pasture west of the lake.

If the ice isn't too thick on the pond you can take an early swim, or just sit around and enjoy the view. For those who want to relax a little more actively, the Killington Section will supply the hammers, nails etc.

THE BURLINGTON SECTION'S SCHEDULE

We have received a schedule of the Burlington Section's hikes for Spring and Summer and are pleased to find they have listed "Aug. 26 and 27 Intersectional Hike- overnight at Craigie Perkins' Camp, Mendon."

We hope there will be a big crowd down from Burlington this year at the Intersectional. We missed them last year.

Another hike scheduled that attracted our attention is "Aug. 5-6 Groton State Forest. Spruce Peak." This is a favorite of many of our Killington Section members. How about meeting up with Burlington on that date? This is just a suggestion.

MEMBERSHIP

Our total membership to date is 65 including the following LIFE MEMBERS:

Willis Ross
Matilda Goulding
Carlton Wilson

Vera Perkins is on a six weeks vacation, traveling in England, Scotland, and France.

A NEW MEMBER AND HER DOG ENJOY THE LONG TRAIL

by Allegra Chapman

Lately, much to my regret, I have been unable to attend the hikes because of an addition to the family in the way of a new puppy. But on Sunday, the 30th of April, a friend was persuaded to take Susan (the pup) and Lois Fenton and me up to the trail leading from the highway into Tucker Lodge.

Susan was full of life and ran back and forth along the trail wanting us to hurry. We intended to go to Noyes Pond and started off on that trail. Along the way, plants of spathyema foetidus (skunk cabbage) were found springing up. A few hikes ago, one of the members wanted to be notified of the first up-coming of the cabbages. They are found on the trail to the pond, shortly after leaving the signs to Deer Leap and Noyes Pond.

It didn't take Susan long to scare up a Ruffed Grouse, which frightened her as much as she frightened it. Both pink and white Mayflowers were found and little yellow violets were all along the trail.

Since neither Lois nor I had been on this trail, we had our first experience in following the markers and decided on our next "day off" to take a can of paint along. We could never reach the blazes that are there--we decided that the Club must have a very tall man or that some man had carried a boy on his shoulders to have painted the blazes so high! Probably in the summer time the trail will be easier to follow, but the experience of following the trail was one that will not be forgotten. Three or four times we had a little difficulty in finding the markers and got off the trail. We both remarked that it would not be fun to get lost in the woods.

Time went faster than we, and soon it was time to eat our lunch, about a mile before the pond. A Belted Kingfisher was screeching down along a stream and we decided that it could not be very far to the pond, but we had to return in order to meet our ride home. We found two little chipmunks and while we were eating, a Hairy Woodpecker kept us company. There was plenty of snow to cool off our "Cokes" which had gotten warm from the sun while carrying them. We certainly enjoyed our lunch. Susan seemed happy to be able to lie down for a few minutes. On the return trip, the pup did not run back and forth--she ran ahead and sat and waited until we caught up with her.

On the way back the water in each brook tasted wonderful. We had to sample each one--the result of too much salt in the potato salad.

We had many questions about the trail, but no Green Mountain Club member to ask. Perhaps sometime it will be more convenient to take Susan along with all the other Club members and we can all enjoy her antics. Right now she is a tired puppy-dawg!!

GMC SLIDES GO TO TEXAS

The GMC slides were shown to members and friends of the First Unitarian Church of Houston, Texas. Many of these people are from New England who return for vacations so there was much interest in Vt. and The Long Trail.

Mr. Lawrence G. Cowles of Bellair Texas wrote us an interesting letter in which he mentioned that he wished the slide collection included a half dozen pictures of the Vermont setting in which the trail hikers find themselves on entering Vermont and approaching the mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. Cowles hope to introduce their three sons to The Long Trail by an overnight trip on it next August. They have practiced a little in Colorado so mountain climbing will not be a new experience to them.

COMING EVENTS

Saturday, June 24th, we hope to see all the survivors of the Stratton Trip (along with those who didn't go) at Pleiad Lake for a supper party. This is an easy hike from the road but there are many beautiful trips that can be taken in the neighborhood, if desired.

July 9th, we are planning another trip to Spring Lake since so few members of the Killington Section attended the outing held there in conjunction with the Annual Meeting. This time there will be swimming as well as hiking and sun-bathing on the program.

The new schedule of hikes will be along with the July issue of "Smoke and Blazes".

1950 INTERSECTIONAL

By popular demand the 1950 Intersectional is to be held in the Killington Section area again.

Fred Field is chairman of this event. The dates are Aug. 26 - 27. The place - Perkins' Camp in Mendon.

More details will be given in the July and August issues of "SMOKE & BLAZES" but mark your calendar for Aug. 26 and 27.

SPRING LAKE HIKE

On Sunday, May 28th, thirty-five members and friends of the Killington, Worcester, and Burlington Sections of the G.M.C., spent the day at the new Spring Lake Camp in Shrewsbury. Most of the crowd came in over the Spring Lake Ranch road, arriving at various times from nine to eleven-thirty.

Although the Outing wasn't scheduled as a "work party" our visitors insisted on putting in a hard day's labor on the new camp. Could we refuse? Not so. Led by Jim Green; Roy Buchanan, Billy Mitchell, and Churchill Scott, the men carried in logs for the camp foundation, jacked up the camp and put the logs in position on top of the stone piers.

The ladies carried stones from the pasture for use in the foundation. (It's better than a diet girls.)

At twelve-thirty, Helen Bailey had the coffee ready right on schedule, and as usual it was just right.

Then back to work until about four o'clock when our out of town friends had to start for home. One party went north over the Trail to Clarendon Gorge.

It was a fine day and a fine crowd. Thanks again, Worcester and Burlington Sections for your efforts.

THE ANNUAL MEETING

At the annual meeting of the Green Mountain Club held May 27th at the Long Trail Lodge, Prof. Roy Buchanan was re-elected President; John Vondell, Vice President; and Wallace Fay was elected Treasurer. Craigie Perkins and Lula M. Tye were re-elected Clerk and Corresponding Secretary.

Reports from the sections were given by a representative present from each section. Churchill Scott reported for Killington.

Judge Clarence Cowles of Burlington addressed the meeting eulogizing James P. Taylor, "Father of the Green Mountain Club". Judge Cowles introduced a resolution "That the club do erect appropriate permanent memorials at suitable places on the Long Trail, perpetuating the memory of our founder, and his splendid ideals in founding the Green Mountain Club." This resolution was adopted by the club.

Prof. L. B. Puffer introduced, and the meeting adopted a resolution on the death of Robert H. Domey. It stated in part that "The Green Mountain Club mourns his passing and wishes at this time to express and place on record its respect and affection for Captain Domey, its great sense of loss in his death, and our sincere sympathy for Mrs. Domey and the other members of his family."

At the close of the meeting short hikes were taken around the Lodge.

After the evening meal, Jim Green, of the Worcester Section took charge of the showing of moving pictures of the 1949 Intersectional. The baseball game, the square dancing on the lawn, and the tenting set-up brought back pleasant memories. Prof. Puffer also showed some scenic slides and flower pictures that were appreciated.

Next on the program was square dancing with Diana and George Conlon in charge and Gotty Paige calling off. This lasted until 11:15 PM and rounded out a full day and evening of business and pleasure.

This meeting certainly stands out as one of getting acquainted with Club business and Club members. It gave an opportunity to all who attended to get in the know of how, why, and wherefore of the Green Mountain Club. Let's get started on another one like it for next year.

LITTLE ROCKY POND

by

Edith V. Ewald

The hike to Little Rocky Pond on Mother's Day was enjoyed by twenty-eight people plus three dogs. The group was well represented as the age range was from eleven to seventy.

After lunch, which included the usual famous coffee, some of us set out for the upper ledge. Twelve people and two dogs made the trip to the top. The view was very fine and we found in looking down on those who had stayed below we had the feeling they were on a shipwrecked island. Some were sunning while others were fishing.

I understand the fishing was not very good, but the trail to Little Rocky Pond was easy going and the wild flowers were at their best. With Mr. Kirk along to identify the trees, rocks, flowers, and birds, the trip was most delightful.

OUR YOUNGEST MEMBERS

David, four weeks old son of Thelma and Bob Perkins, is Killington Section's youngest member.

Our next youngest member is Tommy, eight months old son of Helen and Fred Field.

It won't be long before these youngsters will be on the Trail.

STRATTON

It looks like the way to collect a crowd is to advertise a hard trip! Twenty-six people were on hand for the Stratton trip and fourteen of them made the complete circle - up over Stratton Mt., down to the Pond, and back to the road - nine miles in all. The rest were satisfied with going directly to the Pond, making a seven mile round trip. Who ever said this was an eating club instead of a hiking club?

Mr. Kirk was along so the weather was perfect - clear and cool, with enough breeze to keep the little black flies from being too annoying. The woods were staging a splendid flower show, with lady slippers and mountain pinks as the star performers. We have never before seen so many of either in one place.

Our Outing Chairmen with their usual efficiency had everything under perfect control. Coffee was served on the top of the mountain for one group, and at the Willis Ross shelter at the Pond for the other group. The two detachments combined forces at the shelter at about three-thirty in the afternoon.

This part of The Long Trail is maintained by the Worcester Section and they certainly do an excellent job. We were impressed too with the efficient stove and the equipment such as shovel, axe, saw, etc. which was available in the camp.

On returning to the cars, most of the party took advantage of the opportunity for a drive through a very lovely, wooded section of Vermont, making the return trip by way of West Wardsboro, East Jamaica, Jamaica, Londonderry, and Weston.

We attended an Intersectional at Stratton a number of years ago and had a scheduled hike there about three years ago. Let's not wait so long again before re-visiting Stratton.

KILLINGTON TRIP

George and Diana Conlon, and Craigie Perkins chose the weekend of May 20th - 21st for an over night trip to Cooper Lodge on Killington.

The road in to Tessier's Lumber Camp was found to be passable but it is doubtful if it will be after one or two good thundershowers. There was only one small blowdown on the Bucklin Trail. Patches of snow were still in the hollows near the camp.

Cooper Lodge was found in very good condition. No windows were broken and only an average accumulation of empty cans littered the floor. The stove pipe needs replacement.

As it had rained for two days it was found that all but the smallest dead spruce branches were wet. Several dead trees were cut into but very little dry wood could be found. However, once the fire was started this damp wood burned very well indeed when split up into pieces about an inch through.

As a precaution, a Primus stove burning kerosene had been brought along and this was used for heating coffee water.

The party ate well. Saturday night, steak and mashed potatoes; Sunday morning, bacon and eggs; Sunday noon, roast beef and sweet potatoes. How does that sound?

Four hours were spent on the Peak in the warm sun just looking over Vermont, New York, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

Back home again by six o'clock. Another good trip and no Canasta.

ON THE TRAIL

Edith Ewald, accompanied by two girls from the St. Teacher's College, is spending a few days on the Long Trail this week. More news on her trip later.

THOSE LITTLE BLACK FLIES

Perhaps you never saw a bear in the woods, nor a deer, nor a bobcat. Maybe you have been on the trail for a week without seeing a porky. But if you go into the woods in early summer and don't notice the black flies --- well, tsk, tsk.

From about the first of June till the middle of July these little pests can make life miserable for anyone who fails to take proper precautions. Of course people differ in sensitivity. Some seem to be poisoned by the insect bites while others merely brush off the accumulated visitors from time to time and think no more of it. If you are like that you are lucky.

Suppose you aren't, what can you do? Well, you can wear a long sleeve shirt and full length pants or slacks. A hat or bandana will keep them out of your hair, if any. You can buy or make a head net of dark colored material. If you use white you won't be able to see through it as well.

How about dope? If you are old fashioned you can try Oil of Citronella which smells and tastes like licorice and gives a licorice flavor to everything you eat and drink. Incidentally it will make you less attractive to the rest of creation, including the flies. The newer, odorless mixtures are all good. This may be partly psychological though. The flies are bad. You stop to put on some dope. They immediately get much worse because you stopped. You apply the dope and start along again. They don't seem so bad. Therefore the dope is good.

In going along the trail it may help to carry a little switch with green leaves on the end of it to brush the flies away from your face before they can bite.

This all sounds like pretty grim business, but it isn't as bad as all that. The worst trouble can be avoided by camping, eating your lunch, or even resting where there is a chance for the wind to blow away the flies. In the thick spruces they will swarm around by the millions but the slightest breeze will scatter them, so try to stop by a lake shore or on an open ridge.

If you take these precautions and the flies still bite you have a choice of either staying home or biting them right back.

GODDARD COLLEGE

Well, our traveling sideshow has been on the road again. On June 2nd Harold Valiquette, Fred Field, Churchill Scott, and Craig Perkins journeyed to Plainfield, Vermont to tell all interested at Goddard College about the Green Mountain Club.

About thirty students and faculty members turned out for the occasion. Fred outlined the history and purposes of the Club, Churchill told of the activities of the Killington Section, and Craig acted as sound track for the Club's slide collection. Harold talked on First Aid and led the discussion on camping and cooking equipment.

Results? Who knows? Maybe they will get an Outing Club organized and explore some of the points of interest near Plainfield. Anyway it was fun.

REMINDERS

Are you taking any pictures for our photo contest? Now is the time to be clicking the shutter on summer scenes.

A distinguishing addition to your hiking outfit would be a Green Mountain Club sleeve emblem. This may be purchased at the Chamber or Commerce office in Rutland.

Killington Section G.M.C.

1950 INTERSECTIONAL Aug. 26-27

The Killington Section is again host to all other Sections of The Green Mountain Club for the Intersectional Get-to-gether. Fred Field is General Chairman and plans are underway for the big event on Saturday, Aug. 26th and Sunday Aug. 27th.

The gathering place will be the big field in front of the Perkins' Camp in Mendon. At this camp-site some tents will be available. If you have one of your own, bring it along. The camp house will also be open to anyone who would like to use it. For use of either tents or house, reservations should be made with Fred Field, P.O. Box 628, Rutland, Vermont. There is also a big barn that could be used if necessary. Plenty of room for all!

From this gathering place, there are many hikes that may be taken. A schedule of times and places to go will be posted on the front porch of the camp house. Some of the nearby points of interest are:

Blue Ridge Mt. 3 hours Round trip
Tucker L. & Deer Leap 4 hrs. R.T..
Pico Peak 4 hours R.T.
Killington Peak 3 hours R.T.
Wood roads & Beaver dam 1 hour more or less.

Last year the Saturday night Campfire was one of the highlights of the Intersectional. Square dancing on the grass and a softball game was also enjoyed. These features will be repeated. Your chairman promises you a good time so be sure to come to the 1950 Intersectional.

Killington Section will furnish coffee, camping space, guides and firewood. There will be someone on hand to give out information on all hikes. Saturday night there will be the Campfire gathering where we canswap Section news and sing songs.

Sunday at 2 P.M. will be coffee time.

How to get there:
You can drive your car to the camp-site. No packing your duffle on your back. Going East on US Route 4 the camp road is the first left turn after the Sunnycroft Tourist House, or directly across from the Killington Historical marker on Route 4. About one-half mile up the camp road and you will be at your destination the

INTERSECTIONAL.

Committee workers for this event are:

Fred Field, General Chairman
Craig Perkins, Welcome
Harold Valiquette, Tenting
Churchill Scott, Hikes
Jim Green, Campfire
Mary Jennings, Coffee
Janet Perkins, Information
Peter Perkins, Wood

Plan now to bring your crowd to this big outing. Ask someone who attended last year if he had a good time.

Sunday, July 23rd, we go to Manchester to join the Bennington Section on a hike to Prospect Rock. Meet at the Meldon School at 1 P.M. Bring Supper. We plan to join the Bennington Section at their meeting place, the Manchester R.R. Station, at 2 P.M. If further details are wanted call Vera Perkins - 1910.

August 5th and 6th is the over night trip to Groton Forest. The Burlington Section has an Outing scheduled there at this time so it is another chance for sections to get together. The Groton Forest area is located a little beyond Montpelier toward St. Johnsbury. On account of the difficulty of arranging transportation for a group, it will be necessary for those wishing to go to make arrangements with someone who has a car. This would be a good time to try and interest some of your non-member friends. What to take will depend on the weather at that time, but you will have to be prepared to sleep on the ground if necessary. (there are some tent platforms & shelters.) Provisions will have to be carried or purchased en route.

There is swimming and hiking at Groton. This should be a good trip. Try and make it.

Watch The Herald for later information or call Mary Perkins - 907-M.

Saturday, Aug. 12th, for those who are unable to make the longer trip (as well as for those who do) there is a shorter easier trip the following Saturday P.M. to the Bradder's Camp in Tinmouth. Swimming and boating on the Tinmouth Channel are available and those who have been there before report a fine time.

What tree a boy does when he's spanked
And from a quadruped is yanked?

Sunday, July 9th was a fine day at Spring Lake and 27 people and 2 dogs were on hand to enjoy it. Some hiked in over the Trail from No. Clarendon, while others got there the easy way.

Our "youngest set" were well represented by Jimmy and Johnny Catozzi, Tommy Field, and Linda Scott.

Churchill brought the supply of pipe for anchoring the new shelter and he and Geo. Conlin got it up the hill ready for use.

Most of the day was spent in swimming and boating. Spring Lake is a favorite spot and we are looking forward to having the shelter there completed.

GET ACQUAINTED WITH THE GUIDE BOOK

How well do you know the G.M.C. Guide Book? It's a little book published by G.M.C. and well worth knowing.

The main part of the book contains a description of the Long Trail. This gives you not only distances between shelters, but also location of springs, items of interest along the trail, characteristics of the terrain, interesting side trails and average hiking times.

In the front and back of the book you will find interesting information on a number of related subjects as; personal equipment for hiking, simple 1st Aid, and a list of places where food, mail and lodging may be obtained, at points where the Long Trail or approach trails cross the highway.

The Guide Book is a necessity for anyone planning a trip on the Trail. Even if you never get any farther than an "arm-chair" trip you can have a lot of fun.

In case you want to see for yourself, the Guide Book may be purchased from "Lu" Tye at the Chamber of Commerce Office for one dollar. We guarantee you'll decide it's worth it.

Francis Rice was married in April. Francis and his wife are both in the Navy and are stationed at Corpus Christi, Texas. Previous to going to Texas, Francis passed a 16 week course in Electronics with top scholastic honors. A letter from Capt. W.S. Cunningham to Francis' mother informed her of this and concluded in part --" he displayed exceptional ability and leadership and was a pleasure to have on board."

Bill Allard is working this summer for a construction company in Manchester, N.H. He acts as road man for the surveyors.

Jean Sabourin is working this summer at Montgomery Wards. She plans to enter the State Teacher's College at Castleton in the fall.

Tony Fusco who was injured a short time ago in an automobile accident, is well on the road to recovery.

Lucy Bishop and two other teachers are starting on an automobile trip to California next week. They plan to go to Florida and across the southern route, and are hoping to take a side trip into Mexico. They expect to be gone about six weeks. They are taking camping equipment and will patronize state and national parks.

Charles Sabourin is working for the CVSP this summer and at present is clearing brush along their lines.

Helen Bailey is spending the summer at her home in Charlestown, New Hampshire.

Marilyn Trop leaves in August to start Nurse's Training at the Brooklyn, N.Y. Jewish Hospital.

Marge Perkins is in Boston for six weeks studying Drama at the Emerson College Summer Theatre.

Bob Rogers is working with the Blister Rust Control crew and reports that he is getting all the hiking he needs.

Jim White is working with a trail clearing party of the U.S. Forest Service. At present he is working on the Long Trail and approach trails in the north part of the state, near Mt. Ellen. This explains why we haven't seen Jim on the Killington hikes this summer. We are glad to know he is on The Trail just the same.

Lorraine Gorsky has started a year of graduate study in Library Science at Columbia Univ.

Bob Perkins has been awarded a Fellowship for advanced study in Physics at the Univ. of Cincinnati. He is to begin work Aug. 7th, so he, Thelma, and David will be leaving us soon.

LAKE PLEIAD

The Lake Pleiad hike, on Saturday P.M., June 24th, proved to be as popular as always.

Although it was hot in town it proved to be pleasantly cool on the rocks by the lake. As food had to be packed in only a short distance, many people took advantage of the opportunity to eat well and there were some pretty 'scrumptious' feasts laid out around supper time.

The usual swimming and boating were enjoyed. The old raft which used to provide so much entertainment seems to be no more. However, the Perkins' rubber boat furnished plenty of fun.

Quite a number of the party hiked to the top of the hill on the other side of the lake, and wig-wagged greetings to us lazy ones back on the rocks.

Of course the trip to Lake Pleiad wouldn't be complete to some without a side trip to Texas Falls, so one carload made a stop-over and took a swim there before going home.

It was twilight when we started the drive down the mountain. The occupants of the first car down saw deer at three different times. The drive home in the moonlight was a perfect ending for a pleasant outing.

TRAIL CLEARING PARTIES

Some of our younger members and friends have put in two days recently clearing trail. Those taking part were Bob Whitcomb, Pete Spaulding, Brad Sanborn, Dave Quinn, Pierce Smith, Pete Perkins, Robert Perkins and Craig Perkins.

The first trip was from the Long Trail Lodge to the foot of Killington. Between Pico and Killington there were about twenty-five blowdowns. This piece of trail was in the worst condition it has been for years. The boys removed about two-thirds of the blowdowns and cut out some of the little evergreens that are crowding the trail. Two more days work would put this part of the trail in good condition. Pico Shelter was found to be usable but poor.

On the second expedition the boys worked thoroughly the trail from the bridge south of the Clement Shelter to the "Upper Road" in Shrewsbury. Then they went over lightly the trail from there to the Clarendon Shelter. There remains considerable brushing out to be done but no blowdowns.

Two parties of hikers were met on the Trail.

CAYUGA STATE PARK

Out in central New York state there is a fine State Park where the auto camper can pitch his tent and enjoy a swim in beautiful Lake Cayuga. The park is situated just off Route 20 between Auburn and Seneca Falls about 275 miles from Rutland, Vermont.

In addition to the camping area there are a few cabins for rent, a large service building with lockers for bathers and a grassy lawn at the waters edge for sun bathing. A sloping beach for wading extends out into the Lake. There is a float and three diving boards. A life guard is on duty. Camping charge is $.75 Swimming is $.10.. What more do you want?

COBOURG MUNICIPAL PARK

Cobourg, Ontario is about 70 miles east of Toronto on the northern shore of Lake Ontario.

Two blocks from the main business street of the town is the large Victoria Park directly on the shore of the Lake. For a town of about 10,000 population the park is very well equipped. There are bathing facilities, a camping area, cabins and tents for rent, a large cook house with a range for the use of campers, lunch stand and swings for children. There are also two soft ball diamonds, tennis courts, concert shell and greens for bowling. (If that isn't the correct term don't write in about it.) There is a daily ferry service to Rochester, N. Y. across the Lake.

The charge for camping is $1.00 a day or $5.00 a week per party.

In early summer the Lake is too cold for swimming but along in August this would be a nice place to spend a week.

G.M.C. SLIDE COLLECTION

Have you any kodachrome slides that you would loan to the chairman of the G.M.C. Slide Collection so that duplicates can be made?

It would be nice to have a few Killington area slides in the collection. If you have any call Craig Perkins, 907 M.

NOTICE ! NEW SCHEDULES

The new schedule of Outings is inclosed in this issue. There are some new and interesting places listed and also some old favorites that always please.

The large attendance at recent hikes should act as a vote of appreciation to our chairmen who are giving us a splendid program this year.

COMING EVENTS

INTERSECTIONAL - August 26--27 at Perkins' Camp - Mendon

Come on everyone, let's get acquainted with members from other sections and show them that Killington Section is going strong. We can make this the best Intersectional yet if you will all come out and enjoy it with us.

The August issue of The Long Trail News gives details of the plans. If there is any further information you would like, call the Intersectional Chairman, Fred Field. He will be glad to hear from you.

OKEMO MOUNTAIN

Sunday, Sept. 10th is the date for the trip to Okemo Mt. in Ludlow. The road goes to within a mile of the top and there is a limited parking space.

Okemo is the highest peak in that section and the firetower provides an excellent view in all directions. The fire warden (of two years ago) provides both information and entertainment.

Those who feel they do not get sufficient exercise on our trips can hike from the main highway, a distance of 3 or 4 miles of gradual climbing. The foliage usually starts to turn early in this section, and at its peak is one of the most colorful displays anywhere. The return trip could be made via the Tyson Lakes.

NEWS and NOTES

MARJORIE ALLARD has been in Burlington this summer attending the UVM summer session.

EDITH EWALD has had a busy and interesting summer. She spent a week at the Maine Folk Dance camp, a week at Chataqua, and several weeks in Chicago. She plans to attend a Workshop on Higher Education at Antioch College the last two weeks in August.

DANNY JENNINGS is with us again for a few weeks before he returns to St. Michaels in the fall. It is nice to see him on the hikes again.

RUMMAGE SALE

How about that box you are filling for our annual rummage sale?

In about two months we shall be needing a supply of clothes, odds and ends and anything that might bring in a few pennies or dollars to boost the finances of the Killington Section.

If you would like to work on this committee, please don't wait to be asked. Volunteer now! Send your name in to Churchill Scott, president of the club.

The people who have worked on this committee in the past have had a lot of fun doing so. Some of the jobs are sorting, marking, and selling. There is usually some collecting of goods also.

WEEK-END AT GROTON
by DANNY JENNINGS

After a year of absence from hiking with the Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club, it was with no little anticipation that I looked forward to becoming again an active member by taking in the overnight trip to Groton State Forest. At first it seemed as though it would be a small group but by the time the final counting of noses had taken place twenty-four persons had braved the unknown--seventeen to stay overnight at the Stillwater Area at Lake Groton, and seven driving up on Sunday to join the group for dinner. Those leaving Rutland on Saturday arrived early in the evening at the 15,300 acre park located in the towns of Groton, Marshfield, and Peacham. We drove to the tent camping site and proceeded to pitch our tents under the direction of certain members of the party, experienced in camping wisdom in spite of the protests of a certain member of the group who insisted that food was of prime importance. (Now, Mother, why should anyone think that I am referring to you?) Later in the evening when the tents were pitched and supper had been eaten, a flash lightning storm proved which school of thought was correct. It was pretty nice to be able to run into the tents as the rain came thundering down.

The night, strange to say, was uneventful but then for several of us it was so short that it could hardly be otherwise. We were up by 5:15 thanks to the thoughtfulness (or should I say thoughtlessness) of some fanatic who brought along a Baby Ben. Anyway we got safely to church in Montpelier after driving through fog and stopping at least twice for cows to cross the highway (we nearly had extra steak for dinner).

And who started the ugly rumor about country people getting up early? Returning from church at the late hour of 7:30 we tried in vain to awaken the residents of most of the villages between Montpelier and the park in order to get some gas. After waiting at one village where there was absolutely no sign of life we finally found a place where the ambitious proprietor opened his establishment at 8 and we made the desired purchase.

After breakfast we toured the park, visiting Kettle Pond where the log leantos are located. Here we met up with the Burlington Section who also had a hike scheduled to coincide with ours. After a short visit with them we went sightseeing to Ricker Pond. Returning to Groton Lake, some of the younger set set about to establish a swimming record. Mike Jennings, Pete Perkins, Brad Sanborn, Joe Valloquette and Tommy Chiaromonte swam the four-tenths mile across and then back. They were accompanied by two more or less expert swimmers in a rubber boat who for sundry reasons wish to remain anonymous. It seemed that the crew of the boat were in need of more assistance than the swimmers possibly could have needed. However, both groups reached shore without any more serious mishap than jittery nerves on the part of those watching from shore.

In the afternoon we visited Owl's Head from which an excellent view is available of the lake, ponds, and the forest in the foreground, and in the distance the White Mts. to the east and Green Mts. to the west. Then after more boating on Groton Lake the party left for home, driving down the Connecticut Valley to White River Junction and home to Rutland through Woodstock. At Bradford we stopped at the Shrine of Our Lady of Perpetual Help and Monastery of the Redemptorist Frs. to see the beautiful church they have built there for the use of people living in the surrounding territory. Three of the boys enjoyed the privilege of being shown the monastery refectory, kitchen, and private chapel by one of the Fathers stationed there. It was a grand week-end.

ON THE TRAIL
by
Caroline McCloskey

Our hike started officially on June 15th, but it had its origin at Castleton Teacher's College long before we actually hit the trail. We drove from East Arlington up past Manchester to the relocation of the trail between Route 30 and Prospect Rock. From our calculations, we were fairly near Prospect Rock when we entered the woods, but later observations and second guessing proved we must have been nearer Bromley Lodge. It seemed that we walked and walked and walked!

Afternoon had come before we reached Prospect Rock. We had had a wildcat scare. (Whether or not what we saw and heard was the animal himself is still under debate. Clara and I are convinced that we had our hatchet and knife out for a worthwhile purpose. Miss Ewald is not so sure.) Anyway we were all glad to reach the old "Rootville" road.

Shedding our packs for a few minutes we followed the side trail out to Prospect Rock. There was one of the sights which make a hike truly worthwhile. A clear and beautiful look at the farmlands in the valley, the range of mountains in the distance, seemingly endless, and the knife-cut of the glen between the mountains, from our steep lookout, refreshed us so that the remainder of our journey to Swezey seemed nothing.

Though described in the Guide-book as being in poor condition, Swezey Camp looked good to us. There was clear, cool water in the stream below us, and a fireplace in front of us. This, and a bed, was all we desired.

In the morning we started off for Stratton Pond and Willis Ross Camp. The trail appeared to be easy and we were feeling energetic, so our motto was "Bourn Pond by noon or bust!" We did not bust. It was sometime before noon when we reached there. It was fully as beautiful as we had believed, and we lunched at the fisherman's shelter, looking out upon the pond.

It was while we were eating that we heard voices, and rushed down to greet the first people we had met on the trail. They were two boys, one from Bennington and one from Washington, D.C. They were looking for the nearest place to get provisions, so we directed them to Manchester Depot. Hope they made it.

After crossing several small streams, some over logs which threatened to give way under us, (none did), we came to Stratton Pond. All along the way to Willis Ross, around Stratton, there were fragrant bushes of mountain laurel, between which we caught glimpses of the pond.

A walk around Stratton Pond showed us the Stratton View Shelter and the Willis Ross annex. They looked inviting but rain was threatening, so we voted for the closed camp. Note: to whoever left the wax beans in the camp; they were delicious.

Willis Ross was an excellent camp, in good condition. The bunks were filled with fir boughs and the camp was filled with wood.

We were greatly entertained by the notations in the Camp register, especially the system of measurements left by four boys from the Bay State:-

Mass. Miles: $\frac{1}{4} + \frac{1}{4} + \frac{1}{4} + \frac{1}{4} = 1\text{mi.}$
Long Trail " : $\frac{1}{4} + \frac{1}{4} + \frac{1}{4} + \frac{1}{4} + \frac{1}{2}$
(for good measure) = 1 mile.

Toward morning we were awakened by a deafening thunderstorm, but since we had to be off the trail by Saturday night we decided to get going. We waded through water up to our ankles and felt it pelting down on our heads. "Rain before seven, clear before eleven," we kept repeating, but it was a long time before eleven.

Perhaps sidereal time was meant.

After reaching the Grout Job we headed for East Arlington. A pick-up truck gave us a lift, after a few hours of hiking on the road, so we were able to reach our destination in time to return to our homes when we were supposed to.

Far from feeling tired and discouraged, in spite of all the rain, we spent the rest of the time together planning another hike -- on The Long Trail of course.

JAVA
by Maudie Cauty

It was Sunday afternoon, July 23rd and twelve staunch and sturdy Green Mountain Clubbers, assorted ages and sizes, met at Malden School for the trip to Prospect Rock near Manchester.

We were to meet the Bennington Section of the Club at the Manchester Depot, and after a series of Merry-go-rounds we finally found the Depot, (it was there all the time and we didn't know it!)

After waiting for a time for Mr. Goddard, who didn't come, we drove a mile east toward the old Buck Lumber Job and left our cars there at the foot of the old road. From here we hiked up the old wood road, up and up and over stones and rocks through a pretty wooded section.

The sun was hot, the air was sultry but the hikers were fresh, some of them. Hadn't met up with Mary Jennings for such a long time - we had to talk fast. Java was much in the conversation though no one seemed to know much about it.

Our Bennington friends pointed out the beauty spots along the way - to the right a series of great stone steps covered with moss, and water trickling over them for a long way down the ravine.

After hiking two or more miles we reached our destination to find one of the finest views on the Trail. Standing on the Rock and looking down on Doner's Glen - then off toward Manchester for a stretch of miles made one forget that Java ever existed.

Some of the more ambitious ones went on to Swezey Shelter a mile further up the road and found it in fair condition - horses too, enjoy the hospitality of the Club's shelters.

One lone hiker from the Killington Section appeared late and decided to follow the others into Swezey. In some way, he was misdirected and hiked himself over toward the Peru section of the Trail.

We ate our supper on the Rock, drinking in the beauty of the scene, we had water too, and talked of Old Equinox on the other side of the valley.

Our late hiker had not returned and after the usual period of worry our President and an able assistant decided to rescue him. They did, coming in just after sundown as we were packing up and the evening thrush was singing his good-night song.

We started back down the road, tired but happy and thankful for another good day in the open.

After goodbyes to the Bennington members and promises to meet again at the Intersectional, we headed north toward our own little niche in the Green Mountains.

HIKE TO BRADDER'S CAMP

The hike to Bradder's camp in Tinmouth on Aug. 12th was enjoyed by 20 people. Two of the group walked the 12 miles in from Rutland. The events of the afternoon included boating and fishing up the channel, short hikes around camp and camp cooking. The view from the camp porch and door yard was so beautiful that many of us sat and absorbed the splendor of it.

As the day ended we chalked up this hike as another day of pleasant memories.

COMING EVENTS

DATE - SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 24th
PLACE - MT. HORRID

Sunday, Sept., 24th, we will drive to the summit of the Brandon-Rochester highway where "The Long Trail ascends steeply northward to the great cliff of Mt. Horrid. Fine views. The trail continues along the skyline over the peaks of Mt. Horrid, Cape Lookoff, and White Rocks." At the latter point there are "three fine lookouts." These attractions are about a mile apart. Those wishing even more exercise can continue by mile stages to Romance Mt. and Romance Gap.

Coffee will be served at the picnic spot near the highway before the ascent to Mt. Horrid. Anyone planning to hike beyond White Rocks should make sure of transportation home. (Quotations are from the Guide Book)

DATE - SUNDAY, OCTOBER 8th
PLACE - Mt. EQUINOX

October 8th we join the Windham Section at Equinox. This is the third hike we have had there in recent years but it has been repeated because several people have expressed a desire for it. Since so many brave souls came out when warned that Stratton was a hard trip, perhaps it may help draw a crowd to state that Equinox is no cinch either! The view however is well worth the effort. Those who prefer to ride up may join us at the top provided they can arrange their own transportation. Remember there is a toll charge for the use of the road. If anyone does plan to drive up, we would like to beg a ride for the coffee pot!

BEST WISHES

Killington Section extends its Best Wishes to Gretta Rowe and Richard Catozzi whose wedding announcement was received by the Section recently.

Gretta and Dick were married in Barnet, Gretta's home town, on Saturday, September 2nd. Their headquarters for the present will be in Winchester, Mass., where Gretta has a position as High School Dean. Dick hopes to be able to effect a transfer soon from his present location to a point nearer Winchester.

Killington Section has an extra interest in Gretta and Dick as they first met on a GMC hike! Both are enthusiastic hikers and GMC members and we hope they will be able to get back to Vermont often to join us on GMC Outings.

1950 INTERSECTIONAL
by Frances Green
(Worcester Section)

One advantage in writing up someone else's party is that you can praise it as extravagantly as it deserves, rather than be politely modest and say "Twarn't much" when you know it was tops. And so your guest reporter can say with great enthusiasm that the Intersectional Outing of August 26-27 was "the best yet" (as my family always described my Aunt's incomparable quahaug pies.) For the second year, the Outing was held at the Craigue Perkins' farm in Mendon -- an ideal location with fine camping and hiking facilities.

The Perkins' dooryard and hayfield housed a motley array of about 20 tents of all sizes, plus one jungle hammock. Others, including the Buchanans, slept in their cars, and careful detection among this group on Sunday morning wrung a confession from Mrs. B. that she slept on the front seat and was responsible for our inadvertant 5:30 "bugle call". Walter Bingham's car with its built-in bed, plus a "kitchenette" in the trunk, was viewed with great interest by the many volunteer inspectors who supervised the erection of the tent city.

Setting up camp, square-dancing on the lawn, berry picking, a short moonlight road walk, singing and section reports around a campfire, and general visiting, occupied us on Saturday until late in the evening. On Sunday morning the group divided and one party of about 25, under the direction of Churchill Scott and Jan Perkins went up Killington via the Bucklin Trail, while another group of about 10, led by Craigue Perkins, climbed Blue Ridge Mt. Although the haze prevented distant views, the climbs were enjoyed and there were many near views along the way, plus such flora and fauna as thistles, jewel weed, a flashing humming bird, a star-nosed mole, and a rattlesnake plantain. Near the end of the hikes, brooks became too tempting and several of the party went wading or swimming. Camp broke up Sunday P.M., and we reluctantly bade our host section goodbye and returned home.

This year's attendance of 104 set some sort of record for such events. Tommy Field, aged 1 year, appeared to be the youngest one present for the weekend. We won't try to choose the eldest, but will just say that the group included all ages. Several of those present were en route home from the Applachian Mt. Club's August Camp, held this year at Warren, Vt. (Jim Marston reported for this group that they thought their first Vt. encampment was an unqualified success, and want to come back soon.) Represented were seven GMC sections and a sprinkling of members-at-large. New York, Worcester, Bennington, Burlington, Sterling, Windham Co. (Brattleboro), and Killington, all reported on their respective activities at the campfire on Saturday evening, with a special report from Professor-President-Trustee Buchanan on this summer's trail construction. (Gorham Lodge on Camel's Hump, and the replacement of Sterling Pond Camp because of fire loss, have occupied the Trail Patrol most of the summer).

While so many helped to make the Outing a success that it would be impossible to single them all out, some mention should be made of special services rendered. The Perkins family deserve our special thanks together with the others from the Killington Section who aided and abetted them in furnishing a brand of hospitality of which any club could be proud. Fred Field, general chairman, made all the plans and issued notices far enough ahead so that the various sections could plan to attend in good numbers.

Thelma Valiquette and Mary Jennings, those two tireless square dancers, also brewed enough coffee to fill a reservoir - and it disappeared so fast that it must have been good. Harold Valiquette, Jim Green, Don Murphy, Bill Mitchell, Eric Carlson were among the tent hoisters. Virginia Wilson supplemented the square dance records with audible and rhythmic calls. They and others helped us to have such a good time that already we're looking forward to the 1951 Intersectional.

DOING A STRETCH
BY Janet Perkins

Early in July Dick Catozzi and I began looking for a nice little weekend piece of the trail for a group to traverse. We finally decided upon the stretch between Middlebury Gap and Brandon Gap. Gretta Rorc and Jack Martin were contacted and a date set for July 29-31.

Although the weather was dubious and turned into a down-pour before we'd gone fifty feet toward Lake Placid we managed to swim in without any trouble. The Lodge was in wonderful shape, even to a supply of wood, so we could start a fire right away. It cleared in the evening and we went down to the Lake to watch the fish jump. Back at camp, Jack dug out his harmonica and a song book and we sang ourselves to sleep.

It would be nice to say that Sunday dawned bright and clear but it didn't. However it didn't drip rain too much and we enjoyed a nice hike to Sucker Brook.

The Shelter looked wonderful from the back but closer inspection showed altogether too much evidence of Porcupines; in fact one was under the table finishing off a canteen cover. After taking one look at the corrugated iron bunks literally sprinkled with quills we decided that the ground would be more comfortable.

After a not too restful night we awoke with rain in our faces, etc, and moved on toward Romance Gap. We'd like to return on a clear day and see if the fine lookouts reported in the Guide Book are really there. It was too hazy to tell although it seemed as if we should be able to see a long way from the backbone of White Rocks Mt., Cape Lookoff Mt. and Mt. Horrid. We could suggest that these lookouts be marked and cut out a little. The view from the Mt. Horrid Cliffs was good even in the rain so we recommend it to all on Sept. 24th.

We all had a good time in spite of the weather and porkies and found the trail in excellent condition. If you have a weekend and are looking for a trip we recommend this one the way we took it from north to south.

It was here at "Porkie Heaven" that we reached the height of our culinary art. We had delicious raised rolls for supper. The shoppers, who got the wrong bis-quick mix, take their hats off to Gretta, who tried it anyway and turned out the best bread we've ever had on the trail.

We dubbed the place "Porkie Heaven" because we were forced to kill three and dispose of seven that others had killed. We do wish people would remove the corpses!

RUMMAGE SALE

The committee to work on the Rummage Sale has been appointed by President, Churchill Scott. The members are Vera and Mary Perkins co-chairmen, Mary Jennings, Thelma Valiquette, Churchill Scott and Craigie Perkins.

The date for the sale will be announced in the October issue of SMOKE & BLAZES. In the meantime, be filling up the boxes you are going to contribute to the sale.

The committee has hopes of making $100. or over with your help.

MT. INCOGNITO

NEWS OF JUNIOR MEMBERS

Somebody at the Intersection-al Outing said "Why doesn't The Green Mountain Club put up signs along the roads telling people the names of near-by mountains?"

What do you think of that?

Well, first, let's see what is bad about it. There are far too many signs along the roads now. Could the GMC find the time, energy and money to carry out such a project? One hundred signs would make a fair showing for a start. Figure out the cost.

Now how about the good side of the scheme. Our mountains are one of the chief attractions for the tourist. He would be more appreciative if he knew what he was looking at. And besides it would prove to him that at least some Vermonters know the names of their mountains. (Half the people in Rutland still call Mendon Peak "Shrewsbury"). The more people think about the mountains the more they are apt to support The Green Mountain Club.

So think it over.

PAGING CAGING !

Churchill Scott reports eight broken windows at Cooper Lodge on Killington. How did it happen? Probably somebody slipped while swinging from the rafters by his tail.

Cooper Lodge is officially the property of the State of Vt. So many windows couldn't have been broken accidentally. Perhaps the Club could collect the $50. reward if we could find the guilty party. Let us know the names of people who visited the camp in July or August and we shall see what we can do.

We were much too lenient with the gang that broke out two window sash at Tucker Lodge last Christmas time. Let's tighten up a little. If we don't care, who will?

The following members have returned to their studios:

Marjorie Allard, UVM, Burlington.

Bill Allard, UVM, Burlington.

Danny Jennings, St. Michaels, Winooski.

Marjory Perkins, Emerson College, Boston.

Charles Sabourin, College of Pharmacy, Boston.

Jane Sabourin, Vt. State Teacher's College, Castleton.

James White, Harvard, University,
Cambridge, Mass.

Warren Bergstrom, UVM, Burlington.

Barbara Flanders, State Teacher's College, Castleton.

Michael Jennings is in the service of the U.S. Navy and is now stationed at Newport, R. I.

TRIP TO OKOMO

Undaunted by unpromising looking weather, 13 GMC members and guests made the trip to Okomo Mt. in Ludlow on Sunday, September 10th. This was a smaller than usual attendance, but returns to school and after-the-Fair fatigue seemed to account for the absence of many of our 'regulars'.

We drove to the end of the automobile road and found the 3/4 mile hike to the top of the Mt. a not too strenuous climb. The view from the fire tower was, of course, not up to standard, but was reported as better than might have been expected.

The fire warden is also a craftsman and it is worth a trip up the Mt. to see and hear about the things he makes.

We enjoyed a leisurely dinner at the picnic area and had a good visit about GMC activities, past and to come.

It was one of those days when the weather looks much worse from indoors than it really is outside and all agreed it had been a 'good day'.

HIKERS' RESPONSIBILITY

During the first twenty years of the Green Mountain Club's existence the builders of the Trail spent much time and effort getting permission from property owners to run the Trail across their land.

Having been granted this privilege we are under considerable obligation to be sure that we don't abuse it, both on our own account and for the sake of all future hikers on the Trail.

We recently watched a man remove the carcasses of two skunks from his water supply, into which they had been deliberately thrown by some pretzel brain. It so happens that the Long Trail crosses his land and he has been very cooperative with the G.M.C. How do you think this man felt about opening his land to public use? How would you feel?

In this particular case the offence was not the work of hikers and it is doubtful if legitimate hikers ever did such a malicious thing anywhere along the Trail. But we have known of careless use of firearms, leaving unattended fires, breaking down fences, and scattering of garbage and papers.

Let's be a little more thoughtful of the rights of people who have been good enough to let us use their property for our recreation.

ANNUAL RUMMAGE SALE OCT. 28th

Our annual Rummage Sale, one of the few money making activities which we have during the year, will be held on Saturday, Oct. 28th, in the Neighborhood Rooms.

In order to have a successful sale it is necessary that we have a good quantity of 'Rummage' -- so let's all pick up everything we can spare from our own houses and canvas our friends and neighbors for their cast-offs.

All material for the Sale should be at the Neighborhood Rooms on FRIDAY as selling starts as soon as the doors open Saturday A.M. If you have things to donate but are unable to get them to us, call Craigue Perkins - 907-M - before FRIDAY and we will arrange to collect them.

Our previous Sales have been very successful. Let's borrow the 4-H motto and "Make The Best Better" this year!

PERSONALS

Mary Jennings has just returned from a trip to Boston, Newport, R.I., where she visited Michael, and New York.

Barbara Mellow spent part of her October vacation on a trip through northeastern Vermont.

Charlotte Rutkowski is having a weeks' vacation during which we understand she plans to climb at least a couple of mountains.

COMING EVENTS

DATE- SUNDAY OCT. 22nd PLACE- HAYSTACK MOUNTAIN

Sunday, October 22 we will climb Haystack Mountain in Pawlet. (Note the location as there is another mountain of the same name near Bennington.) The nearest approach is through Middletown Springs to Pawlet and then north about a mile on the Poultney Road to a settlement called Spanktown, making a right turn opposite Bailey's (no relation) garage.

There is a short steep ascent and we have been informed that it would be a good place to try out your rope and ice hatchet technique. The top is barren and should afford a fine view of the surrounding farmland. This trip, although highly recommended on good authority, is somewhat of a mystery to the committee, who assume no responsibility for its success!

DATE-SATURDAY NOV. 4th
PLACE- BEAVER DAM* W. CASTLETON

Saturday afternoon, Nov. 4, we will make a short trip to the Beaver Dam in West Castleton. This will be one for the children as we drive to the west end of the float bridge and walk about a mile through the woods. There is a complete beavervillage with a dam, lake, canals and other evidence of their activities. The beavers themselves do not welcome visitors and are not likely to be on hand.

TRAIL CLEARING

Churchill Scott, Ray Catozzi and Craig Perkins did a "super-duper" job on the Trail from Clarendon Gorge to Spring Lake. Twenty-two blowdowns were sawed out and much needed brush cutting done. It is a pleasure to put even one small section of our trail in such good condition that blazes are not necessary on every tree.

THE TRIP TO EQUINOX

The trip to Mt. Equinox on Sunday, October 8th, was enjoyed by 30 or more GMC members and friends. It was a joint outing with the Killington and Windham Sections participating. Some of the group drove up the toll road while others hiked up the trail.

We were pleasantly surprised to find piped drinking water and a picnic area with fireplaces and tables on top of the mountain. We were also delighted to see and get acquainted with the folks from the Windham Section.

The Altitude of Equinox is 3,816 feet. The hikers agreed that this mountain offers a good steady climb for even the most rugged mountain climbers.

The views from the summit are expansive but the view from Lookout Rock, about a half mile from the summit is more impressive. It is directly above the village of Manchester and the homes, farms, roads and ponds as well as the distant mountains can be clearly seen.

The construction of Sky Line Inn on the top of this mountain is a long story of man's ingenuity. The combination of nature's beauty and man's skill make this a unique spot in Vermont.

WORK PARTY

On Oct. 1st, Cooper Lodge on Killington was tucked in for the winter. Those working on this trip were Tony Fusco, Chubby Vignoc, Brad Sanborn, Pete Perkins, Bob Whitcomb, Dave Quinn and C. Perkins.

New stovepipe was installed and eight lights of glass set. The camp was found clean and the roof looked OK although people have been climbing all over it.

The party went up from the lumber camp on the west side and found the road from Brewer's Corner to the camp "passable but unsafe."

A FALL CAMPING TRIP

By
Thelma Valiquette

On Sept. 26th once again the four of us were on our way for our annual camping trip at a State Forest Park -- that is Mary and Vera Perkins, Mary Jennings and myself. We left Rutland about 9:30 headed for Townshend. After a very pleasant drive down through Weston and Londonderry we arrived at our destination about noon. The caretaker was somewhat surprised to see campers after the frosts we had had.

We chose our campsite near a babbling brook which was convenient as well as picturesque. About this time we decided it was time for lunch so we drove to Newfane. We cook all our own meals except the one when we are setting up camp and one on our way home. We were disappointed to find the Newfane Inn closed for the season. However the clerk was still there and she invited us in to see the rooms which were furnished in beautiful antiques. In the dining-room there is still the original fireplace and the beams are hand-hewn. The Inn is about 175 years old. We did find a little Inn where we had a good lunch.

From here we went back to our camp site, collected wood and set up housekeeping. We had family style cooking with everything from soup to nuts. Canasta was in order each night as soon as the camp work was done until midnight. During this time an occasional snort was heard nearby but upon looking for the cause we could find nothing. (Upon arriving home we were told that it was either a porky or a deer.) We were plenty warm with a cozy fire blazing. After drinking hot chocolate we jumped into our sleeping bags. About 4 A.M. we were awakened by a husky voice yelling, "Get away from there." (Mary P. dreaming someone was stealing her money out of the car.) After we realized it was a nightmare we went back to sleep until 8:30 A.M.

The second day we explored the State Park in the A.M. and in the P.M. Mary P. and Vera went boating on the West River. They had a very enchanting afternoon until getting hung up on the rocks where after much ado they had to get out into the ice cold water and carry the boat back to deeper water. From there on all was clear sailing. Mary J. and I climbed Bald Mt. supposedly one mile and very steep. When evening came and we met at the camp we were all ready for a good dinner and to discuss the highlights of the day.

The next morning we arose later than ever - 9 A.M. After a leisurely breakfast, sad as it seemed, we had to break camp. We came home via Brattleboro and the Molly Stark Trail to Bennington - a very beautiful drive. We stopped at the Skyline Gift Shop and that evening ate dinner in Arlington and drove home with plans for next year's trip in mind.

THE MT. HORRID TRIP

by
Charlotte Rutkowski

On Sunday, September 24th, eleven Green Mt. Club hikers had their first taste of cold weather on the scheduled hike to Mt. Horrid.

Most of the group went on up to White Rocks while others enjoyed a leisurely hike to Cape Lookoff. The view from the cliffs was excellent.

It seemed to be our day to see some wild-life for we came upon a beauty of a fox and several partridges. Our dog, Susan, just missed getting her nose full of quills from a hedgehog that she was chasing.

We got our first glimpse for the season, of snow and icicles and all agreed that the hot coffee never tasted as good as it did that day.

A SUMMER WITH THE U.S. FOREST SERVICE
by
Jim White

Not one day, nor a weekend, but twelve weeks of trail clearing was my job this summer. As a member of a three man U. S. Forest Service trail crew, I helped clear the Long Trail in the National Forest as well as many side and approach trails.

Although our primary purpose was fire prevention, not catering to the tourist trade, we made repairs to shelters whenever possible. Our usual practice was to stay in a Long Trail shelter a week at a time and work the side trails in that area and as much of the Long Trail as possible. This had its drawbacks, however, as happened at Sunrise Shelter. We were cooking supper in that tiny shelter one evening when twelve boys from Harlem dropped in to spend the night. Camping was definitely a new experience for them. At least, so we decided, after watching them dig holes in the ground with their axe and build a smokescreen of green wood for cooking.

Except for this group we met few people on the trail. The porcupines, though, made up for them. Altogether we killed about fifty of them, turning in their cars of course. Their most popular shelter seemed to be Coolcy Glen where we killed seventeen in two days. One especially friendly porcupine tried to get into bed with me. Luckily, he awoke me in the process. Another time, I met a deer between Carmel and Noyes Pond who was either very friendly or just curious. He came to within twelve feet of me, sniffing and gazing at the queer-looking creature he had discovered, without showing any signs of alarm. He finally walked past me, continuing to munch leaves as he hiked the trail. We were surprised one day to see a deer, unaware of our presence, take a swim in Abbey Pond. The only bear I saw this summer ran across the trail near Little Rocky Pond.

I would say the most beautiful sights we saw were sunrise from Glen Ellen, sunset over Champlain and Chittenden from the top of Carmel, North Pond, the valley view from the Lake Griffith trail, and the Champlain valley from the South Mountain tower.

The incident which took the cake occurred when we met a gentleman from Mountain Top Club in Chittenden. He inquired whether we had heard of The Long Trail and, when we had stated our job, asked if we had driven the length of it in the jeep. He claimed he'd "like to go back to it some day". Near the end of the summer we hit upon the perfect squelch. Some boys at Lake Griffith bragged that they had been hiking the trail for two whole weeks and then asked how long we'd been on it. "Oh, since June 12th," we answered.

FOREST FESTIVAL

This past week Forest Festival Week has been observed throughout the State. This gives a splendid opportunity for the citizens of Vermont to become familiar with the problems connected with one of our greatest resources- the Forests.

It is becoming more and more evident that legislative action should be taken if we hope to keep our mountains GREENmountains.

Along with the Festival Program a film "Green Mountain Land" was shown. This is an interesting film but lacks a showing of any mountain scenes or State Parks. Perhaps it is intended to promote industries other than recreation.

How about GMC supporting the Forest Festival Week next year by having an information booth telling the story of The Long Trail?

COMING EVENTS

TIME - SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 26th
PLACE - McLAUGHLIN FALLS

The last hike of 1950 will be held Sunday, November 26th at McLaughlin Falls.

The Bradders plan to be at their camp near by and have invited us to stop in to warm hands and feet and have our coffee. Weather permitting it will be possible to drive right to the door, and there is ample opportunity for hiking in all directions. Our really ambitious members can hike one or both ways in addition, if they wish. This trip is planned for the day after hunting season in the hope that the air will be clear of all stray bullets. After the holidays there are two hikes scheduled for January, which will be snow-shoe trips if we are so fortunate as to have a real old-fashioned winter for a change.

May we be the first to wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!!!!

The Outing Committee.

LET'S USE IT!

The funds in our treasury are now up around the $800 mark. This should enable us to do much of the work needed to put our section of the Trail and its shelters in A-1 condition ---IF--- we can produce the necessary manpower. How about it?

COVERED DISH SUPPER

We can appreciate how rapidly a year goes by when we realize that it is once again time for our annual Covered Dish Supper. This will be held on Saturday, December 9th, at "Beechwood".

As usual the supper will be served at 6:30, but the latch-string will be out from 2 P.M. on, so come early and get in some hiking and visiting before the eating starts! After supper colored slides will be shown.

In the interests of keeping the menu up to standard for this occasion, we need to know if you are coming so we can tell you what to bring for the supper. Coffee will be furnished by the Club. It's a help if you can remember to bring your own plate, (a good big one!), cup, fork and spoon. However we won't send you home hungry if you should happen to forget them.

This is one of the Outings arranged as a general get-together and it is a fine chance to catch up on Club activities.

PLEASE CALL VERA PERKINS -
TEL. 1910 if you are planning to be with us at "Beechwood".

PHOTOGRAPHY CONTEST

Start now to hunt up those entries for the annual Photography Contest. They should be pictures taken either on GMC Outings or on the Trail during the past year. We will give you more details in the next issue.

TRIP TO HAYSTACK MT.-PAWLET

BEAVER DAM
by Barbara Mellow

On October 22, in 19 fifty,
We jumped out of bed, found some duds quite nifty,
And, despite the cold, we drove off gaily
For Haystack Mountain, near the garage of Bailey.
We harnessed our packs, all set for the climb,
To plow through leaves, over rocks and through slime.
Over fences we leaped, and under dead trees,
'Til we strained our muscles and skinned our knees.
At last the top came into sight,
Where coffee was boiling with all its might.
Poor Mary Perkins! She now sighed and kept still.
(She had thought all along we had climbed the wrong hill.)
Susan was there, and she barked with delight.
She knew from the past there were tidbits in sight.
Churchill had to retrieve his pack.
(It somehow tipped over when he turned his back.)
We laughed so hard we hardly could eat
For we couldn't stand up, the hill was so steep.
Misses Mellow and Bailey were doing alright
With "Ham a la Pineapple" and
"Cream Puff Delight".
The view was superb, but all good things must end,
And, as twilight approached, we had to descend.
~~For drove away with deep regret;~~
For we all ~~had~~ agreed it was the best hike yet.

Helon B. Field

That tree is like a man today,
Who spent last night but did not pay?

He lacked the yeast to raise the dough,
He didn't pay, so he willow.

On Saturday, Nov. 4th, eight of us hiked to the Beaver Dam in West Castleton. The weather was bad, several showers during the morning and they just couldn't seem to stop in the P.M. However we said that we would not break the Club's record by cancelling a hike on account of rain.

We drove to Lake Bomoseen crossed the float bridge and parked our cars in Mr. Johnson's yard.
From there, we followed a trail through the woods to the dam. At one time, this trail was one of the Town's main roads from Hubbardton to Glen Lake.

It was interesting to see the many dams the beavers have made.
The bark of trees is what they use for food. They especially like poplar and beech, although we did notice they had used hemlock and birch.

The beavers are really clever in making canals to the water in order to float the trees to their houses, so they can store them away for their winter's supply of bark.

To get a thrill we decided to cross the dam. It was real exciting as we went one by one sideways on a log which was quite slippery. We all made it without a mis-step with the exception of Susan, Allegra's dog, who had a couple of swins before she made the other side.

John Daniels led the way and pointed out many interesting doings of the beavers.

When we returned to our cars, the committee served cider and doughnuts. Allegra brought forth some very good home-made cookies.

Not a beaver did we see!
They were probably hiding on us. We did see two of their houses made of piled up twigs. What a grand bonfire they would make!

We all enjoyed the hike very much and agreed that we would like to go again.

CLEMENT SHELTER WORK PARTY

It seems to take cold weather to get out those work parties. We've had three lately and more are planned for some time soon.

Last spring we tore out the upper bunk at the Clement Shelter planning to replace it at a higher level to give more head room in the lower bunk. Boards were salvaged from the collapsed shed left by the lumber men for this job which has now been done. We think we have enough boards to replace the lower bunk also if and when we get to it.

The shelter was found in very good condition including a pile of dry wood and a fire in the stove. Never found out how come, but there is a big new lumber job underway above the camp about a mile. Now white blazes have been painted along the road leading up to the camp and right by it. We hope they lead to Killington and not to some other lumber camp. Have to follow them up some time.

PROGRESS AT SPRING LAKE

Two very successful trips have been made to the new Spring Lake Camp. All the boarding has been completed on the side walls. Posts along the back wall have been put in, as well as a big center post to the ridgepole and a long tie rod from the front to the back of the camp. All rafters are now in place. Paper for the roof has been bought and negotiations for roof boards are underway. It really looks as though we might get it closed in by Christmas. What do you say boys and girls?

TRUSTEES' MEETING

On Nov. 4th the trustees of the GMC held a special meeting. It was the best attended meeting in recent years.

ATTENTION - NEW CONTEST

WHAT IS YOUR "HIKE CUE" ?

The staff of SMOKE & BLAZES is offering a prize to the Killington Section member who has the highest "Hike Cue" as demonstrated by answering a set of ten questions.

The prize will be awarded at the Annual meeting in Jan. 1951 when a set of questions will be passed out to members to be answered.

The Guide Book will be the accepted authority for answers.

All members of the section are eligible except members of the staff of SMOKE & BLAZES and their families.

So that all may have an equal chance, here are the questions that will be asked:

1. What is the length of the Long Trail in the Killington Section ? (to the nearest mile)
2. How many camps and shelters are there on the Killington Sec. of the Long Trail exclusive of the Long Trail Lodge and Spring Lake camp ?
3. Can Pico Pond be seen from the Long Trail ?
4. Does the Long Trail go over the top of Killington Peak ?
5. In what town is the lowest point on the Long Trail in the Killington Section ?
6. How many windows are there in the Buffam Shelter ?
7. How many different public roads are touched by the Long Trail in the Killington Section ?
8. Does the Long Trail intersect the Juggernaut Trail on Shrewsbury Peak ?
9. What is the exact altitude of Mt. Killington ?
10. Is Spring Lake East or West of the Long Trail ?

If necessary, an elimination contest will follow at the meeting.

Study your Guide Book and come prepared to be a winner.

RUMMAGE SALE NETS $123.12

Each year the Rummage Sale proceeds have been gradually mounting and this year followed along in the established tradition. We are beginning to wonder where the top limit is!

According to custom the day preceding the sale was spent in receiving goods, pricing and arranging. Customers were on hand when the doors opened at 9 A.M. Saturday and business was brisk throughout the morning. The afternoon and evening were slower, but the dimes and nickels kept piling up.

It is interesting to watch the varying trends in "best sellers". This year, once again, dishes, vases and general nic-nacs for home decoration were popular. Underwear of all kinds, children's clothing, boy's shirts, sweaters and blouses, all sold well. Remnants of material were good sellers also.

Besides being a financial success, the Rummage Sale has proved to be interesting and fun. We are beginning to acquire regular customers who come year after year. One such is the lady who asked us to notify her by postcard when the sale was held next year. She had nearly missed it this year, having seen the "ad" barely in time to catch the bus from Ludlow where she lives.

We tried to contact all members before the sale and the response was very satisfying. The committee wishes to thank each of you, not only for supplying articles but also for sending them in such good condition. They also wish to thank the following people who assisted at the sale; Allegra Chapman, Charlotte Rutkowski, Helen Field, Ruth Fostman, and Eleanor Walker.

The cooperation of all made the sale the success that it was. Once again, thanks everybody!

COME ON OUT, THE WINTER'S FINE.

If you are planning to go into hibernation for the Winter - forget it. In many ways the Winter is the best time to get out and enjoy the fresh air and sunshine. It is never too hot; there are no flies or mosquitoes; you won't be soaked by a sudden shower.

Of course there is the little matter of keeping warm. If there is rain or sleet - stay home. If there is a high wind and a low temperature - that is the ideal time to sit by the radiator and study maps. At all other times it isn't too cold to be out no matter what the thermometer says. Use judgement in choosing where you go. If it is windy keep to the thick woods and pick sunny, protected spots to rest or eat your lunch. Maybe you can go to a GMC camp, leave your pack, start a fire and then take short walks from there, knowing you have a warm place to come back to.

For clothing you won't need so much as you think. Keep your feet warm with plenty of wool socks and loose shoes. Wear a pair of wool mittens covered by a pair that are windproof. Take extra pairs of wool socks and wool mittens just in case you get the others wet. Don't forget protection for your ears. They get frosted very easily. If you can keep active and on the move a single wool shirt will keep you warm enough down to about zero, believe it or not. And you may have to take off the mittens. Keep out of the wind and don't get sweaty. When you stop put on a heavy jacket at once before you begin to feel chilled.

Plan something hot for lunch and plenty of it. You will require more energy in cold weather.

Don't miss the fun there is to be had outdoors during the next few months. We'll be seeing you.

EVENTS - PAST and TO COME

Congratulations to our brave president, who made the trip to McLaughlin Falls on November 28th and kept alive the tradition that a GMC hike is never "called" on account of the weather. Our apologies to the rest of you for such poor planning. Personally we've wondered if Mr. Kirk's presence on the earlier hikes didn't bring us good luck. Anyway the weather man seems to have deserted us about the same time he did.

It's a long way to look ahead but we are planning to have something cooking at Fostman's camp on Pine Hill on January 7. Whether it will be mud pies, to-bogganing, or gathering arbutus we are unable to say at this point. Anyway we hope young and old will make some New Year's resolutions and come out and work off the extra pounds many of us will put on over the holidays.

The Annual Meeting of the Killington Section will be held in January. Details will be given in our next issue. This is your opportunity to get first-hand information on club activities and to make suggestions on how things should be done. The editors of 'Smoke & Blazes' would especially welcome suggestions as to what you would like in your paper.

It's an old wish but we like it-
MERRY CHRISTMAS and
HAPPY NEW YEAR

NEWS and NOTES

It was nice for us that Danny and Michael Jennings could be home on the right week-end to join us at the Beechwood party. Danny was home from St. Michael's College and Michael was on leave from the Charlestown Navy Yard where he is stationed at present.

Grace Hayward and "Dart" Noyes left the Monday after Thanksgiving to spend the winter in Florida. We hope they will have a grand, sunny winter.

Beverly Bruce is doing her affiliation work in Boston. She is a student nurse at the Bennington Hospital.

Marilyn Trop was home for Thanksgiving from the Brooklyn Hospital where she is in training. We should get Marilyn to tell us about her horseback riding lesson sometime!

Gretta and Dick Catozzi arrived at the Beechwood party in time to spend the evening with us. Guess they can qualify as having driven the longest distance to attend the outing.

We hear that Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rice are now in Corpus Christi, Texas.

Janie Sabourin, another of our artistic GMC members, is working on a new masthead design for the 1951 'Smoke and Blazes'. Watch for it on the January issue.

The usual crowd, the usual good food, and the usual good time was the order of the day and night, December 9th at Beechwood.

It has become traditional now - food of scrumptious quality, and plenty of it ! We were not disappointed as 40 of us walked around the table and made our selections.

Young Paul Larson was the only one present who didn't heap his plate. He being only eleven weeks old, didn't have much choice.

The afternoon was one of the kind that makes sitting by the fire very pleasant. Of course there are always a few in every group who just won't sit. Craigue, Alegria, and Kay Green took a nice long hike up Bald mountain. They found the going rough. The recent wind storm practically obliterated the trail. When they finally reached the top, the fog was so thick they might just as well have been sitting by the fire.

For our entertainment in the evening we had a varied collection of motion pictures and slides. These consisted of pictures of The Rutland Fair taken by Mr. F. Catozi and pictures taken in Norway of Richard Catozi's trip last year. Mr. Bradder's Kodachrome Slides of Vermont and Florida were also enjoyed and Vera Perkins's slides taken on her recent trip to England, Scotland and France completed the show.

PHOTOGRAPHY CONTEST

Our Photo Chairman, Shirley Morris has announced that there will be another Photography Contest at the annual meeting in January. Entries may be brought in that night to be judged for prizes. There are to be two classes- black and whites, and colored prints and Kodachrome slides. Pictures must have been taken on L.T. or GMC outing.

Yes, we are still talking about it, and a lot has been done about it.

About two hundred boards for the roof and six rolls of 90 lb. roofing paper were taken by truck to a point a quarter of a mile from the camp. From there it was urged along by the smoothest working relay system you ever saw operate.

The roof boards are all in place. Roofing felt has been put on, and the heavy surfaced paper has been applied to half the roof. It is now snow proof so that work can go on inside the camp on the floor and bunks this winter.

A "Valiquette Special" stove (size, large; weight, plenty) has been carried in and set up. Result: heat. No more shivering in the cold wind on that job. Later on this stove will perhaps be replaced by a cook stove the Club has in storage.

As the camp begins to look more and more like a camp, the enthusiasm of the Club members increases. The last two or three work parties have been well attended. Maybe having the ladies along to cook and serve dinner helps. (They also carried boards and hammered nails !)

In addition to the "old reliables" we had the aid and assistance of Albert Lessor, Norman Davis, and John Daley. Keep coming boys.

HURRICANE DAMAGE?

We would like to get a check on our shelters and trails as soon as possible to determine the amount of wind damage caused by the storm of Nov. 25th. Tucker Lodge is OK Spring Lake Camp is OK Buffam Shelter was OK at 4 PM on the day of the storm. There are a lot of blowdowns between Pico Junction and the top of Pico. Can anyone add to this list? If so, get in touch with Churchill Scott.

REPLY TO JOE HASSEN KOOPER

Well our "Hike Cue" contest is off to a flying start. Right away we get a letter from our old friend Joe Hassen Kooper over on Goosepimple Lake. We'd like to print all of Joe's letter and certainly will have it posted at the Annual Meeting.

Joe has jumped the gun! He sends in answers to some of the questions and questions some of the answers. We think he is just trapping for information, for which we're not falling.

Joe writes, "Now jos look at dat first ting. How long is a Long Trail? And to a mile? Ba Gosh why didn't dat fellar make it measurc in inches." (Let's not split hairs, Joe. There's little enough meat on them at best.) "It all depends anyhow which end you start at north or south. If you go south it is honly 16 mile but I'm telling you if you go north, it is all up hill and it is 26 mile. I tink Ba Gosh I go south and dats de answer to dat one." Well you seem to have something there, as the old lady said when her dog brought a skunk into the living room.

Joe complains, "Haltitude! Ba Gosh but dats a beeg word. Sumbody can't make eny answer. In de winter when de snow is about six feet deep up dare, it makes beeg difference." (For a while this one was too deep for us but finally we got the drift of it.)

On that Pico Pond question Joe says, "Dat sure is de dumbest of de whole lot. Cos U can't. Once I tried and Ba Gosh everything was so dark and black I can't see my face before my hand." If it was so dark, Joe, How did you know it was Pico Pond that you couldn't see?

"How many windows in Buffan? Well, well ain't dat a question? Dere is one beeg one about 14 feet by 8 feet hi. A darn beeg window if U ax me." We saw through this one right away, and we think it is rather silly. What worries Joe is apparently the question of the difference between a door and a window. We don't want to get into a jam but this is the way we see it. If it looks like a door and is used for a window, that's a French door. If it looks like a window and is used for a door, that's French leave. A certain unquotable local authority tells us that a French livre is a pound. We looked that up and on June 16, 1947 the pound was worth just exactly $4.00 even, so there is no cents to that either.

Joe says to send his prize to his wife Jullie. ("she ways about 200 pound.") We can't do that till the contest is finished at the annual meeting. But we hope to hear from you again, Joe, and keep plugging.

Editors note: We wouldn't have published this at all only we haven't been so short of material since Gypsy Rose Lee left the stage and we tried to make over her costume into a Mother Hubbard.

HIKING ABANDONED ROADS

Eleanor Walker, Ruth Labrako and Vera Perkins have been doing a little exploring lately by hiking some of the nearby abandoned roads. Trips have included the old road around Bird Mt. and the one around Clark Hill in West Rutland. Although marked the same on the map, the Bird Mt. road is hard to find at times, while the Clark Hill one could be negotiated by car.

It is interesting to take along an old topographical map and look for landmarks. All that is left of many of the houses is the cellar hole.

A hike over an old road from Pittsford to Hubbardton is being considered for the near future. Anyone interested is invited to come along.

SUSAN'S VERSION

On Saturday nite, November 11, Allegra brought home a pretty sap knack that smelled like that cream puff gurl. First thing I knew, she started cleaning out the cupboard and putting everything into the sack and talking about that big hill--Killington. Next morning, we got up earlier than usual, and I wanted to sleep in too, but not Allegra--she was all excited, getting ready to go. Finally she got everything into the sack but the sink and the stove, and then she said, 'Isn't that nice?' I dunno.

She dragged me to the car (I was still tired) and we drove down to the hospital. About 8:30, Louise Hilkens (she travels my style--slow and easy), Albert Lassar, Myrtle McKirryher, and Don LaPlant got into the car, squeezing me into a corner--I'd a lot rather walked from there, but I couldn't get out; they were all fat people.

Allegra drove the car with us in it (me squeezed) up to that nice dirt road going to Wheelerville. But after the first bridge, she said, 'O.K. Susan--out you go,' and I had to walk all that way til the dirt road that crosses, going up the big hill. There was lots of nice fuzzy white stuff that tastes so wet and cold, so I wasn't wishing for any brooks. When they come to that old snow plow in the V in the road, they all got out and much to my amazement, put on overcoats, boots, mittens, and all that stuff--I didn't even have a scarf to wear--guess Allegra doesn't care if I catch cold.

We all walked up the dirt road--I was so tired at that point, they almost had to carry me. Up by the sawmill, they found a blue mark and all said, 'Hurray, here it is.' I ran over thinking maybe there was a rabbit or a squirrel, but I didn't see a thing to be happy about--a path going right straight up that big hill. No--I tried to stay at the bottom and wait til they came back, but they said something about eating at the top--didn't think I heard them, but I did. Sure was a struggle for me to get them all to the top, but by pushing and pulling, we all finally made it to a nice camp. Allegra was first there--I helped her of course, and she and Albert got the fire started and smoking. Finally she got him out of the way and made it herself. She opened a lot of cans (some of it smelled good too) and put them on the stove and went to a spring and got some water (imagine--with all that white fuzzy stuff right outside the camp door--could melt that couldn't she?) Pretty soon the others came into camp and all sat down on the benches and said they were hungry--of all things!

Well, after they were all stuffed and couldn't eat any more, they gave me a little--not much, but enough to make me want more. They were all sitting around talking (I was resting) when one of them looked out the window and said, 'Hey, look at it snow! Guess we don't get to the top (I sighed), we'd better go down--might get snowed in!

Then they gathered up the little bit that was left and put the fire out (after all that work--I don't understand it) and all started out the door--I tagging behind as usual. Then they all slid down the hill on the bottom of their pants. It took 2 hours to go up and 20 minutes to slide down--seems to me they'd find places to go down, then there wouldn't be all that work of going up.

That night I was so tired, I could hardly get ...to... sleep ... z z z z z

NOTICE NOTICE NOTICE ! ! !

ANNUAL MEETING
KILLINGTON SECTION G.M.C.

Date - Friday, Jan. 19, 1951
Time - 7:30 P.M.
Place - Neighborhood Rooms of Marble Savings Bank

The business of the meeting will consist of the election of officers, the reading of committee reports and general discussion of club activities.

President Churchill Scott has appointed the following members to serve on the nominating committee and to report at the annual meeting: Chairman, Harold Valiquette, Fred Field, and Craig Perkins.

The program for the evening will include the showing of moving pictures.

Another feature of the meeting will be the member participation in the "Hike Cue" contest. Come prepared to answer the 10 questions published in the November issue of "Smoke & Blazes". Mimeographed sets of the questions will be passed out to members present so that their answers may be recorded and checked. The winner will be awarded a prize. In the event of a tie, an elimination contest will follow.

The Photography Contest awards will also be made at this meeting. Bring your entries to the meeting. There are two classes to be judged; black and whites, and colored prints and kodachromes.

Even though you may not wish to submit pictures for the contest, you may have some that you would be glad to contribute to our Killington Section Album. This album has been growing over the years and is a very interesting book. Won't you help it to continue to grow ?

Last year we had a successful Card Party. We had fun. We made money. Would you like to have another similar party? Come to the annual meeting prepared to discuss this or any other idea you may have in mind.

Dues for 1951 are now payable.

For your convenience, if you can not come to the annual meeting, the enclosed membership slip may be filled out and mailed to the Treas., Miss Eleanor Walker, 87 Baxter St., Rutland, Vermont.

NEW MASTHEAD

We are indebted to Jane Sabourin for the design and stencil for our new masthead for the 1951 SMOKE AND BLAZES.

Thank you Jane.

FOSTMAN'S CAMP, PINE HILL
SUNDAY, JANUARY 7
by
Diana Conlon

We all agreed it's grand to have a winter hike and especially when you have a warm, cozy camp your destination, and the Fostmans to make you welcome and feel at home.

Some of us hiked in via the Country Club, while others drove right to the door, but we softies made up for it by skating for a couple of hours on a neighbor's pond, close by. The ice was excellent and the appetites ravenous.

The softly falling snow obscured our view from camp, which on a clear day is out of this world, but the coffee more than made up for it--extree delicious!

After a late luncheon, Mr. Bradder gave a very interesting talk and showed us specimens of minerals and trees native to Vermont. Later we hiked through the beautiful surrounding wood and tested our newly gained knowledge of trees. (Craigue should have been along with his riddles)

We had a very enthusiastic turnout of 23 members including one of our 'next generation' Green Mt. Club hikers, Tommy Field, who was an active and participating member even before he could walk.

Hope we can have more winter hikes and as happy a day -- often. Even a mole tried to crash the party!

JUST OFF THE TRAIL

It is amazing to discover how many things there are around us about which we know little or nothing. Looking over some of Mr. Bradder's collection of Vermont minerals at the Fostman Camp Outing it was suprising to find that:

(1) A shaft put down in a

Forestdale mining operation unearthed seeds of tropical trees. Yes, believe it or not, tropical trees in Vermont. Seems the seeds were left there some hundreds of millions of years ago when the Champlain Valley was a tropical sea!

(2) There used to be a copper mine on Clark Hill in West Rutland.

(3) There was at one time an iron mine in So. Wallingford--between there and Little Rock Pond.

(4) There are several old mine workings which show interesting deposits in the Sugar Hollow neighborhood. In this same general vicinity is the bat cave on Nickwackett Mt.

It might be an idea to plan an outing sometime to include a visit to some of these -- taking Mr. Bradder along of course to locate the points of interest and tell us more about them.

COMING EVENTS

DATE -- SUNDAY, JANUARY 21st
PLACE - TUCKER LODGE

On January 21st we close our tour of duty with that perennial favorite, Tucker Lodge. No need to advertise this one as the possibilities are known to one and all. Pack a big lunch and put on your skiis, snowshoes, or seven league boots.

And now that it is time to sign off may we say that we've enjoyed planning the hikes and all other details of our job. We know one can't, "suit all of the people all of the time", but we hope some of you have liked the places we've picked and for those of you who have not, the new committee will be brim full of ideas for next year, so keep up your courage and stand by.

HOW TO SKI FOR PLEASURE-HEALTH- THRILLS

by
Harold Valiquette

Persistent, energetic practice makes good skiers, but skiing differs from other sports in that a reasonable amount of skill can be acquired by most any person in much less time than he could learn to play tennis or golf.

Your Equipment

Skis It is a mistake to buy cheap, poorly made skis to learn on. Poor equipment is a severe handicap to a novice, and often discourages him in his efforts to learn. Hickory is the best wood, next maple, and then ash. The usual rule for determining the proper length of a ski is that it should reach the middle of the palm when holding the arm extended above the head. Metal edges prevent side slipping on hard ice and snow. Furthermore, they protect the wooden edge of the ski, which is subject to severe wear.

Ski Bindings The importance of selecting a good binding can not be overemphasized. Cable bindings are far superior to other types. They rigidly hold the foot to assure the maximum control. The toe irons should be adjusted to hold the boot securely so that the heel rests perfectly straight in the center of the ski. The toe of the boot should not project more than a half inch beyond the toe irons.

Ski Poles Your ski poles should be long enough to reach your elbow when set upright beside you.

Ski Boots Purchase a good ski boot. Select a size large enough to snugly hold two pairs of socks.

Clothing Do not buy lined or bulky jackets. Several sweaters under a wind proof parka will be warmer and permit gradual discarding as you become warmer through exercise. Ski pants that tuck into the boots over your socks are the sensible style. Woolen mitts with a water repellant cover are desirable.

(Editor's note) Watch for another article on skiing by the same author next month.

Harold Valiquette has announced that he is willing to give instruction on skiing to any club member, either old or young, who would like to receive it.

Anyone interested is asked to call Harold at The Green Mountain Arning Co. telephone 1160. Practice could be arranged for on nearby slopes.

THE STORM AND GMC SHELTERS

Perhaps some of you have wondered how our shelters fared during the storm of Nov. 25th. To date we've had first hand information on two shelters since the storm.

On New Year's afternoon a group of GMC hikers found Clarendon Shelter looking very cozy and comfortable in its winter setting. Perhaps it was the sunny day and the covering of fresh snow outside, but at any rate the camp and dooryard appeared to be unusually neat and attractive.

On the same afternoon, Charles Sabourin and friends hiked into Tucker. They found that also in A-1 condition - no storm damage and all the windows intact.

As late as the day of the storm, Buffam Shelter was reported undamaged.

That leaves Gov. Clement and Cooper Lodge still not reported on. We'd like to hear from anyone who has any information on how these two weathered the big blow.

'JOE' WRITES AGAIN

We have received another letter from our good friend, Joe Hassen Kooper. We feel sure you will all be interested in what Joe has to say, so we are passing it on to you.

Lac Goosepimple
Jes before Christmas

Deer Mister Smoke and Madam Blazes

I jes red yure repli to mi letter and Ba Gosh you R sum smart fellers to tink up all the stuff U did in dat peace of paper. I tink you are smart cuz you make pretty sur dat you don't answer any of de questions yureself. I see dat you mabbe want to start a beeg argument but I no better dan dat for Julie (dats my beeg wife) she always wins any of the tongue fites we have.

Dat Buffam question still does bother me jes de same. U got a lot of stuff about doors, french doors and windows and sumtime a door is a window and sumtime she's a door and a fellar up dis way say dat when a door is open dat she's a jar. So now I don't no if Buffam is a door, a french door, a window or a jar. I'm cum all mixed up.

I have read the story writ by Zuzan sumbody and a beeg trip dey had up to de top of Mt. Killington. Did I ever tell you about de trip Julie (dats dat 200 pounder dat I have to carry mos of de time uphill) and me wuz have up dat beeg hill one day? I can't write much about de trip up for it wuz too much.

But we had sumtime up dere. It had cum supper time and I wuz so hungry dat I cud eat the bark off mi dog or bark off de birch tree. So Julie set about for to cook de bacon and egg under a nice beeg tree. Well while Julie wuz cook de bacon, I made a look up de tree and wat U tink I see-- 14 a orful beeg porkypine.

I pull out my old gun (de one dat shoot around de corner) and let go de middle barrel. It stunned dat ol Porky so he fel out dat tree right into Julie fry pan. Dat bacon wuz so hot on hees hinder parts dat he run around in a circle bout 20 tim and we laff fit to kill. Den he roll over two or tree time and jus den Julie give him de right hand barrel of buck shot and he keel over ded. We went over to see him and he had roll over in a blue berry patch. An what you tink? Every needle in dat old Porky had a berry on it. We picked em off and had blueberry pudding for supper.

It's 2 near Christmas to tell you any more of de grate times Julie and me have had on top dat ol mountain top. Say, can me and Julie get a job as short order cook at Spring Mt. camp? We have never cook on a Valiquette stov but hav cooked on mos everything else and we can roast hot dog so U tink you mebbe got a T-bone stake.

Happy Christmas and Merry
Nu Year to U all,

Joe.

(Just in case he really doesn't know, we'd like to advise Joe that the editorial headquarters of 'Smoke and Blazes' is 129 Bellevue Avenue, not 54.---Ed.)

WINTER WISE

Don't be a fire-side sitter
Now that winter's really here.
The weather is much nicer
Than it looks, this time of year.

So, get out your boots and 'longies'
Take a hike, or skate, or ski.
Don't grumble at the snow and cold,
That's how winter ought to be.

Those walks you have to shovel
Will help you keep in trim,
And best of all, in winter,
It's so nice to come back in!

KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB

Feb. 1951

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Once again the old year comes to a close and the new year rolls around. Let's take this opportunity to say "Well done" to all the committees with a special emphasis on the Outing Committee.

Although our membership was not as large as in years gone by, our enthusiasm was very high as was shown by well attended outings.

There are a few "musts" for 1951. We must finish Spring Lake Camp. We must give the whole Killington Section of the Trail a good working over. We must repair Pico Shelter. If everyone is willing to pitch in and do his share we can have a very successful year.

Churchill Scott, Pres.

COMMITTEE APPOINTMENTS

The following chairmen of committees have been appointed:

Publicity - Fred Field
 Trails - Craigue Perkins
 Shelters - Harold Valiquette
 Photography - Alogra Chapman
 Outings - Charlotte Rutkowski

Word has been received from Miss Lula Tye, GMC Secretary, that Taylor Lodge has burned to the ground. This was a closed lodge built in 1926 by the Burlington Section.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE APPOINTMENTS

CARD PARTY:

Vera Perkins, chairman
 Pearl Nichols
 Helen Field
 Ethel Scott

WINTER WEEK-END

Fred & Helen Field, co-chairmen
 Ray Catozzi
 Churchill Scott

SLEIGH RIDE PARTY

Ethel Scott, chairman

A sleigh ride party will be organized if and when there is snow enough for such a venture. Plans for such a party will have to be made in a hurry with not enough time to mail out cards to notify members. If you are interested and would like your name on a list of names to be notified by telephone, please call Ethel Scott, telephone 2698.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING

At a meeting of the executive board held Feb. 7 at the home of the president the following budget was made up:

Smoke and Blazes	$50.00
Trails	30.00
Shelters	150.00
Outing	25.00
Photography	5.00
Publicity	10.00
Miscellaneous	10.00
Dues to GMC	25.00

————— $310.00

2

The Annual Meeting of the Killington Section GMC was held Friday evening, January 19th, with Pres. Churchill Scott presiding.

Reports of committees and discussion brought out information on the work done and the condition of the trails and snelters.

After consideration of the danger from fires and the desirability of carrying Fire Insurance it was voted to take out such insurance on the Spring Lake Camp.

It was also voted to extend complementary membership to anyone in Service who had been a member of the Killington Section at any time during the last three years.

Harold Valiquette, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the following names for officers for 1951:

President - Churchill Scott

V. President- Ray Catozzi

Sec. - Treas. Eleanor Walker

There were no further nominations and these officers were unanimously elected.

The "Hike Cue" Contest was won by Pres. Scott. He tied with Pearle Nichols and Allegra Chapman on the original set of questions but won out on the tie-breakers.

The Photography Contest, judged by David Scott, was won by Allegra Chapman for the best colored picture and by Barbara Mellow for the best black and white. The colored slides submitted were afterwards projected by George Conlon.

Ray Catozzi provided an interesting program by showing colored movies taken by Richard and Mr. Catozzi in Mexico and in New York City.

CARD PARTY SOON

Any day now you will be hearing from the committee about the Card Party. Definite plans have not been completed, but we are going to have one ---and soon!

Keep this in mind and plan to reserve at least one table when you are contacted by the committee. Let's have a good crowd so we can have as good a time as we had last year.

REPORT OF THE OUTING COMMITTEE - 1950

During the season twenty-three hikes were held with a total attendance of 515, or an average attendance of 22 plus. One hundred and seventy-three different people attended.

(These figures do not include the Intersectional held in August, the Annual Meeting held in May, the Killington Section Annual meeting held in January, nor do they include dogs.) They do include guests and members of other sections who attended the joint outings. These figures do not prove anything in particular and are merely included in case anyone is interested.

The largest hike* was the Sugar Party held at Camp Sangamon with 64 attending and the smallest was the trip to McLaughlin Falls after the "big blow" at Thanksgiving time, with one member (our president) making the trip. The most strenuous trip was probably the one to Stratton Pond and Stratton Mountain, a total distance of nine miles.

We attempted four joint hikes with other sections; Bennington, Brattleboro, Worcester, and Burlington, only three of which materialized. These were successful socially, but not numerically. However the idea was not presented in time so that the trips could be incorporated into the schedules of the other groups. More careful planning might lead to better results.

* Note exceptions above
 (The 1950 Outing Committee members were Helen Bailey and Barbara Mellow.)

Bill Allard and Francis Perry made a trip to Killington recently and report Cooper Lodge to be in good condition.

TRIP TO TUCKER

Rain on the morning of Sunday, January 21st, failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the six hikers who showed up at the appointed time for the trip to Tucker. We were well rewarded for our courage as the rain was over by the time we took the trail and the day turned out to be fine. Ray Catozzi joined us at Tucker for lunch. Charlotte Rutkowski took time off from an afternoon drive to hike in and sign the book!

A feature of the trip was the installing of a new stove which was carried in on a ladder by Harold Valiquette and Churchill Scott. This is a new model 'Valiquette Stove' - a duplex affair - one or both sides may be used according to the weather and the size of the crowd!

Tucker in January without snow seemed a bit odd, but it was nice there as always and we were glad we hadn't let the weather keep us at home.

MYSTERY HIKE

Eight trusting and curious Killington Section members met at the Meldon School at 10 A.M. on Sunday, February 11th, for an outing, destination unknown.

A little study of the diagram provided by Pres. Scott for the driver of each car revealed the secret. We drove down Route 7 to the designated parking place and set off happily for another favorite winter objective -- Clarendon Shelter.

We were pleased to find the most snow we had seen all winter. Some skied, some snowshoed and some just plain hiked but everyone had fun. It was exactly cold enough for the coffee to taste perfect!

We liked the idea of a Mystery Hike. Let's try it again some time.

COMING EVENTS

WINTER-WEEK-END

DATE- Feb. 24 - 25 - Sat. & Sun.
PLACE- Perkins' Camp - Mendon

Plans for this outing are shaping up. This the Outing that brings us together as one big family. Come and go as you please but make reservations with Churchill Scott, telephone 2698, no later than Thursday night, Feb. 22nd.

Meals are being planned by the committee and the price of each will be kept as low as possible.

Work will be distributed among all participants of the Week-end Party.

There are some blankets available but you had better check on this when you make your reservations.

STEAK SUPPER

DATE - March 11 - Sunday
PLACE - Tucker Lodge

This one is being planned as an afternoon of out door activities; snow shoeing and skiing in the Pico area. A hearty meal at the end of the day should taste good. It goes without saying, "bring your own". Coffee will be served by the Club.

Your Outing Chairman, Charlotte Rutkowski, is vacationing in Florida so the Executive Board has arranged for the Mystery Hike (which has taken place), the Winter week-end, and the Steak Supper Hike.

When Charlotte returns, the new schedule will be made up and sent out to members.

Word has been received of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rice of Corpus Christi, Texas. The new addition to the Rice family is Charlotte Ann. Best wishes to you all.

HOW TO SKI FOR PLEASURE-HEALTH-THRILLS
by Harold Valiquette

INSTRUCTIONS

#1 HOW TO HOLD SKI POLES

Pass the hands up through the looped straps from below and grip the upper part of the strap and ski pole. This leaves the inside of the wrist free with the strap loop over the back of the wrist to support the hand.

#2 SKIING ON THE LEVEL

To ski on the level, and up gentle slopes, take rather short strides, but endeavor to make the slide as long as possible on each foot. A gliding step rather than a walking step is used, and the skis are not lifted from the snow. Impetus is gained by throwing the weight forward onto each ski as it is advanced. As you glide forward on the left ski, be pushing strongly with the left pole and swing the right pole forward. Then as you start forward on the right ski, the right pole has been placed a little in front of your foot and you push strongly on it simultaneously.

Shoulders and hips should be rolled slightly as you shift over from one ski to the other. All movement should be co-ordinated into one fluid motion. The elbows should be kept close to the body. This method of walking should be used for climbing hills by the zigzag method, using a kick turn to change direction.

#3 STEP TURN

Used to change direction when standing on the level. To turn to the right, lift the right ski out of the snow and turn the toe to the right. Bring the left ski up parallel to it. Repeat till you have reached the desired direction. This turn may be done while moving forward slowly.

#4 THE KICK TURN

Place the left ski pole in the snow close to the tip of the left ski. Turn the body to the right, and place the right ski pole in the snow at the rear of the right ski. Using your poles to balance with, kick your right ski up and forward and turn the toe to the right so that, as it falls, it will lie parallel to the left, but facing in the opposite direction.

Shift the weight to the right ski, lift the left pole and bring the left ski around parallel to the right ski.

#5 HILL CLIMBING

The best known methods of climbing are: the Zigzag, the Side-step, and the Herringbone.

(ZIGZAG) Start up the hill at an angle and then kick turn and ski up the other way. Kick turn toward the downhill side for greater ease. As you zigzag you gain altitude, like a sailboat tacking up wind.

(SIDE-STEP) Start with the skis at right angles to the hill. Lift the uphill ski and step sideways, edging the ski when you stamp it down. Bring the other ski up to it. This is the best way to ascend very steep hills.

(HERRINGBONE) The quickest way to climb a hill. Toe out at wide angles and step forward, carrying the heel of one ski over the heel of the other. Edge in as you go and co-ordinate your ski poles as you did when skiing on the level.

Painting Party

Last month nine members of our section put in an evening of work painting windows for the Spring Lake Camp and signs for the Trail. The work was done under the supervision of Harold Valiquette at the Green Mountain Awning Company's shop.

March 1951 ---

NEW SCHEDULES

With the help of president, Churchill Scott, our new chairman of Outings, Charlotte Rutkowski, has lined up a schedule of hikes for the Spring and Summer of 1951.

The list of outings looks interesting. Now that good hiking weather is just "around the corner" let's get out and enjoy the trips planned for us.

The schedule is enclosed with this issue of SMOKE ' BLAZES.

NOTICE

An executive board meeting of the Killington Section of GMC has been called for Wednesday, March 21st at 7:30 P.M. This meeting will be held at the home of Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St.

TWO WORK PARTIES

Thursday, March 22, and Sunday, April 1, are the dates set for work parties to be held at Spring Lake Camp. The work of building the bunks will be the job for these dates. Anyone interested may call 2698.

When a labor of love goes into the accomplishment of a task, the results are deeply appreciated. This is certainly true of our new Spring Lake Camp. Sweat, worry, and weariness have also been the ingredients of this one.

MAPLE SUGAR PARTY

We are fortunate again to be able to have our annual Maple Sugar Party at Camp Sangamon in Pittsford. Mr. and Mrs. Leone Smith have invited us and the date is set for Saturday, March 24.

Reservations for this party should be made by calling 2698, Churchill Scott, no later than Thursday, March 22nd.

The cats will consist of the usual; sugar on snow, doughnuts, pickles, and coffee. There will be a charge for this menu but at this writing we are unable to tell you the exact amount.

Plans are being made to have square dancing in the evening.

The usual good crowd and good time is expected. Bring a guest or two if you like.

BUFFAM SHELTER

On Sunday, April 8th there will be a hike to Buffam Shelter. Watch the HERALD for a notice of time of meeting.

This is an old favorite and an easy one. If you haven't been hiking during the winter and want to get started on a little something less than mountain climbing, then this was made to order for you. A walk of less than a mile up a wood road brings you to the shelter where you can loaf in the sun or explore to the north. The brook is pretty, the road, no doubt muddy.

TUCKER AGAIN

We were proud to see colored photographs taken by Ray Catozzi appearing in the Spring issue of 'Vermont Life'. Ray's pictures were used in illustrating the article, 'FERNS FROM VERMONT', written by Beth Smith of Rutland. Congratulations, Ray.

WINTER WEEKEND

by
Betty Ball

A very successful and pleasant weekend was spent at the camp of Mr. & Mrs. Craigie Perkins on Saturday and Sunday, February 24th and 25th.

Nine members hiked in on Saturday afternoon, and three dogs, including a stray airdale puppy. Several took walks in the woodland around, while Allegra Chapman skied.

After supper the chief occupations were Canasta and conversation, and every one was happy but Poochie, who evidently thought three dogs in one house two too many.

Five members stayed overnight. Eleanor Walker proved a good firetender and Craigie Perkins and Churchill Scott good breakfast getters.

Sunday was mild and fair, and other members arriving, several took walks in the woods. Animal tracks were abundant, and included rabbit, fox, mouse, deer, and squirrel. While a fine dinner was being prepared by an efficient kitchen crew, others basked in the warm sunshine on the porch, talking, and admiring the popular airdale pup. Nineteen were present for dinner.

Sunday afternoon was spent in more walking by some, Canasta and conversation by others. The pup was adopted by Diane Conlon, and named Punch.

Special thanks are deserved by Mr. & Mrs. Perkins for the use of their camp, and by Churchill Scott for his well-planned work schedule, and the helpfulness he showed to all work committees.

Another pleasant Tucker outing was enjoyed on Sunday afternoon, March 11th. There were eight in the first contingent which left the Meldon School at 2 P.M. As we hiked in to the lodge we enjoyed a fine snow storm. We were surprised to see so much snow in the woods. The whiteness of the fresh snow on top of an already substantial base, was a pleasant contrast to the drab, bare streets of town. Arrived at Tucker we found a party of nine skiers just finishing their dinner.

Some of our number took additional hikes on the near-by trails, others did work around the camp, while others just visited and enjoyed the cozy camp atmosphere.

Harold Valiquette did an excellent and much needed job of cleaning the cupboard, while Churchill Scott and Craigie Perkins set a new light of glass in one of the small upper windows.

About the time that the coffee was getting just right, five more members arrived and soon everyone had his or her supper underway. The new stove was working perfectly and the sizzling steaks sounded and smelled good. (tasted good too)

After a leisurely meal and some talk of coming events we reluctantly concluded another Tucker Outing. As we started out on the trail we met Walt Hakin just arriving. Ray Catozzi, who had been most unhappy about leaving so early, welcomed this opportunity to stay on awhile with Walt. As we left, Tucker looked most inviting with the cheery light from Ray's lantern shining from its windows.

GET A HEADSTART ON SPRING

Did you ever try forcing branches for an early spring bouquet? It's a good way to hasten the coming of spring - indoors at least. Collecting the branches also makes a good objective for a hike on one of these nice bright days. Of course there may be bushes in your own yard or garden which are fine for forcing, forsythia is one of the best known and most rewarding. But let us skip those and consider some which you might collect on a hike.

Pussy willows are an old favorite and are already beginning to put forth their cat-kins. Other favorites are wild cherry, alder, shad, high bush blueberry, and hobble bush. On some branches the young foliage is almost as decorative as the flowers. This is especially true if it is red or opens in unusual forms. Some such interesting ones are horse chestnut, oak, beech, gray and white birch, mountain ash, and the familiar barberry.

The best results will be obtained if branches to be forced are cut about a finger thick and the ends of the stems pounded for a few inches. This breaks the tissues and allows them to take up more water. If the buds are very tight, keep the branches in tepid water for a day or two, then place them in a sunny window. Spraying with water at room temperature every few days will help. If you have a room in which to force your branches where the temperature can be kept not over 60° the blooms will last longer. Foliage branches will go on opening and growing for several weeks. It is fun to watch these branches develop and they help to convince us that spring is really just around the corner.

Due chiefly, we believe, to the prevalence of 'the thing' which has been going the rounds lately, the attendance at the Card Party was much smaller than last year. However, those who were able to attend seemed to enjoy themselves, and a profit of $25 made this a reasonably successful financial venture as well as a pleasant social occasion.

We missed our friends who were unable to attend and appreciated their support. We would like also to express thanks to the committee, to Harold Valiquette, Churchill Scott, and Ray Catozzi, who transported chairs, and to all who assisted in serving, clearing up, carrying chairs downstairs, etc.

The door prize, delicious homemade rolls, made and contributed by one of the Killington Section's best cooks, (name withheld on request) was won by Ruth LaBrake. A prize was also awarded to the high scorer at each table.

HERE AND THERE

It was nice to see Marilyn Trop who was home for a short vacation after being 'capped' at the Brooklyn Jewish Hospital. Marilyn joined us at the Card Party.

Word from 'Dart' Noyes, who with Grace Hayward is wintering at Sarasota, Fla., tells of a trip they took recently across the state to West Palm Beach. 'Dart' reported many interesting things seen. Among them were a large variety of birds, moonlight so bright that road construction continued at night, and the bear which played 'Slewfoot' in 'The Yearling'!

Marjorie Allard is completing several weeks of Practice Teaching in Home Economics at the Poultney High School.

Charles Sabourin, home for the weekend from the Mass. College of Pharmacy in Boston, dropped in to say "hello" at the Winter Weekend outing.

Outing Chairman, Charlotte Rutkowski is home after a vacation in Florida.

Dug out our collection of old GMC Guide Books the other night. The first one dated 1917 was a paper bound affair of 34 pages including the By-laws of the club and a list of members.

Under "Equipment" are listed two suits of long woolen underwear. Also a tent as there were few shelters at that time. "For Food" it says, "bread (preferably made into sandwiches) and bacon will keep you going with little weight to carry." Tea, sugar, and condensed milk were the only other items mentioned.

In what is now the Killington Section only three trails were described; the Old Hotel road up Killington from the west, the Juggernaut from the east, and the Long Trail from Sherburne Pass. The trail south from Killington wasn't opened until 1918.

There was an establishment in Sherburne Pass known as the Deers Leap Tea House "affording rest and refreshment."

There was no water between Pico and Killington since the Trail used to be along the top of the ridge.

The distance from Sherburne Pass to Killington is given as 7 miles instead of 5.7 miles. This should make Mary Jennings feel a lot better.

RECREATION CONFERENCE

The fifteenth annual recreation conference to be held at the University of Mass. at Amherst March 17, has an interesting schedule lined up on its Program of the Mountaineering Section.

Besides the sessions devoted to trails and shelters all over New England there are to be talks and pictures on "A Trip to Alaska," also "To Katahdin and Mt. Rainier."

We know some folks from the Worcester Section are to be there. Sure do wish some of us from Killington Section could attend.

With the sun climbing higher, snow practically gone from our hills and pastures, sap running, and that good earth smell in the air, it is time to begin thinking of hours to be spent in the open.

It won't be long now before week-ends of camping and tripping will be occupying your time. Some early Saturday morning you will want to pack up the car with sleeping bags, camping equipment, and the family and be off to the woods.

Where to go for an overnight camping trip and be able to drive right to the door is the thought uppermost in the minds of many. This is important to those who have young toddlers and babies or old folks in their family.

To meet this demand we have in Vermont many beautiful State Parks that are ideally situated and equipped for family camping.

Grandma and grandpa, mother and dad, the new baby and the dog can all have the pleasure of wonderful hours spent out in the woods beside a lake, on the banks of a river, or high on a mountain. Of course all this takes a little study and planning but then that is where half the fun is to be had.

Most of the State Parks are equipped with Lean-tos, tent platforms, washrooms, drinking water, fireplaces and wood.

The cooking problem has been eliminated so that it takes little or no experience to be a good cook today. Just buy the prepared food, open the package, add liquid, cook, and serve.

If you are interested in this type of vacation why not give it a try. I guarantee you will be back for more.

For further information write for maps and folders of Vermont State Parks to:

Vermont Forest Service,
Montpelier, Vermont.

We are fortunate to have so many beautiful vacation and camping spots in Vermont. We aren't over crowded up here - yet, so peace and privacy may still be enjoyed.

KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB

April 1951

COMING EVENTS

by

Cutting, Ch., Charlotte Rutkowski

PLACE - Gov. Clement Shelter

TIME - Sunday, April 22nd.

Spring is in the air - the Trail may be a little muddy but I'm sure everyone feels that urge to get out after a long winter.

If you didn't get started with the hike to Buffum Shelter, this is a good one to break in on.

PLACE - Little Rock Pond

TIME - Sunday, May 6th

This is one hike that I'm sure no-one has to think twice before deciding to go on. It is a favorite with all who have been there and is destined to become one for the newcomer, but don't take my word for it, come along and see for yourself. Don't forget to bring along your fishpoles and rubber boots -- trout season, you know.

Details of Outings, such as meet-place, starting time, etc., will be in the Herald a day or two before each event. In case you miss them or want further information call Outing Chairman, Charlotte Rutkowski - Tel. 504-11 or Pres. Churchill Scott - Tel. 2698.

PAPER HAS NEW STAFF MEMBER

Ray Catozzi has been added to the staff of SMOKE and BLAZES.

Staff members get no "by" line, so see if you can pick out his column.

WORK PARTIES

Since the last issue of SMOKE and BLAZES we have had three work parties at Spring Lake Camp. The bunks are almost finished, (twenty feet long and seven and one-half feet wide.) If that isn't large enough for a large party he can sleep crosswise. They are built of soft wood, fir side up. Doesn't that sound comfortable? They are guaranteed not to wrinkle, rumple, sag, bag, or pinch. If you can't sleep on these bunks we know why.

On the April 1st trip we promised a surprise. Guess who got fooled? You did if you didn't go! Laude Canty served us all with nice mince pies!

The joists for the floor have been cut and lugged to the Camp. Lay the floor, hang the doors, grade around the foundation, and we will have one of the best camps on the Trail.

The Annual Meeting comes on June 2nd this year. How about a big Open-house on Sunday, June 3rd?

ATTENTION!

HAVE YOU PAID YOUR 1951 DUES?

Beginning with the May issue the mailing list for SMOKE and BLAZES for the remainder of 1951 will be made up from the 1951 membership list.

If you have not already sent in your dues send them to:

Miss Eleanor Walker, Treas.

37 Baxter Street, Rutland, Vt., before May 10th to insure not missing a copy of your paper.

A GASTRONOMICAL EXPERIENCE

by
Danny Jennings

"Give a man a milk pan full of hard-packed snow; pour on a stream of hot golden liquid. Let it cool briefly and then with a wooden stick about the size of your little finger, wind up the ribbons and you are ready for one of life's top gastronomical experiences," Hayden Pearson recently wrote in his column "Country Flavor," concerning sugar on snow.

We are sure that those fifty or more GNC'ers who recently attended the Annual Maple Sugar Party at Camp Sangamon in Pittsford, are in complete agreement with Mr. Pearson's sentiments. Mr. and Mrs. Leone Smith were hosts at the camp and our Section President, Churchill Scott was chairman of the party. He was assisted by a very capable committee. Our supper besides the sugar on snow included dill pickles, doughnuts, and coffee.

It was pleasant to see some of the "old timers" at the party such as Tony Fusco, Marjory Perkins and Fernand Bartlett, who washed all the dishes (Maude Canty, who usually ends up as chief bottle washer herself, gave me strict instructions to say this about Ferd.) For some of the guests this was their first experience with sugar on snow. Among these, believe it or not, was our new Outing Chairman, Charlotte Rutkowski and also Bill Williams of New York, guest of Marjory Perkins. A New Yorker we can forgive, but a Vermonter ??

Square Dancing in the big rustic recreation room of Sangamon was the chief entertainment in the evening. Calls were given by Getty Page. Ping Pong was available for those otherwise inclined and a cheerful fire crackled in the big stone fireplace. We also noticed that the inevitable canasta sneaked in somewhere and there were a few loyal devotees of the game playing in the dining room.

While most of us stopped to catch our breath between the squares, Mr. Bradder and his daughter, Mavis Larson, gave an admirable demonstration of ballroom dancing to the stirring strains of Strauss Waltzes.

All in all, as we always conclude, it was a fine crowd, everyone had a good time, and we are looking forward to our next outing.

THE HIKE TO BUFFAM

by Marjory Allard

On Sunday, April 8th, about 24 members of the Section, 21 people and 3 dogs, made the hike to Buffam Shelter. The road was muddy, and in places there was still quite a bit of wet snow, but the going wasn't bad for those who wore their waterproof boots.

Three of the girls got off to a good start by strolling past the turn-off and continuing for about three quarters of a mile up the road. They finally noticed the lack of blazes and turned back, but not before seeing the three buildings of the Bear Mountain Literary, Athletic, Music, and Art Club, Ltd. (really!) and enjoying a wonderful view. Future hikers needn't worry about taking this side trip by accident, though; the turnoff is well blazed now.

At the shelter, which was still surrounded by snow, a good fire was started in the stove and another in the outdoor fireplace. The dogs enjoyed barking at one another and begging for food, and the people enjoyed their dinners.

After dinner a work party of six set out for Spring Lake via Button Hill. Allegra Chapman and Tony Fusco painted new, much needed blazes, while Craigie Perkins, Ray Catozzi, Bill Allard, and Churchill Scott cleared away brush and blowdowns.

Some of the party stayed around the shelter talking, tending the fire, and clearing old branches off the bunks. Veteran hiker Tommy Field led a group of hikers on a short safari up the trail. It was on this trip that Punch Conlon decided he wasn't meant to be a big game hunting dog. Or maybe those animal burrows looked too damp and gloomy to be worth his attention.

On the way down to the cars, some of us came upon a Model A Ford with its right front wheel hub-deep in mud. Walt Hakens and Fred Field worked with the driver for about half an hour, and finally succeeded in sending the car with its seven passengers on its way down the hill. How they ever got up there in the first place is still a mystery, though.

All in all, our hike was a pretty successful one, and we had a good time. The country around the shelter should be really lovely in a few weeks, when things get green. But remember if you're going to Buffam in the spring, wear your boots !

SPRING CLEANING SUGGESTION

When you are cleaning your closets, draws, shelves, and what nots, gather together anything you are tired of and put it aside in a container FOR THE RUMMAGE SALE.

This annual event is one of the best money making schemes we know of. It is scheduled again for some time this fall.

GMC SLIDES SHOWN

At a meeting of the Rutland Home Study Group, Craigie Perkins and Harold Valiquette showed the GMC Slides.

A very nice job has been done on this collection. It has been brought up to 100 slides with a commentary book to go along with it.

These GMC Slides may be borrowed by any group interested. A call to Miss L. Tye, Club Secretary at the office of the Rutland Savings and Loan Association on Center St., Rutland, will reserve them for you.

LONG TRAIL LODGE

"Who owns the Long Trail Lodge?"

We do, believe it or not !

Mortimer R. Proctor and Mrs. Fletcher D. Proctor provided the funds to build and furnish the original Lodge as a home for The Green Mountain Club. Paul W. Thayer was the architect and Charles P. Cooper, Willis H. Ross and Wallace H. Fay were the Building Committee. It was formally opened on December 1, 1923!

"Isn't it a hotel? "

Yes, it is a hotel. It soon became evident that the operating expense of the Lodge as a Club house was much too great for the Club to carry alone so it was decided to take "paying guests." The setup for serving meals proved to be unsuitable so the Club borrowed about $12,000 and built the dining room addition. After several years of operation under a Committee of the Club no profit had been made and several deficits had been made up by borrowing more money from Mr. Proctor.

In 1935 the management of the Lodge was placed in the hands of professional hotel people. In that year Grover Wright, the present manager, came to the Lodge. During the next three years business was reported to be very good but the profits were continually put into new construction at the Lodge. About this time the Pico Ski Area was developed and a serious attempt to get winter business for the Lodge was made. It was soon found that the Lodge couldn't be satisfactorily heated in winter, so the Club was induced to borrow about $12,000 more and The Annex or "Chalet" was built. The previous year the Trustees had voted to pay $1,000 per year on the old debt but the prospect of bigger and better profits couldn't be resisted. The next year a new building program was proposed but the Trustees said, "No" and made it stick. Since then all new construction has been paid for by the people leasing the Lodge.

To be concluded in the May issue of SMOKE & BLAZES

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETS

A meeting of the executive board of the Killington section was held Wednesday, March 21st, at the home of Churchill Scott. Churchill, Ray Catozzi, Craigie Perkins and Harold Valiquette attended. Allegra Chapman came to hand in her resignation as Photography chairman.

Churchill was appointed by letter from Prof. Buchanan as the chairman of the 1951 Intersectional outing at Perkins' camp in Mendon. The date has been tentatively set for August 25th and 26th. Larry Dean of Burlington and Jim Green of Worcester will assist him.

NOTICE

Another executive board meeting is scheduled for Friday, April 20th, at 7:30 p.m., also at Churchill Scott's home.

HERE AND THERE

It has been a long time since as many dogs have been seen together on the Long Trail as at the Buffum shelter outing. "Susan" Chapman, "Ginger" Catozzi, "Teddy" Field and "Punch" Conlon made up a formidable and noisy quartet in our canine membership section.

During the walk into Buffum about 25 Canada geese were seen and heard winging their military way northward in perfect V-formation. Many who had never before seen these large birds, who summer to the north of us, experienced quite a thrill.

While blazing the trail south of Spring Lake, Allegra Chapman and Tony Fusco came upon a tree stump so large that they couldn't join hands around it. It was estimated to be about 12 feet in circumference. 'Twould be a good entry in the Largest Trees list if it wasn't dead and gone.

ABOUT PEOPLE WE KNOW

The engagement of Allegra Chapman was announced recently and we understand that she will be leaving us in June. Since joining the Killington section, she (and Susan) have been dependable supporters of all Club activities. Best Wishes, Allegra, you and Susan will be missed on future hikes and work parties.

Jimmy White, home from Harvard University for his spring vacation, showed up at a recent Spring Lake work party.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. Geo. Kirk is now at her home after having to spend several weeks at the Rutland Hospital.

Mrs. MacLurray has just returned from Florida where she spent the latter part of the winter.

Bob, Thelma, and David Perkins are planning a weeks' camping trip in Kentucky sometime this month. We hope to have some details of the trip later.

Many of you will remember Fernand and Jeanette Bartlett, another of our brother and sister combinations.

Fernand was in town over the Easter weekend and we were pleased to see him at our annual Sugar Party.

Since leaving Rutland he has collected two degrees from Amherst, done recreation work in New York and in California, and is now studying at Ohio State.

Jeanette served in the MACS and is now married and living in New Jersey.

It is always nice to have news of our Ex-Junior members and we are especially glad to have them join us on outings when they are back in town.

We missed the Valiquettes' at the Sugar Party. Their absence was explained when we learned that they visited in New York over Easter.

Killington Section - Green Mountain Club

May 1951

G.M.C. ANNUAL MEETING - JUNE 2

The annual meeting of the Green Mountain Club will be held Saturday, June 2nd, at the Long Trail Lodge Annex.

This is the annual meeting of the parent organization and is an opportunity for members of all sections and members at large to get together and discuss Club business. Trustees for the coming year will be elected at this meeting. Why not plan to be on hand and take an active part in plans for carrying on your Club's activities.

The meeting will open at 11 A.M. with the reports of officers and committees. There will be a recess for dinner at 1 P.M. and the meeting will resume in the afternoon.

At the close of the afternoon meeting there will be a meeting of the Trustees. This will be a good opportunity for those not involved in the Trustees meeting to get a little fresh air and exercise by exploring some of the many interesting short trails in the vicinity.

Supper will be served at 6:30 and a fine program has been arranged for the evening. Mrs. Mortimer Proctor will show her colored slides on Historic Vermont. We understand that arrangements have been made for Square Dancing to complete the day's activities.

Let's have Killington Section well represented. (See 'Coming Events' for Sunday plans.)

NEW CAMP FIRE LAW

by

Wilbur E. Bradder
Asst. State Forester

A new law dealing with forest fire control which effects all hikers, was passed two weeks ago by the state legislature.

The two sections of the law which most concern us are as follows:

Fires in woods; penalty A person who builds a fire in or adjoining any woods shall totally extinguish such fire before leaving it. A person who violates a provision of this section shall be imprisoned not more than thirty days or fined not more than $50 or both.

Setting fires; A person who enters upon lands of another and sets a fire that causes damage may be imprisoned not more than 60 days nor less than 30 days or fined not more than $100 nor less than $10.

This law as we see it in the forestry service is based on our democratic way of life; that is, to own a home and land with the right to protect it against aggression.

We in the G.M.C. have shelters in which to build our cook fires, and they are the safest and most logical places. Therefore this law shouldn't inconvenience any of us, taking for granted that we are able to hike from one shelter to the next without another hot meal on the way.

Use your head and play safe.

COMING EVENTS

by

Charlotte Rutkowski

TIME - SUNDAY, MAY 20th

PLACE - KILLINGTON PEAK

It's 4241 feet above sea level! Sounds wonderful doesn't it? It's every bit that and more. Within a very short distance of Rutland, you can see a beautiful panorama of many mountains. Veteran hikers will soon help you name some of the mountains in view.

TIME - SUNDAY, JUNE 3rd

PLACE - SPRING LAKE CAMP.

Opportunity knocks! Let's really celebrate and make a big day of this get-together at our new Spring Lake Camp.

Scheduled for the day after the annual GMC meeting, it will be an excellent time for members of other sections staying over night, to attend its official opening. A bang up attendance will show them how proud we are of it.

LITTLE ROCKY POND

by

Eleanor Walker

On Sunday, May 6th, a group of 22 gathered at Meldon School at 10 A.M. ready to start for Little Rocky Pond in Danby. This is a favorite hike which is looked forward to by Killington Section members.

Many young fishermen were in the group and spent the day fishing the brook and the Pond. We heard no report of any big catches during the day.

The trail was in very good condition with only a few wet spots to be walked around. Due to the late season there were very few of the usual spring flowers to be seen.

When we arrived at the shelter a Boy Scout troop was just finishing a hearty dinner and we then used their fire to prepare our lunches.

Before eating, some of the boys climbed the hill back of the Pond and reported a good view from the top.

Members not fishing or exploring the trails, spent the afternoon, believe it or not, reading the Sunday papers!

The return trip to the cars was made via the long way around the Pond.

TOMMY

Some fellers want to grow to be Bold sailors, traveling 'ore the sea,

Or maybe firemen, cops, or cowboys,
Or politicians making lots of noise.

When I get big I want to climb
All the Green Mountains, one at a time.

With a pipe in my mouth, and a handy snack,
I'll start for the top and never look back.

I may rest awhile in a shady nook,
Or cool my toes in a rushing brook.

(But if I should startle a little fawn,
I'd walk right by and do him no harm.)

At night, I'll sleep by a roaring
fire.

What other comfort could one desire?

I'll wink right back at the stars
as they shine,
For a Hiker's life is might fine.

In a few more years, my legs will grow

Quite big and strong, til then,
I know

My Daddy's back will have to do Because, you see, I'm not quite two.

CLEMENT SHELTER

by Maude Canty

On April 22nd, eleven members of the Green Mt. Club met at Meldon School for the trip to the Clement Shelter in Shrewsbury.

It was a gray day, the skies were dark - the sun breaking through now and then - much like a day in November. The cars were left at the Swan bridge as the mud was plentiful in this locality.

We hiked in from the bridge, passing the old Bert Swan homestead, the Jockey Deer Camp, crossed the brook, and came to what had been the Howe Camp. The old fireplace with its chimney was all that was left, a lone monument to mark where the camp had stood until it was destroyed by fire a few years ago.

Following the brook we came to the site of the old Blanchard Mill and boarding house. Not too many years ago logs were piled high in this yard and load after load of lumber moved out over this same road to the business world. Just around the turn we came in sight of the Clement Shelter, open on one side and built of field stone with bunks, stove, and fireplace. It is out in the open with Robinson on one side and Jockey on the other, with Little Killington to the east by way of the Long Trail. The shelter had wintered well and was in fairly good shape.

After building the fires, one inside and one out in the open (for the fresh air girls), we cooked and ate our mid-day meal. Thus fortified, the upper bunks were then repaired and our Castleton member picked up the front yard, taking care of old tin cans, beds, etc., and doing a good job too.

Wondering what and how much damage the hurricane of 1950 had done to the trail, all hands went out, the ambitious ones clearing and chopping the trees away and the others, well just enjoying an April day in the open. Patches of snow showed here and there but one little 'spring beauty' dared to bloom along-side our path. We climbed up and up, feeling a bit guilty that we were taking our time and pleasure. Our Outing Chairman found several fungi of a rich red color, a rare specimen to us. The woods were so still not even a bird note was heard.

Coming back to the shelter we were pleased to find Dick and Gretta Catozzi there just finishing their lunch. They had come in a hurry and were leaving in a hurry so we talked fast.

Returning to the cars, we packed in and had gone only a short ways when we found Dick and Gretta who were in such a hurry, stuck fast in mud up to the car's hub caps. They were rescued with help and started on their way to Albany.

A good day for all, lots of exercise, some work done on the Trail, and good mountain air - a real reason for being in the Green Mountain Club.

WORK PARTIES

Mr. Charles E. Smith of Wallingford has been helping out on trail clearing. He has been for some time with the U.S. Forest Service in Colorado. Being in the East for a few months with a little spare time, he suggested doing a little trail work. He has been over the trail from Spring Lake to Clarendon Shelter and reports that it is in good shape. As soon as the snow is off he wants to get up on the Pico - Killington ridge. Thanks a lot Charlie. It's people like you that make the Long Trail possible.

Well, Spring Lake Camp is just about ready for the grand opening June 3rd. The floor is all in and the doors have been re-hung. Speaking of hanging, somebody had to talk pretty fast the day he forgot to pick up the man with the grub.

"To whom is the Lodge leased?"
To Mr. L. G. Treadway. Grover Wright manages the Lodge for Mr. Treadway.

"What income do we get from the Lodge?"

That will vary from year to year depending on the amount of business done. From about 1935 to 1944 the leases on the Lodge were very complicated affairs. It was almost impossible to tell whether we came out ahead or behind in any year. In 1944 after much discussion it was pretty well agreed that the Club would be better off if the income were more certain and we took less of the chances inherent in the resort hotel business. A five year lease along these lines was drawn up. However when this lease expired it was not renewed. After more than a year's delay the present five year lease was granted, giving Mr. Treadway additional privileges, lowering the guaranteed rental by a third, and reintroducing the idea of the Club's accepting part of the risk of doing business. If all goes well we should receive a minimum of $2200 a year for the next four years.

"Do we have that money to spend on trails and shelters?"

No. All income from the Lodge goes to reduce the Club's indebtedness, and not to pay our operating expenses. Since 1944 more than half the money received from the Lodge lease has gone to pay just the interest on our debt. The debt still stands at almost $17,000. It is only common sense to pay off this indebtedness as soon as possible.

"How long will that take?"

Who knows? It looks as though it might be done in six or seven years if nothing happens.

"What could happen?"

On previous occasions when the income from the Lodge was temporarily greater than the expense we have been induced to make some capital addition such as a new building. It could happen again in spite of our best efforts. Also, if war or near-war conditions make the operation of the Lodge impossible or unprofitable would Mr. Treadway continue to pay the rental money and also keep up the property as required in the lease? Certainly when the lease runs out in 1954 we would have to make further concessions, under war time conditions, in order to keep the property rented. And we must keep it rented, because it would cost us about $2500 for insurance, taxes, and caretaker, to say nothing of upkeep, just to own the place, if we didn't rent it. We couldn't pay that so we would either have to sell it at the best price we could get under the circumstances, or ride further back on the treadmill of debt by further borrowing.

"But suppose nothing like that happened and we did finally pay off the debt, what then?"

We would still be in the Hotel business with all the worries and uncertainties. The Green Mountain Club was not organized to operate hotels but to maintain the Long Trail and its shelters. If it is desired that the Club should have a reliable source of income, we should invest our capital in United States Bonds, and stop gambling in the Hotel business.

"How could we do that?"

From among those who believe the Long Trail Lodge is a good investment, it should not be difficult to set up a group of acceptable people to own and operate the property. We could turn over to them our title and in return they could set up a trust fund to be invested in Government bonds the income from which, but not the principal, would be available for Club use.

"Well, why don't we do that?"

Well, why don't we?

A CAMPING TRIP THROUGH THE CUMBERLANDS

As told by Robert Perkins and condensed by the editor.

(This trip was taken by Robert, Thelma, and David Perkins early in April, starting from their home in Cincinnati, Ohio.)

Leaving Cincinnati early Sunday morning we crossed the Ohio river and headed directly south through the bluegrass country of Kentucky.

The rolling country became more hilly as we approached the Cumberland. Our first night out was spent at Cumberland Falls State Park. The woods here were not too unlike Vermont; mixed hard and soft wood, but of the overgreens, the pines predominated. The Falls were 125 feet wide and had a drop of 65 feet. There is no bridge across the Cumberland at the Falls. The only means of crossing is by a one car, cable ferry. This was not in operation that day so we were not able to cross to the developed part of the Park. We had no trouble in finding a camping spot, however, and proceeded to set up the tent and get supper. We crawled into bed right after supper and almost immediately it started to rain.

Monday morning we crossed the Cumberland Mountains to the upper valley of the Tennessee River. It was in this section that we saw the "hill-billies". The little shacks in the gullies, the side hill farms, and the people themselves were surprisingly like those depicted in the funny papers.

Proceeding on to Knoxville and then to Gatlinburg we entered The Great Smoky Mountain National Park. There was frost that night but inside our tent we were merely cool, not cold.

The next morning we drove to the top of Newfound Gap at an elevation of 5000 feet. The view was completely a wilderness one, the only sign of civilization was the new highway winding up from either side. From the top of the Gap there is a road which follows the top of the ridge for about 7 miles and climbs another 1000 feet. As we got near the 6000 foot level the clouds were blowing across the ridge and all the trees were outlined in white frost. In-between clouds the sun shown on the trees making a pretty sight.

In the afternoon we visited Norris Dam, one of the early TVA projects, and then continued to Oak Ridge. The diffusion plant itself is still in a restricted area and cannot be seen but a lot of the associated activity is in plain sight and one can get a good idea of the size of this huge project. In the unrestricted area there is everything needed for a town a little larger than Burlington, Vt. There is a small museum of atomic energy with many interesting displays and exhibits but we did not have time here for more than a quick once over.

We spent Tuesday night in a Trailer Camp for Cumberland Mt. State Park has no accommodations for overnight camping.

I must put in a good word for the Tennessee State Parks. The four we visited were excellent. Many of them are quite large and it would be worth while to spend three or four days in some of them.

Wednesday night was spent at Mammoth Cave National Park. This Park is open all year'round and the hotel was doing a thriving business. We were the only campers. Next morning we took an hour and a half trip into the cave. There are 150 miles of explored passageways so we didn't quite see it all.

We left Mammoth Cave about noon and drove north, past Fort Knox, across the Ohio at Louisville, and across the corner of the State of Indiana to make five states. We were back in Cincinnati early Thursday evening.

Vol. 4 No. 6 Killington Section - Green Mountain Club June 1951

TRAIL CONDITIONS

With the exception of a two mile stretch ~~just~~ south of Killington, all our main trail has been "gone over" and the blazes painted. It is fit for use.

The section from the Lodge to Killington was worked on June 10th by Charlie Smith, Pete Perkins, Bradley Sanborn, Churchill Scott, Tony Fusco, and Crague Perkins. All blow-downs have been removed except for a few yards at one spot where it was found best to swing the trail around an especially bad mess.

Little damage was found for a mile south of Killington. Then comes the two mile stretch of unknown quality. Between this and Clement Shelter there is considerable sawing to do but the trail is well marked.

From the Clement Shelter to Clarendon Shelter there are only a few logs to be sawed. There was little storm damage and the trail is open. Some brushing out may be necessary.

From Clarendon Shelter to the Spring Lake Shelter the trail has been thoroughly worked. From there to the Gulf Road there is but one spot needing further attention.

For this time of year our trail is probably in average condition which is a good report considering the hurricane damage in other places.

GMC ANNUAL MEETING

Mr. Roy B. Woodelton of New York city was elected president of the Green Mountain Club at the annual meeting held June 2nd at the Long Trail Lodge. Other officers elected were John H. Vondell of Amherst, Mass., vice president; Earl A. Boyce of Proctor, Vt., treasurer; and W. M. Mitchell of Worcester, Mass., auditor.

Craigie S. Perkins was re-elected clerk and Miss Lulu M. Tye of Rutland was re-elected corresponding secretary.

About sixty members attended the meeting.

In the evening slides depicting the history of Vermont were shown by Mrs. Mortimer Proctor.

Following the showing of the slides a square dance was held. The calls were given by Ernest Anderson of the New York section.

Some of the out of state members stayed at the Lodge while others camped at Tucker.

New York, Worcester, Burlington, and Killington Section members hiked to Spring Lake Sunday morning to see our new Spring Lake Camp. The day was cloudy but that didn't dampen the spirits of the crowd. There was much jocular talk about scraping feet before entering the new camp. Excuses were made for not having the landscaping completed. No rose bushes etc.

KILLINGTON HIKE, MAY 20, 1951

by Carolyn McCloskey

Our hike started from Mel-don School, at about 9 A.M., when we set out up the road to Mendon mountain, turning off just after we crossed a concrete bridge and following a dirt road. We parked our cars and proceeded on foot up a dirt and gravel road for what seemed like several miles.

The day was hot and we stopped at an old lumber camp to get a drink of water. Since we had time, we investigated the inside of the camp, and discovered that the men had taken pictures from the covers of Sunday supplements and decorated the inside of the camp. Right in the middle of a bevy of lesser-known movie starlets was a large picture of Hopalong Cassidy.

After passing a second group of old buildings, we really started to climb. It was on the way up that we discovered a porcupine crossing the trail. He started to climb a tree and had gotten a good way up when we decided it would add spice to our meal to have a nice liver to cook. Mr. Perkins attended to the details of shaking the porcupine out of the tree and obtaining the liver.

It was around noon when we reached the shelter on Killington. So far the weather had been beautiful, but it was a little sultry and we expected rain. We ate our lunch and then proceeded to cook the porcupine liver. Fortunately for those who wanted to eat it there were only three who cared to try it. The rest watched us apprehensively.

Lunch gave us strength to proceed to the peak of Killington. Although this was almost straight up, it seemed the least difficult part of the trail. We had been told that the thing to do was to go up without looking back until we reached the very top, in order that we would fully appreciate the view.

We could see what seemed to be the whole state when we reached the top of the mountain. Some of our members more familiar with the mountains pointed out Mansfield and Camel's Hump. The day was evidently not clear enough so that we could see Lake Champlain, which was too bad. We sat around on top, drinking in the breath-taking view and talking, until it started to sprinkle. The contrast of the hot weather down on the first part of the trail and the coolness of the top was striking, and, I think, appreciated.

It was with reluctance that we left the summit of Killington and went down to the civilized world of Rutland again. For that one brief afternoon on the top of Killington we had been above everything else and looking down on the world in which we ordinarily live.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Marjorie Allard has just received her B.S. in Home Economics from the University of Vt., and expects to teach this fall.

Danny Jennings is attending the Red Cross Aquatic School at Becket, Mass. He will receive training there for instructing in Swimming and Life Saving!

Bill Allard has completed his first year at U.V.M. At present he is working as a carpenter's helper. This training will come in handy on GMC shelters!

Marjory Perkins, a student at Emerson College, is at home. She will spend the summer instructing at the swimming pool.

QUEER WOODS NOISES

by Allegra Milano

Some of the old woodsmen, like Getty Page, think they have heard all the woods noises there are to hear, but even that boy suffered a mild shock, when walking in to Tucker Lodge on Sunday, May 13, about 4 PM. He had never heard a chant like "---so, of course we have many and various tests for determining liver function; many of these you technologists have performed and are familiar with---."

Well, that is the sound that startled poor Mr. Page from his pleasant reveries as he hiked the Long Trail. After a little investigation, he found that the group surrounding the speaker was the Vermont Society of Medical Technologists and included some 15 members of said group, all seated in front of Tucker Lodge and listening intently.

Dr. Wm. Pratt, a Rutland physician, was the speaker and his wife was a guest of the group.

The folks came from Barre, Burlington, and surrounding areas. They were very pleased with the facilities on the Long Trail and had many questions about the shelters and trail.

The meeting was very successful; the supper was devoured--very few morsels remaining and the coffee, made in the Killington Section's coffee pot was the best ever---grounds and all.

That was one meeting that even Susan didn't mind attending. The entire group thanks the Killington Section for use of the Lodge and they liked the idea so well that it will be repeated for future meetings and private parties. You never know what you will see or hear on the Long Trail.

Our coffee pot has been referred to as "Black Beauty". This should please some of the gang.

PAINT

by Susan

Now, that we are in Jersey, Allegra says, "Well, Susan, at least we got the trail painted, didn't we?" Huh! She means I got it done--jeps-- every night after work, on Saturdays - all the time- I'd have to drag her out on to the trail and practically do the painting for her. But she finally finished it, the day of the Killington hike.

(Don't know if that girl remembers - she is in the clouds somewhere now- but there is a piece of trail just south of Cooper that has not been painted- someone will get lost there).

Anyhow we met lots of different creatures while painting and we had never been on some parts of the trail. When we saw that thing with the funny face 'coon' - they call it-- Allegra said, "How come we hadn't been on this piece of trail before -- it is beautiful." How can I make her get out- she is so lazy! Trail is pretty, down below Clement tho-- try it sometime. Water is cool on the feet too.

So now we are in the painting business. Allegra calls it 'Art' and says she always wanted to be an artist and guesses this is it. Any corrections about our paint job, or suggestions can be sent to Mrs. Frank Milano, 63 Washington Place, Teaneck, N.J.

But- maybe you had better send them to MR. Frank Milano (he's the something new that had been added) cuz I hear tell that he's the boss now!

Keep in mind the dates of Aug. 25th and 26th for the INTERSECTIONAL. Let's make it a big event again this year.

It will be held in Mendon. More details will be forthcoming in the July and August issues of SMOKE & BLAZES.

COMING EVENTS

by

Charlotte Rutkowski

TIME - Sunday, June 17th

PLACE - Camel's Hump

We've seen it from afar and now is our opportunity to really go up Camel's Hump. Many nice trails leading over this mountain ought to make a very enjoyable hike. As it is a fairly long drive to the starting point and we would like to be on the trail by 11:30, we plan to leave the Meldon School at 8:30. How about getting up early and joining us? Here's to a good day!

TIME - Saturday, June 30th

PLACE - Mt. Carmel

See Vermont the GMC way!

The summit of Mt. Carmel is about a two mile hike from where you park your car. You won't be disappointed when you get there either, because the view is excellent! There is a shelter on the way where we can stop and have an early supper.

TIME - Sunday, July 15th

PLACE - Lake Placid

Remember the swell time we had on the hike to Lake Placid last year? One of the largest groups on any one hike enjoyed a day of swimming, boating, and hiking. Fun for everyone!! You shouldn't miss this one.

OUR BEST WISHES TO -

Janet Perkins and John Martin who were married on June 9th. Jan and Jack have hiked with us in the past and we shall look forward to having them with us again whenever they are in this locality.

ALSO TO -

Alleggra Chapman and Frank Molano who were married recently. We hope that Alleggra will still be able to find blazes to paint and that 'Susan' won't discover that 'three is a crowd'.

WHO BUILT THE NEW SHELTER?

Who built the new shelter?

"I", said Ralph Congdon.
"The spot where it stands
Is part of my lands.
I hope there's no wrong done!
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"I", said Gale Spaulding.
"I got the permission
And chose the position,
Then an arm chair I've lolled in.
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"I did", said Pearl.
"I carried in boards
There must have been cords!
Pretty good for a girl.
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"I did", said Fred.
"I sweated and toiled
Until my blood boiled.
I thought I was dead.

(con't. on next page)

Who built the new shelter?

"I", said Maude Canty.
"The men like to eat
So I gave them a treat.
Mince pies were my ante.
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"It was I, Billy Allard.
I carried each rafter,
And guess what came after!
Pork chops and more salad.
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"Why, I did", said Vera.
"Just move over, Bub.
I rustled the grub.
I win the tiara.
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"I did", said Harold.
"I gave the instructions.
Without my deductions
The plan was imperilled.
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"I did", said Eleanor.
"I meant nothing vicious.
If a girl is ambitious
There's simply no quellin' her.
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"I", said Craigie Perkins.
"I've argued all comers,
Both winters and summers
Infesting the workin's.
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"I, fragile Miss Chapman
Have wielded a hammer
And added the glamour.
So stand up and clap, man.
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"I, Ray Catozzi.
When the others were dizzy
On the roof I was busy!"
(The question is, was he?)
"I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"I did", said Mary.
"I washed the kettles
They used for their vituals.
And dirty! Yes, very.
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"I", said Walt Hakins.
"Why that was a cinch.
I'd build two in a pinch
If they'd furnish the makin's.
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"I did", said Ruth.
"I think it's a shame
I can't write my name
On the side walls, for sooth!
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"I did", said Tony.
"I built the bunk
And all of that junk.
All these guys are phoney!
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"I did! My name's Scott.
From my discipline stern
The boldest soon learn
That I'm boss of the lot.
I built the new shelter."

Who built the new shelter?

"We did", said the rest.
"We're all on the list.
It wouldn't exist
If we couldn't say just
WE built the new shelter."

CAMEL'S HUMP
by
Maxine Newhall

The trip to Camel's Hump, June 19, was a pleasant one, in spite of threatening weather early in the morning. Nineteen people and one dog, packed in five cars, left the Meldon School almost on schedule; and we reached North Duxbury by eleven o'clock.

The cars were left at the start of the Forestry Trail, where the first of many excellent signs showed a three mile hike to the summit. This first part of the trail went up over a shoulder of the mountain at an easy grade, through cool shady woods - which unfortunately did nothing to discourage the flies. After a little, however, we came to a branch trail, where another of those signs announced that while we were still less than half way to the top, Montclair Glen Lodge was a mile and a bit to the south. Since it was already past noon, the famished advance guard took a vote, and we all went to the Lodge for lunch before climbing to the top.

The Lodge is a pretty little closed cabin, with a pot-bellied stove, and it seemed especially nice that day ...with fresh boughs on all the bunks! The weather was very much in our favor. While we were hiking, it was overcast and cool, yet when we were sitting in and around the Lodge, the sun came out bright and warm.

After dealing with the food in a business-like way, we started up the mountain from the south. Close to Montclair Glen, the trail goes up over a bare rocky cliff, and along a ridge to the foot of the main peak. This cliff and ridge was for many of us the : - nicest part of the whole trip, since it rises in steps, and just when your wind is utterly done, levels off and gives you a view to take your mind off your troubles.

The main peak, looming at the end of the ridge, looked impossibly huge and steep; and the trail went straight up, with only a zig here and a zag there to ease the pace. It seemed a long steep climb through trees, then scrub, and finally over bare ledge to the post that marks the highest hummock on the very top. In spite of the overcast and a sudden spate of fog, we could see range after range of wooded hills rolling away in all directions...sloping off to the west into Lake Champlain, and beyond it surging higher than ever.

Coming down the Forestry Trail, we were late enough to think about getting back to the cars before dark, with a long ride home. Scant attention was paid to the thrush, singing his Angelus, and that special scent and sight of woods around sunset. That's just ordinary Green Mountain detail.

As the man said about the strawberries, doubtless God could have made better mountains ...but doubtless he never did.

SPRING LAKE CAMP - JUNE 3, 1951

by
Roy Buchanan

This trip was to start from the usual meeting place the Mel-don School at 9:30 A.M. We north country foreigners were still groggy from the stirring events of the GMC Annual Meeting so it was no wonder that we were staggering, less than half way down the mountain at the appointed time. Apparently our Rutland hosts expected us to be late, or else they are naturally polite, or both, for they calmed our agitation with soothing words and urged us to leave our low slung Hudson and ride in the Perkins car. No doubt they remembered from last year how the Hudson blocked the road as it stalled on every hill and how it scraped off the middle of the road for much of the way. Of course we argued against smooching a ride like that but were careful not to say enough to lose it. And so we arrived at the camp's parking lot without getting lost and with most of what we needed back in the car in Rutland.

There was a good crowd already at the camp when we arrived and more to come who had elected to hike and not ride. It was a surprise to find the camp nearly done, even though Smoke & Blazes has told how well the building has progressed. However, someone should stabilize the points of the compass there. The Rutland-ites consistently point southwest and claim that it is north.

The Valiquette stove was working well and its heat was welcome, though 35 people seem to be too many to warm with a 35¢ stove, even though it is equipped with a built in poker. That figures at 1¢ per person and some of them barelegged at that.

The coiled pipe anchors that hold the camp on an even keel no matter how the winds blow or how badly the points of the compass shift, are decidedly interesting. I doubt whether the building can fall again unless it tears off the whole hill top.

This day the clean coffee pot gang was in power so that it was a wonder that the coffee boiled at all (I'm a dirty pot man myself.) I suppose that the cheap stove heat added to that generated in the argument between the cold water factions and the boiling water advocates was responsible for the speedy boiling ---and so coffee was served. As usual it was wonderful, no matter how it was made.

As soon as the coffee aroma spread over the landscape, the hikers (mostly from Worcester) appeared over the trail from Buffum. The stove even cooked their lunch wrapped in foil and laid on top. That stove can do anything!

The day was cloudy with no very good views but after lunch it cleared a little - enough to put north back where it belongs, to allow glimpses down toward the airport, and to improve the view of Spring Lake. After inspecting the wonderful wood supply, the toilet location and the porky gnawing it was time to start for home.

We came back to Rutland by way of Route 103A, with a call on Mr. and Mrs. W.V. Stork at the Trail crossing. The Hudson was waiting patiently, dragging no closer to the pavement and full of the things we had needed.

And so endeth the trip to Spring Lake.

(We regret that since the June issue came out a couple of days early, in order to announce the Camel's Hump trip this report from Prof. Buchanan did not arrive in time to be included. We think you will enjoy it just as much now, and we're NOT sorry we asked him to write it! Ed.)

A STRAWBERRY HIKE TO SPRING LAKE

by Orilla Allard

An urge to eat shortcake made from wild strawberries took Eleanor Walker, Mary Jennings, Vera Perkins, Pearl Nichols, Thelma Valiquette, and me to Spring Lake on June 25th. It was a perfect summer day--Vera, Mary and I left at 2:30 P.M. to pick the berries and start supper. Everyone had grave doubts that we would even find berries (Vera brought berries from her garden, just in case) - Vera brought a small portable oven to cook the shortcake in.

It was my first trip to Spring Lake-- The view just fairly took my breath away-- and I marveled at the grand job done on the new shelter by the Killington Section members. The porkies had visited the shelter and had spread things around a bit. Incidentally, we saw the biggest "porkie" that we had ever seen-- -- Vera thought it was a goat !

I'm happy to tell you that we found lots of wild strawberries, and we got right to work on them. We were nearly finished picking and hulling the berries when Mary J. looked up with the most woe-begone look on her face, and said, "I forgot the Bisquick!" (Yes, Craigie, we had a list-- we just forgot to check it !) After much discussion, we decided to hike down toward the lake in search of the Bisquick. We ended up at the Sarcia place where Mrs. Sarcia very graciously gave us the makings of shortcake. It was such a lovely day we enjoyed the long walk down and back.

We got back to the shelter in plenty of time to start a roaring fire in the Valiquette camp stove. When the other three girls arrived supper was ready - even the lovely big shortcake that baked beautifully in the little oven. After supper we 3 had time to pick more berries to bring home for breakfast. We all had such a good time and the berries were such a treat that we decided to come again when other kinds of berries were ripe.

Just as a suggestion - how about a yearly Strawberry Festival Hike for the G.M.C. ?

COMING EVENTS

TIME - Saturday, July 28th
Place- Elfin Lake & White Rocks

The swimming season is right at its peak at this time of year and what could be nicer than a swim at Elfin and a picnic supper at White Rocks !

This is really one for the whole family from Grandpop down to little Junior.

If you can't make it down to Lake Elfin in the afternoon, we'll see you later at White Rocks for supper.

TIME - Sunday August 12th
PLACE - Hapgood Pond

This is one of our nicest Green Mt. National Forest Parks. Swimming, camping, picnicking, and nature trails - sounds wonderful doesn't it ? Bring your week-end guests along, they'll enjoy it too.

FROM A LIFE MEMBER-AT-LARGE

The following letter received by Miss Tye shortly after the Annual Meeting shows an active interest in the Long Trail and a true GMC spirit. The suggestions are worth thinking about.

Vt. State Hospital
Waterbury, Vt. or Arlington, Vt.

The Green Mountain Club
Rutland, Vermont.

Enclosed is a small contribution toward upkeep of trails. If I were a young man instead of an elderly woman, I should count it a privilege to take a more active part in the work of keeping the trails open.

I am actually doing what I can to keep some of the picnic places tidy, but can not do enough so that it would ever be noticed. Frequently during the summer I have occasion to drive across the Trail and habitually try to make my crossing at a suitable time for my solitary picnic lunches. At whatever crossing I find plenty of evidence that other motorists have been using the spot as a picnic ground, and I always leave the place a little cleaner than I find it. Quite recently I have equipped my car with strong paper bags and a pair of kitchen tongs, so that my time can be used to better advantage.

The following suggestions might better have been offered at the meeting last week, but did not occur to me until later. I should like to see receptacles for waste placed at some of the crossings used for picnic grounds; and I think it would encourage motorists to use them if someone who is skillful at rhyming would compose a few facetious little couplets to be printed on waterproof material and attached to nearby trees. A serious request to deposit waste is usually disregarded, but some people might respond better to a playful suggestion.

Grace H. Kent.

Dr. Kent retired from her practice in Massachusetts and came to Arlington, Vt., to make her home. She is currently engaged in some research which she has long wanted to do and is carrying out this project at the State Hospital in Waterbury, Vt.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Jimmy White is working for the U.S. Forest Service again this summer doing trail clearing on the Long Trail in the National Forest.

Marjorie Allard has accepted a position as Home Economics teacher at the West Rutland High School for the next school year. We hope she will not be too busy to hike with us sometimes.

Bob, Thelma, and David Perkins are at home for a vacation before going to Ann Arbor, Michigan, where Bob will be doing research work during the coming year. They expect to leave about the last of July.

Mary Jennings has returned from Wellesley, Mass., where she spent a week attending the Red Cross Home Nursing Instructor's Training Institute held there. Mary is now an accredited Trainer of Home Nursing Instructors.

MT. CARMEL TRIP

This was one of the rare occasions when a hike was completely rained out. Three carloads of optimists drove as far as Mountain Top in the hope that it would clear but finally had to concede it was not 'just a shower'.

IMPORTANT

INTERSECTIONAL OUTING

The plans for the 1951 GMC Intersectional to be held at the Perkins Camp Saturday and Sunday, August 25 and 26 have been completed.

The following Committee Chairmen have been named:

Reception	-	C. Perkins
Wood	-	P. Perkins
Coffee	-	C. Scott
Hikes	-	C. Rutkowski
Camp Fire	-	J. Green
Tenting	-	H. Valiquette

Craigie and Mary Perkins have said that they will be in Camp Friday, August 24, to welcome any early arrivals. A few tents will be available for those who need them.

Jim Green has offered to take charge of the campfire program Saturday evening. After last year's enjoyable time everyone can look forward to more fun this year.

In addition to the old stand-by hikes of Killington, Pico, Deer's Leap, Tucker and Noyes Pond, two new hikes have been listed for Sunday. They are White Rocks and Bird Mt. which some people may enjoy climbing.

Let's have the Killington Section get behind this Intersectional and make it a big success and be well represented there both Saturday and Sunday.

Churchill Scott, Chairman.

KILLINGTON WORK PARTY PLANS

by
Churchill Scott

Sunday Aug. 19th has been chosen by the Trails and Shelters committee as a day to work on Cooper Lodge and the Bucklin Trail and the Long Trail south to Consultation Point.

Cooper Lodge needs quite a bit of work. The roof leaks a great deal, half a dozen lights of glass must be replaced, some sash repaired and the wood creosoted.

There are about a dozen blow-downs to be cut out of the Bucklin Trail and an unknown amount of hurricane damage south of Killington. When that piece of Trail is done the Killington section of Trail will be completely free of blow-downs.

All of that work cut out for us means that everyone who is able should try to come and give us a hand. The group will meet at Heldon School at 8 A.M. Sunday, August 19th. Dinner will be served by the club, so make your reservations with C. Scott, Tel. 2698 or C. Perkins, Tel. 907-N.

NEW SCHEDULES OUT

Enclosed with this issue of Smoke and Blazes are copies of the fall schedule of hikes and outings. As usual we will try to have details announced in the Herald previous to each hike. Mark the hike dates on your calendar and plan to join us.

THE LAKE PLEIAD TRIP

by Bill Allard

Although the weatherman provided a perfect day for the Lake Pleiad hike the usual big crowd didn't appear even though we waited until quarter past ten, in the hope that more would come. However there was quality if not quantity in the two cars that left for Middlebury Gap.

At about eleven-thirty we arrived at the top of the Gap and started the short walk into the lake. Last Fall's windstorm blew down hundreds of trees but some hardworking trail clearers have made the trail passable again. The shelter, a few hundred feet from the lake, remains in good condition. Someone was staying in it and it was very neat and clean.

The lake looked inviting and it wasn't long before we were in the water. The water was just right except for the bloodsuckers which were a mental hazard to some of us. Grandson, David, proved himself a true Perkins by trying to eat one. There was a small boat and during the course of the day nearly everyone made an excursion around the lake. While we were swimming, our party was reinforced by the arrival of the Fields.

By this time the coffee was done and so we had lunch. The coffee was the usual GMC brand but we were able to pour it this time. Some of the heartier members even drank some.

After lunch we decided to inspect the new Middlebury Outing Club camp which overlooks the lake. Still in our bathing suits we started out. Naturally the trail was full of nettles and the black flies were out. When we finally found the camp however it was well worth the trouble. It is a well built log cabin with a porch and a splendid view of the lake and the Gap. It isn't finished inside as yet but promises to be comfortable in winter or summer. There was a note of welcome inviting hikers to use the camp and keep it clean.

After we had watched the rest of the party swimming below us, we felt the heat even more and went down to join them. Then it was time to go home even though we hated to leave. I hope more of us are able to go another time because it is a trip no one should miss.

HAPGOOD POND OUTING

Fifteen hikers took a day off from their usual form of recreation to enjoy a picnic and swim at Hapgood Pond, Sunday, August 12th.

The sun refused to co-operate with our plans for the third time that Hapgood has been on our schedule. This time however, we were not rained out and enjoyed a full day of activities.

The first and what seemed to be the most important thing to do was to eat. Two tables were found near a fireplace and it wasn't long before food was spread out, coffee water boiling and everyone ready to eat.

The next event for the day was an unplanned soft ball game. Captained by our Outing Chairman, Charlotte, some of our GMCers got into the game. It was interesting to watch and perhaps as rugged to participate in as a mountain climb.

The water in the Pond was as cold as ice but invigorating and most of our crowd got in, if even for only a dip. Then there were the demonstrations of flexed muscles and acrobatic stunts that proved to be amusing.

Short walks were also taken around the Pond to investigate the surroundings. Three members of our party (we learned later) went back to the tables to eat again.

SNAGS ON THE TRAIL

Snags on the trail

No matter which way I go
Face me at dawn
And loom in the twilight glow.

Camped on the trail

I'm trying to sleep in vain
Visions of snags
Are worse than bugs or rain.

Longing for rest

I'm sighing, for now it seems
Snags on the trail
Forever will haunt my dreams.

Mr. Smith is working with the Federal Forest Service this summer. He very obligingly reports to Miss Tye at the GMC office the condition of the trail where he is working. In this way she is kept up to date and can pass the information on to the many hikers who write or call on her for information.

A LETTER FROM A LONG TRAIL HIKER

The following letter from
Mr. William Gray of Milton, Mass., tells of an interesting trip on
the Long Trail:-

I started out with two companions to spend a week on the Long Trail with the avowed purpose of getting some exercise, losing some weight, and seeing the Vermont mountains. We parked our car at the Long Trail Lodge and started off headed south one muggy Saturday morning.
The first obstacle of course was Pico Peak. By dint of much huff-ing and puffing we made Pico Shelter just under the approved time for that distance according to the Guide Book. The trail was remarkably clear and after a short rest we moved on towards Killington and Cooper Lodge which we made in due time (although well over the time listed in the Guide Book as "average"). At Cooper Lodge we found company in the presence of a man and his son together with their dog "Nipper" and after a meal of hot stew out of a can, we started to bed down for the night. And what a night it was. It started to rain buckets at about 4 A.M. and due to a few leaks in the roof we were all up long before daybreak, but before the rain, came the usual quilled visitors. They came in through a broken frame of glass and you could hear their quills rattling as they made their leisurely way around the shelter.
Of course "Nipper" almost had a fit but aside from loss of sleep, no damage was done. It was still coming down in buckets and my two companions swore they wouldn't budge from the shelter until the rain let up. I tried to point out that they would get just as wet even if there was no rain because the trail would be damp (to put it mildly) for quite awhile after such a downpour, but

The best I could get out of them was that they would go back to the Long Trail Lodge, pick up the car and meet me three days hence at Little Rocky. So I started off by myself along the Trail towards Governor Clement Shelter.

I have a quarrel to pick with the guy who states in the GUIDE BOOK that it is $4\frac{1}{2}$ miles from Cooper Lodge to Governor Clement Shelter. It is much nearer 6 to my way of walking. However, it is all down hill and the Trail was very clear with no windfalls and although it was very wet and the sky very cloudy, the distance was covered by noon that day. I felt so good and the pack seemed so light (relatively speaking) that after a half hour rest, I started off towards Clarendon Shelter.

It was obvious that this part of the Trail had just been cleared and before too long it was clear that a crew was working that very day as I caught up with a group who were taking their Sunday in clearing the Trail of all windfalls and in general making the Trail the pleasure it is to be on. This working party were members of the Green Mountain Club headed by Mr. C. S. Perkins and Mr. Churchill Scott. I stopped and had a sandwich and a cup of coffee with them. Clarendon Shelter was eventually reached where I found that members of this crew had started a nice roaring fire for me and in no time at all I was drying off and enjoying a hot meal of stew again.

The next day I was off by 6 AM and soon at Clarendon Gorge which is a beautiful sight and a grand place for a swim. The GUIDE BOOK says that the Trail ascends steeply (all I can say is that you have to underline the word "steeply" many times) and "There are places where a fall might be danderous." If one fell at all in my opinion it not only would be dangerous, it would be fatal.

I personally think that the hike from Clarendon Shelter to Buffum Shelter is the hardest of the Trail that I traveled. There is no water to speak of and on a hot day it seems endless in climbing Button Hill. Now there is a delightful new shelter near Spring Lake where one can break the trip. Here at Spring Lake Shelter some kind person had left some eggs and a nosegay of daisies in water so I had some welcome hard boiled eggs for a change.

Buffum Shelter was reached and I was so hot and my feet were beginning to feel the unaccustomed activity that I spent the night there and was off the next morning early to make Little Rocky Pond. It was lucky that I got an early start as although the Trail was fine up to Greenwal Shelter, from there on there were many windfalls and I spent most of the day crawling around, over or under these obstacles. It was worth it however to go to Little Rocky and have a swim and a grand meal with no nocturnal visitors aside from mosquitoes. Little Rocky is a must in my opinion for all hikers.

The next morning I started off for Griffin Lake. My two friends showed up but had lost their enthusiasm for hiking and were going to spend a few nights with mutual friends in Manchester, so I staggered on, planning to meet them in Manchester two days hence. The walk from Little Rocky to Old Job was pleasant and enlivened by a new suspension bridge across Big Branch. About half way between Old Job and Griffin Lake a Forestry crew had set up camp and again I had a wonderful unexpected meal. I do want to state however that the Trail should be better marked especially around Griffin Lake as it is quite easy to lose your way. Griffin Shelter was reached and of all the Shelters where you need a friend in the night, I should imagine this was it. The porkys practically get in bed with you! Up early the next day to climb Peru Peak and Styles Peak (wonderful view but very steep) and before noon to climb down to Mad Tom Shelter. Then a long, hot climb over Bromley Mountain (Bromley is a very discouraging mountain as there are so many little ridges to it) to Bromley Lodge.

The next day I hiked in to Willis Ross Camp where I had another wonderful swim in Stratton Pond and ate up the last of my supplies. Then to Manchester the next day via Prospect Rock where I astounded the waitress in the first restaurant I came to by having four helpings of ham and eggs one right after the other.

I came off the Trail just in time as it started to pour but by judicious use of my thumb, I got a ride to Wallingford and my friend's house where I soaked for a good hour in a hot bath, ate everything I could lay my hands on and slept like a log for 12 hours. I ended up some 15 pounds lighter, four blisters that weren't bad and a wonderful sense of real accomplishment.

I recommend this for a real vacation with no telephones or other mundane distractions. A vacation should be a complete change and a trip on the Long Trail is that! All one thinks of at the time is how in the world one is going to get over that next mountain. If you are like me, you'd sell your soul for a glass of ice water but it definitely is worth it once it is done and one can have a grand time doing it. We all owe a tremendous vote of thanks to those who keep the Trail and the Shelters in such good condition and I am taking this means of thanking those grand people who do so by writing this.

Editor's note: We appreciate receiving this report from Mr. Gray and wish more hikers would write and tell us of their experiences.

WORK PARTIES

Since last reported to SMOKE & BLAZES there have been several short work parties and one long one.

On Saturday, July 21, Diane and George Conlon, Maxine and Carl Nowhall, and Craigie Perkins went into the Clement Shelter for an overnight. The shelter was in fine condition with a good wood supply. Toward morning a playful fisherman set off a fire cracker near by with the expected result. About daylight we had a hard shower proving that the roof was OK.

After breakfast Churchill Scott and Charlie Smith joined the party and all started south working the Trail. There were few blowdowns but some much needed clipping and mowing was done.

We had lunch beside Cold River and reached Clarendon Shelter about four o'clock. This Shelter was also found to be neat and clean. A good time was had and a lot of work done.

On another half day expedition some real creosote was applied to the Spring Lake Camp. The first applied turned out to be odorless and we suspect tasteless. The Camp was clean and in good condition except for two broken windows. Raspberries, blackberries and blueberries were all ripe in the surrounding pasture.

Just when everybody thought there wouldn't be any more riddles in SMOKE & BLAZES up pops this one.

What tree when small or fully grown
Is never found to stand alone?

This surely seems no more than fair,
There must be two if it's a pear.

COMING EVENTS
by
Charlotte Rutkowski

TIME - Saturday, Sept. 22nd
PLACE - Spectacle Pond

I've had many requests for this one. Excellent fishing, grand view, and many trails to hike on. Located outside of East Wallingford, this promises to be a hike enjoyed by all.

TIME - Sunday, October, 6th
PLACE - Bird's Eye -(Foliage)

It is hard to believe that the autumn season has crept upon us so quickly. There is something in every season that we look forward to and in the fall it's the foliage. Bird's Eye Mt. seemed to be the ideal hike to enjoy this, where the trees are plentiful and the leaves (we hope) in their grandest array of colors.

TIME - Sunday, October 14th
(overnight if desired)
PLACE - Big Bromley

Big Bromley is located about 9 miles east of Manchester.

The Long Trail emerges into the upper part of the ski development and runs along a few rods because of the view. The top of Bromley, however, is a stiff climb of 0.6 mile from here.

Those wishing to make it an overnight could plan to stay at Bromley Lodge. The nearest Catholic Church, St. Pauls, is in Manchester and the masses are at 6:30 ; 8:00 ; 10:00 and 11:00 o'clock. It is located on Seminary Avenue.

Many of us have looked forward to this hike for a long time - hope you were one of them.

THE CORN ROAST
by Shirley Morris

Fair week wasn't too much for 10 of our out-door enthusiasts. Meeting at Meldon at 2 P.M. Sunday, Sept. 9th we took off for the Rutland Fish and Game Club Picnic Area. The weather was certainly in our favor for a change, blue, sunny skies and real warm.

Arrived at the picnic area our party divided. Some went blackberrying and were fortunate in getting several quarts. Others, more ambitious, hiked to McLaughlin Falls. It was surprising how many of the trees had already changed color, and what a lovely sight they were against the sun!

Everyone was back at the picnic area about six o'clock and were glad to see Harold Valiquette who set to work and built a fire. Some roasted corn while others settled for hot dogs. After the usual around-the-supper-table visiting the party broke up in the early evening. So ended another swell outing.

KILLINGTON SECTION HOST TO INTERSECTIONAL OUTING AGAIN

by Larry Dean

The Killington Section has again played host to the Section members of the Green Mountain Club at another Intersectional Outing at the Perkins Camp in Mendon. Though I "hear tell" the event was not as well attended as the outing of last year, I am sure what was lacking in numbers was made up for by the spirit of comradeship experienced by the forty odd participants.

The weather followed the pattern of the summer, drizzle and more drizzle with a day or so of pleasant sunshine a month thrown in. We got drizzled on the Saturday afternoon of our arrival but luckily the canvas was up to shelter us from the rain. Harold Valiquette of the Killington Sec. provided his big tents to supplement the smaller tents of the individuals and they came in very handy.

The evening chow was cooked out either in the rain or under the cover of Harold's tents. Ike Bartlett of Manchester and Mrs. Bartlett prepared a half bushel, or it might have been a peck of spuds and fried 'em up "home fry style" for the group--- Yum-- I can just taste them now as I hammer this story out 'cause I can eat fried potatoes till the porkies shed their quills.

The only casualty of the rain was Dean and his pocket-sized tent. During a lull in the storm he found he had failed to button up the door before the rain drenched the site. The air mattress with the sleeping bag on top was found floating like a raft on Little Rocky Pond but being a stamp sized mattress, the sides of the bag were dunking in the water. Bedding and mattress made a fast trip to the back of "Pinkies" camp house kitchen stove for drying and

Jim Green shoved over to give room for another sleeper in his tent that night.

The rain drops came down too fast and the grass got too moist for comfortable sitting around an outdoor campfire as was originally planned. Instead, we all packed into the camp house living room for the evening program. Jim asked for sectional reports of activities and Sterling, Burlington, Manchester, Killington, Bennington, and Worcester sections responded. After the reports Harold Valiquette got everybody, or nearly everybody, all snarled up with one of his pencils and a little hunk of twine. Some of us never did get untangled from the gadget.

Sunday dawned fair and after breakfast was made and washed down with coffee, all were rearing to hit off on hikes.

The main group headed up the Blue Ridge trail and in to the G.M.C. Tucker Lodge where others of the group were awaiting them. The hikers broke open their pack lunches while they rested up at the lodge and they discussed the pros and cons of the Valiquette stove. Roy and Harold sparked the stove debate.

After all had chewed food and "fat" for a spell they took to the trails again. The main group filed up over the trail around back of "Deers Leap" to the junction of the Appalachian Trail to the east. At the junction the group split into parties, one to go to the Long Trail Lodge and the second to tag Roy down to Gifford Woods State Park along a piece of Appalachian trail. The purpose of this trip was to check the amount of wind damage done along the trail. Jim lugged along his axe to do a little clipping along the way. Right in the thick of his chopping, the head of his axe took off for parts unknown. If the head did not whang into something it is still on the wing born by the momentum of Jim's powerful swing.

Late Sunday afternoon the groups returned to the campsite to strike tents, pack up and make their homeward departure after expressing their appreciation for the privilege of spending their week-end as guests of the Killington Section.

It seems to me that this annual Intersectional camp-out of the Club should be continued as a part of the Annual Intersectional Outing. To make the event a successful part of the Club's program each section will have to sell the idea to its own section members. We have to make the doubters realize that we who do go have a lot of fun and fine fellowship.

AROUND THE GASPE

by

Helen B. Field

As we packed the car in the pouring rain (in our bathing suits) it was hard to realize that vacation-time was here at last after weeks of planning. We had many eventful days ahead of us, and I will try to describe a few things about them.

Wild life was much in evidence, all along the way, and the longer we stayed in one place, the more we were likely to see. On Mt. Dessert Island, a perky red squirrel was eating the leftovers of a lobster dinner. Further north, along a desolate stretch of road, a baby fawn was curiously examining the traffic. A doe darted in front of us just over the border, and further along, two weasels entertained us all one morning with their antics. A porcupine spent the night with us, but didn't get much of a welcome. There were many tracks of other bigger animals, but we heeded the advice of the warden and stayed out of the woods. The birds were very pretty too, and there were all kinds. We liked the ones at Bonaventure Island best. Here was a sanctuary of steep rocky cliffs, and each bird seemed to find a little cubby-hole to fit him.

The folks themselves, although of several nationalities, were all alike in their friendliness. They shared our camp-fire at night. They told us many tales and listened to ours. They offered us help in every way and urged us to stay as long as we could.

We saw many lovely sights, such as the northern lights in all their glory, ruddy-colored waves beating against gray cliffs in the sunlight, little fishing villages nestled in the hills, laughing children with their dog-wagons, and proud Indian chiefs selling their multi-colored baskets. There were also great ships bringing their cargo in from the sea, and Perce Rock, jutting out of the quiet water like a sentinel, guarding the land.

By camping out in whatever spot took our fancy, we feel that we became better acquainted with Canada as it really is than most tourists who were limited to hotels and cabins. We strongly recommend this method of travel to those of you who really want to see the country.

LONG TRAIL STORY IN VERMONT LIFE

Congratulations go to Frances Green of the Worcester Section for her Long Trail story "Over The Hill From the Tamarack Tree" published in the Fall issue of VERMONT LIFE.

The article tells about the Stratton Mountain area so beautifully that it stirs up longings to repeat a visit to one of the most delightful spots on the Long Trail.

A CAMPING TRIP

by Diana Conlon

George and I have just returned from a 10-day camping trip. We feel wonderful and raring to go again but our dog, Punch, is out cold - haven't been able to get him up all day. He is exhausted from playing watchdog at night and growling defiance from the safety of our tent.

We chose the "Rainy Season" for our trip - Fair week! Undaunted, we started out on a dull Saturday afternoon after a torrential rain. However we were rewarded for our courage. By late afternoon the sun came out and the countryside was brilliantly clear. We headed north on Rte. 107 and 110 and found it very interesting, small towns and lovely hills and valleys.

On reaching St. Johnsbury we changed our plans as it was such a clear day and decided on driving up Burke Mt. in Darling Forest. It's a terrific straight up climb in low gear all the way but worth it, if, and when, you reach the top. We rented a lean-to near the top as the tenting area was only 1/3 of the way up. We spent a wonderful hour before dinner viewing the breathtaking panorama from the tower. Saw Lake Willoughby, Camel's Hump, Mt. Washington, and even Pico, a small silhouette on the horizon. After dark we climbed the tower again and watched the lights sparkling in the valley below. On top of the world, close to the stars and listening to the wind was a soul inspiring experience.

Next day dawned dull and we continued on to Maidstone, arriving Sunday afternoon. Although not a regular tenting area the caretaker showed us several lovely spots to camp, which unfortunately we could not make use of as we did not have a stove and 4 had to rely on a fireplace for cooking (and by this time for warmth also). So we set up our tent beside a regular picnic area as we were the only souls at Maidstone.

Our first night was interrupted by blood curdling growls and snarls. It was wild country and my hair stood on end. No one dared look out. However, shortly after came the reassuring bark of a dog. The caretaker's dog and a coon had interrupted one another's night foraging in the picnic garbage pail.

The next couple of days were busily spent in keeping warm and dry, and in preparation of meals and dishwashing. Then came two sunny days so we scurried around, picked blackberries and even went swimming. The air was cold but the water warm. Maidstone is a wonderful bathing spot - sandy beach and clear, sparkling water.

And then rain again! Even rained too hard to pack up and go home. Instead we moved into the picnic shelter, barricaded ourselves in with blankets over tables and kept a roaring fire going. The caretaker, Mr. Austin, and his wife by this time had taken pity on us and invited us up to their home, evenings, to keep warm and dry and Mrs. Austin bolstered our spirits wonderfully with delicious home-made pies, bread, and doughnuts.

The week-end arrived in a blaze of sunshine so we moved on down to Groton State Park and spent the remaining two days of our vacation, soaking up the sunshine and drying out our tent, equipment, and spirits.

Came home happy, and believe it or not, with sunburns!

Note:

1. A battery radio was wonderful company.
2. Never go camping in the autumn without a hot water bottle!

RUMMAGE SALE NOV. 2

The date for our annual Rummage Sale has been set for Friday, November 2nd.

The place is The Neighborhood Rooms of the Marble Savings Bank.

Your committee members who will work on this sale are Vera, Mary and Craigie Perkins. More help is needed so if you would like to assist please call 907 M and offer your help to the Com.

Of course this sale can not be a success unless we receive contributions of salable goods, so bring in those boxes of odds and ends that you have been saving for the Green Mountain Club Rummage Sale. Any time after 9 o'clock Thursday morning, the day before the sale, we shall be on hand to receive you at the Neighborhood rooms.

From past experience we have found that almost anything that is usable sells. Household goods as well as clothing are in demand. We are usually short of big sizes in clothing so if you know of some one who would like to dispose of large size dresses etc. tell them about our sale.

NEW PHOTOGRAPHY CHAIRMAN

Mrs. Janice Catozzi has accepted the Photography Chairmanship. Her plans will be reported in the next issue of SMOKE & BLAZES.

FUTURE HIKES

by

Charlotte Ruthkowski

KILLINGTON SECTION END TO END HIKES

Sunday - Oct. 28- Nov. 11 & 25

At one time or another you have probably been on our section of the Trail here and there. On the above mentioned Sundays we will hike every bit of it.

On October 28th we will start at Sherburne Pass and hike as far as we care to. The next two hikes, Nov. 11th and Nov. 25th, will be a continuation of the previous one, ending at the Wallingford- East Wallingford Road, a distance of approximately twenty-two miles.

This is it hikers ! !

For more details about the October 28th, November 11th and November 25th Killington Section End to End Hikes watch for further information in the "Rutland Herald".

After hiking the entire Killington Section trails, perhaps it will be an incentive to go on and do the complete Long Trail, a distance of some 260 miles. For this achievement an award of a copy of a beautiful etching of the State of Vt. is given by the GMC.

SPECTACLE POND

by Janet Martin

The hike to Spectacle, Wallingford, or Big Pond (take your pick) was a huge success as far as the 23 people and one dog who attended were concerned. The hike started from the Kent farm, a truly beautiful spot. Although the road from East Wallingford is only maintained as far as this farmhouse, it goes on through beautiful forest land toward the Lake. As we approached the Lake the beauty was marred by blowdowns among the spruces from last Fall's hurricane. Some of these we went under or through but most of them had to be skirted so that our path was rather zig-zag. However we eventually reached the Lake to find the wind blowing strongly in our faces and white caps on the water.

We all had a pleasant supper on the lake shore and returned to the farm and our cars just as dusk fell. Thus ended another G.M.C. trip.

(We learned later that two members attempting to join us had approached the lake from the west and never did succeed in connecting with us. We understand they had a pleasant outing on their own nevertheless. - Ed.)

THE BIRD MT. HIKE

by
Barbara Allard

In spite of the dark, dreary day, nine Green Mountain Club members showed up at Meldon. "Pinky" took all these girls: Charlotte Rutkowski, Shirley Morris, Janet Martin, Susie Smith, Olive Smith, Therese Gregory, Martha Hakens and me.

We left Meldon in three cars. When we arrived at the place where we were to park our cars there was a slight rain and a strong wind. Vera Perkins came but she had a cold and decided to go home. Then we started hiking. The trail was good and we lost it. Later we found it again. We scared up two partridges and saw two deer, (a buck and a doe).

It was really raining when we got to our eating place so "Pinky" had brought along a piece of canvas and we put it up between a tree and a rock. We stood under it to eat. Some of the girls went to the top. When they came back they said that it was very windy.

The spring was full of leaves so "Pinky" dug it out. We had to wait till it settled before we could get any water. We started back a little before 3 O'clock. It was a dripping party that came back to the cars, but everyone had fun.

BROMLEY MOUNTAIN

It was a perfect day for a hike the Sunday eleven of us set out for Bromley. The tapestry of foliage was beginning to be a little worn but there was still enough of it to be worth while.

Four boys from the Harvard Outing Club were at the Lodge when our group arrived. They had spent the night there and were in the process of cleaning camp before leaving it. They sure did a good job for on returning to the Lodge after our climb, we found everything spic and span. It's a pleasure to have hikers use our trails and shelters especially when they leave them in such good condition.

While we were on top, Fred, Helen and Tommy Field visited the Lodge and left a note saying our coffee water was ready and on the fire. This was also appreciated.

A few major repairs are needed to put Bromley in good condition. Some new roof and floor boards are needed, about four windows could use glass and the outside chimney needs repointing.

The trail was in excellent condition. Snow was found on the top of the Mt. It was Oct. 14.

GMC LOSES A GOOD FRIEND

It was with a great sense of shock and loss that we read of the death of Prof. Louis Puffer on October 11th.

Prof. Puffer was a familiar figure at GMC Annual Meetings as a member of the Board of Trustees and as a past president of the parent club. He was also well known to all GMC members as the Editor of The Long Trail News.

A real hiking enthusiast, Prof. Puffer was one of a group of men whose vision and hard work created The Long Trail. He will be greatly missed and long remembered.

GMC SLIDES SHOWN AGAIN

At the request of the Assembly Program committee, Fred Field showed the GMC slides at a recent Assembly at the State Teacher's College at Castleton.

During the lunch hour following Fred had an opportunity to talk informally with many of the students. Considerable interest in hiking and The Trail was shown.

INTRODUCING OUR CITY COUSIN TO THE TRAIL

by
Danny Jennings

Since we had to go to Burlington and with our young cousin from Boston visiting us, in order to fulfill his long-awaited wish--to hike on the Long Trail--we decided to kill two birds with one stone and renew our pleasant acquaintance with Mt. Mansfield.

Although we skeptically eyed my cousin's new purchase and prize possession--a 1939 Plymouth--we nonetheless hastened to load it with enough food, camp equipment and clothes until it looked as though we were setting out for a winter in Alaska instead of one night in Smuggler's Notch. Our gay party included Thelma Valiquette, Mother, my cousin, Phillip Lorris (no connection to the cigarette of the same name) and myself.

We enjoyed a picnic lunch at Ethan Allen Park in Burlington at noon, after which we made a short stop at St. Michael's College in Winooski Park. Continuing on our way we were thrilled by the beautiful Autumn foliage and were soon entering the State Park in Smuggler's Notch near Stowe. We were stopped at the first lean-to by a camper who had forgotten to include in his equipment those handy little articles--matches. Supplying his wants we learned to our horror that there were only two lean-tos in the Park and that both were occupied. (Later the caretaker informed us that three more are under construction due to popular demand.) Undaunted we selected a tent platform site, stating we wanted to sleep out under the stars anyway. However, I think we were each secretly considering the not too comfortable prospect of four people sleeping in the car in case of rain.

But the weather was in our favor and it was a beautiful night lighted by a full moon. In the evening a rousing Canasta game kept us occupied. Our fire was a good one and why one member thought it necessary to use a battery lantern when checking the fire's progress, I don't know!

Thelma and Mother spread their sleeping bags on the ground (near the car) while Phil and I chose the tent platform. Here is an interesting snatch of conversation overheard about 4:30 A.M., when Thelma awakened to find Mother had slid down into her sleeping bag. Envisioning a suffocated victim Thelma prodded and nudged until Mother came out: "What time is it?"

"Sh--go to sleep."

"But you woke me up!"

"Go to sleep."

"Is it nearly morning?"

"Shh--go to sleep."

"Well what time IS it?"

"Never mind, go to sleep."

(This may have gone on indefinitely, but I went to sleep.)

After attending Mass at the unique chalet-type Blessed Sacrament Chapel in Stowe and stowing away a big breakfast we packed our lunch and reassuring ourselves that we were good hikers but would do our hiking on top, we bought our tickets for the chair lift and without exertion ascended the mountain. The view was beautiful from the top and we hiked over to the Chin where we ate lunch. Armed with two boulders as souvenirs (which was not Phil's or my idea, you may be sure) we regretfully left Vermont's highest mountain late in the afternoon.

The following day Phil and I hiked in to Spring Lake from Clarendon. While crossing the GMC bridge (and I use the word loosely) over the Gorge, I could picture GMCers consoling my bereaved family with words something like, "Well he died on the Trail", or "Went down with his hiking boots on", and similar sayings. No doubt my fears lacked sufficient grounds and as long as the bridge wasn't lacking in the same material, I'll not complain. As a loyal club member, I expounded on "Operation Spring Lake", telling the story of the moving of the former Blue Triangle Shelter. We explored the Lake shore by following a path around to the two cottages on the opposite side of the Lake from the GMC shelter. The night was uneventful except for the visit of one mouse. Also there seemed to be some activity outside the camp--possibly porkies.

We believe our trips successful because we have a new Trail enthusiast--Cousin Phil is already busy mapping out plans for a hike next summer--and we'll be ready to join him.

REPRESENTATIVES FROM THE N.Y. SECTION VISIT VERMONT

We are always glad when members of the N.Y. Section have an opportunity to enjoy The Long Trail. We all appreciate the work which that Section does in maintaining a section of the Trail at such a distance from their headquarters.

In response to a request from us, Alfred Githens of the N.Y. Section sent us notes on their most recent trip - The N.Y. Section's Annual Labor Day Weekend on The Long Trail. From his notes we have tried to summarize some of the high points of the trip in the following article.

A party of 13, 8 men and 5 women, left Huntington Center on Saturday P.M. and hiked in to Montclair Glen Shelter, south of Camel's Hump. After supper they spent the evening singing around the campfire. As it was a clear, starry night and the shelter has bunks for only eight, five slept out under the stars. At dawn however - "Rain, and how! The shelter then held 13!"

Sunday the party climbed "The Hump" going over the top in about a 40 mile wind. Clouds and mist obscured the view and made it necessary to watch for blazes. Then on down to Gorham Lodge about which Mr. Githens says, "A beautiful spot if I ever saw one." Here 8 stayed over night, the other 5, as they had preferred to climb without packs, returned to Montclair Glen for the night. The group was met at Gorham by Prof. Buchanan.

Monday found the crowd hiking on down to Wiley still in the rain, fog, and clouds, with no views. After lunch at Wiley they left for New York by car about 3 P.M. arriving at 12:15 A.M.

These N.Y. people are real hikers. Mr. Githens concludes his notes with this - "Good fun anyway even with poor weather and pants soaked to the knees."

COMING EVENTS

by Charlotte Rutkowski

TIME - Sunday, Nov. 25th
PLACE - Clarendon Gorge - to Spring Lake - to Buffum
Shelter.

This is the last lap in the series of "end-to-end of the Killington Section" hikes. If you made the first two, don't miss out on this one. If you haven't been in on the series, this is still a good hike with a stop for lunch at our new Spring Lake Camp.

TIME - Saturday, Dec. 8th
PLACE - Beechwood.

An annual event at Beechwood, the covered dish supper is looked forward to each year by all members and friends.

In a relaxed atmosphere, this is a time of much reminiscing plus a variety of tasty foods!

At the end of the evening, you leave with the feeling of having spent an enjoyable few hours among congenial friends. (Remember, everyone brings something for the supper, so make your reservation by Saturday noon and get your assignment as to what to bring. It helps if you bring your own dishes too! Ed.)

NEW EDITOR OF LONG TRAIL NEWS

The Killington Section will be pleased to learn that one of our members, Mary Perkins, has been appointed as Editor of The Long Trail News.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PHOTOGRAPHY CHAIRMAN

by
Janis Catozzi

As much as we dislike being reminded of winter, it's nearly here, and that means Killington Section annual meeting time is around the corner. The Section's photo albums are to be on display as usual, but to bring them up to date it would be nice if everyone who has some extra snaps to spare of club activities this past year could get them to us as soon as possible so they could be arranged in the albums.

If you have no extra prints, we would like to borrow the negatives and get prints made. We promise to take the best of care of them and return them promptly. Send or bring your extra snaps and/or negatives to:

Janis Catozzi
103 Bellevue Ave., City.

We will have the annual photo contest again this year, and there will be a competent judge on hand to pick the winners in the black and white and color divisions. To be eligible pictures should have been taken on the Trail or on GMC outings during the current year. If you haven't a winner in your collection, remember, there's still time left to shoot one. So get that camera out, and good shooting!

RUMMAGE SALE NETS $106

We wish to say "THANK YOU" to everyone who assisted so willingly to make the sale successful.

SKIDDING DOWN THE LONG TRAIL

by
Betty Ball

Thirteen hardy souls started from Long Trail Lodge on an eleven-mile hike on October 26th, congratulating themselves that it was neither too hot nor too cold for good hiking. There was even good visibility from a look-out point near Pico Junction, and the sight of Camel's Hump in the distance brought forth many remembrances of that famous hike. Alas, a few minutes later, snow began to appear, and the last few miles or so, was done over slippery snow and leaves, a combination that caused many a slip and slide, and great hilarity among the slippers and sliders. I found the quickest way down a hill to be on the seat of my slacks, though most of my falls came to a more abrupt termination. Some of the crowd were well prepared for winter weather but a few had on low shoes. These, especially, welcomed the good fire at Cooper Lodge and the hot coffee.

The hike was really lots of fun and the snow made for buoyant, though sometimes treacherous walking. Few birds were seen or heard, though there were some chickadees, kinglets, and a downy and hairy woodpecker.

Warmth and food were welcomed at Gov. Clement Shelter by the somewhat weary hikers, and great thanks are deserved by those who drove to Shrewsbury, got the fires burning, and brought us all home.

CLEMENT TO CLARENDON SHELTER

by Veda Knipes

The 11th of November came with clouds in the sky, but with little fear of rain 11 members left Meldon School for a point on the Trail just south of Clement Shelter. After shouldering our packs we were ready for the second part of our sectional "end-to-end" hike.

As we traveled alongside Cold River, cut Christmas trees, patches of snow, and the greenest of moss gave proof that we were in evergreen country. The trail led across Cold River, some jumping stones while others slid, shimmied and hitched across on a conveniently fallen tree. At each crossing of the road there was much discussion as to whether it was the upper, lower, or middle road to Northam. This part of the trail had very little climbing.

Now climbing, first through a pasture and then across a hard-wood woodlot, one noticed a change. The leaves were deep and all about could be seen the Christmas fern dotting the ground. The trail led up and down through more pasture land where dandelions dared to blossom. As we came to the top-most ledges we had to stop and gaze at the beauty around us; the distant mountains, the sky, and then down into the valleys.

Going down the last hill to Clarendon Shelter with visions of food in the skillet, we walked lightly along. Some cooked dinner on the stove inside while others preferred the open fireplace out front. After the hunger had been satisfied some made plans for a clean-up party, as some thoughtless people had stacked tin cans and such in a sightly place between the shelter and the brook.

Highlights of the day were: one member insisting a spruce was a pine; a second feeling a few drops of rain (three I think); a third feeling a slight draft that was checked by safety pins; and a fourth picking her Christmas greens and emerging on the road with a large bundle ready for wreaths.

We reached home about five o'clock with pleasant thoughts of our day on the Trail. The "end-to-enders" are thankful to the members who are making these trips possible by furnishing us with rides to the starting point and meeting us at the end of the hike.

CONTROL OF INSECT DESTRUCTION

In the October issue of the SCIENTIFIC MONTHLY, Prof. Graham of the University of Michigan tells about a different approach to the problem of controlling insect destruction in forests.

When a certain specie of tree in a certain area became heavily infested with some harmful insect, the usual procedure was to find out all you could about the insect, and determine the best way to kill off enough of the over-supply so that damage to the trees would be held to a minimum.

Dr. Graham points out that large scale insect attacks don't "just happen". They are caused by one or more of several factors in the environment that are unusually favorable to the insect. Some of these factors, such as climatic conditions, we can do nothing about. But Dr. Graham believes that by controlling the composition of our forests either as to kinds of trees present, or as to the age distribution, we can make them more or less resistant to insect damage.

The spruce bud worm is very destructive to spruce and balsam growing together in some areas. A study was made not only in the areas attacked, but also in adjacent areas where there was little damage. It was found that where there were many mature balsam trees the destruction was heavy, but where the taller trees were less than half balsam they were seldom killed by the insect.

It seems that when the budworms come out in the Spring they start to eat balsam and spruce needles. To make fast growth and survive the worms must soon feed on buds. The balsam buds open a week or so before spruce buds. If there is a shortage of balsam buds at this critical time a great proportion of the worms perish and there is no widespread destruction. If we want to save our spruce from this dangerous insect we must cut out enough balsam so that the dominant trees are mostly spruce.

A slightly different budworm will attack red pines in open stands but not those closely placed. It was found that staminate flowers are the preferred food of this budworm. When other parts of the tree are chewed resin oozes out and kills many of the insects. But staminate flowers are numerous only on pines with abundant foliage. So if we keep our red pine forests well stocked so as to restrict the amount of foliage we may protect them from serious budworm damage.

The "removal of all affected trees" to control an insect pest is only a temporary measure for it does nothing to make conditions less satisfactory for the multiplication of the pest.

Chemical sprays must be resorted to if other methods fail but this treatment kills friend and foe alike and must be repeated endlessly since, if conditions are not changed, the area will be reinfested.

Dr. Graham suggests that: (1) a safe mixture of tree species should be maintained in the forest; (2) large areas of even-aged stands should be avoided by controlled cutting; (3) timber should be harvested when mature. If we don't cut 'em the insects will.

We have heard that Harold Valiquette has received orders for the VALIQUETTE STOVE. He has also perfected another device for camping that can be highly recommended.

What next, Harold ?

ANOTHER TRIP TO MAIDSTONE

In spite of the fact that we had planned to take our annual camping trip in summer this year it was October when we finally loaded the car with the usual (and some unusual) camping impedimenta and started for Maidstone State Park. The weatherman smiled on our activities and favored us with three of the most perfect days one could hope for. This was our third fall camping trip and we came home more thoroughly convinced than ever that this is the perfect time for camping.

We arrived at Maidstone about 4 o'clock after a lovely drive over the mountain to White River Jct. and along the Connecticut River. One of the advantages of Fall camping is that since there are few if any other people in the parks one can camp practically anywhere. We were allowed to pitch our tents just outside the picnic pavilion and use the pavilion for our housekeeping activities. The pavilion is on a slight rise overlooking lovely Maidstone Lake. A short path down through white birches leads directly to the lake shore. Our campsite was selected, tents set up, a fried chicken supper prepared and eaten and we were settled in front of the fire for the evening's Canasta shortly after 6 o'clock.

We awoke Thursday A.M. (not too early) to bright sunshine. We spent the day in exploring the new camping area now under construction, loafing in the sun, and boating on the Lake. There was some talk of swimming but it got no farther than talk. As the day ended the sun slipped down behind the hill across the Lake and soon the whole sky was colored with one of the most gorgeous sunsets of the season.

After supper the evening was, of course, given over to Canasta, but to spare the feelings of some of the party we'll skip lightly over the outcome of the games.

The night seemed really too good to spend inside a tent so Mary Perkins and I made our beds up on the pavilion floor and had a grand night's sleep in the open. In the early morning we thought we heard rain but it proved to be only moisture dripping off the trees from a heavy fog. As the fog lifted the sun appeared and the Lake was like a mirror with its perfect reflection of the white birches and the fall foliage along its shores.

We broke camp slowly, pausing frequently to watch the changing picture of the Lake as the sun advanced. We reluctantly left Maidstone a little before noon and drove home following the Connecticut River down on the New Hampshire side and looking across at the Vermont villages in their colorful fall setting.

No - you can't beat October for a camping trip in Vermont.

(The members of this camping party were Mary Jennings, Tholma Valiquette, Mary, and Vera Perkins.)

FROM THE MOUNT CLAIR GLEN LOG BOOK

"June 17, 1951 - Bob Long, Karl Johnson, Ted Hausor, Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio.

Shelter a welcome sight about 6:30 tonight when we pulled in. Had a good night's sleep punctuated only by porcupine meanderings. Rain this morning kept us in but weather is OK now and we figure to push on. Darn good shelter. The ~~it~~ could use some like it."

We are always glad to hear reports of our Long Trail shelters.

TIME - Sunday, December 16th
PLACE - McLaughlin Falls

During the winter months, with the weather so uncertain, we decided that a few short hikes would meet with everyone's approval.

The Bradders have offered us the use of their camp at McLaughlin Falls and you may choose your own hikes from there.

TIME - Sunday, January 6th
PLACE - Spring Lake Camp

From all the pleasant comments I've heard concerning Spring Lake Camp and vicinity, I'm sure that we will break an all time record of attendance on winter hikes with this one.

Let's hope there is enough snow and ice for snowshoeing and ice skating.

CONGRATULATIONS TO
DANNY JENNINGS

Danny Jennings, one of Killington Section's student members was one of the 12 seniors at St. Michaels, recently chosen for Who's Who in American colleges. Selections are made on the basis of scholarship, leadership and participation in college activities.

SPRING LAKE CAMP MADE SNUG FOR THE WINTER

A trip to Spring Lake on Nov. 12th by Maxine and Carl Newhall and Craigie Perkins revealed that Fred Field and his Boy Scouts, on a trip the previous week, had made the camp ready for winter by replacing missing lights of glass and fixing the doors.

Fred reports that besides the repair work his party went on through to Buffum Shelter. They found enough snow for a snow fight and the trail in good condition. Thanks fellows, for a good job well done.

CLEAN UP JOB AT CLARENDON

Annoyed by the sight of a pile of tin cans spoiling the beauty of the surroundings at Clarendon Shelter, Mary Jennings and Vera Perkins spent a day doing a clean-up job there. The rubbish dump was moved to an inconspicuous place and signs directing people to the new location were placed. At this same time the table top was covered with linoleum and some of the wood lying about the yard was stacked inside to dry out.

Although there were a few showers during the day they reported an enjoyable and satisfying day. Now they'd like a chance to use the place before anyone messes it up!

BEECHWOOD COVERED DISH SUPPER

December 8, 1951

by

Helen Field

Some of us like the long, strenuous hikes, and some like the slow, easy ones, but there's one thing that everyone in the Mountain Club likes to do, and that's to eat. We've seen some pretty fancy menus on the Trail, but the covered dish supper has so many wonderful things that I doubt if we could find anything better.

When they brought out the first course, I didn't think the table would hold it up, but it did. We piled a little of everything on our dishes, let out our belts, and then went back for seconds. (By that time, most of us had decided to stay in the dining room and help hold up the table. Anyway, Diane Conlin and her glass platter were in the living room and we were getting too weak to walk around it.) The cakes and pies they had for dessert were heavenly, and the table groaned again under their weight. Somehow, though, we finished them down to the last crumb.

Ray and Janice Catozzi brought some paper napkins with "Green Mountain Club" printed on them. They were so popular, that most of us took them home for souvenirs.

There were several distinguished guests present, whom I think I ought to mention. Five people came all the way from the Worcester section, including our old friends, the Greens. It was good to see Dart Noyes again. I guess she must have smelled the coffee cooking way down in Bennington, and decided to come up and have a taste. Just so she won't forget it too soon, we spilled a little on her to take back. Mr. Paul Larson was there. He's a member of the younger set. Right now he does most of his settin' on his Mama's lap, but he's getting around a lot faster than last year. Our own famous inventor was there too. I guess you all remember the Valiquette stove. Harold really has a wonderful invention now. It's a new kind of glass to wear in your eye-glasses. It should be mighty useful on those long stormy hikes. I looked through his own pair of glasses myself and I couldn't see a speck of dust anywhere. I understand he's still taking orders for Christmas, with a free sample of awning cloth to every pair. Shirley Morris held up a long distance telephone call while she came. She told her party she'd call back in twenty minutes, but instead, she came to Beechwood and forgot about the twenty minutes. I always wondered why it took so long for those calls to go through.

Frances Green entertained us with colored slides of wild flowers along the Trail. They certainly were lovely, and I don't wonder that she forgot she was sitting in a brook when she took some of them. It was well worth it.

Ray Catozzi showed colored movies of the ice follies and the circus, and of our sugaring-off party last spring. It's too bad he didn't tell Eleanor Walker she was in the last ones, though, for she might not have fallen asleep and missed them. I guess that fifth piece of cake was too much for her.

Somehow or other, this annual event has become a tradition in our family. We wouldn't miss it for anything. I guess there are a lot of others who feel the same way about it, because we had a record crowd, and 55 people can't be wrong.

CLARENDON GORGE TO THE GULF ROAD
by
Marjorie Allard

November 25th was a bright, crisp Sunday morning when eleven hikers set out on the last lap of the End-to-End hike over the Killington Section.

We started at Clarendon Gorge, well equipped with red jackets, shirts etc. as provision against trigger-happy deer hunters. Mary Jennings and Veda Knipes very thoughtfully brought a good supply of red bandannas for those who had forgotten their hunting shirts.

As we went along the Trail the views from the look-off points, and the snowy woods around us grew more and more beautiful. We met a couple of kind gentlemen who advised us, "Just follow the white paint marks on the trees. Those are blazes." Thanks to them we made it safely to Spring Lake, the lunch stop. The deer hunters appeared to be doing quite well - they bagged four deer in the vicinity of the shelter - but thanks to all our bright color, we were not mistaken for a wandering herd.

I hadn't been to Spring Lake since before the Shelter was begun, and was seeing the whole thing for the first time. The location is one of the most beautiful on the Trail, and the Valiquette stove did a very good job of warming up the place. It didn't take us too long to get dinner either. The Shelter is a grand addition to our section of the Trail !

Just before we left for Buffam Shelter and the Gulf road Harold Valiquette arrived. His coming made it eight hardy souls who had really covered Killington Section, End-to-End. Good work !

The rest of the afternoon was spent in covering the Trail to the Gulf road. There was more snow than some of us had expected (wet feet !), but we made it down to the road by sunset where we met the cars which took us home.

We all agreed that the hike was successful - perfect weather and a beautiful section of Trail. It was a good ending to the End-to-End hiking project !

END*TO*END THE EASY WAY

To be eligible for the End-to-End award the 263 miles of The Long Trail need not be done on one continuous journey. Stretches may be done here and there, connecting up one trip with where you left off on a previous one.

With the help of the Guide Book and with some thought to planning your trips on The Long Trail, the End-to-End award may be yours before too long.

According to the Guide Book, 166 hours of actual hiking time is needed. "The hiking time is based on a speed of two miles per hour, plus $\frac{1}{2}$ hour for each thousand feet of climbing. This does not include time out to rest." This estimate is for the average hiker with a moderate pack.

One of the joys of mountain climbing is that you may choose your own speed of travel. When you are under your own power, the trees do not seem to be going in the other direction as they do appear to be when speeding by in a train or car. On a mountain climbing trip you may stop whenever you wish, rest beneath the trees and be a part of the peace and contentment they enjoy.

TESTIMONY OF TRESPASS ON BUTTO N HILL

Deponent - Mrs. Newhall
Party of the 2nd part-
Mr. Newhall

The following testimony is a record of an Expedition in which there is much truth and more feeling.

The Expedition, arriving at the junction of sundry public ways, a brook, and assorted ruts and ditches, did park their conveyance inconspicuously between a rut and a blade of grass (dead). Following white signs indicating The Long Trail, the party entered on a side road testimony regarding the first half mile is incoherent, deponent claiming great distress in breathing and nether limbs, but does confirm the road goes up hill.

At a decrepit sugar house, the witness regained the company of the party of the second part, hereinafter referred to as Carl to eliminate confusion. This was accomplished by diversionary tactics and moving down a slight dip at a gallop. The Trail here leaves the old road to follow an older one into a woodlot in search of Buffam Shelter. Said shelter was inspected and found to be in satisfactory condition, and in environs most attractive for summer use.

The parties passed on through pleasant wooded ways, slipping and scrambling through half-frozen snow past a wood-cutters hut, and disdained the pointing arrow of the Trail sign. With deliberate intent and malice aforethought they did turn right and testimony of principal witness takes note of rude and insulting remarks aimed at prominent "No Trespassing" signs stationed on trees beyond the fence. No response was noted.

Making their way on through neglected grazing ground, The Expedition floundered to a boulder and sat to view the country to south and east with great complacency, deponent again claiming extreme discomfort (an obvious subterfuge).

At this point, the snow began to thin rapidly, and presently disappeared altogether. Still moving in an easterly direction, the party next entered a wooded area, with Carl gradually gaining a lead of several furlongs (fur of a Spring-Bok used as base for computation). Witness described the terrain as rising, a phenomenon not uncommon to the locale.

Emerging into an opening, after losing a hat and part of a temper among unfriendly blackberry bushes, the deponent states she encountered no further barriers. The opening proved to be a broad band of grass and rock extending vertically to the top of the hill, accessible by a certain amount of huffing and scrabbling. Some time was lost by frequent inspections of the valley, rapidly opening up behind the climber. Party of the second part is known to have been sitting patiently on a rock at the top during much of this time.

The group reformed at the summit, and called a halt for a conference and to gorge themselves on crackers and cheese. The witness then declares they formed a flanking movement to the west, intersected The Long Trail at a point marked by skunk tracks and a beech tree, and moved rapidly down hill toward the car. Snow was again encountered, which facilitated such rapid progress.

The Expedition was considered highly satisfactory by both witnesses. We offer as corroborative evidence a firm determination to go back next spring and do it again.

IT'S CHRISTMAS TREE TIME

During the next few days thousands of people all over the country will be selecting a tree to become the center of Christmas festivities in their homes. The kind of tree popular for this purpose varies somewhat in different parts of the country. In our own section balsam fir is perhaps the best liked. Its well-shaped branches together with the ability of its needles to withstand the warmth of our homes makes it especially desirable. Black and white spruce and red cedar are also often used. In the southern states pine is the popular variety while on the west coast the douglas fir, the second largest sized tree in the U.S., is the favorite.

Whatever variety of tree you prefer there are some things to remember about its selection. In the first place, if you are going into the woods to cut your own tree make sure that you first get permission from the owner of the property. Next, make your choice carefully, considering size in comparison with where you plan to use it; evenness, and spacing of branches. Look the tree over from all sides. Be sure you have the tree you want before you cut it. Cut the tree cleanly, near the ground. Don't lop off the top of a much larger tree than you need!

When you have your tree home take good care of it until time to bring it in the house, if you expect it to last well through the holidays. Warmth and exposure to wind will make its needles drop, so keep it in a cool, protected spot outdoors, or in an unheated garage.

Once indoors your tree will last much longer if placed in water. There are commercial containers available which hold water, or one may be quite easily improvised. Placing the tree in a pail of water with stones to keep it from tipping, and covering the pail with a wooden cover in which a hole for the stump of the tree has been bored, is one satisfactory way of providing water. One Christmas tree expert suggests adding one cup of sugar or molasses to each gallon of water. The exact theory back of this suggestion is not clear but people who have tried it claim that the needles stay on longer under this treatment.

There are many theories as to the origin of the Christmas tree custom. One popular one is that it originated in Germany when Martin Luther, a 16th century religious leader, noticed the great beauty of a forest evergreen in the winter moonlight. Impressed by what he had seen, so the story goes, he wanted to share it with his family. Accordingly, he cut a small tree and took it home where he set it up and lighted it with candles.

A popular belief as to how the custom came to this country is that the Hessians, who were employed by England to fight against the colonists, being homesick, inaugurated the idea as a link with their homeland.

Whatever your preference as to type, and whatever your belief as to the origin of the custom, if you want to make your Christmas tree 'good to the last needle' here's an idea. In the December issue of American Home, Wm. E. Bensyl describes how, after Christmas, he pruned the branches from his tree and used them to hold down leaves in his garden; cut the trunk into firewood; in the spring stripped the brown needles to mulch blueberries; and finally used the bare, twiggy branches as support for his early peas! Mr. Bensyl may not be a Yankee but that's Yankee thrift if you ever saw it!

MERRY CHRISTMAS and
HAPPY NEW YEAR.

Killington Section Green Mountain Club

Jan. 1952

ANNUAL MEETING FRIDAY - JANUARY 25th

The annual meeting of the Killington Section GMC will be held Friday evening, January 25th at 7:30 P.M.

Harold Valiquette has kindly offered us the use of the Green Mt. Awning Co., workshop, at 93 Killington Ave., for our meeting.

Carl Nowhall has movies and slides taken on various trips in Maine and Vermont to show us and Betty Ball has slides taken on her trip to the Gaspé last summer.

The Photography Contest will be held and the Club's collection of snapshots will be on hand to be looked over.

As an innovation this year coffee and doughnuts will be served after the meeting.

On the business side there will be reports from officers and committees and the election of officers for 1952. Craigie Perkins and Fred Field have been appointed as a nominating committee to present a slate of officers.

This is your opportunity to get up to date on the work and activities of the club and to give us your suggestions for the coming year. It is also a chance to get better acquainted and exchange ideas on subjects of common interest. So bring your cup, we'll provide the coffee and doughnuts, and join us for a good GMC session on the 25th.

PHOTOGRAPHY CONTEST

Just a final reminder to bring your favorite slide and/or snapshot for the Photography Contest at the annual meeting. There will be a prize in each class. To be eligible for the prizes pictures must have been taken on the Long Trail or on a regular GMC outing sometime during the past year. The more pictures the more interest, so bring them along.

If you haven't already given any contributions you may have for the Club's collection to Janis Catozzi bring them to her at the annual meeting. She will take the prints if you care to donate them or will get prints made if you will loan her the films. It helps to have the place, date, and names of any people shown, accompany the pictures.

COMING OUTING

by
Charlotte Rutkowski

TIME - Sunday, January 20th
PLACE - Tucker Lodge

Our schedule would not be complete if we didn't have at least one winter hike into Tucker Lodge. Usually scheduled around this time, and conveniently located near Pico, Tucker draws a pretty good crowd of the skiers in the Club as well as the usual hikers. So pack your skis or snowshoes and a good lunch and away to Tucker!

CLARENDON SHELTER NEEDS REPAIRS

Clarendon Shelter is an old favorite of a great many Killington Section hikers. It was built in 1921 and has weathered many a storm. Now it is old and leaky, but still a welcome sight to many who hike over The Long Trail and wish to make it a stop-over place between the Spring Lake Camp and Governor Clement Shelter.

Situated in a beautiful pine grove, close to an ever flowing brook, it is one of The Long Trail's beauty spots.

The shelter needs a new roof. It also needs some type of wall siding. During the past years the sides have been repaired by nailing roofing paper over worn boards. While this is an inexpensive method of repairing the walls, it doesn't last very long. Perhaps it would be less expensive in the long run, to apply something more durable. This is something for the Shelters Committee to work out.

Another idea that has come to mind is, closing the shelter in to make it a more weather proof, all season camp. A window could be put in the back of the camp and hinged doors, similar to the Spring Lake camp doors could be installed. This would provide a closed camp for winter use and for summer use the doors could be swung open.

CLARENDON SHELTER BENEFIT CARD PARTY JAN. #1

Because Clarendon Shelter is in need of major repairs and because materials as well as volunteer labor are going to be needed, the Killington Section of the GMC is having a benefit card party at the home of Vera Perkins, 242 South Main Street.

The date set for the party is Thursday, January 31st.

The time set for the party is 7:30 PM.

Refreshments will be served and a prize given to the highest scorer at each table.

Mrs. Harold Valiquette is contributing a door prize.

A contribution of 50 cents from each player is requested. No tickets will be sold but a member of the Card Party Committee will call on you for your support of this worth while project.

The Committee includes the following:

Harold Valiquette, Chairman
Thelma Valiquette

Vera Perkins
Mary Jennings
Voda Knipes
Mary Perkins
Carl Nowhall

PERSONALS

We have all missed Helen Field on the hikes lately. She has had a light case of pneumonia.

Betty Ball spent the holidays with her folks in Florida. She came back with a grand tan.

Pres. Roy Woodelton was in town and at Pico for skiing during Christmas week.

As this is being written a work party is being held at Tucker Lodge. A report will be given in the next issue.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

MCLAUGHLIN FALLS

by Diana Conlon

Where were you Sunday, Dec.
16th ?

We are beginning to think the McLaughlin Falls Hike is jinxed for weather. Last year it was scheduled the day after the big hurricane. This year, the day in question came after a heavy snowstorm and was cold, the coldest to date - something-or-other below zero. No one dared to say for sure, but my guess was about 10 below on the mountain.

Perhaps it was the pre-Christmas rush instead of the weather that kept the attendance down to seven. Crague Perkins appeared of course, and Vera, the Newhalls, Mr. Bradder, our camp host for the day, George and I, and Punch. We were all bundled up too, and above our ears. The air was crystal clear and the sun bright and warming. It was, as Vera said, "a winter day one dreams about." Actually it turned out to be one of the nicest winter hikes.

After climbing the Notch Road we travelled along unbroken snow of the Wheelerville Road to McLaughlin Falls. The view of Pico, Killington, and Little Killington along the way was really beautiful with the sun highlighting the frosted mountain tops.

Our modes of transportation varied; one on foot, four on snowshoes, and two on skis. (Trudging up the Notch Road carrying skis, I would gladly have traded my choice for a pair of snowshoes. However, the trip back was worth it. We were first down with the least effort.)

On arrival at the Fall's camp, Wil Bradder set to work to build us a roaring fire. At first we had a few qualms and doubts as Wil's bread and butter job is "Fire Prevention". Despite this fact however, we soon had a good fire, a cozy camp and sizzling hamburgs. The boys did a wonderful job cooking while the girls toasted their toes in the oven. Cold toes were the only evidence of the weather, and they were soon taken care of.

Before leaving camp we had a short hike to view the Falls with its winter ice cap and to take pictures.

By the time we started for home the mountains had taken on a rosy glow so our return trip was fast and to the point before the sun went down.

It was a grand day and we wish you could have been with us.

A WINTER DAY AT SPRING LAKE

It was a good winter day to be out in the woods. As fourteen hikers walked up the road from the iron bridge near Cuttingsville there was some speculation as to whether snow shoes would be needed when we reached the wood road leading up to Spring Lake Camp. All but three of the hikers were carrying their snow shoes, just in case---. They were right !!

On reaching camp we found the stove-pipe removed from the stove and the grate taken out. Harold Valiquette had his stove in good working order after some concentrated effort on the part of a few of the hustlers. He also put some asbestos matting underneath the stove for fire protection.

Soon a fire was warming the camp, snow was melting in the coffee pot, and various types of food were being heated.

We sat around camp for a while discussing club plans and projects before starting for home.

At the end of the wood road, in a clearing, a game of fox and geese was a big attraction.

THE 1948 WATER POLLUTION CONTROL ACT

The first Federal Law relating to water pollution was passed by Congress in 1886. It prohibited the dumping of refuse in New York Harbor. During the next fifty years several additional laws were passed but they dealt only with those forms of pollution which might affect navigation.

We have now come to realize the value of clean rivers and lakes in connection with recreation, fish and wild life, drinking water supply, irrigation and industrial uses. But getting the necessary legislation through Congress is a very difficult matter.

In 1944 the Surgeon General was empowered to investigate methods of purification. In 1946 the Fish and Wildlife Service, and the Bureau of Mines were given authority to study the results of pollution. These agencies reported that an investigation should be made. They had no authority to act.

The 1948 Act has been widely advertised as a big step toward the solution of the problem. The Surgeon General is directed to draw up a comprehensive program for the control of pollution in the interstate waters only. He is directed to give out information, make available the results of research, and to encourage cooperation between the states. Up to June 1951 there had been no approval given by Congress to any such interstate compacts.

The procedure for taking legal action under the law is very complicated. If pollution enters a stream and endangers the health or welfare of people in any other state, a public nuisance is said to exist. If the Surgeon General notices it he informs the offending state. He may even make recommendations. If no action which might improve conditions has been started within a certain time, the Surgeon General calls this to the attention of the offending state and he may threaten to bring suit.

If nothing is done the Federal Security Administration may hold a hearing on the case before a special board which may recommend that certain action be taken by the state. If after a reasonable time no action is taken, the Administration may, with the consent of the water pollution control agency of the offending state, request the Attorney General to start suit.

If such suit ever gets through the courts and pollution is found to exist, the judgement must take into consideration the "economic feasibility" of correcting conditions. In other words the public must pay for proving to the offender that he will make money by correcting the condition or nothing need be done about it.

The bill also authorizes the appropriation of about $100,000,000 to be loaned to the states and cities to help them build treatment plants. Up to June 1951 no money had been actually appropriated.

Some survey work has been done under the provisions of this act. There are about two hundred sixty watersheds in the country, only about half of which can be reached by laws like the 1948 Act. There have been set up but few interstate compacts that provide any real control of pollution.

Of the estimated twenty thousand sources of pollution about half are municipalities and about half are industrial. Many of these need to use the water from the lakes or streams on which they are located and are in favor of controlling the pollution of others but will never stop their own pollution until compelled to by law.

It will take a much more compelling law than the badly misnamed Water Pollution Control Act of 1948.

February 1952

REPORT FROM OUR PAST PRESIDENT

Now that 1951 has drawn to a close, the Killington Section of the GMC can look back on a very successful year.

The highlight of the past season was the completion and dedication of Spring Lake Camp. Next was our working over of our complete section of the trail and putting it in good shape. Also our new program of Section "end to end" hikes was very well attended.

If we can have as much co-operation and interest this next year as we have had in the past, we can look forward to a very successful 1952.

Churchill Scott.

A MESSAGE FROM OUR NEW PRESIDENT

I would like to thank you for my nomination and election as president of the Killington Section, Green Mountain Club.

I hope that, with the same hearty cooperation as we have had in the previous years, we can look forward to a very enjoyable year.

The following people have been good enough to lend their assistance and guidance as chairmen of standing committees:

Photography - Jan Catozzi
Trails - Craigie Perkins
Shelters - Carl Newhall Outing - Vera Perkins

George Conlon.

KILLINGTON SECTION'S ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Killington Section of the GMC was held January 25th at the plant of The Green Mountain Awning Co., in Rutland.

George Conlon was elected president; Vera Perkins, vice president; Eleanor Walker, secretary-treasurer.

Helen Field and Churchill Scott won the photography contest. Many pictures were added to the Club's album of interesting snapshots.

A sum not to exceed two hundred dollars was voted for the repair of Pico shelter.

The Shelters committee chairman, Harold Valiquette, reported that he would investigate the possibility of closing in the Clarendon shelter and give an estimate of the cost later.

The Trails committee chairman, Craigie Perkins, reported that our section of The Long Trail is in good condition. There are a few blowdowns north of Spring Lake and some young evergreens are growing up on the trail between Pico and Killington.

Fred Field reported that he had GMC insignia and Guide Books for anyone wishing to buy them.

Carl Newhall and Betty Ball showed some interesting kodachrome slides.

Coffee and doughnuts were served by Thelma Valiquette and Mary Jennings.

Darthea Noyes has returned to her work after being absent for some time because of a broken leg.

Bornico Tuttle is home from the Rutland Hospital making a satisfactory recovery after an automobile accident.

We like to keep informed about what our members are doing. If you have any news for our PERSONAL column, please send it to SMOKE & BLAZES, 127 BELLEVUE AVE. Rutland, Vt.

TUCKER SERVES AGAIN

by
Thelma Valiquette

Once upon a time in the year 1952, January 20th, to be exact, members of the Killington Section left the city to join a party already at Tucker Lodge.

Craigie Perkins, the Carl Newhalls, the George Conlons, arriving at Tucker the night before had succeeded in warming the lodge. The evening was enjoyably spent popping corn etc., and then the Conlons left for Rutland.

When we arrived at noon our aforesaid party had the fire ready for our cooking needs. Betty Ball and Eleanor Walker decided they hadn't hiked enough so before eating they ventured out on the Blue Trail. By the time they came back most of us had eaten and were ready to start out again. Churchill, Vera, Mary J., and I started out on the Blue Trail, Churchill carrying his snowshoes while we attempted to wear ours. The trail being slippery from the crusted snow and decidedly on a slant at some points, we found it wiser to wear our snowshoes on our backs.

We brought hobble bush back for interior decorating.

Harold left camp and hiked to his car at the parking area, then drove around to meet us just above the Perkins' camp and brought us safely home.

Darbie Allard and Martha Hakens enjoyed the company of Balik, the Pico St. Bernard dog. Walt Hakens and the seven remaining at camp came out to their cars in the parking area at Pico.

CARD PARTY REES $50.20

Splendid cooperation accomplished this. Our thanks go to the Valiquettes for the very special door prize; to Jan and Ray Catozzi for the napkins; the committee; the chair movers; the sandwich makers; the contributors; and all those who attended.

THE WINTER WEEKEND

After having become more or less resigned to the idea that the 'winter' was to be lacking from the weekend this year, we were surprised and delighted on Saturday A.M. February 9th to see snow. (We always knew it was a great help to have our weather man, Mr. Kirk, with us!)

The advance guard, Carl Newhall and Craigie Perkins arrived at camp Sat. A.M. with the weekend supplies -- that all important food! By afternoon, when the rest of us arrived, camp was warm and cozy. However, not wishing to waste any of a perfect afternoon, everyone took off for the woods almost immediately. After good hikes we were all back at camp by 5:30 to greet new arrivals and serve our turns in the preparation of supper.

The evening card games were interrupted for quick trips outdoors to look for the eclipse on the moon. (We learned later it wasn't due until the next night!)

Our good luck hold and Sunday was another fine day. Everyone got outdoors soon after breakfast for hiking and skiing. By one o'clock we were all back and, with more arrivals from town, there were 22 who answered the call to an excellent fricassee chicken dinner. Then more hikes and skiing for most, though a few chose instead a Sunday afternoon nap by the fire.

The party began to break up late in the afternoon. Everyone left reluctantly, declaring it the best 'winter weekend' to date.

The Club's appreciation goes to Maxine and Carl for the good job they did in preparing for the meals; to Mary and Craigie for the use of their camp; and to all the people who made the weekend a success by coming!

To date we have a total membership of 53 paid members. Of course it is early in the year and many of last year's members have not sent in their dues. Last year the membership was 94. Let's try to increase that number by at least 30 more new members.

If you have any friends that might be interested in joining the Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club, just let us know about them.

Your membership in the Green Mountain Club helps support an activity that makes the Green Mountains accessible to all who wish to hike on them. Your continued support is needed to carry on this work.

If your dues for 1952 have not been paid please detach the coupon below and mail it with your remittance to the treasurer.

If you have no need for the coupon, please pass it on to some one who may be interested.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Saturday, March 22nd
Place - Camp Sangamon, Pittsford

We are glad to be able to announce that the Sugar Party will be held at Camp Sangamon again this year, thanks to the kindness and hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Leone Smith. We are optimistic about the start of the sugar season and have set the date of the Sugar Party for Saturday, March 22nd.

Helen and Fred Field will be co-chairmen of the event and have as able assistants, Mary Jennings, Betty Ball, Harold Valiquette, Ray Catozzi and Craigie Perkins.

The menu, as is customary for Killington Section Sugar Parties, will consist of sugar-on-snow, pickles, doughnuts, and coffee.

We can't tell you the exact price yet as it depends on the cost of syrup this season, however this is not a money making proposition so the charge will be just enough to cover the cost - probably about 75¢.

We plan to have the sugar ready to serve about 6:30 P.M. Those who want to see something of the sugar making process and work up more of an appetite might like to go up in the afternoon. Whenever you go plan on walking in to camp from the highway as the camp road will not be open for cars.

After supper there will be Ping-pong and Square Dancing in the Camp recreation hall - so you can all work off those extra calories!

The Sugar Party is one of those annual events to which we all look forward and Camp Sangamon is an ideal place for it. You'll be sorry if you miss this one!

Time - Sunday, April 6th
Place - Greenwall Shelter

We haven't done this one for several years and then not at this season. The Trail leads south from the Wallingford - East Wallingford Gulf road. It is anybody's guess how successful we'll be in following it this time of year as the last mile runs through open pastures and crosses several side roads. It will be wise to follow the advice of the Guide Book and "Watch carefully for white blazes on barns, fences, and rocks." A little difficulty should add to the interest however.

The distance from the Gulf road to Greenwall is only one and three-fourths miles so there should be time for getting lost and found at least a couple of times! If we get completely stymied we can always reverse our direction and visit our own Buffum Shelter.

Although wet under foot, early spring can be pretty fine overhead and, given any luck with the weather, this should be a good and not too strenuous day's outing.

NEW SCHEDULES OUT

Schedule cards showing the outings planned through July 20th are enclosed with this copy of Smoke and Blazes. We think there are some you won't want to miss. So why not check your calendar right now and plan for them?

Details on the outings are always given in Smoke and Blazes under 'Coming Events' and a reminder with starting time, meeting place etc., usually appears in the Rutland Herald. We are trying now to have these Herald notices appear on the Thursday preceding each hike. So---read your papers and don't miss the fun.

FUN WITH HOBBLE BUSH

It's not too late to try forcing a few branches for early bloom. Several members have had a lot of fun and some very nice bouquets from branches of 'hobble bush' gathered on some of the late winter hikes. It's surprising how few people know these lovely blossoms.

EXECUTIVE MEETING

At a recent meeting of the Executive committee held at the home of the President, George Conlón, the budget for the year was made up and the new hike schedule approved.

ABOUT POLLS WE KNOW

Congratulations go to Ethel and Churchill Scott on the birth of their second son.

Larjorie Allard visited in New York during a recent vacation from her teaching duties in the Home Economics Department of West Rutland High School.

Mary and Craigie Perkins are grandparents again, their second grandson having arrived on February 19th.

Charles Sabourin is spending his mid-term vacation at his home on Baxter Street.

Janet and Jack Martin will spend a few days in Rutland this month before leaving for Fort Sill, Oklahoma. They have been living in Bordentown, N.J. while Jack has been at Fort Dix for basic training.

Charlotte Rutkowski has been having her annual winter vacation in Florida.

We are glad to hear that Lu Tye expects to be back in her office again soon after having been confined to her home for more than a week with the grippe.

We suspect that others of our members have been ill recently due to the prevailing epidemic of grippe, colds, and whatnot. We wish them all a speedy recovery.

Sunday, February 24th was one of the most beautiful winter days. In spite of the outdoor activities of the Winter Carnival in Rutland, sixteen members of the Killington Section (including Punch Conlon) left Rutland at eleven o'clock for Clarendon Shelter.

The cars were left on the highway as far out of the line of traffic as possible. In fact one was backed so far into a snowbank that it had to be shoveled out.

We all donned our snowshoes and started up the old road trail, which I am sure was at least five feet higher than it is in summer. It was perfect for snowshoeing and we took our time, looking for signs of wildlife. We saw several chickadees, one gray squirrel; heard woodpeckers, and saw rabbit and squirrel tracks.

When we slowly arrived the men had a fire started in the tricky stove. At least there was smoke so there must have been a fire. As we neared the shelter we heard sweet music coming from the upper bunks via George Conlon's bite size radio.

It wasn't long before there were two good fires roaring. We dug out the outdoor fireplace and with the good wood supplied by our axemen, Carl Newhall and the others, dinner was soon ready and so were we. The coffee was the best ever.

After dinner some took sun baths, some short hikes, some did snow sculpturing while the men looked over the condition of the shelter with the idea of estimating material needed for repairs.

As always the time comes to leave for home and after signing the new register we were on our way.

We missed Mary Perkins but understood just how busy she must have been. All in all it was a very pleasant trip.

A place not far from home is often neglected as a destination for a hike, and far off places are usually preferred. Our Sunday hike of March 9th proved that right in our own city of Rutland a walk over the wooded slopes of Pine Hill can be a delightful adventure.

There was snow enough in the woods to warrant the use of snow shoes and skis. As we walked up the hill from Evergreen Avenue we could see the homes in the city below and to the east. Talk centered around the idea of developing the Pine Hill area as a recreation center. We learned that Harold Valiquette is on the Chamber of Commerce committee that is looking into plans for the development.

When we reached Rocky Pond we hesitated a moment and wondered if the ice would be safe for crossing on it. Harold was in the lead and we decided that if it would hold him up, it would be safe for the rest of the party. We crossed the pond without a mishap and discovered that the ice was more than a foot thick.

Big snowflakes were slowly falling. The sky was steel gray with just a hint that the sun might shine. It didn't take long to get the fire going for Vera had brought along kindling. The coffee boiled in record time and knapsacks were unloaded and lunches eaten.

It is always nice to go home by another trail whenever possible so we hiked on to Muddy Pond and over the trail in back of the Country Club. We came out at the ski tow and watched the skiers for a while. Before we had started out on our hike, one car had been parked here so that drivers of the other cars could be given a ride back to the starting place on Evergreen Avenue. This worked out well for all except Ray and his shovel.

VERMONT SUMMER CAMPS

Some time ago a party of over night campers from Rutland approached a G.M.C. Camp to spend the night. The Camp was thoroughly occupied by a group from a summer camp. This group made it known in no uncertain terms that the Camp was occupied and that their Councilor did not want any other party there when they were there. These people simply did not know the rules of Camp hospitality.

While a work party was repairing a Camp roof they found carved deeply in the roofing paper the name of a summer camp and the names of several summer campers. Proper supervision would have prevented this damage.

Most of us have met on the Trail groups of twenty or more boys or girls heading for some Shelter to spend the night. Even under good leadership such a mob would monopolize the Shelter to such an extent that other hikers could not use it.

Traditionally the facilities of The Green Mountain Club have been available to all persons who use them properly. It seems that some do not use them properly, perhaps through excusable ignorance of camping customs.

In consideration of this situation the Killington Section resolved at their annual meeting that the Trustees of The Green Mountain Club should consider taking the following steps: a letter should be sent to all Vermont Summer Camps offering to them the use of our Trails and Camps; requesting that groups from the summer camps be limited to a reasonable number (perhaps eight or ten) under proper supervision; and suggesting that our slide collection be shown to their campers.

Such action should make the Camp managements feel a little more responsible without causing any hard feelings. If the campers themselves had a more complete picture of the significance of The Long Trail they would be less thoughtless of the rights of other hikers and less destructive to Club property.

TRACES AND TRACKING

One of the most attractive books on tracks is a 683 page volume filled with pictures and diagrams. A reading of this volume by a person with no great experience, but with average intelligence, will convince him that this tract on tracks has to do only with those of the iron horse, which, if we may borrow the bird hunter's expression (thank you), is somewhat beside the point.

So let us lay our musty book aside and go out into the open air. Let us orient ourselves. Above us floats the sky. Around us are our surroundings. Directly beneath us lies the snow covered ground.

The proverbial test of the tracker is this: Can he follow an elephant in six feet of snow with a bell round his neck? Can you? With a bell round your neck! How silly!

As we look around us the first tracks we notice are our own. They go where we go. They stop when we stop. In fact they seem to be following us. But enough of such distractions.

What is this track like a backfield formation? It is the bunny rabbit, otherwise known as the varying or dyed hair. See how he goes in leaps and bounds. Sometimes he leaps. This is leap year.

The pussy cat also makes tracks. But this is not the track of the common pussy. It is that of the striped pussy. If we follow quickly perhaps we shall surprise him! But no, rather let us make tracks the other way!

To-night we shall read that new book about tracks "From Saratoga to Hialeah". It is a Bookie-of-the-Month selection. You can't go wrong for two dollars!

COMING EVENTS

Time - Saturday P.M. Apr. 19th
Place - Deer Leap Circle Trail
Supper at Tucker Lodge

This should make a good afternoon trip with opportunities to suit all degrees of ambition. Our plan for the hike is to follow the Circle Trail, starting at the highway opposite the Long Trail Lodge, to where it joins The Long Trail north of Tucker Lodge, then along The Long Trail to Tucker for supper, and finally completing the circle by continuing on The Long Trail back to the highway. This is a total distance of $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles.

Those with a surplus of ambition might wish to go up over the Deer Leap Look-out Trail and come down onto the Circle Trail a short distance before it joins The Long Trail. This is only a little longer but is a considerably stiffer hike. We don't advise this route unless the trail is less wet and slippery than it usually is in mid April.

Those suffering with spring fever and desirous of taking it easy may go in to Tucker by the usual short route. This latter alternative would be good also for those who can't get away early but would like to join us for supper.

Tucker has good cooking facilities so why not bring a real cook-out supper. This is also a nice place to linger after a meal.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sunday, May 4th
Place - Bradder's Camp, Tinnmouth Channel.

Come on all you fishermen here's a chance to try your luck. For several years this first fishing season hike has been to Little Rocky Pond where we have found at least four fishermen for every possible fish. We aren't promising anything about your success at Tinnmouth but you can try!

For the non-fisherman this is an equally good set-up for an enjoyable day. There is plenty of hiking territory and the camp, the surroundings, and the Bradder's hospitality are all that anyone could wish.

NEW EASTER OUTFIT

The GNC coffee pot is appearing with a "new look" these days. "T" and Harold Valiquette have provided it with a fine, new, carrying bag of dark green awning cloth. Those Valiquettes are certainly handy folks to have around!

NOTICE

This is the last SMOKE AND BLAZES to be mailed to persons not on the 1952 Membership List.

If your dues have not been paid please send them to the Treas., Miss Eleanor Walker, 87 Baxter St., Rutland, Vermont.

To save expenses, only one copy of S. & B. is sent to a family.

Sugar Party
by Carl Newhall

To a true Vermonter, the transition from winter to spring (with days considerably warmer but nights still on the wintry side) is associated with a most wonderful product of nature... maple syrup. To say maple syrup is a product of nature is stretching the point somewhat, for it is what man does with nature's raw material that makes it something wonderful.

As is customary every year, The Green Mountain Club organized a Sugar Party, in order that the members and friends could again observe the collecting of sap and the process of boiling down sap into syrup. Although the process is very interesting, it is the opportunity to eat a heavy syrup cooled on snow that makes a sugar party really enjoyable.

On March 22, the club gathered at Camp Sangamon in Pittsford for their annual sugar party. Through the kindness and hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Smith, the club had the use of the camp's kitchen, dining room and recreation hall. In the afternoon a whole bunch of us went in early, some carrying as much as a whole dozen doughnuts, or a box of napkins. Of course, we had our two pack horses, Harold Valiquette and Craigie Perkins loaded down with cans of syrup, jars of pickles, and other provisions. The rest of the crew stood by to drag them out of the mud if need be.

After completing the preliminary chores, everyone went to the sugar house where Mr. Smith was starting operations. The kids in the party took off after the collecting crew to help gather the sap, and ride back on the sled. Mr. Smith let sap into the evaporator and stoked up the fires, and in no time had the sugar house so full of steam... the shutter-bugs were taking pictures of clouds of steam and very little else.

About five o'clock most everyone drifted back to the camp, where the fires were blazing and the syrup was boiling away. By the time the call to eat came, a very large crowd had gathered, and everyone dug into the sugar on snow, pickles, doughnuts... and here and there a ham sandwich, a la carte. The final count, including kitchen help and late comers, and the host's party, numbered 65.

The tables were cleared for cards, checkers, and chatter in the dining room, and in the recreation room there was ping-pong and more chatter, with a ring of chairs drawn up to and almost into the huge fireplace. As soon as the dishes were washed, Getty Page got us down to business and squared some sets for dancing. Before long, the hall was a beehive of activity, with the junior set indulging in a form of square dancing all their own...but with a little coaching and coaxing, the dancing was in full swing.

Members of the executive committee and interested onlookers discussed our Clarendon Shelter project. The meeting came to a sudden halt when a shortage of men had created such confusion in the square dancing that wives came looking for husbands with fire and determination in their eyes.

The party was a great success, due in large measure to the willing help of so many members in the kitchen and dining room. We owe a vote of thanks to all those who worked so hard to make the party a success.

We understand that several of our members have taken up square dancing and are to be in an exhibition dance soon.

April 6th turned out to be a dark rainy day so naturally nobody would want to go on a hike. Oh yeah? Well, Churchill and Scotty Scott, Maxine and Carl Newhall, Diana and George Conlin, and Craigie Perkins just didn't know any better so the hike was held after all. On reaching the Trail crossing on the Gulf Road we were surprised to find almost a foot of very soggy snow. Since all didn't have snow-shoes with them it was decided to do a "Corrigan" and go to Buffam Shelter instead of Greenwall. The road was broken out so the going to the Shelter wasn't bad. Everything was found to be in good condition with some dry wood. A fire was soon built and the assorted menus were sizzled and bupped.

While splitting wood, Carl met with, or rather was overtaken by, a slight accident which caused him to lag a little behind for the rest of the day. Nothing serious, just a case of being too nearly worn out maybe. After dinner we talked ourselves into going for a hike further up the Trail. When we got up out of the woods the snow was gone from many places so we just wandered around where the going was best.

A skunk and several partridges were seen as well as many unidentified birds. Many stones weighing up to fifty pounds were found rolled over since the snow went away. Too heavy for skunks; a bear maybe? Or did somebody want to know what was under them and left no stone unturned till he found out? About four o'clock, after another cup of coffee, we went back to the cars. On the way who should we meet but Ray Catozzi trying to make up for a late start. Another successful outing and shame on those who couldn't be talked into going along.

Another page in the book of Green Mountain Club history is turned, and sadly read, in the death of Willis M. Ross. On April 3rd, 1952 at the age of 88 his journey on the long trail of life ended.

Willis Ross played a major role in the development of Vermont's Long Trail. In its early days he did the actual work of building many miles of it as well as securing permission to have The Green Mountain Club build it across private property.

The Willis Ross Camp at Stratton Pond was named in his honor. For many years he was chairman of the Trails committee. He also served as Clerk of The Green Mountain Club for a number of years. Until a few years ago, he hiked with Killington Section groups and told many interesting stories about the building of The Long Trail.

CONGRATULATIONS

On March 15th we received a card from Helen and Fred Field announcing the arrival of their son Peter Davenport Field.

We quote from the card :

"My mother calls me "Honey".
Brother Tommy says I'm "neat".
My grandmas rave about me.
They think I'm pretty sweet.
Gramp says I'm "like a little doll",
But I think I ought to mention
My Daddy loves me best of all.
I'm his latest tax exemption."

Vera Perkins has just returned from a trip to Durham, North Carolina. She also visited in Wilmington and Southern Pines in that state as well as Washington, D. C. She spent Easter Sunday in New York city.

THE STICK ACROSS THE TRAIL

by
James P. Taylor

It's just the same whether it's the trunk of a tree or a branch of a tree or a twig from a tree, across the trail. It's a barricade, expressing hostility, swearing "They shall not pass!" or it's a symbol, a sign of warning in friendly fashion spoken, saying, "Stop - Turn aside - No gangway here!"

In every case it's a lie, a winter-made, spring-revealed, summer-spoiling lie. And now there are scores of tree-trunk barricades that lie, and hundreds of tree-branch symbols that lie, and thousands of tree-twig signs that lie. They lie! For The Long Trail is an invitation. It entices all the world to walk a mountain-high, tree-embowered, free, open and easy path that begins where Vermont begins and ends where Vermont ends.

And we, the people of Vermont who made, must every spring again complete the Trail of Welcome by removing the liars from the path. He who tosses out a twig speaks a word of welcome to Vermont. He who throws out a branch speaks a sentence of welcome to Vermont. He who carries out logs speaks volumes.

Unhappy and accursed is he who takes no part in this eloquence of greeting.

Editor's note:

James P. Taylor is no longer with us. He was the father of The Long Trail and wrote the above words many years ago. What he had to say then about "The stick across the trail" applies today just as much as it ever did. Each spring after the winter winds, there is always work to be done on The Trail.

Let's get ready to "speak volumes".

FLASH

LATEST DOPE ON CLARENDON SHELTER

After a careful study of the possibilities of closing in Clarendon Shelter, the committee has finally decided that the work can be done without too much expense to the club. It is planned to board over the part now open, leaving a door and two window-less openings in the front with a window in each end and one window in the rear. The whole building will be covered with Masonite hard board with battens and trim. The openings in the front are to have hinged shutters that can be opened downward to form tables.

Carl Newhall, Chairman.

Wet

There's water on the treetops,
There's water on the grass,
There's water in the woodpile,
There's water in the sass.

There's water in the bushes,
There's water in the bed,
There's water in the coffee,
There's water in the bread.

There's water on the hilltop,
There's water in the vale,
There's water in the pack-bag,
There's water in the trail,

There's water in our path,
There's water on our feet,
There's water, water everywhere-

NOTICE OF ANNUAL MEETING

All members of The Green Mountain Club are invited and urged to attend the Annual Meeting to be held at the Long Trail Lodge Chalet, Saturday, May 31st.

An interesting program has been arranged. By attending you will not only enjoy yourself but will also learn more about your Club.

The program is as follows:

May 31 - 11 A.M. Opening
 1 P.M. Dinner at Chalet
 2:15 " More business
 3 " Trustees Meet.
 Hiking, visiting, looking at albums
 6:30 P.M. Supper -
 Sugaring-off -
 Singing
 7:30 P.M. Speaker with slides
 8:30 P.M. Square Dancing, Games
 June 1-9:30 A.M. Hike to Little Rock Pond.

Vera Perkins is chairman of the program for the annual meeting and has given a detailed report of the plans for the meeting in the May issue of "The Long Trail News" which you will receive in a few days. Please read these details and note the change in Killington Section's June 1st hike - the Spring Lake Hike has been changed to Little Rock Pond.

This Memorial Day week-end is a long one. Enjoy it with The Green Mountain Club.

COMING EVENTS

TIME - Saturday, May 17, 2 P.M.
 PLACE - ????????

This hike is a mystery so come along and help us solve it. Our destination (weather permitting) is a place mentioned in the Guide Book - That's the only clue we'll give you. See you Saturday, at 2 P.M. at Ieldon School.

TIME - Sunday, June 15th.
 PLACE - Stratton Pond

Those who made this trip last year remembered the 'June Pinks' in bloom near the Pond and asked for a return trip.

There is a choice of routes on this one. Those who wish may take a side trail from the highway and reach the Pond via Stratton Mt. - a distance of $5\frac{1}{2}$ miles. Those who prefer a shorter route may follow the Long Trail directly to the Pond - a distance of $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles. However you go its a grand trip.

To reach the Trail it will be necessary to drive in from the Wardsboro end of the highway as the road from East Arlington is not now passable.

GIFT FOR CLARENDON SHELTER

Mr. W.O. Wiley of the N.Y. Section, a good friend of GMC, has authorized that bills for the reconstruction of Clarendon Shelter up to the amount of $250 may be sent to him. Thank you Mr. Wiley.

DEER LEAP CIRCLE TRIP

by
Marjorie Allard

The hike around the Deer Leap Circle Trail on April 19th turned out to be a surprise trip for the members who made it, in giving them a combined spring and winter hike.

Eleven people started from Long Trail Lodge. We missed the Catozzis, the Conlons, and the Newhalls, but they were giving their talents to the Square Dance Festival in Northfield.

The trail was steep but not too soggy until we came around to the north side of the hill. There we found plenty of nice soft snow - the kind that holds you up for two steps and drops you in up to your knees or hips for the next three. Of course this didn't dampen our spirits, but it certainly did a job on our jeans!

Along the way we saw a bird unfamiliar to most of us. Mr. Kirk was along and Betty Ball too, so we learned the creature's name - 'yellow-bellied sapsucker'. It was generally agreed that this would make a lovely insult, so several of the group tucked it away for future reference.

The snow left off suddenly a short distance before we got to Tucker. We wasted no time starting a fire and putting on the coffee.

After supper we waited in case anyone else showed up, decided they wouldn't, put out the fire and left. So of course we met Craigie and Churchill about five minutes later. They went on to Tucker as we finished the Circle back to the cars and drove home to Rutland.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

We are glad to hear from Diane Conlon that her mother, Mrs. Gertrude MacLurray, is making a good recovery from a recent operation. We hope to see her out around again soon.

Charles Sabourin will work in the pharmacy at the Rutland Hospital this summer during his vacation from the Massachusetts School of Pharmacy.

We were sorry to learn that Marilyn Trop's mother was injured recently in an automobile accident while she was en route to visit Marilyn.

Carl Newhall's father, Carl Sr., has started on a three month trip to visit his daughter in California. He is driving out and camping all the way. This camping enthusiasm seems to run in families!

It is good to see Bernice Tuttle out and about again. We wish to extend our sympathy to her for the recent loss of her sister.

CLARENDON IS ON THE WAY

Clarendon Shelter is a gone goose....it came apart on a Wednesday night. The New Clarendon is going up as fast as the old one came down, too.

WORK PARTY SCHEDULE

May 10,	Saturday
"	11, Sunday
"	18, Sunday
"	24, Saturday
"	25, Sunday

If it isn't done by then, we'll let you know the rest of the schedule later.

Anyone who wants to help is welcome. Please call Carl Newhall, Shelter Chairman, during the week.

Trail Report

If hikers on the Killington Section of The Long Trail miss certain land marks such as blow-downs and brush jungles, blame it on Charlie Smith. That man is on the loose again. On Monday, April 28th in a pouring rain he took his pack and tools into Clarendon Shelter. Tuesday he cleared with axe and saw to the Gulf Road and walked back to Clarendon. Wednesday he mowed to the Gulf Road and walked back to Clarendon. Thursday he cleared trail to the Gov. Clement Shelter and walked back. Friday he mowed to the Gov. Clement Shelter and walked back to the Gorge where we picked him up.

"I like it," says Charlie. "I'd like to talk to some of these trail clearing committees. They go out and work their heads off and don't get anywhere just because they don't have the right tools. No, it isn't all in knowing how. Anybody can do it. You need a 36 or 42 inch pulp saw with a new sharp blade, about a number three. Take two small wedges, so you won't have to saw up from the under side of logs, or have to chop out your saw if the log sags and pinches. I like a light axe. Be sure the handle is straight grained and perfect. Sharpen it before you start and take an eight inch file with you. Don't try to work with dull tools. Take a scythe, not a bush hook, and a sharpening stone. Be careful not to bend the tip of the scythe or it will always give you trouble. Have a wrench so you can take the blade off for carrying. Go over the trail twice. First time, axe and saw; second time, mow. There's nothing to it. I like it."

So far this year Charlie has spent several days on the Bennington Section's trail, worked over the trail from Bromley to Bourn Pond for Manchester, done some work on the Forest Service's trail, and completely cleared our Trail from the Gulf Road to the Gov. Clement Shelter. This work on the Killington Section's trail will give our boys more time for work on Clarendon and upkeep on our other shelters. We like it too, Charlie!

LUNCH FIRES

Section 7078 of the Vermont Statutes reads as follows:

"Fires in woods; penalty. No one shall build a fire in the woodlands of another without the permission of the owner, lessee, holder of right of way, or his authorized agent between April 1 and November 1. A person who builds a fire in or adjoining any woods shall totally extinguish such fire before leaving it. A person who violates a provision of this section shall be imprisoned not more than thirty days or fined not more than $50. or both."

People hiking the Trail should build fires only in stoves or fire places at the camps and shelters. A little planning ahead will obviate the need for lunch fires. Green Mountain Club members should set a good example by complying with the law both on the Trail and on our Sectional outings.

PICTURES FOR OUR ALBUM

Janice Catezzi, chairman of the Photography committee, has requested that any one who has interesting pictures for the Killington Section's photo album, get in touch with her. She would like to borrow the negatives so that pictures could be made up.

The album will be on display at the annual meeting. If you can help to bring it up to date by adding new pictures, please call Jan at 1307-J. This is a worthwhile project and helps to preserve Club history. The pictures bring back memories of good times.

SQUARE DANCING

Getty Page

The Killington Section of The Green Mountain Club was well represented at the 3rd Annual Vermont Country Dance Festival held at Norwich University, Northfield, Vermont on April 19, 1952. Members of other sections were there too, but it is not the purpose of this article to cover that.

Ray and Jan Catozzi, George and Diane Conlon, Carl and Maxine Newhall, and Getty and Ann Page were the demonstrating set of the Rutland Square Dance Club under the direction of Dick Pasvolksy of the Rutland Recreation Department. At Northfield they demonstrated, with a few other selected sets, Venus and Mars, a square dance, and Haymakers Jig, a contra dance. Over 2,000 attended the festival.

The demonstrating team, above mentioned but still unnamed, started meeting in the fall and has met regularly each Thursday night since then with an occasional Sunday night rehearsal thrown in. Future appearances of the Eight Mountaineers call for exhibitions at a Square Dance Festival in Chester on May 16th, the American Legion's square dance in Rutland on May 30th and in Manchester, Vermont on May 31st.

The most unusual feature of this affair is that, while the Catozzis, Conlons, and Pages are square dancers from away back, the Newhalls had not square danced before this group started just a few months ago. This should give heart to those who say "Oh, it's too late for me to learn."

Contra or string dances originated in Vermont centuries ago, spread to all parts of the country but were then lost in most sections of Vermont. As one Vermonter put it, "It is a shame that the Californians should know more about 'The Loped Ear Mule' than we do in Vermont where it originated." One of the purposes of the Vermont Callers Association is to revive and maintain these dances which are Vermont's heritage.

Thirty years ago square dancing was a lost art except in the rural areas where it has always been popular. Henry Ford did more to revive it than anyone else and now it is as popular as any other type of dance in the cities as well as in the country.

Whether it be one set in a Vermont farm kitchen or 4,000 dancing on the Mall in Central Park (New York), it's a lot of fun, especially if the dancers look to its beauty, grace, rhythm and historical background, and not as a mere exercise or a chance to rough house.

Come dance with us !

Editor's note: Getty Page is the first and present president of the Vermont Callers Association. At the Killington Section's "Sugaring-Off" party for many years, Getty has been the caller. He also called at the annual meeting of the main Club a few years ago.

HIKE TO BRADDER'S CAMP May 4, 1952

Because of the operation "Girl Scout Camp Construction" many of our members could not attend this hike. They were busily engaged using their talents for a good cause.

In spite of the small number that came to the Bradder's Camp, a good time was enjoyed by all who came. This delightful spot in Tinmouth is a place where one may enjoy the art of loafing in beautiful surroundings, or hiking over country roads or open pastures, or collecting epitaphs from an old grave yard. These are the things we did along with reading the Sunday paper and talking about this and that. The channel was also explored by Mr. Bradder & Craigue.

ANNUAL MEETING

This year's Annual Meeting on May 31st was the best attended of any in recent years. The long week-end brought out many people who had not been seen for a long time. Pres. Woodelton showed up with a box of GMC tags for people to sign and wear. He also produced a register for all to sign.

The morning session was devoted to the usual reports and dinner was served in the Old Lodge dining room. In the afternoon session there was a lively discussion of the decision of the Trustees to dispose of the Long Trail Lodge property. The Club voted to ask them to reconsider their action.

After the close of the general meeting the Trustees met and some members went for short hikes. At six-thirty sugar on snow was served by some of our more comely members.

The speaker of the evening was Robert L. Coffin of Mass. State College, who showed a large collecting of slides illustrating his topic "My World - I Hope You Like It". We did.

The Sunday hike program was washed out, but some of the people from out of town had a chance to camp out Friday and Saturday nights so the outdoor part of the program wasn't a complete loss.

Our Annual Meetings are getting better and better. Keep up the good work. Plan to attend next year.

STRATTON POND

There didn't seem to be anything unlucky about the number 13 on Sunday, June 15th. That was the number of Killington Section members who made the trip to Stratton Pond and enjoyed a fine outing. Even the weather, which in the morning showed promise of showers later in the day, remained sunny.

We had a long, pleasant drive through Weston, the Londonderrys and the Wardsboros to Stratton, where we left our cars and started hiking. About half the party decided to hike to the Pond via the side trail over Stratton Mt., while the rest followed the white blazes directly to Stratton Pond.

Along this trail were the pink Lady Slippers we remembered from two years ago, although seemingly not so plentiful. At the Pond the Mountain Pinks were just coming into bloom. Those who hiked over the mountain reported many unfamiliar wild flowers.

In spite of the ever present black flies common to the woods in June, and the fact that the hike-meter showed the trail to be a mile longer coming out than going in, we wouldn't have missed this trip.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

Some people with more time than brains have already used the carpenter's chalk for scribbling and drawing on the new Clarendon Shelter. How can we educate such people? Any suggestions?

COMING EVENTS

Time - July 4-5-6

Place - Canada Line to Hazen's Notch

It won't be long now until that big 4th of July week-end camping trip, when we hope to hike over some of the most northern section of the Long Trail.

The general plan is to set up our camp-site at the end of an old road which is reached from Jay village. This will give us reasonably easy access to the Trail. We have worked out tentative plans for the 3 days which will enable us to cover the Trail from the Canada Line to Hazen's Notch, returning to our camp-site each night. These plans are of course subject to change according to the weather conditions, wishes of the campers and so on.

The "tour" will start from Meldon school at 8 A.M., Friday, July 4th, proceed to Waterbury and north along Route 100 to Lowell and Westfield. At Westfield we will leave 100 and take the road to Jay. Just before we reach the schoolhouse in Jay we take a sharp left turn where there should be a sign "to the Long Trail"- from here on we will "follow the leader". We will take our bearings at Westfield and as we turn in Jay to make sure everyone is accounted for. Plan to take a picnic lunch for Friday noon as we hope to have our camp set up, eat lunch and be ready to start on our 1st day's hike soon after 2 P.M.

Here are the tentative hiking plans:-

1st day - Covering the Trail between Journeys End and the Jay - North Jay road.
(Total hiking distance, including to and from cars, approx. 5 miles)

2nd day - Covering the Trail between the Jay-North Jay road and Jay Camp.

(Total hiking distance Approx. 10.8 miles)

3rd day - Covering the Trail between Hazen's Notch and Jay Camp.
(Total hiking distance approx. 8.4 miles)

The total amount of hiking will be just a little more than we did in covering "end-to-end" of the Killington Section last fall. Those who would like to camp with us but think this looks like too much hiking can easily plan some short but interesting trips from camp. It will be grand for the long distance hikers to have someone in camp to get cook-fires going. These people can be helpful too in shuttling cars etc. So don't feel you should stay home if you don't plan to hike the whole distance. Each person should definitely do only what he or she feels inclined at the time.

We would like to make a few general suggestions for the trip:-

Each person is to arrange for transportation in advance.

We feel that it would simplify things greatly if people would plan their meals in groups of about 4. This means less cooking equipment, faster preparation etc. We think meals should be simple and easy to prepare. The general plan is a substantial breakfast; a mid-day lunch which can be easily carried; and a hot but quickly prepared meal at night.

Since there are a number of essentials for a successful trip of this sort it is best to make a list well in advance and be sure you have planned for everything.

We don't need to tell you that you will need to be well organized and all set by evening of July 3rd in order to make that 8 A.M. start Friday, July 4th!

MYSTERY SOLVED

by Dan Jennings Jr.

Usually when planning a hike, once the destination has been determined, this aspect of the outing no longer remains the center of our attention. However, our "mystery hike" was a pleasant exception to this rule. Although many questions were answered such as how far did we have to walk?, would it be wet?, was the hike a stiff climb?, etc., nevertheless the ten Killington Section members who wanted to solve the mystery set out for parts unknown.

Vera Perkins, our capable Outing Chairman, had typed the directions for each driver to use but even with these we couldn't decide where we were going. We were to proceed south on route 7 to Danby and there take a left turn; ("no we aren't going to Little Rock Pond", our directions assured us); then follow the road to Hapgood Pond and from there follow Craigue's car wherever he would lead us. We thought that with a guide book we might be able to solve the mystery but Pearl Nichols had hers and was as much in the dark as anyone. Shortly after by-passing Hapgood Pond we parked the cars and started walking up the old abandoned Peru-East Dorset road. After walking a half hour or so, and hearing rather dubious comments from Craigue as to our location, I thought that perhaps the nail had been hit on the head by the neighbor who naively asked if those who planned the hike knew where we were going!

But after only an hour of hiking, but with a climb which took us up 600 feet higher than where the cars were parked we suddenly arrived at (have you guessed it?) the Notch (Mad Tom) Shelter. This is an attractive open front camp with a fireplace. The shelter which is so accessible is in excellent repair and features a garbage disposal unit. The capabilities of the fireplace were well proved by an excellent supper.

On the return trip our flora lovers found several mementoes to enhance their collections, although it was somewhat disconcerting at first to hear shrieks of "I've found a boy and now I want a girl!" and vice versa.

Barbie Allard must have caused some confusion among the bird population. As we came down the mountain her whistles on a bullet shell were plaintively answered by an evening thrush.

Returning home by way of picturesque Weston we stopped to watch a member of a family of old trail friends who are so often heard at night but not always seen--a "porky". Climbing rapidly up a tree he resembled a bear cub. He seemed more engrossed in watching us than we him so we continued on.

And so the mystery hike ended but the fact that we had a very enjoyable outing should be no mystery at all. That's to be expected!

LITTLE ROCK POND

This hike, scheduled for the day after the Annual Meeting, just dissolved in the rain of Sunday, June 1st. Not even one "eager beaver" showed up to make the trip. We know enough to stay in out of the rain -- sometimes.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Billy Allard and Mr. Kirk are in Canada for a week's fishing. We hope to get a news story from Bill on this trip.

We have news of another prospective GNC member. David Perkins now has a sister Anne, born on June 6th. Mary Perkins has been spending some time with Bob, Thelma and David in Ypsilanti.

OUR TRAILS AND SHELTERS

We have it on the best authority that the outside of the Clarendon Shelter will be completed by the end of this month. Nice work! We're considering having a house warming when it reaches that stage. How about it?

The Long Trail Patrol is definitely planning to repair the Pico Shelter this summer.

Charlie Smith has recently been over the Trail from Clement - to Killington - to The Long Trail Lodge taking out blow-downs. He found Cooper Lodge in excellent condition. With this trip Charlie completed covering the entire length of Killington Section and reports it all in good hiking condition. There is some thinning between Pico and Killington to be done this season.

GROAN!

At the time of the 1951 Intersectional, Jim Green of the Worcester Section was doing a little trail clearing on the Appalachian Trail east of the Lodge. While chopping he lost the head from his axe. Although all members of the party searched for some time it could not be found. While going in to Tucker Lodge on April 19th Churchill Scott happened to look down and there it was in the mud.

In as much as the spot where it was found is a long way from where it was lost it seems likely that after flying off Jim's axe it fluttered through the underbrush for over a mile. Surprisingly enough when it landed in the mud it took root and started growing a new handle at a rate of better than 2 inches a month. When found the new handle measured fourteen inches. Jim probably won't believe this but we have the axe to prove it.

GREEN MT. HORSE ASSOCIATION

by Madeline Bradder

Did you ever see the orange dot, the white wooden arrow with the green letters G.M.H.A. or the yellow horse shoe, while hiking on some nearly forgotten old highway?

Many times after leaving the hard top roads to travel some of nature's surfaced by-ways and trails, signs other than those of the GMC Long Trail are seen. People often ask the use and meaning of such signs.

Briefly explaining; the orange dot is the old marker for the Green Mt. Horse Association's Bridle trails. The more modern ones are white arrows lettered in green. Thus the G.M.H.A. marks trails throughout the state for riders wishing to use bridle trails for vacations and trips off the beaten path of traffic.

Many trails follow old town roads. These hilly, narrow, water-barred short cuts over mountains led to once thriving villages. These communities are now only dots on our maps. The modern methods of travel make the use of these roads unnecessary. Many of these roads are very beautiful and interesting. Travelling them on horse-back is something few people experience.

Citing one local link of the many trails is the one from Rutland via Northam, Plymouth, Bridgewater Five Corners to Woodstock. Making this trip is like reading a chapter from an old history book.

The local riding Club marks its trails with yellow horse-shoes. One marked trail, good for a short day's ride, leads from Rutland over Mendon notch through Wheelerville making a circle back to the stable.

The G.M.H.A. has booklets and maps which show all their marked trails.

COMING EVENTS

TIME - Sunday, July 20th
PLACE - C.V. Camp, Chittenden

Eleanor Walker has made it possible for us to enjoy the use of the C.V. Camp at Chittenden Pond on the weekend of July 20th. We are scheduling the Outing for Sunday and the group will leave the Meldon School at 11 A.M. However those wishing to go up on Saturday and make this an over-night may do so by making reservations with Eleanor-(Tel. 2570). This is a good summer outing - you can drive to the door and be as lazy or as energetic as you wish after you arrive. You may loaf on the screened porch, swim, boat, and/or fish and there are facilities for either indoor or outdoor cooking and serving. Here is an Outing that the whole family can enjoy, so load in your family, food, and gear and come to Chittenden on Aug. 20th.

TIME - Saturday, August 2nd.
PLACE - Hapgood Pond.

This is an old favorite. We will leave Meldon School at 2 P.M. for an afternoon of swimming and a cook-out supper at Hapgood. There is a chance to work in a hike also on this one for any who wish it. It would probably be possible to drive nearly to the Notch (Mad Tom) Shelter which is not far from Hapgood. From there one could hike north on the Trail $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles to Styles Peak where there is an outlook in nearly every direction. Hikers could then join the others for a swim and supper at Hapgood.

NEW HIKE SCHEDULES OUT

Enclosed with this issue of Smoke & Blazes you will find schedules for Killington Section Outings through January 1953. Your Outing Chairman has tried to include some old favorites and to introduce some new trips. We have also tried to provide enough variety so there will be something for everyone.

Those people interested in increasing their coverage of the Trail should notice especially the series in the fall which cover the section from The Long Trail Lodge to the Brandon-Rochester highway.

Mark all Outing dates on your calendars now, watch the Herald for details of starting times etc., and plan to join us as often as possible.

STRAWBERRIES AT SPRING LAKE

A small group of enthusiastic strawberry pickers and shortcake eaters made good use of the GMC Shelter at Spring Lake for a wild strawberry shortcake supper recently. The berries were large and abundant and certainly no one could ask for a nicer spot in which to enjoy them. This would be a nice idea for a GMC Outing some season if enough people were interested.

JAY PEAK EXPEDITION

Well, it all started last Fall after we hiked the entire Killington Section of The Long Trail in a series of three hikes. Somebody said, "Wouldn't it be nice if we could do some other part of the Trail the same way?" So when the new schedule was drawn up for this year the three day July Fourth week-end looked like the best time to do the most distant part of the Trail in the Jay Peak area.

After several conferences a general plan was worked out. We decided to camp near Jay Peak Approach Trail and cover the Trail between Canada and Hazen's Notch in three one day trips. Our cars were used as taxis to carry drivers and hikers to the start of the days hike, and then to bring them back after they had reached the next accessible point on the Trail. It was all very complicated but we lost neither cars nor drivers; somewhat to our surprise.

Twelve members made the trip to the camp site and seven completed the Trail from Canada to Hazen's Notch while the others enjoyed camping out and aided the hikers when they returned weary and hungry. Those making the trip were Lucy Bishop, Hilma Erickson, Ray Catozzi, Pearl Nichols, Eleanor Walker, William Allard, Vera Perkins, Maxine and Carl Nowhall, Mary and Craig Perkins, and Fred Field.

After several days of beautiful weather we feared rain for the week-end, and sure enough, on the drive up we passed through several showers. In the absence of Mr. Kirk, Billy Allard was put in charge of the weather. He soon got things under control and we didn't have a drop of rain the rest of the trip. In fact he over did it to the point where we didn't even have a dew either morning we were in camp.

The camping spot chosen was a clearing on an old road running from Jay toward Hay Peak. We had hoped to be able to drive further up this road but after one car struck a reef, it was decided to let well enough alone. The location proved to be good except for the water supply which was about a quarter of a mile away. The girls staying in camp spent considerable time carrying water for the hikers. We arrived about one P.M. and in an hour or so the mountain tents were up, a level spot had been found for the Pullmans, and Fred's Statlerized Buick had been unfurled.

The rest of the afternoon and evening was spent doing our first segment of the Trail from the approach to Journey's End Camp to the Jay-West Jay road. We lost an hour trying to drive further up the approach road than the Guide Book suggested. Don't do it.

When we reached Journey's End Camp we found that The Long Trail Patrol had been through just a few days before and left Trail and Camp in the best possible condition. The Trail up to the International Boundary was steep and the day was hot, but some of us had to make it an international hike by walking around the monument marking the boarder. From here we climbed over a sizable mountain and reached the Jay-West Jay road and our cars. This road is very slightly and has a good surface as far as the hight of land from the east. Back to camp to supper and to bed.

Saturday was our big day. First we went up the abandoned Jay-Montgomery road to Jay Camp on the Trail. The first mile of this road was good walking beside a large brook. The second mile, the road and the brook sort of combined, but still it didn't look so very bad because it was covered completely with a fine crop of nettles.

Jay Camp was found in poor repair. Forkies have badly chewed the floor and bunks. Roof looked pretty good. Usable but poor.

From Jay Camp we travelled northward to the same road reached the previous day from the opposite direction. Our first objective was Jay Peak. A steady steep climb brought us out on the bare rocky summit where we relaxed and took in the view of numberless mountains, lakes, farms and villages. Too soon we had to push on down the north side of the Peak to Laura Woodward Shelter. This was found in good condition except for one bunk needing repairs. Much of the Trail this day was through thick growth of ferns, making it perhaps the greenest part of the Green Mountains.

The Trail down the side of North Jay Peak was steep and rocky but here we came upon the high water mark of the patrol and found the Trail mowed all the rest of the way out. Two or three humps later we arrived at Shooting Star Shelter which was in perfect condition. Some of us had thought this point to be the end of the day's hike, but no, there were still two miles to go over another ridge. We all made it but eleven miles is enough even without a pack.

Sunday morning we felt less lame than on Saturday. We were getting broken in rapidly. This day we went again to Jay Camp and then turned south toward Hazen's Notch. Over Double Top, Domey's Dome, and Old Splatterfoot we followed the skyline for miles without water along the Trail. Not even a soda fountain. Finally, in desperation the firm of Allard, Newhall and Catozzi converted a swampy spot into an acceptable "spring". It took them about an hour but it sure was appreciated by the thirsty hikers. Then to everyone's disgust, six small streams were crossed in the next half mile of Trail.

After going over the shoulder of Sugarloaf we slid down the long steep slope to Hazen's Notch Camp which was found in good condition. The climb from the Camp back up to the highth of land in the Notch was most discouraging after so much down grade. The high cliff on the north side of the road had recently let fall a huge block of rock which had landed close beside the road.

About seven o'clock the last car arrived to pick us up and the party disbanded. It was a fine outing and perhaps we can do another stretch of the Trail in that area next year.

IT'S LATER THAN YOU THINK

It may seem in these warm July days that the fall GMC Rummage Sale is something in the dim and distant future. Don't be fooled, those things have a way of creeping up on us.

Since the Annual Rummage Sale was instituted 4 years ago it has earned a total of $410 for our club. This is quite a substantial help in maintaining the trails and shelters of our 22 miles of The Long Trail.

We want to keep this project going. We carried over no stock from last year's sale. This means we need extra effort from everyone to help build up a good stock for our sale this fall. It is not too early to begin collecting. Why not put a large box labeled GMC Rummage Sale in your attic, cellar, or storeroom, and whenever you come across something for which you have no further use, drop it in the box? These things will then be out of your way and ready for the Sale. Remember to collect from your relatives, friends, and neighbors too.

It takes a good stock to keep customers coming to our Sale each year and the more we sell the more money goes into our treasury.

FISHING IN THE LAURENTIANS

by Bill Allard

The Laurentides National Park in Canada is a scenic wilderness full of hungry trout, and bugs which are even more so. I went up principally for the fishing, but the scenery and particularly the bugs impressed me deeply.

The fishing was poor according to the people who know the place but it was certainly the best I ever had. Mr. Kirk and I kept enough 9 and 10 inch trout to have three apiece for breakfast every morning for a week.

Altogether we fished on eight lakes all within three miles of where we were staying. In all we caught about 500 trout between 2.5 and 10.5 inches long. These figures are presented by fishermen and are not in any case to be used or treated as scientific data. The Park is certainly a good place for a fishing vacation.

We saw quite a number of Canadian birds and animals that don't get this far south very often. Moose, beaver a Canadian chipmunk and red squirrel were the animals we saw, but also found in the area are lynx, bear, otter, and an occasional wolf. Some of the more interesting birds were; the very tame spruce grouse, Canada jay, rusty blackbirds and loons. We also encountered large predatory mosquitoes and numerous black flies. Once a mosquito lit on the gunwale of our boat and nearly swamped it. Dope was useless. I took out a bottle and before I could open it a mosquito dove down, punched a hole in the can and flew off, wobbling drunkenly, after draining the bottle.

In spite of the bugs we enjoyed the wild beauty of the virgin forest. Mostly black spruce with a sprinkling of birch, it looks dark and forboding even in the sunlight. The forest floor is thick with moss and the spruces are hung with long gray lichen. It all looks very strange and different.

In between the low rounded mountains are chains of lakes mostly in their original undeveloped state. One of the most thrilling parts of the trip was to fish on a large lake with nothing in sight but the black spruce spires, a swampy patch of grass and a pair of Canada jays and know that this is the way the forest probably looked many centuries ago.

NEWS FROM HERE AND THERE

Roy Buchanan and his trail patrol boys will be working on the Pico shelter before long.

Diane and George Conlon are off on a two week vacation camping trip to Portland Island off Cape Hatteras.

Edith Ewald has gone to Europe for the summer.

Craig Perkins has lost Vol. 3 No. 12 and Vol. 5 No. 1 issues of SMOKE & BLAZES. He would like these issues to complete his file. If anyone has these numbers and would like to give them to him, he would appreciate it very much.

Bill Allard, a junior at U.V.M. is working for the Fire Clay Co. this summer.

Vera and Mary Perkins will be in Burlington July 15, and 16 to attend The League of Vermont Writers Institute.

Helen Field and sons Tormio and Peter are vacationing at Marthas Vineyard.

Joe Valiquette, a sophomore at St. Michaels College, is working for The Green Mountain Awning Co. this summer.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sunday, August 17th
Place - Little Rock Pond

This is another old favorite which has been most often scheduled about the time of the opening of the trout fishing season. This will be an opportunity to see how the place looks without its border of fishermen!

We can't remember for sure but is this the trip on which we once noted a profusion of blackberry blossoms in early summer? If so there should be ripe berries now.

Those who wish to extend this hike may do so by trying out the side trail to So. Wallingford (3 miles), on the return trip. Or if you're really ambitious, and make arrangements to be picked up on the Wallingford - East Wallingford Gulf road, you can hike north on the Long Trail to Greenwall and hence to the Gulf road (a little over 7 miles).

Time - August 23rd and 24th
Place - Daniel Webster Monument in Stratton.

This is the G.M.C. Intersectional - for details see your August, Long Trail News.

Plan to attend this outing and meet G.M.C. members from other Sections. In the past few years the Intersectional has successfully brought hundreds of members together.

Time - Sunday, September 7th
Place - Killington via the Juggernaut Trail.

After the Rutland Fair you are apt to be in the mood for getting 'far from the maddening crowd' and taking to the woods. Here is an excellent chance.

This trail is new to most of us and we don't promise anything except that Killington Peak will be the same as ever when and if we get there. If you have a little gambling spirit an like exploring just come along with us and try out the Juggernaut Trail. It should be fun.

FIRST REPORT ON PICO SHELTER REPAIRS

We have received word from Roy Buchanan in regard to the repairs at Pico Shelter. There will be a complete report given in the September issue of Smoke and Blazes.

The repair work has been completed and Prof. Buchanan believes that the shelter ought to have some more life left in it.

This is a delightful spot for an overnight. Now that the roof doesn't leak, why not take a run up there some week-end and enjoy the ship-shapeness of the shelter. Of course we are scheduled to go there Nov. 2nd but why wait 'til then.

MANSFIELD TRIP
by
Maxine Newhall

The first time we went to Mansfield, we drove all around it, looked at it from all sides, and tried out one short piece of trail rising vertically out of the Notch. We sampled it, and went away to other mountains less over-powering and more inviting.

This year we plunged boldly ahead, and scaled the summit on the chair-lift. That may not be the accepted method for certified mountain climbers, but for this one it has undeniable advantages. You'll find all the mountain you want to climb above the chair-lift limit.

Carl and I went in on Friday night, July 25, with Emile Boselli, an old habitue, formerly caretaker at Taft Lodge. We were the last ones up the Lift, and started a rough out-door weekend dining on Filet Mignon at the Summit House!

After such a luxurious start, the program deteriorated rapidly. We toted the calculated minimum packs along the ridge, watching the sunset, and down the Profanity Trail to Taft Lodge by the last remaining glimmers of daylight. Taft was to be our base of operations, and the theory read that we would travel light each day, and pack out Sunday night. It was an excellent theory....

Saturday was really The day. We went up the Eagle Pass by The Long Trail, and sat on Adam's Apple...where the view is magnificent. (What is there about such a vantage point that prompts people to try to identify smuggy little villages, in the face of so much else to look at?) Then... up the Chin, extolling the view to north, east or west to camouflage the shortness of wind. From thence, south over the Lips and down over the Cliff Trail, spending a few minutes in and around the Cave of the Winds, through Wall Street, and so on; we reached the Summit House by noon, and lunched at the Octagon. It would be worth going back in winter just to stop in the Octagon and enjoy a fire in their circular fireplace...but after a close look at the Nose-dive, I shall positively leave my skis at home!

That was the morning. The afternoon took us up over the Nose and down along the west side, through Canyon and Canyon North, the Subway, the Apartments, and back to the vicinity of Profanity. Somewhere along the way, a careless suggestion crystallized into a definite plan of action, and we dashed (as well as we were able) down to Taft, gulped a quick supper and packed the impedimenta, plus firewood and a couple gallons of water. Again by the light of the sunset and the last glimmers of daylight, we trudged up through Eagle Pass, up the Chin, and slept Saturday night on the highest point in Vermont. As I said, it was a good theory....

And for all our trouble and wild anticipation, we woke in the morning in a dense fog. Visibility was a short, damp, six feet, and the whole morning passed before it finally cleared away. So we missed a sunrise view. But the fun wasn't spoiled by a little thing like that...we ate a leisurely breakfast, studied some rocks and gouged out a few crystals to bring home, and eventually arrived at the Summit House just as the sun decided on a fair day.

In order to "do" as much as possible, we took The Long Trail down to Butler Lodge, where we ate lunch and enjoyed a long visit with Dave and Sue Hagar. They had strange and wonderful things to relate about the people who pass on the Trail... as for instance the gentleman who went up the Wampahoofus Trail, and made a subsequent agonized report that in places his person hung out over great voids... and "It is not done thus in the Alps ! It would be provided with guides before and stout tow-ropes. Ach ! Ach !" Well, I d'know. We came up that way.

It's useless to try to report what we saw. But we can, and do, recommend it to everyone. It is one mountain that can be as rugged a workout or as gentle a stroll as you want. And it is decidedly infectious. We still haven't covered all the trails, so we'll be going back again.

P.S. We caught such a bad case of mountainitis that the next Friday we dashed up the Bucklin Trail after supper, and slept on the peak of Killington. The sunset was beautiful, and the moon shone and the wind blew all night long. Next day, just like last time, murky. But---boy, the raspberries were good !

CHITTENDEN POND

It was a hot day in Rutland on Sunday, July 20th, but those of us who took advantage of the opportunity to spend the day at the C. V. Camp in Chittenden escaped the heat.

It was a perfect day to spend in or on the water and that's just how most of us spent it. We don't know what treasures Carl Newhall, Craigie Perkins and Bill and Barbie Allard expected to find on the bottom of the Pond but they spent so much time under water we expected them to sprout fins at age 100.

After lunch those invincible Newhalls just had to hike somewhere so accompanied by Emilio Boselli they set off for Noyes Pond. The rest of us spent the afternoon like the morning in swimming and boating.

We appreciate having the use of the camp for a GMC Outing and hope perhaps this may develop into an annual summer event.

HAPGOOD POND AND STYLES PEAK by

Maxine Newhall

The subject of some debate before-hand, the Hapgood Pond Trip came off approximately as planned Sunday, August 3. The schedule said Saturday, but Sunday was a better day all-round. In fact, the sun shone...which was a nice change from former Hapgood days.

However, there was one difference not so welcome. The crowd was small, and Pinky didn't even come to see us off. It made the whole thing seem dreadfully unofficial.

Vera took the swimmers in her car...Mary and Danny Jennings, and Barby Allard with two friends. Carl drove the car of hikers...Maxine, Betty Ball and Emil Boselli. Pearl Nichols and Eleanor Walker came down later in the afternoon...and that's all there were. The rest of you missed a thoroughly enjoyable time.

Barby and her friends were wet inside of five minutes, and the rest of the swimmers dispersed vaguely at the first mention of fires and coffee...and courteously allowed those most interested in the end result to supervise the coffee. Wasn't it good ? The disinterested ones came back promptly when the coffee came off the fire. Very good timing. Diplomatic relations were nearly ruptured when the coffee Superintendent found her lunch contained not a single cup...but a loan was arranged, and peace returned.

Mary put another strain on everyone's self-control when she dropped two real steaks into a sizzling fry pan...but we criticized her cooking 'till she didn't enjoy them either. In fact, we really had a lovely time.

After lunch, the hikers went off to find Mad Tom Shelter... and to our dismay drove within ten feet of the fireplace.

That is not our experience with the general run of Long Trail Shelters. We found the Shelter in fair condition, and the water was delicious; better than more elaborate beverages, and almost as good as if we'd dug the spring ourselves.

We climbed Styles Peak from the Shelter. It was pleasant, wooded, and warm all the way. There was some confusion at the signpost that pointed west and said "Long Trail -3 miles"; and still more when we passed the last rise and went on what seemed an interminable distance more or less level...with no sign of peak, nor view nor nothin' but trail. In fact, we stopped in one shady place and held a heated as well as spirited discussion over the perversity of guide books. But presently the flies drove us on, and we did come to the rocky ledge that does, in fact, provide a view to the east more or less.

We watched the swimmers at Hapgood enjoying their water, while we sat enjoying our mountain, until someone suggested it might be nice to take a swim. Lacking helicopters, we started back on foot...and paused only at the spring for a last drink. And so, by devious ways, home by night.

We have a question. Who was Mad Tom ?

DOWN UNDER

It may be interesting to hear about some of the activities of Mountain Clubs in other parts of the world. If you are interested read on.

The "Tararua Tramp" is a monthly publication of the Tararua Tramping Club of New Zealand. The following bits of information have been taken from their publication.

"Coming Tramps -- Nov. 2-3-4 Combined Clubs' Working Party-Alpha- An advanced guard will go to Alpha on Friday afternoon to be ready for the air drop in case it comes early on Saturday morning. The remainder will carry up all the tools plus non-dropable material such as window frames and aluminium roofing. A start will be made with the hut foundations. Leaders, members of the Huts Committee. "

On reading this we thought how nice it would be to have an air drop to help in the building of our Green Mountain Lodges and Shelters.

"Nov. 30 Talk on Safety in the Mountains. This talk should be heard by all intending long trippers."

"There are 10,000 members of organized mountain clubs throughout New Zealand, and it is not surprising that a certain amount of congestion takes place in favorite localities especially during the summer months. The huts already built by clubs are used a great deal by deer-stalkers and Government cullers and opossum trappers. They thus serve a vital part in coping with the deer and opossum menace."

After the death of one of the Tararua Tramping Club members resulting from his crossing a flooded river, the findings committee reported - "Donald Dement would not have lost his life when attempting to cross the flooded Orongorongo River had he been tied to a rope."

"The only safe method of crossing a flooded river is that in which the person making the crossing is fastened to a rope. The handrail method is not satisfactory for crossing a flooded river."

(Mountain climbing in New Zealand involves hard trips according to the "Tararua Tramp" .)

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sunday, Sept. 21st
Place - Long Trail Lodge to Noyes Pond.

The series of three hikes covering our own section of the Trail last fall proved so successful that we decided to try a similar series this year to cover some adjoining Trail. Here is the first of that series.

We will start out over the familiar trail from Long Trail Lodge to Tucker (the Long Trail not the short cut), from Tucker follow the Trail on to the old Chittenden-Pittsfield road (better known to most of us as the road beyond the Craigie Perkins camp). This road is about the half-way point on the day's trip. After crossing this we hike along through hardwood forest and over an easy ridge to Noyes Pond. (The Guide Book gives the distance as 6.1 miles and hiking time as 3½ hours). From Noyes Pond we can follow a short trail leading down to the highway near Chittenden Pond.

These progressive hikes necessitate some shuttling of cars but the distances to the highway approaches are not too great and this can be worked out. It's been done before!

If you are interested in increasing your coverage of The Long Trail don't miss any of this series - when you complete the three you will have added 19.7 mi. If you just want a good fall hike this is for you too.

Time - Sunday, Oct 5th
Place - Noyes Pond to Carmel

For this second of our series we will go in to Noyes Pond from the highway near Chittenden Pond (as we came out on the previous hike) and take to cars again near "New Boston" (about 5 miles from Chittenden by highway).

Many of us have been to Carmel Camp and Mt. Carmel before but we have usually arrived via "New Boston". Not so many of us have hiked the 7.4 miles of The Long Trail leading from Noyes Pond to Carmel Camp. This trail should afford some nice views of Chittenden Pond and prove an interesting day's outing.

RUMMAGE!. RUMMAGE! RUMMAGE!

We haven't figured out how many shopping days there are before Christmas but we do know there are only about 30 collecting days before our GMC Rummage Sale. We hope you already have a large collection for us. The committee and the exact date for the sale will be announced in your October SMOKE AND BLAZES.

Remember this is one of our two money making activities for the year and we need the support and cooperation of everyone.

CONGRATULATIONS TO "THE ALLARDS"

Greetings to Mary Elizabeth Allard who arrived on Sept. 9th.

THE ROCKY POND TRIP

by Emilo Boselli

A pretty good turnout on this one. Eighteen in all. Could it be that an outing with some scheduled hiking interests more people? Anyhow, after some debate on how to arrange the taxi service for the caravan we all departed for the shelter. That is, we all departed together, but some place along the way the caravan grew; not in numbers but in length. Is it safe to guess that arrival times varied by three-fourths of an hour?

On arrival we did not find the usual hordes of fishermen but were instead heralded by the gleeful shouts of a party of swimmers at the shelter. Further investigation revealed a note stating that a group of nine was returning to the shelter that day. Would this be a rather crowded day at the shelter? Evidently not, the swimmers seemed to prefer the water on the other side of the island, and our nine campers never showed up.

Lunch and coffee were promptly taken care of. There were several demonstrations of how to cook various meats by the "set the frying pan on the fire" method. Our "fire eaters" managed to make the rest of us envious with their culinary skills.

Barbie Allard and her two young mermaid friends spent the day trying to soak up all the water in the pond. All was peaceful until one of the girls managed to send Craigie's hat sailing into the pond. The rest is best left to your imagination.

Marjorie Allard was finally coaxed into the water. Seemed to enjoy it, but admits to practically drowning herself?

Of course, under the inspiring leadership of guide Carl Newhall, a party of Alpinists was formed to scale the upper ledges of Green Mountain. Carl's

"billy goats" included Ray Catozzi, Bill Allard, Maxine and Carl Newhall Sr.

The rest of the party spent a peaceful day soaking up the sunshine and discussing the merits of various agricultural crops.

Our best wishes to Carl Newhall Sr. We hope he enjoyed his hike with us as much as we enjoyed having him.

Visit us again, Carl.

NEWS FROM OTHER HIKING CLUBS

Last month we told you a little about the far away Tararua Tramping Club of New Zealand.

This month you are going to hear about the Capital Hiking Club of Washington, D. C.

Organized in 1938, the Capital Hiking Club is open to anyone interested in hiking and congenial fellowship in the out-of-doors.

Trips are scheduled for every Sunday. Hikes range up to 12 miles in length and traverse mountains, stream valleys, and rolling countryside. Many interesting hikes, not requiring strenuous climbing are also conducted in the area between Frederick, Maryland and Fredericksburg, Va. Local hikes are included to acquaint people with the natural beauty around Washington. Occasionally there are sightseeing trips to historical or beautiful spots.

Fellowship is the theme of the Capital Hiking Club and to promote this atmosphere a get-acquainted circle is formed at the beginning of each hike where everyone gives his name and the State or country from which he originally came. Coffee is served at noon on the cold season hikes, and watermelon feasts are arranged for the beach trips. Moonlight hikes and campfire parties in local parks are held in the summer time.

All this has a familiar ring!

INTERSECTIONAL
SMALL BUT SUCCESSFUL

by
Dan Jennings, Jr.

Seven members represented Killington Section at this year's Intersectional Outing of the Green Mountain Club. Although the entire group numbered only about 25, Barre, Brattleboro, Burlington, Killington and Worcester Sections were represented.

The camp site in Stratton proved successful. The tents were erected in a semicircle around the clearing where once 15,000 people gathered to hear Dan'l Webster. Some of the tourists (and there was a surprising number of them) who visited the monument while we were encamped eyed us as though we might be the last stragglers of the original 15,000. Surely we didn't look that odd! One lady went so far as to apologize for intruding on our "family" reunion. Mary and Craigue Perkins, arriving early Saturday, pitched tents for the other Killington members and were on hand to welcome us. However, they soon grew discouraged of greeting and welcoming arriving cars, as most of them proved to be people visiting the monument rather than GMCers.

The camp fire would have been an excellent mosquito repellent but we lacked mosquitoes! Visiting and story-telling made the evening a pleasant one. The night proved uneventful and the Buchanan alarm didn't sound until 7 a.m. It has become traditional for Prof. Roy Buchanan to awaken us at 5 but he explained that there would be more comment if he didn't than if he did, so he didn't.

Sunday found the energetic hikers setting out for Stratton Mountain and Stratton Pond. Churchill Scott, alone, upheld our record as hikers.

Those of us attending Mass at

Our Lady of the Mission in Wardsboro were present at the blessing of the first permanent Catholic chapel in that town. The interesting history of the 125 year old remodeled building which has served as a private home, Post Office, General Store, and a Fraternal Order clubhouse, was related by the missionary, Rev. George Demery, of the Fathers of St. Edmund from Putney.

An afternoon leisurely spent ended our small but none-the-less interesting and pleasant 1952 Intersectional.

OUR GOOD FRIEND CHARLIE SMITH

We received an interesting letter from our trail clearing friend, Charlie Smith. He has spent the past summer with the Forest Service at Winter Park, Colorado.

His letter states in part--
"We are almost through clearing trail here. I have learned a few things about trail work this summer and so has the ranger. He bought me a 36" pulp saw by mistake after I asked for a 42". The 36" wasn't big enough for some logs. Then he got a 3' one-man saw. That got dull, lost its set, and was hard to use. He'll get a 42" pulp saw next year!"

"I have used a machete a lot and found it best for large brush and can cut young trees several inches in diameter. I prefer it to the hatchet after trying both."

"We tried a trench shovel for improving the trail, digging water bars etc. It is way ahead of the common shovel."

"In spite of the wrong saws and my helper being slow and rather prone to fowl things up, we spent only a little over one half the money allotted. So it appears we are doing all right."

Charlie gave us some more interesting information about what he and a burro could do on Vermont's Long Trail.

KILLINGTON FROM THE WEST

by Bill Allard

At nine o'clock Sunday morning, Sept. 7th, a small, hardy group of pioneers left Meldon for an attempt at the only trail up Killington from the west, the Juggernaut. None of us had been all the way up it before and some of us didn't expect to make it this time. We had heard that it was six miles of wet and rough brook bed; but we were in for a surprise.

We started up the road, newly opened for logging which was good walking. At the lumber camp the road branched. With unerring woods instinct, the result of many years of experience, we chose the wrong one. It soon petered out but we picked up the right one by cutting through the woods. After this the trail held a steady grade; the walking was quite good. The nicest part is where the trail goes around the north side of the mountain to Cooper Lodge. All the climbing is done by then and there is a nice view of Pico and the mountains to the west. The trail is in good condition on the lower end, but needs marking, and there are several blowdowns on the upper end.

We found the Lodge in good condition and we met a party from Woodstock who had come up the same way. We tried to talk them into getting someone to help them clear the trail; I hope something comes of it. This trail is as easy a one as there is up Killington, and only four and a half miles.

When we got to the top we were really glad we had come. It was one of those rare days when you can see a long way in any direction. After some argument we decided we could see Mt. Washington. We left in time to get out before dark. The only regret was that more hadn't been able to come.

PRE-VIEW OF PICO SHELTER

Three Killington Section members (Pearl Nichols, Eleanor Walker and Vera Perkins), couldn't wait for the scheduled hike to Pico on Nov. 2nd so took advantage of the Thursday P.M. closing during Fair week to visit Pico Shelter and Pico Peak. The shelter looked very usable after its summer face-lifting by the Long Trail Patrol and would be a welcome sight to anyone caught in a storm on the long trek from Killington.

The trail from the shelter to the peak would be much improved by some trimming out but was passable. The day was clear and there was a good view from the tower.

We recommend a hike up Pico and back before dining out. We had dinner at the Lodge and felt we'd never had a better one. (We don't know yet why Eleanor wore ear-rings on this trip.)

ALONG THE SEPTEMBER TRAIL

If you like to study wild flowers along the trail right now is a good time to do some leisurely hiking. You will find that many of the familiar spring flowers have taken on new forms. A large, single, bright red bead has replaced the blossom of the well-known Trillium. Low growing red berries appear among the moss and fern where we saw the neat, starry blossoms of the Bunchberry earlier in the season. The blue berry of the Clintonia near-by makes a nice contrast. Jack-in-the-pulpit has become a stiff, prim cluster of red berries. The Hobble-bush now flaunts bunches of orange-red berries.

You may find too the ghostly Indian Pipe and such late blooming flowers as the Touch-me-not, wild Aster, Turtle-head, and if you are very lucky, perhaps the Bottled Gentian.

Each month offers its own attractions along the trail and September is no exception.

HOUSE WARMING AT CLARENDON SHELTER - SAT. OCT. 25th

For some time we have talked about having a "house-warming" at our new Clarendon Shelter. This is it. The G.M.C. Trustees are meeting in Rutland on this date and we are inviting them to join us for this event.

The general plan at present is to have a spaghetti supper and "divvy" up the cost among those attending - the Trustees to be guests of the Killington Section. If you prefer to bring your own supper you may do so. If you plan to eat from the "big kettle" you must make reservations with Maxine Newhall (Tel. 2716-W) by Wednesday, Oct. 22nd - and don't forget to bring your cup, plate, etc. Supper at 6:30 P.M.

For the Trustees - we are reminding you to bring along hiking shoes for the trip in from the highway - we will provide transportation to the trail and the necessary eating utensils. We need to know how many of you will be coming so after the Trustees assemble will someone take a count of those who plan to sup with us and telephone the number to Maxine Newhall by noon.

This Clarendon Shelter is really worth seeing not to mention the fun of getting together - so - come one - come all - but let us know how many!

RUMMAGE SALE - SAT.-NOV.1st

The Rummage Sale will be held in the Neighborhood Rooms and we will be there Fri.-Oct. 31st to receive material and prepare for the sale.

The following people have volunteered to act on the committee: Mary Jennings, "T" Valiquette, Betty Ball, Maxine Newhall, Craigie and Mary Perkins, and Vera Perkins. Anyone else who would be willing to assist at the sale will be most welcome - just contact one of the above.

Of course we are counting on all of you to help by getting material to us. Please get it to us Fri.-Oct. 31st between 9 A.M. and 5 P.M. at the Neighborhood Rooms. If you have material but it is impossible for you to get it to us call Craigie Perkins - Tel. 907-M - before Fri.-Oct. 31st.

HELLEBORE HOLLOW TRAIL

On Oct. 5th, Emile Boscelli, Ray Catozzi, Craigie Perkins, Carl and Maxine Newhall, scouted out the old Hellebore Hollow Trail on Blue Ridge Mt. This trail leaves the Elbow Road just opposite the start of the Blue Trail to Tucker Lodge. Blazes were painted but little clearing done. There were several bad blowdowns near the spruce swamp that will require a lot of work.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sun; Oct. 19 - 8:30 A.M.
Place - Brandon Gap to Carmel Camp.

This will be the last of our fall series of progressive hikes covering a definite section of The Long Trail. Those who have taken the first two will surely want to complete the series and others will find this an interesting hike and a good opportunity to cover this 6.6 mi. of The Long Trail. (Total hiking distance will be about 8.6 mi. as we have to hike out from Carmel Camp to New Boston).

The attendance on these hikes has been especially good - as we have noted before the stiffer hikes seem to bring out the crowd! Note the starting time is 8:30 A.M. Please be prompt.

Time - Sunday, Oct. 26th
Place - Bradder's Camp at McLaughlin Falls.

This one is an "extra Dividend" put in between the customary two-week intervals. We planned it this way for two reasons. First, we wanted to see McLaughlin Falls without its blanket of snow this time and have a chance for some exploring in that area under Mr. Bradder's direction. Second, we thought the attendance on the three preceding hikes might have been small due to their length (a poor guess, that one) and we should put in a shorter one to even things. Anyway it's everyone's good luck to have this chance to visit the Bradder Camp at McLaughlin Falls.

Time - Sunday, Nov. 2nd.
Place - Pico

This is an old favorite which hasn't been on the schedule for some time. The total mileage on this looks short (about 5 mi.) in comparison with some of the 2 recent trips. However it's still a good stiff climb to Pico so don't stay home because you think it's too easy! On this trip we will have an opportunity to look over the repair job done on the Pico Shelter this summer.

LONG TRAIL LODGE TO NOYES POND by Janet Martin

At 9:40 A.M. on September 21st, seventeen hardy GNCers assembled at Heldon school to begin the hike of the first part of the 6th Division of The Long Trail. Transportation was consolidated into three cars and all proceeded to The Long Trail Lodge where the footwork was to begin.

It was a cloudy day but fortunately for all the rain held off until the drive home through Chittenden. The bird watchers didn't have much luck as our feathered friends were very quiet. One downy woodpecker and a few other birds were reported. We took a picture of some bottled Gentians growing aside the Trail at its junction with "Craigue's Road". The rock hounds came up with a specimen purported to be a garnet schist. Carl Newhall found a stone with strange squared cavities in it but left it under a tree while awaiting transportation, so "what" will remain a mystery. Following the discussion at Noyes Pond much research has divulged that Moosewood is Striped Maple and Striped Maple is Moosewood.

All in all it was a very educational and enjoyable hike, especially to one who has spent the summer in the loudly acclaimed "wide open spaces" of Oklahoma. Quite frankly we missed Vermont and were glad to be back hiking The Trail.

I'm sure everyone on the hike wishes to join me in thanking Pearl and Ruth for the taxi service without which such a hike would be impossible.

SOME IMPRESSIONS OF A SUMMER ABROAD
by Edith Ewald

It was reported there were more Americans in Europe and Scandanavia this past summer than at any time in the history of travel. It was my fourth trip to Europe, but my first visit to Scandanavia. The Olympics and a World Seminar in Health, Physical Education, and Recreation in Helsinki were the chief reasons for my going in 1952.

The people who stayed at home and read the sporting news and saw the news reels were probably quite aware of what went on at the Olympics. However, it was a thrilling experience to really be present for the opening ceremony and to see over 5000 participants from 71 different nations enter the stadium, each preceded by the National flag of the country. The entrance of Nurmi, former Olympic star from Finland, and the lighting of the Olympic torch followed by the Olympic Hymn and the release of the peace doves marked the climax.

Other exciting moments were during the games, when the United States had won an event and the victory ceremony was held. At these times, forty in all, the Stars and Stripes were hoisted and the Star Spangled Banner was played by the Olympic Band.

Finland has many places for outings as does Sweden, but not until we were in Norway did we have many outings in the country (unless I were to mention the time we hiked around the palace grounds of the summer residence of the King and Queen of Denmark). The King and Queen were in Greenland so a group of us, about 20 Danes and Americans, at midnight had permission to make ourselves at home.

At Voss, Norway, birthplace of Knute Rockne, we stayed in a Youth Hostel. The building was one which had been built by the Germans and had been used as an Officers' Club. Four bunk cabins had been added, with electric heating and individual controls of the heat in each cabin. There was hot and cold running water and a beautiful fireplace in the lounge, so it was really hostelling deluxe. Other guests at the hostel were a bunch of English girls who were really on a hiking holiday. Incidentally this is about the only way the British can take a holiday as no one is allowed more than a few pounds to spend outside the British Isles.

From the hostel some of our party hiked to the town of Voss, a distance of two miles, but took the bus back as it was raining, so we were not really hikers. The next day we had a bus trip to Ulvik and hiked about the Hardanger Fjord. This was a beautiful trip. From time to time I had said that we have just as pretty scenery in Vermont, but when we got to Western Norway with all of the Fjords, the many waterfalls and the mountainous area, I had to say, "we haven't anything like this in Vermont."

Before we arrived at Voss we were at Flam, head of the Auland Fjord. We had come down to Flam from Myrdal which lies 2900 feet above sea level and Flam 6 feet ! The trip down, a distance of 12 miles, took 53 minutes. The gradient was 1 in 18 and there were 20 tunnels. At Flam we hiked along the Fjord where beautiful big raspberries were in season and many flowers common in Vermont, were in blossom.

When we were in Bergen we took the funicular railway to the top of Floyen mountain which is 1050 feet above sea level. Here we had lunch, explored the top of the mountain, enjoyed the view of Bergen and the surrounding country, after which we hiked down the mountain. There were seven other mountains surrounding Bergen, but time did not permit a trip on all of them.

At Oslo we saw the famous raft "Kon-Tiki" on which Thor Heyerdal and five companions drifted across the Pacific. Nearby was housed the Polar expedition ship "Fram" which was used by Nansen and Amundson on their polar trips. We saw the early Viking ships which are in a separate museum. We went up the Holmenkollen hill, scene of the Olympic ski jumping. The place we had lunch was built into the actual lip of the ski-jump, so the jumper had to pass over the restaurant in his flight through the air. The ski museum, in the same building as the restaurant, housed many weird and wonderful skis.

It is easy to see the Norwegians have a great love of the out doors, as do most of the people in the Northern countries. My one regret after being gone over two months and after visiting nine different countries was that there was too little time for out door living. Vermont offers many similar opportunities so we should enjoy what we have all around us.

NOYES POND TO CARMEL

The second of our fall series of hikes connecting points on The Long Trail proved to be as successful as our first one. After the car problem was taken care of, (we are getting expert at this) we started for Noyes Pond from the Chittenden side; destination, New Boston.

We were off, fifteen of us, on a day that looked like rain and with a promise of about eleven miles of hiking. (We have decided that all it takes to get the Killington Section out is to offer them a good tough schedule.)

North Pond was a little off our route but many of us had never seen it so we decided to eat there.

Five members of the party, the fast hikers, those on the younger side, never found the pond. They dashed on, mile after mile until they reached Carmel Camp where they ate their lunch and then climbed Carmel. When they returned to camp there still was no sign of the rest of the group. Diane Conlon and Ruth LaBrake had hiked up to the camp from New Boston with an offer of transportation to any of the hikers who wanted it. Now there were seven waiting for the strollers.

To flashback to our party at North Pond --:

We had two gasoline stoves and a good wood fire going. There was a race on to see which fire would produce boiling water first for the Nescafe. (Yes, no coffee this time - but that is a matter of opinion.)

After eating our lunch and viewing the pond we headed back to the trail. No one was in any great hurry so we just moseyed along. It had been cloudy all day but the air and conversation had been brisk and everyone was happy. The impending darkness did not worry us until about 4:30 P.M. when we estimated we had about three more miles to go. A porky had been battled with and his ears and some of his quills claimed.

Darkness comes fast in the woods especially on a cloudy day. We were walking down the last two miles to the road over a brook bed where the white stones served as guides as to where we might get a footing. Five of us were going a little more cautiously than the front five. (We learned later that they had a flashlight.) Soon the first five were out of hearing distance and the remaining five were 'lost in the wilderness' not actually, but were willing to be considered 'lost'. It has often been said that Craigie carries an unnecessary load in his pack. No one will ever again ask, "Why do you carry all that stuff?" He had a small bottle of kerosene to which he added a strip of handkerchief for a wick. Soon we had a light and away we went !

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sunday, Nov. 16th
Place - Blue Ridge

This hike offers all kinds of possibilities for adapting to the prevailing weather conditions and the wishes of the hikers.

We will leave from Meldon School at 9:30 A.M. and drive to the Craigie Perkins' Camp in Mendon. According to present plans we will start our hike from there, leave our packs at the Cascades on the way up, go on to the top, enjoy the view and return to the Cascades for dinner. After dinner we will return to camp and thence home - eventually. If the weather proves unpleasant for dining out we can return to camp for a late dinner.

Those who do not care to climb Blue Ridge may go to the camp at whatever time they wish, explore any of the various trails around there, and join the rest of the party on its return from the mountain.

This should make a good day's outing however you do it.

Time - Saturday, Dec. 6th
Place - Beechwood - Covered Dish Supper

Just as regularly each year as Fourth of July, Thanksgiving, and Christmas, comes our Covered Dish Supper. The date for it is fast approaching. We shall follow the usual plan again this year: visitors welcome anytime after 2 P.M.; supper served starting at 6 P.M.; each person or family group attending brings something toward the feast; every one brings his own plate, cup, knife, fork, and spoon. You will get your assignment as to what to bring when you make your reservation with Vera Perkins. (tel. 1910) Please make this reservation by Friday night, Dec. 5th if possible.

We plan to have a projector and screen available and would like anyone who has pictures of GMC interest to bring them along for an informal showing. Janice Catozzi will have our albums there and this would be a good time to get any pictures you have for our permanent collection to her.

From past experience we strongly advise coming in time to take a hike before supper - you'll wish you had when you see what's before you at six o'clock. At a covered dish supper you sample everything you know!

RUMMAGE SALE NETS $95.86

Thanks to the cooperation of Killington Section members and friends we had a substantial sum to add to our treasury after the Rummage Sale.

Thanks go out to all who helped in any way to make this a success.

With deep sorrow we report the death of Matilda Goulding, a Life Member of the Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club.

CLARENDON HOUSE WARMING

Warming, did you say? If any house was ever heated then the new Clarendon Lodge was really heated on October 25th. Fifty members and friends of the Killington Section attended the spaghetti dinner held in celebration of the building of the Lodge at the site of the old Clarendon Shelter. Nobody expected any such turnout for the affair but there was plenty of food for all and lots of help in serving it. There was no committee. Everybody just lent a hand.

During the day an advance party consisting of Carl and Maxine Newhall, Craigie Perkins and Miriam and Bennett Bell put in and creosoted the last of the trim, and washed the windows. Logs were placed around the outdoor fires for seats.

At 3:30 the fires were started and water for the spaghetti put on to boil. About dark Janice, Ray, and Fernand Catozzi with many quarts of home-made sauce arrived on the scene. This smelled so good that all hands on deck decided to eat right away.

Soon the crowd started to come by ones, threes, and sixes. Gasoline lanterns gave brilliant light both inside the Lodge and out front near the fires. There was much excitement and rushing around with cries of "She's boiling" and "Gang way! Hot stuff comin' through." The front windows of the Lodge were opened and the food was dished inside and passed out to the famished multitude. Spaghetti and sauce, cabbage salad, bread and butter, doughnuts and coffee. Yes, there were even seconds.

We didn't get a complete list of those who served the food but Pearle Nichols, Marjory Allard, Vera Perkins, Jean Whitcomb, Maxine Newhall, and Janice Catozzi were seen inside the Lodge, from which were excluded all but workers (and talkers).

After all had been stuffed to capacity there was a good old jabberfest around the fires. Jim Green and Bill Mitchell, GMC Trustees from Worcester, were welcomed to the festivities, and it was regretted that more of the Trustees could not attend. Also we missed Mr. Otis Kelly owner of the land on which the Lodge stands, who was unable to be present.

No speeches were made but everyone understood and appreciated that the Lodge was made possible by the donation of $250 by Mr. W.O. Wiley of New York, and by the almost 400 hours of labor contributed by Carl and Maxine Newhall. Hikers on The Long Trail for the next generation or so will be indebted to them for their splendid generosity.

MCLAUGHLIN FALLS

In spite of the big Clarendon Lodge celebration the previous evening, 10 members were on hand Sunday A.M., October 26th for the trip to McLaughlin Falls.

We were disappointed that Mr. Bradder was unable to spend the day with us due to the fire hazzard condition in the forests. However he accompanied us to camp, gave us information on trails, and left us on our own to enjoy the camp and surroundings. We visited the falls, discussed the rock formations, tried for some pictures, and some of us even took a pleasant, short hike.

When we assembled at camp for a leisurely dinner we were glad to welcome 'The Bells'. Later on Bill, 'Rilla, Judy, and Mary Elizabeth Allard paid us a visit.

The after dinner visiting just seemed to prolong itself and almost before we knew it the sun was going down ending a thoroughly enjoyable day, and another hike - or should we say outing - was over.

PICO HIKE
by Barbie Allard

On a lovely fall day a group of 12 GMC hikers started out for Pico Peak.

The trail was good but a little damp. Some beechnuts were found by the trail. Many chipmunks were out gathering food for winter. In some spots there was snow. At the shelter we ate lunch before going to the top. On the top in some places the snow was eight inches deep. The wind was quite strong on top especially in the tower. It was very hazy. While we were standing near the State Police office, we heard a call come in. Some of the hikers called home by the telephone on top.

Going down we met Charlotte Rutkowski and further along 'The Bells'. After we reached the bottom some of the hikers climbed Deer Leap. We arrived home safely before dark after a day of fun. (Just for the record we'd like to add that Charlotte was wearing shorts - the date was Nov. 2nd! Ed.)

ABOUT FOLKS WE'D LIKE TO KNOW

Each month as we sort the SMOKE AND BLAZES for mailing we have been impressed with the number which go in the out-of-town pile. This led us to the thought that since we have little chance to get acquainted with many of these out-of-town members it would be fun to have a sort of "get acquainted" column in SMOKE AND BLAZES. Accordingly we picked a name at random and wrote to Miss Helen Frink of Randolph asking her to tell us something about herself for the first such column. Here is her reply:-

" To answer a few of the questions in your letter can say that I joined GMC the year pictures of the new Cooper Lodge on Killington Peak were sent out. I have hiked a portion of the trail and believe it is very worthwhile to maintain it in good condition, and wish to do a bit to help. Although I do not seem to be able to hike with you, I thoroughly enjoy reading the accounts of your trips in SMOKE AND BLAZES.

Several years ago I covered the Trail from Killington to Middlebury Gap in three different trips and also camped overnight on Camel's Hump, Mt. Mansfield and Jay Peak. Lately my trips have been confined to the vicinity of Randolph as it hasn't been convenient to go farther away.

During the week I can be found in the office of The Sargent - Roundy Corp., manufacturers of farm implements, but on Saturday afternoon my choice is a walk in the fields and woods. The data found on my driver's license is Age 41, brown hair and eyes, 5' 5", 122 lbs.

If you are looking for new country to explore, I'd suggest Mt. Chushman which can be easily approached from the village of Rochester. The view from the fire tower on the top of this mountain is marvelous on a clear day.

I'll be interested to read replies from other out-of-town members and think it would be only fair for you to publish information about the Rutland members for the benefit of the out-of-towners."

We appreciate Helen Frink's interesting letter and hope to have more such letters from members in SMOKE AND BLAZES from time to time.

BRANDON GAP TO CARMEL

The day set for the Brandon Gap to Carmel trip dawned chill and grey but the advance task force, undaunted, left Rutland at 7:45 A.M. on Sunday, Oct. 19th to "plant" cars at "New Boston" ready to transport hikers home at the end of the day. Helen Bailey, Vera and Craigie Perkins drove their cars up and Pearle Nichols gave up her Sunday morning nap to accompany them and bring them back to join the rest of the crowd at Melton School at 8:30 A.M.

Fifteen hikers were loaded into three cars and we were off. At Brandon Gap we left the cars and started our day's work. We had gone only a short distance on the Trail when the clouds fulfilled their promise and we were soon enjoying the first snowstorm of the season.

Because of the storm and the fact that we seemed to be making good time we decided to go through to Carmel Camp before having lunch. The Trail was in good condition and easy - especially for the first couple of hours. As snow collected on the fallen leaves it became slippery and at the same time rougher - so as time and we 'marched on' the way became longer - the snow wetter - and we ourselves colder and hungrier. Just when we, at the end of the line, were beginning to doubt the wisdom of waiting for lunch until we reached Carmel, we were suddenly there. The warm shelter and blazing fire in the outdoor fireplace repaid us for the wait.

After lunch and a comfortable rest the trail out to "New Boston" seemed surprisingly shorter and less rough than when we travelled it in semi-darkness two weeks earlier.

We like these series hikes and hope for another set next year.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Bradder is in the hospital and wish him a speedy recovery.

WHITE ROCKS MOUNTAIN

by Jack Martin

Many of you have probably been to the White Rocks picnic area and vicinity at one time or another. How many of you have made the pleasant and rewarding hike to the cliffs on White Rocks Mountain? Jack and Janet Martin chose to try the Long Trail approach to that spot, against an attempt at the trail-less(?) Shrewsbury Peak, on Saturday, September 27th.

We followed the back or hill road to East Wallingford, from where the picnic area road branches off to the south, for about 2½ miles until we came upon the USFS Long Trail signpost. There we followed the sharp right turn for ¼ mile coming to the bar-way of a farmer's yard where we parked the car.

Seeing a bull of unknown disposition in the pasture we bush-whacked around to the west until we had put a fence between his location and ours and then began the ascent of the mountain. We emerged on the Long Trail at the side trail to the USFS Greenwall shelter. Following the Long Trail south we passed the Keewadin trail and went on up into a picturesque section of pine and fir. Reaching a sign bearing the legend "Lookout" we followed the short, scrambly side trail out onto the sharp and steeply cliffed portion of White Rocks Mt., that is visible from the picnic area. From this vantage point we commanded a view of the whole horizon from Dorset Peak on the south, past Bird, Whiteface, and Pico, to include some unidentified peaks south of Shrewsbury Peak.

Returning, we followed the Long Trail passing through a fine flock of fringed gentians where the trail breaks out into the pasture at the old Bulley Farm. The trail then descended through pasture and out past our parking spot.

Place- Spring Lake Camp

Those who went on the Spring Lake trip last January must be hoping for the same kind of fine winter day that we had on that occasion. Remember the snow covered woods, the frosty trees around the Lake, and the lively game of fox and geese on the way out ?

Spring Lake Camp is a comfortable place for a winter outing and for the many who assisted in its building there is a special satisfaction in going there. Possibly there are some disadvantages in completing these camp projects - we used to visit Spring Lake much more frequently when the work was in progress it seems. Anyway there couldn't be a better way to spend a winter day. Let's find out just how many the camp will hold on January 4th !

REMINDER: Janice Catozzi, chairman of Photography, would like you to be looking over your snapshots and slides taken this past year so that you can select and enter your best ones in the annual contest. Details will be printed in the Jan. issue of S&B.

Be thinking about whether or not you would like to have a Card Party next year. This will be discussed at the annual meeting.

The time and place of the Annual Meeting will be announced in the Jan. issue of S&B.

MERRY CHRISTMAS and HAPPY NEW YEAR to all Killington Section members and friends.

SUCCESSFUL SUPPER PARTY

The Beechwood Covered Dish Supper lived up to its reputation of being a huge success again. The usual mixed crowd of men, women and children, (40 total) the good eats, and the entertainment all added up to another enjoyable Killington Section Outing.

Vera Perkins as hostess, was at camp early in the afternoon to welcome everyone. The house was warm and cozy and so inviting that only a few people went for walks in the woods.

Knitting, reading, and talking occupied us until about six P.M. Then we began to long for that "covered dish supper". It didn't take long for the table to be spread and then a line formed in the dining room. Um ! Um ! Everything tasted so good ! We know we have said that before, but it really deserves repeating.

After the scramble of cleaning up the kitchen and putting away dishes, we were ready for the evening's entertainment.

Ray Catozzi showed movies of two cartoons and one reel of Ico Follies. These were enjoyed especially by the youngsters. The oldsters also got some chuckles. Emil Bocelli showed some very good slides of the Mt. Mansfield area. Janet Martin had some interesting shots of New Hampshire and Vermont that were enjoyed.

BLUE RIDGE
by
Edith V. Ewald

What happened to members of The Green Mountain Club on the Blue Ridge Hike, Sunday, Nov. 16? The Perkins' camp gave us a friendly welcome as Craigue had spent the night and had everything in fine order. We left camp about 10:30, and for the five of us, (Barbara Allard, Janet Martin, Vera and Craigue Perkins, and Edith Ewald) who made it to the top the trip was worthwhile. Deer tracks, the Cascades and other animal tracks along the way added to our enjoyment. We found some snow but the going was not bad. The view from the top was well worthwhile and very unusual because of cloud formations. At intervals we were enveloped in a light cloud which soon passed, then bright sun again. If you would like to understand how the Pico Ski Trails are laid out there is no better place to observe than Blue Ridge.

It was nice to return to camp and find hot coffee awaiting us, as we had not carried lunch with us. Mary Perkins had kept the home fires burning. Pearl Nichols and The Bennett Bells and their three children had joined her after church so in all we were a party of twelve who left for home about 4 P.M. It was a nice day, an excellent hike and we are eternally grateful to the Perkins for their hospitality.

WELL DONE, BILL ALLARD

Bill Allard will begin his studies in the Medical College at U.V.M. next fall having been accepted for admission at the end of his third year at the University. Congratulations, Bill.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Bradder are vacationing in Florida.

2. ABOUT FOLKS WE'D LIKE TO KNOW

We wrote Clara Ekwall of East Arlington asking her to tell us something about herself for the column this month. Incidentally, we learned that Clara is 'Mrs.' and here we've been addressing her as 'Miss' for some time! Clara wrote:

'I joined GMC in the spring of 1949 while I was a Junior at Castleton Teachers College. Since then I have hiked with you only twice - to Little Rock Pond both times.

I have always loved the out-of-doors, therefore, I think it is wonderful that there is a group of people that work together to keep up a trail and lodgings for the use of all nature-lovers.

During the summer of 1950 I hiked with another of your members, Edith Ewald, and Carolyn McClosky another student at Castleton. We travelled from Manchester to Stratton Pond and then to East Arlington. We took that distance in three days. This was a slow speed but it enabled us to really enjoy our surroundings. The Swamp Pinks were in full bloom, nearly encircling Stratton Pond, so you can imagine how very beautiful and untamed this spot seemed to us!

I am now a housewife living three miles from the center of Arlington at the foot of Red Mountain (belonging to the Taconic Range). My husband and I have found that on this mountain there are also many fine places to hike.

I agree with Miss Helen Frink. I think the out-of-town members would enjoy hearing from the Rutland members.' (Looks like maybe we started something with this idea! Thank you for your interesting letter Clara Ekwall.- Ed.)

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Jack Martin sends best wishes for Christmas to the Killington Section from Gmund, Germany where he is serving with the 108th Field Artillery of the 28th Div. He reports the town lies between low mountains "(hills)" on a river. It is an old walled city of which two of the watch towers and some of the walls still show. Recently he went to Munich for a week's lectures for new officers in Europe and reported icy roads much like home. While in Munich they visited several historic spots such as the ancient home of the Bavarian kings. The men of the 108th are celebrating Christmas by giving a party for a German orphanage.

Joe Valiquette has enlisted in the Navy and is now training at Bainbridge, Maryland.

ANOTHER CAMPING TRIP

During the week of Oct. 1st, Mary Jennings, "T" Valiquette and Mary and Vera Perkins enjoyed a fall camping trip for the 4th consecutive year. Having visited most of the Vermont State Parks which offer camping facilities, we decided to venture into New Hampshire and selected White Lake Park as our destination.

This park proved to have a fine camping area in a lovely pine grove. The Lake was nowhere in sight but exploration the next day discovered it just over the hill. It is an interesting small lake with an excellent beach and Mt. Chocoura showing in the background on the far side.

The trip had been extended this year to give us two full days in camp. At first the time was passed in the usual camping activities; short hikes, boating, eating and its attendant housekeeping - and of course the evening Canasta games. Late afternoon of the second day brought an innovation - RAIN. We had often wondered how we'd manage in case of rain - we found out!

Mary J. and "T" won laurels by achieving a ham and baked potato supper over an open fire in spite of rain. This was accomplished by dashing back and forth from the tent to the fire at strategic intervals. Fortunately we had the Perkins' umbrella tent this year so had a dry place to eat and spend the evening.

The Canasta game continued through the thunderstorm and down-pour while outside in our fireplace the fire blazed merrily. (The Park supervisors had generously brought us a truckload each of slabs and excellent larger wood.)

About midnight the rain stopped and the moon came out. We stirred up the fire, had our 'nightcap' of Nestles and went to bed thinking the rain was over. Not so, we heard it on the tents again before we went to sleep and it was still raining when we awoke in the morning.

There was just too much water everywhere to even try to make breakfast so we drove to the nearest little town for our morning coffee. We then had the task of breaking camp in the rain. This was a messy job but had the advantage of novelty and wasn't really as bad as we had expected. We changed into dry clothing in the washroom before driving home and suffered no ill effects from our 'dampening off'.

We all had a grand time and proved to our satisfaction that given the right company, equipment, and point of view, camping is fun - rain or shine.

(This report comes to you late as this is the first issue we have had room for it.--Ed.)

G.M.C. COOPERATION COMMITTEE AT WORK

Although vandalism is less frequent than it used to be, there is still far too much misuse of the Club's Trails and Camps. A small amount of the trouble is caused by downright viciousness that should lead to punishment of the offenders. Most of our difficulties are caused either by carelessness or ignorance of Trail etiquette or Camp customs. Such things can be corrected.

Last January the Killington Section got beyond the talking stage and passed a resolution calling on the Club to take some action leading to closer contacts with the summer camps and other groups who are using our facilities more and more each year. The matter was discussed at the Annual Meeting but no effective action was taken until the Trustees met in October. Fred Field and Craigie Perkins were authorized to offer cooperation with other Clubs with interests similar to those of The Green Mountain Club.

The first groups to be contacted by the Committee will be the Outing Clubs of Vermont Colleges, Normal Schools, and Junior Colleges. The next step will be to get in touch with the Summer Camps, and later perhaps with the High School Outing Clubs, Boy and Girl Scouts, Fish and Game Clubs, and Nature Clubs.

It is planned to explain to these groups the organization and program of The Green Mountain Club and to suggest the interchange of publications. The use of the Slide Collection will be offered, and where practicable a visit to the group may be made to give a talk with the slides or to discuss Trail equipment, and clothing, Trail cooking, etc.

In this way it is hoped that these people may be made to realize the expense and labor necessary to build and maintain our Trails and Camps, and so be more disposed to use them properly.

Another possible result of these activities may be a greater interest in local trails and mountains. It would be a fine thing if old trails could be reopened on the Worcester Range, the Northfield Mountains, Dorset Peak and dozens of others. Just recently the Castleton Historical Society has cleared the old trail up Bird Mountain in Ira. A little encouragement and help from The Green Mountain Club might lead to considerable development along this line.

SPRING LAKE CAMP REPAIRS

Emil Bocelli, Carl Newhall, and Craigie Perkins visited Spring Lake Camp on Saturday, November 29th to get it in shape for winter. A young man from Wallingford was staying there for the week-end so he pitched in and helped.

The first job was setting six lights of glass. It was too cold to work on them in place so the sash were brought in by that good old stove.

Then the doors had to be closed for winter. All the necessary special boards etc. were found and nailed in place so that the Summer Open Shelter became a Winter Closed Camp. One door was left so that it can be opened for winter use. A good sweep-up and the Camp looked like new.

Miss Anna Berg visited us briefly around noon on a trip over the Trail to the Gorge.

As this is being written, it looks as if snow shoes, skis, and a White Christmas may be on the program for December 25, 1952.

Killington Section Green Mountain Club

Jan. 1953

ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting of the Killington Section G.M.C. will be held on Saturday, January 24th, at 7:30 P.M., at the Green Mt. Awning Co., headquarters, 93 Killington Ave.

The entertainment program promises to be especially enjoyable. Carl Newhall Sr., will be with us and will show slides taken on his recent trip across the country. We had an excellent sample of Mr. Newhall's photography at last year's meeting and can promise that this program will be a treat.

There will be the usual business meeting at which time we will have reports on the Section's activities during the past year and the election of officers for the coming year. A nominating committee consisting of Fred Field, Ch., Craigie Perkins and Harold Valiquette has been appointed. This meeting is also the time for suggestions and discussion of plans for the coming year. It is a much used saying that nothing can stand still - we either go forward or slip back. We have no intention of letting Killington Section 'slip back' so be thinking of what we should be planning and doing to make sure we progress forward.

The innovation last year of serving coffee and doughnuts proved so popular that it will be repeated this year. A committee will be appointed to arrange for this. (Bring your own cup, please)

This meeting is an important Club activity in which everyone can participate. Show your interest in G.M.C. and the Killington Section by joining us there.

PHOTOGRAPHY CONTEST

The Photography Contest will be held at the Annual Meeting as usual.

This year, Janice Catozzi, chairman, has requested that all members who wish to participate will please get slides or snapshots to her a few days before the meeting. Please take note of this change in procedure.

Janice has drawn up the following regulations which will guide you in selecting the pictures to submit.

1. Only pictures taken in 1952 are eligible.
2. Pictures must have been taken on The Long Trail or on a Killington Section hike.
3. Pictures will be judged on photographic merit.

Look over your slides and snapshots and select some to enter in the Contest. The more pictures entered the more interesting it will be.

Janice would also like prints of pictures taken on Outings for the Section's album.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sunday, January 18th

Place - Clarendon Lodge

This is our first regular scheduled outing at our new deluxe, Clarendon Lodge. If you didn't get to the 'house-warming' which we had there in the fall, curiosity should urge you to get to see this much talked of place. Those who have already seen it will surely be anxious to go back and enjoy a winter day there--so--it seems as if there should be a record attendance on this one.

As most of you know it is a short and easy trip into Clarendon Lodge, either by way of the old road or via The Long Trail from highway Route 103. Once there the surroundings are perfect if you want a lazy, relaxing day, or there is ample opportunity for further snow-shoeing and skiing if you are in an ambitious mood. The trip is short enough so that those who do not wish to start until noon or after may still arrive in time to enjoy the outing with the group. All in all it seems to be a perfect set-up for an outing which will appeal to everyone.

Time - Saturday, January 31st
Supper and evening hike out.

Place - Tucker Lodge

This one was scheduled with due regard for the phases of the moon and if we make the proper arrangements with Mr. Kirk for fine weather we should be able to enjoy a moonlight hike out.

We can remember several cozy, winter evenings at Tucker after a steak supper and there's nothing better. (We don't insist on the steak, hamburger or hot dogs will do just as well.) Warmth, food, snow, moonlight, and congenial company - what more could you ask for? Don't miss it.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sunday February 15th

Place - ? ? ? ?

We can't give you details now on this as it will be the first on the new schedule, but save the date.

The Outing Chairman for this year will be appointed after the Annual Meeting and the new schedules will be made up in time to go out with your February SMOKE AND BLAZES.

Now is the time to get in your suggestions for Outings you'd like to have included. Give your Suggestions to the present Outing Chairman and she will pass them on.

LOOKING BACK OVER THE YEARS

It is a rainy Sunday afternoon and the soft, fluffy snow of last week is turning into a dreary looking black slush on our streets.

It is a good afternoon to stay inside and look back over the years to pleasant GMC hikes. So with this in mind we turn the pages of the old Outing Hike books and they bring back memories of places and people. The places are still with us. We visit them quite frequently. The people - some of them have been missing for a long time. Of course some of the youngsters of yester-year have moved away, married and have children. Others are away at various colleges. We miss them and hope some day they may come back and enjoy The Green Mountains again.

Then there are the old timers, not in years, but in loyalty and regard for GMC, who have been absent for some time. We wonder, have they been so burdened with the cares of this tired world that they haven't time to relax? If so, let us suggest there is no better tonic for frayed nerves and tired bodies than a trip to the top of a lofty peak or a tramp through the woods on The Trail.

SPRING LAKE IN WINTER

After the excitement of the Christmas holidays, the culmination of the wedding plans into reality, the end of the family parties, and finally when all "good byes" were said, we took to the woods.

It was a clear, crisp, sunny day with the air invigorating enough to be breathed in deep, and relished like nourishing food. The birches and the evergreens dressed in snow trimmed gowns stood tall and stately on a pure white carpet against a curtain of deep blue. This was the scene we looked on as we hiked up the road to the Spring Lake Camp.

When we left the road and turned into the field that leads to the old wood road, we put on our snow shoes. Carl, Maxine, and Emil were in the lead with Carl breaking trail for a while and then Maxine taking a turn. This little exertion should have been appreciated by the rest of the party and no doubt was.

Not a sound but our own voices, not a track but our own, to break the spell of quiet and aloneness ! Then at the last turn in the trail just before we came to the Camp a view of snow covered fields and villages that reaches to the Tachonics unfolded before us and brought forth exclamations of delight.

With many folks to help it wasn't long before a fire burned hotter than hot in the "Valiquette Special" and lunches were taken from packs and heated, fried, and boiled.

With twenty hungry hikers eating and talking there was little left of the quietness of the woods, but it was good to have the companionship of our hiking friends and to enjoy with them the give and take of conversation. We talked of coming Club events, the best equipment and food to carry on the trail etc. It is at times like this when ideas are formed and sometimes worked into projects. We all agreed (of course we are somewhat prejudiced) that the Spring Lake Camp site is one of the most beautiful on The Trail and that Spring Lake Camp is rather special. Then the idea came forth - "How to make it better." It was suggested that perhaps we could at some future date line the inside walls with wall board. Well, there's the idea, anyway.

It was dark when we reached the cars. As we drove home we had that comfortable feeling that comes after a day in the woods.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

We were sorry to hear that Joe Valiquette has been ill with scarlet fever at his base in Bainbridge, Maryland. Joe was one of ten men picked from his company to be in the inaugural parade. We hope he recovers in time to make it.

Betty Ball spent the Christmas holidays in Florida visiting relatives.

Bob, Thelma, David, and Anne Perkins visited Vermont for the holidays. While here, Bob and Thelma got in a few hikes; one to the new Clarendon Lodge, and one to Tucker. Their trip from and back to Ypsilanti, Michigan was made by car in about seventeen hours each way.

Janet Martin expects to sail for Germany January 22nd to be with her husband Lt. John Martin who is stationed in Gmund, Germany.

Your editors expect to take a camping trip this week and hope to be snow bound in Mendon a few days.

WHAT KIND OF A TREE IS THAT?

Looking through a hand-book on Trees which we received for Christmas, we were impressed with how much we didn't know! Along with this we recalled many discussions we'd heard while on hikes which went something like this - "Is that a spruce tree?"

"No, I think it's a balsam."

"I thought balsam needles were light underneath."

"Well, I don't know. Could it be a hemlock?" - and so on.

We put these two thoughts together and decided maybe a short article might serve to help us increase our knowledge and also inspire further study for everyone.

Trees are a big subject so we are limiting our study this time to a few of the conifers - that is trees with needle-like or scaly leaves. Winter is as good a time as any to start this study. Among the conifers in our locality are several varieties of spruce and pine, hemlock, balsam fir, and juniper.

One characteristic which is helpful in distinguishing trees is their general appearance. We can learn to recognize many from their form and habit of growth. For example, spruce grow straight and tall, tapering up to a point, and have drooping, horizontal branches. Balsam Fir is a cone-shaped tree whose branches tend to point upward rather than droop. Juniper is a short, clumpy, spreading tree.

Anyone who has climbed Killington or any other fair-sized mountain does not need to be reminded that environment often alters the form of trees so they are less easily recognized by the general appearance.

There are other more specific characteristics which are helpful in identifying trees. The leaves (needles to us) of the conifers have their own distinguishing characteristics.

Fitch Pine has three needles in a cluster which stand out at right angles to the twig. Red Pine needles are a dark, glossy green and come in pairs, while White Pine has bluish green needles in clusters of 5. It is interesting to know that the needles stay on these trees for periods of from 2 to 5 years.

Spruce needles are in close spirals all around the twig and each needle is four sided. Balsam Fir has white lines on the under side of the needles. Hemlock has short, flat needles on small stalks in two flattened rows - they are darker above and silver lined underneath. Tamaracks shed their leaves in winter.

Cones contain the seed of this type of tree and these too differ. Fitch and White Pine cones have a prickly on them, while Red Pine cones are unarmed. Spruce cones are always hanging down. Hemlock cones are smaller. Tamarack cones grow upright. Junipers have modified cones the scales of which join to form a bluish berry which contains the seeds.

Observation of differences in the bark of these trees is another help in knowing them but it is difficult to consider these differences without a sample or at least a photograph.

Conifers have characteristic blossoms too. Have you ever noticed them?

Why not choose a tree, visit it at least once a month and get to know it thoroughly, bud, leaves, flowers, fruit, seasonal color, twigs and bark. The uses of its wood is an interesting study too.

Trees are all around us in infinite variety. They will stand still and let you look at them and it requires no expensive equipment to study them. This could well be an interesting and worthwhile hobby.

KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB

Feb. 1953

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Killington Section, G.M.C. is about to launch upon another hiking season. During the past year I look upon the rebuilding of Clarendon Shelter as our greatest achievement which was accomplished largely through the efforts of Maxine and Carl Newhall. Clarendon Lodge can now be classed as one of the best lodges on The Long Trail.

Our schedule of hikes for the past year was most interesting - thanks to the efforts of Vera Perkins - our Outing Chairman. The schedule included hikes in other sections of the G.M.C. as well as in our own "hunting ground." They were all well attended and enjoyed.

The trail situation in our section is good - thanks to our Trails Chairman- Craigie Perkins. Of course this is a perennial problem and the condition of the trail quickly changes. The ravages of winter will again face us this spring.

Each year presents new problems, but somehow or other, they are solved through the co-operation and suggestions of the members. Most of the problems are solved by hard work alone - and as the saying goes, "Many hands make light work." I do hope that the ensuing year will prove as profitable and interesting as the past.

George Conlon, President.

REPORT OF THE ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Killington Section of the G.M.C. was held January 24th at the workshop of the Green Mountain Awning Co. on Killington Avenue in Rutland, Vermont.

The following names for officers were submitted by Fred Field, chairman of the nominating committee: President, George Conlon; Vice President, Charlotte Rutkowski; Secretary-Treasurer, Eleanor Walker. They were unanimously elected.

The finances of the Section as reported by Eleanor Walker, Treasurer, are in very good condition.

The various committees reported an active year that showed progress in work and activities. Membership has remained about the same for the past few years. Ninety-six was the total for 1952.

A complete report from the Shelters Committee has been printed in THE LONG TRAIL NEWS - so it is not repeated here.

After the business meeting Carl Newhall Sr. showed some interesting slides of a trip he took this past summer to the West coast. The shots of Grand Canyon, Bryce Canyon, and the Yosemite Valley were outstanding pictures that showed great photographic skill.

Maude Canty and Ruth Postman served refreshments.

COMING EVENTS

WINTER WEEK-END

Time - Sunday, February 22nd &
Monday, February 23rd

Place - Perkins' Camp, Mendon

With the holiday coming just right for it, we decided to try a Sunday-Monday combination for the annual Winter Week-end.

As in previous years, meals for this outing (Sunday dinner & supper and Monday breakfast & dinner) will be planned for by the chairman. Meals will be served family style - the work being done cooperatively by those attending. A nominal charge per meal will be made to cover the cost of food.

Craigie plans to be at camp from Saturday A.M. on, and says anyone wishing to go up Saturday is welcome. Those going Saturday should take food for their own meals until the group service begins Sunday noon.

Each one is asked to bring cup, knife, fork, and spoon. Those staying over night should be sure to bring their own sleeping bags or blankets.

In order to plan efficiently it is necessary to have a fairly accurate count as to how many are to be present for each meal. So-- PLEASE MAKE RESERVATIONS

BY FRIDAY NOON, FEB. 21st with Vera Perkins (Tel. 1910)

This is one of the events we look forward to each year. The best snow of the season has been saved for this weekend (we hope) so bring your snowshoes and/or skis and come along. You'll have fun.

Time - Sunday, March 8th

Place - Clement Shelter

This is a place we haven't visited in a long time. There is a good chance for the ambitious to get in a good day's hiking from here. For those who prefer to relax this is a good spot for that activity also.

CLARENDON LODGE - JANUARY 8

by
Diana Conlon

This trip was scheduled for Sunday, but six of us decided to see how Clarendon would be for a winter overnight and hiked in Saturday - and permit me to add that an overnight would not be complete without our reconnaissance man, wood chopper and fire builder - Craigue Perkins, of course. We certainly were happy to find a nice warm camp to welcome us and soon settled down to relaxing and enjoying Clarendon Lodge.

Our trip in was made without snow-shoes, over hard, crusty, snow. During the night, however, we had a fresh snowfall which turned to rain and sleet. It was a sure test of the snugness and warmth (no leaks, no drafts) of Clarendon Lodge. We were all very enthusiastic and completely unanimous in our approval of this shelter for a winter overnight. Listening to the rain, wind, and sleet outside seemed to make us all the more cozy inside. We didn't even care if we did get marooned or snowed in.

Sunday morning the early bird's breakfasts soon aroused the sleepy ones. What can compare with the aroma of coffee, bacon and eggs on a wintry morning in camp?

After breakfast we had to abandon a hike up the mountain because, with every step, we broke through the crust of snow. Instead we turned our energy towards sculpturing a snow "lady". (the boys went to town on that project!)

The day was overcast and threatening rain so we were a little dubious as to whether anyone would hike in. But we ought to have known better than that. Soon the first group of hikers arrived led by Barbara Allard and Martha Hakin, and surprise to all, our official final count was 17, which speaks well for Clarendon. We certainly are fortunate to have had Carl and Maxine Newhall on that project. Their finished job (construction of a new shelter) after hours of hard work (over 300 in all) is something to be more than proud of and I know we will all spend many enjoyable hours at Clarendon, thanks to the Newhalls.

See you all at Clarendon again, soon I hope.

IT'S A SMALL WORLD

On the Uss America en route to join Jack in Germany, Janet Martin met up with a life member of G.M.C., - Mrs. Charles Bayley of Newbury, Vt. Mrs. Bayley is one of the people who made a gift in the early days of The Long Trail Lodge. This was for a cabin at the Lodge as a memorial to her husband. Janet wrote that about the last thing she expected on her trip was to meet a GMCer.

SUPPER HIKE TO TUCKER LODGE

by
Maxine Newhall

This event did nothing to dim our reputation as an eating club. Emphasis was laid on the supper, since nothing could be done to insure favorable weather and moonlight for hiking out to the road, and the annual Cleanup at Tucker was in capable hands anyway.

But we had neglected to take The Stove into our confidence. As it was, The Stove sulked. It didn't wait till Saturday, it began Friday afternoon. Craigie Perkins and Billy Allard started to reason with it soon after noon, and at intervals fed it with kindness and wood. In the alternate intervals, they fled weeping to chop more wood.

Their supper was warmed as much by their appetite as anything. By the time the Newhalls arrived, after dark, the smoke had subsided but there was still frost thick on the windows. Coersion was added to kindness, and The Stove burned a little better, but only a little.

Saturday morning was devoted to replacing broken windows, chopping wood, and cleaning up. The Lodge was quite presentable to begin with, and this annual chore was not as difficult as it has been in other years.

People arrived at intervals from three o'clock on, and small parties took exploring hikes hither and yon, as long as the light lasted. We had just settled down to the business of supper, and The Stove was snuffling and belching gloomily, when unexpected reinforcements appeared. Five skiers from various sections of New York came in with full packs, after what seemed like miles of cross-country touring. They had skied in from the Pass to spend the night ... and apparently had come

'round the Circle Trail from the other side of Deer Leap. They were welcomed appropriately, and given explicit directions for getting out to the road without retracing "the longest 2 3/4 miles in the world."

The younger generation is getting out in full force. Jimmy Catozzi arrived in a basket for his first hike, and refused any comment. Both Tommy and Peter Field were present, and their entire concern was that Father seemed to be quite slow about cooking hot dogs. On the whole, they seemed to be quite happy about such odd goings-on.

But the hike out, by moonlight... that is another story. Doubtless there have been darker nights. It would be hard to say, except that on that Saturday night you could see absolutely nothing. And the wind blew in hot gusts. And it rained spasmodically. A more complete reversal of our fond hopes could not have been achieved.

But dit that matter? After all, we went in for supper!

SUGAR PARTY - NEXT EVENT

The annual Sugar Party will be held Sunday evening, March 29th - yes, we mean Sunday - at the Deermont Grange Hall in Mendon, beginning at 6 P.M.

Finding a place for the Sugar Party presented quite a problem when it was learned that, due to lack of help and the resulting pressure of work, Mr. and Mrs. Smith were unable to have us come to Camp Sangamon this year. We shall miss our visit there which has always been greatly enjoyed, but Ray Catozzi, chairman for the event seems to have found a good 'next best' solution. It was necessary to change the date to Sunday to avoid conflict with other uses of the hall, but except for this change the party will go on much as usual. The customary sugar-on-snow, pickles, doughnuts, and coffee will be served at six o'clock by Ray and his assistants, and there will be an opportunity for square dancing afterward. A charge sufficient to cover expenses will be made.

If the weather is fine some of you might like to plan to do some hiking in the vicinity during the afternoon. Ray says it will be quite alright for you to bring along some lunch to supplement the sugar-on-snow if you feel you will need a more substantial supper after hiking. (We've known this to be done even when people didn't hike!)

Let's all join in for the usual Sugar Party good time.

GMC ANNUAL MEETING DATE JUNE 6th

Please note this is a week later than usual as Memorial Day comes on Saturday this year.

CARD PARTY - FRIDAY, APRIL 17th

Definite plans are underway for the Card Party to be held at the home of Vera Perkins on Friday evening, April 17th at 8 P.M.

Chairman, Janice Catozzi, held a committee meeting recently to start the ball rolling. Her committee consists of Diana Conlon, Jean Whitcomb, Marjorie Allard, "T" Valiquette, Eleanor Walker and Vera Perkins. (Don't worry fellows, you're not being overlooked - there's that little matter of trucking chairs and tables that's being saved for your attention.)

As the date draws near, one of the committee will call each of you so be thinking how many people you can corral to make up tables. You may play any game you prefer from Tiddle-winks to Contract - including Canasta, Samba, and Scrambles. The charge will be 50 cents per person and there will be prizes and refreshments.

The Card Party and Rummage Sale are our two money making activities during the year. There are many things we would like to do to improve our trails and shelters. If we all get together and support the Card Party it will add a substantial sum to our treasury. Incidentally, we guarantee you a good time.

GOVERNOR CLEMENT HIKE

by
Helen Bailey

On Sunday, March 8, nine rugged mountaineers and one dog set out via heated auto to "hike" to Governor Clement shelter in Northam. About $\frac{1}{2}$ mile from the camp cars were abandoned and the party, equipped with motor robes, proceeded on foot up an excellent, if somewhat icy, logging road.

Upon arrival all hands fell to and collected a choice assortment of firewood. Many have said, in scorn of fireplaces, that they roast the front while the back congeals. This handicap has been overcome at Governor Clement by placing a Valiquette stove directly opposite the fireplace. However, no provision has so far been made for warming the left side, which was whipped by icy blasts, causing some of the members to pitch their camp out of doors on the sunny side of the shelter.

The principal topics of conversation were:

- (a) the relocation of the table and sleeping area
- (b) Where one might sit with propriety and not infringe upon the rights of others
- (c) whether certain members had provided themselves with an adequate and balanced lunch
- (d) why smoke came out of the chimney when there was no fire in the stove.

After eating, most of the party took a walk of about 2 miles up the road to the Congdon lumber camp. En route bird calls were imitated, but with no great response. Many tracks were inspected and there was much speculation as to whether certain ones were house cat, bobcat, or Vermont panther. The greatest mystery was what happened to Craigie's tracks which apparently disappeared entirely in a matter of minutes.

The party broke up early due to the aforementioned wind which made an otherwise perfect March day something less than comfortable. Three members followed the Long Trail a short distance, but found the going too bad and returned to the road, where they were picked up by one of the cars.

NEW STAFF MEMBER

With this issue Marjorie Allard is joining our SLOKE AND BLAZES staff. At present she will have charge of seeing that each outing is written up and made ready for mimeographing.

A long time, loyal member of Killington Section, Marjorie is a graduate of U.V.M. and is teaching Home Economics at West Rutland High School. We are very pleased to have her assistance.

BEST WISHES

Charlotte Rutkowski has returned from Florida with her usual fine tan and a diamond on the important finger!

The lucky man is Mr. Eugene Keenan, a native of Rutland, who graduated from the Univ. of N.H. in 1950. Mr. Keenan is at present working for the Southeastern Forest Exp. Station of Ashville, N.C., doing Forestry work over a territory of about 40 miles around Atlanta, Ga.

He and Charlotte should have plenty of interests in common.

Best wishes, Charlotte.

COMING HIKE

Time - Saturday, April 11th
Place - Buffum Shelter

The days are getting long enough now to make an occasional Saturday afternoon hike possible. Buffum shelter is ideally located for such a trip.

We will leave from Meldon School at 2 P.M. and will eat an early supper at Buffum.

WINTER WEEKEND

by
Betty Ball

Crisp, sunny weather, crusted snow, plenty of hiking, good food, and Perkins hospitality all combined to make the winter weekend at Craigue's Mendon camp a joyous and memorable occasion.

Craigue went up Saturday morning, so the house was warm when next morning's contingent arrived, laden with sleeping bags and unnecessary snowshoes. The warmth was good after the keen wind, but the sun soon drew most of the party outdoors to the sheltering woods. The rarest bird of the weekend, a red crossbill, paused briefly overhead, responding to Betty Ball's Audobon bird call! The woods were almost perfect for hiking; hard-crusted snow- with the occasional soft drifts into which one plunged knee-deep only adding to the fun. After visiting the pond the party returned to the house to greet the newcomers.

The Bradders drove right up to the door, an example followed later by others. They had some excellent Kodachromes of Florida which they showed before dinner.

16 enjoyed the excellent dinner. Vera's meat loaf and apple pies were rated tops by all.

Two parties set out in the afternoon, and covered several trails, while Barbie Allard and Martha Hains coasted on the hilly fields. There was only one minor misfortune- Ruth Labrake fell into a brook, but it was near the house, and she was soon in dry clothes!

Supper was highlighted by a birthday cake for Vera, made and brought in by Pearl Nichols.

Evening diversions consisted of dozing, knitting, and other active sports. Several hot canasta games were played, with Vera and Eleanor scoring an astounding 4340 in one hand. Craigue and Carl Newhall did some clever rope and paper puzzles and tricks.

11 stayed overnight. It was midnight before all retired to their cozy bunks. Maxine Newhall, being the lightest, drew the cot most likely to fall down in the night. (Some advantages to being plump.) It didn't collapse, though.

Monday proved another fine day, even milder than Sunday, and with a less penetrating wind. Betty's before breakfast bird walk produced four redpolls, evidently attracted by the bird call.

After a prodigious breakfast when most of the people ate twice as much as they would at home, and Gary Taylor three times as much as most ordinary people, the ambitious crowd sat around the stove discussing the mountains they would climb later. When Pearl arrived, the group, led by Craigue, started forth again. Bird-walking Betty added 6 grouse and 2 red-breasted nuthatches to the list.

13 enjoyed the baked bean dinner, and started on the last hike, this time on the Blue Ridge trail (marked by tin can lids). It led through beautiful evergreen woods, and over bubbling brooks. Punch Conlon got carried over in style, but everyone else had to do his own scrambling! A woods road was finally reached, and it was decided to return on this to the main road, and then ride back. The hikers had beautiful views of Pico, Killington, and Blue Ridge as they went over roads and fields. A pileated woodpecker flew overhead. The Conlons walked back to camp, but the rest rode back in style.

The delicious supper consisted of leftovers, except for the date muffins provided by Diana. Everyone dispersed soon after supper, having voted the weekend the best ever. Many thanks to Craigue and Mary for their hospitality, to Vera for her excellent food-planning, and to all who cooperated in making the weekend a success.

HIKING VS. FISHING

by Ruth LaBrake

Shall I go hiking with the Green Mountain Club or shall I go fishing is always difficult for me to decide, but come May 1st, fishing usually wins.

On opening day of the trout season at 3 A.M. Rutland sounds as though it were being evacuated ! We join up with the crowd early and journey to our favorite brook, having packed our lunch and gotten our equipment ready the night before. I always think the people who are still in bed miss the most beautiful part of the day.

With great anticipation our fishing day begins and by the time daylight breaks over the hills we have arrived at our parking spot. The clear, fresh morning air, the song of a bird, the sunrise coming up over a hill, and the good smell of the damp woods are all part of the joys of early morning fishing.

We don hip boots, gather up our rods, reels, flies, and yes, even a can of the lowly garden worms - tuck a sandwich in our pocket, only to be forgotten, and we are on our way-hiking.

We have to cross the long fields or pastures, or climb down a steep bank to get to the cool mountain stream, or it might be a small stoney brook or a placid flowing meadow river twisting and turning on its way. The familiar sights and sounds of the rushing waters roaring, tumbling, foaming, splashing over the rocks is music to our ears.

We wade down or up stream and over the slippery rocks casting as we go along. Sometimes we reach high falls or large rocks too difficult to pass so we must detour through the woods and return to the stream higher up. On this detour wild flowers, and often plenty of underbrush or swamp make the side trip interesting.

When we get back to the brook again we sit in the shade near a cool, deep, green pool or on a rock in the middle of the stream and drift out our lines. Our efforts are rewarded by a "tug" at the line- a thrill experienced only by the fisherman. A greater thrill is to see a 6 to 18 inch trout dangling on the end ! (I have so !)

The world and its troubles, even time are completely forgotten. Only too soon the shadows come creeping upon us and we start for the car before darkness overtakes us.

The fisherman is a hiker ! No other sport offers more fun or greater relaxation.

Anlast but not least, the breakfast fit for a king, those fat, fresh beauties caught by yourself. (if you Do.)

Try it. Go fishing.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sunday, April 26
Place - Bird Mt.

It is a couple of years at least since we have had this one on our schedule. Perhaps our enthusiasm for it was dampened by the pouring rain which accompanied the last trip there. Anyway we have now dried out sufficiently so we're ready to try it again.

We understand that since we were last there the trail has been re-discovered and re-marked by an interested group of Castleton people. It would be fine if some of them would come along with us on this trip.

We will start from Meldon School, leaving at 10 A.M. Don't forget that this will be the first morning of Daylight Saving Time. Better set your watches ahead Saturday night so you won't be left behind. We shall be leaving on D.S.T.

Time - Sunday, May 10th Place - Clarendon Lodge - for Pancake Breakfast

For quite some time a pancake breakfast appeared on our schedule as regularly as the Winter Weekend and the Covered Dish Supper. They were fun too. Omitted for several years now, they seemed to be on the way to oblivion. We thought this an excellent time to revive them now that our Clarendon Lodge provides such a perfect locale.

For those of us not normally early risers this will be a good chance to take advantage of being up and about before breakfast to do some bird watching.

As everyone has a different idea as to what is a good breakfast hour and Clarendon Lodge is nearby, we'll try the experiment of letting each one choose his own breakfast time. Anyone unable to arrange transportation may call the Outing Chairman - Tel. 1910.

GMC coffee will be on tap from 6 A.M. to 9 A.M. Bring along your "Aunt Jemima" and the necessary utensils and we'll see you at Clarendon on May 10th.

SCHEDULE CHANGES

Due to the Annual GMC meeting coming on June 6th and to requests for a Spring Lake hike on June 7th, we have made a slight schedule change. Please correct your schedules to read as follows:

June 6 - Annual GMC meeting
June 7 - Spring Lake Camp

MORE GOOD WISHES

Darthea Moyes and Alexander Emslie were married on April 4th. Both 'Dart' and 'Kelly' are members of Killington Section and come from Bennington to join in our activities when possible. We wish them happiness and hope to see them often in the future.

GREEN MOUNTAIN SUGAR PARTY

by Jean Whitcomb

The annual sugar party of the Green Mountain Hiking Club was held at Deermont Grange in Mendon, March 29. It was a wet, muddy Sunday, and the only hiking done that day was by the snow committee who went way back up in the hills for snow.

The Grange proved a fine set-up for the party, with a roomy kitchen, dining tables, a ping-pong table (all downstairs) and a large hall upstairs which was ideal for square dancing.

The committees, headed by Ray Catozzi, arrived early for the boiling down of the syrup the Catozzi car bearing a truly noble load of pickles, doughnuts syrup, etc. etc. and 5 people!

The syrup was slow in starting to boil, so 2/3 of the syrup committee set out in search of more kettles, leaving the other 1/3, Eleanor Walker, in charge. Of course, all 3 kettles began to boil furiously then! Luckily, Eleanor got Carl Newhall to help move the kettles around. It was a little like a warm(!) checker game, keeping those kettles at the right boiling level. After many tests, the syrup was ready for serving.

By about 6 p.m. there were about 60 people, including many school and pre-school children, there. Some brought their lunches which they ate before being served the delicious syrup on snow, the doughnuts, and the pickles and coffee which added much to it all. Jan Catozzi had made sure we had plenty of the last 3 items. Maxine Newhall was kept on the run answering calls for syrup. Some of the younger eaters present probably set new records for ability to stow away the sugar (plus their other food)! Remaining syrup was stirred into sugar, of course.

While the cleanup committee did their work, Diana Conlon being in charge of dishwashing, ping-pong and musical games were played by the children and then square dancing for all, Getty Page doing the calling. There was good group participation in this, especially since we had several members of the Recreation Center square dancing group in our midst. After this, we had a coffee and doughnut session, thus ending a very pleasant and successful evening.

BUFFUM SHELTER

by George Kirk

Their number reduced to 10 because some of the old standbys elected to go square dancing instead of trying out their leg muscles by negotiating a mountain woodroad. Members of Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club hiked to Buffum shelter April 11 and had a "cook out" over a fireplace.

Leaving cars where Wallingford: Gulf road intersects the Long Trail, the party took the mile trip to the shelter in a leisurely manner, enjoying the sunshine shimmering through the trees, still leafless but heightening in the color of early spring.

Surprise was expressed at the total absence of snow and fairly dry condition of the trail, a rare occurrence so early in April in the mountains of Vermont.

Arriving at the shelter, the hikers found a fire already built by Robert Moore and Jerry Sanborn, who had hurried ahead and were busy with axe and saw in order to leave a supply of dry wood under cover for the next occupants of the camp.

Some of the ladies preferred to sit on a log, and bask in the sunshine, while others, wishing more exercise, walked up the trail about a mile. "Pinkie" Perkins and Barbie Allard made the longest trip, inspecting "blazes" and making notes of needed improvements for a later visit. The 2 ambitious boys went along and trimmed out some brush and branches that hid the "blazes".

The cold wind made the birds quiet and the ornithologically inclined members reported only four species, chickadees, juncos, bluebirds, and a phoebe, seen.

When the hikers arrived back at Buffum, they found water boiling for the coffee, and soon everybody was ready for the hot dogs, hamburgers, and whatever else individuals preferred for supper.

After the sun dropped behind the hill to the west, the temperature fell considerably and, reluctantly, everybody packed up and hiked to the cars.

Miss Frances Green of the Worcester, Mass. section was a guest of the Rutland group on the trip.

GARMISCH - ECOMS' WINTER PLAYGROUND by Janet Martin

On March 20th with a three day pass in hand the Martins - Jack and Jan - drove off to one of Germany's foremost winter sports centers at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Bavaria, not far from the Swiss and Austrian borders of Germany and high in the German Alps.

We arrived in the mountains in time to eat lunch in a "Gasthof" in Oberammergau, a town famous for its Passion Play and wood carvings. Then we went on to Garmisch-Partenkirchen or Garmisch for short.

Since we are both good GMCers you know we didn't spend all our time riding around. Since time was limited and trails up the mountains icy, we took advantage of a cable car up Wank Mt. (6000ft.) and took pictures across the town in the valley to the Zugspitz (9967 ft.) on the opposite side. We hope to go again and get up that lofty peak itself.

On Sunday the 22nd we had a very nice hike up the Partnach river to the gorge it has cut in the rocks. Due to the fact that the ice in the gorge itself was melting and falling it was closed by police order. Being well trained hikers we knew better than to go in so we retraced our steps until we came to a "road" which our guide book showed us went to a "Gasthof" high on the left side of the gorge. It was very icy climbing and there were several times when we wished we had some sort of cleats on our shoes. The view was well worth the struggle however.

Since we had nothing to use as brakes on the down trip we sought and found a very delightful route back which took us down into the gorge and across a steel bridge 200 ft. above the water. Looking down we could see the huge icicles hanging over the path and now and then heard a chunk crack and fall. We were glad we had understood the meaning of the signs!

After taking pictures we climbed up the right side even higher than before and were rewarded by finding another "Gasthof" where we bought ourselves some lunch. Then we followed their cart road back to the bottom. This was much more open than the other side had been and therefore not nearly so icy. It was a warm sunny day and we ate outside on the terrace.

When we got back to the hotel at 2:30 it was time to pack up and head back to Schwabisch-Gmund. Thus ended our first big weekend!

NOTICE OF WORK PARTY

The first of a series of Trail Clearing work parties will be held Sunday, April 19th, and will leave Rutland at 9 A.M. Anyone wishing to help with this work should call Craigie Perkins by Friday night so that he can plan the meal for the work party. The food will be furnished by the Club, but each worker should bring his own eating utensils.

Word has been received that Joseph Valequette has been accepted as a student at the Naval Air Technical Training Center in Norman, Oklahoma. Only a few men from his company were chosen for this assignment.

Joe recently spent a fourteen day leave with his parents, Harold and Thelma Valequette. Best of luck, Joe.

OUR NATIONAL PARKS

In 1872 Yellowstone Park was established as a public park for the benefit and enjoyment of the people. Since that time twenty-six other highly scenic areas have been added to the National Park System. They have been placed in the care of the government to be preserved for the inspiration, education and enjoyment of all generations. Today they are a part of the American way of life.

An unfortunate situation has developed over the past years in regard to the maintenance of these Parks. Not enough money has been allocated to the National Park System to adequately keep in step with the demands made on them by the public. One ranger has to do the work of three or four. Though there is plenty of space for camp sites, usually only one large, over crowded one can be maintained. This makes the camping area so packed with young American families eager to see the wonders of their country, that it resembles the thickly settled tenement district of a large city. Even though economy may be given as the excuse for these conditions, it is not wise or justifiable to spread government (our money) thin here.

Another point to consider in relation to the National Parks is that most people believe that these Parks have remained and will remain inviolate, but this is not true. Selfish commercial interests try to introduce bills in Congress to make it legal to graze livestock, cut forests, develop mines and dam rivers for waterpower within the Parks. In some cases these interests have succeeded. These lands should never pass from the people of the country (government control) to ruthless commercializers.

The non-political, non-partisan organization known as The National Parks Association has been established since 1919 to promote the preservation of the Parks and to maintain the high standards adopted at the creation of the National Park system. This association tries to combat the evils that creep into the system. It also publishes NATIONAL PARKS MAGAZINE through which members are kept informed on all important matters pertaining to the Parks.

Membership in this Association is $3.00 a year and this includes a subscription to the magazine. For more information write to National Parks Assoc., 1840 Mintwood Place, N.W., Washington 9, D. C.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sunday, May 17, 9:30 A.M.
Place - Mt. Aeolus

This will be an exploratory trip as it is a new one on the Killington Section schedule. The Guide Book describes Mt. Aeolus as affording fine views near abandoned marble quarries.

Mr. O'Kane in his book, TRAILS AND SUMMITS OF THE GREEN MOUNTAINS, gives a chapter to Mt. Aeolus. He describes the trail up as climbing sometimes moderately, sometimes briskly but being nowhere steep, and gives the distance to the upper lookout as $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the highway.

The view from here includes Equinox, Bromley, Styles Peak, Stratton, Haystack, Mt. Pisgah, Ascutey, and even extends to Mt. Monadnock, 55 miles away.

Mr. O'Kane also mentions a cave of sizable dimensions with a number of rooms and passages not far from the upper lookout.

This should be a good trip.

Time - Sunday, May 31st
Place - Little Rock Pond

This is an old favorite. As most of you know it is an easy hike through very pleasant woods. We haven't usually done it quite this late in May so it should be especially interesting to see what wildflowers will be in bloom. The Pond affords a chance for a swim and if recent weather conditions prevail that should be quite an inducement. Here is a chance too for the fishermen among us to try their luck.

As this is a holiday weekend some might like to go in to Little Rock on Saturday and make it an over night trip. If you plan to do this, our advice is to get there as early as possible on Saturday P.M. as this is a popular spot.

We've always wanted to make the return trip sometime via the old road to So. Wallingford. Anyone else interested?

Time - Saturday, June 6th
Place - Long Trail Lodge -
ANNUAL MEETING

Details on the Annual Meeting are given in your current copy of THE LONG TRAIL NEWS. This meeting affords you an opportunity to keep in touch with the plans and activities of the parent club and to meet members from other sections. Let's have a good representation there from the Killington Section.

Time - Sunday, June 7th
Place - Spring Lake Camp

Coming on the Sunday after the Annual Meeting, this activity was planned especially to give us all an opportunity to enjoy an outing with G.M.C.s here to attend that meeting. Spring Lake Camp was chosen at the request of some of our visiting members.

This is an ideal spot for a pleasant day of visiting and exchanging news of section activities. It is also well located to offer an opportunity for hikes of varying lengths.

Be on hand to spend a pleasant day with congenial people!

CARD PARTY HELD

The annual GMC card party was held at the Perkins home on South Main Street on April 17. Heavy competition from other local activities cut the attendance from last year's high count, but there was plenty of pleasant company, and the club treasury was swelled by $20.60.

Not only were Rutlanders present, but folks from West Rutland and Castleton were with us too. In fact, it was Edith Ewald's group from Castleton that won the door prize. Very neat little potted plants were given as table prizes, and the famished card players were refreshed with hot coffee and sandwiches.

Since the Newhalls were soon to leave us for the State of Maine, President George Conlon presented each of them with a gift- (on behalf of all of us)- a lantern for Carl, and an air mattress for Maxine. We all hope that they'll have a chance to use them back in Vermont before too long.

Jan Catozzi deserves a commendation for the work she and her committee did in collecting enough tables, chairs, and sandwiches for everyone - with the men's muscular assistance in furniture moving. The party was well planned; those who came enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

BIRD MT. HIKE RAINED OUT

Our scheduled hikes to Bird Mountain seem to be especially attractive to the little white (??) clouds that cry. With spirits, at least, undampened by the last soggy trip, we planned to try again on Sunday, April 26. However, a steady downpour that morning promised only pneumonia. Well, maybe next time,...

THE PANCAKE BREAKFAST

by
Barbie Allard

After a lapse of several years, the pancake breakfast was revived at Clarendon Shelter. It couldn't have been a more perfect spring day and it was too early for flies and mosquitoes to be out in force.

"Pinky" and Emil Boselli went down Saturday to get the camp ready for the morning. On Sunday Betty Ball arrived first to hear the "early birds". Everyone else started to come about 8:30. Soon pancakes were cooking on an outdoor fire and were really delicious with maple syrup.

A hawk circled around overhead as if looking for a chance to swoop down and grab a bite of pancake... Finally, giving up, he circled away. Besides those already mentioned, the Hakins family, the Andersons, 3 Allards, Eleanor Walker, Pearl Nichols, Vera and Mary Perkins, and Gary Taylor were there. The Andersons, Davy, Martha, and Missy Hakins, and Barbie and Judy Allard waded in the brook. Andy Anderson acted as life-guard and patrolled the water front.

The party left Clarendon for home or for further expeditions. One group hiked to Spring Lake-- Pinky and Emil cleared the trail of brush and blowdowns; Marjorie Allard touched up the white blazes along the way (ending with more paint on herself than she put on most of the trees). It was a warm day, and the spring water at the end of the trip was really welcome. Lunch was eaten and feet were cooled under a lakeside pine tree while we watched fish jumping, and humans swimming, boating, and fishing.

There was still time to open Spring Lake shelter for the season, and to discuss what the place needs before leaving - for the road, where Pearl picked us up and drove us back to the other cars- the end to a day of good hiking.

The first work party of the season was held on Sunday, April 19th. Emil Bascilli, Maxine and Carl Newhall, and Craigie Perkins worked the Cauty trail on Blue Ridge. Since this piece of trail hadn't been cleared since the 1950 hurricane, there was a full day's work to be done. The lumbering operation of a few years ago let wind get at the remaining trees and a number fell across the trail. However, they have now been removed and the blazes well painted.

On Sunday, May 24th, there will be another work party to the Spring Lake Camp to prepare it for the summer season. The Long Trail will be worked from there to Button Hill. We hope there is a good turn out for this one and for the others planned on the week-ends when there are no hikes scheduled.

STATE PARKS ARE CALLING

It is picnic and camping time again and our State Parks are calling ! Whether you want to go with youngsters and a picnic lunch or with the grown-ups and camping equipment for a week-end or more, you can find a Park in Vermont to fit your needs.

The Calvin Coolidge State Forest is situated 23 miles east of Rutland in the towns of Plymouth and Shrewsbury. At the entrance to the Pinney Hollow-Bradley Hill recreational areas of this forest is a large picnic shelter with a stone fireplace and sanitary facilities. This is often used for group picnics. From here a good road leads to the top of Bradley Hill where picnic spots have been developed.

At an elevation of 1940 feet in a spruce grove, with an excellent view of Killington and Shrewsbury the picnicher will find an ideal spot for his day in the woods. Piped spring water, single and double fireplaces, tables, a semi-open log shelter with two fireplaces and fuel wood available all add to his enjoyment. There are swings, slides, tecters, and horseshoe courts for those who wish to use them.

For those who wish to camp, Shelter Village, located in a white birch and spruce woods has much to offer. The lean-tos are located on the rim of the plateau so that each has an individual view overlooking forests, hills and valleys, and are situated to give privacy yet near enough to the next to be neighborly. Each lean-to is provided with a reflector fireplace, table, half-log benches, movable shelves and fuel wood. This camping area has piped spring water and two toilet buildings, one with showers and laundry trays.

If you wish to pitch your own tent, there is a camp site for this with tent platforms and the above mentioned facilities except the showers and laundry.

Bathing may be enjoyed in a mountain brook near the forest entrance.

A service and maintenance fee of 25 cents per day is charged for groups of five persons or less entering the area with or without a car.

Camping fee: tent camping, 75 cents per day; lean-tos, $1.00 per day for groups of five persons or less. No weekly rates. Tent and lean-to sites can be reserved in advance by applying to the Vermont Forest Service or the Caretaker at the area. The camping fee must be paid in advance for the period during which reservations are made. No refund will be made unless cancellations are received five days prior to beginning date of reservation.

More information may be had by writing to Vermont Forest Service, Montpelier, Vt.

LET'S LOOK FOR WILDFLOWERS

One of the intriguing things about searching for wildflowers is their differing preferences for certain locations. Of course different parts of the country have their own native flowers, but which flowers, native to any section, you will find depends largely on when and where you look.

Let's suppose the time is about now and you are crossing a rocky pasture sloping up toward the woods. Here you will find the stunted little field violet, and along the out-croppings of weathered stone are patterns of gray and green lichen. Although not the "stone breaker" which its name implies, saxifrage loves to grow in the crevasses of the rocks and this too you will find.

As you approach the line of the woods there may be red and yellow columbine. Within the open woods where the leaves are not yet big enough to make much shade, are bloodroot, windflowers, blue and yellow violets, trillium, and bellworts. A little earlier you would also have found here the dainty hepaticas.

Wherever the soil moisture is increased by a depression or an underground spring, yellow adderstongues (dog-tooth violet or trout lily) and the pink veined spring beauties will appear. Here too you may find the feathery foliage and creamy white pantaloons of Dutchman's breeches and the trailers of the partridge berry.

If there is a brook running through the woods skunk cabbage may be found along its banks. If you follow along this brook to where it perhaps widens out into a sunny swamp, your day will be brightened by the golden marsh marigolds.

These are but a few of our common wildflowers to be found each in its own locality in spring. Other seasons will reward you with other flowers in these differing locations. A day's hike along The Long Trail can afford you a chance to find them all.

AN ADDRESS YOU'LL WANT TO HAVE

The inevitable finally happened and Maine exerted her priority and recalled Maxine and Carl Newhall. We know that Killington Section members are anxious to keep in touch with them so here is their address at present:

51 Pearl Street
Augusta, Maine.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

We are generally apt to take the names of our mountains for granted without stopping to think about how they originated. In Mr. O'Kane's book we found an interesting explanation for the origin of the name Mt. Acolus. He credits it to students of the senior class of Amherst who climbed the mountain on a very windy day in 1860 and accordingly named it Acolus, god of the winds. A bottle of water was broken over the rocks and the christening done with due ceremony.

Anyone know any name origins?

Vol. 6, No. 6 Killington Section Green Mountain Club June 1953

REPORT OF THE ANNUAL MEETING GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB

The annual meeting of the Green Mountain Club was held Saturday, June 6th at the Long Trail Lodge. Seventy-five members attended from the various sections.

President, Roy Woodelton presided. Reports were given by committee chairmen and section representatives.

The most important part of the meeting was the discussion and voting on the recommendation by the trustees of the Club to sell the Long Trail Lodge property. The Club members voted to sell this property.

Miss Lula M. Tye was re-elected corresponding secretary. Mrs. Lillian Lodge was elected clerk.

After lunch and the conclusion of the business meeting, last year's officers were re-elected at the trustees meeting. President, Roy Woodelton, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Vice President, John Vondell, Amherst, Mass.; Treasurer, Earl A. Boyce, Proctor, Vermont; Auditor, Theodore Goddard, Old Bennington, Vermont.

The evening program consisted of a sugar party, an interesting talk by Caroline Parmentier, The Fire Warden on Pico, and the showing of some excellent slides by Frances Green.

Twenty-five members stayed over to hike with the Killington Section into Spring Lake camp Sunday morning.

NEW SHELTER CHAIRMAN

Emile Boselli has been appointed new Shelter Chairman to take the place of Carl Newhall who has left the State.

Under the new chairman's direction, work parties to Spring Lake Camp have been held. Twenty 4 X 6 ft. Masonite panels have been carried up to the camp. Emile, Craigie Perkins, and George Conlon performed this little stunt, carrying the boards on their heads. The plan is to line the inside of the camp with the boards, putting them over the paper that is there now. This will improve the looks of the camp as well as making it more weather tight.

Cinder blocks have been brought into camp and placed in under the stove. This should, to some extent, relieve the fire hazard of having a hot stove close to the wood floor.

Charles Sabourin will be married Saturday, June 20th to Miss Paddy Hughes at St. Peters Church in Rutland.

Miss Hughes has been employed as nurse at the Rutland Hospital.

Charles, a Killington Section member of long standing, recently graduated from the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy. Starting July 12th, he is to be employed to do research work for Irwin Neisler Drug Co. in Decatur, Ill. Best wishes from Killington Section.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sunday, June 21 - 9 A.M.
Place - Killington - via the Juggernaut Trail

Those who made the trip up Killington from the East for the first time last year are looking forward to this repeat performance. Perhaps it was because the trail was new to us or maybe we were just having a good day, at any rate it seemed like a less arduous approach than usual. Of course you climb to reach the top of Killington by any route but in this case most of the climb seemed to come fairly early after which we followed along the ridge through very pleasant woods.

If you didn't make it last year better come along this time and see how you like it.

Time - Friday eve., July 3rd -
Sunday eve., July 5th
Place - Hazen's Notch to Parker
Camp (or to Coddington Hollow)

The time for another 4th of July camping trip, tried so successfully for the first time last year, is fast approaching.

This year we plan to do a stretch of The Trail south of Hazen's Notch. To do this it seems that it will be best for the group to leave Rutland Friday P.M. after work and set up camp that night - leaving us two full days for hiking. Some of us who could would leave earlier Friday and have a camp site located and established for the later arrivals. To do this effectively it will be necessary to know who is coming. So please be sure to notify Vera Perkins (1910) or Craig Perkins (1383-W) by Thursday, July 2nd, if you intend to trip with us over the 4th.

Our plan is to camp near Frying Pan brook which is located near where The Trail crosses Route 118 between Edon and Belvidere Corners. From here, using a similar system of car shuttling as was used last year, we will hike as follows:

Saturday - Covering The Trail from Rte. 118 to Parker Camp or to Coddington Hollow. Which we will do will depend on approach trail possibilities to Parker Camp (we plan to have an advance scouting party look into this before the date of the trip); weather conditions at the time; and the wishes of the hiking group. Total hiking distance, including to the cars - to Coddington Hollow, approx. 14 mi. to Parker Camp, approx. 10 mi.

Sunday - From Rte 118 to Hazen's Notch - hiking distance - approx. 10 mi.

Two suggestions for shorter hikes for those who do not plan to take the long trip would be to go to Ritterbush Camp and return (the Guide Book describes this as near Ritterbush Pond and having a fine view) - a round trip of about 5 mi.; or up Belvidere Mt. which would be a round trip of not over 3 mi. Of course campers may prefer instead to just enjoy camp life and explore the surrounding countryside by car. We certainly enjoyed the company and appreciated the service of the "campers" last year and hope to have them and additional ones with us this year.

We make the same general suggestions as for last year:

Each person arrange for his own transportation in advance.

Plan meals and cooking equipment in groups of 4 if possible.

List the essentials for this sort of trip in advance and be sure you have planned for everything.

For the long trip hikers we suggest that you plan for a substantial breakfast, a mid-day lunch which can be easily carried and a hot but quickly prepared night meal.

REMEMBER TO REGISTER AS REQUESTED BY THURSDAY, JULY 2nd
if you plan to make this trip.
Let's go!

LITTLE ROCKY POND

DATE- May 31

On the last day of May, nine hikers made the trip to Little Rocky Pond. The trail was, as usual, in good shape.

Many flowers were found along the way. To everyone's pleased surprise, June pinks (wild azalea) were in bloom. We had never before hiked in at just this season, and thus hadn't realized that they were there. Usually it's at Stratton Pond that we expect to find them.

The shelter was in good condition. Its previous occupants, three young men from New York, were setting out for Bromley. We hope they made it alive; the bugs are definitely making their unwelcome little presences felt along the trail now.

Some of our sporting members let down their hooks into the lake in hopes of tempting a fish or two. However, the fish weren't having any that day, so the fishermen had to get along without them.

In the afternoon a party made a trip to the cliffs, meeting, of course, hordes of bugs. Those who stayed behind contented themselves with afternoon tea (that's right, tea!), thus gaining strength for the trip back.

Betty Ball, Pearl Nichols, and Vera and Craigie Perkins returned via the old road to South Wallingford. It follows a pretty brook through the woods. In spite of the bugs, the hike to Little Rocky was, as always, a good one.

(By the way, if you haven't yet seen Frances Green's excellent article on Little Rocky Pond in the recent Vermont Life, you will probably be interested in looking it up.

SPRING LAKE

DATE- June 7

This hike was made at the close of the annual meeting, with a goodly representation from the various sections- better than at the last intersectional, in fact! The Killington Section was represented in quality if not in quantity by Craigie Perkins and Churchill Scott, and by Mr. and Mrs. Dudley from Belmont, who formerly belonged to the Worcester Section. They hope to attend more hikes in the future; we would certainly enjoy seeing more of them.

The hikers got off to a late start, having temporarily mislaid Roy Buchanan and Larry Dean. When they turned up, all set out though the clouds were lowering and rain appeared imminent. Any hopes anyone may have had as to the rain's holding off were dashed; as soon as the party left the cars the downpour started; it lasted until 2 in the afternoon.

Having arrived at the shelter, and wrung themselves out somewhat, the folks started two fires- one in the stove, which actually worked right for once, and the other outside in the rain.

Everyone was glad of the commodious quarters afforded by the shelter. With 25 people inside, you can imagine why. You can imagine, too, that things were far from dull there, though the weather dripped outside, discouraging would-be swimmers. The latest crop of porky stories was related. (Has anyone ever thought of making a collection of these priceless tales? A Porky Anthology would, no doubt, be an overnight sensation in the literary world.)

When the time came to leave, the sun came out. We hope those who had to make the long journey home in damp clothes didn't suffer too many after-effects, and will be able to return before too long.

BEAR BROOK STATE PARK, N.H.

For the benefit of those who like to camp in State Parks, we are taking you this month into the southern part of New Hampshire in the Merrimack Valley Region.

Bear Brook State Park is located north of Manchester, N. H. and may be reached by turning off route 28 at the park sign a few miles east of Suncook.

This 7,000 acre park is open from May to October and is one of the most completely developed parks in the State. If you are planning a vacation of a few days or a week or more you will find a variety of things to do to make your stay here enjoyable.

At a three acre pond near the park entrance water sports are provided for with a big, modern bathhouse that contains checking facilities and dressing rooms. Boats, umbrellas, beach chairs, and towels may be rented at the bathhouse. There is a play area near the beach for croquet, horse-shoe pitching and other sports.

If you like to hike, and most Green Mountain Club members do, there are more than twenty well marked trails through the park, which make every corner of this fine reservation accessible to public use. For the nature student there are many interesting shrubs and flowers, rock formations, beaver colonies and an abundance of wild life. The New Hampshire Conservation Camp, which is devoted to teaching young people about conservation of natural resources such as water, forest, grasslands and wildlife, is held in this park each year.

The forest cover includes large stands of oak, beech and maple as well as beautiful pine groves. There are small ponds dotted with lily pads, and brooks that tumble and wind through deep forest shade.

Riding horses are available and many miles of woods trails provide another sport for those who wish to avail themselves of this opportunity. Arrangements may also be made for those who wish to take riding lessons.

A moving archery course considered one of the best in the country, is found in this park. The course ranges a half mile through interesting country, offering targets for a variety of shots.

WORK PARTIES

To date the Killington Section's trail has been cleared and painted from the Wallingford Gulf Road to Clarendon Lodge. Axe and saw work have been done through to Governor Clement Shelter. The stretch from Clarendon to Clement still needs clipping, mowing and painting.

Trails chairman, Craig Perkins has been out several times with small groups, not more than three, to work trail. He would appreciate more help with this work so if you are interested, get in touch with him.

The trail from Spring Lake Camp to the top of Button Hill did not require a great deal of work. There were only a few blow downs. The blazes were re-painted and a few new ones added. The day this area was worked on was a beautiful day to be in the woods. The spring flowers were at their best and large patches of columbine and violets were seen growing on the slopes. Also on this day Vera Perkins brought in a new broom and dust pan for the Spring Lake camp, swept the camp out and made it ready for guests.

While clearing trail from Governor Clement to Clarendon, it was noted that another piece of the trail has slid into Cold River. This will have to be re-located higher up on the bank. Lumber operations have been going on both above and below the lower road. The trail has been used in getting out the logs making a nice wide trail that won't need clearing for some time.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sunday, July 19th
10 A.M.
Place - C.V. Camp, Chittendon
Pond.

Once again Eleanor Walker has been kind enough to invite us to enjoy the C.V. Camp facilities with her on Sunday, July 19th. We well remember the cool and comfortable day we spent there last year in the midst of a 'hot spell' and the grand swim we had.

This is a chance for one of those do-as-you-please days so perfect for a summer outing. You may cook indoors or out, or just enjoy a picnic lunch. There will be G.M.C. coffee on hand as usual.

Those who hesitate to undertake a possible struggle with the black flies, no-see-ums etc., sometimes prevalent in the woods can relax and prepare to enjoy the day on the large screened porch. There is a chance for boating and swimming and any who feel that they really must hike can strike The Long Trail at Noyes Pond and go as far as they like.

The group will leave from Meldon School at 10 A.M. but any who wish to join us at the camp later will be welcome.

It's an easy drive right to the door so this is a splendid opportunity for our non-hiking members to join with our hiking members for a good Killington Section get-together. We'll be expecting you!

Time - Saturday, August 1st -
1:30 P.M.

Place - Helen Bailey's Camp -
Charlestown, N.H.

Here is a new and special event! Helen has issued a cordial invitation to all Killington Section members and friends to foregather at her camp on Saturday P.M. August 1st.

This outing will offer interesting variety - a pleasant drive; a glimpse of N.H.; hiking from the camp if you wish; not to mention visiting and, of course, eating. Bring your cup and utensils as usual and whatever you like for supper. Don't bring too much as Helen has requested that she be allowed to furnish dessert and beverage. (She didn't say what kind!)

We plan to leave from Meldon promptly at 1:30 P.M. so to have a long afternoon and evening. If you can't make it that early but want to join us later at Helen's call your Outing Ch. (Tel. 1910) and get directions for the journey.

Helen says there is plenty of room for camping on her premises and if any would like to bring camping equipment and stay over Saturday night she would be glad to have them.

We seldom journey outside our own state on our outings and this is really a chance to get into new territory.

This outing seems to have all 'the makings' of a grand good time!

NEW SCHEDULES OUT

Your new Outing Schedule is enclosed with this SMOKE AND BLAZES.

KILLINGTON VIA THE JUGGERNAUT TRAIL-
June 21
by Barbie Allard

On a Sunday morn four brave people set out, regardless of the dangers, for Killington. Mr. and Mrs. Craigie Perkins, Vera Perkins, and Barbara Allard climbed to the top. On the way up we met a group of hostellers on their way down. We put up arrows and painted blue blazes.

The first part of the trail was good, after we crossed the brook. The trail was very buggy and we took to carrying a few ferns to swat the bugs. The top was reached with little trouble save climbing over, crawling under and going around blowdowns, which were plentiful.

Inside the camp we rested at last free of the flies. The only ones there were houseflies and bees that were trying to get out. Soon, after a refreshing meal and a drink of frozen lemonade and orange juice, we started to the peak. We hoped to be rid of the flies. The view was hazy and a cool wind was blowing, but the bugs came too.

Then we came down and started home. The flies were buzzing around us so that we almost missed seeing a bees' nest which we all missed by about one and one-half feet. Farther on we saw a "por-ky" that ran up a tree. The only other animals were the two horses at the lumber camp.

The ride home gave us plenty of time to talk of the nice time we had.

WORK PARTY NEEDED

Craigie Perkins recently took a trail checking trip from Clement toward Killington and found that lumbering operations above Clement have completely confused trail markings. It will be necessary to get a good work party out in the near future to relocate the Trail in that area.

A CAMPER'S VIEW OF THE BIG WEEKEND
by
Lucy Bishop

Of course the "campers but not hikers" didn't get quite as much exercise on the Fourth of July weekend as the hikers did, but we had a grand time. Eleanor Walker, Pearl Nichols and I drove up Saturday morning, arriving at about 10:00 A.M. at the camp site selected by the hikers, who had long since been on their way.

Vera had left a note for us with directions for finding a spot about ten minutes' walk from the camp, with everything conducive to relaxation- sun, flat rocks, a gorgeous view. Sounded good to us, relaxation being our aim, so after inspecting the camp and organizing our belongings, we decided to look the place over. Since we started off without consulting the note again, we were a little hazy about details, the one thing we were all sure of being that the walk took about ten minutes. We strolled along the trail through the woods, finding the climb easy and the woods delightfully cool. Taking into consideration the speed at which we were travelling and the number of times we stopped to investigate, we expected the tour would take us about fifteen or twenty minutes, but when we had walked for half an hour and still not found the sunny opening, we had a slight suspicion that we were heading in the wrong direction. Another ten minutes confirmed the suspicion, so we headed back down the trail, the camp coming into view at exactly the right moment- lunch hour!

We enjoyed a leisurely meal, congratulating ourselves all the while on having accomplished a hike on our own, however brief and unscheduled. Following lunch we found the place we had been looking for in the morning - it was ideal! A cool breeze offset the sun, and the flat rocks were meant for lazing around with a book, also for sandwiching a cat nap between chapters!

Despite the lazy afternoon, we had keen appetites for dinner. Just as we were finishing our dessert the Fields- Helen, Fred, Tommy and Peter drove in, swelling the number of campers to seven. Not too much later the hikers, also seven strong, arrived, none the worse for the miles they had tramped. After they had finished eating and cleaning up, we all sat around the campfire rubbing on insect dope and exchanging notes on the day's experiences- until the flies and mosquitoes decided it was time for us to retire and saw to it that we did.

Sunday morning, after seeing the hikers off on the trail, and the Fields on their homeward way, we ate breakfast and proceeded to continue our program of sunning, napping, and reading from the point where we had dropped it on Saturday. Again, surprisingly, our appetites were definitely present at noon, and we stowed away a huge lunch.

When we had accomplished the necessary cleaning up and packing away we set out to spend the afternoon hiking through the countryside- via Pearl's car! It was an A-1 hike with perfect weather, good roads, breath-taking views and double-decker frozen custard cones!

Target- one perfect weekend. Mission accomplished.

FOURTH OF JULY HIKE

Our second annual Fourth of July hiking and camping trip covered that part of The Long Trail from Hazens Notch to Parker Camp. Nineteen and one half miles of Long Trail and two miles of approach trail were covered in two days of hiking.

The weather was perfect:

bright, cool, and enough breeze to keep the flies away.

Camp was set up Friday, where the Trail crosses Vt. 118 at Frying Pan Brook.

As before, some people hiked and some stayed near camp. The Trail party consisted of Emil Boscelli, Mary and Craigie Perkins, Ray Catozzi, Vera Perkins, and Maxine and Carl Newhall. Maxine and Carl, now living in Maine, drove 200 miles to make the outing. It sure was good to see them again.

On Saturday we started south from camp. The Trail led up over a bare ridge with views to both east and west and then through the woods for a mile and a half to Ritterbush look-out on a cliff overlooking Ritterbush Pond.

After a few minutes rest we went down to the pond, around the north side of it and up a little way to Ritterbush camp. This is a fine location with a good view.

Not far beyond the camp, the Trail passes through Devil's Gulch. This is a gorge of tumbled rocks between two mountain walls.

By easy grades we climbed over Bowen and Butternut Mountains. From the top of Butternut there is a fine view to the northwest. All day we had been travelling through hard wood forest but on starting down Butternut we found a forest of spruce, balsam, birch and mountain ash that closely resembled the woods high up on Pico and Killington.

About four o'clock we reached Parker Camp. This is a fine camp built twenty years ago and still looks almost new. Unfortunately two near by lumber job shacks spoil the location.

From Parker Camp we went out by the approach trail to the east to where we had previously parked our car. So back to camp and supper. This was a rather easy day.

On Sunday we drove up to Hazens Notch and hiked south toward our camp site.

The Trail climbs very steeply out of the Notch to Haystack Mt. We gained 1200 feet in altitude in going 1.8 miles. There are several good views from the ridge of Haystack. Then down Haystack and up Tillotson by another steep trail and more fine views to the east and southeast.

A half mile down the south side of Tillotson Peak we came to Tillotson Camp, another excellent camp in a good location.

Not far from Tillotson Camp, the Trail passed by tiny Tillotson Pond nearly covered with water lillies.

From here the Trail climbs for two miles to Belvidere Mt., where there is a cold spring a short distance from the top.

Belvidere is the highest peak in the area and from the Fire Look-out Tower the whole Green Mountain Range from Canada to Killington can be seen.

After a good rest here we started down toward our camp by what we expected to be an easy trail. We found that for about a mile all the big spruces had been blown down in a tangled mess. A trail had been marked through this area which led us over and under the tree trunks, around upturned roots and over bare ledges. It was so crooked that we expected at any time to overtake ourselves. This would be a bad place to be caught at dusk with a heavy pack. The Trail Patrol or whoever marked The Trail here should be congratulated on finding a way through at all.

The last mile to camp was easy going and we arrived at seven o'clock ready for the long ride back to Rutland.

This part of The Trail from Hazen's Notch to Parker Camp has good camps, fine views, and better supplies of drinking water than some other sections. It should be travelled by more hikers.

THIS AND THAT

The 1953 Intersectional will be held at Fay Fuller Camp, August 22nd and 23rd. You will have details on this outing in your LONG TRAIL NEWS, but mark the date now on your calendar.

Fay Fuller can be reached by car so plan to take your camping equipment and be there for the Saturday night campfire. This is a chance to see old friends, make new ones, and have a good talk-fest on The Long Trail and GMC - with a few Tall Tales thrown in!

Barbie and Judy Allard are vacationing in New Hampshire. "Brother Bill" and Mr. Kirk are in Canada on a fishing trip.

It was good to have Carl and Maxine Newhall back hiking with us on the 4th of July weekend trip.

Emile Boselli has started work on 'resurfacing' the walls of the camp at Spring Lake.

Fran Green of the Worcester Section spent a couple of nights on Pico recently with Caroline Parmentier. She then joined other members of her section in an outing at Little Rock Pond.

We have heard of two picnic suppers lately where the facilities of Killington Section shelters were used - one at Spring Lake Camp and one at Clarendon Lodge. At Spring Lake it was the occasion of the annual strawberry shortcake supper of the group attending.

Incidentally these picnic suppers at nearby shelters are a lot of fun. Why not get a group together sometime and try it?

We felt sad to find that the broom and dustpan so recently provided for Spring Lake Camp had already disappeared. We wonder who needed them that urgently.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sat. & Sun., Aug. 22 & 23
Place - Intersectional at Fay Fuller Camp.

Details of this have been given you in The Long Trail News. At the risk of repeating we give you the following information recently received.

"Fay Fuller Camp is on The Long Trail about 8 miles from Bennington. You can drive to it by turning north on a gravel road from Route 9, the Brattleboro highway. This gravel road is part of The Long Trail and is so marked.

Fay Fuller Camp holds 12 but there is ample camping space in the field next to the camp."

Trips in the neighborhood include:- Glastonbury on The Long Trail; to Bald Mt. (trail now in bad shape); to Sucker Pond by way of Dunville Notch and return by The Long Trail; to Little Pond.

This should make a good weekend trip whether you wish to hike or prefer just to camp. In either case there will be congenial company. We'll be looking for you.

Time - Sunday, Sept. 6th
Place - Mt. Cushman.

This is a new trip on our schedule and should prove interesting.

Mt. Cushman is east of Rochester and is reached from the Randolph Gap road. It has an elevation of 2640 ft. This is higher than Bird Mt. or Okemo and just slightly less than Moosalamoo, if you're interested in comparisons.

A road of sorts which was the main highway from Rochester to Randolph 50 years ago passes over near the summit. You will be wiser however not to try to drive to the top.

The mountain was apparently named for Artemus Cushman who many years ago erected a building 30 ft. by 40 ft. (now demolished) on the summit for parties and dancing.

Here is an opportunity to do a little exploring in new territory.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Our GMC people seem to be travelling about Europe just now. We recently received a card from Edith Ewald from Interlaken, Switzerland. She had been up on the Jungfrau and had also enjoyed a boat trip on Brunz Lake. Earlier in the summer she spent a week in Biarritz for the Folk Festival and about ten days in Paris.

News from Jack and Janet Martin is that they have just enjoyed a 7 day leave in Switzerland.

We hope to have details on both these trips for you in a later issue of SMOKE AND BLAZES.

Charlotte Rutkowski will be married to Eugene Keenan on Sept. 5th. Best wishes, Charlotte.

A CHITTENDEN COOLER

The weather on July 16th was about the hottest of the summer to those who stayed at home--they could scarcely summon enough energy to turn the pages of their Sunday paper. However, the brainy GMCers who took advantage of Eleanor Walker's hospitality at the CV camp in Chittenden found themselves in an ideal location for outsmarting the weatherman--fine swimming and boating, a large screened porch, and seclusion--all these were available.

Only four people started out at Meldon, but as the day wore on, almost a dozen others made their way to Chittenden. Mary Perkins brought along her granddaughter Judy; the Fields arrived with Tommy and Peter. Fred tried fishing in one of the camp boats, but the only fish captured was a dead one which Tommy picked out of the water and wanted his mother to cook for him.

When we did get around to eating, we found the club beverages in a new form--iced tea and iced coffee! A few stayed for the evening meal as well, and came home in the early evening.

All in all, it was as pleasant a way to beat the heat as anyone could imagine.

A GLIMPSE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

The only thing lacking on Saturday, August 1st, when we set out for Helen Bailey's camp in New Hampshire, was the crowd which such a fine outing deserved. However, as the saying goes "it's quality not quantity" etc., and those who went enjoyed the good time they had anticipated.

It was a perfect summer afternoon, and the ride over the mountain to Ludlow, on down through Springfield and across the Connecticut River via the toll bridge couldn't have been better. After crossing the bridge we were soon following a pleasant country road--by negotiating a few turns for which we had been given detailed directions, we soon arrived at the designated hole in the fence. To be sure, the tour director of one car misread 3/10 mile as 3 miles on the last hitch; but soon discovered the error, and rejoined the rest of the party.

The camp, situated off the highway and across Little Sugar River, is in a grove of pines and hemlocks interspersed with some hardwood. If you are in the least camp-minded, a tour of Helen's is guaranteed to make you want to find a likely spot and start building.

We were offered a climb up a perfectly good near-by mountain with a view from the top, but apparently its attractions couldn't compete with the hammocks and easy chairs under the pines.

After a couple of hours of pleasant chatting, our attention turned toward supper. The table was laid in the camp living room and with its dark green cloth, varicolored pottery, and big bowls of berries it looked like a picture page from Good Housekeeping.

The beverages provided by the hostess proved to be lemonade and coffee--not a choice, but both! Then for dessert...blueberries, honest-to-goodness wild ones--blackberries, cookies, AND cream puffs.

Soon after supper some of the party set off for the homeward trip, while the overnights took their places before a cheerful fire for an evening of Canasta. Time passed quickly and it seemed only a short while until we were settled down for the night with the whisper of pines as a pleasant substitute for the in-town whirl of passing automobiles.

The next thing we knew, it was Sunday morning and time to begin to think of leaving. First, though, a leisurely breakfast, and a final chat under the trees.

Although the early morning was a bit cloudy the sun soon came out and made the ride home a pleasant ending for a most enjoyable outing.

Now aren't you sorry you missed it? Remember, we warned you!

CHANGES AT PLEIAD

by Bill Allard

On Sunday, the 16th of June, nine stalwart members gathered at Meldon for the trip to Lake Pleiad. Vera Perkins' car developed a flat tire before we left the school, but this was the only serious misfortune that occurred, unless Gary Taylor counts his unscheduled dip in the lake as a serious misfortune.

It was a beautiful day for the trip up and the short hike in. We found the trail rather difficult to follow due to lumbering operations, but soon arrived at the camp. Since the collapse of the Middlebury section the camp has not been kept up. The roof looks sound, but the windows are out. The porkies have gotten in to eat everything in sight, including a good deal of the floor; the camp didn't look like a pleasant place to stay.

We continued to the lake and found it prettier than ever. It seemed cleaner and freer from old treetops, etc. Some trees have been cut back from the edge and it makes the spot better lighted.

After a satisfying midday meal, an afternoon of swimming, boating, and just lying in the sun satisfied even the most energetic. Craigie brought in the rubber boat, which, together with a rowboat already there, provided exercise and fun for whoever took them out on the lake. Bird-watchers had a good chance to observe a kingfisher, which flew around the lake, giving its odd call and occasionally diving for a fish.

After a quick trip out to the cars, we enjoyed the triphome through the late afternoon light.

ALONG THE AUGUST ROADSIDE

It often seems that all the glory and attention goes to the first spring wildflowers. By the time August comes along we are taking a profusion of wildflowers more or less for granted. The gorgeous flower show which this month puts on for us really deserves more attention.

We made a list of the flowers seen in an afternoon's walk from Craigie Perkins' camp to the beaver dam a few days ago. This list is incomplete as we know we didn't see them all, and there were some we were unable to identify then or later.

We are going to give you the list and let all you people who take pride in knowing your spring wildflowers see how many of these you would surely recognize.

Here is the list:-

Jewel Weed
Pale Jewel Weed
Turtle Head
Yarrow
Wild Mint
Joe-Pye Weed
Wild Parsnip
Bunch Berry -(we saw the blossom and the berry on plants of this not 3 ft. apart!)

Chicory
Wild Aster
Self Heal
Burdock
Stick Tight
Purple Orchid
White Banberry
Rough Bedstraw
Buttercup
Daisy
Black-eyed Susan
Goldenrod

We are willing to venture a guess that every one of you (Mr. Kirk excepted) have found at least one flower on this list which is new to you. Are we right?

The following was taken from the May issue of CONNECTICUT Woodlands. We think it deserves some thought.

"LITTERBUGS" AND THEIR CONTROL
John L. Wright

The clean-up of roadside litter, carelessly or deliberately cast along the highways by travelers, has become a very serious highway problem. The almost unbelievable amount of debris resulting from a week-end of favorable motoring weather not only counteracts the sincere efforts of landscape and maintenance engineers to provide pleasing and attractive roadsides; this litter, if not removed from highways, may be a potential factor in the spread of diseases. It frequently clogs drainage ways, and bottles and cans hidden in roadside grass may cause extensive damage to mowing equipment. Furthermore, it is not an uncommon sight to see motorists changing tires which were cut on the jagged edges of beer cans or broken bottles.

It is, therefore, essential to keep the roadside as free of debris as possible. This task annually costs the highway departments thousand of dollars - money sorely needed for other highway purposes.

The habit of tossing cigarette butts out of car windows is most serious. It is safe to say that at least 75% of these discarded cigarettes are lighted - each one constitutes a potential fire hazard. In wooded areas, innumerable fires destroying a large acreage of valuable timber can be attributed directly to this source.

It can hardly be expected that the day will ever come when roadside litter is no longer a problem. Nevertheless, through intelligent programs of public education, this problem can be lessened considerably and cleaner, more attractive roadsides, at a lower cost to highway departments will result.

4
Along the same line we quote from TRAIL AND TIMBERLINE

"Patrol For Beauty"

"The rustic beauty of a campsite location, winding trail, or lofty peak top, that we all appreciate is sometimes completely destroyed by the sight of "tourist evidence," such as a tin can, candy bar wrapper, worn out shoe or wad of tissue.

"Let us consider the average mountain club trip. It is quite possible that the most careful camper will roll down the car window and throw out orange peel, kleenex, film container, etc. to clutter the road and countryside through the mountains. There is the false theory that wind, moisture, other erosion and animals will destroy this refuse. Instead, the next tourist, camper, or climber will see this refuse in its various rotting stages the rest of the season.

"The following disposal procedures meet the needs of an aesthetic area. The main object is removal or permanent concealment of refuse. Burn everything combustible such as paper, food scraps, and thrown out clothing. Tin cans may be burned to destroy food traces, then smashed flat. If you lunch on the mountain top, carry the flattened tins back to camp to bury or to put in the provided trash container there. You have the alternative of depositing them away from the trail out of sight. Be sure they are hidden. Others may wander right where your footsteps have led.

"Let's make ourselves a CMC patrol for more habitable camping areas, aesthetic hiking trails, and attractive mountain top scenery."

Editor's note: The CMC in the above refers to Colorado Mountain Club. The letters GMC could be substituted and the advice followed which would lead to the improvement of our own camps and trails.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sunday, Sept. 20 - 9 A.M.
Place - Wallingford Gulf Road to
Little Rock Pond

This is the first of our series of three hikes planned to cover a consecutive section of the Trail. Last fall we did 19 miles of Trail starting from the northern end of the Killington Section. This fall we plan to cover about the same distance from the southern end.

For this first hike we will take the Trail where it crosses the Wallingford - E. Wallingford highway and follow along to Greenwall, White Rocks, and Little Rock Pond; then out to cars on the highway at Black Branch crossing. (Total dist. approx. $9\frac{1}{2}$ mi.)

This section of Trail, at least from Greenwall is new to many of us and the Guide Book promises fine views.

It is the ideal season for hiking - cool weather and no black flies. Don't miss this opportunity for a good day's outing and a chance to cover a sizeable piece of Long Trail.

Time - Sunday, October 4th
Place - Black Branch Crossing to Griffith Lake

Taking up where we left off on the previous hike we will continue south to Old Job Shelter and Griffith Lake, a distance of 7 miles. From Griffith Lake we will take an approach trail down the mountain to Rte. 7, south of Danby - probably about 3 miles more of hiking.

This day's trip covers territory which once saw more activity than it does to-day. There was once a prosperous lumbering village, called Griffith, where Old Job Shelter is located. At Griffith Lake there was formerly a hotel. This should make another interesting day.

WANT SOMETHING NEW?

Looking for an excuse to buy a new dress or set of dishes? Are the children's overalls getting shabby? GMC RUMMAGE SALE offers a chance to kill 3 birds with one stone:- gets rid of your older things; gives our "customers" some needed good bargains; and nots some money for Killington Section treasury. START COLLECTING!

Watch for further details in your October SMOKE and BLAZES.

MT. CUSHMAN RAINED OUT

New hikes on our schedule seem to run into bad luck - first Mt. Aeolus and now Mt. Cushman. Never mind, we'll do them yet!

COMING NEXT MONTH

Four Killington Section members made an over-night trip to Killington recently. Because of lack of space we could not give you their report on it this time. You will find it in your October issue.

FIFTY-ONE ATTEND INTERSECTIONAL
by
Dan Jennings, Jr.

Fay Fuller herself would be proud of the genuinely gracious hospitality extended to GMCers during their Intersectional meeting, held at the site of the camp bearing her name! Acting hosts for the Bennington Section were Mr. and Mrs. Paulson who certainly did everything possible to make our outing a successful and comfortable one.

Much preliminary brush cutting and trimming had been done to establish a clearing in an old abandoned orchard, the site of our tent city. Five sections were represented by familiar old timers-- from Burlington were Prof. and Mrs. Buchanan, Larry and Alberta Dean. From Worcester were Jim Green, Prof. and Mrs. John Vondell, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mitchell, Mr. Storey and others. Killington section members included Criague and Mary Perkins, Vera Perkins, Mary Jennings, Thelma Valiquette, Betty Ball, Bill Alford, Churchill Scott, and Dan Jennings, Jr. From Bennington besides the hosts came Miss Hardy and Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett and grandchildren. Representing Brattleboro were our old friends the Dunklees, whom we hadn't seen for some time, and three of their children.

The Saturday night campfire featured the usual (but always enjoyable) visiting and telling of trail tales, the verity of which we never question (?). Larry Dean held us in suspense for several minutes with what seemed to be a thrilling ghost story, but come to find out, he was telling it to us only to see if anyone could tell him the ending!

As the beautiful near-full moon rose over the mountainside, Jim Green led us in Kate Smith's theme song (first giving us the pitch on his newly made willow flute). Several old favorite tunes followed until we discovered it was after 10:30 and well past a good hiker's bed time.

Prof. Buchanan failed to give us the traditional reveille call, and one hiker claimed to be disappointed because she woke up purposely just to be sure to hear that horn go off at 5.

The day began at dawn as two car loads went to Bennington for early church services. A leisurely breakfast hour followed, after which "the hikers" (to be distinguished from "the campers") loaded into the back of Mr. Paulson's truck. We expected to revolutionize mountain climbing, but this trend in travel didn't last all the way. We climbed to Thendara camp and then followed along the trail to the lookoff on Harmon Hill, with its splendid view of Mount Anthony and the Bennington valley. Then we continued along the trail down (and we mean down) the other side of the mountain to the highway; Jim Green shuttled us back in relays to camp, where we feasted on corn prepared by Mrs. Paulson --and delicious German fried potatoes, provided by the Bartletts. Both items were meticulously served by Mr. Storey.

Soon tents began to be folded, and folks said their goodbyes. Thus ends the tale of another truly memorable and enjoyable weekend. The moral of the story is: Don't miss the next one!

ADIRONDACK WEEK-END

by
Betty Ball

The week-end of Aug. 15-17 proved perfect for hiking in the Adirondacks. I met a N.Y. State friend at Adirondack Loj, about 9 miles from Lake Placid. The Loj itself is quite small, but there are several lean-tos, and campsites connected with it. The setting is lovely, right on Heart Lake, at the end of the road and with mountains all around it.

Mt. Jo rises right back of the Loj and we decided to climb it, only 700 ft., for sunrise. One of the girls in our bunkroom and her friend, climbed it at 3:30 A.M. but we waited until 5 A.M. There are two trails up Mt. Jo and we chose the short steep one. It was brisk on top and the two girls who had been there since 4:30 were nearly frozen. Although there were too many clouds for much of a sunrise, there was a fine view from the top and Mt. Marcy to the left was clear. The clouds were heavy over the MacIntyre range, whose highest peak, Algonquin, we had wanted to climb, so after a hearty breakfast we decided on a valley walk instead.

The first two miles were easy, a wide woods trail to Marcy Dam which is a truly delightful place to camp. Five large lean-tos provided camping space for all willing to back-pack camping equipment that far. The trail to Mt. Marcy goes off to the left here, a five mile climb, but we headed for Avalanche Pass. The excellent trail went along the bank of a rushing stream, passed Avalanche Leanto, and then headed up the pass. Great boulders and tossed tree trunks showed the effects of past avalanches and storms. Avalanche Lake huddled between the sheer cliffs of Mt. Golden and Caribou, or Avalanche Mt. The trail used to be difficult, according to the guidebook, in and out under boulders. Now it is great fun, over bridges, up and down ladders, and through a small cave. In two places the trail goes out over the lake on floating bridges. The largest of these is called "Hitch-up-Matilda." There are several legends as to how it got its name. The one I like best follows.

In the early days Indian guides led the hikers into this wilderness. When they came to these fords, there were no bridges then, the guides carried the lady hikers on their backs through the water. One Indian had a rather stout woman, Matilda. She began to slip, so the Indian guide behind shouted, "Hitch-up, Matilda, hitch up Matilda." So the bridge was called by that name.

The whole scene here is very dramatic and beautiful. We turned back at the end of Avalanche Lake and did the five miles back to the Loj in about three hours, just ambling along.

The next day, Sunday, we climbed Algonquin. The trail wasn't particularly beautiful until we came to the evergreens which I like, but there were some nice flocks of birds, and a laughable sight of a baby winter-wren, with his tiny tail about as big as a fingernail. When we got to the rocky part near the cone, the trail wasn't too well marked, but we scrambled over the ledges and boulders, and finally had a magnificent view. On one side was the Lake Placid area, to the east the Avalanche-strewn slopes of Mt. Golden, and farther away, Mt. Marcy, the Gothics, and other ranges. Little lakes below enhanced the scene. We ate our lunch in a grassy spot made vivid by bottle gentians, and started down the back side of Algonquin. We had had many versions of this trail, some describing it as "ghastly", "rough", or "terribly steep" and others as "scenic and fun." We found it wonderful fun going down, but I'd hate to go up it. The greater part of the trail is along a brook bed, dry at first, but plenty of water later. Cascades and little waterfalls are all along the way. It was jump from one rock or root to another and step down all the way. It certainly isn't dull!

It was 3:30 this day when we came out again at Avalanche Lake so we hurried the last five miles to the Loj. This makes a good eleven mi. circuit, somewhat strenuous, but never difficult, and you only climb about 3000 feet.

Early mornings turned out to be good for birding, and flocks of warblers included some uncommon ones, like mourning warbler and bay-breasted. One morning a beautiful, white-winged crossbill, appeared briefly right near the Loj.

Monday morning we took a brief woods walk as we wanted to be off by noon, and went through fine woods, I believe virgin timber, to the Rocky Falls lean-to, by the lovely, cascading, clear, Indian Pass brook. A longer walk on the trail would have brought us to Indian Pass, about 6 miles from the Loj.

There were no Vermonters on the register but the place is pleasant and easily accessible, with both camping and Loj accommodations, and both good climbs and easy walks. The mountains are more dramatic of course than most of our Green Mts. So I think an Adirondack week-end will be included in all my summer plans from now on.

CLARENDON TO WALLINGFORD HIKE by Arnold R. Swanson

Fourteen Juniors and four Counselors, of the Pathfinder Club of the Rutland Seventh-day Adventist church, enjoyed a splendid over-night hike on The Long Trail August 16th and 17th.

Meeting at ten O'clock in the morning we had all of our food supplies and bedding etc. packed and down to the beginning of the trail (Rutland-Bellows Falls highway) by noon. Each hiker carrying a bag lunch, we entered the trail and sat down alongside it and enjoyed a nice meal together before starting the hike

Most of the Juniors were around 12 years old, but we had two that were only 7, and they did an excellent job of hiking and carrying their packs. By 1:15 we were ready and we started across the Mill River bridge. Naturally with such a group we hiked slowly, and rested quite 4 often. Midway from the highway to Spring Lake Camp, we met a lone hiker northbound. He had spent the night at Buffum, and was planning to hike as far as Breadloaf Mt. on this trip. It was of great interest for each Junior to meet a real hiker on the Trail, such as we did.

At three o'clock we caught a glimpse of Spring Lake Camp and the Lake. Reaching the camp, it was quickly swept out, and bedrolls were put in order. Then off to the spring for water went the water brigade. Several, not only wanted water to drink, but chose to have a plunge in Spring Lake. Now all refreshed, supper was prepared and eaten in a manner showing that everyone had a good appetite.

At sunset the group gathered in the cabin for a song-fest and evening worship before retiring. Some chose to sleep outdoors, but a good shower came up soon after the group retired, so everyone spent the evening in the cabin.

At 4:30 a.m. the Hikers were up. Breakfast was eaten about 6:00 o'clock. Then a refreshing plunge in the lake, packs put in readiness and finally at 9:00 a.m. we were off again.

Blackberries in abundance were found on the way to Buffum shelter, but still we had good appetites here as we stopped for dinner.

By 3:00 Monday afternoon, we had all safely hiked to the Wallingford-East Wallingford highway, and there we found transportation in a short while.

It was a most pleasant and enjoyable experience on The Long Trail for everyone. We were very happy for the good trail, the camp and shelter provided by the Green Mountain Club. This was our fourth hike on The Long Trail this summer, and we are looking forward to many more in future years.

RUMMAGE SALE - FRIDAY, NOV.6

The date of our annual Rummage Sale has been set and we'll be ready Thursday, Nov. 5th to receive all those things you've assembled for us. As usual we will be at the Neighborhood Rooms from 9 to 5 that day to set things up for the sale.

Why not break down and bring in all those things you almost gave us last year? Contact your relatives, friends, and neighbors and see what you can collect from them too. We will need plenty of things to sell to give our treasury its usual boost.

If you have things but no way of getting them to us, call Mary or Craigue Perkins (1383-W) before Thursday, Nov. 5th.

We will need some help both in getting ready and in carrying on the Sale, so if you can spare some time on Thursday, Nov. 5th, or Friday, Nov. 6th, please let us know.

REMEMBER - THE SUCCESS OF THE SALE DEPENDS ON YOUR EFFORTS!!

COMING EVENTS

TIME - Sunday, Oct 18 - 8:30 A.M.
PLACE - Mad Tom Shelter to Griffith Lake.

This is the third and last of our "series-hikes" on this schedule. With the completion of this hike those who have done all three will have covered 21.6 miles of The Long Trail.

We will start from Mad Tom and the lunch stop on this one will probably be Griffith Lake Shelter - 4.5 mi. from Mad Tom. From Griffith Lake Shelter to the Lake is .7 mi. and from there to the cars, by the Lake Trail is 3 mi. more - making the day's total 8.2 miles.

This should be an interesting trip as it includes Styles Peak and Peru Peak. We are hoping for a clear day so we can enjoy the view from Styles Peak.

Better try this one even if you didn't make the first two.

TIME - Sunday, Nov.1 - 11 A.M.
PLACE - Tucker Lodge

Those who have found the last few hikes a bit strenuous can relax and enjoy this one. Here is a chance to spend a good day in the open without much effort.

However, if you feel the urge for more exercise, you can reach Tucker via the Circle Trail. If you still want more, when you leave you can hike through on the Blue Trail to the road beyond Craigue Perkins' camp.

So, come early or late; take it easy or make it as strenuous as you like; but join us at Tucker anyway for the traditional GMC coffee and conversation.

Charlotte and Eugene Keenan are camping for a few days near Jay Peak while he is on Forestry business in that area. They plan to climb the mountain while there.

GULF ROAD TO BLACK BRANCH ROAD

In spite of threatening weather, 12 optimists met at the Meldon School on Sunday, Sept. 20th for the first of the fall "series-hikes".

We drove to the point where The Trail crosses the Gulf road and after parking our cars hiked south through open pastures toward Greenwall Shelter. We had barely started hiking when the weather carried out its earlier threat and rain apparel was in order.

After a brief stop at Greenwall, which is a short distance off The Trail, we retraced our steps to The Trail and set out for our lunch stop, Little Rock Pond, 5.2 miles away.

In spite of the rain which continued intermittently, allowing us about time enough to partly dry off between showers, we enjoyed this piece of Trail. It is well brushed out through open woods as it climbs gradually and continues along the ridge of White Rocks Mt.

Everyone was more than ready for lunch by the time we reached the familiar trail near Little Rock Pond. About this time the weather decided to cooperate. The rain stopped and in a surprisingly short time coffee was ready to serve.

We spent a pleasant hour and a half around the campfire before completing the last lap out to the highway at Black Branch Crossing. There we were met by Pearl Nichols and Eleanor Walker who transported the drivers back to the cars on the Gulf Road.

Everyone voted this an easy 9 miles and went home filled with pleasant anticipation of resuming the journey in two weeks.

BLACK BRANCH ROAD TO GRIFFITH LAKE

Another good Fall hike was enjoyed by eight Killington Section members on Sunday, October 4th when they hiked from Black Branch Road to Griffith Lake.

While driving down route 7 toward Danby, a most unusual cloud was observed. Through dark glasses the colors edging this cloud took on brilliant hues. Even with the naked eye they could be seen but weren't as bright as seen through the glasses.

This stretch of The Long Trail is in the National Forest and is in very good condition. It is also, perhaps, one of the easiest parts of The Trail to hike for the climbs are all gradual. At Old Job Shelter we met two men with a jeep and trailer. They offered to give anyone who wanted it, a ride to Griffith Lake. We all proved to be hikers and the offer was not taken.

By the time we reached Griffith Lake, also known as Buffum Pond, it looked like rain so we decided to eat on the lake shore and then be on our way back without stopping at the shelter. We would make that, next trip, to or from Mad Tom.

We had just finished lunch when a shower pelted us just long enough to make us hurry and be on our way without giving us a chance to investigate or explore the upper end of the lake. Oh, well, we'll be back in another few days!

We returned by way of the Lake Trail and found it to be rather down hilly; a drop of over 1500 feet in about three miles. We were glad to be going down instead of up. However we don't recommend going down any trail arm in arm. It's apt to lead to a bad fall. In fact it did! (no serious results)

When we came off the trail it was good to see Pearl Nichols' car waiting to take the drivers of the hikers back to Black Branch Crossing to pick up their cars. Pearl and Eleanor Walker came along in a few minutes. They had been walking up the road a ways. We sure are glad to see these girls when we come off the trail. We appreciate their services and their loyal club spirit. Thanks girls!

THE FOURSOME CAMP IN N.Y. STATE

This camping trip makes the fifth consecutive Fall Camping expedition made by the group of GMCers known as the Foursome; namely, Mary Jennings Thelma Valiquette, Vera Perkins, and Mary Perkins. Past camp sites have been located in Vermont and New Hampshire State Parks. This time the Foursome headed for New York state with three locations in mind. The idea being to select the one that offered the best facilities; wood, water, and a good place to set up tents.

We took off in the rain and cold at nine thirty, October 7th. The weatherman had predicted "fair and colder" weather for the remainder of the week so we were in an optimistic mood as we drove out of Rutland. Our route took us north west to Lake Champlain Bridge where we crossed the lake and ate a picnic lunch at the Crown Point State Park. The foliage was beautiful but we missed not having the sunshine.

As we drove on in New York state, we sighted one mountain peak covered with snow. This didn't bother us for we all had double sleeping bags and were sure we could keep warm enough.

Our first inspection tour was at Paradox Lake State Park. The water had been turned off here, and there was no wood available. The camp site was not to our liking so we drove on to Sharp Bridge State Park. Here, again, we were disappointed - no wood, no water, but we did like the pine grove setting.

It was four P.M. when we reached Eagle Point on Schroon Lake. The water was on and there were plenty of good camp sites. The caretaker could not supply us with wood but told us where we could get slash from a lumber mill near by. It had stopped raining by this time. We set up the tents and then two of the campers went to get the wood. They loaded the trunk of the car with all it would take of wet, no good wood, but perhaps better than nothing.

Mary Jennings and Thelma deserve credit for getting such a good dinner that night on a smoky fire that refused to make coals for cooking. We ate inside the big tent by the light of the gasoline lantern, then cleaned up camp and played canasta until ten-thirty. By that time we were a little chilly, had a cup of hot cocoa and crawled into our bags.

The next morning after the camp chores were done, we went in to Pottersville, about five miles from camp, to see if we could buy some dry wood. We were lucky. For one dollar and a half we purchased enough to fill the trunk of the car with some of the best fire wood we ever had. Back at camp we built a roaring fire, toasted ourselves for a while, had a light lunch and then went off to bask in the sun. It was too cool down by the lake so we found a sunny location up near the entrance of the Park and spent a few hours there until it was time to go back to start dinner.

The food on these outings is something to write home about ! Mary Jennings and Thelma know their outdoor cooking ! ! Wish there was space enough here to list the menus - we'd have you drooling !

Two games of canasta were played on the second night out . We set the card table close to the fire and took turns roasting ourselves ! We popped corn, had some fire-side chat and turned in about midnight.

The third day, Friday, bright and a little warmer, was somewhat similar to the previous day except we didn't have to go into town for wood. We varied the program a bit by going on a picnic down by the lake. Two of the campers missed not going to town so when we had lantern trouble, they went in to a garage to get it fixed. They sure did get good service and are now ready to add New York state to the list of states of friendly people. Canasta was played again and we should mention the champs; Mary J. and Tholma. These games are never taken seriously though of course it is fun to win.

Saturday was to be our last day at camp but that didn't hurry us. We took our time about breakfast, had hair sets for those in need of them, packed a picnic lunch and then started to break camp. At one o'clock we started for home and varied the route a little.

We took a cross road over to the top of Lake George where we ate lunch at Rogers Rock State Park. This is one to add to our collection. We liked it very much. At Ticonderoga we were back on our old route. It was getting toward sunset when we crossed Champlain so we drove across the bridge as slowly as possible to enjoy the view. We reached Rutland about six P.M. entirely satisfied with our camping trip and with the thought, "where will the Foursome go camping next year?"

A TRIP TO KILLINGTON

Bill Allard, Craigie Perkins, Barbic Allard, and Martha Hakens left Rutland at 4:30 one afternoon and drove to Brewers Corners to hit the trail for Killington and an overnight.

The trail was better than we had expected to find it. Someone had painted a few blazes and the worst brush had been cut. Due to the dry season there was no water along the trail and we feared the spring at the camp might be dry, but all was well when we pulled into the clearing just before dark.

Cooper Lodge was clean and a good supply of wood was on hand, but on this expedition we burned no wood. A pint of kerosene in the Primus stove cooked the meals and heated all the dish water.

Supper consisted of a huge macaroni salad (Orilla Allard), pears, cocoa, and filled cookies (Isabell Hakens). The men folks washed the dishes. About nine o'clock we set out for the peak, taking an extra flashlight, jackets, and one sleeping bag for padding the rocky summit.

Because of the misty atmosphere we could see nothing further away than Rutland. But the stars were all out and sure enough the moon came up red in the north east. Some shooting stars were seen. About 11:30 the wind began to feel a little too cool so we stumbled back down to the camp. And so to bed.

Up at 6:30 to a breakfast of sausage and griddlocake. Again the men folks did the dishes. Then up to the peak again to spend most of the day in the sun. The seeing was very poor but time was spent exploring the rocks, and looking at the lumber operations on each side of the mountain. One hiking party came by camp about noon but didn't visit the peak. We heard another group for some time but they never appeared.

At 3:30 we went down for dinner of hamburgs and potato, with peaches for desert, and more cool cookies. This time the ladies washed the dishes.

After a good clean-up we started back to the car. Being somewhat delayed by ripe blackberries, we didn't arrive home till about eight o'clock.

Other highlights of this trip included: 1. On the way we saw two porkies. Billy went out after we reached camp and killed one. 2. The liver of Billy's porky. 3. The large flock of Crossbills eating with a chipmunk. 4. Martha's first trip to Killington. 5. Barbic's first trip sleeping overnight.

COMING EVENTS

TIME * Sunday, Nov. 15 - 10 A.M.
PLACE Bald Mt.

Here is an old favorite back on the schedule after an absence of several years. This trip is one especially well known for its unpredictability. We have been in December when we enjoyed an afternoon of sunning on the rocks in balmy spring temperature. On the other hand, Bald Mt. was also the scene of the oft-told experience of coffee freezing in the cups before we could drink it - likewise in December !

We can't vouch for the condition of the trail, at the time of the last first hand reports it was far from good. So, come prepared for anything. At least it shouldn't be dull.

Time - Sun., Nov. 29 - 9:30 A.M.
Place - Blue Ridge

This is just about the most adaptable outing you could find. In the first place the weather doesn't matter - if it isn't good for hiking we can just change to an indoor outing and enjoy the hospitality of Mary and Craig Perkins' camp.

For those who want to hike some but are not in mountain climbing mood or condition, there are plenty of walks of varying distances and interests around camp.

Those who do hike up the mountain will enjoy one of the most rewarding views in comparison with the amount of energy expended that can be found anywhere.

Everyone can be assured of a warm cozy place to relax and enjoy lunch after hiking, and any who would like to join us just for this part of the program will be most welcome.

What more could one outing offer ?

Time - Saturday, December 12th.
Place - Beechwood - Covered Dish Supper.

This eating-party has become so well established as an annual event that it no longer seems to need much explanation.

For the benefit of any who may have missed it or who have poor memories we'll outline the general procedure.

Since it's a "covered-dish" affair those planning to attend should call in stating the number in their party and getting their assignment as to what to bring. Call by Saturday A.M. at the latest (Vera Perkins - 1910) - an earlier call will be appreciated.

It helps in many ways if each person brings his own plate, cup, knife, fork, and spoon. So tie a string around your finger and try to remember them.

The latch string will be out and the home fires burning any time after 2 P.M. If you come early you can get in a hike or just relax. The grand tour around the supper table will start at 6:30 P.M.

For the evening program this we have the opportunity to view a collection of colored slides loaned by William and Raymond Bartlett of Salisbury, Conn. These brothers, one of whom is now a medical student in Conn., recently received their "End-to-enders" award and these pictures were taken all along The Trail.

We guarantee you won't be sorry if you come - unless you eat too much.

RUMMAGE SALE NETS $98.08

Once again the Rummage Sale has added a tidy little sum to our treasury. Each year we wonder where the material for the next sale is coming from but each year finds us with a good supply. This is entirely due to our loyal members and good friends who remember to save for us during the year. For several years this comparatively painless method of raising money has helped us materially in carrying out our projects. Our thanks to all of you who have helped make these sales successful.

We want to say an extra "thank you" to Isabelle Hakens, Thelma Valiquette, Miriam Bell, and Eleanor Walker who answered our call for volunteers to help in carrying on the sale.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Latest report from Janet and Jack Martin is that they are spending Jack's current 15 day leave in England and Scotland.

Jan and Jack are certainly taking advantage of every opportunity to see the country around about. The latter part of the summer they spent a leave in Switzerland. This trip included the Black Forest, Bern, Grendelwald, which Jan describes as a "story-book town high in the mountains with its Bavarian type houses perched high on the hillsides", over the Susten Pass and down into William Tell country, Lake Lucerne and Lake Constance.

Janet writes that in a small town near Bern they stayed in a "Gasthof" with no running water but nice and clean, where the charge of about $5 for two included dinner, overnight, and breakfast - and for dinner they had steak!

They didn't get to do any mountain climbing as the weather wasn't cooperative at the right times. However, they did some walking as they planned to arrive at each overnight stop in time for a couple hours walk about the surrounding country before dinner.

MAD TOM TO GRIFFITH LAKE by Helen Bailey

Sunday, October 18, six cars (three with passengers and three with drivers only) left Meldon School for what was to most of us a "mystery hike". We proceeded south beyond Danby to the marble quarries. Here we took a dirt road east to a group of abandoned houses where we in turn abandoned three of our cars. Their drivers climbed in the other three cars and we headed north again to Danby, where we took the road over Mt. Tabor to Hapgood Pond and thence to Mad Tom Shelter. Here we parked two cars, dismissed one (Pearl's) and set out along The Long Trail to Styles Peak. After guessing at the identity of several haze-shrouded mountains, we went down again and up over another mountain which we were told was Peru, but which the sign-post said was Mt. Tabor, dropping down from there on Griffith Lake Shelter, where we enjoyed our lunch and a rest.

All who would were encouraged to drink water. The others shared one teaball and two or three teaspoonfuls of Nescafe. The group of thirteen included four younger members who, fortunately, had brought their own drinks, so everyone appeared to be satisfied.

We then continued to Grif-fith Lake to which we could give but scant attention due to the rapidly sinking sun. Shortly after leaving the lake we came to the cut over the crest of the range and for the rest of the way down had a breathtaking three-way view - a. straight down at the valley at our feet; b. across the ravine to the opposite slope which was covered with white birches; and c. straight ahead to the west hills bathed in the setting sun. Although we had scuffed most of the way through the fallen leaves, they were still on the trees here and added greatly to the effectiveness of the scene. We were told we were following the bed of an ancient railroad, and, as the angle of descent forced our toes against the end of our boots, we almost wished it were still there. However all made it out to the road in good season and two of the cars took off immediately for home. The other car took two of us back to Mad Tom via Lancaster and Peru, then home through Weston. Everyone agreed that the third and last of this year's "series" had been a real success.

TUCKER LODGE
by
Maude Canty

The Weather-man promised Sunday, Nov. 1st to be a bright, clear day and so it was, off and on - a pretty day in the woods with the everchanging shadows.

Fourteen hikers met at the Meldon School and late comers swelled our number to twenty before we left Tucker Lodge. While waiting for the group to collect, two young gentlemen (teen-agers) stopped by and asked to join our ranks. We waited while they went home for their lunches and swapped church clothes for others.

It was our good fortune to have our friends from the Worcester Section, Jim and Frances Green and Bill Mitchell, with us - Craigie wouldn't have been able to repair Tucker roof had not Jim Green been on the other end of the pole holding the cement for him.

Found the Lodge in good condition, it made some of us wish that we could stay and take some hikes from there, coming back to Tucker each night for supper and a cozy time around the fire. Some day we hope to do just that.

Does everyone know that one doesn't disturb a flower or a grasshopper found on The Trail? A lone little violet that dared to bloom on this November day is still fresh and fragrant here in the city. Count that day lost if something isn't learned.

Everyone seemed to be having a good time rambling around searching for checkerberries or ferns for their respective greeneries.

It wasn't too long before the coffee was just right, groups collecting for eats, some out of doors and others inside at the table. Isabelle Hakens treated us all to one of the nicest cakes and did it taste good!

That good old coffee pot still shines, regardless of past arguments for and 'agin' keeping it scrubbed and shiny.

The teen-agers proved to be good campers, taking their turn in getting up the wood pile. Future members? Who knows?

Missed seeing more of our other members - the two Larys, (Jennings and Perkins), "T" and Harold Valiquette, Diane and George Conlin, and others.

We all agreed that The Long Trail is the best way to travel and see our mountain tops but the man power needed for keeping the trails open depends on the faithful few.

IF LOST IN THE WOODS

You could get lost in the woods ! It could happen, but it is very unlikely on a regular scheduled GMC hike with a group such as usually attends. However, because this could happen, we feel it might be helpful to give a little advice on this subject.

If you are ever lost in the woods, don't get panicky. A person inexperienced in the woods is liable to get scared and tramp along through the underbrush until he drops from exhaustion. It is much better to sit still for a while and analyze the situation. In this way you won't break any bones or tire yourself out.

Don't worry about wild animals. Any animal near you would be just as scared of you as you are of him. He would hasten to get out of your way.

When you have discovered that you are lost, look around for some landmarks, like a stream or telephone or electric light line.

Don't try to cut across country. Most people unused to the woods find themselves walking in circles.

Walk downhill. When you find a stream or power line, follow its downward course. It will lead you to open valleys, settlements or highways.

Don't travel by night. Travel at night in woods you don't know may lead you to dangerous, rough terrain.

If you can locate open fields or clearings in woods, stay there. Searchers, especially airplane searchers, could see you there more easily than in the thick woods.

Clear an area of inflammable material and build a signal fire to send up smoke. Make sure the fire is out when you leave.

When you see a plane, remember everyone waves his arms at an airplane so to attract attention, signal in some different manner. A shirt or large kerchief with a color contrasting with the ground could be used to good advantage. Another method of attracting an airplane's attention is to flash a polished cigarette case or mirror.

It is comforting to know that the Department of Public Safety, The State Director of Aeronautics, the Fish and Game Department, State Forester, Civil Air Patrol and local law and forest groups all join in searches for lost persons.

In addition to radios in all state police cars, each state police area has at least one smaller "handy-talkie" for use in searches through the woods.

With searches so well organized on the ground and in the air, a person lost in the woods has little to worry about if he follows the above advice and keeps his head. He will be found very shortly.

Of course the best rule to follow in regard to woods walking is, Don't Get Lost. It is always a good plan to hike with at least one other person. When you are with a group, never get too far out of sight or sound of the group.

Some people like to walk alone in the woods. If you are one of those people, know your area, and keep on a well marked trail or path.

Whereas being lost in the woods for a few hours or overnight may not cause any great hardship on the individual, it might be well to give some thought to the folks at home who would be going through mental torture. So, don't get lost. But if you do, keep your head and you'll soon be found.

COMING EVENTS

TIME - Saturday, January 2nd PLACE - Spring Lake

Please make especial note of the date and place of this one. It is a Saturday trip and was planned with the hope that some of our absent members, home for the holidays, might attend.

The place is changed from that shown on your schedule card. We've shifted dates with the Clarendon trip. The reason for this is that since the problem of moving Spring Lake Camp arose, we heard, via our private grapevine, that some members would be willing to help if any work was to be done on it during the holidays. We couldn't afford to pass up an opportunity like that -- so Sat., Jan. 2nd is a chance for a good get-together and also to get some needed work done at Spring Lake Camp.

We're setting the starting time at 9 A.M. but any who can't make it then may come along at their convenience.

Coming as it does the day after New Year's you should be recovered from your New Year's Eve celebration and ready for a day in the open. Join us for a day of fun and work. Let's make it a record turn-out.

TIME - Sunday, January 17th
PLACE - Clarendon Lodge

We haven't had as many scheduled trips to Clarendon Lodge as such a fine shelter would seem to warrant. However we've been saving this for winter as it is so perfectly adapted to such outings.

We shall hope for snow at this time as this is an ideal snowshoe trip. It is short enough to be accessible to practically everyone yet there are opportunities for as extensive a trip as the most ambitious could wish for.

It is a pleasant spot for a day's outing even minus the snow, so, whatever the weather, plan on spending Sunday, January 17th with us at Clarendon Lodge.

BALD MT. TRIP
by
Helen Field

On November 15, nine of us brave souls, wearing red hats, kerchiefs, and jackets, to warn the hunters that we were people and not animals, set out to scale the heights of Bald Mt.

Being slightly out of condition, I thought this would be an easy trip for me, but there were so many windfalls on the upper half of the trail that I think we climbed more miles over and under than we did up and down and round about. Our main trouble was that we all followed Craigie like a flock of sheep and he followed his nose. We should have picked a man with a straighter nose. There was no chance of finding the north side of a tree by the moss growing on it, because the trees were pointing in every direction.

Finally we did find a clearing and we were able to get our bearings from that. By following along the top of the ridge we managed to retrace our steps to the top of the mountain.

Barbie Allard proved to be an expert fire-maker. The two men went after water while the rest of us gathered more wood.

The view was a little hazy but it is always nice to be on top of a mountain looking down at the rest of the world anyway, and the weather was unusually warm for the time of year.

We found our way back much easier than we expected, picking up the trail again about half way down.

Two conclusions were reached before our journey was over - one is that we could stand to have a lot of work done on that trail by someone who is really ambitious, and the other is that the shortest distance between two points is, but definitely, a straight line.

However, we parted with the same thoughts we always have after a GMC trip, no matter what the destination - we all had fun and we all want to go again.

BLUE RIDGE AGAIN

The weather looked somewhat unpromising on Sunday, Nov. 29th when 12 hikers met at the Meldon School to start for Blue Ridge via Craigue Perkins' camp. However only one lazy-bones used the excuse of "slippery walking and probably no view" as an excuse for spending the morning loafing cozily at camp. (It was perfect!)

Both those premonitions proved to be true and with no view to lure them to linger, and the trail slippery enough so they could slip instead of walk most of the way down, the hikers made the trip in record time.

During their absence the party had been increased by new arrivals so that by lunch time there were 17 of us. During the afternoon three more people hiked in for a short visit thus making a good total attendance for a gray, November day.

Actually it was a fine day to hike or be at camp. Hiking around the woods in the afternoon we found the evergreens still dusted with the light snow which had fallen the previous night. The weather was not cold but just crisp enough to make camp especially inviting after a hike.

Just as the early dusk was settling down we left for home, reluctant, as always, to leave camp and bring to an end another good GMC outing.

COVERED DISH SUPPER

The usual hungry crowd (41) was on hand at Beechwood to collect their suppers from a well laden table. A few arrived in time to enjoy a nice afternoon outdoors or a chat by the fire, but the crowd really assembled at the supper hour. It was once more evident that Killington Section GMC has good cooks as well as hikers. The dishes were so empty at the end of the first course that we feared some might have to go home hungry. By the time the cakes, pies, and cookies had appeared and disappeared, however, we were no longer worried.

After the clean-up hubbub subsided, which process, incidentally, seemed to get done in record time, we enjoyed colored views of The Long Trail. Our thanks to Fred Field for procuring the slides and equipment, and showing them for us.

We were glad that Marge Allard was home for the weekend. We surely appreciated her efficient help in serving supper. Thanks are due also to our ever willing dish-washer Eleanor Walker, and to the many others who cheerfully helped in serving and clearing up.

It's working together at these parties which helps to make them so much fun. We'll be looking forward to this same event next year.

SPRING LAKE CAMP TO BE TAKEN DOWN

When the Spring Lake Camp project was started Mr. Ralph Congdon of Wallingford gave us permission to place the Camp on his property. The walls and some of the rafters of the Camp came from the abandoned Blue Triangle Camp near the present Clement Camp. They were trucked to the end of Spring Lake, taken across the ice on sleds and toboggans, and laboriously carried up the steep hill to the campsite. About $100. worth of new lumber for the roof, floor and bunk, plus roofing paper and stove were carried by hand a quarter of a mile from the head of truck traffic south of the Camp. The construction period extended over about two years.

During this time two suggestions were made to Mr. Congdon for the protection of his property. One was that he purchase at the Club's expense "Keep off" signs to be posted around his camp on the lake so that people from the Trail would not annoy him by hanging around his camp, dock, or boats. Another suggestion was that he build a tight, locked cover for his spring at Club expense to prevent thoughtless campers from dipping out of his supply. He did not adopt either of these suggestions.

Since the completion of the Spring Lake Camp it has generally been found to be in better than average condition as regards cleanliness.

Without preliminary warning or discussion, Mr Congdon has suddenly ordered the Killington Section to remove the Spring Lake Camp from his property by March 1, 1954.

Jim Green of the Worcester Section consented to talk the matter over with Mr. Congdon. He did so and reported that the trouble seemed to be caused by a long series of minor irritations. Mr. Congdon stood by his ultimatum.

The Section Executive Committee met and proceeded to take steps to comply with Mr. Congdon's demand. Vera Perkins, George Conlon, and Emil Boscilli called on Mr. Wayne Sarcka of Spring Lake Ranch. Permission was given to reestablish the Camp on the flat about one-half mile south of its present location. The spot selected has a good outlook and a spring nearby. The wood road to the site will be closed after reconstruction is finished.

The present plan is to take down the old camp with as much care as possible. The roof, floor, and bunk boards, all new lumber, can certainly be salvaged. Then we will decide whether the old side sections are worth the expense and labor of moving, or if it would be better to put more money into new sides and rafters.

Regardless of whether or not we think Mr. Congdon was justified in taking the action he did, in the way he did, this episode should bring about a long needed change in our attitude toward the GMC trails and shelters in our Section at least.

We have been entirely too nonchalant about the maintenance and protection of our facilities. Hikers, campers, picnickers, hunters, fishermen, Scouts, and commercial resorts use our trails and shelters without realizing that they themselves have any responsibility for their care. Many who know and use the Trail never heard of The Green Mountain Club.

Certainly our facilities should be open to the public without restriction as to "who," but there should be more definite restriction as to "how". Land owners have given us the privilege of having the Trail cross their property and of maintaining camps. It is our duty to do everything possible to prevent the abuse of this privilege.

We should maintain in every Camp an official register in which all persons using the Trail are required to register. This register should contain the rules for the use of the Camp. The registers should be uniform in style and marked as the property of the Club. Persons found in Camps without having registered should be required to leave. The rated capacity of the Camp should be stated and all comers up to this capacity should be allowed entrance.

A regular systematic patrol system of our trails and camps should be maintained with as great a frequency as conditions and manpower permit. This would lead to early knowledge of bad trail conditions or need of camp repairs.

We can not expect the public to take an interest in the maintenance of our trails and shelters unless we show a greater interest in them ourselves. Let's let the public know that somebody does care.

Notice of the date of the annual meeting will be given in the next issue of SMOKE & BLAZES.

No photography contest will be held this year as there has not been enough interest in picture taking on any of the hikes. However, Janice Catozzi, chairman of Photography will be glad to receive any pictures a member might wish to contribute to the Section's album.

Mary Perkins and Prescott VanVleet have been appointed to serve on the Nominating Committee.

The staff of SMOKE & BLAZES takes this opportunity to wish all its readers a Happy Christmas.

This brings to mind the point that the original staff members of this paper, Vera, Mary, and Craig Perkins are still on the job after five years of writing the news of Killington Section month after month. We thank the many members who have contributed stories to the columns of the paper. SMOKE & BLAZES is published at 129 Bellevue Ave., Rutland, Vt.

"WALKING AND CAMPING ETIQUETTE"
(from Appalachian Trailway News)

"PRIVATE PROPERTY: Respect it as an uninvited guest; leave gates, fences, signs, intact. Pick no cultivated fruit; damage no timber.

WILD FLOWERS: Pick none; let others enjoy them too.

FIRES: Make them small and safe on mineral ground. Put "deadout", smothered, before leaving.

DON'T SMOKE WHILE WALKING trails; wait until you rest.

DON'T DROP LITTER, cans, paper, or glass on trail; hide it.

GREEN TREES: Cut none. Don't waste wood. CONSERVE.

LUNCH AND CAMPSITES: Leave them cleaner than found.

MARKING TRAILS: Don't paint, or axe cut any existing trails or make new ones.

MARKERS AND SIGNS: Don't destroy them.

FALLEN BRANCHES: Develop the habit of removing them.

FIREARMS AND DOGS: Leave them home for safety's sake.

FOLLOW THE GOLDEN RULE TOWARD MEN AND NATURE.

These suggestions would seem elementary but it is astonishing to find how many persons do not observe one or more of them."

FLAMELESS HEATING

The Army has recently developed a flameless heating unit for warming canned rations. The experimental fuel unit is wrapped around the canned food, ignited, and heats the contents to the proper temperature.

ANNUAL MEETING
KILLINGTON SECTION
SATURDAY, JANUARY 23rd
7:30 P.M.

The Annual Meeting of our section will be held on Saturday evening, January 23rd, at the Reserve Officers Armory on Court Square. Pres. George Conlon advises that the meeting will begin exactly at 7:30 P.M. Our good friend and club member, Mr. Wilbur Bradder, will be on hand to give us a showing of colored slides from his collection. This entertainment will be the first event on the evening's program as Mr. Bradder has to go on to another meeting. This makes it necessary to start our meeting promptly. So, don't forget that the meeting will start at 7:30 P.M. whether you are there or not. You won't want to miss any of the slides so be on time.

Following the entertainment the business meeting will be held. This will include committee reports, election of officers, and discussion of plans for the coming year.

Last, but by no means least, refreshments will be served under the direction of Jan Catozzi. Remember it's standard procedure to bring your own cup.

Let's make it a real get-together of hikers and non-hikers. If you know of a prospective member why not bring him along as a guest?

A YEAR OF OUTINGS

The outing held at Clarendon Lodge, Sunday, brings to a close another year's outing schedule. Here are a few items summarized from the year's hiking activities.

Exclusive of the Sugar Party and the Covered Dish Supper (att. on these totaled 91), there was a total attendance of 290 on hike outings. This makes an average of 13 plus per outing. (Don't ask who the plus is we haven't found out yet.) There were 85 different people who participated in these hikes.

We didn't dare get so personal as to ask the age of our oldest hiker but we can give you data on the youngest division. Tommy and Peter Field camped with us on the 4th of July trip, and on our recent Spring Lake hike David Perkins, age 3½, made the trip doing his own hiking which totaled a good 3 miles during the day.

The largest attendance was at the Spring Lake outing following the parent club's annual meeting in June 1953. Curiously enough, the attendance of 25 on that one included only 2 Killington Section members! The next largest total was 23 also at Spring Lake in January 1953. Prize for the smallest attendance goes to the Killington hike via the Juggernaut trail with only 4 hikers.

Three hikes were completely rained out, one an old favorite, Bird Mt., and two new ones, Mt. Aeolus and Mt. Cushman. This brings up the question of, when is a hike rained out? The general slogan is that Killington Section hikes, rain or shine - however in actual practice if it rains sufficiently hard before we start to make the foolishness of going so evident as to be inescapable, we consider the hike "rained out" and stay home. Anything that comes up in the way of weather once we're started doesn't count.

For special trips we had:- the 4th of July camping trip with 7 hikers and 7 campers, when we did the 19.5 mi. of Trail between Hazen's Notch and Parker Camp; the trip into N.H. to Helen Bailey's Camp; the fall "series hikes" which covered a total of 21.6 mi. of Trail, on which there were 8 who did the complete series; the Intersectional at Fay Fuller Camp which brought out 9 Killington Section members.

All these statistics have perhaps no special significance except to point up the outing program of the section and make us aware that more people are enjoying the outings than we realize when we consider each one alone.

WHERE ARE YOUR PICTURES ?

Photography Chairman, Janice Catozzi, reports that she has received very few pictures lately for the Section's picture album.

We all enjoy looking over these albums but it takes a continual supply of pictures to keep them going. If each hiker could provide even one snapshot taken on an outing during 1953 it would give us a good picture record for the year.

The annual meeting would be a good time to bring these pictures to Janice. Remember she will take your film and have a print made for the book or if you prefer to bring in the print she will reimburse you. Look one up now and bring it Saturday evening.

CHRISTMAS IN GERMANY

News from Jan and Jack Martin tells of the pleasant and interesting Christmas day which they spent in the home of a German family in Offenburg. Jan wrote, "A German Christmas is much like ours except that they eat and drink continuously - coffee and cake (not frosted fortunately), wine and cookies, dinner of soup, meat, potatoes, vegetables, bread and butter, with wine or beer and home canned fruit to top it off - then coffee with cake and cookies and then you start over with wine again. For each change they use a different tablecloth - that is, the regular cover does for the wine, a plastic one for coffee, and a white one for meals."

Janet's family had correspondence with this family as a CLRE family for several years. She and Jack had visited them earlier in the year and were fortunate enough to be invited back for Christmas.

WINTER BIRDS

If you have a bird feeder and have been seeing a bird looking like an overgrown sparrow but with white stripes and white over its eye, it is probably a purple finch (female), according to our bird enthusiast, Betty Ball. The male of this species is easily recognised as it is a raspberry red.

The birds especially appreciate feeding stations right now when every thing is covered with snow. Betty says that evening grosbeaks and snow buntings have been seen at feeders and she has seen the snow wren which is unusual for Vermont at this time of year.

Betty participated in a bird census in Burlington on January 2nd and reports that 47 species were noted there that day. This census is taken each year at about this time all over the U.S.

SPRING LAKE CAMP IS NO MORE

It was a good camp while it lasted. We had fun building it. We had fun using it. And now we have had fun tearing it down.

The first work party went up on a beautifully warm, sunny Sunday in December and tore out the bunk, took out the windows, removed and burned the roofing paper and pried off the roof boards.

The second work party went up on a beautifully cold, windy Wednesday and tore up the floor, unbolted the sides, and let them settle slowly flat to the ground. All boards and rafters were neatly piled ready for trucking out to the new site.

Arrangements were made for a truck, and on January 3rd a gang went up to move the remains. However, the truck had no chains and we worked until nearly two o'clock getting it in the road as far as possible and getting it out again. Things looked very black. Then Harold Valiquette showed up with a four-wheel-drive Combat Vehicle and chains. Just the thing! Before dark we had brought out two loads of boards and rafters.

This life saver was loaned by our very good friend Olive Smith. The chains were loaned by Harold Eddy. Without this equipment the job could not have been done. We borrowed it one more day, hired a couple of men, and brought out the sides, sills, and all loose odds and ends. Lucky the heavy snow held off so long this year.

The entire establishment now rests at the new site ready to be reassembled. We hope Harold hasn't mislaid that "blue-print".

The people who have worked on it so far are Emil Bosolli, Miller, Janice Hazeltine, Harold Valiquette, Craig Perkins, Prescott VanVleet, Pete Perkins, Bill Allard, Dan Jennings, and Bob Perkins. Don't forget George Conlon on the planning and Vera and Thelma Perkins on the coffee. We just can't wait to get started on rebuilding.

What will we call it? Can't call it Spring Lake any more, it is too far from the lake. Everybody got busy and make suggestions. If you don't, maybe we will call it "Dis Lodge" as Billy Allard suggests, or maybe Camp Christmas Tree because it is set up on a Noel. See you at the Annual Meeting.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Harold Valiquette was operated on at the Rutland Hospital this week. He is making a satisfactory recovery and is expected home in a few days.

Betty Ball spent the Christmas holidays with her folks in Florida again this year.

George Kirk is up and around again after a few months of inactivity.

Bill Allard had a vacation from his studies at U.V.M. where he is in Med. College.

Marjory Allard was home from Bishop DeGosbriand Hospital School of Nursing.

Danny Jennings was home from Boston College Graduate School.

Michael Jennings was home from his Navy base in Boston.

Joe Valiquette was home from the Navy Technical Training Center, Memphis, Tenn.

Bob, Thelma, David, and Anne Perkins were in Vermont for the holidays. They drove in from Michigan where Bob is employed at the University of Michigan.

PUBLICITY FOR THE GREEN MT. CLUB?

What are we as members of The Green Mountain Club, and the Killington Section in particular, doing to promote our Club or even to keep it alive? Every now and then the thought occurs to us that not much is being done along these lines.

The following is a story, the action for which, was not sponsored nor known about by the Club until the details were read in the RUTLAND HERALD.

"RUTLAND SCOUTS ACTORS IN STATE PROMOTION FILM.

"Sixteen Boy Scouts of Troop 5 did their good deed yesterday as movie "extras" for a film promoting the Green Mountain state being made under the auspices of the Vermont Development Commission.

"The boys were photographed in color film coming off The Long Trail at Rte. 4 in Sherburne.

"The sequence was shot through the co-operation of the Boy Scout Council and the Chamber of Commerce. The movie is being made by the Bay State Film Co. of Springfield, Mass.

"Robert Dailey is the scout-master of Troop 5.

"Scouts photographed for the movie were....."

All this is very good and we are glad The Long Trail will be pictured by the Vermont Development Commission. But what we would like to know is, does the Vermont Development Commission know there is such a thing as The Green Mountain Club? Does the Commission know the story of how The Long Trail and shelters have been and are continuing to be built and kept up?

We are happy that the Scouts can use our trails and shelters, but we think a picture showing how they are built, showing the sweat and strain and labor required for their building and upkeep could be used as chapter one.

4 MORE ALONG THE SAME LINE:

The Vermont Forest Festival is held every fall at various places in the State. It might be a good idea for The Green Mountain Club to get invited to be on the program. We are interested in the forests of Vermont. We do have something to offer. Why couldn't the presidents of the Sections, or the president of the main Club, authorize a committee to look into this?

GETTING BACK TO THE SCOUTS:

These young boys and girls could be the potential adult members of The Green Mountain Club in a few short years. If something was done about it today, they would know more than just the facts that there are trails and shelters on Vermont mountains where they may go and enjoy hiking and camping. If scout leaders would obtain one membership for themselves, this could be used as affiliate membership for the troop. The leader, with the help of Club officers, could offer his troop something valuable in the way of a better hiking and camping program. This could also be applied to schools and church groups.

IF THE ABOVE IS NOT FEASIBLE:

If in the opinion of those in charge, affiliation does not seem feasible, then let us go to work at once and do something about a large junior membership. In the long run, this would perhaps be a better plan anyway. It would involve more leadership on our part and the question of transportation on hikes might be a serious one. Parents could be pressed into service!

This page was written as "food for thought." If you have any ideas for the good of the Club, we shall be pleased to print them.

Killington Section Green Mountain Club

Feb. 1954

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Once again the Killington Section GMC is starting out on a new year of activity. As always at this time of year we are filled with enthusiasm and hopes are high for the accomplishment of many worthwhile things during the year. Let's try to maintain this enthusiasm and see that these hopes are fulfilled. There is only one way we can do this - by cooperation.

We have a small organization for the size of the job we have to do. Several special projects have already been listed as "musts" for 1954. These include the painting of all blazes; relocation of The Trail above Clement Shelter; repair of the Clarendon Gorge bridge; placing registers in all shelters; new stoves in at least two camps; - and - the rebuilding of Spring Lake Camp. These projects represent some of the most crying needs. They also represent a large expenditure of time and man power.

In addition to the regular work of the club - maintaining the trails and shelters in our section - we have our club outings and social activities. These are important too. You know the old saying about "all work and no play" etc. However, sometimes in our enjoyment of these activities we tend to forget that they don't just happen. It takes time and effort on someone's part to plan and carry these out.

We plan to have board meetings at least every other month to check up on things accomplished and outline work ahead. We would welcome your suggestions. The next meeting will be held about mid-March.

We have a capable group of committee chairmen anxious to get things done. They need and want your help. Given this help, your officers and committee chairmen will do their best to make 1954 a pleasant and profitable year for the Killington Section.

Vera Perkins, President.

REPORT OF THE ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Killington Section of The Green Mountain Club was held January 23rd at the Reserve Officers Armory.

President George Conlon presided and called for reports from the secretary, treasurer, and various committees.

The nominating committee presented the following slate of officers to be elected for 1954:
President - Vera Perkins
Vice President - William Allard
Secretary-Treasurer- Eleanor Walker
These members were unanimously elected to office.

Mr. Wilbur Bradder showed interesting slides of Florida.

Janice Catozzi served refreshments of coffee and doughnuts.

NOTICE NEW SCHEDULES are enclosed

COMING EVENTS

by
Betty Ball

TIME - Sunday and Monday,
February 21st and 22nd

PLACE - Perkins' Camp - Mendon

The annual winter weekend at Craigue and Mary Perkins' camp in Mendon is a favorite event, so don't forget to make your reservations with Mary early. Let her know by Thursday, Feb. 18th at the latest how many meals you will want. Everyone shares in the work and the cost. Meals start with Sunday noon and end with Monday noon. If you stay over night, bring your own bedding. Please make your own arrangements for transportation.

Good snow shoeing and skiing may be expected with the road up to the beaver dam and the Blue Ridge trail favorites for trips. A warm house and good company will attract those who do not like to hike far in winter.

TIME - Sun., March 7- 10:30 A.M.

PLACE - Buffum Shelter

By the looks of the present snow cover there may still be snow for the trip in to Buffum. Whatever the weather though, the expedition should prove pleasant. It's not far to the shelter and it should be protected enough for a comfortable picnic. There will be plenty of time too for farther exploration up The Trail.

CARD PARTY HELD - NETS $21.60

In most clubs there are a few people who can be depended upon to come through and take over a job that everyone wants done but no one wants to do. Killington Section has its share of such members and Fred Field is one. The group at the annual meeting decided that they would like to hold a Card Party and settled upon a date. Fred went on from there.

On Wednesday night, February 10th our first social event for 1954 was held and GAME NIGHT was enjoyed by about 40 members and friends.

Miss Helen Koltonski allowed us the use of the large meeting room at Riverside and catered for our party. Refreshments of sandwiches, as good as they looked, and coffee were served.

We missed some of our good friends who were unable to be there but appreciated the support many of them gave us.

Besides being a very enjoyable get-together, this affair netted $21.60 for our treasury.

To all who assisted in any way to make this party a success and especially to Fred Field, we say, "thank you".

TUCKER AGAIN

On Sunday, Feb. 7th, about 20 hikers made the trip in to Tucker Lodge. It was one of those perfect winter days when, as you snow shoe along the trail, you can think of no place you'd rather be and nothing you'd rather be doing. You even feel a bit smugly sorry for those stay-at-homes who think winter is just something to be endured!

At Tucker the pleasure of being outdoors was enhanced when fire making resulted in filling the camp with smoke. However in due course everything was under control, coffee was ready, and the air cleared sufficiently for lunch.

After lunch some went for walks and made the annual collection of hobble bush for forcing, some indulged in strenuous snow ball battles and some enjoyed chatting leisurely in the now comfortable shelter.

Reluctant, as always, to leave we re-travelled the trail in the late afternoon already looking forward to the next outing - the winter weekend - and hoping for just such weather.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING HELD

The first Killington Section Executive Board meeting for 1954 was held at the home of the president, Saturday evening, January 30th.

The first business of this meeting was the drawing up of a budget for the year. After this had been accomplished Betty Ball presented her schedule of outings. Other matters considered included: a report on the progress of having a sponsor for each shelter to make frequent checks of conditions; consideration of methods of acquainting possible members with the purposes and activities of the club.

The Executive Board consists of the officers and chairmen of Standing Committees. The following committees have been appointed:

Standing Committees:

Trails - Craigie Perkins
Shelters - Emile Boselli
Rebuilding Spring Lake Camp - Harold Valiquette
Outings - Betty Ball assisted by Janice Haseltine
Photography - Janice Catozzi
Publicity - Ray Catozzi
Smoke & Blazes - Mary Perkins
Craigie Perkins
Vera Perkins

Special Committees:

Card Party - Fred Field
Winter Weekend - Craigie and Mary Perkins
Sugar Party - Lucy Bishop and Hilma Erickson assisted by Harold Valiquette
Churchill Scott
Janice Catozzi
Junior Activity - Barbie Allard and Lartha Hakens

PAINTING BEE

Anyone who can wield a paint brush will be welcome in Craigie Perkins' collar, with brush, at 7:30 P.M. Monday, Feb. 15th to help paint directional arrows for The Trail.

LIGHT-WEIGHT PACKS FOR WOMEN

Back-packing trips by women on The Long Trail need not be slighted because of fear of having to carry too heavy a load.

Two women hiking together and carrying twenty-five pounds each would have sufficient gear and food within that weight limit for a four day hike.

The first two days of hiking with a pack are conditioning days. After that, you hardly know you are carrying a pack.

Your gear-in common should include:

- 1 light axe with long handle
- 1 nested cook kit
- 1 chore-boy scrubber
- 2 forks, spoons, knives
- 1 swirl shaker for powdered milk
- 1 roll gauze for towels etc.
- 1 pr. work gloves
- 1 flashlight
- 1 jackknife
- 1 can matches
- 1 canteen
- 1 guide book

Your personal gear should be shaved down to the minimum:

a small cosmetic bag that would hold all your toilet necessities; extra socks; wool shirt; rain jacket; underwear; sleeping bag; camera; pencil and paper.

In regard to food, it is smart to sacrifice variety for light weight and convenience. You could use the same food for all meals as much as possible. All food can be carried in polystyrene bags (available at all deep-freeze establishments). They are transparent, tough, cheap and almost weightless. Dried food can be carried in them and several hours before being cooked, can be soaked; water can be added and the opening of the bag secured with a rubber band. The bag can then be carried safely in the knapsack without spilling water, and the food is properly soaked when camp is reached.

4

Here are some menus for light-weight pack trips:

BREAKFAST:

Mixed cooked dried fruit; oatmeal with rasins, sugar, powdered milk; coffee

LUNCH:

Hot bouillon; cheese and pumpernickel; carrots; chocolate; mixed dried fruit uncooked.

DINNER:

Hot bouillon; chipped beef with macaroni; dried vegetable; dried mixed fruit cooked; candy or cookies; coffee.

A WORD OF CAUTION

For anyone going into the woods for a long or overnight hike, an axe is a necessary tool. With it you cut wood for fires to cook your food, warm your body, and cheer your spirits.

It takes skill to use an axe to the best advantage but anyone, skillful or not, should use good judgment and caution in handling an axe for it is a dangerous tool.

When not in use it should have its blade sheathed in leather, or it should be struck into a log or stump. It should never be left upon the ground or set up against a tree to endanger the legs or feet of a camper.

Your axe should be kept sharp and clean, and not used to cut any object lying on the ground where there is danger of the blade of the axe going through the object and striking a stone.

Procedure for chopping:
Grasp the axe with the left hand, close to the end of the handle; with the right hand grasp the handle close to the head of the axe, then bring the axe up over your shoulder and as you strike the blow, allow the right hand to slide down naturally, close to the left hand. Be sure no one is behind you when you swing your axe.

ANNUAL SUGAR PARTY - MARCH 27th

The annual Killington Section sugar-on-snow party will be held on Saturday, March 27th at the Rotary Field House. As this is an easily accessible place we hope that many of our non-hiking members will take the opportunity to join with us for a social evening. Members of Recreation Department groups have been invited to participate in this activity with us if they wish to do so. Come and bring your friends.

Hilma Erickson and Lucy Bishop will be ready to start serving at 6:30 P.M. As has been customary the menu will consist of sugar-on-snow, pickles, doughnuts, and coffee. In order to plan efficiently and keep the cost to a minimum we need to know how many are coming - so make reservations with Hilma by Friday evening, Mar. 26th. (call her anytime except Friday A.M. Tel. 5-5179). The charge for the party will be just enough to cover the cost - not over 75¢ per person.

Jan Catozzi is arranging for Square Dancing with Betty Page directing and there will be an opportunity for cards and similar games for those who prefer that type of activity. This will also be a good chance for plain, old-fashioned visiting. All in all it should be a pleasant evening for young and old. Let's make it a date - 6:30 P.M., Saturday, March 27th, at Rotary Field House.

SPRUCE KNOB HIKE CLIMB

by
Betty Ball

Spruce Knob in Middletown Springs used to be an annual trip several years ago, but has not been climbed for some time now, so should be a different trip for newer members. Mr. Carl Provost, a former member of the Burlington Section of G.M.C., now teaching at Middletown Springs High School, will lead the trip. Members of his High School Outing Club have been invited to join us, too. Mr. Provost warns that the trail will be muddy so boots are necessary. We will leave Meldon School at 10 A.M. and go to the four-corners in Middletown Springs where we will meet Mr. Provost.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING MARCH 15th

A regular meeting of the Exec. Board will be held at Craigie Perkins' home on Monday, March 15th at 7:30 P.M. You will notice (as you read further in SMOKE & BLAZES) that this date coincides with the next painting-boo. Yes, we meant it too. After the Board meeting all who can are cordially invited to stay and paint! Wear your old clothes.

Mr. Harry Russell a long-time member and a former vice-president of our section will be missed. We extend sympathy to his family.

ROSIE THE ROASTER

Tucker Lodge is now equipped with an honest-to-goodness full sized kitchen range in perfect condition. Here's what it took:

Fred Field spotted the prize in an upstairs apartment. We don't know how he induced the owners to abandon it, but he did. Maybe a five dollar bribe had something to do with it. Anyway a hurry call to the "strongbacks" department brought out a full half dozen stove lifters. (They weren't really full).

By dividing Rosie into 26 parts we were able to get her through a narrow door and down the stairs to Harold's truck. It was decided to take advantage of the remaining snow and drag Rosie in to camp on a toboggan. So we borrowed Pete Spaulding's long toboggan, put Harold's short toboggan on it sort of pick-a-back style, and tied Rosie and all her various parts on top.

Unfortunately there were about two inches of fresh, sticky snow. When everybody pulled on the several ropes nothing happened. It was necessary to rock the toboggan from side to side before it could be started. This became standard procedure every time we stopped to rest, and that was often.

About half way in we were just discussing the advisability of dividing the load in two when the reserves arrived. That did it, and we finished the trip without a single upset.

At Tucker the old stove was dismantled and the new one re-assembled with no pieces left over. A fire was started "just to prove." Considering her reluctance, Rosie looks very happy in her new home. At least ten people have stayed in Tucker over night since the stove was installed and all report good results with very much less wood chopping.

The boys working on this project were Harold Valiquette, Fred Field, Bennet Bell, Craigie Perkins, Churchill Scott, Prescott VanVleet, Walter Hakins, Jerry Sanborn, Ralph Farwell, Raymond Miller, and Roger Pike. When the boys turn out like that, we can really get things done !

THE WINTER WEEK-END

The Washington's birthday week-end which for the past many years has been the time for the "winter-week-end" at the Perkins' Camp, was as usual, enjoyed by all who attended. This year the Junior members predominated in attendance. We were pleased to discover how well these young people took over the many jobs delegated to them.

Thirteen members stayed over Sunday night and that number was swelled to twenty-one by Monday noon.

There was no schedule of events, but time didn't drag for anyone. The weather wasn't perfect but it could be called "passable." The woods were covered with about a foot of snow that held us up without snowshoes on Sunday, but the next day the warm weather had penetrated enough so that it was easier going on snowshoes.

Aside from the hiking that was done intermittently, canasta games were played by the adults in the living room, while Craigie and the Juniors took over the dining room to play Twenty Questions and other games.

Veda Knipes and five boys from her Sunday School class came up Monday afternoon and hiked in the woods.

Billy and Marjory Allard dropped in long enough to say, "Hi" but stayed longer than they intended to for their car got stuck down on the road. They didn't get back to Burlington as early as they had planned.

BUFFAM SHELTER TRIP

Twelve hikers went in to Buffam Shelter on Sunday, March 7. It was a fine hiking day with bright sun and a brisk March wind. Ice was breaking up in the streams and patches of bare ground showed through the thinning snow, giving the woods their characteristic early spring appearance.

We found the shelter in generally good condition, although the stove pipe badly needs replacement. In fact, a new stove would be a desirable improvement. (Anyone know the whereabouts of a small second-hand chunk stove?). In spite of the vagaries of stove and stove-pipe, there was little danger of suffocation in an open front shelter and we were soon having lunch. This is always enjoyed on a hike no matter what extraneous flavors may have crept in during the preparation!

After dinner we started out along The Trail toward Button Hill. We soon discovered that The Trail has become considerably confused by recent lumbering operations. Some new markings will be needed here in places. We eventually arrived at the top of the hill by a somewhat devious route. The return trip was easier and we enjoyed the fine view to the west which is not so evident in summer.

The ride home afforded some striking glimpses of our higher peaks with the sunlight reflected on their covering of snow, making a perfect ending to another good day in the open.

WE'RE GETTING READY FOR THE HIKING SEASON

Two painting-bees have already been held which resulted in getting two coats of white paint on 125 directional arrows and about 30 plain sign boards. The ground work being done, we are now ready for the next step - the lettering.

These painting-bees were carried on in Craigie Perkins' cellar. Beside the painting which was accomplished, these occasions offered an opportunity for discussion on a wide variety of subjects ranging all the way from mountain peaks to submarines, with about as many differing opinions on every subject as there were people present!

Mary Perkins rewarded our labors and saw to it that everyone went home happy by serving us coffee and appetizing snacks at the end of each evening.

Those who have checked in on the painting project so far are; "T" and Harold Valiquette, Fred Field, Churchill Scott, Mary and Craigie Perkins, Vera Perkins, and Ray Catozzi who cut the arrows.

The next session will be held - same time (7:30 P.M.); same place (Craigie Perkins' cellar) - Monday, March 15th.

A JUNIOR MEMBER REPORTS ON THE WINTER WEEK-END

Once again the Green Mountain Club went to Perkins' Camp for the annual "Winter Week-end". There were several Junior members there. As usual the food was good.

It snowed a little during Sunday afternoon and most of the Junior members brought their sleds to go sliding but the snow was too deep. Some went snowshoeing through the woods. This turned out to be more successful. Later in the day, the snow changed to rain so we were confined to camp for the evening. The rain didn't prevent us from having a good time, because there were plenty of cards and games for everyone.

Almost everyone woke up bright and early next morning. The weather was fine and we all had a big, hearty breakfast. During the day some people went on hikes to enjoy the outdoors while others stayed around camp playing cards.

The work was divided so that everyone did his share, and we had fun doing it.

Martha Makins.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Our best wishes to Shirley Morris who was married in Albany, N.Y., on Sunday, February 28th to William Lashoff of Albany.

Welcome home to Janet and Jack Martin who are in Rutland again after more than a year in Germany. We hope they may be located permanently in this vicinity. We can use them!

Joe Valiquette has returned to duty after a short leave spent at his home. Joe has just graduated from the Naval Aviation Electronics School at Memphis, Tenn. He is now at Norfolk, Va.

SPONSOR SYSTEM FOR SHELTERS

Under the direction of our Shelter Chairman, Emile Boselli, a system for sponsors for shelters in our section has been set up. The idea is to have each shelter "adopted" by some member. A sponsor will visit his shelter at, we hope, frequent intervals to check on conditions and report needed work and materials required for such work. We hope too, that when making these visits sponsors will do routine clean-up and pick-up jobs as needed.

It is hoped that under this system a close enough check can be kept on how our shelters are being used to greatly reduce their abuse. At the same time the system will aid greatly in the efficiency of work parties for making repairs on shelters.

Of course the success of this plan will depend entirely on the dependability of each sponsor to regularly check his shelter.

The sponsor list to date is as follows:

Tucker - Prescott Van Vleet
Iico - Churchill Scott
Killington - Craigie Perkins
Clement - Ray Catozzi
Clarendon - Emile Boselli
Buffum - ?

???? - Harold Valiquette is sponsoring the rebuilding of the former Spring Lake Shelter and we hope will continue to sponsor it when it is completed and re-named.

An immeasurable amount of effort has gone into the building of these shelters. They can not be easily replaced. It is up to us to keep them in as good condition as possible.

Every member who uses a shelter should still feel responsible to report undesirable conditions and to leave a shelter in a little better shape than he found it.

It is our hope that the sponsor system will guarantee that each shelter gets visited often enough to keep us really informed on the condition of our shelters.

COMING EVENTS

by
Betty Ball

Time - Sun. April 25th - 9 A.M.
Place - Gov. Clement Shelter

Lumber jobs can do a lot to confuse a Long Trail hiker, as the hikers to Buffum Shelter a few weeks back found out. It seems that The Trail north from Gov. Clement Shelter needs a bit of relocating due to lumber operations in that vicinity. This scheduled hike to Clement should offer a good opportunity to get this needed reestablishing done. Accordingly, we have set the time early for this one - 9 A.M. - to give plenty of time for work. We will gather at the shelter for lunch so if any of you can't make it early you may join us there later.

Clement is a pleasant spot for a spring hike and for those who prefer some work to a plain hike this is the perfect opportunity. We really need a good turnout to get the desired work done. Try and be on hand to help on this.

Time - Sun. May 2nd - 10 A.M.
Place - Bradder's Camp, Tinmouth

Once again the Bradders have kindly invited us to their camp on Tinmouth Channel. Those who have been there before do not need to be told that a delightful day is in store for us. Here is an opportunity for various types of hikes; for canoeing on the Channel; and of course the fishermen and fisherwomen will have noted that trout fishing will be in full swing on this date. It is an ideal spot for sunning and loafing too, so come along and take your choice!

Time - Sun. May 16th - as soon as you're up!
Place - Clarendon Lodge for a Pancake Breakfast.

The pancake breakfast is another event that many enjoy. The earlier you come the more birds you will see but any time is a good time for an outdoor breakfast. After breakfast the party will proceed to the spot where the lumber from the former Spring Lake Camp lies. There will be plenty for all hands to do. Once again work and play will add up to a good day in the open.

ARE YOU INTERESTED?

From time to time a somewhat vague idea has come floating around that it might be desirable to award some sort of insignia to those members who have hiked the entire Killington Section of The Trail. This idea has recently come to the surface again.

One suggestion is that this insignia might be some sort of stripe with the word Killington on it which could be used with the regular GMC insignia.

If there seemed enough interest to warrant it, something definite could be worked out and the presentation might be a part of our Killington Section Annual Meeting next January. This might be an added incentive to members, who have not already done so, to cover all The Trail in our section.

How about it? Are you interested? The only way we have of knowing is if you tell us - so if it is something you would like let us know and we will go ahead on plans. Otherwise, we will just let the idea sink out of sight again. It's up to you.

BOARD MEETING AND LETTERING BEE

Nine members attended the double feature meeting held at Craigie Perkins' home on the evening of March 15th. At this time the Executive Board considered ways of increasing membership. Ray Catozzi reported on the leaflet he is preparing for the Section. This will contain information on GMC and on Killington Section and include an invitation to join. We expect these will soon be ready for use. It is planned to give them to newcomers who attend outings and also to mail them to likely prospects. Any suggestions of names which might be included on such a mailing list would be helpful and most welcome.

Eleanor Walker, treasurer, reported that she planned to send out dues reminders to members of the last year or two who had not renewed their membership for 1954 as yet.

In the absence of Shelter Ch., Emile Boselli, no report was available on the progress of preparation of registers for the shelters and the shelter sponsor plan.

One other important item of business was transacted at this meeting. This was the adoption of a new regulation regarding the use of Killington Section shelters. This regulation specifies that persons under 18 years old desiring to use the club's shelters should be accompanied by an older person or should obtain permission to use a shelter in advance. It was felt that this would help us to know who was using the shelters and when, and would aid us in keeping them in good condition. It was planned to try and publicize this regulation through the school papers. It will also be stated in the shelter registers.

At the close of this meeting those who could stay for the second feature adjourned to the cellar and put in a couple of hours work there lettering signs. Members who assisted on this project were Craigie and Mary Perkins, Eleanor Walker, Betty Ball, Vera Perkins, Helen Bailey and Churchill Scott. (Helen and Churchill waited patiently all through the Board meeting to get a chance to go to work!)

Except for those signs which have to wait for the naming of the former Spring Lake Camp for their lettering, the Trail signs are now ready to be placed and much to the surprise of everyone who worked on them they look pretty good!

SUGAR ON SNOW

Another successful Sugar Party was held this year, Saturday, March 27th at Rotary Field House.

The committee chairmen who carried this event off so that fifty people enjoyed a pleasant evening were Lucy Bishop and Hilma Erickson. They were assisted by Harold Valiquette and Janice Catozzi. It was through the efforts of Janice that we were able to have the Square Dance part of the program. Our thanks go out to Dick Pasvolski for calling the numbers and loaning equipment for this event.

Eleanor Walker volunteered again this year and her work in the kitchen stirring the syrup, and watching it come to the right consistency sure was appreciated.

Our thanks also go to the City of Rutland Recreation department for the use of Rotary Field House. This was an ideal location for the party. Being situated so that folks could drive right up to the building, we hoped many of our old timers would be present. However, we missed seeing a great many of them.

One of the purposes of these social activities sponsored by the Killington Section of the GMC is that our inactive members and their friends may have an opportunity to join in some of our program. We expect to continue to have these activities along with our scheduled hikes and will continue to hope to see a greater participation.

A REMINDER

Now that you are doing your spring cleaning, REMEMBER THE RUMMAGE SALE. This money making event will be held in the fall. Now is the time to start packing in a box anything you can't use. Bring it to the sale in the fall and we will collect pennies, nickels, dimes and dollars for our club.

RAINY WEATHER

This column was left open to report the April 11th, Spruce Knob hike. Due to rainy weather, the hike was cancelled. So instead of talking about Spruce Knob, we'll talk about the weather.

Mark Twain has said that "tho everybody talks about the weather, nobody does anything about it." We know that isn't quite true. With cloud seeding for rain and snow making, something is being done about the weather, but we won't go into that here.

Spring in Vermont brings a strong desire on the part of hikers to get outdoors and start getting in condition for some mountain climbing. Muddy roads and trails are expected at this time of year and they can be taken with a smile. When cold rain is added, we don't like to walk right into it unless we have to.

However, under some conditions a hike in the rain could be very pleasant. Take for example a hike on a hot day from Jay Peak going south to Hazen's Notch without much of any water along the way. After a few miles of ups and downs here, a nice cooling off from a shower of rain would be greatly appreciated. It would feel so good and be so refreshing.

Take another day, hiking in the rain when the weather is cool, but not too cool, keeping warm enough from the exertion of hiking, getting soaked to the skin, but walking along with the knowledge that at the end of the day's hike a cabin or shelter would be waiting. A place to get dried out. Such a rainy day could be quite companionable.

We like to listen to the rain on the roof of a shelter, too. We like rainy days but if we have a choice, we do our hiking when the sun shines; especially in the spring.

Spruce Knob will make a good hike again some time.

THE QUEEN OF MOUNTAINS

Though we may be a little late, late in writing a story about the conquest of Everest, we say, "better late than never."

What really set us off was a recent visit to Boston where we saw the motion picture "The Conquest of Everest" in technicolor. "The New York Herald Tribune" described the picture as 'the peak of adventure' and "Time" magazine, 'fascinating'. To these descriptions we add, "Don't miss it. It is well worth seeing."

The picture starts off showing Sir John Hunt, leader of the expedition, in England getting ready for the climb of the 29,002 ft. mountain. The testing of equipment and the detail planning gave an inkling of the tremendous task of preparation.

When the tons of supplies were shown at the end of the line of mechanical transport, and the Sherpas had to take over, carrying up to sixty pounds on their backs, it gave some idea of how valuable these men were to the expedition. They were sure footed. They had to be for some of the crevasses they had to cross were killers. One The picture was full of surprises and revelations. We learned that even at 20,000 feet the heat of the noonday sun was a problem. Of course we knew that altitude had a weakening affect on a climber, but to actually see the slow steps and the laborious breathing of the climbers, gave us a vivid picture of what high altitude climbing involved. The extensive use of oxygen in the success of the conquest of Everest was evident.

The picture ends showing Sir John Hunt going out to meet Hillary and Tenzing as they came into the last base camp after successfully climbing to the top of Chomo lungma, the Tibet name for Everest, meaning "mother goddess of the world."

It was quite fitting that a Sherpa should be one of the men who had the honor and the glory of sharing in the conquest of Everest. It was especially fitting that Tenzing Bhutia, also known as Tenzing Norkey, was the Sherpa for he is known as "the greatest of them all."

He was born in Nepal 39 years ago and lives in Darjeeling with his wife and two daughters. He is a "tiger," a title given with a medal, by the Himalayan Club only to Sherpas who have gone above 25,850 feet. There are only five others who hold this honor. He has great endurance and is said to be utterly fearless.

Edmund Percival Hillary is from Auckland, New Zealand. He is six feet three inches tall and 34 years old. In New Zealand he is a beekeeper, and on Everest he carried some of his own honey. During the war he served with the Air Force. He has made four Himalayan expeditions in three years and was in excellent condition. His comment regarding the successful climb of Everest was, "It was a beautiful day with moderate wind. ----I felt damn good at the top."

John Hunt was born in India in 1910. He spent many summers of his youth in Switzerland where he got interested in mountain climbing. As he grew older his experience in this activity increased and he was engaged in many mountainous regions of the world; India, Africa, Italy and Greece. More recently he has been on the staff of SHAPE. His skill in developing good working teams showed in the 1953 expedition. From a collection of schoolteachers, businessmen, doctors, scientists and army officers he kept things going smoothly.

The accomplishments of these three men were outstanding but it was the combined teamwork of the entire party that brought success to the expedition of the final assault to the top.

GMC ANNUAL MEETING

Time - Sat., May 29th - 10 A.M.

Place - Long Trail Lodge

It's almost time for another GMC Annual Meeting. The detailed plan for the day's activities given in our LONG TRAIL NEWS looked so interesting that no further urging to attend should be needed.

Many members will travel a considerable distance to attend this meeting. Surely we of Killington Section who are near-by should not miss the opportunity. Remember the date - May 29th - and plan to join with us for the entire day beginning with the coffee hour at 10 A.M.

Here is a chance to learn more about what is being done and planned by the various sections and by the club as a whole. Here also is an opportunity to spend an interesting day in pleasant surroundings, among old and new friends all with a common interest - The Green Mountain Club and its Long Trail.

COMING HIKES

by

Betty Ball

Time - Sun., May 30th - 9:30 A.M.

Place - Little Rock Pond

Azalea-time at Little Rock Pond should bring out a host of hikers, from our section and other sections, too, - at this post-Annual Meeting hike.

Fishing, hiking, birds, and flowers, offer a variety of attractions on this easy, but scenic hike. Anyone who read Frances Green's interesting article on Little Rock, published in VERMONT LIFE last year, will surely want to visit or re-visit this pleasant spot.

The group will leave from Meldon School as usual.

Time - Sun., June 5th - 9:30 A.M.

Place - Mt. Aeolus

We are still anxious to get some first hand information on Mt. Aeolus so this trip, which was rained out last year, has been scheduled again.

This mountain is reported to afford some fine views near abandoned marble quarries and there is said to be a cave of sizable dimensions not far from the upper lookout.

Mr. O'Kane in his book, TRAILS AND SUMMITS OF THE GREEN MOUNTAINS, gives a chapter to Mt. Aeolus. He credits the naming of it to some seniors from Amherst College who visited it in 1860 on a very windy day, and so christened it Aeolus - god of the winds.

This mountain, located in East Dorset, is part of the Taconic range. The hiking distance from the highway to the summit is given as $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles.

This combined hike and work party was held on April 25th. The road in to the Shelter was surprisingly good for this time of year, but the more timid left their cars a quarter mile below the bridge where the Trail leaves the road.

When the Shelter was reached, we found there a group about to go up Killington to spend the night. They were very skeptical about there being any snow on the peak but we have heard since that they found plenty, and that they enjoyed a mixture of rain, sleet, and snow in the air as well.

Roger Pike, Churchill, and Scotty Scott went to work putting up the new stove pipe we had carried in. The rest of the party divided into two groups to mark the Trail. One group painted blazes and put up arrows from the bridge to the Shelter, while the other group started remarking the Trail toward Killington.

About noon it began to drizzle so a council of war was held. It was decided to go back to the Shelter for a slightly early lunch in the hope it would stop raining in the afternoon.

We found the coffee water boiling on the fireplace grate, and all set to for a leisurely lunch while the drizzle continued to drizzle outside. There was plenty of time to check the repairs necessary to the Shelter: a new table; rebuilt bunks; patched roof; and wouldn't it be nice if we could dump a few loads of gravel on the muddy dirt floor !!

Enough of that. It was time to get back to work on the Trail so we just told Barbie Allard she was in charge of the weather. Believe it or not, the rain stopped and a little later the sun came out.

Back up the Trail we all went. The project was to mark a route through the debris of a big lumber operation. Some of us scattered ahead to find traces of the old Trail while others painted a few blazes on stumps so that hikers could find their way through. No attempt was made to really clear the Trail. To make it more confusing, some of the lot lines were painted white. More than once Betty Ball's trained eye kept us on course. She has been accused of seeing birds that no one else could see, but when she sees blazes she can lead you over and show 'em to you.

We gradually worked our way through about a mile of tangled tree tops and concluded that the worst part of the chopping had been crossed. We still have the job of clearing it.

Gene Bamforth of Montpelier, a GMC Trustee, was with us and we enjoyed a good visit. Another new comer was Mary Ellen Ryan. Come often, Mary Ellen.

On Sunday, May 2nd, the weather appeared to be on the side of the fishermen as rain seemed imminent when we left Meldon School for Mr. Bradder's Camp on Tinnmouth Channel. However we knew a warm, cozy camp awaited us, so, providing ourselves with Sunday papers to read and maps to study, we set forth, prepared for, if not reconciled to, a day indoors.

Arrived in Chippenhook we found Mr. and Mrs. Bradder awaiting us and learned that some of our fishing enthusiasts were already out trying their skill. We had just about time to get a quick look at the beauty of the spring country-side from the camp dooryard when the expected rain urged us indoors. There we relaxed comfortably with our indoor amusements, and the rest of the morning passed quickly and pleasantly.

About this time, frustrated by our apparent unconcern over its behavior, the weather showed signs of coming out of its sulks. The sun was shining when we had finished lunch. This was the signal for everyone to get outside and the afternoon was spent in taking walks, exploring the Channel via canoe, and loafing in the warm sunshine.

It was five o'clock before we realized it and another of the many enjoyable days provided by "the Bradders" at their camp was at an end.

Incidentally, the various fishermen checked in and out at intervals during the day but where were the fish?

HOW ABOUT IT ? ?

How about our Killington Section insignia idea?

Wanted: someone who can find the trail and lead a group of senior Girl Scouts and Camp Staff members up Bald Mt. sometime during the period between June 28th and July 2nd, - exact time to be arranged to suit convenience of said leader. In return for this service the Girl Scouts will undertake the improving of the trail as one of their summer projects.

Mrs. Viva Whitney, Girl Scout Executive, is anxious to find someone who will go up Bald Mt. with a party of Senior Scouts and Camp Staff members. Girl Scouts tried to make this hike during the camp season last summer but were unable to follow the trail due to blowdowns etc. Mrs. Whitney would like to have this mountain, the nearest one to the Scout Camp, available for hikes by the campers. The Staff and campers would make it one of their summer projects to improve the trail if they could once get it sufficiently marked so they could follow it.

Senior Scouts and Staff members are to be at camp from June 28th through July 2nd and they would arrange a date during that period or on June 27th, to suit the convenience of the leader.

Bald Mt. has long been a favorite hike for Killington Section. We would all enjoy having the trail put back into better condition. This would seem to be an opportunity to do ourselves and someone else a good turn at the same time. How about it? Don't think the "other fellow" will probably do it. Get in touch with Mrs. Whitney at the Girl Scout Office if you'd be willing to help out. She'll tell you if the job is already spoken for!

A VARIED DAY OF WORK AND PLAY

The hike of May 16th was one of many colors: rain and shine; work and play; and fun for all.

Saturday afternoon Craigie Perkins went in to Clarendon Lodge and did a little Trail work in that area. He did some trimming, cut a few blazes, and also checked the Trail from the Gorge to the top of the hill in back of the Lodge. He reports that there are no blowdowns, and that this part of the Trail is in good condition.

However, in spite of this, the next morning one member could not find the Trail after crossing route 103. We recommend a directional arrow at this point.

Craigie spent the night at Clarendon Lodge, and had the fire going and water hot when the first early GMCers arrived Sunday morning. Then he had to take off.

By 9:30 the count was up to eleven, not including a man and his son from Boston who were enjoying the week-end at the Lodge.

The morning started off cloudy with a few sprinkles of rain which no doubt discouraged some hikers from participating in this early morning outing.

After breakfast when the Lodge was in good order, eight of the group decided to make a day of it, so they went over to the new camp site of "What's its name?" to do some work. Vera Perkins, Eleanor Walker, Janice Haseltine, Prescott Van Vleet, Edith Ewald, Barbara Allard and her two guests all put in some time and work. Nails were taken out of the floor boards, one half of the back section was taken apart and nails taken out, and the spring hole was made deeper.

There was also time for loafing in the sun, short walks, and a trip to the lake. As has happened before on some of our hikes, the cloudy morning turned into a beautiful, warm, sunny day.

Discounting the previously suggested names for the camp of "Christmas Tree Lodge" and "Dis Lodge" we now have a serious suggestion: "Sunnyside Camp." How do you like it? We would like to hear from members in regard to a name for our new, old camp. Please send in your ideas to the Editors, SMOKE & BLAZES, 129 Bellevue Ave., Rutland, Vermont.

MORE TRAIL WORK

Trails chairman, Craigie Perkins has been over the Trail from Buffam Shelter to the new camp site. He painted blazes where they were needed and put up directional arrows in some blind spots. Just north of the Shelter where a lumbering job has been going on, quite a bit of work was required. From the top of Button Hill down to the new camp site, The Trail was found to be in excellent condition.

Another day was spent on the Trail from Long Trail Lodge to two miles north of Killington. Blazes were cut and painted and signs were placed a Pico Junction. Work that needs being done was noted. There are three blowdowns that should be removed from the Trail, and some two to three foot evergreens should be cut out to widen the Trail in spots.

There are a few wet spots on this part of the Trail that could be easily taken care of if a worker had a hoe along to divert the flow of water to some other place besides the middle of the Trail. Hiking up or down a dry brook bed isn't the easiest kind of hiking. Hiking over a wet one is worse.

The Trails chairman hopes to complete the Trail to Killington soon.

SMOKE and BLAZES

COMING HIKES

Time - July 3,4,5

Place - Parker Camp to Smugglers Notch

It is time again for our annual trip to the northern part of the Long Trail. On the two previous expeditions we completed following the Trail from the Canada Line to Parker Camp. This year should bring us down to Smugglers Notch.

The base camp will be set up a few yards north of a road from Waterville to Johnson on the Long Trail where it enters the road from the north.

To reach the campsite from the west (the best), take Routes 108 and 109 north from Jeffersonville toward Waterville. Just as you enter Waterville village, take a square right turn immediately beyond a house on the right with a low white picket fence. This is a good road shown in the Guide Book but not on the state highway map. About two miles up this road bear right at a fork. About a mile from this point make a left turn from the highway through a blind opening in the bushy fence row. This is the camping spot, and the place where the Trail enters the road. If you see white blazes as you drive along the road you will know you have missed the proper turn-off, so, shame on you, go back and find it.

To reach the campsite from the east turn north from Johnson between a church and a bank. (Avoid Route 100 C) Cross a concrete bridge. Go about a mile and branch left on a good road. After a little over a mile you should cross a bridge at a place called "Hillside School" on the Hyde Park sheet of the Geological Survey map. The school is there. Take the road just to your left of it. About two miles from here the Trail comes in from the left and follows the road a short distance to a blind right turn through the bush fence row. This is the campsite. Drive in and make yourself at home.

The Saturday Hike will be 4.9 miles from the campsite to the point on Route 15 where the Trail leaves it to the south. The Sunday Hike will be from the Davis Neighborhood to Parker Camp and back to Base Camp. The distance will be 9.6 miles. The Monday Hike will be 11.6 miles from Route 15 to Smugglers Notch. This last day will be a bit rugged.

Each individual should make his own arrangements for transportation, equipment, food etc. People planning to take in the Saturday Hike should have camp set up and be ready to start by 3 P.M. at the latest. The Sunday Hike should start by 10 A.M. Churches are available in Johnson and Morrisville. The Monday Hike should get started by 8 A.M.

NEXT OUTING

Spring Lake - Sunday, June 20th.

Many hands will be needed before the Spring Lake Shelter is up again and ready to re-name, so it is hoped there will be a good turn-out on the work-hike on June 20th. Come out for the hike through pleasant woods, for the good companionship, and the feeling of achievement when the work is done. We will leave from Meldon School at 9:00 A.M. for the early workers - others can join us later at the new location.

Betty Ball, Ch.

GMC ANNUAL MEETING

The GMC Annual Meeting held at Long Trail Lodge on Saturday, May 29th was, as always, an interesting and enjoyable affair. Since the various phases of the meeting will be reported on in detail in your next LONG TRAIL NEWS, we will give you here only a general birdseye view.

The crowd started to assemble shortly after 10 A.M. and the sociability of greeting old and new friends was augmented by the excellent coffee and doughnuts served "on the house".

By 11 o'clock there was a good attendance for the opening of the business meeting. The Secretary's and Treasurer's reports, and reports from the various committees and sections represented, took up the remainder of the morning.

At 12:30 we adjourned to the main Lodge for dinner. This was another opportunity to renew acquaintance and exchange ideas with members of other sections.

The meeting reconvened at 2 P.M. to complete the business of the day. This included a report on the plans for the sale of The Lodge property and the election of the Trustees.

Nature hikes had been planned for the latter part of the afternoon. Rain interfered however, and most were content to stay indoors and fill in the time with bridge, canasta, and visiting. A few of the more venturesome did get in short walks just before supper.

For the evening program Prof. Roy Buchanan showed slides illustrating his talk, THE LONG TRAIL AS I HAVE SEEN IT. If you know Prof. Buchanan we don't have to tell you how good this was - if you don't know him - well - you've surely missed something worthwhile.

The evening closed with a reminder of the activities planned for the next day and an admonition by the new GMC president, Craigie Perkins, not to be bothered by the weather (pouring rain at the moment) as it would be gone by the next day.

Sure enough, he was right. Sunday proved a perfect day for the expeditions to Little Rock Pond, Killington, and Lico. Good too for relaxing at the Perkins camp, a sort of general headquarters to which the various groups returned for a pleasant evening.

Monday was another fine day. Those who could stay over enjoyed trips to Blue Ridge and to the beaver dam.

From the point of view of this reporter the only thing which marred an otherwise perfect Annual Meeting week-end was the small attendance from the Killington Section. We appreciate the interest of those who did come. We were sorry to have so many of you miss a pleasant experience, so we hope that when the Intersectional comes along Killington Section will take advantage of the opportunity and be on hand.

LITTLE ROCK FOND

by
Roy Buchanan

A trail trip is a difficult thing to write about unless some serious catastrophe livens up the proceedings. As I thought about the May 30th hike to Little Rock Fond, that seemed to be exactly the case. And then I remembered the two dire events of the day and I set to work with this result.

The first one is bad and it concerns you, gentle reader, (if you do read so far) and me also. It was so serious that I hesitated for days and days before doing anything about it. Come with me behind the kitchen door and I'll tell you all --- Vera Perkins told me that I must write an account of the trip --- and that you must read it. Doesn't that spoil the day for both of us!

The other catastrophe concerned an innocent porkie. Someone killed him and dumped him in the pool of water that occupied the toilet. "Ding dong bell! Porkie's in the well. Who put him in? Little Johnny Green. Who pulled him out? Great, strong Jack Stout." We know the identity of Jack Stout and so we give him credit for pulling the porkie out and for leading him far over the hill and leaving him there with the proper ceremonies so that he can waste his sweetness on the desert air. But if we know Johnny Green, we would dispose of him also, far away and with the proper ceremony.

Well, anyhow, the trip in to Little Rock was all that we expected and the stay there on the rocks was very pleasant and restful. The day couldn't have been better. Flies were present but but a nice breeze kept them off enough so that they bit just enough to make us appreciate how nicely the breeze kept them off.

Four Burlington GMCers wandered in to the fond where five Rutlandites plus two Rutland-Benningtonites welcomed the northerners and made their visit enjoyable.

Thanks for your hospitality.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING

The May meeting of the Ex. Board was held Monday evening, May 17th at Craigie Perkins' home.

One of the main items of business was the consideration of what trail work we should have done by the Patrol. The money which we voted for this purpose at our annual meeting will buy about 2 days work. We want to get as many of the most important needs taken care of as is possible in that time. Trails Ch., Craigie Perkins, was able to give us advice on this as he and Mary Perkins have been over a large part of our section this season, erecting directional signs and repainting blazes. The following work was decided on as of primary importance for the Patrol to do if possible:- take out 3 blow-downs between Sherburne Pass and Pico; trim out small encroaching evergreens along The Trail between Pico and Killington; clear trail from Pico Shelter to Pico Peak and down to the Junction; clear trail on the last mile to Killington from the north; clear trail above Clement.

At this meeting several possible solutions to the problem of what to do about the bridge on The Trail at East Clarendon were discussed.

Harold Valiquette reported progress on preparations for our

"What's-Its-Name" rebuilding project. He plans to have some work on this lined up for us for the June 20th outing.

Unfortunately, we had no report from the Shelter or Publicity Chairmen.

Our treasurer, Eleanor Walker, reported that as a result of dues reminders which she sent out she had received renewal memberships to date amounting to $36.

The names of two prospects for junior membership were suggested and copies of the current SMOKE & BLAZES sent to them.

The next Board meeting will be held in mid July.

SOMETHING TO INVESTIGATE

Investigations being popular these days we offer you something which seems to have possibilities.

Churchill Scott made a visit to Tucker Lodge the other day and, finding a sizable hole in the foundation, plugged it up by wedging a stone in as tightly as possible. The next day, being in the vicinity, he visited Tucker again and there was the hole all clear. Question - who, or what, has a residence under Tucker? No reward offered and no hearings will be held but if you find any interesting clues let us know.

We were sorry to learn of the illness of Mrs. Grace Hayward. We wish her an early recovery.

CAMPING OVER THE FOURTH

If you do not care to do any hiking on our July 3, 4, and 5 trip, why not come along and enjoy a good camp out. The campsite selected is ideal for this. It is located in a field with a good brook at the back end where the Long Trail goes into the woods.

Barrows Camp is only about a quarter of a mile up the Trail; a slight climb but not steep. This would make a nice spot to walk to and have lunch. The camp is attractive and in good condition.

From the campsite you are not far by car from Mt. Mansfield. Another suggestion is, drive over and take a ride up the chair lift for a wonderful view.

Our past experience of camping and hiking has proved enjoyable for both parties, so come along and enjoy the fun.

TRAIL PATROL WORK

Our Killington Section Vice President, Bill Allard, is working as captain of a trail crew under the supervision of Prof. Roy Buchanan. No doubt we shall see the result of the work he and the three other young men working with him are doing when we hike up north in July.

We know Bill has been working hard at his books at the University of Vermont Medical School this past school year. The woods and trails can act as a sedative all summer so that when fall comes around again he will be ready and glad to hit hard at the books again.

BALD MOUNTAIN TRAIL

Churchill Scott has agreed to help the Girl Scouts with their summer project of trying to improve the Bald Mountain Trail.

MT. AEOLUS

Last year we canceled the Mt. Aeolus trip because of rain. This year we made it in spite of rain. At starting time there were several patches of blue sky and prospects for clearing weather were bright. Once we were on the mountain however, it started to drizzle and continued off and on all day.

Armed with a topographic map and O'Kane's "Trails and Summits of the Green Mountains" we drove to a point near Manchester where we left Route 7 for the back roads. After an assortment of "lefts", "rights", "bridges", and "hills" we arrived at what we thought was the "Old McLaughlin Place." Then we left our car and started toward Mt. Aeolus following an abandoned marble hauling road.

The mountain seems to be covered with a net work of wood roads of all ages and we soon lost all track of the several turns described in the book. We visited three abandoned marble quarries but which was "One", "Two", or "Three" referred to, we hadn't the least idea.

The walking was good though somewhat damp. A deer was seen. The plants along the trail were quite different from those seen commonly along the main range of the Green Mountains. There were many yellow lady slippers and we found several vine like plants with purple and white bell shaped flowers about an inch long. Even the ferns looked different. Probably the limestone soil was responsible for much of this strangeness.

At last we came out on a ledge from which we could look down on East Dorset and the neighboring valley. It was so misty that much of the more distant landscape had to be left to the imagination.

Only a short distance above this point our trail led us to the mouth of the cave. It was really open enough so that a hay wagon could be driven in; although that wouldn't be such a good idea.

We built our fire at the mouth of the cave where the overhanging rocks protected us from the continuing drizzle. At this point we were welcomed by a white-footed mouse who came boldly within a foot of the fire and, after a little teasing, took crumbs from Barbie Allard's hand.

The coffee pot boiled in record time in spite of the wet. After dinner a party was organized to explore the cave. The first big room slants steeply down for one hundred fifty feet with a domed ceiling and broken rocks for a floor. At the lower end several narrow passages lead off somewhere maybe. We squeezed into the most promising for ten feet but it was wet, cold and dirty so we postponed further research till another day with better lights and older clothes.

Coming down we followed any road leading downhill and came out on the road within a mile or so from our car.

Next time we want less rain and more visibility but it was an interesting adventure in new territory. You should have been there.

A NEW HIKER

We were pleased to receive an announcement introducing "A New Hiker On The Road To Life."

Jack and Janet Martin are the proud parents of a new baby girl, Carol Ann, born June 11th, 1954.

COMING EVENTS
by
Betty Ball

Time - Sunday, July 18th
Place - C.V. Camp Chittenden

A day at the C.V. Camp on Chittenden Reservoir is becoming a pleasant annual event. Swimming, loafing, eating, hiking, are all part of the program. Eleanor Walker is the hostess for the day. The time of leaving Meldon School is 10:00 A.M., but the group may be joined at the camp at any time.

Time - Saturday P.M., July 31st
Place - Wallingford - Elfin Lake, White Rocks, and Ice Caves

This Saturday afternoon outing has lots of variety, and can be joined at several places. Cars will leave Meldon School at 1:30 P.M., probably for a swim at Elfin Lake. It has been suggested that cars will park at the White Rocks parking area after the swim, and hikers take the Ice Caves path from that spot, returning to White Rocks picnic area for supper. Other combinations of activities are possible and may be arranged to suit the wishes of those attending. Cliff-side Trail is a nice little scramble. Watch for the duck hawk that usually nests on the cliff, the peregrine falcon of the days of knighthood.

Time - Saturday P.M., Aug. 14th Place - Texas Falls

Here is another Saturday afternoon picnic place that should provide a cool place on a hot day, (if we have any such this summer). There is a little hike around the Falls, and a place to swim, rumored to be cold and deep, but this will mostly be a nice ride, a social hour, and good eating. Hikers can drive to the top of the mountain and try some of The Long Trail, to Lake Ileiad, or in the other direction, to work up a good appetite. Swimming in Lake Ileiad is another possibility.

Cars will leave Meldon School at 2:00 P.M., but again anyone can join the group at any time.

KILLINGTON WORK PARTY
SUNDAY, JULY 25th

A work party is being planned for Sunday, July 25th. The objective is to make much needed repairs on the roof of Cooper Lodge, Killington.

As you know this is a long trip and it would be nice to have enough people out for work so that only this one journey would be needed to get these repairs done.

This isn't a "for men only" party. We won't ask the 'gals' to work on the roof, but there is plenty of window washing and similar work right in their line which needs to be done. So, come one, come all, let's have this work party set an attendance record and get the job finished up in this one trip.

It is important to contact Craigie Perkins by Saturday, July 24th if you plan to be one of the party. He will give you starting time and necessary details.

OPERATION SUNNYSIDE

The outing scheduled for Sunday, June 20th, was planned with the hope of getting out a sizeable party to carry forward the building of SUNNYSIDE Camp. Harold Valiquette, chairman of the project, was on hand to get the day's work started. It was somewhat disappointing to find such a small group assembled at Meldon School ready for work. However, those attending proved to be capable and ambitious workers and an appreciable amount was accomplished during the day.

Holes for the foundation posts were dug, the path to the spring was well brushed out, and further work done on deepening the spring hole and diverting surface water from around it.

It wasn't all work either. There was time out for visiting, a relaxing lunch hour, and short hikes by some along shady portions of The Trail near-by.

Although there were some of the so-called "friendly flies" around, in general the fly situation was not so bad as it often is at this time of year.

This Sunday proved to be one of the quite hot days so far this summer and by the end of the day we were more than ever convinced that SUNNYSIDE is well named.

There will be more work parties here in the future when the summer rush in the awning business lets up and Harold has more time. We hope that some of you who have not yet been able to lend a hand to this project will try to be around for some of these later efforts. We'll let you know when they are scheduled.

This camp is going to be a particularly nice objective for winter outings when it is completed and the sooner we have it done the sooner we can enjoy its use.

NEW NAME-PLATE

For our August issue we will have a new design for our SMOKE & BLAZES name-plate. Hilma Erickson is the artist to whom we will be indebted for our 'new look'. This will be the fourth name-plate design to appear on our publication. The previous artists have been Janet Martin, Ray Catozzi, and Jane Sabourin. The big reason for a new name-plate every now and then, isn't just that we like a change, it's that the stencil wears out! We appreciate the help all these people have given us by keeping us supplied.

TRIP TO BALD MT. MADE

Churchill Scott has made one trip on to Bald Mt. to conduct a group of Senior Girl Scouts and Leaders and aid them in starting a project on remarking and re-locating a trail up this popular mountain. We understand that this party covered about 2/3 of the distance and another trip will probably be necessary to complete the location of the trail. After this the Girls Scouts plan to continue to work on improving the trail, and hope to use it extensively during their camping season.

This is a good illustration of a cooperative project which will be of advantage to both the cooperating organizations.

NEW SHELTERS CHAIRMAN

Prescott Van Vleet has been appointed as Shelters chairman. Van takes over from Emile Boselli who finds he is too busy at present with his Archery Club activities.

NEW SCHEDULES ENCLOSED

You will find your copy of the Outing schedules for the last half of the year enclosed with this issue.

Our third annual July 4th trip was voted a huge success by the six hikers and two campers who made it. Twenty-four more miles of Long Trail were covered from Parker Camp to Smuggler's Notch.

Eleanor Walker and Pearl Nichols camped out with us, and provided much needed taxi service. The hiking party consisted of Vera Perkins, Emile Boscelli, Ray Catozzi, Barbara Allard, and Craigie and Mary Perkins.

We set up our tents Saturday in a field next to Judevine Brook about a quarter of a mile south of Barrows Camp, and right on the Long Trail. Roy Buchanan is to be thanked for suggesting this excellent spot.

Saturday afternoon we hiked south from camp to Route 15 near Johnson. This took us over Prospect Rock from which we could look down on the Lamaille River. This was an easy hike.

Sunday morning we drove up to the Davis Neighborhood School site, and hiked up the approach trail to the Parker Camp where we left off last year. This day's route led along the ridge of Laraway Mountain to its famous cliffs. We hated to leave that lovely view. The trail down Laraway follows ledges close under the cliffs and should be on everyone's list of "favorite spots." We cooled our feet in the stream in Coddling Hollow and walked into camp in time for a good supper before dark.

Monday was the big day; 11.6 miles from Route 15 to Smuggler's Notch. Not too much in distance but we climbed 3215 feet from Route 15 to the top of Whiteface in 6.5 miles, all up hill.

Just after we started it began to rain and kept up till about two o'clock. We were soon soaked and stayed soaked till we got back to camp at night.

Walking in the rain wasn't so bad after we got used to it, and that didn't take long. The clouds did partly interfere with the view from the top of Whiteface, and the wind was a little cool up there, but that situation was not successfully.

It was a long pull over Madonna Peak and we began to race against time to get out of the woods before dark. Emile went on ahead and started a fire at Sterling Pond Camp for us to warm up but we couldn't stay long. Luckily the trail down to the Notch had just been worked by the Patrol and was in good condition so we got back to camp before dark.

Bill Allard and his crew were staying at Barrows Camp Monday night so we had a visit with them.

We missed Carl and Maxine Nowhall who have been with us on former July 4th expeditions.

Next year we will be doing Mansfield. That should bring out a larger crowd. Six is fun but twelve is funner.

ABOUT SECTION MEMBERS

Michael Jennings has returned to his home in Rutland after serving in the U.S. Navy for four years.

Daniel Jennings recently received a Masters Degree from Boston College and is to be called into Service soon.

While doing Long Trail Patrol work about a mile south of Taylor Lodge on Mt. Admiral Clark, Bill Allard found a camera near a blow-down. Miss Tye had received a letter in regard to the lost article. It wasn't long before camera and owner were together again and everyone was happy.

Betty Ball has left for a six weeks vacation. The west coast is her destination.

HIKING IN THE WHITE MOUNTAINS

The appalachian Mountain Club of Boston, Mass. announces that its nine modern huts, built for the enjoyment of the climbing public in the White Mountains, opened June 20th for their 66th summer season.

These huts are unique mountain hotels offering many of the luxuries of home, substantial family-style meals, and a chance to travel light for as long as one wishes. They are located an easy days' walk apart all the way from Lonesome Lake Hut above Franconia Notch to Evans Notch Hut on the Maine-New Hampshire line in Stowe, Maine. In traveling this chain, the hiker walks over the backbone of the White Mountains, and need only to bring clothing and personal articles to enjoy a grand vacation.

The all-inclusive day rate charged at all huts is $6.60. Special rates are made for organized groups of eight or more with confirmed reservations made in advance.

It is suggested that those desiring more information on any of the huts, write to J. B. Dodge, Hut Manager, Pinkham Notch Camp Gorham, New Hampshire. Booklets are available from him on "The A.M.C. Summer Huts", "Pinkham Notch in Winter", or "Suggested Climbing Trips in the White Mountains".

WHY I CLIMB

by

Ija N. Korner

(taken in part from APPALACHIA Ija N. Korner is a professor of Psychology and psychiatry and in this article seeks to probe into the spiritual values of climbing and to evaluate the reasoning of climbers.)

Climbing does not involve solely physical activity, but also provides me with great emotional satisfaction. I climb because mountain country is beautiful. The beauty of nature means more to me in its manifestations in mountains than in any other geographical shape.

Climbing means to me the society of people who have values, ideas, and a style of living similar to my own. I enjoy company where I do not have to explain myself, where I can assume that a great deal of my enthusiasm is shared.

If the peak is well chosen for the level of my climbing capacities, its attainment is associated with a maximum use of my physical ego.

I climb because it gives me distance from the problems, involvements and tensions of everyday living. In climbing and living the life of a mountaineer I obtain that unique peace which we seek and find only in the mountains.

A climber is a man who knows his strength and is willing to live by and on it. His goal is clear and well defined; it is without doubts and conflicts. He has friends with whom he is united for the same purpose inseparably. His rewards are inexhaustable. He obtains beauty, serenity and peace - for a well paid price in labor. And if "it happens to be there," I'll climb it also.

INTERSECTIONAL CAMP OUT

Here's the chance to get acquainted with hikers and campers from other sections. You can camp beside your car in a pretty section of Vermont, with lots of good hikes accessible. There's a nice hike up to Griffith Lake, with a fine look-out over the valley. The Mt. Acolus hike is fun, with a large cave to explore at the top. Long Trail hikes to Little Rock Pond, and to Griffith Lake from Mad Tom Shelter, or from the Peru road are easy to do with a bit of riding at the start. Another possibility, which might be a new hike for the veterans who have done all of the above, is the Stapleton Trail from Styles Peak to Griffith Lake. So there is lots of variety possible.

Time - Sunday - September 5th

Place - Killington Peak

A favorite hike with a wonderful view. This time we will again approach from the West Bridgewater approach trail. A party from Glens Falls plans to join us, so we'll have another chance to meet new hikers. We will leave Meldon at 8:30 A.M. to give us plenty of time on top. Let's hope for a clear day.

KILLINGTON SECTION TRAIL REPORT

The two big projects of the Trail Committee this year were to make a trail through the lumbering operation north of Clement Shelter and to repaint blazes on the whole section of Trail.

One large Section work party and one day's work by the Long Trail Patrol have pretty well taken care of the lumber slash.

Blazes along the Long Trail have been repainted in both directions with the exception of about three miles from Clarendon Gorge to Sunnyside. The Bucklin Trail to Killington has been painted in one direction only, and no painting has yet been done on the Juggernaut.

About half of the lettered signs and many directional arrows have been put up at approach places. Three more trips should complete the remarking project. This might not have to be repeated for three or four years.

We have had no bad reports on the condition of the Trail between the Gorge and Sunnyside. The rest of the Trail has been visited by the Committee. Last year's winter damage was very light and the Trail is in generally good condition. There are very few troublesome blowdowns.

Brushing out is needed in several places. The worst place is between Pico and Killington. The Bucklin Trail is badly overgrown and so is the Juggernaut. This work will probably have to be put over to next year.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING

A regular Executive Board meeting was held on Wednesday evening, August 4th.

Craigie Perkins reported that the re-painting of blazes on the Killington Section of The Trail and the placing of directional signs had been nearly completed. This work will be finished by the end of the season.

Ray Catozzi presented the material he has prepared for use in acquainting more people with the background and purpose of G.M.C. in general, and the activities of the Killington Section in particular. The Board considered this material excellently prepared and authorized Ray to investigate the cost, possible format etc., for having it printed. We hope at the next Board meeting to be able to take some definite action on this.

New Shelters Ch., Prescott VanVleet, is starting a record of statistics on shelters, including items such as window sizes, table sizes, etc., to facilitate the making of repairs when they are needed. He also plans to consider further the matter of registers for shelters.

It was decided that the Section's present bridge over Cold River at Clarendon Gorge should be abolished as it presents a definite hazard. Some other method for crossing the river at stream level will be worked out.

The need for a different stove in Cooper Lodge, Killington was considered. Due to the effort involved in getting a stove to Killington it seemed best to buy a new stove for this purpose. The type of stove most desirable which it would be feasible to install was discussed. Craigie Perkins was authorized to purchase such a stove where most readily available.

It was decided to employ the Long Trail Patrol for another day's work in Killington Section if possible before the end of the summer. This day to be spent in the construction of the toilet house at Clarendon for which the lumber is already on hand.

Croosoting of the lumber at Sunnyside location has been done and this fall will show further progress on this project.

We appreciate the attendance of officers and committee chairmen at these meetings. We feel that they help to keep us all in touch with what is being done and what needs doing. We would be glad of suggestions from the membership at any time.

C.V.CAMP - CHITTENDEN

Again this year we were favored with weather just right for this type of outing. While not a really hot day it was warm enough to make swimming, sunning, and boating most attractive. Also it was a day, rare this summer, without rain - well almost. There were a few sprinkles at one time, just enough to cause one of our members all dressed for swimming to wrap up carefully in her bath towel!

The camp with its roomy screened porch and view of the Pond provided a pleasant place for enjoying lunch.

In addition to the "regulars" we enjoyed having the Fields - Helen, Fred, Tommy, and Peter - with us again. We are always amazed that there are not more of our members on hand to take advantage of this opportunity. It isn't every weekend that one can have the use of a cottage on a lake, with all equipment including a boat, for free! Thanks, Eleanor for making this outing possible for our group.

This hot Saturday afternoon was made to order for a swim - so thought most of the GIC group assembled at Meldon School at 1:30 P.M. on July 31st. Arrived at Elfin Lake we lost no time in getting into bathing suits and into the water. It was just as delightful as had been anticipated, but we were no sooner thoroughly enjoying ourselves than it became evident that a storm was brewing. In spite of the storm warnings everyone, of course, waited until the last possible moment to dash for the shelter of the locker rooms to wait out the worst of the rain, wind, thunder, and lightening. From then on the afternoon was spent in alternate swimming and dodging in out of the repeated downpours. In spite of these interruptions the swimming really was perfect.

During the worst of the shower we speculated on the fate of two of our party who had elected to hike from the White Rocks picnic area to the Ice Caves instead of stopping for a swim.

As supper time approached it seemed that an outdoor picnic was not quite the best choice so our old stand-by, the Perkins Camp in Mendon was selected as the supper rendezvous. One carload drove first to the White Rocks area to advise the two absent members in case they were still there. They weren't. We learned later that our hikers were on "The Rocks" when the storm broke, with the obvious result. We weren't suprised they hadn't waited for us at the picnic area!

It cleared up in the early evening and some took a walk while others enjoyed a sunset from the porch of camp. On the way home a deer stopped beside the road while we had a good look, making a perfect ending for the day.

Dart and Kelly Emslie sent greetings to GMCers from Tuscon, Arizona, where they have been vacationing.

Lucy Bishop went to Bermuda for her vacation trip.

Betty Ball is spending six weeks travelling in the West with a friend who is also a bird enthusiast. A card from Betty from Yosemite National Park sent greetings and reported having seen, "an albatross from the coast and lots of other fine birds." Betty is also doing some hiking having climbed Sentinel Dome. Her next stops were Crater Lake and Mt. Rainier.

Helen Bailey is in Paris, France, this summer studying at the Sorbonne. Before classes began she had time to do a bit of travelling, including a trip by car through Brittany. One of the things Helen mentioned in writing of this trip was that it was wise to have a calendar along. It seems that parking regulations are a bit unique - on the even numbered days one parks on the right hand side of the road and on the odd numbered days on the left.

Earlier in the summer Jim Hayward and Mrs. Hayward visited their daughter Carol and family in Anderson, Ill., and their son Edward and family in Racine, Wis.

Congratulations to Charlotte and Eugene Keenan on the birth of their son, Michael. Another prospective hiker we hope!

An interesting little folder on Bird Mt., has been prepared by Minnie A. Rice of Castleton and is available from her at 20¢ per copy.

THE PARKS MUST GO !

So, say the leaders of progress !

All across the country, and Rutland is no exception, parks are being done away with or defiled to make way for parking areas, garages, or super highways. To anyone who loves the trees, it is a sad sight to see them fall.

Depot Park in Rutland was a small spot of beauty in our down town area. It was beautiful because the majestic trees made it beautiful. Now they are gone, never to be replaced -; a spot of beauty gone forever.

Bostonians have been fighting for some time the threat of having an underground garage on Boston Common. Destruction of shrubs and trees would be practically complete if construction were undertaken here. Let's hope this will never happen.

San Francisco's Union Sq. in the midst of hotel and shopping district has been completely destroyed by the construction of a four story underground garage. A roadway, increased pavements for walking, and tubbed palms and shrubs have converted the park into a glorified roof garden.

There are other proposals and threats to parks in many places. An underground garage has been projected for Travis Park in San Antonio, Texas. In this case a suit has been brought to prevent the construction of the garage and the project is at a standstill pending court proceedings.

In Washington, D. C. there are proposals to take over land that was purchased for parks and use them for six-lane expressways.

We are indeed shortsighted to sell our park heritage throughout the land for a mess of parking areas, garages, and express highways.

MORE ABOUT TREES

To talk about trees in general is somewhat like talking about people in general. It is much more interesting to be specific, so let's talk about the Elm tree.

A great old Elm gives the appearance of a fountain - the trunk as the primary jet gushing upward and branching as it rises, then more jets that appear to be a hundred streams that become a thousand streamlet twigs and a million drops of spattering foliage.

Because of its architectural form and beauty, this is the ideal street tree. Its branches meet across the road in a vaulted arch that does not hinder the passage of high trucks. Perhaps one of the best loved features of the Elm is the dappled shade that it gives. A big old specimen will have about a million leaves, and will cast a pool of shadow one hundred feet in diameter.

George Washington's diary shows that he was constantly searching the bottom-lands along the Potomac for wild Elms to transplant on the grounds of Mount Vernon. Today four of those that he set out still stand, the largest of them on Bowling Green.

There were many Elm trees in Abraham Lincoln's life - the Elm above his mother's grave in Indiana, the Elms on the White House lawn, the Lincoln memorial tree at Atchison, Kansas, where the large crowd that had gathered to hear him, and could not be accommodated inside the little church, sat under the shade while he spoke by the open window.

There is an old Elm in Le Claire, Iowa known as The Green Tree standing today because the citizens of that town refused to let a railway pass through unless it routed its way around The Green Tree. Too bad there are not more LeClaires scattered over the country.

COMING EVENTS

by
Betty Ball

Time - Sun., Sept. 19 - 9:30 A.M.
Place - Long Trail- Goshen Pass to Sucker Brook Shelter

The series of Long Trail hikes each fall have proved among the most popular of the year. Each year we do a section not done before by the club, hoping to cover the whole Long Trail eventually with the summer camping trips and fall hikes combined. This year we start at Goshen Pass, climb Mt. Horrid, stopping briefly for the view from the cliffs over Brandon Gap, then take off for territory not known to many of us. We'll go as far as the Sucker Brook Shelter, and then try to find the Sucker Brook Trail back to the Goshen road, where a car or two will be parked somewhere near the end of the trail.

Time - Sunday, October 3
Place - Long Trail - Middlebury
Gap to Sucker Brook Shelter

This part of The Trail as far as Lake Placid is familiar to many, but there will be miles more that most of us don't know, so come exploring and see new country. We'll have to back track again on the same trail, as the Goshen road at the end of Sucker Brook trail and Middlebury Gap are too far apart to be convenient for car exchange. However, views are different when going in the opposite direction so it shouldn't be too dull. Fall coloring should be fine so don't forget your color cameras.

RUMMAGE SALE COMING

It won't be long now, so keep your collection of articles for the sale growing. The date and committees for this event will be announced in our October issue.

AND SO IT RAINED

Sunday, Sept. 5, was a special date on our Outing Schedule. On that day members from the Glens Falls Sec. of the Adirondack Mt. Club were to join us for a trip to Killington via the Juggernaut Trail.

The day came, the visitors came in good numbers - also the rain came. After waiting 45 min. for signs of clearing it was unanimously decided we were in for an all day rain and the party dispersed. So, of course, it cleared! We hope we can get this trip in at some other time.

TRAIL TRIP

In August, Allegro Milano, husband, "Susan" and "Susan's" daughter covered The Trail between Long Trail Lodge & Little Rock Pond.

OUR TRIP TO TEXAS FALLS

by
Prescott VanVleet

Saturday, August 14th - a beautiful day - and off we went. Up Woodstock Ave., and over Hendon Mountain. The entourage of two Greyhound busloads, one Vermont Transit full, and 7 cars, rolled up and down the hills. We all turned to port at Sherburne Stage and on to Pittsfield. Through Rochester, not daring to stop at the village green to take in the carnival. On to the thriving metropolis of Hancock where the caravan went straight ahead and, lo and behold, the last two cars happened to contain 5 GMCers who turned left and dusted along the dirt road for a mile or two or three and then swung right for a mile to a very clean and well situated picnic area; the setting of which resembles "Grasslands" - a state picnic area east of Hapgood Pond.

Our party consisted of Mrs. J.B. Newton of Wallingford - her two daughters, Louise M. Adams of Rutland and Helen M. Ehlert of Detroit, - Jan Maseltine and "yours truly". Mrs. Newton relaxed in the car and tended to her knitting while the four of us took to the wood trail from the parking area to "deep in the heart of" Texas Falls. There was not too much water flowing but that afforded a better look at the water-shaped rock formations which looked as smooth as a piece of finished marble. After climbing around on the rocks our appetites got the better of us so we footed to our picnic table at the edge of Hancock Brook where we were joined by a sixth member in the form of a rather tame chipmunk. After enjoying a supper with all the trimmings, including coffee scented with burnt birch bark, the evening dampness fell rather noiselessly, so we retraversed the same route to Rochester where the Newtons decided to investigate the "World's Fair" of Rochester. Texas Falls can be listed as a very delightful picnic area for everybody.

INTERSECTIONAL WEEKEND

Your next issue of THE LONG TRAIL NEWS will give you a full account of this weekend, so we'll give you only a general summary - just enough to make you want to read more!

The weather man was kind to us until late Sunday 1.P.M. and gave us one of the pleasantest weekends of the summer.

Fred Field and a few other campers were on hand Friday night. By 9:30 A.M. Saturday, a "tent city" was springing up and a good crowd had gathered for the Marble quarry trip. Another group chose instead to go to Griffith Lake. The quarry visitors were back by noon and after lunch most of them followed the Lake trail to the lookout point.

Back at camp once more we were glad to greet new arrivals, have supper and gather around the crackling bonfire for the campfire meeting. Larry Dean kept things moving briskly. Forester Wm. Wentz "visited" with us most entertainingly about the National Forest program; there were the usual good stories of experiences on and off the trail; group singing to which the junior members added greatly; and finally a corn roast to finish the evening.

Sunday's hikes included, Little Rock Pond, Griffith Lake by side trail or Long Trail and Mt. Aeolus Cave.

By mid afternoon hikers were returning to camp for a late dinner. Soon it was time to break camp.

Congratulations are due to Co-chairmen Fred Field and Larry Dean for a most successful Intersectional. These outings are a lot of work for someone but are surely a highlight of the GMC year to those who attend.

ALGONQUIN PARK

West of Ottawa and south of the Ottawa River lies Ontario's Algonquin Provincial Park.

The Park occupies 2700 sq. mi. of forests, lakes, and rivers. This area is roughly equal to all of Vermont south of Rutland. There are no villages. Supplies may be purchased at three places. There are two post offices, and gasoline is obtainable at only four places.

There is but one road through the Park, Route 60, with a half dozen short, dirt side roads leading to some of the hundreds of lakes.

The only practicable way of visiting much of the area is by canoe or power boat. Fishing and camping are the principal sports.

About seventy-five years ago this part of Ontario was heavily lumbered, and uncontrolled fires finish the destruction of the original pine forest. Now the area is covered with a second growth forest of white and red pine, black spruce, poplar, white birch, and a small amount of hard and soft maple. Most every white pine is misshapen from weevil damage, and there are many dead spruces. There is less underbrush than in our woods, and fewer species of trees.

The animal life in the Park is about the same as that in Vermont. They have a few wolves and an occasional moose. There is a heavy deer population and "beggars" can be fed and petted any time of day along the highway.

An excellent museum contains mounted specimens of the bird and animal life in the area with good outlines of their life histories.

There are two public camping areas in the Park; a small area at Tea Lake with few facilities (and few campers), and a large developed area at Lake of Two Rivers.

Here about one hundred acres of level forested land on the edge of the lake have been cleaned up for campers and picnickers. There are two large, new, tile service buildings with toilets and washing facilities. Drinking water is obtainable from two pumps. Fireplaces are built from slabs of local stone uniformly two inches in thickness. Wood is obtained by driving down the highway a short distance, parking the car and cutting down a dead pine or spruce. When split up this is very satisfactory for most purposes. If ease of obtaining natural fuel is a measure of the wildness of a place, then the Park is still wild.

There is a long sandy beach on the lake. The water is usually on the chilly side but quite swimmable.

People taking canoe or boat trips through the Park can make arrangements to use any of the several small camp sites along the canoe routes. A whole summer could be spent exploring the miles and miles of lake shores.

There is no camping charge in the Park, and short term fishing licenses are inexpensive. Many campers leave camp early in the morning and return about dark after spending the day at some hidden lake deeper in the wilderness.

It is unfortunate that eight hotels and nine summer camps operate in the Park area. Canada is such a big place it is too bad the Park cannot be kept free of commercialization.

HOW ABOUT IT ?

If you hunt ducks you have to buy a Federal Duck Stamp. The income from these stamps is earmarked for the purchase of land for wildlife refuges. Less than 10% of the money has been spent for this purpose. The rest has gone for maintenance, law enforcement, and research. There is no point in setting up refuges that can't be protected and developed, but doesn't nine to one seem like a pretty high ratio for this type of project ?

The Bureau of Indian Affairs manages, on a sustained yield basis, sixteen million acres of Indian forests. Now this land is to be gradually turned over to the Indians. Will this be good for the forests, for the Indians, or for the public ?

The East Texas Chamber of Commerce has called upon all American citizens to join with them in a crusade to bring about the sale of the National Forest lands to private purchasers. They mean all National Forest land, but they cite conditions in Texas in particular. They complain that the Government (us) is competing with the taxpayers (them). Since less than 2% of the forest land of Texas is in National Forest this doesn't sound like the whole story. 90% of the Texas National Forest land was bought from Texas lumber companies after it had been denuded. Now it is beginning to recover under protection and the lumber companies want it back. The idea of abolishing the National Forests is being promoted on a nation-wide scale. Will they get away with it ?

The Governor of the State of Washington appointed a committee to consider whether the Olympic National Park should be reduced in size. Of the fourteen men on the committee, five said "No". The other nine suggested that the Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of Agriculture designate two men to make a recommendation. If the Park is pared down, would that establish a precedent ?

Eleven million acres of farm land in Colorado and Kansas have been damaged by the prolonged drought in that area. This is the second time in a generation that heavy damage has occurred from this condition. Would it be better if this land were returned to grass and the loss in food production made up by more irrigation or better farming methods elsewhere ?

The National Recreation Association has made a survey showing picnicing to be the favorite outdoor recreation in every section of the country. Couldn't we say that "local papers" seem to substantiate that conclusion ?

The proposed construction of a dam at Echo Park in the Dinosaur National Monument has been kicked around for several years. While conservationists are absorbed in fighting this proposal, wouldn't it be a good time to slip over a dozen or so fast deals in other places ?

A bill, R.H. 8880, was introduced at the last session of Congress that would permit the Secretary of Agriculture to sell certain National Forest lands if he thinks they are better adapted to private use. Did this bill pass ?

COMING EVENTS

by
Betty Ball

Time - Sun., Oct. 17 - 8:30 A.M.
Place - Long Trail - Middlebury
Gap to Boyce Shelter.

We'll leave at 8:30 A.M. to give us plenty of time on the last lap of this fall's Long Trail series hikes. Perhaps we won't get wet this time but we should be used to that by now. We hear there has been some lumbering on this section of The Trail so some of it may be hard to find, but that just makes it trickier. The Burnt Hill Trail to Breadloaf that we'll come down is supposed to be in good condition. Not many of us know this country and it will be fun to explore.

Time - Sun., Oct. 31 - 9:30 A.M.
Place - Bird Mountain

This hike usually gets rained out or is taken in the rain, but perhaps the fates will give us a clear day and a good view this time. This is nearby and a shortish hike, so should be easy for all. We'll leave at 9:30 A.M.

Time - Sunday, November 14th
Place - Mooselamoo

We have a choice of trails on this one, if we can find them!

Perhaps we can go up one and come down the other. One trail goes near the Cascades which should have plenty of water in them. This trip hasn't been on the schedule for several years so will seem different.

WEATHER NOTE

For some reason we had a feeling we'd been getting a lot of rain on our G.M.C. outings lately. Just for fun we checked back. Since April 1st we've had only 3 outings without rain at some time during the day! This must be some sort of a record but enough is enough - sometimes too much.

RUMMAGE SALE - OCT. 29

On Friday, Oct. 29th, the Neighborhood Rooms will be the scene of our annual money making event - THE RUMMAGE SALE. We need a stock of things to sell, so get out those garments and nic-nacs you wish you'd given to the last Rummage Sale (we know there have been several already) and let us have them. Collect things from your friends too.

We would like your donations on Thurs., Oct. 28th and will be at the Neighborhood Rooms all that day to receive them. Call Craigie Perkins before then if you need help to get things to us.

Let's see if we can't do even better than last year!

SUCKER BROOK LODGE
VIA MT. HORRID

By Dan Jennings, Jr.

There is only one word in our heading which is not apropos to our outing of September 19th and that is "lodge". The inclement (to put it mildly) weather made the Mount quite "horrid" and by the time we reached the brook all eleven of us certainly felt like quite a catch of "suckers". However, when it comes to the word "lodge", there we agree with our friend Vera, and say we must draw the line.

Congratulations are in order to Craigie for his success in getting a good fire going as our survival would have been questionable if we had not had that hot coffee to revive us for the trip home. Having Pearl meet us with her car to help transport drivers to where the cars had been left was a great service although at one point it was rather confusing as we tried to plan the most efficient way of doing it. I still can't decide whether we could have done it a better way but anyway we all got home.

We do not wish to sound bitter about this outing because actually many advantages can come from such a trip. For example, we discovered what less fortunate humans have known for years -- what wonderful insulation and warmth can be obtained from old newspapers worn inside a coat or jacket. Then too, it isn't every day that you get so wet that you have that "it doesn't make any difference now anyway" feeling as you walk just as contentedly in the middle of a raging mountain stream as you would on the trail (and sometimes it's hard to tell the difference). One scientific theory was debunked and that is that it just isn't true that after you're so wet, you can't get any wetter. You can !

Well, I've got to go and change the paper in my shoes so that they'll be dry in time for the next hike. See you there.

MIDDLEBURY GAP TO SUCKER BROOK LODGE

By
Tholma Valiquette & Dan Jennings, Jr.

Seven of the eleven GMCers whomade this year's initial "trail covering series" hike had dried out sufficiently to turn out for the second outing. The hikers entered the trail at Middlebury Gap, ate lunch at the now memorable and familiar Sucker Brook Lodge, and came out in the direction of Brandon Gap.

Long Trail lore contains many interesting and unusual tales concerning the improvising of clothing necessitated by rain and other mishaps but we understand that a new trend is developing whereby one changes attire while on the trail.

All this may sound rather mysterious but those who desire further clarification are advised to consult with "T" Valiquette, who in one easy lesson, can show you how to stay cool when the trail gets hot.

Although a hiking club, Killington Section occasionally has its difficulties with automotive transportation. At one point of transfer on our way home, Vera's car refused to cooperate and with much shifting of positions we managed to get it to East Middlebury for repairs and ourselves home (if not for repairs, at least for recuperation!). A few more of these hikes and the ranks of our transportation volunteers will undergo a sharp increase.

But anyway, look for us at the next hike, 'cause guess what ? -- we'll be there !

HIGHLIGHTS ON MY WESTERN TRIP

by
Betty Ball

I was lucky to be invited on a birding-camping trip to the Far West this past summer. The other members of the party were three excellent ornithologists so we didn't miss many western birds.

I joined the party in Arizona, flying from New York the middle of July. Tucson was hot, but a drive up Mt. Lemmon soon brought us to cool pines and flower-bordered, twisting roads. We saw three kinds of humming-birds among the brilliant beds of pentstemon. The curious rock formations attracted our attention, and we topped the day off with a blazing sunset as we came down the mountain.

We rode all night from Tucson to Salton Sea, to escape the terrific desert heat. Birding at Salton Sea, below sea level, was fine, with flocks of birds coming from the salt lake to feed in the flooded fields, but by 7:30 A.M. we were ready to leave, as the heat was growing intense.

The California coast was beautiful, especially the coastal highway from San Simeon north, and the 17 mile drive along the Monterey peninsula. We even saw albatross in the Monterey area. The cypress trees and rocky cliffs were most photogenic and the two days along here were among the finest of the trip. We splurged on an abalone dinner at the Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey, and went to summer theatre there.

From the coast we headed for Yosemite, one of my favorite National Parks. We found a nice campsite and from there took a narrow road across Badger Pass. One of the rarest birds of all, a great gray owl, had been seen on this road a year ago, and there it was in the same meadow! The next day we went to the Mariposa Grove of big trees. Tuolumne Meadows was our next campsite. We could see snow in the High Sierras around, and tried a brief swim in Tanaya Lake at about 7000 feet, but it was too chilly for lingering in the water. At Tioga Pass, about 10,000 feet, we watched the Clark's nutcrackers, birds of high altitudes. Our hiking so far was limited to short walks near the roadsides, but we didn't have to walk far to feel away from civilization.

The Tioga Pass road down from Yosemite is a thrilling cliff-side road, and a dramatic way to enter or leave the Park. We headed north to colorful Lake Tahoe and spent the night camping not far from Donner Pass. The next morning we hiked up to the Sugar Bowl, a glacial cirque, surrounded by high headwalls, before heading north to Lassen National Park. There we found the first of the self-guiding nature trails with numbered stakes and printed leaflets explaining the significance of each stake. We learned a lot of natural history. This trail brought us to Dumpass Well, with fascinating hot springs and mud pots, steaming and boiling. Here we camped under majestic red fir.

The next afternoon we arrived at Crater Lake. Here we saw our first coney, a little mountain animal with round ears, and I saw a frisking baby bear. The rim drive around the lake was fun. Crater Lake is certainly a deep blue.

We saw our first Alpine flowers at Mt. Hood. Bear grass, also called basket grass, as squaws make baskets from its leaves, was plentiful on the road up to Timberline Lodge. We walked on snow above timberline level, admiring the colorful, little flowers which grew on the ridges. Mt. Hood was a beautiful sight, looming snow-clad just above us. The trip down the Hood River Valley to the Columbia was fine, with glimpses of Mt. Hood behind us as we sped north.

HOW ABOUT IT ?

The October "Nature Magazine" prints a condensation of a talk given by Frank E. Egler, a Research Associate of the American Museum of Natural History.

Mr. Egler questions the propriety of all-over spraying of roadsides and powerline rights of way for controlling the growth of brush. He admits that young trees must be kept from such areas. Where all-over spraying is used practically everything but grass is kept back from the roadside as far as twenty-five feet. Mr. Engler feels that this is destructive to birds and other wild life, wild flowers, and the beauty of our roadsides in general. He suggests hand spraying of individual saplings, thus leaving a ground cover of shrubs, herbs, and berry bushes instead of grass.

Off hand this sounds very expensive, but it is claimed that new tree seedlings cannot so easily become established in this bushy cover as they can in a grass cover. If this is correct, later sprayings would be less frequent.

As for the destruction of habitat for bird and animal life, the area affected by spraying a fifty foot wide swath along all the roads in Rutland County would amount to about one percent of the total area. Some forms of wild life, such as mice and woodchucks, do better in grass land than in woods.

Another thing, in travelling along a road we often catch just a glimpse of a flower, or a bird, or an animal, with not quite enough time to identify it because we so soon pass by. If there were a twenty-five foot strip of grass beside the road we would have five times as much time to look as we would have with brush only five feet away.

From a highway safety standpoint, an open area beside the road would provide opportunity to pull off the highway in case of accident or mechanical trouble.

Maybe there are two sides to this question.

Remember those blood suckers at Lake Pleiad ? Well they are probably still there because leeches sometimes live for twenty years.

They can and will attach themselves to fish, frogs, turtles, or other animals, puncture the skin, and withdraw enough blood to provide them with food for several weeks. The blood is kept from coagulating by a chemical secreted by the leech.

Leeches can be kept in an ordinary aquarium filled with pond water and containing stones to aid the leeches in shedding their skins. Water plants should be present to supply oxygen, but of course no other animals can survive in their company.

Tropical leeches assume a position in readiness to attack if a warm object is brought near them, or if the light on them is reduced as when some animal casts a shadow on them.

Are our native leeches attracted in the same way? Sounds like a good project to carry out.

Much of the country's lumber supply has come from the huge forests of Washington and Oregon. To judge from the ads of the big lumber companies, we would think these forests were being operated as tree farms. In small areas this may be true, but at the present rate of replanting it will take a hundred years to restock the cut-over lands in these two states.

Who is kidding whom ?

COMING EVENTS

by
Betty Ball

Time - Sun., Nov. 28 - 10 A.M.
Place - Blue Ridge Mt.

Another old favorite for a dubious time of year. If warm and sunny, an Indian summer day, we can climb to the top, enjoy a wide-spread view for not-too-much effort, and eat by the Cascades. If cold we can eat at the Perkins' camp, or we can eat there anyway. These lovely evergreen woods will provide lots of shelter if its windy and good birding too. We will leave from Meldon School.

Time - Sat., Dec. 11 - 2 P.M. on Supper at 6:30 P.M.

The date is wrong on the printed schedule, so be sure to come on the 11th, Saturday. You are sure of lots of good food at this covered dish supper, good comradeship, and a pleasant entertainment. Jan and Jack Martin will show colored slides. Be sure to let Vera know if you are coming and find out what to bring. It helps to bring your own dishes. If you come early there are several very nice hikes nearby.

RUMMAGE SALE NETS $112

Thanks to you all for the cooperation which provided the articles and so made the sale successful. Extra thanks to Isabel Hakins, Ruth Postman, Eleanor Walker, and "T" Valiquette, who with the perennial Rummage Sale committee - Mary, Craigie, and Vera Perkins - worked in preparation and at the sale.

BIRD MOUNTAIN, SUNDAY, OCT. 31

by Janet Martin

Sunday dawned bright and clear so with an extra hour's sleep 12 hardy souls braved the, by 9:30, threatening weather to climb Bird Mt. This group came from far and near - home towns being as far west as Glens Falls, N.Y., and as far east as Bremerhaven, Germany, via Ludlow to the south.

The fates were with us and it turned out to be a beautiful day with good views from the summit. The peaks of the Coolidge range were covered with snow intermittently highlighted by the sun. Betty spotted an Osprey and a Crimson Grosbeak and felt her day was complete.

Everyone enjoyed a leisurely lunch at the spring. Since some of us were curious about how close the new trail was to the old we made our descent by the latter. We found that they were not too far apart at the bottom of the hill and that the old one was in quite good condition.

The hike ended with a leisurely chat at the cars before we all turned homeward. We hope our friends from out of town will be with us again soon.

GREEN MOUNTAIN COUNCIL B.S.A.
APPLACHIAN TRAIL EXPEDITION
by Gene Tappan

This summer the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, sponsored an expedition designed to cover 2100 miles of the Appalachian Trail from Mt. Katahdin in Maine to Mt. Oglethorpe in Georgia. Every local council that the trail passes through, organized a group of hikers to tramp the part of the trail assigned to them. This amounted to an average of 40 miles per group. The trail was divided into four sections of roughly 500 miles each. Each section had its own log book which was carried by and added to by each hiking group. The Expedition was started in each section about July 4th.

The last leg in the first section was started on August 21 by twenty-one Explorers and their leaders from the Green Mountain Council (covering Addison, Bennington, and Rutland counties) at Hanover, N. H. They hiked to the Dartmouth Outing Club's Newton Cabin near Norwich, Vt. for that evening's camping. The next day after church the group pushed on past the DOC Happy Hill Cabin and into the White River Valley east of West Hartford where Sunday night's camp was made.

Good time was made on Monday over the rough terrain through the Bunker Hill and Pomfret area. Evening camp was pitched along the Barnard Brook $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles north of S. Pomfret. By chance the Scouts came out of the woods on the property of Mr. Louis Lamborn, a Scouter for many years and now a member of the National Council. He allowed the group to use a small hay field which was indeed fortunate for an important reason. This was the middle of the trip and the rations had run out. The Scouts were using prepared packs of dehydrated foods weighing 16 lbs. each and containing three complete meals for eight men. But in order to conserve energy and space, only two days supplies were carried. Alan D. Sheaffer, Field Scout Executive for the Council, had made arrangements with authorities at Ethan Allen Air Force Base to have the rations for the last half of the hike dropped in by helicopter. When the 'copter arrived it attracted quite a group of citizenry from the neighboring farms and provided an interesting bit of excitement out of the regular routine of the hike.

With a new supply of food, the hikers started out on the last half of the trip and soon picked up blue blazes of The Green Mountain Club trail. Much to their surprise and joy considerable work had been just done on the trail and it was freshly cleared of a terrific tangle of overgrowth and was well blazed.

The rugged ascent of Cobb Hill and the Pinnacle slowed up progress especially since it became warm and no water was found along the trail. The 1933 edition of the Appalachian Trail Guide Book which was used as a supplement to the maps showed its obsolete nature here. Everyone was hoping to be able to climb the lookout tower which was supposed to be at the top of the peak to the south of Lakota Lake. But no such structure was found and not even a sign gave evidence of where it was supposed to be or used to be. This was most disappointing. The only disappointment about the GMC section of the trail was the absence of mileage markers and signs which would encourage the hiker along the long and uninhabited regions.

The last evening's camp was made at Stony Brook south of Notown where most of the boys took a refreshing and cooling splash in the pools. By this time the weather had proved so beautiful that no one bothered to erect shelters as on the first two nights. Everyone slept under the stars.

A beautiful Wednesday morning found the group hiking the last few miles to Sherburne Pass. Lunch was cooked on the banks of the Ottauquechee River where a few brave souls took another dip. For August the water seemed very cold but those who went in, enjoyed it very much.

The climb to Long Trail Lodge was made in good time and everyone emerged from the woods in good spirits and fine condition after 40 miles of hiking.

The log book for Section 1 of the Appalachian Trail Expedition was closed at 4 PM August 25th with a note about the wonderful spaghetti dinner which was cooked for the hikers by Richard T. Wales, Chief Scout Executive, who met them on the trail.

MIDDLEBURY GAP TO BOYCE SHELTER

On Sunday, October 17th, nine hikers took the last of the fall Long Trail hikes. It was a good day for a change and the trip was enjoyed very much. The Trail was in good condition but that can not be said of Boyce Shelter. This Shelter looks as if it had seen its best days. Perhaps it could be restored to usable condition but that is debatable.

One contributing factor that left us in an unfavorable frame of mind was that we almost sat on a dead porcupine wrapped up in cellophane and left on the floor of the Shelter. Why do people do such things?

Another uncomfortable situation was that outside of the Shelter (where we all agreed was better than inside) we couldn't find a dry spot to sit down to eat our lunch.

When we were back on the Trail and headed for the cars, the joys of hiking were with us again.

TRUSTEES MEETING

The trustees of The Green Mountain Club met Nov. 6th at the Club's office in Rutland, Vt. A report of this meeting will appear in the November issue of "The Long Trail News."

DETOUR - BRIDGE OUT

That is the sign you will see soon at Clarendon Gorge. The bridge at the head of the Gorge is no more. During the last three years we had had several complaints that it was unsafe. Two other times repairs were made to the planking but finally the main girders began to sag. That was too much! Permission was obtained to burn the bridge and on November 10th it went up in smoke.

This bridge was purchased from the town of Shrewsbury several years ago when the old road was closed!

What will we do now? Well, temporarily signs will be put up indicating a detour west by road one half mile to a covered bridge over the river. Or of course the river can often be crossed by stepping stones or wading. Next year some sort of a bridge will be constructed just up stream from the old bridge at stream level.

SUNNYSIDE WORK PARTY

On November 6th and 7th Harold Valiquette captained two work parties at the new Sunnyside location. Besides Harold, Joe Hadeka and Raymond Miller worked both days. Churchill Scott, Roger Pike, Walter Hakins, and Crague Perkins worked one day each.

The cedar posts were all set in the ground, leveled, and sawed off. Two by six sills and sleepers were spiked to the posts. The next job is to set the floor joists.

Wouldn't it be nice if we could get this new camp finished this winter?

HIGHLIGHTS OF MY WESTERN TRIP
by
Betty Ball

(con't. from Oct. issue)

From the mountains we headed again to the coast, this time to the country near Tillamook. We arranged for a fishing trip and joined a group at 4:30 A.M., in Garibaldi. Six fishermen caught ling cod, sea bass, and sea trout, while the four of us were delighted with the colorful tufted puffins which flew and dove nearby. Their large red bills and buffy tufts were conspicuous. We went close to the three arched rocks and could see through the arches. Great numbers of California murres were on the rocks while sea lions roared and splashed off-side.

We went up the coast, ferried to Washington, and camped with skunks in our campsite for company. The next day we visited the Hoh River Rain Forest, with trees as much as 270 feet high. Another fine nature trail here explained the features. The State Park that night, Bogachiel, was outstanding for its hot showers. Washington looked much like New England as we headed north.

Olympic National Park turned out to be much more beautiful than I expected, especially the exciting Hurricane Ridge trip. The road is narrow, steep, and twisting, but a better one is in process of being made. At the top we came out on beautiful mountain meadows, some studded with white avalanche lillies, some blue with lupine, some a mosaic of many colors, and all with the dramatic backdrop of snow-capped peaks. A Bairds sandpiper suprised us by lighting on the road at 5000 feet, and running about over the snow-drifts. Some of the plants came up through the snow.

We spent a couple days going to Canada, shopping in Victoria, and taking a boat trip to the San Juan Islands, then headed for Mt. Ranier, the handsomest single mountain of them all. There we took a $5\frac{1}{2}$ mile hike mostly over snow with masses of mountain flowers between snow patches. We watched 8 roped mountain climbers far up on the top of the mountain. An avalanche tumbled over a cliff in the far distance, sending clouds of snow into the air. At Yakima Park on the other side of the mountain we drove nearly to timberline, and an easy hike to Frozen Lake brought us to country completely barren of trees. Flowers were tiny here and the rosy finches flew by. We promised ourselves a longer hike here the next day but dense fog drove us down the mountain.

Now we headed east until we came to Glacier National Park. After staking a claim to a good campsite at Avalanche Campground we drove on to Logan Pass where we saw rosy finches and the white-tailed ptarmigan which look so much like rocks it is hard to distinguish them. The next day we drove up the North Fork of the Flathead River and saw many interesting birds.

From the mountains we headed for the praries, where the sloughs produced interesting ducks, shorebirds, and terns. We finally arrived at the Grand Tetons, sharp peaks and pinnacles making them the most dramatic range of all.

Yellowstone was our last national park, with fine views of moose, trumpeter swans, coyotes, and sandhill cranes. We were lucky to see the Giant Geyser go off. It only goes off every 60 hours and often at night.

We left Yellowstone by a dramatic canyon and came to the Big Horn Mts., in the afternoon. This huge, columnar mass of rock proved a fine last sight for an exciting trip. I left the party in South Dakota after a six weeks outing that I'll never forget.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS and A HAPPY NEW YEAR

COMING EVENTS

by
Betty Ball

Time - Sunday, January 2nd
10:30 A.M.
Place - Clarendon Lodge

Make a New Year's resolution to come on as many of the club hikes as possible, and start the New Year right by coming on this hike, one of the loveliest of any on our winter calendar. These thick evergreen woods can provide comfortable hiking in the windiest, bitter weather, as the club discovered last year, and the fine lodge is snug when lunchtime nears. Also other trails and woods provide a variety of further exercise. Snowshoes or skis will probably be helpful.

Time - Sunday, January 16th
10:30 A.M.
Place - Girl Scout Camp

Here's a new one. Mrs. Whitney, Girl Scout Director, has offered the use of the Girl Scout Camp to the club for a winter outing, and we can snowshoe about this forested area. This too should provide sheltering evergreens to moderate any possible winter winds, and gives us a new locale.

SUGGESTIONS, PLEASE

We have frequently remarked that while there is no difficulty in getting out a good crowd for the covered dish supper in December, when it comes to our Annual Meeting in January we are apt to have a very small attendance. Should we conclude from this that it takes a supper to bring people out? If so, should we attempt to inaugurate a supper as part of our Annual Meeting? If we did this should we give up the Beechwood covered dish party, at least at this time of year, and transfer this type of party to a place in town and hold it in connection with our Annual Meeting? Or should we try to find some group which would put on a simple supper for us at a moderate cost at the time of our Annual Meeting?

Your Executive Board would like your reactions to these suggestions and would welcome any other suggestions you might have. In the past we have occasionally asked for suggestions with no visible results. Why not change that this time and let us hear from you? Don't put it off - get your suggestions to Vera Perkins right away by mail, phone, or personally, as there will be a Board meeting soon after Christmas.

MT. MOOSELAMOO

Many comments on the weather, mostly uncomplimentary, have been noted in reports of hikes this past season. Any of these would have applied to the outlook, weatherwise, when 9 optimists met at the Maldon School on Sunday, November 14th for the trip to Mt. Mooselamoo. However, by the time we had reached the point where hiking began, the outlook had improved somewhat.

After parking the cars we followed up the pipe-line back of Lake Dunmore to reach an old road from which a trail to Mooselamoo leads off. At one point Yankee ingenuity was tested when the wide and fairly rapid stream had to be crossed on rocks not too conveniently spaced for some members of the party. This problem was solved by two agile members, one on each side of the stream, supporting a fallen sapling between them thus forming a "hand-rail" to assist the less sure footed in the crossing.

As it ascends the mountain the trail is on the steep side in places, and with fallen leaves covering the rather rocky path it was wise to watch one's feet quite closely. In spite of this a deer was sighted high up on a rocky ledge. The steep pitches were not too extensive and it was not long before we were ascending to the lookout. On a clear day this point should provide fine views. We were only able to distinguish Silver Lake and some of the nearer mountains, south of us. As the wind was cold, the visibility poor, and the trail ahead not too evident, we decided against proceeding further to reach the actual summit.

Accordingly we retraced our steps to the bank of the stream where the woods gave shelter from the wind and a plentiful supply of rocks made the construction of a fireplace quick and easy. Here we enjoyed an outdoor meal around a cheery fire. As we returned to the cars for the drive home, we agreed that though cool and windy this had turned out to be a good hiking day - one of the many days when it is actually much nicer to be out in the woods than it would seem from indoors in town.

BLUE RIDGE MOUNTAIN HIKE

by

Jim Scribner

A hardy group left Maldon School on schedule, 10:30 A.M., Sunday, November 28, to climb Blue Ridge on what promised to be a dark and gloomy day. The younger members of the group showed us clearly that their mothers had not slipped when it came to giving them some of Vermont's best energy-giving maple syrup, or we would never have reached Craigie Perkins' place. Thanks for the push, boys.

We set out to hike up the rugged slope of Blue Ridge and at certain parts of the trail covered with six inches of snow, three steps forward and two backward gave a net of one. We flushed a few grouse, and there were signs that the deer had been told they could romp over the rugged Vermont slopes unmolested for another year.

When we reached the top we were rewarded by a wonderful view, for God had sent his pipe lines down through the clouds to drink heartily of the water he had so generously given a few days before.

After returning from the mountain we enjoyed our meal in the warm surroundings of the Perkins' camp.

(Editor's note: Jim Scribner is a new GMC member. He is currently living in Whitehall where he is an engineer for 'Champlain Spinners.' He drives an extra 60 miles in order to join our outings. Think that one over.)

PRE-CHRISTMAS SUPPER AT BEECHWOOD

The annual covered dish supper held at Beechwood on Dec. 11th has again lived up to its reputation as one of the high spots of the Club's year.

The weather came as ordered, a crisp, December day, ideal for hikers.

On our way in after crossing Stratton Road, we noted a big change in the scene. Old Man Winter had left huge piles of snow on the evergreens and elsewhere, making a Winter Fairyland. Some of us chose to walk in from Stratton Road, having some doubts about road conditions.

Beechwood offered several alternatives, to sit by the log fire and knit, games of various kinds, to strike out through the woods on one of the various trails, or just sit by the fire and chin.

Members continued to straggle in at all hours. The supper call was for 6:30 and at one time we thought that Betty Ball (our Coffee Lady) might be stuck in a snow-drift. She soon appeared, however, and when the coffee was declared ready, all hands fell in line for the dining room.

Such an array of good food and such varieties. What made the coffee so good? A new formula known only to a few?

After stacking all this food away, those who were able signed the register, 24 members signing.

In the Kitchen, Janet Martin made music in the dishpan while husband Jack played his accordion in the living room. Christmas songs and carols drifting out to the kitchen made for the real Christmas spirit. 'Just 11 more shopping days before Christmas,' was forgotten.

Later in the evening 'the Martins' took us on a tour (via colored slides) to various European countries. The German countryside was most interesting, especially the small villages.

War-like castles in the different countries, perched on steep mountain sides, spoke of early times and struggles.

After climbing the Alps and other mountains, we arrived home via S.S. AMERICA, and found ourselves at Beechwood, a castle more to our liking and way of life, perched on the side of East Mountain, Rutland County, in the good state of Vermont, U.S.A.

Many thanks from all of us to 'the Martins' for a pleasant evening and to our hosts for their generous hospitality.

Merry Christmas, everyone,

Maude A. Canty.

WORK PARTY AT SUNNYSIDE

On Sunday, Dec. 5th, Harold Valiquette and George Conlon had a two man work party on our reconstruction project - Sunnyside Camp.

They were able to drive only as far as the last pitch as snow and overhanging, snow-laden branches finally proved too much for Harold's truck. Here they unloaded the 2 x 4's they were hauling in and went the rest of the way on foot.

Arrived at the camp site they measured the snow on the platform and found there was 14 inches. They shoveled the platform, put up one section, reinforced the bottom of one, and still having some energy left over, carried in part of the 2 x 4's.

Harold hopes to have more work parties soon and needs manpower in getting up the sections. How about contacting him and arranging to lend a hand?

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Sabourin and their new daughter, Patricia Ann, will be in Rutland for the holidays from Decatur, Illinois.

Dan Jennings, Jr., will be home for Christmas from Camp Dix.

"FARMER'S ALMANAC"

Have you got your copy of the Hart Wright company's "Farmer's Almanac for 1955"? Well, get it then.

For some unknown reason newspapers, magazines, and radio commentators have suddenly been giving this publication a big build-up. Of course the "Weather Predictions" are meant only as good, clean fun, but it seems some people take them seriously.

Let's see if we can predict how good their predictions will be for next year. Turn to the January page and let's study the fine art of weather guessing.

The month is divided into eight periods of three or four days each. This cuts the necessary guesses from thirty-one to eight, a big saving in mental effort.

For each period there is a general prediction and then some regional comments. After throwing out remarks applying to other regions we find that of the eight periods four have only "general" predictions. As these are meant to apply to the whole United States, there is no doubt but that they will be true somewhere. No matter what happens here they may still be right.

Now during a four day period in Vermont we can and often do have all kinds of weather. If they can hit it for just one of the four days that's good enough.

Take that 1st to 3rd "Storm period." There will probably be seven or eight storms during the month, and the chances are about three to one that one of them will come in this period.

4th to 7th. "Fair weather. Cold winds in the New England States. Much colder." Fair weather usually follows a storm and the wind is apt to be cold.

8th to 11th. "Local... storms." They don't say what locality so no matter what takes place they will be right.

12th to 15th. "Cold wave. Fair and cold." With five or six cold snaps probable in the month their chances are good. Certainly if it is fair it will be cold.

16th to 19th. "Unsettled weather." Now there is a sure thing. If the weather doesn't change during four days this isn't Vermont.

20th to 23rd. "Pleasant period. Windy and milder." That looks like the best sporting proposition of the lot. Of course "pleasant" doesn't necessarily mean "fair".

24th to 27th. "Fair weather." Another "general" prediction. All they need is a good day out of four to be right.

28th to 31st. "Storm period. Very windy with snow." We are not likely to go four days without a storm in January, and if it storms we are likely to have snow. Besides, the skiers will want it.

It looks as though the "Farmer's Almanac" will do all right as usual. Let's check up on them this year. Sort of keep score.

And just to be fair let's make predictions of our own. We haven't had a hundred and thirty-seven years of experience so we can't expect to do as well, but let's try. Here goes.

January will be a sunshiney month, especially above the cloud cover. Moonshine will be expensive. Precipitation will be mostly in the form of rain and snow. The north wind will blow predominately toward the south. Driving will be hazardous, and if you haven't switched to your long legged ones, you had better.

A Note About Numbers

Smoke and Blazes started in 1948 as a monthly publication and continued so until about 1959 when it became a bimonthly. In about 1967 it switched to quarterly publication. Occasionally issues were skipped, especially in 1970 and 1971.

In general each calendar year was assigned a new "Volume" and "Numbers" were assigned consecutively from "1" through each year.

There is some lack of consistency in the months of publication, and there are some out-and-out errors in the numbering.

The following Table of Contents lists the issues in this binder showing the Volume, Number, and Date as printed, and, where different, what the Volume, Number, and Date probably should have been.

Dedication

This set of copies of Smoke and Blazes is donated to the Rutland Historical Society in memory of my parents, Mary and Craigie Perkins and my aunt, Vera Perkins. They conceived the idea for a Killington Section newsletter in 1948 and served as editors and publishers for the first several years of its existence, cutting stencils, and running mimeograph copies in our living room. They continued as frequent contributors to the publication and as active members of the Club for over a half century. Fortunately, Dad had a pack rat proclivity which I seem to have inherited. By combining his collection of Smoke and Blazes with mine, I have been able to put together this complete run of the publication.

OUR ANNUAL MEETING

Tuesday, January 25th
Madison St; Recreation Center
6:30 P.M.

Yes, it's Annual Meeting time again and we do mean 6:30 P.M. It was decided to try the suggested innovation this year and have a supper in connection with our Annual Meeting. The next question was how and where? Then along came Jan Catozzi and said she'd be willing to put on a spaghetti supper for us at cost. This was too good a proposition to pass up so this is the plan. We will have a Spaghetti Supper at 6:30 P.M., Tuesday evening, January 25th - price not over $1.00 each; after supper the business meeting and program. All this to take place at the Recreation Center on Madison Street.

At the business meeting officers for 1955 will be elected, reports on the past year's activities given, and plans for the coming year made.

For the program we will show the Club slide collection and we hope to have some Trail experiences related by an "End-to-End". If you have pictures or slides taken recently on the trail bring a sampling along.

Since Jan will need to know the approximate number you will each be contacted by telephone about the 21st or 22nd. If you have friends who would like to come please extend them an invitation and give in their count with yours. Jan will also need a little help on Tuesday P.M. so some of you will be invited for that time. (In case any of you are worried - there will be no dishwashing required - we're planning to employ someone for that.

This is your opportunity to find out what the Section is doing and hear of our plans and our problems. If you are interested enough to be a member we feel you must be interested in knowing these things. Are we wrong? Tuesday evening, January 25th will give us the answer.

COMING EVENTS

by
Betty Ball

Time - Sun; Jan. 30 - 10:30 A.M.
Place - Tucker Lodge

Here is another old favorite. January wouldn't seem like January without a trip to Tucker Lodge. It's a short trip and an easy one, with a closed shelter for warmth. Snowshoes are usually needed but the snow may be crusted enough for easy walking. Trails beyond may tempt those who wish further exploration. Last year singing, pine grosbeaks lent an added interest and since a number of these beautiful birds are around this year, they can be looked for with a good probability of being found.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING HELD

A meeting of the Executive Board was held on Thursday evening Jan. 6th at Craigue Perkins' home. We were very pleased to have so many of the board present.

Much consideration was given to the plans for the Annual Meeting. The result of this cogitation you will find elsewhere in this issue.

Publicity Ch., Ray Catozzi, brought in a report on the cost of printing the folder he had previously prepared. He reported that 1000 copies could be obtained for $35 while 500 would cost $30. It was voted to have 1000 copies printed which would probably be at least three year's supply. This folder gives information on The Long Trail with special emphasis on the Killington Section; its relation to the main GMC, and its activities. It is planned to use this folder to attract new members by mailing them to prospects and giving them to people who show an interest by inquiries or attendance at activities.

The poor condition in which Clarendon Lodge was found on January 2nd was discussed. This again emphasizes the importance of visiting our camps frequently in the hope that in this way we can help to control such conditions.

Some suggestions were made in regard to next year's activities: - (1) that in order to distribute the social activities more evenly the Card Party might be pushed ahead to next fall since the Annual Meeting is to include a supper this year; (2) that alternating outings, including all day ones, be held on Saturdays; and (3) that Work Parties, particularly for shelter work be interspersed with the hiking outings. You will have an opportunity to consider these suggestions at the Annual Meeting.

SUNNYSIDE

The biggest work party in a long time spent Saturday, January eighth at Sunnyside. Those present were Austin Gibson, Raymond Miller, Joe Hadeka, Roger Pike, and the creaky squad, Churchill Scott, Prescott VanVleet, and Craigue Perkins, Harold Valiquette

It was a beautiful sunny day and those who could move fast enough weren't cold. First the good old truck was driven in about a hundred yards beyond the barn. Then all the tools, grub, and supplies, including eight two by fours, were lugged to the Camp. (We used to call it a camp-site but now it is a Camp.)

The ice and snow were shoveled off the floor and dug off the camp sections lying on the ground. Then one at a time the sections were lifted up onto the platform and bolted together. This is absolutely the last time this will be done. The poor old things couldn't stand another operation like that.

About then everybody attacked the dinner of beans, ham, pie, and coffee that the boys had prepared. Complete victory!

When all six sections were up, the long plate across the back of the Camp was constructed and lifted to position. Much time was spent bracing all sides so that the wind wouldn't undo the work accomplished.

Next will come ridge pole, front plate, and then studs for the back. Looks like more lumber will have to be carried in.

Never mind. The more we see of the place the better we like it. It is much better protected from the wind than the old spot, and the sun surely does pour in there. Let's try to get it built before the Annual Meeting next June. We can if we try.

TRIP TO CLARENDON LODGE

It seems we used to have a reputation of carrying out our scheduled hikes, rain or shine. On some occasions of late we have been accused of having slipped a bit on this. However, we think that during the last few months we have gone a long way toward redeeming ourselves. Another step in that direction was made on Sunday, January 2nd when six hardy - or should we say Fool-hardy, members began the New Year right by starting for Clarendon in the rain.

As we hiked up the old road toward the Lodge the rain changed to snow, and with the several inches already in the woods, this area presented winter scene we always associate with Clarendon Lodge in January. After the hustle of the holidays the quiet winter woods were particularly appealing.

We were distressed to find our top-ranking shelter in a very untidy condition. The broom was missing but a little work with the fire shovel and several trips to the dump with bottles, tin cans etc., remedied the untidiness. More serious and less easily corrected were such things as 3 broken window panes, marks on the walls apparently made by knife throwing, a broken door spring, initials carved and names written on the walls and the like. The framed poster with rules for the use of Long Trail shelters had been pulled from the wall and was no where in sight. Such unnecessary destruction makes maintaining our shelters for the use of the public a difficult and discouraging project.

After the clean-up had been accomplished we were able to enjoy our lunch and relax for a pleasant hour or more of visiting around the camp stove before returning to our cars.

AIKEN FOREST

Sunday, January 16th found 12 hikers assembled at Meldon School for the scheduled trip to the Girl Scout Camp at Aiken Forest. We proceeded in cars to the foot of the "Notch" where we parked. We were out for a hike and found it much pleasanter to hike up the hills under our own power than to attempt to drive up them. There was enough snow to give the surroundings that clean winter look and the air was just brisk enough to be stimulating.

Just as we arrived on foot, Mr. Whitney arrived by truck, sent by Mrs. Whitney to make sure that the keys worked and we had no trouble in getting in. We appreciated this extra thoughtfulness.

The fire seemed to need a great deal of coaxing and urging, suffering, no doubt, from too many theories as to the best system of management. Eventually it took hold, the stove began to throw out heat, and coffee water was ready. During this interim some of the ambitious got exercise by chopping wood, while others played "fox and geese".

After a lunch which might be described as fairly substantial, for some members at least, a few rounds of "20 questions" (so called) were enjoyed.

It was soon time to close camp and start the return trip if we wished to make it in while there was sun.

This walk down is always pleasant, especially in winter as one can enjoy a fine view of the city and the west mountains all the way. The blue of the mountains with their bright patches where the sun touched them and the white of the snow covered valley made a lovely winter picture. All too soon another hike was over.

WHAT ? NO GUIDE BOOK ?

On Jan. 8th the HERALD carried a nine inch "news story" entitled "Towering Mts. Pique Interest of Publicists." It's a mystery story folks ! Chuck-full of suspense ! Holds you breathlessly biting your nails while you hurriedly read on to find out if our Leaders win through to Victory. (They do, you betcha !)

Here's the plot. The Chamber of Commerce, looking around for some new source of publicity, see for the first time snow covered Killington, Pico, etc. against the sky.

Ah, like a flash their keen minds fumble at an idea!! But wait. Egad !! They don't know the names of the mountains ! This is known as a dilemma, or getting caught with your omniscience down.

Do our Leaders falter? No ! Do they dissimulate ? No ! With characteristic modesty they Face the Problem and set out to Find the Answer (Rules for Success, No. 17). Cleverly, they ask somebody.

We now reach the climax of the story. In the words of the HERALD, "And They Couldn't Find Anyone Who Really Knew." This contre fois (that's French for hellofanote) would have discouraged weaklings, but not our Sterling Leaders ! Duller minds, (if there be such) would not have hit upon such a brilliant solution. In a word-- Maps !

In no time at all a map is spread among them. (Other end up, Men, can't ya see the arrow ?) Rope by rope the mystery begins to unravel. They all talk at once. (See how democratic they really are ?) Like burps from a burp-gun the names are called out.

"Pico Peak 3967, Killington Peak 4241, Mendon Peak 3837, Little Killington 3591, Shrewsbury 3731." (They only got two wrong on a par five hole. The HERALD would have taken at least six on this one, so we think it was our Leader's error).

But do they stop with half a victory ? No! (Come on, keep to-gether !) Right away they are map experts. Someone reports that Uncle Sam aint done right by our mountains, and with utter fearlessness they vote to reprimand the nasty bureaucrats. (Whoops! Wrong administration.)

Resourcefulness and Perseverance ! That's what makes America great ! Grand Finale ! Everybody on stage to sing "God Bless the Chamber of Commerce."

Next year maybe they will get Hillary to make the first ascent of Killington in a sweat shirt with "Chamber of Commerce" in letters a foot high across the back.

At least that would prove the mountain was real. We have always supposed that since the Chamber of Commerce causes the sun to rise and set, the water to run, and the grass to grow green, (well, it ought to grow green) probably those shiney white mountains were painted up there by the Chamber to advertise the Pico Ski Development. (Jess Tootoo, artist; paint contributed by Stirrum and Kurse, "Top quality paints half way down in every can.")

Well, fellas, come up and see us some time.

Join the Green Mountain Club and see what is behind the mirror.

CONGRATULATIONS

Joseph H. Valiquette, stationed at the Naval Air Base in Norfolk, Virginia, has been promoted to third class petty officer.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sat. & Sun., Feb. 19 & 20
Place - Perkins' Camp - Mendon

Reservations for the Winter Week-end should be made by calling Mary Perkins, 3-7954, by Thursday noon. Let her know how many meals you wish to stay for and if you plan to stay overnight.

Meals start with Saturday noon and end with Sunday noon. The work and cost is shared by those attending.

If you plan to stay overnight, bring your own bedding.

At this writing it looks like good snowshoeing weather so those who are looking forward to this sport should come prepared. The woods in back of camp offer opportunities for short walks and of course Blue Ridge is always there.

Time - Sun., Mar. 6 - 9:30 A.M.
Place - Buffum Shelter

It's anyone's guess what travelling equipment will be best for this one. At present it looks as though Skis and snowshoes might be in order. But who knows? We may need rubber boots. In any case it's not far so we should be able to make it whatever the conditions.

Although too early in the season to do the needed roof repairing, this will be a good time to take in and install the new stove pipe, also needed. There is always clean-up and pick-up work which can be done around a shelter and there is a good opportunity here for further hiking for those who wish it. All in all this should be an interesting outing and a chance to get a bit of work done.

SUNNYSIDE

9 A.M., Sunday, January 30th, found a group of 7 ready to start for Sunnyside. The object of this expedition was to excavate the lumber there which was buried under several inches of ice and snow.

It was a cold day, but arrived at Sunnyside, the workers found no difficulty in keeping warm as they shoveled snow, pried boards loose, knocked off ice, and finally set the boards on end around the outer walls of the shelter to drain and dry out in the sun.

The old "Valiquette Special" in spite of having stood outdoors for over a year, put on one of the best performances of it's career. Water for coffee was hot in record time, and the well-known heat from the stove's sides made the lunch hour in a 3-sided, roofless shelter, in near zero weather, very comfortable.

After lunch we moved the boards inside the walls, lest they be scattered by a high wind.

It was a fine day to spend outdoors and we returned home with a pleasant feeling of accomplishment after an enjoyable day.

REPORT OF KILLINGTON SECTION'S ANNUAL MEETING

Something new was added to Killington Section's Annual Meeting this year. Janice Catozzi acted as chairman of a supper committee that put on a spaghetti supper at the Rutland Recreation Center on Madison street, Tuesday evening, January 25th.

After the supper which was enjoyed by forty members, President, Vera Perkins took over the business meeting.

Reports of officers and of Committee Chairmen were read, Section business was discussed, and papers were passed out for members to fill in suggestions for activities and membership participation in Section work.

A tentative date for a moonlight snowshoe hike to Tucker Lodge was set. The scheduled January 30th hike to Tucker was transferred to a work party to Sunnyside for that date.

Pearl Nichols, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the following slate of officers for 1955 :

President - Vera Perkins

Vice Pres. - William Allard Jr.

Sec. Treas. - Eleanor Walker

These nominees were unanimously elected.

For the evening's entertainment, The Green Mountain Club's slides were shown by Craig Perkins assisted by Janet Martin. George Tappen showed some of his pictures of a recent hike, and Ray Catozzi also had some interesting slides on hand. Edith Ewald also had a few to add to the collection.

SLIDE COLLECTION PLANNED

A small sum of money appropriated each year would enable us to acquire duplicates of some desirable slides and in a few years we would have an interesting Killington Section collection. We would like this collection to be a varied one of general interest not just a "memory book" type for our own enjoyment only. We hope it can be developed into something which gives a picture story of hiking in the Killington Section.

Janice Catozzi, Photography Ch., will be in charge of starting this collection and has been budgeted $10 this year for that purpose. If you have slides which you think she might be interested in for this purpose, she'd appreciate hearing from you.

MOONLIGHT HIKE TO TUCKER LODGE

It is often difficult to plan the right time for the necessary conditions to make an event a success; especially when the moon, the temperature, and that white fluffy stuff enters into the picture.

We were lucky Saturday night, February 5th !! The right conditions prevailed as fifteen hikers snowshoed in to Tucker Lodge. As we hiked in single file along the trail, the pleasant chatter and the "crunch, crunch" of snowshoes were good sounds to hear, and the invigorating air acted as tonic to town nerves.

When we reached the Lodge, it didn't take long to get the stove smoking. The boys went out after wood which was added to the dry split wood back-packed in by one of the group. Soon a good fire was burning. A cup brigade, carrying in snow to make water for coffee, kept the coffee pot filled. Before long, we were all enjoying coffee and doughnuts.

We discovered that some of the boys have good voices and the thought came to us that a song in the camps in the woods or on the Trail brings added joy to a Green Mountain Club hike. We missed a few soprano voices !

THANK YOU

We wish to express our appreciation to the people who signed up at the Annual Meeting signifying their willingness to help on some activities during the year. We need you.

NEW SCHEDULES OUT

Your copy of the Spring and Summer Outing Schedule is enclosed with this issue. Check the dates on your calendars and join us as often as possible.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING

A meeting of the Executive Board was held at Craigie Perkins' home on Monday evening, February 7th.

A budget for the year was adopted.

The suggestion sheets filled out at the Annual Meeting indicated that the majority of those present wished the usual annual activities of the Section to be continued and these are being planned for. A tentative schedule of Spring and Summer Outings was presented by Outing Ch. Betty Ball. This was considered and adopted with a few minor changes.

Our publicity folders were still not available but we hope to have them by the time you read this. They will be sent to people whose names were suggested to us as well as to those who have shown an interest in our activities. We would appreciate receiving the names of people who might be interested at any time.

It was decided to start a Killington Section collection of colored slides. (See details of this elsewhere in this issue.)

Whereas there is much other work which we'd like to accomplish, the following items were decided on as things which should be done this year without fail: bridge across Cold river at the Gorge; trail clearing from Pico to Killington; painting and trail clearing from the Gorge to Spring Lake; needed repairs at Clarendon; new stove and window glass at Killington; completion of Sunnyside.

A NEW BABY GIRL

Congratulations to Fred and Helen Field on the arrival of Lucinda who has recently come to join the Field family.

ESSAY on the DESCENT OF MAN

It was not exactly torrid
The day we climbed Mt. Horrid,
But we thought it would be fun to get some air,
So although the snow was crusty,
And our joints somewhat rusty,
We set out to reach the cliff-top grey and bare.

As the mountainside grew steeper,
Our breathing grew much deeper,
And our snowshoes slipped and slid at every step.
Though we grabbed the trees and bushes
To assist with pulls and pushes,
Very soon we lost our early morning pep.

How the sweat poured down our faces
As we stopped to tighten laces.
We slipped back about two steps for each one gained.
Then we came out on the ledges;
Crawling over where the edge is
We gazed downward from the height
we had attained.

For ten minutes we looked 'round us,
But then Old Man Winter found us,
And we'd had enough exertion for one day.
If we wished a happy ending
In the process of descending,
We would have to take great care and pick our way.

As we on our snowshoes squatted,
Our icy course was plotted.
We hoped to miss the roots and rocks and trees.
But shades of Issac Newton !
We came down that mountain tootin !
While the scenery whizzed by us on the breeze.

No longer were we riding.
We were twisting, rolling, sliding,
When at last we hit a patch of softer snow.
We almost burned our brakes out !
If you'd like to try it sometime, let us know.

SUGAR PARTY - SUN., MAR. 27

Spring is here, (so they say), and with it comes our annual Sugar Party. Again this year, through the courtesy of the Recreation Dept., we will be able to have it at the Rotary Field House.

The usual pattern will be followed; sugar-on-snow, doughnuts, coffee, and, of course pickles, will be served about 6:30 P.M. (Please note we say about but we will try to have it ready on time!)

Jan Catozzi is taking care of the evening program and thanks to her, arrangements have been made with Dick Pasvolski to be on hand to call for and direct square dancing. Those who prefer may play cards, Scrabble, or the like -- please bring your equipment for these and come prepared not to mind if the corner we find for you isn't too quiet!

The price as usual will be determined by expenses and will be planned just to cover cost. Last year it was $.75 and the chances are good it will be around that same figure this year.

This is a club activity at which we hope to see many of our non-hiking members as well as the hikers. Guests are also welcome.

Hilma Erickson and Lucy Bishop are co-chairmen again this year. They need to have your reservations in advance so they can do their buying on the basis of these. Be sure to make your reservation with Hilma Erickson, Tel. Hemlock 8-2276, by Friday evening, March 25th. Let's make this a real get-together.

COMING HIKES

by
Betty Ball

Time - Sat., March 19 - 9:30 A.M.
Place - Clarendon Lodge

This favorite winter hike will include some work as well. Several minor repairs are needed at the Lodge and it is hoped that they can be taken care of at this time.

Whether slush or snow underneath, the woodland will be beautiful and perhaps some spring birds will put in an appearance.

If you can't make the 9:30 start plan to join us there later in the day.

Time - Sun., April 3 - 10 A.M.
Place - Diddie's Knob

Here is a hike we haven't done for several years, so it will be new to some of us at least. It is a chance for a bit different type of hiking where you more or less pick your trail as you go along. The approach is usually from Whipple Hollow vicinity.

This is a place you might not visit except on a scheduled hike, so don't miss the opportunity.

BUFFUM SHELTER

On Sunday, March 6, we made the trip in to Buffum, taking with us the needed new stove-pipe.

The travelling proved to be excellent with the snow stiff enough to make snowshoes unnecessary.

We soon reached the shelter and found it in quite good condition. We knew that roof repairs were needed but those will have to wait until the several hundred pounds of snow and ice have melted off.

The stove-pipe was duly installed and it was not long before smoke was pouring from its top, and coffee water was hot.

About noon large snowflakes began sifting gently down outside and as we sat around the fire looking out through the grove we decided we had never before fully appreciated the Buffum location. It is a pleasant, short hike in and the open grove and nearby brook make the surroundings most attractive. We hope this shelter can be kept in usable condition for a long time to come.

LOST!

Lost: sometime between last fall and the present date, at least 6 or 8 good hikers belonging to Killington Section GMC. If found please bring to the Meldon School at 9:30 A.M. on Saturday, March 19th.

Seriously, what has become of our hiking members? With the exception of the winter week-end, the last several hikes have brought out a very small number. We know of good reasons for the absence of a few, but what about the rest?

As noted under COMING HIKES, the next hike will be a combined Outing and Work Party. It will also be the first of our scheduled Saturday outings. Come on every body, how about making this the time when you turn over that new leaf and get started hiking with us again? You know you'll enjoy it once you get going!

HAVE YOU RENEWED YOUR MEMBERSHIP?

This is the last issue of SMOKE and BLAZES which will be sent out from the 1954 mailing list. In order not to miss an issue be sure to renew your membership before April 15th.

Perhaps some of you who find it impossible to take part in many of our activities may ask yourselves, "Why continue my membership?". We can answer that one with a number of good reasons. Here are a couple.

We like to have you with us in our effort to do our bit toward maintaining The Long Trail and its shelters. Not only does your membership fee help in this but your interest and moral support also help.

True we would be happy to have a larger percentage of 'active' members but here again you can help. Maybe you know someone who would make us a good 'active' member and who would enjoy the GMC. If so, make sure he knows about us and try to interest him in joining. If you don't already know such a person perhaps you could look around and find one. Every member so added would in itself be a valuable contribution to the work of our club.

These reasons should assure you that from our point of view it is definitely worthwhile to have you renew your membership for 1955. During the year we will try, with your help, to accomplish enough to make you too feel it was worth while. So, if you have not already done so, send your dues to our treasurer, Miss Eleanor Walker, 87 Baxter Street, Rutland, Vt.

WINTER WEEK-END

On Saturday and Sunday, February 19th and 20th, the Killington Section of The Green Mountain Club held their annual winter week-end at the Perkins Camp at the foot of Blue Ridge Mountain in Mendon.

Barbara Allard must have put in a good word to the weatherman for both Saturday and Sunday were beautiful days. The deep blue sky was cloudless, the sun was bright and warm, and the air had a touch of spring in it.

Craigie and Mary Perkins arrived at camp early, started the fires, and warmed up the house so that when the rest of us arrived, everything was comfortable.

Until sundown all the campers took advantage of the good weather to break out snowshoe trails up the Elbow road and through the woods. The large amount of fresh snow hanging from the evergreen trees made the walks a beautiful sight.

After a hearty supper, the kids worked it off playing "chase" in the snow until time for the girls to leave for home. The older folks had an enjoyable evening playing "Scrabble," "Bali," and "Canasta." Speaking of "Canasta" there is a rumor that some GMC members frown on those who play the game.

Bright and early Sunday morning, "Old Faithful" Craigie, prepared a good hot breakfast with all the fixings which gave us strength for the day's activities. We all set out once more to explore the various trails through the nearby woods.

A group of young men led by Ted Talbot, New York Section's Trail Chairman, visited the camp Sunday afternoon. They had driven up from Wilmington, Del.

and camped Saturday night at Tucker Lodge.

Craigie and Ted discussed many Section problems, and the boys told of working on the Monroe Sky-line trail last summer. At last "good-byes" were said and they left for their 425 mile return home trip. Meeting with this group made us realize that some people are willing to travel many miles to hike on The Long Trail.

The week-end activities came to a close with tea being served by Mary and Vera Perkins as we sat in the sun on the snow covered lawn in front of camp.

Churchill Scott

A NEW SECTION?

Fred Field, as chairman of the Section Service committee, has been doing a lot of good work up and down the state of Vermont to promote interest in and knowledge of The Green Mountain Club. His efforts have already started to produce results.

On Wednesday evening, March 16th, a meeting is to be held in Montpelier, Vermont for the purpose of establishing a Montpelier Section.

Representatives from the Killington Section, The Barre Section, and the Burlington Section are going to be present at the meeting.

Results of this meeting will be published in the May issue of THE LONG TRAIL NEWS. We hope to be able to report a new Section.

SUNNYSIDE

At this writing it looks as if Sunnyside may be officially opened at the time of the annual meeting in May. Work is progressing steadily.

SHELTER SPONSERS

Again this year we will use the system of a sponsor for each shelter. Shelter chairman, Prescott Van Vleet, has announced the following sponsors:

Pico- Churchill Scott
Cooper Lodge- Craigie Perkins
Clement- Ray Catozzi
Clarendon Lodge- Walter Hakins
Buffum- Eleanor Walker and
Vera Perkins
Sunnyside- Harold Valiquette

It is hoped that sponsors will visit their shelters fairly regularly and keep "Van" informed as to the condition they find them in and work that seems to be needed.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

We are glad to have Betty Ball and Helen Bailey back in circulation again after enforced 'vacations'.

WALK IN THE WOODS

You don't have to have legal possession of a piece of open woodland to walk in it and take possession of it in spirit, and to claim title to it in your heart. So why don't you do just that?

It should be easy to find a spot that appeals to you; perhaps in the hardwoods, or maybe in the evergreens - a spot that you choose to call your own.

Walk slowly in your woodland and discover the serenity that the trees can bring. Discover that the carpet of the woods is much softer and easier to walk on than the hard roads and walks of city streets. Leave your cares behind you. Let the wind blow through your hair, and the warm sun shine down on you. Raise your eyes to the tops of the majestic trees and salute their splendor.

On this particular walk in your woods, you need no sumptuous banquet to satisfy your appetite. But so that pangs of hunger will not spoil the pleasures of your walk, it may be well to pause for a little while. Sit down upon a rock, a blowdown, or a tree root, and take an apple or a sandwich from your pocket. Eat this lunch while you are enjoying the beauty all around you.

You have left your cares behind you but that doesn't stop you from thinking of pleasanter things; this beautiful woodland world you have entered and all its mysteries. To know about the trees, to learn their names and uses would be an interesting project. They could become your friends. Then after you got to know them real well, you could get acquainted with the birds, the flowers, the soil, the rocks, and the insects.

You never need to have a dull moment, and best of all you will acquire a zest for life.

COMING EVENTS
by
Betty Ball

Time - Sun., May 1 - 9 A.M.
Place - Gov. Clement Shelter

Some trail work needs to be done here so we have planned an early start to get at it. Lumbering jobs can play havoc with trails and trail signs so we will want a lot of help.

If the 9 o'clock start is too early for some why not join us later? There should be lots of birds and spring flowers on this one.

Time - Sat., May 14 - for breakfast.
Place - Clarendon Lodge

Come when you want for the Pancake Breakfast. Bring your own batter and 'fixin's', but coffee will be served as usual.

After breakfast we plan to move on to Sunnyside. There is still plenty to be done there, especially the laying of the bunks. There is also trimming of bushes around the outside which can be done. It is hoped that many will go there and help with the completion of the fine job done at Sunnyside.

SHELTERS CHAIRMAN LEAVES

It was with much regret that we learned we were losing Prescott VanVleet to California. Van was our Shelters Chairman and an active participant in our various club activities.

We wish him the best of luck in his new position and assure him he will be greatly missed by Killington Section.

COFFEE - 1955 STYLE

This is definitely the age of streamlining and GMC coffee has succumbed to the general trend.

There was a time when one could count on a good part of the lunch period of any hike being spent in arguing the pros and cons of such weighty matters as hot water vs cold for starting the coffee; and the bag method vs the dump-it-in-loose method. There were also, of course, such side issues as how much coffee to use, the desirable strength, and how long boiling is required to reach it. The fact that eventually the coffee was put in, when, as, and how much, suited the current charge d'affaires never detracted any from the fervor of the discussion. Most amazing of all the resulting coffee was always the best ever brewed.

Gone are those days with their ardent partisans and their often rugged coffee. Came Nescafe - with a can of that and a kettle of hot water each one becomes his own coffee expert.

We may sometimes feel a nostalgic longing for the good old days but in the main we like the system. There is still the matter of the black vs the shiny coffee pot to be argued and the coffee still tastes the best ever.

HIKE AND WORK PARTY AT CLARENDON LODGE

The system of combining a hike with a work party proved quite successful on Saturday, March 19th when twelve Killington Section members went in to Clarendon Lodge.

It was a good winter day. Good for hiking or working and so a little of both was indulged in.

When the stove got through smoking, and the camp was warm, it really was quite comfortable inside. The men and boys went to work on the needed repairs; setting window glass, and fixing the chimney. The women swept out the Lodge and tried, with some success, to wash windows and walls.

A game of Canasta was started without very much enthusiasm. The hikers wanted to be out hiking so away they went - up the road.

On the return trip home, we went by way of the Trail for a change instead of walking down the road.

ANOTHER HIKE-WORK PARTY AT SUNNYSIDE

The scheduled hike for Saturday, April 3rd, was for Biddie's Knob but on that day there was up to a foot of snow in the woods and the sky looked as if more was on its way. It wouldn't be pleasant trying to eat our lunch without the protection of a shelter. We all agreed that we could accomplish more by going to Sunnyside.

So Sunnyside it was ! We had to walk up the road from the iron bridge at Cuttingsville. After all we are hikers so that didn't bother us. Craigie had some tools in the trunk of his car - just in case ! There was plenty of work to be done with hammer and saw and the men folks (4 men and 3 boys) got at it. The bunk frames were put in.

The old "Valiquette" special did a good job of keeping us warm. We could hear the wind howling outside and were glad we had a roof over our heads and a stove to keep us from feeling the cold, wintry blasts.

On leaving, we noticed that about three inches of snow had fallen since we reached camp. We walked down to the cars facing the wind, and joking about spring time in Vermont.

GMC ANNUAL MEETING

Saturday, May 28th is the date of the Annual Meeting of The Green Mountain Club. It is to be held at Long Trail Lodge in Sherburne. Remember this is your Club. You, as a Section Member, are a part of this big organization.

Plan to attend the meeting and get to know members from other Sections as well as your Club's officers and Committee Chairmen.

The coffee and get acquainted hour starts at 10 o'clock. The meeting will be called to order at 11 A.M.

Dinner and lunch may be had at Long Trail Lodge, and there will be an entertainment in the evening.

SUGAR PARTY

On Sunday, March 27th, a blustery wind was circling the corners of the Field House and swirling clouds of snow across the yard in wintry fashion. In contrast, inside was warm and bustling with preparations for a spring festivity - our annual sugar-on-snow party.

This year the committee got really scientific and, using a candy thermometer, cooked the syrup to exactly the temperature recommended by the experts. What we need now is for some brain to work out just how long it takes for a gallon of syrup to reach that temperature. If anyone figures this out before the next sugar party please let us know. Maybe then we'd be ready to serve at the appointed time! It was agreed anyway that the end results were worth waiting for and we're all for the scientific approach.

After everyone was filled to capacity, tables were cleared away and square-dancing began. Dick Pasvolksi was on hand with his fine repertoire of records and calls. Those who danced were obviously enjoying themselves while those who looked on were well entertained watching the interesting variety of dances.

We missed a number of our members who were unable to attend but were glad to welcome many newcomers. These included a group from the Glens Falls, Adirondack Mt. Club. We hope they all enjoyed the party and will come again.

Beside those who contributed to the success of the party by attending we wish to thank all those who made the party possible by their assistance in planning and carrying it out. This includes the chairmen, Hilma Erickson and Lucy Bishop; Jan Catozzi; Dick Pasvolksi; Eleanor Walker Mary, Perkins, Jim Scribner, and Joe Hadeka; and of course the city Recreation Dept.

GREENWALL

Saturday, April 16, proved a good day for the Greenwall hike. Nine members were on hand for the 10 o'clock start and by the time we had parked our cars where The Long Trail crosses the Gulf road the April skies were beginning to clear.

The trail was wet in places with frequent patches of snow. We looked in vain for early spring flowers but found only a sign here and there that they will be along soon now.

The shelter was in fine condition and its location is especially attractive at this season as the absence of leaves allows glimpses of a really fine view.

After a leisurely lunch we enjoyed sitting in the sun and during this period our number was increased to 12 by the arrival of Janet, Jack, and Carol Martin. This was the first trip on The Long Trail for Carol and she did the hike the easy (for her) way - via pack-basket.

As we crossed the open pasture in the first part of the return trip we were facing a beautiful mountain view. All in all it was a good trip and since it brought out several hikers who can not usually make the Sunday trips we are more than ever convinced that these Saturday hikes are a good idea.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

"T" and Harold Valiquette spent a week with relatives in N.Y., recently, where Joe, on leave from his Navy duty joined them for the Easter week-end.

Dan Jennings Jr., spent last week-end at home on leave from Camp Dix where he is currently stationed.

Martha Adams has returned from a several weeks stay in Florida.

A HIKING TRIP THROUGH THE AUSTRIAN ALPS

It is interesting to hear what other mountain clubs do in the way of hiking so perhaps the following will appeal to some Green Mountain Club members.

The Appalachian Mountain Club is sponsoring a two week hiking trip through the Austrian Alps this August. The group (it is expected that 30 people will participate) will leave New York by plane August 6 in the early afternoon and arrive in Amsterdam the next morning. A connecting plane takes them to Zurich where they will stay overnight in a pension.

August 8 - Morning spent in vicinity of Zurich. Afternoon Arlberg Express train to Innsbruck, Austria. Accommodations in pension.

August 9 - 11 Headquarters in Innsbruck. Here is an opportunity to enjoy Tyrolean dances, museums, medieval churches, yodeling contests, and a side trip to Brenner Pass. Innsbruck, situated at 1,886 feet is the capital of Tyrol and is 700 years old. Situated at the foot of steep glacial mountains, it is known as the "mountaineer's" town for it offers a variety of hikes and one-day walks to mountain huts and peaks. The party will use this area to become gradually acclimated to higher altitudes. An experienced Austrian guide will accompany the party for higher altitude hikes.

August 12 - By rail or bus to Heiligenblut. Overnight in pension.

August 13 - 17 Everybody up the Grossglockner (12,464 ft.) Austria's highest ! The hikers will live for five days at high altitude accompanied by a trained mountain guide who will provide proper equipment and instruct beginners on snow and ice.

4 After starting with easy walks, he will guide the group on an ascent of Grossglockner and at least one other neighboring peak. The group will have reservations for four nights at Alpine Club huts with lodging and sumptuous meals provided, so that only light packs need be carried.

Those not desiring the more strenuous high altitude experience, will have the convenience of a private bus for transportation to rewarding hikes and trips planned in the picturesque valleys, passes and lower summits.

August 18 - By bus to Salzburg. It is hoped that a block of tickets may be procured for the whole party for a musical concert this evening - part of the Salzburg Music Festival.

August 19 By train to Munich and Stuttgart.

August 20 Check in at airline terminal. Then spend one-half day in this art and culture center of Southern Germany, museums, art exhibits, and shopping. Board the plane in the evening for Amsterdam for connection with the plane home.

August 21 Arrive in New York in the early afternoon.

Sounds good doesn't it ? Best of all, the cost has been kept way down ! The total cost of the trip is $750. which includes everything round trip from New York except for personal expenses such as laundry, postcards, and refreshments not included in regular trip requirements.

The deadline for registering for this trip is April 15th so we aren't giving the name or address of the leader. However, if you are seriously interested, call the editor for further details. There may be a space left on that plane.

If you can't go to Europe to climb mountains, why not climb Killington or Mansfield ?

PASS IT ALONG, PLEASE

Enclosed with this issue of your SMOKE & BLAZES you will find a copy of Killington Section's new folder which contains information about the GMC in general and the Killington Section in particular. We know that you don't need this information but you may know someone who would be interested if he knew more about us. Will you try and think of such a person and see that he or she gets this folder? This would be a real service to our Section. Perhaps this seems like a small thing but the folder you pass along may be just the one that brings us a new member. If you know of more good prospects additional folders are available from SMOKE & BLAZES headquarters at 129 Bellevue Ave., Rutland, Vt.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sat. & Sun., May 28 - 29
 Place - Long Trail Lodge - Sat.
 Killington or) Sun.
 Sunnyside)

This is a big GMC week-end. The Annual Meeting of the main Club will be held Saturday, May 28th, at Long Trail Lodge. You have just received details on this meeting in your LONG TRAIL NEWS. Here is a chance for a pleasant and interesting day. You will meet members from other Sections, hear what is going on in those Sections, learn of the business of your parent Club, and have an opportunity to offer your ideas and suggestions on that business if you wish. Beside all this dinner and supper will be available at The Lodge and there will be an interesting evening program. If you can't be with us for the whole day consult your NEWS for times and activities and join us for whatever part of the day you prefer. GMC members come as much as 250 miles to attend this meeting. Killington Section members are only 10 miles away. Don't miss this opportunity.

On Sunday Killington Section will act as hosts on two hikes; one to Killington; the other to Sunnyside. Since this is a three day week-end you'll still have Monday to do those odd jobs you've been saving up, so take your choice of destinations but plan to come along Sunday.

Time - Sat., June 11 - 7:30 A.M.
 Place - Buck Mt., Lake George, N.Y.

This will be our first hiking visit to New York State and should prove interesting. We will meet and hike with members of the Glens Falls group of the Adirondack Club. This is a sort of return visit as a number of this group came over for our scheduled Killington hike last spring (rained out!); hiked with us to Bird Mt., in the fall and attended our Sugar Party.

Please note that the date is a change from that appearing on your schedule card - we go on Saturday, June 11th instead of Sunday, June 12th. Note also the starting time - 7:30 A.M. from Meldon School. We are to meet the Glens Falls group at 9:30 A.M. at the point where the West Fort Ann turn-off meets Route 9L. Mr. Cary has provided us with an excellent map and directions for reaching this point.

Buck Mt. is on the east side of Lake George and affords an excellent view. This is pretty country and it will be a nice drive as well as an interesting and rewarding hike. Some who do not wish to hike might like to bring their picnic lunch and come along for the ride. You'll be sorry if you miss this one.

A NICE IDEA

We understand that Ray Catozzi paid a visit to Clarendon Lodge recently and did a little clean-up work. The results of his efforts were very apparent to those who went there for the Pan-Cake Breakfast. Everything was in perfect order, both inside and out. It appeared that even the door-yard had been swept! It's amazing how much a clean-up job will do for the general attractiveness of a shelter.

We feel too that keeping our shelters looking as though we cared about them may have some influence on the attitude toward them of others who use them. Thanks Ray, for a good job.

NEW SHELTERS CHAIRMAN

Jack Martin has consented to take on the job of Shelters Chairman for Killington Section for the remainder of the year. We feel lucky to have been able to find such a good replacement for "Van". Jack will be living in Rutland after July 1st. This will make it easier for him and Jan and Carol to hike with us.

IT'S SCHOOL TIME FOR BIRDS

Did you know that birds spend about three months of their average three year lives on schooling? According to an article by Robert S. Lemmon in the June issue of FLOWER GROWER they do and the summer months are school-time for young birds.

What do young birds have to learn? 'Safety-first' for one thing. "By the time fair sized pin-feathers have developed, any young robin has learned to 'freeze' at a danger signal from its parents and remain motionless until the all-clear comes.

To leave the nest and fly off on their own is another lesson. This is often accomplished by vocal encouragement and demonstration. The parent birds fly back and forth about the nest until one after another the young birds decide to try their wings. Sometimes an over-timid young one has to be almost pushed out.

Once out of the nest the young birds start learning to find and get their own food. Up to now they have received it via free-delivery from their parents. At first they lack the urge to get food for themselves but they tag along and soon learn by imitation. Mr. Lemmon notes interesting variations in the methods of different species. For example, he has observed that woodpeckers bring only one bird at a time to a feeder for training, while fowl-like birds will scratch among the leaves and issue a general call to 'come and get it'.

Finally when the parent birds feel their young are ready to shift for themselves they refuse further assistance.

These are some of the many interesting things going on right around us which most of us never take time to observe. Why not watch some of the birds nesting near your home and check on their learning cycle for yourselves? It could be fun for the whole family.

GOVERNOR CLEMENT SHELTER AND VICINITY

Nine hikers including Carol Martin in her father's pack-basket hiked in to Governor Clement Shelter Sunday, May 1st.

It was the first day of fishing so we didn't expect to see too many hikers. The quality crew showed up and trail clearing was done from the upper road in Shrewsbury to Governor Clement Shelter and from the Shelter up the south side of Killington about two miles or more. No serious damage to the Trail was in evidence and it is hoped that the rest of the Section's Trail will be as easy to clear.

PANCAKE BREAKFAST

This annual affair really started on Friday afternoon when members went in to Clarendon Lodge to gather firewood etc. Surprise, surprise ! A big pile of dry wood and the place all slicked up for company. About nine P.M. there arrived three boys from Wallingford !!! on horseback. (I told you you should have been there, girls !)

At daylight the Wallingford boys took off for home, and the dawn patrol waited for the early risers to come in for breakfast. They waited, and waited. Finally they went back to bed for another snooze. At last five breakfasters straggled in making a total of seven. What's the matter gang ?

After everything in sight had been eaten up, we started for the Gorge and the bridge project. The new lumbering job near the Clarendon Lodge cuts across the Trail at only one point so far and is not a problem. We went out by way of the Trail to check and all is well.

The tools and equipment were carried down from the cars to the river and the actual site for the bridge selected. There was plenty of water still pouring through the Gorge and the bridge idea looked a little doubtful.

By this time the warm sun was out and the girls started the sunbath routine while Joe Hadeka, Bonnet Bell, and Craigie Perkins concentrated on the bridge.

Two daring adventurers waded across the river, cut an eighteen foot log and lugged it down to the water's edge. A rope-end was thrown over, and all hands pulled the end of the log across.

After lunch two more logs were cut and placed, making a bridge wide enough to cross with your eyes shut. In fact that is the most satisfactory way to cross.

As a temporary measure, about five hundred pounds of rocks were piled on each end of the bridge to hold it down in case of flood. Soon chains or cables will be attached.

An inspection trip was made to the Ol' Swimmin' Hole a few rods below the bridge. It is a fine spot for a dip on a hot summer's day.

What started out as a pancake breakfast turned into a long day of working and sunning. The only disappointing feature of the outing was that nobody fell into the river.

Please note in THE LONG TRAIL NEWS the request of the publicity chairman, Louise Goeres, for black and white pictures of hiking groups in action, to be used for publicity purposes promoting The Green Mountain Club. If you haven't any pictures, get out your camera and take a few on the next hike. Send them to Miss Goeres at Glen Place, N. Haledon, N. J.

TIMELY WORDS OF YESTERYEAR

On September 12th, 1931 The Green Mountain Club held a birthday party at Long Trail Lodge celebrating the termination of 21 years of the Club's existence. Three hundred persons were present. They listened to speakers and took part in the day's events.

Governor Stanley C. Wilson of Vermont, was one of the speakers. He received greetings that were brought over the Trail from the Governor of Massachusetts and the Prime Minister of Quebec.

Dorothy Canfield Fisher of Arlington, Vt., the distinguished novelist and author, addressed the group. In her talk she answered the time worn question of "Why do people climb mountains?"

She said in part, "The struggle of the human race has been to conquer material obstacles. The machine age, together with citylife, has cut that out of human beings. Therefore it is necessary for people to get a vacation from sophistication and find some material obstacles to conquer."

In answer to "Why The Long Trail?" she replied, "It offers city people a chance to get out in the open and breathe pure air."

"Another great necessity of human life is that of silence. Modern life has almost no silence what with radios, automobiles and all the noises of city life. It has been discovered that excessive noises, even though they do not awaken the sleeper, lessen the value of sleep so that he does not get the needed rest. The sleep that one gets on The Long Trail is the sort of sleep that refreshes."

"Another thing which you get on The Long Trail is the sense of having plenty of room around you - spaciousness. That has a lot of value through life. If packed too closely with their fellowmen, people develop nervous difficulties.

"Then you have not only the spaciousness of space, but you have the spaciousness of time. All modern life is a slave to the clock. We have to catch trains, we have to be at the office, the bank and school. One of the two eyes is always fixed on the clock. The relaxation that comes from an existence of a few days - a few weeks where there is no clock is a real vacation."

"Then there is another element. You know the human race is gregarious, and cannot bear to be alone, but we need to get away occasionally and have time to think. Hiking on The Long Trail gives us time to think."

"Then another thing - there is no buying or selling on The Long Trail. In this modern day there is a cry of "money, money" all the time and incidentally we come to have the feeling that everything is measured by it and we can't get anything without having it. On The Long Trail human values are not cash values and there you can go 24 hours without shopping."

"Finally, the moral value of The Long Trail is that it is a sort of retreat, where one can recognize the value of spiritual life - an occasional retreat - a retreat from the material side of life, where we will have an opportunity to feel deeper things, which the average modern life, active as it is, does not offer. How can a man who is always hurrying to catch a train have time for spiritual values?"

"Human beings need that stirring of the soul that comes from a mystic experience. A trip on The Long Trail gives time for the stirrings of those deeper parts of your nature, which is one of the goals of life."

All this is a true today as it was in 1931 when Mrs. Fisher spoke at the GMC birthday party.

COMING EVENTS

by
Betty Ball

Time - Sat., June 25 - 9:30 A.M.
Place - Little Rock Pond

Here's another old favorite, at its best in azalea time. Photographers will find plenty of beauty spots to take, swimmers may enjoy a swim, hikers will enjoy an easy, leisurely hike, and there should be winter wrens and yellow-bellied sapsuckers for the bird-lovers. Sometimes a different way back is nice to provide variety, and that can be arranged.

Time - July 2 - 4
Place - Mansfield Area

Another July camping trip is being planned, with a chance for would-be End-To-Enders to complete another log on the length of The Long Trail, and for all to enjoy the hiking along this particularly fascinating part of Vermont.

Members will camp at the public campground on the eastern side of the mountain. The general plan is to go from the road as far as the hotel by Trail and take the lift down the first day; take the lift up and go down to Lake Mansfield the second day; and from Lake Mansfield do the 12½ miles to Bolton on the third day. There may be a car available on top for some to ride down on the first night. Anyone who wishes might vary the program by staying at the hotel on Saturday night, to see a sunset and sunrise from the top, and have more time for the fascinating trails that lead off The Long Trail.

Non-hikers or those who just want short hikes, can find plenty of variety by taking the lift to the top, and taking any of the trails, easy, medium, or hard, that give such wonderful lookouts from the top and side of the mountain.

Botanists and bird lovers will enjoy the mountain fauna and flora, that differ from those of most of our hikes in many respects. One of the delights of Mount Mansfield is the Bicknell thrush chorus at twilight.

There is endless variety possible in this weekend, as the first two days allow time for extras. A short side trip up the Adams Apple on the first day up, gives some nice views. A side trip up the nose is lots of fun. Many will want to go down to the Cave of the Winds. So be prepared for a grand weekend with a maximum of views and a variety of hikes.

NEW SCHEDULES COMING SOON

The next Outing Schedule which you will receive with your July SMOKE & BLAZES is now in the planning stage. If there are outings you would especially like to have included get in touch with Outing Chairman, Betty Ball and let your wishes be known. Your suggestions are always welcome.

ANNUAL MEETING

The GMC Annual Meeting held at Long Trail Lodge on Saturday, May 28 proved to be, as always, an interesting and enjoyable day.

Coffee Hour at 10 A.M. was the starting point bringing together again many hiking friends who had not seen each other since the last Annual Meeting or Intersectional.

At 11 A.M. the business meeting got underway with reports of activities from the various Sections represented, - one of the highlights.

The dinner recess provided a further opportunity for renewing acquaintances and exchanging news and ideas.

We are not reporting here the business in detail as that will be given in your next issue of THE LONG TRAIL NEWS, however, the meeting continued in the afternoon with further items of interest regarding the Club's activities and plans.

At the close of the general meeting, while the Trustees were in session, some members took short hikes while others enjoyed relaxing and visiting on the Chalet porch.

After a Baked Bean Supper, the group reassembled in the Chalet where Mrs. Lillian Lodge entertained with a showing of excellent colored slides taken on her recent western trip.

We regretted that there were not more Killington Section members present to share in this important main club activity. Plan now to attend next year so that you may get to know your Club.

THE KILLINGTON TRIP

On May 29th eight members of The Green Mountain Club took the annual hike to Killington Peak. As usual we took along a saw and axe for from past experience we knew there would be some blow-downs to clear. The trail up Pico was very good due to the hard work of Miss Parmenter.

Pico shelter is in good condition for such an old camp, offering good water, firewood, and a solid roof to keep one dry. From here to Killington the brush and small evergreens got more dense and we all agreed that the Killington Section would have to spend one and possibly two days clearing there this summer.

Jim Green, of the Worcester Section, did all the work cutting out blow-downs. We tried to get him to shift off but all he would say is "No matter where I go there is always something for me to do, and I guess it is too late for me to change."

We arrived at Cooper Lodge in good season and were greeted with a very messed up camp which is usually the rule in the spring of the year. But with a couple of trips to the dump with tin cans, and a good sweep down, the place looked much better.

After a good hearty meal, some of the group rested and others hiked to the summit where they got about one minute to see the view, then the clouds closed in.

At Pico Shelter, on the way home, we said "Goodbye, see you in August at the Intersectional." to the Worcester Section members who planned to stay overnight on top of Pico.

We continued on down Pico to our waiting cars, and none too soon, for in just a few moments the heaviest thunder shower of the year poured down from the black clouds. We were glad to be out of the woods.

3

The start of the Sunnyside trip on May 29, the day following the Annual Meeting, at first seemed to indicate that a very small group would enjoy the Outing. However, additions appeared by ones, twos, threes, and fours, until the final count in the hike register was 20.

The weather was fine until mid-afternoon with a good breeze, always especially welcome at this season for its discouraging effect on the black flies.

The first contingent finally left from Meldon School numbering 13, with 12 deciding to take the short route in and 1 electing to hike the Long Trail route, via the Gorge.

Arrived at Sunnyside, after a short, pleasant walk, we were happily surprised to find that since our last visit, about 1/3 of the bunk floor had been laid, the table had been repaired, and the doors put in their summer position.

While some hiked over to see the view and cool their feet in the Lake, others collected wood and water and started a fire in the out-door fireplace.

During the lunch hour the second section arrived consisting of "the Larry Deans" and 5 Buchanans. The certain fellowship which exists among hikers was demonstrated by the youngest set, Carol Martin and Bruce Buchanan, who seemed greatly to enjoy each other's company.

The last hiker to arrive brought the sad news that the recently placed bridge over Mill River had completely disappeared. The heavy rain of the previous week had evidently been too much for it. So that little(?) job has to be done over again!

The party broke up early as "The Deans" and the "Roy Buchanans" were leaving for an Appalachian Trails meeting in New Hampshire; some were returning to Massachusetts that afternoon; and others were going back to the Perkins' Camp for the night. "The Andy Buchanans" and Bob and David Perkins made the return trip by Long Trail to the Gorge. We understand the afternoon shower caught up with them, and also that they can substantiate the evidence that the bridge across the river is gone!

These Post-Annual Meeting Outings are always a lot of fun, bringing together, as they do, members from other sections. We are looking forward to seeing them all again at the Intersectional in August.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

After a few weeks stay at his home on Highland Ave., Michael Jennings has gone to the DeVRY Technical Institute in Chicago where he will study Electronics.

Dan Jennings Jr., is en route to San Francisco where he will be stationed at the Letterman Army Hospital. Dan recently received his commission as a 2nd Lieutenant.

Bob, Thelma, David, and Anne Perkins left recently after spending a vacation at 129 Bellevue Ave. From Rutland they headed for Los Angeles where Bob will begin work in a new position.

They are travelling by car and making it an extended camping trip. Having allowed about a month to complete the journey, they plan to visit places of interest along the way.

While in Vermont they took advantage of the opportunity to get in some trail hiking, visiting Sunnyside and Blue Ridge, and taking a week-end hiking and camping trip to Stratton Pond.

Bill Allard Jr., is vacationing from UVM Medical College at his home on East Washington Street.

BUCK MOUNTAIN TRIP

The acceptance of the invitation to hike with the Adirondack Mountain Club in the beautiful Lake George area brought together twenty-five persons, June eleventh, to climb Buck Mountain on the eastern side of the lake.

An overcast day added to the comfort of the climbers, at the same time giving a quiet panorama of continuous mountain outlines.

Fellows of all ages and interests at the foot of a mountain become of one age and desire, and sensitivity to the harmony of the green woods and gray slopes evokes the finest values in people as they go out together. To each his own delight, whether it was an awareness of the closeness and abundance of scarlet tangers to one resting on the trail, the relation of plant life to its surroundings, a small child's joy, or the final emergence of the summit, with its broad rocky top and fringes of graceful white cinquefoil, inviting rest and refreshment, or the exciting discovery on the down trail of a very rare orchid.

To those interested in plants this partial list may be useful:

Pinus resinosa, Vaccinium pensylvanicum, Pyrola rotundifolia, Viburnum acerifolia, Sasparilla nudiflora, Aspidium marginale, Cornus cirnata, Arctostaphylos, Diervilla lonicera, Woodsia ilvensis, Houstonia caerulea, Vaccinium canadensis, Rosa blanda, Gaultheria procumbens, Myosotis stricta, Lysimachia quadrifolia, Vicia tetrasperma, Corydalis sempervirens, Spiraea latifolia, Comandra umbellata, Viola fimbriatula and Liparis liliaefolia.

THE CALL OF THE TRAIL

They've inveigled me back, and they've taken my pack;
They've encircled my neck with a collar;
With my bald plateau in a modish
chapeau
I trail the elusive dollar,
For the spell of the town has settled me down
To the grind of the old treadmill,
But - the days and the nights on the mountain heights !
Their spell is upon me still.
Now I've panted and pawed at a mountain's facade
Till my hob-nails began to perspire
And wet and profane in a mist or a rain
I've shivered a draft for the fire.
With a thirty-pound pack on a desk-ruined back,
I've skidded on slippery rocks;
I've twisted my pins, put dents
in my shins,
Kicked porcupine quills through my socks.

But I've knelt at her shrine, been warmed by her wine,
And kissed by her quickening chill;
I'm a faithful knight of the Mountain Sprite,
And her spell is upon me still.
So never you weep, Green Mountain
Bo-Peep,
Like the sheep, next summer will find me
Beating it back by the Long Trail track,
A-trotting my pack behind me.

Lew Evans

The above was taken from the December 1924 issue of THE GREEN MOUNTAIN NEWS. The next year, 1925 that paper changed its name to THE LONG TRAIL NEWS.

We don't know Mr. Evans but we like his poem and feel that the sentiments he expressed in 1924 are applicable in 1955.

COMING EVENTS
by
Betty Ball

Time - Sun., July 31 - 10 A.M.
Place - C.V. Camp, Chittenden

Here's a chance to relax, swim, boat, picnic, and thoroughly enjoy a lazy, sociable day at the C.V. Camp with Eleanor Walkee in charge. Anyone who feels very energetic can climb to The Long Trail beyond Chittenden Dam or to Mt. Carmel.

We will leave from Meldon School as usual but join us at the camp any time if you prefer.

Time - Sat., Aug. 13 - 8 A.M.
Place - Lake George - Steamer Trip.

We were so impressed with beautiful Lake George on the Buck Mt. trip that we thought another trip in this area would be nice. A steamer trip on a hot summer day sounded good.

The steamer leaves the town of Lake George at 10:40 A.M. and returns at 4 P.M. The price is $3 the round trip with half price for children 5 to 12 yrs. old and children under 5 yrs., free. Most of us will take picnic lunches to eat on the boat. There is a chance for a swim at the Park beach at Lake George after the return.

This outing is an innovation on our schedule and affords a good opportunity for hikers and non-hikers to enjoy a pleasant day together.

KILLINGTON SECTION TO STAFF
GMC BOOTH AT FAIR

The Publicity Committee of our main club has decided to sponsor a GMC booth at the Rutland Fair this year. We often receive reports that many people - even right here in Rutland - have never heard of GMC and The Long Trail! It is hoped that this booth at the Fair will be a step toward changing this situation. Killington Section has agreed to arrange a display and to staff this booth. Mary Perkins has been appointed as chairman of the project.

If a number of people will each assist a little in this activity the burden on anyone will be very light. Have you a day or a half-day during Fair week which you would be willing to donate? Mary would appreciate it if you would call her (Tel. 3-7954) and arrange for a time to be 'on duty'.

We hope this will prove to be a worthwhile activity for GMC and we know it will be an interesting experience for those who participate.

BOARD MEETING HELD

A meeting of the Ex. Board was held Wednesday evening, June 29, at Craigie Perkins' home.

The first item of business was the adoption of the new Outing Schedule as planned by Outing Ch., Betty Ball.

Methods of acquiring slides to start our recently planned Killington Section collection was discussed with Photography Ch., Jan Catozzi. Jan feels that there is plenty of material available and it is largely a matter of contacting members having slides and making selections.

Plans for the Fair booth to be sponsored by the main club and planned and staffed by Killington Section were discussed.

Possible solutions for the problem of The Trail crossing of Mill River at the Gorge were considered but no conclusion was reached. This is a real problem and practical suggestions to aid in its solution would be heartily welcomed.

We missed the several board members who were unable to be present for various good reasons and appreciated the attendance and suggestions of those who could come.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Edith Ewald went out to Estes Park for a National Conference and reports that "it is an interesting setting for anything one may want to do." The card received showed the highest point on the Trail Ridge Road, Rocky Mt. National Park, Colorado - elevation 12,133 ft!

Charles and Patty Sabourin with daughter, Mary Pat, are expected to arrive in Rutland on Saturday for a vacation. They are driving east from their home in Decatur, Illinois.

Word has been received that the Bob Perkins family have arrived at their new location, Los Angeles, California.

YOUR NEW OUTING SCHEDULES ARE ENCLOSED WITH THIS ISSUE.

LITTLE ROCK POND

Saturday, June 25th, was an ideal day for the Little Rock Pond outing. Arrived at Heldon School for the 'take-off', we were pleased to find four friends from the Glens Falls ADK group on hand to accompany us.

After a pleasant, scenic drive via Danby and Mt. Tabor, we left our cars at the usual spot, where The Long Trail leaves the highway, and were soon enjoying the cool, winding path along the brook which leads to Little Rock Pond. Although we missed the profusion of wild-flower blossoms which can usually be found along here earlier in the season, this is always a pleasant, easy trail, well lined with ferns and woods greens of various kinds and including several attractive brook crossings.

Arrived at Little Rock Pond we found two campers on a hiking vacation who had come through from the Long Trail Lodge. They had done a re-building job on the outdoor fireplace and everything in and around the camp was in excellent condition. Although they reported the need for work on some parts of our Trail, they seemed to be enjoying their vacation.

After lunch one of our junior members took a swim in the pond but the rest of us were well content with a sunning on the rocks.

We left, reluctantly, late in the afternoon, taking the trail around the other side of the pond on our return trip. On our way out we met a party of five coming in, apparently equipped for at least an overnight stay.

Little Rock Pond is a deservedly popular spot and no hiking season is quite complete without a visit to it.

July Fourth Week End

This year was the fourth in the Killington Section's Independence Day series of hikes on The Long Trail.

On Friday afternoon four of us went into camp at the State Camp Ground in Smugglers Notch.

After the tents were set up, we had supper, then decided to hike that portion of the Trail that follows the highway in the Notch.

Saturday morning Ray Catozzi pulled in early in his new station wagon. As soon as we got organized we started south on The Long Trail from where it leaves the highway. The Trail was good and the grade moderate. When we reached Taft Lodge we met three Killington Sectionettes who had been birding the mountain top.

From Taft we climbed the Chin of Mansfield and met mists coming in from the west. It soon brought enough rain to soak the party thoroughly. Worst of all, there was only one brief view enjoyed just before we reached the top of the Lift. This was an easy day.

On Sunday morning we took the Chair Lift back up the Mountain to continue on The Trail from where we left off the night before. It was a bright, warm day at the Camp Ground but at the top of the Lift it was twenty degrees cooler, with mist again that persisted until we reached Butler Lodge. There we had lunch.

The Trail from Butler to Taylor was freshly cleared, (Thank you, Roy), Taylor, situated on the edge of a cliff overlooking Lake Mansfield, is one of the sightliest camps on The Trail. No trouble at all getting down to the Trout Club and the cars we had parked there the night before.

Monday was the big day. We hit the approach trail from the Trout Club at eight o'clock and didn't come out at the Winooski River till six fifteen.

Right after leaving Taylor we began to run into many blow-downs left by last year's hurricanes. After the top of Mayo was passed the Trail was better but very bushy with few blazes. We didn't mind the climb too much and there were several good lookouts.

The new Puffer Lodge is still under construction but usable, and has a very good location. We had lunch here.

From the top of Belton Mountain at elevation 3725 we began the long, long down grade to the Winooski at elevation 342. A few more blow-downs and we finally reached the upper end of a good lumber road that leads out to civilization. For several miles this road follows Joiner Brook with many good swimming and fishing spots.

This day we covered twelve and one half miles but everybody arrived in very good condition.

And right ahead of us stood Camel's Hump just waiting for our Independence Day hike next year.

A REMINDER

The big GMC Intersectional is coming August 20th and 21st. It is to be held at a campsite in Danby, Vermont.

Look for complete details in your August issue of LONG TRAIL NEWS.

An interesting camping and hiking program has been planned so why not save those dates for this important Club activity.

We hope for a big showing of Killington Section members. If you can't attend for the two days, come for as long as you can. You'll be welcome.

THE STORY OF THE LITTLE STOVE THAT WENT TO KILLINGTON

I was born in Tennessee. I was put in a crate and dumped in a big red box with a lot of other crates and bags and boxes. For a long time the big red box shook me and banged me around. Then they opened the door and put me in a smaller green box that went faster and smelled worse. Soon I was unloaded onto a concrete floor.

Some jerk with a hammer and wrench came and took off my crate. He then loosened a few bolts here and there, and suddenly I collapsed into a pile of sixty-five pieces.

After a few days some men came with sacks and put some of me in each one. We rode for a while and then the men started to walk with me on their backs. I wonder why we went so slowly?

After hours and hours I was dumped out again on a stone floor, and the men said "Whew!" and "Gosh!" etc.

Then they tried to put me together again. The men did a lot of talking and all of them said they knew just how to do it, but I don't think they were very smart at all. After a long time and much banging, I was declared to be ready for use.

Just let me describe myself briefly. I am just like a regular cook stove only smaller. I have four griddles and an oven with two doors. My friends tell me I am not at all bad looking. I am a good heater and a very good cook.

You should come up and see me some time before some chowder head kicks me in the fire box.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Today there are 28 National Parks and 85 National Monuments.

They have become a necessity to the American way of life and have become more and more precious to the American people. In spite of this, their custodian, the Congress of the United States is sadly neglecting them.

In recent years Congress has made about $30 million available annually to the National Park Service. Last year 48 million people visited our Parks and Monuments. The amount of money allowed to service this project comes to less than one dollar per visitor of the areas discussed. This is not enough to keep the facilities of the parks in good repair, or pay for enough rangers to properly supervise them and insure the comfort and safety of the tourists. So lacking in manpower is the Service that it is estimated that at least $500,000 is lost annually because there are not enough rangers to man fee-collecting points on a full time basis.

Buildings and grounds in many of the parks are deteriorating, roads are falling into disrepair, utilities are inadequate, and sanitary conditions are sometimes appalling. Recently the Public Health Service has threatened to close Yosemite because of substandard sewage.

Is it the plan of Congress to let the National Parks and Monuments deteriorate so far that Mr. and Mrs. America could no longer use them and they (the parks) could then be sold to private enterprise?

These lands were to be protected for all time so that future generations of Americans could enjoy them. Today because of lack of proper supervision they are being vandalized and in some places stripped of their treasures. Souvenir hunters carry off unusual rock formations, chip off pieces of stalagmite from caves, and even carve their names on Indian pictographs.

Something should be done about all this. It's up to Mr. and Mrs. Citizen.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sat. & Sun. Aug. 20 - 21
Place - Danby - Intersectional

Consult your recent LONG TRAIL NEWS for details on this. As you will find there, a number of interesting activities are being planned. This is an opportunity to take part in any of these which interest you as well as a chance to meet and exchange Trail news with members from other Sections. The Saturday night Campfire is a highlight of these meetings. When the count from 'Sections represented' is taken let's have the Killington number well toward the top of the list.

Time - Sat., Sept. 4 - 9:30 A.M.
Place - Perkins Camp - Mendon

The special purpose of this outing is to collect and arrange greens in the booth which GMC is sponsoring at the Rutland Fair.

We will meet at Meldon School as usual and proceed to Camp where we will collect the needed greens. After a picnic lunch, to be eaten at Camp, the plan is to take our greens to the Fairgrounds and arrange them as a background for our booth.

Bring your lunch and join us for any part of this activity. The Club will supply coffee, as usual. This outing should be a good combination of work and fun.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Last month in SMOKE & BLAZES we stated that the problem of the crossing of Mill River at Clarendon Gorge was unsolved and said suggestions would be welcomed.

Imagine our delight when someone came forward with a suggestion and volunteered to carry it out!

Emile Boselli has drawn a detailed plan and figured requirements for building a suspension bridge. A Board meeting was called to consider the idea and he was authorized to go ahead with it.

This may sound easy but it is a big job running to about $300 for materials and an enormous amount of labor. Emile has volunteered to supply most of the labor, but he will need a few hands occasionally. It is up to Killington Section to supply the funds.

We can all help in some way on this worthwhile project. Let's get set to respond to the call for assistance when it comes.

PERSONNEL FOR FAIR BOOTH

Plans for the GMC booth at the Fair are going forward. Chairman, Mary Perkins, has the following people signed up to take a turn at being in attendance: Ruth Fostman, Betty Ball, Eleanor Walker, Janet Martin, Leone Smith, and Craigue and Vera Perkins.

Drop in and visit us when you are on the grounds.

NOW IS THE TIME

Now is the time to start seriously collecting material for our annual Rummage Sale. The proceeds this year will be especially ear-marked for our new bridge project.

Don't stop with assembling material from your own closets, cupboards, attics, and cellars. Call your relatives, friends, and neighbors, and get your word in early for some of their discards.

Remember, there will probably be the usual crop of fall Rummage Sales. 'Let's get there firstest with the mostest'.

C.V. CAMP - CHITTENDEN

An outstanding feature of this outing since it first appeared on our schedule in July 1952, has been the perfect weather for such an event which we have had each time. This year proved no exception and the tradition still held good.

Sunday, July 31st was hot and sunny. We were glad to reach the Pond where a good breeze kept the porches cool, while the water was just right for swimming, as the early arrivals at once discovered.

New arrivals for lunch and in the early afternoon swelled our original small number somewhat, but we were amazed that more people did not avail themselves of this opportunity.

The afternoon passed quickly with swimming, boating, and the 'rocking chair' sport of comparing the relative merits of the HERALD TRIBUNE vs THE TIMES - especially the advertisements.

Some left in the late afternoon while others stayed on for a picnic supper. As we returned to the heat of town we were more appreciative than ever of our pleasant day at Chittenden Pond. Too bad you missed it!

SAVE THESE DATES

September 17, and October 1 and 15 are the dates for our annual fall series-hikes, covering a consecutive section of The Long Trail.

The idea of this series originated in 1951 when Outing Ch., Charlotte Rutkowski (now Keenan) scheduled a series of three hikes covering the entire Killington Section.

Since that time these hikes have been arranged alternately north and south of our section. We have several members who have achieved 100 % attendance and so have hiked The Trail from Boyce Shelter, north of Middlebury Gap, to Mad Tom Shelter, about 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ mi. north of the Manchester - Peru road. This is a Trail distance of 76.3 mi. (Bet you didn't know you'd walked that far!). The actual mileage travelled is more because of approach trails used. This just goes to show what can be accomplished by a regular, scheduled activity.

This year's series will cover from Mad Tom to The Grout Job, adding a Trail distance of 21.9 miles.

These are all Saturday hikes, so planned to enable us to make the desirable early starts. You will get more details on the individual hikes in the next issue, but this will serve as an advance reminder so you can save the dates. If you missed the others, start now.

NO BOAT TRIP

The rain on Saturday, Aug. 13th, probably brought on by CONNIE, forced the cancellation of the Lake George Steamer trip. We had looked forward to this outing which was a new feature on our schedule and were disappointed that it had to be given up. We hope this trip will be scheduled again next summer.

SPECIAL BOARD MEETING HELD

A special meeting of the Executive Board was held Monday evening, August 8th.

This meeting was called primarily to consider the proposed Gorge bridge over Mill River. This project was adopted.

Craigie Perkins reported a recent trip to Killington to set window glass, and a trip over The Trail from Clarendon Gorge to Sunnyside. This piece of trail had been reported as in very bad condition. Craigie stated that there were several blowdowns and the trail needed brushing out, but it was in passable shape.

Shelter Ch., Jack Martin, reported a recent visit to Clarendon Lodge.

Other matters considered were use of the Section's leaflet, YOU'D BE INTERESTED, and plans for the completion of Sunnyside this fall.

The good attendance at this meeting was very much appreciated. Only Vice Pres., Bill Allard, was missing. Bill works nights this summer so his absence was unavoidable.

TRY THIS ONE

We were told the other day that Maidenhair fern could be picked, flattened out between the pages of a heavy magazine or book, placed in the attic or some other dry place and forgotten about until sometime next winter when a little green for a bouquet would be most welcome. Then, so the story goes, you may get out your Maidenhair fern, put it in water and watch it plump up to practically its natural state.

This would be quite easy to test out. Why doesn't someone try it and let us know the result?

A BIT ABOUT BIRCHES

We seem to remember that sometimes on a hike there has been some discussion as to whether a certain tree was a white birch or a gray birch.

The other day we came across this simple means of identification. It seems that the shape of the leaves is quite different. The base line of the white birch leaf curves away on each side from the stem, while the gray birch leaf has a triangular outline with the stalk in the middle of a flat base line.

WHITE

LEAF

If you are still in doubt after examining the leaf, rub your hand over the bark. The white birch will leave a white, powdery, substance on your hand.

Let's check on this sometimes when we are in the woods. It might be that many of the trees we've been calling white birch are really gray birch.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

This is the season when the fields and roadsides are bright with late summer and early fall wildflowers. The names of many of these are familiar to us but perhaps less well known is the interesting derivation of some of these common names.

A little browsing in a most interesting book, John Kieran's, AN INTRODUCTION TO NATURE, yielded the following interesting theories on name origins.

JOE-PYE WEED

Joe Pye was supposed to have been an Indian Medicine Man who became friendly with the early colonists in Massachusetts and cured various of their ills with this plant.

GENTIAN

Named for King Gentius of Illyria, (now known as Albania and Yugoslavia). He reigned in the 2nd Century B.C. and is recorded in herbal history as the original discoverer of the medicinal value of these plants.

Most of us know these attractive blue flowers, both the Bottled or Closed and the Fringed Gentian, although we don't run onto them in the woods as often as we would like.

SNAKEROOT

This name comes from the old belief that an infusion made from the root of the plant was a cure for the ill effects of a poisonous snake bite.

BONESET (THOROUGHWORT)

About this one Mr. Kieran points out that the leaves are completely joined at the base and the stem appears to grow right through the leaves. The name THOROUGHWORT appears to apply to this habit of the stem growing 'thorough' or 'through the leaf'. Of the name BONESET there are various explanations. One was that herb doctors believed that plants with united leaves would aid in uniting fractured bones. Another was that infusions from these leaves were supposed to be good for the 'break-bone' fever of warm climates. At any rate 'Boneset tea' made from these leaves, dried, was a standard home remedy for colds and fevers in New England in olden times.

GERARDIAS

Named for John Gerard, a great English botanist who published his famous HERBALL or GENERAL HISTORIE OF PLANTS back in 1597, and included in it such helpful hints as that the juice of an onion rubbed on a bald head in the sun, 'bringeth the hair again very speedily', and the juice of the Daisy, 'given to little dogs with milke, keepeth them from growing great'."

LOOSESTRIPE

"Creatures fed on these plants would 'lose strife' and become peaceful. It was fed to yokes of oxen to make them work in harmony."

SOAPWORT (BOUNCING BET)

A lather can be made from the leaves of this one if crushed in water. In rural England in olden times it was used for washing.

FIREWEED - so named because it springs up on land which has been burned over and MILKWEED, named from the milky substance in the pods are familiar name origins.

This is only a small sampling of the interesting material to be found in this book and we recommend it to anyone who would like to become better acquainted with some of the common birds, flowers, and trees.

LONG TRAIL SERIES HIKES

by
Betty Ball

Time - Saturdays, Sept. 17
Oct. 1
Oct. 15

Place - The Long Trail - Grout
Job to Mad Tom Shelter

Again we will pace off another 22 miles of The Long Trail, most of it new to us, to make us nearer to becoming End-to-Enders. This fall's hikes will bring us well down toward the Massachusetts line. We hope some Bennington Section members will be able to join us.

SATURDAY - SEPT. 17 - 7:00 A.M.

This one needs an early start, since it's a long trip, about thirteen miles, but it's easy grade all the way. The first part to Stratton Pond is an old favorite, but the hike on to Bourne Pond, and Prospect Rock will be new. At Prospect Rock we'll get a fine view.

Since this is such a full day's trip it seemed best not to plan a long enough lunch stop to make coffee, so bring your thermo for your lunchtime beverage.

SATURDAY - OCT. 1 - 8:00 A.M.

This hike will be shorter, about 7½ miles, and should be a beautiful one. We follow a brook, then ascend Spruce Peak, descending to Prospect Rock again, and out to Manchester Depot. Fall foliage should be good so bring your cameras.

SATURDAY - OCT. 15 - 8:30 A.M.

Here's an easy one, only 5½ miles, but it includes Bromley Mt. We'll start at Mad Tom Shelter and come out on Route 11. Best view will be about a half-mile the other side of Bromley.

BRIDGE PROJECT STARTED

Emile Boselli wasted no time in getting started on the suspension bridge over Mill River at "the Gorge", and has already completed the first steps in its construction. Hikers who have had to wade the river this summer will be glad to hear this.

SECOND REMINDER

Time for the RUMAGE SALE is drawing near. We need an especially successful sale this year to aid in financing the Bridge Project. What we want is a big supply of things to sell - we always have plenty of customers. We're depending on each of you to furnish our stock.

The date and final details will be in the October SMOKE & BLAZES, but don't wait for that. Start collecting now and keep at it. We need everyone's help.

THE FAIR BOOTH PROJECT

The September 3rd hike to gather branches for trimming the GMC booth at the Fair brought out twelve members and junior members. The weather was perfect and one group ate lunch in the woods while the other ate at camp. The actual gathering of the spruce bows was very easy with so much help.

About two o'clock all hands went to the Fair Grounds and set up the booth. In no time at all the plywood was hung, map put up, pictures displayed and tables and chairs in place.

Boys from Camp Sangamon in Pittsford had made a model of a lean-to that resembled the ones found on the Long Trail. This model was placed on a card table and added just the right touch of atmosphere to the booth.

Sunday afternoon the booth was opened up for the benefit of people roaming the grounds, and to develop a spiel for use the rest of the week.

During the week the following took turns manning the booth: Mary and Vera Perkins, Ruth Fostman, Leone Smith, Betty Ball, Janet Martin, and Craigie Perkins. Distribution was made of 800 flyers, 200 Long Trail Newses, 200 Short Trips folders, and 6 Guide Books. The latter were sold and the others given out with discretion.

The six feet high map of Vermont was the big attraction. The Long Trail and all shelters were clearly shown. About 300 separate parties were lured into the booth and given the story of the Trail and the Club.

The aluminum cook-kit, donated by Mrs. Lillian Lodge of the New York Section, was offered as the prize in a contest. The contestant had to give the correct answers to three true-or-false questions about the Trail and the mountains. Then he estimated the weight of a light pack.

About 1000 questions were asked during the week, of about 500 contestants. 124 got their questions answered correctly, and Frank H. Kingsley Jr. of Whitehall, New York guessed 19 lbs. and 8 oz. on the weight of the pack which was exactly right. 110 guessers were high and only 13 low, which confirms the suspicion long held that the scales don't tell the truth about packs. Patty Claypool made the best guess of any Rutlander. The asking of questions kept people in the booth much of the time and that made other people stop to see what was going on.

The booth was located next to the Vermont and Federal Forest booths which were manned by representatives of those services. This gave an excellent opportunity to discuss many problems with them at leisure.

Leone Smith spoke over WGY and told about the GMC one noon-time at the invitation of the station. That sort of thing can't be bought.

A school teacher asked for folders for the use of her class studying about Vermont. She plans to have the slide collection at a PTA meeting.

Representatives of a hotel and three motels learned of the Trail as an attraction for their guests.

A surprising number of young people told us what parts of the Trail they had travelled. We suspect most of them never knew before how the Trail was maintained.

Last but not least, many old friends of the Club came in to say "Hello" and find out what was new.

Too bad we didn't have a recording machine in the booth. Here are some of the remarks made:

"What ! Ya hafta walk ?"

"Yeah, I helped build all them shelters."

"But couldn't a bear come right in?"

"Mister, if you want to catch a nice mess of trout just come up to ----- and ask for-----. Don't bring your boots 'cause they won't do any good. You'll be in mud up to your hips and water to your neck. Other folks turn back when it gets muddy but I don't, see?"

"Do you know where a man can rent a burro?"

"----- and this timber wolf jumped right on my boy's back."

"Where can I get a map like that?"

"I could hike the whole Trail in two weeks easy."

"What do you take with you?"

"Look, I live right there!"

"I carved this sword. Haven't got the teeth done yet. Figured I might as well be whittling as wasting my time."

"Good morning, we want you to know more about the Long Trail and the Green Mountain Club."

This last was repeated about 1000 times at least.

REPORT OF THE INTERSECTIONAL

Though August 20th and 21st were two of the hottest days we had this summer, 58 people attended the Intersectional held in the Danby-Mt Tabor area.

Fifteen of this number were from the Killington Section. We had hoped Killington would be represented by a larger number for this event is one of the Club's ways of uniting all the Sections into one big family.

The camping, the hiking, the campfire meeting, and the greeting of old friends all added up to an enjoyable week end.

Details will be written up in the Nov. LONG TRAIL NEWS.

NEW JUNIOR MEMBERS

We are very glad to welcome 29 new Junior members into the Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club. We hope they along with our other junior members will get to know and enjoy our Club.

The following is the list of new members:

Richard Belcher
David Booraem
William Cleland
Gerald Coutts
Ronald Da'nillian
Richard Foltz
Charles Colovin
Robert Green
Thomas Hackett
Edward Hirst, Jr.

HONESTY ON THE TRAIL

We are happy to report that honesty on the Trail prevails. During the past summer several valuable articles have been lost on the Trail, found by other hikers, and returned to the owners.

Now if we can educate all hikers to treat GMC shelters with due respect, we might say that we are on the road to an ideal situation.

EQUINOX BY CAR

In view of the fact, that there are many hikers who for one reason or another sometime like to climb a mountain by car, let's take a trip up Equinox that way.

A short distance out of Manchester on route 7 there is a Toll House at the entrance of what is known as the Sky Line Drive to the top of Mt. Equinox. Toll-keepers are on hand to give information and sell you your ticket for the drive, which is $3.00 per car. You may have as many passengers in your car as you wish.

The six and one-half mile ride up the toll road is easy to take for the road is never less than 24 feet wide and in many places is much wider. There are several parking places along the way where marvelous views may be enjoyed.

From the Toll House to the summit the road climbs approximately 3,200 feet in a distance of $6\frac{1}{2}$ miles. This is a greater climb from entrance to summit than is made by any other toll road save one east of the Mississippi.

The story of how this road came to be made is interesting. Dr. J. G. Davidson, who has lived in California for many years, found something appealing about Vermont, its hills and valleys, and its people. In 1939 he bought a large tract of land on Mt. Equinox and later built a home in the gap known as Southeast Corners, at an elevation of 2,016 feet. He was obliged to improve the old wagon road in order to bring in materials for his house. After he was settled here, he often took a hike from his home in the gap up the rest of the mountain, 1800 feet to the top. One day he decided that a toll road could be built so that others, as well as himself, could enjoy the views from the summit. More land was acquired and in 1947 the road was finished from Route 7 to the top of Big Equinox, 3,816 feet above sea level.

At the summit there are fireplaces available for picnickers. There are also tables and benches and a fountain where clear, cool spring water may be obtained. Though there are no constant springs at or near the top, water is pumped from a never failing spring on the west side of the mountain through a pipe more than a mile long which rises vertically more than two thousand feet. The stream from this spring later on disappears into a cavern, the exit of which has never been discovered.

This trip would not be complete without a visit to Sky Line Inn so let's step inside and see a truly representative architectural model for plastic materials. Where ever plastics could be used, they were used.

The building houses a beautiful lounge, cocktail room, dining room, and guest rooms. Hotel service is maintained during the summer.

The hearths in front of the fireplaces in the dining room and lounge are of special interest. Many years ago it was a popular pastime to climb the mountain and carve one's name or initials in the soft rock that forms the summit. Many of the more legible carvings were cut out of the solid rock and used to build the hearths. The earliest inscription is dated 1776. The next one was carved 140 years ago by L. Brown in 1815. Most of the family names on the hearths are still well known in the Vermont valley.

At our Intersectional, when the thermometer registered close to 100, some smart folks took their mountain climbing by way of the Sky Line Drive to Equinox. They reported a grand day on top, while those of us who stayed below, sweated it out on the sun-baked camp grounds.

Next summer, when it's too hot to hike, climb Equinox by car.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sun., Oct. 30 - 10:30 A.M.
Place - Mad Tom Shelter to Route 11

Originally planned for Oct. 15th, this hike was rained out. Since it completed our fall series-hikes, we were anxious to get it in and so have re-scheduled it. The trip over the Appalachian Trail from Long Trail Lodge to Gifford Woods originally scheduled for this day will be given another date, possibly early in December.

We plan to leave Meldon School at 10:30 A.M. and have lunch at Mad Tom before starting the hike. This will give us ample time for the $5\frac{1}{2}$ miles to Route 11. This should be an interesting and not too difficult trip, so don't miss it.

Time - Saturday, Nov. 12
Place - Beechwood - Covered Dish
Supper

This is an earlier than usual date for our Covered Dish Supper, so planned to avoid a snowy road (we hope).

The house will be open anytime after 2 P.M. so that those who wish may enjoy an afternoon in the country and work up an appetite. Supper will be served at 6:30 P.M.

If you plan to be there for supper, please call Vera Perkins (3-2941) sometime during the week (before Sat. noon, please) and check on the number in your party and the food you are to bring. Remember to bring your own plate (we suggest a big one), cup, knife, fork, and spoon.

In the evening we hope to see some colored slides taken on recent trips by one of our members. In addition, if you have colored slides taken on The Trail in our section or on some of our outings, please bring them along. You might select 6 or 8 which you think would be good for a Killington Section collection. We will show as many of these as time permits and this will help Jan Catozzi to get our collection started.

You only have to be able to hike around the table and pick up your supper to be eligible for this one, so let's make it a representative get-together.

RUMMAGE SALE - FRIDAY, NOV. 4th

We now have our date for the Rummage Sale, Friday, Nov. 4th - 9 A.M. to 7 P.M. The place will be the Neighborhood Rooms, as usual, with the customary committee in charge.

We need a big supply of goods of all kinds: clothing, (children's and large sizes especially welcome), household equipment, kitchen ware, dishes, decorative nick-nacks, gadgets, toys, etc., etc. In fact you bring it and name it and we can sell it!

We will be at the Rooms from 9-5 on Thursday, Nov. 3rd to receive your donations. Please try and get things to us that day so that we can have them priced and ready for Friday. If you have material but no way to get it to us, call Craigie Perkins(3-7954), or Vera Perkins (3-2941) before Thursday morning, Nov. 3rd.

We will need some help in getting the material ready on Thursday and for the Sale Friday, especially when it first opens at 9 A.M. It will be much appreciated if anyone available to help will contact us and tell us what time they can give us.

Let's make this a real cooperative effort and put over a big Sale. Remember we're building that bridge and we need the money!

SUGGESTIONS WANTED

We are beginning to think about plans for Killington Section's Annual Meeting in January. What type of meeting would you like and what would you like for a program?

The Covered Dish Supper at Beechwood usually brings out a crowd so that seems like a good time to get some ideas. Be thinking it over and let us have your suggestions then.

GREETINGS RECEIVED

Jan and Jack Martin heard recently from Arnold Keuster, German exchange teacher in Ludlow last year. Arnold hiked with us frequently during his year here and sent greetings to the GMC group. He is now back in his former teaching position in Germany.

A VISIT TO A MASS. STATE PARK

After a lapse of a year the fall camping trip started 7 years ago by 4 GMCers was resumed this year.

Leaving Rutland on Oct. 10th we headed for Savoy Mt. State Park by way of the Mohawk Trail from Greenfield.

The foliage color was at its height and the roadside stands with their gorgeous arrangements of apples, pumpkins, squash, cabbages, and the like, vied with the hillsides in color display.

Dutton Pines State Park, a few miles north of Brattleboro, located in a beautiful grove of pines and as neat as the proverbial pin, proved an ideal place for our picnic lunch.

After enjoying the fine views from the Mohawk Trail as far as the East Summit we started in search of a campsite in Savoy Park.

A tour of what seemed like the whole 10,000 acres which the park contains did not disclose what seemed to us a desirable campsite, so we decided to try for something better. This we found at Windsor State Forest about 20 miles away.

This park is located on the Westfield River in a very attractive setting.

Our first concern was to get our tents set before dark and to forage for enough wood from the surrounding fireplaces to cook our supper. In a suprisingly short time this was done, and we were enjoying steak cooked over an open fire.

There followed two days of typical camp activities, loafing in the sun and exploring the nearby back roads by car and on foot.

When we broke camp on the third morning we all agreed this was the perfect type of relaxing vacation, and all at a minimum cost. Why not try it sometime?

FROM GOUT JOB TO PROSPECT ROCK

3

TWO WEEKS LATER

Early Saturday morning, September 17th, fourteen hikers from the Killington Section left Rutland in cars and rode to the Arlington Wardsboro road and the Gout Job. After getting cars located in the right place to be ready to take the hikers home at the end of the journey, we started out on the hike. It was a beautiful fall day and everyone was in a gay mood.

Though it was a twelve mile hike, we all agreed that it was an easy one, for there were no climbs, and the scenery was beautiful all along the way.

At Stratton Pond and Willis Ross Camp we stopped just long enough to see that everything was in good order. Walking along the Trail, following the shore line, we thought how remote and peaceful this spot was. Then, when we came to Bourn Pond, we found that here was another spot, wilder, and more remote than Stratton. We couldn't decide which of the two was the most beautiful.

We walked on after eating our lunch at Bourn Pond. There was little change in elevation as we continued over an old abandoned railroad grade, and finally reached the old Swezy Camp after passing the new Swezy under construction.

At Swezy we turned down an old road and followed it about a mile to Prospect Rock. The rock is high up over Downer Glen and gives wonderful views of Equinox Mountain, the Taconic range, Dorset Valley and the hills far to the north.

Another mile or so down to the cars and then the long ride home.

Twelve more miles were marked off the length of the Long Trail toward our End-to-Enders award.

With the foliage at its best, the weather still holding perfect, and the same crowd with a few additions, we started our hike this time on the Peru Road, Route 11, where the Trail crosses the highway. We came out at Prospect Rock.

This was a short one; only seven and one half miles. The highlights of this one were the view from Spruce Peak lookout, and the anticipation of more views when we would come out at Prospect Rock. Though Spruce Peak lookout is about 200 feet off the Trail, and a steep climb, it was well worth the effort involved.

Lunch was eaten beside the Trail. The coolness of fall was felt as soon as we stopped exercising so extra jackets were taken from knapsacks, dry spots for sitting down places were in demand, and a hot cup of tea tasted very good.

When we reached Prospect Rock again, we settled down to enjoy the view, for we had plenty of time.

Eventually all things come to an end, so it was with this, our hike. But it wasn't quite over yet. We had that rocky road to walk down to the cars! We noticed the difference in what our feet could take at the end of a seven mile hike in comparison to what they could take at the end of a twelve mile hike.

WORK PARTY

A party of two, Raymond Catozzi and Craigie Perkins, did some Trail clearing from Sunnyside north to the lookout. Some blowdowns were removed. There are more to be taken out, and beyond the lookout a paint job is needed on stakes or stones in the open field. For anyone not familiar with the Trail, this area is a difficult one.

"CAMPING AT KATAHDIN"

Under the above caption there was published in the June 1955 APPALACHIA an article describing a twelve day camping trip at Katahdin.

The party saw many kinds of game, and visited little frequented sections of the Park.

Illustrations include unusual photographs of moose near Russell Pond.

Reprints are available from the Appalachian Trail Conference at 25¢ each. The address is: 1916 Sunderland Place, N. W., Washington 6. D. C.

GUIDE BOOKS

Anyone contemplating a trip to Katahdin should purchase the new Guide to the Appalachian Trail in New England. This may also be obtained at the above address for $1.25.

GMC GUIDE BOOK

Our own new Guide Book will be out early in 1956. Barre Section members are assisting Gene Bamforth in typing copy.

Another interesting Guide book is : TENT CAMPER'S GUIDE TO NEW ENGLAND AND NEW YORK STATE CAMPING AREAS. by Don Parry, Rocky Hill, Conn. Outdoor Publishers - 1954 59 pages $1.00

This Guide lists over 150 camping areas. For each it gives condensed information on the location, the size of the area, the type of setting, the principal attractions, fees (if any), and the best seasons for camping.

WOMAN HIKES APPALACHIAN TRAIL

Hiking grandma, Emma Gatewood of Gallipolis, Ohio, is believed to be the only woman to have hiked the entire Appalachian Trail in one season.

The 67 year old woman completed 1,900 miles of rugged trail in 4½ months. She slept in the open or in lean-tos, wore dungarees and a lumberman's jacket and carried a 25 pound pack, including food and blanket.

We congratulate her on her success but wouldn't recommend her performance to anyone we know.

In the first place, she shouldn't have started out alone. In the second place, she wasn't equipped properly.

To accomplish what she did, seems almost beyond belief. Averaging 16 miles a day is more than a stunt at the age of 67.

"WHERE I GO I LEAVE NO SIGN"

This is an old Indian saying that should be adopted by all hikers. What a pleasure it is to walk over trails and find them as nature intended them to be.

On the other hand, when we find gum wrappers, paper cups, cigarette stubs, beer cans, orange peel and many other signs that tell us "trail hogs" have passed, how we wish the Indian saying had been put into practice.

Unfortunately, the majority of people are so in the habit of discarding "waste" in the street or out of car windows that they do it unconsciously in the woods.

The habit is so widespread that each and every person in the woods must be alert to be sure he or she is not an offender. This matter requires individual thought. It is just as easy to put gum wrappers into a pocket as it is to throw them on the ground. It requires very little effort to gather the remains of a lunch and either burn it up at the camp fire, or bundle it up to be taken home and burned. Try to practice : "Where I go, I leave no sign."

COMING EVENTS

by
Betty Ball

Time - Sun., Nov. 27 - 9:30 A.M.
Place - Blue Ridge Mountain

It looks as if there would be snow underfoot for this one, and probably not all the members will try the somewhat slippery climb. Those who hike to the top will snack a little there, but have more lunch and hot coffee on their return to the Perkins' Camp, about 2 P.M., so bring along two lunches, little and not so little. Those who merely hike near the Camp will eat there about noon.

This is wonderful hiking country with walks available to suit all tastes.

Time - Sat., Dec. 10 - 1:00 P.M.
Place - Gifford Woods by Appalachian Trail to Long Trail Lodge.

This was postponed from October 30th, when we caught up on our Long Trail series-hikes. It's a short jaunt so an afternoon should be enough. We will meet at Meldon as usual, after lunch and try this territory new to many of us. There will probably be a good bit of snow.

CARD PARTY IDEA

A new twist to the Card Party has been suggested. The idea is that we might have it some Wednesday evening in cooperation with the Community Club. In this way they would be providing a place and we in return would provide the refreshments and a door prize. The proceeds would be split 50-50.

If it is decided to do this the date of the Card Party would be changed from early December to sometime after the first of the year, as the Community Club programs are filled until then.

It seems as though this might be fun and advantageous to both groups.

Watch for a definite announcement on this in your December SMOKE & BLAZES. In the meantime if you have any suggestions let us hear from you.

BOARD MEETING TO BE HELD SOON

A Killington Section Board meeting will be held early in December to plan for our Annual Meeting. We have an idea or two but would welcome suggestions, especially as to what you would like for a program.

At this meeting we would also like to make some progress on getting our Killington Section slide collection started. If you have slides you think might be good for this please get them to Jan Catozzi by December 1st so that we may look them over at the Board meeting and select some to have duplicated. We have money in our Budget for this but need your help in order to use it!

MAD TOM TO ROUTE 11

We finally made it! It looked like a fair chance of clearing when we assembled at "Heldon School on Sunday, October 30th for a second attempt at completing our series-hikes. So, optimistic, as always, we started. Before we reached Manchester it was raining and the mountain tops were shrouded in clouds - it might clear tho! It was still raining when we reached the junction of The Long Trail and Route 11 where we would finish our hike. A general public opinion poll indicated that having come so far a second time we should not turn back. So, it was on to MadTom and lunch.

Although an open shelter, Mad Tom furnished enough protection for a comfortable lunch hour. With our dependable fire-man on the job, the fire soon won out over the rain even in a wet outdoor fireplace. Hot coffee and a good lunch fortified us well for five miles in the rain to Route 11.

The air was crisp but not too cold and with the woods protecting us from the wind it was not at all a bad trip. When we came out on the top of Bromley we had a few minutes to enjoy some quite rugged weather. The wind and fog were really sweeping across there.

At the new Bromley Lodge, a cozy closed shelter, part of the group lingered to allow time for the cars left at Mad Tom to be collected, while the drivers pushed on to Route 11 at once.

In spite of our best efforts it was impossible to time it exactly so the last group had a few minutes to wait at the highway for their transportation home. This was probably the most uncomfortable part of the trip.

All in all we found this bit of Trail a pleasant and easy stretch. Of course we were sorry to miss the views but the general feeling of the crowd was well expressed by one hiker who said, as he settled into the car for the drive home, "Well, I really enjoyed that, I don't know why!"

RUMMAGE SALE NETS $121.39

We are happy to report that our Rummage Sale was once again successful. The net proceeds exceeded even our most optimistic hopes.

Of course this would not have been possible without the support of our membership. We were very pleased with the response to our request in SMOKE & BLAZES for salable material. It was a big boost to our morale to get cooperation from such a large percent of the members for this Sectional Project. To all of you we say, "Thank you."

We say an extra "thank you" also to Ruth Postman, Isabel Hakens, "T" Valiquette, and Eleanor Walker, who helped on pricing, arranging, selling, and/or cleaning up.

This project continues to be a dependable money raiser so get that box ready and start a collection for next year right away. We expect the bridge will be completed by then but there is always something which needs doing.

STRAYED - ONE SPOON & FORK

Will those who attended the Beechwood Party please check their utensils for a spoon and fork which doesn't belong there.

If you find such get in touch with Maude Canty, she is minus them.

1956 MEMBERSHIP LIST STARTED!

Some dues for 1956 have been paid already, several new Junior members signed up at the Beechwood Party.

COVERED DISH SUPPER ET CETERA

On the contrary, that's about the only thing we didn't eat.

This year the annual Beechwood party was held about a month earlier than usual on account of some of our members can't keep between the fences when there is snow on the ground.

The weather was fine! Cloudy in the morning, clearing off warm and sunny. An argument started as to whether it was Indian Summer or not. Just then the Late Freight pulled in, and he said no, that was in October when a six-foot Siou tried to hitch a ride. It seems he thought we said "Indian Thumber." Honestly, some people!

About two-thirty the gang began to arrive by ones, twos, and sixes. They immediately divided into two groups called ----- well, different things by different people. To avoid hard feelings let's call them The Walkers and The Talkers.

The Talkers proceeded to talk and The Walkers proceeded to walk. One expedition got way up onto the Notch Road before the sun began to set. When they returned, The Talkers were talking.

Professor Joe Hadeka rang the school bell and gave us a quiz program, catch-as-catch-can. The Talkers, having talked themselves out, conversed.

In due time, somebody hollered "Come and get it." We all lined up to select our suppers from the dishes on the big table. Those near the end of the line didn't seem to be making much progress and it was discovered that the head of the line had been trapped by the gravitational field of the table and were rotating around it as satellites.

After this interesting situation had been adjusted, we got down to the serious business of trying to limit ourselves to a little of everything. There were plenty of main dishes and plenty of dessert at least for a while.

After supper the usual clean up crew got their usual work-out. (Something ought to be done about that.)

Miss Ewald entertained with a showing of slides taken on her recent trip to South America. We will have to put it on the hike schedule sometime soon. Very nice!

Emile Boselli and Jack Martin broke out some of their slides of past hikes. Why does everybody laugh? Jack is now working with a new filter he claims makes his subjects look twenty years younger. (Aw, go on. You're just sayin' that!)

Another good party, with some old and some new faces, but not on the same people.

Before we disbanded we asked the Late Freight why the Siou had to be six feet tall and he admitted that he didn't know exactly how tall he was, but said that he must have been more than a little brave.

Aren't we all?

WHAT ABOUT SUNNYSIDE?

We haven't heard anything about Sunnyside of late and have been thinking it must be time to close her in for the winter.

There are a few other little jobs up there that could be done at the same time.

If someone gets ambitious and gets a little work party together perhaps we could report in the next issue of SMOKE & BLAZES "mission completed."

HAPPY THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving is just around the corner so we take this opportunity to wish all our members and friends a happy day. Enjoy your turkey, eat and be merry, and don't count calories.

DIRECTOR OF VERMONT FOREST SERVICE HONORED

For the eighth consecutive year, The American Forestry Association bestowed Distinguished Service Awards on five deserving Americans who have made outstanding contributions toward the conservation of our natural renewable resources.

We are happy to quote from AMERICAN FORESTS magazine, Nov. issue, the following:

"Perry H. Merrill, Montpelier, Vermont - Award in the field of Public Servants. As state forester for Vermont for the past 25 years, Mr. Merrill has led in the development of the outstanding forestry and parks organization in that state.

"No state forester in history has given more generously of his own time, energy and money to the broad phases of forestry in his state and the nation than Mr. Merrill.

"In recognition of his services to Vermont, Middlebury College presented him an honorary Doctor of Science degree. His citation read in part.....'With sure skills and fundamental knowledge gained by patient study and practical experience, you are making a unique contribution to the welfare of our state.' "

The Public Servants award was given to Mr. Merrill by the American Forestry Association at their annual meeting held this year at Jacksonville, Fla.

A WILDERNESS CAMP

The day of luxury camps for children as well as adults is passing out of popularity in favor of wilderness camps. Much can be said of the rewards of wilderness camping for it is one of the most valuable and satisfying of all outdoor experiences. To begin with, it is a way of life different from the mechanical way of life of the average American. It is rugged, it is simple, and it is close to nature. The creature comforts are left at home and the wilderness camper never seems to miss them.

In New York State on Lake Chateaugay, there is such a camp called Tanager Lodge. At this camp, Mr. Fay Welch, who is the director, says he will have none of the fancy extras which are so prized in many camps these days; such as movies, tennis, exhibitions of fancy horsemanship etc. Nor does he offer cabins to the campers with livingrooms, running water, or flush toilets.

Even on chilly mornings, campers wash their faces kneeling on a rock in the lake, and use a latrine they themselves have dug.

This camp is not too easy to reach, and the director considers this a point in its favor. No motor road passes within many miles of Tanager Lodge. A small launch carries all passengers, supplies, and mail from the opposite shore, a good forty minutes away.

At this camp boys and girls learn to become good woodsmen and to know the basic skills of camping.

The program includes mountain climbing, nature lore, and canoeing as well as camping lore. Knowledge that was common even to small children in Davy Crockett's day, now has to be taught to all campers. For example, never pitch your tent under a dead tree, or one riddled with woodpecker holes, which might blow over on you in the night.

Mr. Welch and his wife make it their business to see that the boys and girls who come to their camp learn to take care of themselves in the woods, and do it with safety and enjoyment. They help city children to see the beauty of a sunset and the glory of the stars. Such rewards are not measured in $.

COMING EVENTS
by
Betty Ball

Time - Sat., Dec. 31 - 10:30 A.M.
Place - Tucker Lodge

Here's an old favorite at a new time - on the verge of the New Year. However, it's a luncheon at Tucker, and a short hike both ways, so anyone can make the trip and get home in time for New Year's Eve festivities. There may be enough snow for snowshoeing by then.

Time - Sun., Jan. 15 - 10:30 A.M.
Place - Clarendon Lodge

This short hike is perfect for winter weather. No matter how the wind doth blow, we are sheltered by evergreens, and the climbing keeps us warm. There is plenty of hiking country beyond the lodge for the energetic, and a comfortable place to warm up and relax for the not-so-energetic. We can make a loop by going up by the wood road, and coming back by The Long Trail.

CARD PARTY - JAN. 11

Wednesday evening, January 11, has been decided on for our GMC Card Party to be held in cooperation with the Community Club. This party is being planned not only in the hope of adding a bit to our treasury, but also that our members and friends may enjoy a pleasant, social evening together.

This is going to be a real party with refreshments, a small prize for the winner at each table, and a door prize! Playing will get underway by 8 P.M. Plan to play any game you wish - bridge, canasta, scrabble, bali, or what have you? Bring your own playing equipment - tables and chairs will be provided. The cost of all this will be 50¢ per person (plus some sandwiches which we will solicit from some of you).

To help in planning for refreshments we need a fairly accurate estimate of how many will be present. Accordingly, we want to contact each one of you to see how many tickets you will use. If each household will take its own tickets it will avoid duplication in count. You may combine any way you wish to make up tables for playing. Count in friends you are bringing with you who are not members with yours. It will help greatly if you will call one of the committee and report how many tickets you will use - we will get them to you. Or, you may get them from Eleanor Walker at the C.V. If we haven't heard from you by Jan. 6th, you'll hear from us! We don't want anyone to be skipped!

The committee from GMC includes:

Louise Adams (3-8694)
Cecile Campbell (3-8608)
Jan Catozzi (3-3006)
Jan Martin (3-8621)
Mary Perkins (3-7954)
Eleanor Walker (3-3251)
Vera Perkins (3-2941)

We would like to hear from others willing to help.

Let's all get together on this show the Community Club we're a live organization; make a little money; and have a lot of fun.

TENTATIVE ANNUAL MEETING PLANS

A supper meeting proved to be so successful in getting out an Annual Meeting crowd last year that we decided to try it again. This year we have arranged with Helen Koltonski to have our supper and meeting at Riverside. Miss Koltonski will serve us a supper for 75¢ per person. Some of us were there for a Community Club supper this fall and can assure you it will be good.

This meeting will be held early in February. There will be election of officers, of course, and an interesting program is being arranged.

Look for the exact date and final details in your January SMOKE AND BLAZES.

OUR HIKE TO BLUERIDGE

On November 27th we went up to the Perkins Camp. First we met at Meldon School at 9 A.M., filled up the cars and started off.

There were a few new hikers present and a couple of old ones who haven't been on the recent hikes.

When we got up to the Camp, we got all bundled up to start on our journey up the mountain. The people who went up the mountain were mostly children but a few adults did attempt the climb.

There was some snow on the ground along the way, and when we were on our last 300 yards we found about a half inch of snow.

When we reached the top, we went exploring among the trees. One of the girls said, "I never knew trees grew like that!" We never did either! While we stayed at the top, some sat and enjoyed the scenery, some ate, and others explored. After a while we got cold, hungry, and tired so we started back. We ran most of the way down and stopped at the Cascades for a drink of water and a rest. It didn't take long to get down off the mountain and back to Camp.

The first thing we did on reaching Camp was eat. We had a few little troubles like a girl didn't have a glass. Well, that was just a little trouble. Another girl burned her hotdogs.

After we ate, we went into the living room and played cards.

Betty Ball went up to the pond to listen for birds. I don't think she heard any though because by this time all the young folks were out doors having a loud and good time. Good and jolly Mr. Perkins was showing us how to do acrobatics. Boy! What a snappy man!

Well, around 5:15 P.M. we had to break up. We had a wonderful time and we are waiting for another occasion to do it again.

APPALACHIAN TRAIL HIKE

We missed the youngsters on this one. Joe Hadeka was the only Junior member present. Betty Ball, Eleanor Walker, Vera, Mary, and Craig Perkins made up the adult section of the party. Pokie, Betty's dog, also came along and had a grand time.

It was Saturday afternoon, December 10th, crowds of Christmas shoppers were pushing and shoving their way up to counters in city stores that were hot and stuffy. Confusion, frustration, and headaches prevailed while our little group reveled in the beauty of snow covered woods.

We left one car at Sherburne Pass and all drove over in a second car to Gifford Woods. On the trail, in these beautiful hard woods, we started our climb. The trail was well marked and easy to follow. There was no need to hurry as this was a short hike, only three miles, so we walked along at a leisurely gait, chatting and puffing as we climbed. The going under foot was fair to good. With only about four inches of snow on the ground, we had to watch our step in some places where rock crevices could prove disastrous.

After walking for some time in the hard woods, we finally entered the evergreen area. Here the branches were covered with snow and gave that fairy land affect. Of course this brought forth the question, "Are hard woods or soft woods more beautiful?" To this there was no answer for we all agreed it was a case of personal preference. On one point there was no hesitation: Oh, give us a mountain with trees that reach to the sky. A forest of spruce, of pine, or of hemlock. Or a mountain of maple, or birch, or of beech. But give us a mountain with trees.

SUNNYSIDE

On November 20th a work trip was made to Sunnyside Camp. It was found that some unknown friends had finished putting on the bunk boards.

A grate has been installed in the stove. It wasn't the right one, but no matter. The stove pipe was firmly set up.

After lunch, the big doors were fixed for winter so that only one can be opened. The spaces between the top plate and the roof boards between the rafters were filled in with cardboard to keep out the wind.

The next job is to put up the rest of the wall board.

Janet and Jack Martin and Craigie Perkins were the workers.

SLIDES TO BE SHOWN

On Thursday, Dec. 29th at 7:30 P.M. the GMC slide collection will be shown at the Madison St. Recreation Building.

It has occurred to us that the parents of the young people who have been coming on hikes with us might like to know "what it's all about." We are sending out letters to several inviting them to be present. Of course, anyone else who wants to come will be very welcome. Probably the slides won't be shown in Rutland again this year so why not invite some of your friends to see them? There is no admission charge of course.

We hope to have somebody tell about the Club and how it operates, and answer any questions that my come up.

In arranging for the use of the hall, it was discovered that the Rutland Recreation Department had never heard of the Green Mountain Club. That has been corrected, but there are too many others. We must have better publicity-----to gain new members-----to provide more manpower-----to maintain our trails and shelters in better condition-----which will result in better publicity etc.

So let's see what we can do about getting some new people out to see the slides on Dec. 29th.

HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

Dan Jennings Jr. will be home for Christmas from California where he is on duty for Uncle Sam.

Michael Jennings returns for the holidays from Illinois. William Allard Jr. and Marjorie Allard will be home from their studies in Burlington, Vt.

Charles Sabourin and family have returned from Decatur, Ill. to work and reside in Rutland permanently. Welcome back folks !

7 NOMINATING COMMITTEE APPOINTED

The following committee has been appointed to bring in a slate of officers for 1956; George Conlon, chairman, Ray Catozzi, and Ruth Postman. This committee will report at the annual meeting of Killington Section.

...G.M.C. TO BE ADVERTISED IN NEW YORK

Ray Catozzi has recently completed a most attractive poster for the publicity committee of the main GMC. Beginning in the spring this poster will be on display in the Vermont Development Commission's office in New York.

This poster is worked out on a background with a wood grain effect and is titled WALK IN THE WILDERNESS. An outline map of Vermont, filled in in green, has The Long Trail clearly dotted throughout its length. The immediate foreground shows a replica of the characteristic Long Trail sign, used at all points where The Trail crosses a highway. A mountain skyline and evergreen trees in silhouette form a most effective background. The location of Rutland as the headquarters office of GMC is shown.

This poster will be a fine addition to the Development Commission's New York display and should arouse interest in GMC and The Long Trail.

LET'S TALK ABOUT CHRISTMAS

Have you ever wondered, as you were trimming your Christmas tree or writing your Christmas cards, where these customs began? We recently read an article which gave some interesting sidelights on the origin of some of these.

The Christmas tree itself is believed to be a survival of the Tree Worship of early German tribes. St. Boniface urged his converts in 8th Century Germany to take the pine tree which he said, "pointed straight up to the Christ Child", into their homes at Christmas time. Martin Luther was the first to put lighted candles on a little fir tree for his children. The Christmas Tree first appeared in this country during the Revolution when Hessian soldiers trimmed a tree. Now more Christmas trees are used in the United States than in any other country. Since 1941 the National Christmas Tree has been a giant spruce on the south lawn of the White House grounds.

As for Christmas cards, this idea originated in England. It developed from the custom of school children writing "Christmas Pieces" to show their originality and penmanship. In 1846 one Henry Cole sent the first Christmas greeting to friends on calling cards, hand-painted with a spray of holly or mistletoe. The next year as an experiment a publisher printed 1000 cards and sold them all. The year 1952 marked the 100th anniversary of the Christmas card in this country. Although Christmas cards have now become "big business", many people make their own and they still fulfill their original purpose of carrying a friendly greeting to friends.

These are but two of the many familiar Christmas customs. Whatever ever their origins these customs have become a part of our traditional Christmas celebration and as such contribute toward making Christmas the most special season of the year. A time when, to quote from a children's play, "Everyone feels good from the inside out."

COMING EVENTS

by
Betty Ball

Time - Sat., Jan, 28 - 10 A.M.
Place - Sunnyside Camp

Come and see the completed Sunnyside. Plenty of uphill exercise guaranteed and probably a chance of snowshoeing. This is a snug shelter now, with a good chance to warm up if the weather is frosty, and it's a comparatively short hike, so good for winter. If it's a nice day, clearing up of brush etc., around the outside will be in order.

ANNUAL MEETING OF KILLINGTON SECTION - FEB. 9

Plans are pretty well completed for our Annual Meeting, Thursday evening, February 9th.

As we announced earlier, we will try a supper meeting again this year. This time there will be no work for members involved, as we have arranged with Miss Helen Koltonski to put on our supper for us at Riverside. Supper will be served at 6:30 P.M. and the price will be 75¢ per person. We must have reservations for the supper as Miss Koltonski has to know the number to prepare for. Accordingly, a return postcard will be mailed to each household about Feb. 1st. When you receive this PLEASE fill in the number of reservations and return by the date requested. If you plan to come to supper, make a reservation. If something comes up unexpectedly to prevent your coming, call Eleanor Walker (3-3251) and cancel.

After supper we will have our usual business meeting with brief reports from the various committees, election of officers, and a discussion of plans for the coming year.

For our entertainment program we hope to have Mr. Lucius Carey, one of our Adirondack Club friends from Glend Falls, show us some colored slides from his collection.

Sometime along during the evening we plan to slip in a little quiz to test your knowledge of GMC, The Long Trail and the Green Mts. This will all be in fun, (you'll score your own papers), but just to add a little incentive we'll award a small prize to the high scorer.

Some of us don't hike, some of us don't play cards, but we all eat, so let's have a record attendance at supper and the meeting following. Seriously though, if it isn't convenient to come to supper, come to the meeting anyway - this will probably get underway about 7:30. We would be glad to have anyone interested, or anyone who might become interested, in GMC attend the supper and/or the meeting. So why not hunt up a few such and bring them along with you?

This supper and meeting will be a pleasant, social evening, and it's a chance to get better acquainted with each other and with the activities of GMC.

TUCKER LODGE

by
Joe Hadeka

On December 31st we left Meldon School with a party of six to snowshoe in to Tucker Lodge. We soon discovered, however, that snowshoes were out of the question. Leaving our cabs at the Pico Ski Area parking lot, we started off. The weather was quite cold, but the sun was exceptionally warm when it was out. Trusty Craigie broke out the trail for the rest of the party and we all gathered wood along the way for our future fire.

Soon we arrived and found the shelter in fair condition except for the remains of a Christmas party which had apparently been held. A little hustling around soon had the Lodge spic and span and a comfortable fire started. As soon as the snow in the coffee pot showed signs of becoming coffee water, we began preparing lunch; keeping a lookout meanwhile for a party expected to arrive from Wilmington Del. This party never did show up.

A log had been laid across in front of the stove, resting on the edge of the bunk and a stone in the foundation wall. This was so we could take turns sitting and warming our feet in the oven. A later incident proved this log to be quite rotten. *

After lunch, we sat and talked until about 2:30 when we decided to hit the trail for home. Soon we reached the cars and departed with thoughts of the lovely day we had spent.

*(This incident to which Joe refers was a neat back flip unexpectedly executed by two members when the log collapsed as they were sitting with their feet on the oven door shelf, enjoying their luncheon dessert. Ed.)

CARD PARTY NETS GMC $30.00

The card party held at the Community House Wednesday evening, January 11th, was as reported in the last issue, held in cooperation with the Rutland Community Club. This arrangement proved very satisfactory to both groups, and netted the Killington Section GMC $30.00.

We wish to thank the committee who worked on this project, also all who made sandwiches, all who contributed though they could not attend, and those who did come and added to the enjoyable evening by their presence.

We also thank Betty Ball for furnishing the door prize which was won by Mrs. Mabel Ackley.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Dudley of Belmont, Vermont Killington Section members, are spending the winter in Tucson, Arizona.

Joseph Valiquette has returned to Norfolk, Va. after spending some time with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Valiquette.

Vera Perkins has left for California where she will spend a few weeks visiting relatives.

NEW GUIDE BOOK

The new 1956 Guide Book will be out February 15th.

This edition has been completely re-written. There have been fourteen editions of this book. Very often they could be revised by making a few corrections. This fifteenth edition has been brought up to date by Eugene Bamforth, Vice President of the Green Mountain Club. Plan to get this Guide Book at our GMC office.

ON A CLOUDY SUNDAY

The clouds weren't anything new, they had been with us for more than a week. So had the slippery roads and trails, but there are some GMCers who like to get out in the woods regardless of the weather.

On this particular Sunday, January 15th, we were agreeably surprised to find nine hikers and Pokio, who has agreed to be our mascot, ready to take a chance on a pleasant day to spend at Clarendon Lodge.

The usual pattern of procedure was in order; the men going ahead at a little faster pace than the women who walked along leisurely in twos, chatting and catching up on news.

By the time the women folks reached the Lodge, smoke was coming out of the chimney, the wood chopper could be heard somewhere in back of the Lodge, and we decided we had better get busy and get some water on the stove for coffee.

We were hungry so it seemed a long time before coffee water boiled, actually the old stove did all right. After lunch, one group walked up the road a ways in order to be out in the good fresh air. Inside there was smoke from the stove, cigar, pipe and cigarette; not simultaneously, but off and on. This wasn't objectionable but of course we had to make something of it. So we said, "The air outside is so good, let's go for a walk."

We have a man in our Section who is known to be able to do the seemingly impossible. Good old reliable Harold said, "let's go out and move that objectionable building out yonder." Craigie replied, "Good idea but we couldn't budge it. It's stuck down tighter than a drum."

You are right! They did it! So now if you are looking for the little building that use to be there, it isn't there any more. You will find it some 200 feet south, hidden behind some low pine trees. After about an hour's work of pushing, pulling, and sliding, the men came in and reported "Mission completed."

KILLINGTON SECTION SLIDES

Sometime ago we reported that the Photography Committee was working on a slide collection. Janice Catozzi, chairman, is looking for slides to add to this collection so that eventually we may have enough to make a good showing of Killington Section activities, Long Trail scenes, or outstanding mountain views.

She is also looking for more black and whites to add to the Killington Section scrap book.

Anyone sending in pictures, slides, or negatives will be reimbursed for them.

READING ABOUT OUTDOORS

THE FRIENDLY FORESTS by Alma Moore with illustrations
The Viking Press. 96 pages $2.50

This is a children's book giving general information about forests as a natural resource. It covers soil, water, the growth of trees, protecting forests, values and products of forests, and how we can help nature.

OUTDOOR HAZARDS - Real and Fancied by Mary V. Hood
Macmillan Co. 242 pp. $3.95

A valuable book for those without much outdoor experience and who are thinking about outdoor living and travel. It will dispel unjustified fears and yet point up the need for caution where dangers do exist.

CLARENDON LODGE ENJOYED

Winter hikers are enjoying the comforts of Clarendon Lodge these days. Over the new Year's weekend a party of boys and leaders from Wilmington, Del. made it their headquarters, while the more experienced hikers in their group went on for a try at Camel's Hump in winter. (This was the group mentioned elsewhere as expected at Tucker.)

Last weekend "The Conlons" went in for an overnight and shared it with two parties and leaders from Schnectady.

It's something to think over that groups come so far for a weekend of trail hiking.

CHANGING FASHIONS

It seems there are fashions in Outings as in other things. Looking through some copies of the OUTING MAGAZINE of the mid-1800s recently we were interested in the difference in the type of Outings popular at that time.

Walks, as such, were just coming in. The Appalachian Club even then was having excursions.

The advent of Roller Skating was being discussed and much space was devoted to arguments on the relative merits of Roller Skating vs Ice Skating. Many of the "old timers" apparently regarded this new sport as a very unhealthy substitute for Ice Skating.

Cricket and Tennis were popular, as was all kinds of boating. Boating for girls was a new idea and there was a detailed article on the technique of rowing for young women.

The big Outing interest was, of course, bicycling in all its forms. There were reports from Bicycle Clubs everywhere of all kinds of long and short excursions. One article reported the achievement of a pair, members of a "sociables club", who went 53 miles, from Boston to Newburyport, between daylight and 3 P.M. one day. There were long continued articles on AROUND THE WORLD ON A BICYCLE, and ACROSS THE U.S. ON A BICYCLE.

The "New York Ladies Tricycle Club" had just been formed with 10 members. Their costume was "a dark blue flannel skirt with jersey and cap of the same color." Their badge "a double star of gold on dark blue enamel, marked L.T.C. 1887".

Don't think it was all fun and frolic for the bicycle enthusiasts though. Just note a few of their problems.

The North Carolina legislature discriminated against wheelmen by allowing the Turnpike Company to dictate the type of vehicle which could be used on the roads. Apparently the Indiana Legislature was more cooperative, as they adjourned without considering the anti-bicycle bill!

The railroads leading out of Boston made a charge of 50¢ to carry a bicycle for 25 miles and refused to take tricycles.

Even the dogs must have shown resentment to the on-rush of the bicycle, for, at a convention of The League Of American Wheelmen, a device was introduced to protect riders against dogs possessed with cyclomania. This consisted of a small eye and ear syringe, holding about 2 ounces, throwing a fine stream, and filled with ammonia.

In spite of the distrust with which these wheelmen seem to have been regarded in many quarters, they appear to have tried to keep their conduct above reproach. A regulation printed in the program of the 4th annual races of the Cleveland Bicycle Club states; "no contestant will be allowed on the track with bare arms and legs".

So, times change, and with them fashions in Outings as well as clothing, but hiking still continues.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

As we take pause in these cozy winter days before the onset of Spring and its several activities let us consider what we can do in the ensuing hiking year to increase participation and membership in Killington Section of GMC.

As the heading of our Outing Schedule says, our hikes are planned for ALL, who are interested in Outdoor activity, whether members or not. In that vein we should make an effort to "bring a friend" when we gather for hikes and other outings. In many persons' minds Hiking is a word to be avoided. Our activities are not strenuous on the whole.

Person to person contact is the best means for giving our prospects a chance to hear about us and to see us in action. In conclusion, let us make an effort to TALK GMC and, to SHOW GMC to our friends and neighbors.

Jack Martin.

COMING EVENTS

WINTER WEEKEND

Time - Feb. 25th - 26th
Place - Perkins' Camp

Calling all hale and hearty campers and lovers of comfort. Make plans now to be at the Craigie Perkins' Camp in Mendon for the annual winter weekend. This is a grand opportunity to get as much or as little winter exercise and sun (we hope, our order is in), as you desire.

Make your reservations now with Mary Perkins, Tel. 3-7954. All reservations must be made by Thursday noon, Feb. 23rd as food must be purchased. Be sure and tell her how many you are making reservations for and for which meals you plan on being there. The cost of the meals will be equally divided among those attending and we promise to make them hearty but economical. (The total cost will not be over $2 at the most). Plan to come and bring a friend. Remember that you will have to arrange for your own transportation.

Craigie and Mary will go up Friday afternoon to open and warm up camp. Anyone who wishes to come for Friday night may do so but be sure to bring your own food for Friday night and Saturday breakfast.

Community meals will be planned for all who make reservations for all or part of the meals from Saturday noon to Sunday night. A schedule will be arranged for the preparation of meals and clean-up afterward so that the work can be fairly divided among those attending and make as little work for everyone as possible.

Those planning to stay overnight should bring their own sleeping bag or blankets remember you will have to carry them in from the main highway so roll or pack them so that they can be easily carried.

See you there!

KILLINGTON SECTION'S ANNUAL MEETING

A very successful annual meeting was held at Riverside on Thursday, February 9th. After an excellent supper, the business meeting was held, with reports from various committee chairmen.

Craigie Perkins, chairman of Trails committee, said that more time needed to be spent on trail clearing, and advocated May and June hikes that would cover all of our section of the Trail.

Mary Perkins spoke on SMOKE & BLAZES, and raised the question of whether or not it was worth while. She was assured by those present that they thought it very good and worth continuing.

Janice Catozzi, chairman of Photography committee, said that more pictures of human interest were needed, especially of the Killington Section of the Trail.

Betty Ball gave a summary of outings.

Emile Boselli reported on the progress of the bridge at Clarendon Gorge.

Mr. Lucius Carey from Glens Falls, showed very good slides of the Kathadin region, with its rocky topped mountains, steep trails and lakes. Especially outstanding were the slides of the Alpen glow, and the moose.

The business meeting was resumed after a brief quiz on the Long Trail.

Jack Martin gave a favorable report from the Shelters committee.

George Conlon reported for the nominating committee and presented the following slate of officers: Jack Martin, President; Helen Bailey, Vice President; Eleanor Walker, Sec.-Treasurer. These officers were unanimously elected.

Plans were made for a hike to Bulfum Shelter on the 12th. The date for the Winter Weekend was set for Feb. 25 - 26.

TO HELP WITH S&B

Offers of help on the production line of SMOKE & BLAZES have been received from Emile Boselli and Cecile Campbell.

Betty Ball and Janet Martin have volunteered help with write-ups. This help will be greatly appreciated.

EXTRA ! HIKE TO GIRL SCOUT CAMP - SAT., MAR. 10 - Lv. MELDON AT 10:30A.M.

REPORT OF OUTING COMMITTEE
1955-1956

Twenty-seven outings were planned this year; nineteen were day hikes, three were weekends, three were social occasions, and two were rained out.

Several of the hikes were combined with work parties, especially in the spring, when trail clearing or work at shelters or bridge building was done in connection with hikes to Buffum, Clarendon, Sunnyside, and Governor Clement. A fall outing to Mendon was for the purpose of getting evergreens for the GMC booth at the Rutland Fair.

An innovation this year was the joint hike with Glens Falls hiking club, when we went up Buck Mt. overlooking Lake George. This was very successful. The Glens Falls members have joined us on some of our hikes and meetings, too, and are always welcome.

A choice of hikes, either to Killington or Sunnyside was offered to visiting GMC members after the annual meeting, and again our members had a chance to meet new hiking companions, and renew old friendships.

Pleasant day jaunts were taken to Greenwall, Little Rock Pond, Blue Ridge Mt., Tucker, and from Gifford Woods to Long Trail Lodge.

Three social occasions proved pleasant; the covered dish supper at Beechwood, the maple sugar party, and the swimming and sunning day at CV Camp in Chittenden.

More mileage on the Long Trail was covered by the camping weekend over the Fourth, when hikers did the Trail from Smugglers Notch to Bolton, and in the usual fall series, when the Trail was covered from Mad Tom Shelter to Grout Job.

Two other weekend events completed the year's schedule;

the annual February weekend at Perkins' camp in Mendon, and the Intersectional camp-out at Danby in August.

Hikes have ranged from simple strolls to 12½ mile jaunts, but all have been pleasant and worth while. More joint trips would be fun.

Betty Ball, Chairman.

HIKE TO SUNNYSIDE

On Saturday, January 28th, the sun came out after about a week of clouds and freezing rain. Thirteen people, on dog, and one flea, made the trip into Sunnyside. The cars were left near the main road and it was a good thing they were, or they would still be in a ditch somewhere as the road hadn't been sanded. However, the ice made easy going for the sled and tobagon.

The trees were covered with about a half inch of ice and sparkled in the sun. Several pictures were taken.

The camp was found neat and clean with kindling to start the fire. Lunch was eaten in the warm sunshine in front of the camp. Sunnyside certainly is an appropriate name.

On the way down, the more daring, took short fast rides on the sled and tobagon. Four new hikers made the trip. Come again boys and girls.

WHAT ABOUT JUNIORS?

Has anyone thought of a plan to make Junior membership more interesting? It might be a good idea to do something along this line.

Juniors speak up. Would you like any special events? If so, let your wishes be known. Send in your ideas to SMOKE & BLAZES, 129 Bellevue Ave., Rutland, Vermont.

BUFFUM SHELTER - FEB. 12th

Nine and a half brave souls dared challenge the weather for-casters, who Saturday night reported three "lows" and estimated 4 to 7 inches of snow for Sunday.
 The hikers took the road to Wallingford and Buffum Shelter amid falling snow. However, there is no fool like a hiking fool, but this time we ended up looking less foolish than the weather Bureau.
 The sun even came out briefly to sneer with us. The woods were beautiful for snowshoeing and we all, including "Pokey", had a wonderful time.

We found only half the stove-pipe in evidence so cooked outside, after we uncovered a grate below a foot of snow. The water in the brook tried to hide from us without succeeding. We even had a friendly chickadee in for lunch.

The missing stove pipe and roof board section will call for some attention after the snows have melted.

BOOK REVIEW

WILD AMERICA, by Roger Peterson and James Fisher.

Any lover of the out-of-doors, or armchair traveler will thrill to this book that tells of a 30,000 mile trip to wilderness spots of America, from gannet rookery in Newfoundland, down the Smoky Mountains, to Florida swamps, Arizona deserts, and western mountains and seacoast, ending in Alaska's teeming tundra.

Two famous ornithologists, one American, one British, describe their experiences, and the whole is beautifully illustrated by Peterson.

This book is apt to create a wander lust.

KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB

March 1956

COMING EVENTS

Sugar Party

Time - Sunday, March 25th
Place - Mendon Grange Hall

This annual event always brings out a good crowd of both old and young members to enjoy the delights of sugar on snow, pickles, doughnuts and coffee.

There will be square dancing after the eats. Ray Catozzi will take charge of this part of the program.

The price of this party will be determined by the expenses involved. This has in the past been $.75 and we think it will be approximately the same this year.

Reservations should be made no later than Friday night, Mar. 23rd, by calling Janet Martin, Prospect 3-8621.

Hike

Time - Saturday, April 7th
Place - Tucker Lodge

This is an easy one. We plan to leave Meldon school at 10:30. Bring your lunch and plan to be served some very good GMC coffee.

By the time this hike takes place, who knows, it may be the weather will be spring like and very inviting.

SCHEDULES INCLUDED

Please notice that your new spring and early summer schedules are enclosed. Look them over. Keep them handy. Plan to take part in some of the activities of your Club.

BOARD MEETING HELD

The first meeting of the officers and committee chairman for 1956 was held at the home of President John Martin, Feb. 13th.

The following committee chairmen were introduced:
Outings: Churchill Scott and Joe Hadeka

Trails: Crague Perkins

Shelters: Ray Catozzi

Smoke & Blazes: Vera and Mary Perkins with new assistants for make-up, printing & mailing, Emile Boselli and Cele Campbell.
Write-ups, Betty Ball and Janet Martin.

Publicity: Ray Catozzi

Photography: Janice Catozzi

Suggestions for the outing schedule were made by several members.

Plans for the clearing of the entire Killington Section were discussed. It is hoped that this will be completed by July 1st.

The budget for the year was adopted.

WINTER WEEKEND

A gala winter weekend was held at Craigue Perkins' Camp in Mendon on Feb. 25th-26th, with record crowds, at least for recent years, plenty of good food, lots of good companionship, and beautiful hiking country. The weather cooperated some of the time.

It all started on Friday night when ten junior members arrived after supper to spend the night, a lively one by all accounts.

The Saturday contingent arrived shortly before noon, with sleeping bags and packs arriving by sled, toboggan, and towed saucer. It was raining a bit, but soon poured. That didn't dishearten the young members, though, for after lunch, many of them went hiking, getting their clothes drenched, but returning with spirits undampened.

After two servings of lunch, games were the order of the afternoon, with Bali the favorite of the older members.

By midafternoon the sun peeked out, and a snowman named Julius Caesar was erected out front. Several snowshoed up to Craigue's service building and admired the neat, trim structure.

Two servings of supper, and then ten went back to Rutland, escorted down to the cars by a merry young crowd. Games and blowing up of air mattresses took up the evening, with one couple making 4450 in one hand of Canasta, for an eventful game, while Marge Ballard made a big score in Bali. Fourteen stayed over night.

It was getting windy, cold, and crusty now, and by morning, snowshoes were unnecessary as far as the service building, as Betty and Pocie found out on their before-breakfast bird walk.

On Sunday morning, some went to church, some helped with dinner, and some went hiking.

The snow was perfect for snowshoeing, off the beaten track.

By dinner time, several more had arrived, and four dogs were getting acquainted. Pocie, the pup, wanted to play with all, but the others did not want to play, so there were some slight doggy misunderstandings, but nothing serious.

Two servings of dinner were finally completed, and most people went again, or for the first time, to the service building and on up the road for hobblebush.

Four of the young people, Barbie Allard, Esther Dunn, Joe Hadeka, and Bob Paul, spent the day climbing Blue Ridge, and made the top, getting back about three-thirty. That was quite a feat for windy, winter climbing. Though the wind whistled in the tops of the trees all day, it was surprisingly comfortable in the thick evergreens.

Everyone had a good time, and thanks go to Janet Martin for planning the meals, to all who did their part in the cooking and clean-up, and especially to Craigue and Mary who were such fine hosts, and did so much to make us all comfortable and happy.

AN INVITATION

The Rutland County Nature Club will open its April meeting to interested members of the Killington Section GMC.

Mr. Edward Hyde of Springfield, Mass., will show slides of southern birds, and a picture of Pioneer days taken at Sturbridge Village.

The meeting will be held on Saturday, April 7, at 8 P.M. in Fair Haven - probably at the Elementary School. Watch the Herald for a possible change as to place of meeting.

This should be an interesting meeting. We hope some GMC members will be able to attend.

We are happy to welcome the new little daughter of Bob and Thelma Perkins into the Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club. Polly Perkins was born Feb. 23rd, and was soon after, a member of the GMC.

TRIP TO GIRL SCOUT CAMP

After more than a week of cloudy weather, the sun came out Saturday, March 10th, and twenty hikers made a trip in to the Girl Scout Camp in Aikin Forest.

It was one of those days when the best place to be is outdoors. The sky with its deep blue coloring and scattered clouds, made a feast for the eyes, and the fresh, cool air was breathed in deeply with much appreciation.

As we trudged up the road, many on snowshoes, we were a happy, contented group. Mrs. Bell guiding and directing her six girl scouts; Mr. Bell surprising everyone with his new pocket radio; President Martin carrying Carol on a unique backpack; and Outing Chairman, Scott, pulling his young son Bobby on a sled, all made an interesting picture of hikers out for the day. Of course there also were the good Killington Section reliables, Betty Ball, Joe Hadeka, now co-chairman of outings and custodian of the coffee pot, the Perkins trio plus Janet Martin. We were happy to welcome two new hikers to our group. Two freshman girls from RHS came along to swell the ranks and added considerably to the good fellowship of the party.

On reaching the camp, Joe and one of the young ladies went looking for water, Craigie and Bennett cut and gathered wood, Janet got the fire going, and the rest of the group enjoyed themselves in various ways.

Before long, it was time to eat, and as usual, when food goes into mouths, quiet descends upon a group. So it was with us.

After lunch, though the fire in the stove was burning brightly, and it was quite comfortable inside, we decided that we didn't want to waste the sunshine and the beautiful atmosphere of outdoors. Benches were carried out and lined up along the side wall of the cabin. Here we sat and enjoyed the warmth of the sun, the beauty of our surroundings and the antics of the youngsters.

There were snowshoe races, a game of fox and geese, and camera fans were kept busy getting pictures.

We sat so long the sun went down enough to make us feel that it was time to move. Reluctantly we brought the benches back into the cabin and prepared to start for home.

The view from the Notch Road is superb with Rutland valley and the Taconics to the west. This was ours to enjoy on the way down the road. We were sorry for all who could not come to enjoy it.

COMING EVENTS

Hike

Time - Sat. Apr. 28, 9 AM

Meet - At Meldon School

On Saturday, April 28th, the Killington Section of the GMC will have a hike over the Long Trail from the Wallingford Gulf Road to East Clarendon Crossing. The group will hike north over the Trail.

For those who do not want so much exercise, plans are made to eat at Sunnyside so that those who wish to do so may drive to Spring Lake Ranch and hike to Sunnyside from the Ranch.

The object of this hike is to clear the Trail and check on the condition of the shelters.

Hike to Greenwall:

Time - Sun. May 6th, 9 AM

Meet - At Meldon School

On Sunday, May 6th, the Section's hike will be to Greenwall Shelter south of the Wallingford Gulf road. This should be an easy hike for everyone, and the coming of spring should make the trip very enjoyable.

Churchill Scott, Chairman.

NEW GUIDE BOOKS AVAILABLE

The GMC Guide Book has been completely revised and brought up to date. Copies of the new edition are now available. If you purchase your copy from Eleanor Walker, forty cents of the dollar which it costs you will stay in the Killington Section Treasury. Even if you don't expect to be out on the Trail right away the Guide Book makes good reading for an "armchair trip" and this is a good way to become better acquainted with our trails and shelters.

As you go through your new Guide Book take special note of the sketches. These were done by Killington Section member, Janet Martin. We like them.

Remember, contact Eleanor Walker for your copy and serve yourself and Killington Section at the same time.

GET ON THE 1956 MAILING LIST

This is the last issue of SMOKE & BLAZES which will be sent out on the 1955 mailing list. If you haven't already done so, get your name on the 1956 list by sending dues to Eleanor Walker, 87 Baxter St., Rutland, Vermont.

WE DID IT!!

1956 should go down in history as the year April Fool's Day came on April 4th. That was the day Betty Holden, Barbie Allard, Joe Hadeka, Bob Paul, and Craig Perkins picked to go to Killington.

At seven A.M. it looked like rain but as everybody was ready and on time we set off anyway.

The Wheelerville Road was covered with ice and on the first hill the Ford said "No". We backed down, put on the chains, and tried it again. This time we made it OK completely missing the birch tree that already had two notches in it. It was 8:30 when we reached Brewers Corner.

Here we took to the snowshoes. The novice squad didn't think the y were necessary but a step or two in the deep snow corrected that idea.

Along the trail there were many deer tracks and we saw one set of big bob cat tracks. At the lumber camp there was a porky between two of the buildings.

The big brook was covered with snow and ice at the crossing so gave us no trouble. The next smaller stream was open and we had to go a way upstream to find a doubtful snow bridge.

At the foot of the steep part of the trail we took a long rest with refreshments. About this time it began to rain and continued to shower for the rest of the trip up the mountain.

The going was pretty good and we had no trouble finding the trail. At the spring about half way up we were surprised to find it four feet below the level of the trail. A bucket brigade was organized so that everybody finally got a drink.

A little above the spring we lost the trail. It was right there and all of a sudden it wasn't anywhere in sight. We took a compass reading on where we thought the peak might be and struck off through the woods. We plowed through thick evergreens and over brush piles. Every few steps someone would lose an arm or a leg in the soft snow and have to be dragged to the surface again. Also we began to realize how hungry we were.

After a long time we came into an area of big spruces covered with moss. Here the going was much better and all of a sudden there was the trail again. Lucky, Lucky!

In ten minutes Cooper Lodge came into view but it didn't look familiar,--too squatty. The snow was up to within two feet of the windows in front and the back wall was completely covered. It was 1:45 P.M.

Everybody was soaking wet but the temperature was high so none were cold. There was a big pile of dry brush inside the camp so we started breaking it up for a fire. A second look around discovered a big supply of dry split hard wood under the shelf. Thanks, Sports!

A hot fire was started and soon the odor of roast sox filled the air. The stove worked wonderfully. Water for hot drinks was boiled in cups on top of the stove while the hikers took turns steaming themselves out around the sides. In the meantime all available food had disappeared.

Every once in a while some one would let out a screech, the result of stepping under a roof leak and getting a stream of ice water down his neck.

It was raining and blowing outside and only Barbie had enough enthusiasm to want to go up to the peak which was covered with fog.

At 4 P.M. after a good rest and drying out we started down the mountain. The weather almost cleared and the sun shone briefly. There was even a limited view.

We made good time down but began to get tired when we struck the level going in the brook valley.

At about 6 P.M. and still broad daylight a big blue-black cloud appeared in the west. It swept directly up the valley toward us and suddenly in a matter of seconds it became almost pitch dark. We were smothered in a thick fog. It poured. The wind blew through the tree tops. It lightened and thundered.

We plodded along through the soggy snow taking a real beating from the wind and rain. At long last we reached Brewers Corner and the shelter of the Ford.

And we wouldn't let Joe Hadeka get in until he admitted the Ford looked as good as a Cadillac.

We are willing to bet that we are the first snow-shoe party up Killington that ever got caught in a thunder shower.

TUCKER*LODGE SATURDAY, APRIL 7th

At 10:30 A.M. Saturday morning about 20 hiking enthusiasts met at Meldon School for a "spring" hike to Tucker Lodge. The trip was anything but spring-like. With only about half the group equipped with snowshoes, many found themselves sinking thigh deep in snow every few steps. However, all finally made camp after Bob Paul went back with a load of snowshoes.

After the usual leisurely lunch, the lodge was cleaned and five lights of glass installed to replace broken ones.

Several of the group went exploring and returned home with pussy willows and hobble bush to renew their belief that spring would come.

SUGAR PARTY

The annual Killington Section Sugar-on-Snow Party was held in the Town Hall in Mendon on March 25th, with about 35 attending.

The committee went up early to start the syrup "bilin". By 6:30 P.M. the tables were set up with the traditional pickles, doughnuts, and coffee, and all was in readiness. As the customers arrived containers of snow were distributed to receive the boiled down syrup and give it the desired "waxy" consistency. After everyone had eaten their fill of sugar in this state there was the customary stirring down of one's remaining syrup to the sugaring-off stage. Many of the resulting little sugar cakes were set aside to be eaten later.

The serious business of the evening being over the group adjourned to the hall upstairs where Square Dancing, under the direction of Jan and Ray Catozzi, rounded out the evening. This was the introduction to Square Dancing for some of our Junior members and they certainly appeared to be enjoying it.

General arrangements for this outing were taken care of by Jan and Jack Martin. Eleanor Walker and Vera Perkins presided over the syrup kettles. Many gave a hand at clearing away and special credits go to Helen Bailey for doing the dishes.

A good time was had by all and our only regret is that there were not more of our members there to enjoy it with us.

On top of the world, by Patricia Petzoldt. Crowell $3.50

Zest for life, and love of mountain-climbing abound in this lively biography of a woman and her husband, Paul. Paul had the mountain-climbing concessions in the Grand Tetons for several summers, and sometimes Patricia went along. Her descriptions of these precarious climbs make the ledges of Camel's Hump seem like the slightest stroll. Here is the author's answer to the age-old question "Why do people climb mountains?"

"The normal one is a love of the outdoors and a desire to climb because there is fun in the problem of finding handholds and footholds up a steep precipice, with the added thrill of breaking your neck. Mountain climbing is a dangerous and exciting sport. Accepted normally, it appeals largely to the imagination.

SAVE ENDANGERED WILDLIFE:

This was the slogan of the National Wildlife Federation during the National Wildlife Week, March 18-24.

Hunting and fishing are big business! Ten billion dollars are spent in the United States each year for hunting and fishing equipment, transportation, food, lodging, gasoline, and other items required by the countries 32 million sportsmen. But this tremendous industry can be lost if our wildlife is not wisely managed. Destruction of forest and range lands by fire and over-grazing, drainage, and pollution of marshlands, lakes and streams, and other abuses of the homes of wild animals have already taken a heavy toll.

In 1899, the great outdoorsman Theodore Roosevelt said, "When I hear of the destruction of a species, I feel just as if all the works of some great writer had perished."

We can all do our part.

The Ascent of Alpamayo, by Georges Kogan and Nicole Leininger.
Harrap & Co. $3.50

We read so much about mountain-climbing, in the Himalayas that it is refreshing to get an interesting book about climbs in another section of the world. This book is about the Franco-Belgian expedition to the Cordillera Blanca in the high Andes is especially unusual in that the second part of it is written by a woman, who gives the woman's viewpoint on the appeal of climbing.

Alpamayo, a snow and ice-covered pyramid is called here "the most beautiful mountain in the world" and the fine illustrations tend to bear out this supposition.

This expedition has no leader, and all have equal responsibilities, and worries, but a fine spirit of friendship prevails.

Four of the men spend the night in an ice-grotto at 20,000 feet on Alpamayo, after successfully reaching the top, one of the adventures vividly describes in this engrossing book.

HO HUM

This is the time of the month when I start checking over the bulletin and find I am a little short of material for publication--so, once more I start scratching my head and as usual, lose more hair in doing so. This month, I am lucky. Everything is filled up but this space and after two hours of scratching and the loss of near about thirty hair, I give up. To leave it blank or prattle awhile? Let's prattle. Rolling the stencil up shows three more lines to prattle on and I believe I have just about used them up. Now, it is done!!

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sat. May 19 - 8:30 A.M.
Place - Long Trail Lodge to Gov.
Clement Shelter. Meet at Meldon School.

This hike will give Killington Section members a chance to see how much work will be needed to put this part of the Trail in shape for the summer. It is a rather long hike but very interesting, so let's try to have a good turn out.

Time - Sun. May 27 - 10:30 A.M.
Place - Bennett Bell Camp - Lake
Bomosee n
Meet at Meldon School

Our trip to the Bell's camp at Lake Bomoseen will be a bit different than most, but very interesting. Let's show the Bell family how much we appreciate their kindness by attending. Perhaps if it warms up we may swim.

GMC ANNUAL MEETING

Time - Sat. June 2 - 10 A.M.
Place - Long Trail Lodge

Members are requested to get their own transportation for this event.

The coffee hour starts at 10 A.M., at which time there will also be a showing of pictures by the Vermont artist, Anthur G. Burton.

The business meeting starts at 11 A.M.

Dinner may be bought at the Lodge, or you may bring your own picnic lunch and eat it in the woods near by.

After dinner, the meeting continues until about 3 P.M. Then, there will be short walks on the Long Trail.

Supper is scheduled for 6 P.M.

Governor Johnson will address the group in the evening. Clifton Miskelly, Director of the Vermont Development Com. will also be heard.

This annual meeting makes a good opportunity for Section members to learn all about their Club. Let's have a good showing from Killington.

Time - Sun. June 3 - 9 A.M.
Place - Pico or Clarendon Lodge
Meet at Meldon School

On Sunday, June 3rd, there will be two short hikes; one to Pico Peak and the other to Clarendon Lodge. The purpose of this is that we may be able to have some of the other Section members who will stay over from the Annual Meeting, enjoy a day of hiking in Vermont, and yet finish early enough to drive home.

Time - Sat. June 16 - 10 A.M.
Place - Biddie Knob
Meet At Meldon School

This hike to Biddie Knob is a new one for many members so let's try to have a good turn out. The walk is an easy one with an unusual view of the Otter and Champlain Valleys. And, of course, we'll have GMC coffee along.

LONG TRAIL HIKE

On April 28th a small group of hikers travelled the section of Long Trail between the Wallingford Gulf Road and Clarendon Gorge. This was one of the series of hikes to check up on the condition of the Trail and Shelters in the Killington Section area.

Buffum Shelter was found in good condition but needs a new stove and pipe. Also some roof repair is needed.

The Trail up Button Hill was brushed out and blazes painted where needed. The top of the hill is being lumbered and nothing can be done until the snow goes and the slash can be moved. Arrows were put up in this area.

From Button Hill to Sunnyside there was about a foot of soggy snow. Little, if any, work is needed here.

Sunnyside was clean and the stove worked well. If we ever get up the rest of the wall board, this shelter will be very attractive.

On the north side of the hill, south of Sunnyside, there was too much snow to permit re-blazing in an area of blowdowns. The trail can be followed but should be straightened.

From Spring Lake to the Gorge the Trail was good with only a few small blowdown. Little work is needed.

The party reached the cars just before dark as rain started to come down. Well timed.

APPALACHIAN MOUNTAIN CLUB ANNUAL RANGE WALK July 14, to July 21, 1956

This may be of interest to some GMCers.

An opportunity to hike 67 miles of trail in the White Mountains of New Hampshire, to climb 19 peaks including the 11 highest in New Hampshire, and to stay at seven of the Appalachian Mountain Club huts.

These huts are a unique institution in this country. They provide bunks with mattresses, pillows, and blankets in bunk-rooms for men and women. Crews of young men furnish excellent meals, served family style, and provide trail lunches for the hikers.

Anyone in good physical condition used to hiking in hilly or mountainous country should be able to do it.

The cost of the trip, from Franconia Notch to Pinkham Notch, will be $50.00 for AMC members and members of other clubs maintaining sections of the Appalachian Trail. (This would include GMC members). A guest fee of $10.00 will be charged to all others.

Reservations must be in by June 25th.

For further information write to Trip leader, T. A. Brayton, 76 Ashland Street, Medford 55, Mass.

CLARENDON LODGE
SUNDAY, APRIL 15th

A not too promising day found Craigie, Jack, Joe, Bob Paul, and two newcomers, Mr. and Mrs. Montague, setting out for some trail work in Killington section.

The original objective of Gov. Clement to Clarendon was passed over in view of the late mud-season conditions. The group worked over the trail from Rte. 103 to the top of Beacon Hill and found that the lumber operations had pretty well confused the first few hundred yards North from the highway.

At the Lodge a welcome fire was already burning by virtue of the weekend trip of a Scout group from Leominster, Mass. The Lodge itself was in good condition but not as much can be said for the yard around the Lodge.

GREENWALL SHELTER

It was Sunday, May 6th, when seven hikers of assorted ages made the trip in from the Wallingford Gulf Road to Greenwall Shelter on the Long Trail.

The weather rained lightly on the trip in but it stopped soon after arrival and the trip back was a pleasant one weather-wise. Some snow and ice was found on the ground in the woods. However, there were signs of Spring. Birds of many sorts including robins, juncos, sparrows, flickers, a wren and a thrush. Only one flower was found, a solitary group of Hepatica.

The shelter was in good condition except for a few holey floor boards and a piece of roof cap needing repair. The trail had been recently brushed and several blazes renewed. It should be in fine hiking condition for the season when the many rivulets have dried. At this time it is a bit aquatic.

= SPORTS AFIELD
1956 CAMPING ANNUAL

An article in the above Annual, "Cook In Foil" by Bob Stewart contained many helpful hints that we thought worth passing along.

"Smart outdoor cooks are doing more and more of their meal preparation in aluminum foil. With this aluminum sheeting, you can practically get rid of dish washing on a camping trip. And your meats and vegetables will have a sealed-in-flavor that make them even more taste-tempting than before."

"Most foil uses call for regular weight foil, which comes in rolls 12 inches wide. This weight is best for wrapping food to be cooked on coals, since you use two layers of foil. If one layer punctures or tears, you still have another protecting the food."

"But for making pots and pans, or wrapping meat on a spit, heavy duty foil is best. This comes in rolls 18 inches wide, and is about double the thickness of regular aluminum foil."

"Here are some ideas:
Hamburger. Wrap with sliced onion and shoestring potatoes. If the meat doesn't have much fat in it, add half a pat of butter. Cook 12 to 15 minutes. Fowl or chicken. Wash a piece of the bird to add water. Put a slice of bacon underneath the meat, and add washed vegetables, if desired. In hot coals, the meat will cook in half an hour."

"Vegetables. All vegetables should be washed just before you put them in the foil. This gives them needed moisture for that pressure-cooker effect. To bake a whole potato, wash it, then cut out a few deep holes in it, and wrap in foil. Cook 15 to 20 min."

"You'll find that foil has more than cooking uses on your outdoor trips. You can shape a drinking cup from it, etc. etc."

UP KILLINGTON 75 YEARS AGO

"Going to Killington" 75 years ago was quite different from such a trip to-day. In an old VERMONTIER was found an account of one such trip made by Mrs. Julia C.R. Dorr, via the old wagon road, In October 1880.

Previous to 1880 the only way to get up Killington had been, as to-day, by foot. However there was no Long Trail in those days, not even "a well defined bridal path". "Whoever made the ascent must go by foot picking his way as best he might." Such a journey was considered quite hazardous and "the women who had accomplished it could be counted on one's fingers."

In the summer of 1879 the U.S. Government, having decided to establish a Signal Station on the mountain, surveyors came in and a road of sorts was laid out from "Brewers." This road had been in and the hotel in operation for a year when Mrs. Dorr made the trip which she describes. Even so it was quite an adventure. Before starting she was warned to "take plenty of wraps as it is always cold on Killington and the wind blows like a tornado."

On a Sunday morning, October 9th, after an early breakfast, Mrs. Dorr and her companion "the Judge" started out in "a light, but strong, open buggy", drawn by "the Judge's" horse, Susan. This was the last opportunity of the season to make the trip as the Inn hosts, "The Myerhoffers", were coming down for the winter on Monday.

It was a perfect October day and the scenery was as lovely then as now. Our party enjoyed an ever ascending but uneventful ride, "past comfortable farm houses, log cabins, and saw mills", until they finally arrived at "Brewer's". Here they stopped to give Susan a drink.

"Brewer's" in those days was a rambling old farmhouse at the end of the old road."

After leaving here, the real ascent began. Soon "the Judge" decided he preferred walking to riding "up a perpendicular wall." As for Mrs. Dorr, she writes, "I slipped forward on my knees, grasped the dashboard and thus rode in state."

Though "the three miles from "Brewer's" seemed like twenty", they arrived safely at the Inn which is described as, "a quaint, primitive, little affair, making no pretensions to elegance, but with good beds, a good plain table, and clean linen."

After an early dinner, "the Judge" and Mrs. Dorr climbed to the peak to watch the sunset. Mrs. Dorr refrained from looking back until she was well up the rocky summit and was rewarded with the same breath-taking sense of "isolation, dizzying height and infinity space", which comes to each one so forcefully on his first trip.

Mrs. Dorr comments especially on the flag-staff erected by the Signal Corps, "so well braced and protected that it has so far defied the storms." She mentions also the long, greenish-gray moss on the fir trees, and "the spring of pure, ice-cold, water at the foot of the peak."

In the early morning the travellers made another trip to the summit for the sunrise and were more than repaid for their effort as anyone who has enjoyed that experience well knows.

In spite of differences in "going to Killington" then and now, the mountain remains the same. As we look from its summit at the "world" spread out below, we feel with Mrs. Dorr, "It is good for us to be here."

COMING EVENTS

Time - Saturday and Sunday
June 23 and 24
Place - Winooski River South to Birch Glen Camp

On the above dates Killington Section members will cover the Long Trail from Winooski River south to Birch Glen Camp. We will plan to pitch our tents near Couching Lion Farm (Prof. Monroe's) and hike up Camels Hump and down to the Winooski River the first day. The second day we plan to hike to Birch Glen Camp and out to Hanksville.

Time - Saturday and Sunday
July 7 and 8
Place - Birch Glen Camp to Lincoln Gap

On these dates we plan to cover the Trail from Birch Glen Camp south to Lincoln Gap. The tenting area will be in the vicinity of Jerusalem and will hike over the Jerusalem trail to Glen Ellen Lodge and then north to Birch Glen Camp out to Hanksville. On Sunday we will hike from Glen Ellen Lodge south to Lincoln Gap. On this hike, if the weather is good, the view from Mt. Abraham should be well worth the trip.

OUTING AT BELL'S CAMP

By
Barbara Allard

We met at Meldon and it definitely was not a nice day but we decided that today rain could not spoil our fun. Our destination was the Bennett Bell camp on Lake Bomoseen. When we arrived we found a nice cozy camp and a cheery fire to welcome us. After we had looked around we settled down to read or play cards or other games. Later the younger members went first up to the playroom to play ping-pong or read and then down to the boats for a ride. They came in when it started to rain again.

Only two were daring enough to test the 49° temperature of the lake. They had to get close to the fire to thaw out after, though. When it came time to leave we were all a little sorry.

Thanks to "the Bells" for a nice, enjoyable Sunday even though it rained.

PICO VISITED

We were glad to receive the following item from Edith Ewald:

Ten members of the Science Club at Castleton Teachers College had an outing the weekend of May 19. The group spent Saturday night at Gifford Woods and on Sunday six students, accompanied by Edith Ewald of the College Faculty, climbed Pico. The hikers were: Nancy Rowlee, Reading; Charlotte Miner, So. Halifax; Dorothy Zeno, Bellows Falls; Dorothy Bragg, Grafton; Bob Richardson, Northfield; and Rene Fifield, Pittsfield.

Snow at the higher elevation made going a bit difficult, but after about two hours of climbing everyone made it to the fire tower where an excellent view was the reward. It was the general feeling that the endeavor was well worth while.

After the students leave College and are on their own, it is hoped that they may become active members of the Green Mountain Club.'

It is good to know that such groups are getting out on The Trail and we hope with Edith that this interest will continue and lead them on into GMC.

LONG TRAIL LODGE TO GOVERNOR CLEMENT

by
Joe Hadeka

On May 19th, a group of three met at Meldon School for a proposed trail clearing trip from Long Trail Lodge to Governor Clement Shelter. Due to reports of snow at the higher elevations and lack of help we decided to clear from the Cold River Road to the Upper Road, instead.

We started out with the usual grey skies and threat of rain, with Craigie at the saw, Bob Paul at ax, and Joe at the clippers, a well balanced trio was soon working as busy as bees. Arriving at the Upper Road we rested awhile and then started back. It soon began to rain. We were all disappointed that nobody fell in the river, but Joe had a real close call as he plunged forth after jumping on a log. He missed a hole three feet deep by a few inches.

We soon reached the car where we sat and ate our lunches. We finally decided about one o'clock to quit - the rain had gotten the best of us.

Such a small turnout for this scheduled work party makes it look as though the G.M.C. spirit is slipping, so come on boys, girls, women, men, let's make the next work party a big success.

ANNUAL MEETING

The G.M.C Annual meeting held at Long Trail Lodge on Saturday, June 2nd, was a well attended and most successful affair.

Starting with the exchange of greetings with friends old and new at the Coffee Hour, it proceeded through the business meeting with the interesting section reports, and ended its morning session with the usual excellent luncheon served in the main dining room of the Lodge.

It was hard to break off the noon time visiting, but everyone finally reassembled to enjoy a short talk by Governor Johnson before the business meeting was again underway.

During the Trustees meeting it rained, as it often does, so that not many of the planned short walks could be taken. The time was very pleasantly spent however, in hearing informally from Mrs. Roberts, our 86 year old, visiting hiker. We tried to find out the secret of her "spryness" but without success. Apparently she is just made that way. She has been sick in bed just one day since World War I.

At the close of the Trustees meeting we were pleased to learn that Killington Section member, Leone Smith, had been chosen as our G.M.C. president for the coming year.

After supper there was Community singing followed by the awarding of door prizes. The showing of two reels of old G.M.C. movies, first shown in 1931 on the occasion of the Club's 21st anniversary, concluded the day's program.

A complete report with details of the business meeting will come to you in your LONG TRAIL NEWS.

We were sorry not to see more Killington Section members present but the 12 who were there had a most enjoyable day.

AN AFTERNOON ON THE OTTER CREEK

If you want a quiet, leisurely afternoon or day, "far from the maddening crowd", you can't do better than to take a trip via rubber boat on a section of the Otter Creek.

Eleanor Walker and Vera Perkins spent one such afternoon recently going from Leicester Junction to West Salisbury. This may seem like a short distance but it takes a good long afternoon, which gives you some idea of the leisurely pace at which one travels.

At the time of this trip the streams were good and high and the Creek was a black, deep river, running only slightly below the top of its banks.

Through this section it runs well away from any roads and follows an interesting, winding, course. Moving slowly along with the current one gets the feeling of being miles away from civilization and can easily imagine one is living in a quieter and slower-paced age.

Along the banks were many old trees of surprising size and a great variety of fern and early spring flowers. There were plenty of birds to be seen and heard. Not being quick of eye and proficient in bird study, we could only identify the more common kinds as red-winged black birds, gulls and wild ducks. We thought we saw scarlet tanagers. We heard the white-throat, a woodpecker and an owl among others and caught a glimpse of one animal. But whether woodchuck or otter we couldn't say.

Vermont has many fine streams for such excursions in early spring. For those wishing a more exciting ride we recommend the White River from Rochester to Stockbridge when the water is high. Why not try it sometime?

CLARENDON HIKE

On the Sunday after the Annual Meeting only three hikers appeared at Meldon at the appointed time. When we got to East Clarendon it started to rain so we stayed in the cars and let the shower pass.

Soon a patch of blue sky was seen and that was enough to send us along to the Lodge.

On approaching the Camp we noticed the door had been left open. Suspecting porkies might be inside we picked up clubs and stealthily sneaked up. About ten feet from the door we were suddenly confronted by two boys from MIT. They must have been a little worried by our attitude. Explanations were made and we found they were starting north for five days on the Trail. The Lodge was left in excellent condition.

The weather continued good and along toward noon the rest of the gang began to arrive. Many of the New York and Worcester people came. The final count was twenty, a very good turn out.

Lunch took about two hours with all the cooking, talking, eating and listening. We went over the Meeting incidents and caught up on all the gossip we had missed.

Some visited the site of the bridge-to-be over the Mill River.

A good time was had by all. It was a great pleasure to have so many of the out-of-town people along. Hope they come again next year.

PICO HIKE AFTER ANNUAL MEET.

By Bob A. Paul

We left Meldon School at 9:15 A.M. and arrived at Long Trail Lodge at 9:30 A.M. There we met a member of the Montpelier

Section. We started out on the Long Trail and on the way met two other members; Mr. Miller of the New York Section and Mrs. Inestine Roberts of Colorado Springs, Colorado. Mrs. Roberts is 86 years old and a wonderful hiker. She loves flowers, and on the hike up Pico stopped every five minutes to pick them. She showed us young hikers up. I wonder if we could climb Pikes Peak at the age of 86? She has climbed that mountain thirteen times. She had her pockets full of flowers, all kinds of moss and ferns. She even had mushrooms on the stick on our way home.

Most of the way up it rained; only a mist; but it was cold. When we reached the top, it was foggy and very windy. (Bob and Joe were the first ones up) We all ate lunch in the look-out station. There was a beautiful view for about five minutes, then it fogged up again. About 1:15 P.M. we started down the trail and came to Pico Shelter. We rested there for awhile and then started on. It took us about 2½ hours to get down.

When we reached Long Trail Lodge, we praised Mrs. Roberts for making such a long trip so well at the age of 86.

We left our Montpelier member at the Lodge and rode down to the Elbow Road where we hiked up to Perkins Camp. All that went on the hike had fun and were amazed at Mrs. Roberts.

POKIE TAKE NOTE

Word has been received from Allegra Milano of Teaneck, N.J. that her dog, Susan, has had her picture in the paper for being a winner at Madison Square Garden. Killington Section members will remember Susan, the beautiful black dog that hiked the Trail with Allegra.

A NOTE IN PASSING

Your President would like to take this time to note that one of our Outing co-chairmen has been put on vacation from his duties due to the press of summer activity. Churchill Scott's work on and in behalf of the first half-year's outings has been well appreciated. A well-done is extended to him.

A further note with regard to your favorite hikes. The next issue of S&B will contain a new schedule of outings. If there is some spot which you think would be a good fall or winter outing, let Jack Martin or Joe Hadeka know directly.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Saturday, July 21, 8:30 am

Place - M.V. "Ticonderoga" on Lake George

At this time we plan to travel "out of state" to enjoy the steamer trip on Lake George. The trip from Rutland to Lake George, N.Y. is about 50 miles in length through Whitehall and West Fort Ann NY Rte 9L.

The ship "Ticonderoga", leaves Lake George Steel Pier at 10:40 AM and journeys in a liesurely way arriving at the Ticonderoga Landing at 1:20 PM. The return trip starts after a 10 minute stopover with the arrival time at Lake George of 4:00 PM. That leaves time enough for arriving in Rutland before six in the evening.

The fare, including tax, is $3.50, children 5 to 12 at half fare, and under five years, free.

We hope the weatherman will provide better skies than the last time we planned this trip.

Time - Sunday, August 5th

Place - CVPS Camp, Chittenden

This is a pleasant way to spend a Sunday during what should be some of our "dog days". For those who have their own or other means of travel this is a come - anytime event. Bring a book or newspaper if that be your pleasure. For more activity bring along your bathing suit. Coffee will be served by the Club. Those desiring transportation meet at Meldon at 10:00 AM.

DOG'S EYE VIEW OF BIDDIE'S KNOB

WOOF! When I saw all those nice people in front of the big school I knew it would be one of those specially nice Walks in the Woods. Three steak bones last time.

Two people in Betty's car, one I knew, and Louise, but I licked both their necks so they would feel welcome. We bounced along until there was a hot smell and smoke in the car and everybody hopped out fast, especially me. Someone named Craigue fixed it, he found a loose wire. Lucky he was along.

We walked the rest of the way. Maybe it wasn't a mountain but we went up and up and up. Some of the people looked hot. They should have waded in the mud puddles to cool off as I did. It was fun splashing in the brook, too. I wonder why they all went farther up the brook to drink! At the brook they began to talk about which was the way to go, and they kept that talk up most of the rest of the way.

The trail got less and less until there wasn't any, but I didn't have any trouble, though some of the logs were across the way so that I had to make myself like a poodle to get under them.

After awhile, some went one way, and some another, and some just waited to see who was going the right way, but they all went UP. We came to grassy ledges, no path at all, but on we climbed. I was glad I had four feet. Finally Craigue called that he was on the top. He didn't say what he was on the top of, and I guess they never did know.

Anyway, we sat on nice soft rocks, all covered with moss, and I looked about for some water to drink. There wasn't any, but Craigue had carried some up for everybody, and Betty gave me her share. She had hers in a thermos. Some of them laughed, and said dogs should get their own water, but I lapped it to the last drop.

After lunch they stretched out. I wanted to hike some more, so I hopped over their stomachs and lapped some faces, and that stirred them up. A couple went off to climb a tree and see if we were really on Biddie's Knob. They came back, and said they thought it was farther north, but no one tried to find it. Betty and Louise were chasing a red-breasted nuthatch, but it just looked like a little bird to me, not big enough for a good chase.

Finally we went down, and it sure was steep. Some sat down and slid. Everyone took their own way. There were a lot more blowdowns. I'd have had to have been a chihuahua to get through some of them, but I got under or over or around. At last we were back on an old road, very old, but at least you could see where you were supposed to go.

We were nearly back to the cars when I saw a funny lazy animal all covered with prickly things. I poked him with my nose to make him run, but his prickles came off in my nose, and it hurt and itched.

I ran to Betty, pawing it, and she just got excited and screamed, and didn't help a bit, so I tried to forget it, and frisked on to the car. Wonder why Betty looked so sad, and didn't want me to go sniffing in the fields anymore.

Betty's car got stuck again when we got back to Rutland, and Louise took me to the vets, where he took out the prickles and kept me overnight. Wish I'd been home to see the skunk back of the house and the two horses in the strawberry patch Betty told about the next day. Lots of excitement!

Betty says no more long trips for me. I might get into a porcupine. Wonder what she means. I never get into trouble, well, hardly ever. WOOF! See you on the next short trip.

GOING TO JERUSALEM

It wasn't a children's game the way we played it.

Friday morning it poured and everybody wondered if anybody would be foolish enough to go camping in such weather. They were.

First we had to find Jerusalem---three houses and a telephone pole. On the pole there were two very, very faint blue blazes. We added a bright blue arrow and turned off onto the side road. We drove slowly up the road looking for signs of the approach trail but had no luck. Finally, having run out of road, we had to turn around and drive back to Jerusalem to ask directions. At last we found the signs on a tree completely covered with brush.

Nearby was a very good camping spot on a hill in an abandoned field. The rain obligingly held off while we set up the tents.

The other cars arrived and we had supper. The remains of an old barn furnished excellent fuel.

Our Junior Members showed us how to get the fire roaring even with wet wood. All you need is a mattress pump and a little elbow grease.

A deer wandered into the meadow across the road, looked us over, and went on browsing.

After supper we sat around the fire and told stories. Bob Paul told about the rabbit that rode a bicycle around his cellar, and Betty Ball explained the bee-buzz-business. She also demonstrated the war cry of the Barred Owl scaring us out of our wits. And so to bed.

Rain in the night and a very wet trail in the morning. It was easily followed but entirely overgrown. A steady climb brought us to the Long Trail near Glen Ellen Lodge. The Lodge is beside a beautiful brook and overlooks a lot of country to the east.

Here we found Gene Bamforth, got the latest trail reports, and ate our lunch.

The Long Trail north led to the top of Gen. Stark Mt. where a fine view was enjoyed.

All the trail from Glen Ellen to Birch Glen and out to the Beane Farm was found in poor condition with much brush and many blow-downs. One good feature---new signs telling the hiker where he is.

The trail twisted down the cliffs on the north side of Gen. Stark Mt., over Baby Stark, and Molly Stark, then down, down, down, to Birch Glen Camp. A sign said to follow the road but it looked more like a badly washed brook bed.

At the Beane Farm we picked up the car we had planted there in the morning and returned to camp. Bad news. Emile's battery was dead from too much radio. Also the big tent looked sad due to shrinkage of the guy ropes.

All hands set to squaring up the tent. We tried everything and finally got the right combination of push and pull here and there to fix it.

By this time it was dark but Emile's lantern saved the day or at least prolonged it. A hearty supper and everybody for bed.

Sunday morning the weather looked wonderful. We got Emile's car going by switching batteries. Then we discovered there was a mix-up in church time.

While waiting in Lincoln Gap an Ontario car chugged up over the hump and stopped. When asked if there was any trouble the lady driving said, "I'm afraid so. The last mile or so I haven't been able to pick up any speed." Guess she wasn't used to hills like that.

We climbed to Battell Shelter where we had lunch. Thanks for the grape juice, Cele.

The mad race for the top of Mt. Abraham was won by Barbie Allard. She must have taken a short cut or something because she had been there about five minutes when the rest of us crawled up. The view from the top was fair but limited by the increasing haze.

The entire trail across Lincoln Mountain had been recently cleared by the U.S. Forest Service and was in excellent condition.

Along the ridge we passed over several peaks with little climbing; Little Abe, Lincoln Peak, Nancy Hanks, Cutts, and Ellen.

On Mt. Ellen the rain caught up with us. Soon we were soaked again. Ho-hum! It's an old GMC custom. Four miles of wet bushes, mud and water.

When we got back to the tents it was still raining so they had to be taken down wet. Everybody helped, nobody complained, so it wasn't such a bad job. We felt so good we even set a date for the Camel's Hump trip.

Quite an adventure. A good time was had by all, --- Vera Perkins, Cele Campbell, Barbie Allard, Betty Ball, Emile Boselli, Bob Paul, and Craigie Perkins. Our Junior Members got compliments from all sides for their helpfulness around camp and their good sportsmanship on the trail. They have been brought up right!

INTERSECTIONAL REMINDER

This is to remind Killington members that August 18 and 19 are the dates for the Green Mountain Club Intersectional. It is to be held at Williamstown, Mass. See your May LONG TRAIL NEWS for all the details.

A gathering such as this, provides an excellent opportunity to have a grand time, and to become acquainted with other Section members.

Let's plan a good showing of Killington Section members,

REPORT YOUR LONG TRAIL TRIPS

Remember that GMC keeps a file of information regarding the condition of the Trail and its Shelters. The only way this information can be kept up to date is by reports sent in by hikers. This information is of great value to those planning Trail trips and enables the office to answer inquiries in this connection. It is also helpful to the Trail and Shelter chairmen of the various sections to have first hand information of conditions at a specific time.

You can help on this project by reporting on conditions as you find them whenever you hike over any part of the Trail or visit a Shelter. A postcard or a brief note giving the date of your visit and the conditions as you found them, sent to:

THE GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB
108 MERCHANT'S ROW, RUTLAND, VERMONT will do the trick. Let's have your help on this.

THE WORLD OF NIGHT

THE WORLD OF NIGHT, by L.J. Milne and Margery Milne, Harpers, $3.75, is a fascinating nature book. Many campers snuggle closer into their sleeping bags when owls begin to hoot and wildcats snarl, but this intrepid couple have spent many hours watching the inhabitants of the night world, the birds, animals, and insects. Even the trees sound differently in the night winds, and can be told apart by the sounds. You'll find such interesting facts as what colors can be seen best at night and why; some new theories on bird migration; why lightning bugs shine; and many facts about bats. City night life to this pair includes nighthawks and crickets, rather than night clubs. Night life is described by streams, in jungle, desert, and on the beach.

Beautiful illustrations further enhance the charm of this unusual book.

Frank E. Cunningham, Director

Come to the Berkshires just across the line from Vermont, and hike the Long Trail at its beginning or just sit and gaze at the mountain it traverses. Enjoy any one of several pleasant walks right near camp, visit with friends or take a dip in icy brook water. For Saturday night campfire we've asked Mr. Cunningham to tell us about the forestry development program he is conducting here and hope he will oblige. We want to hear your favourite stories so polish them up good.

FOR THE ENERGETIC HIKER:

PINE COBBLE & EPH'S LOOKOUT (elev. 1894, 2254) 4-6 miles round trip with fine sweeping views in all directions. Long Trail approach. Can continue on to Seth Warner Shelter (7 mi. from R.R. sta.) or Thendara another 6 miles and be picked up. Each finishing point involves another 2-3 miles down side trails to hi-way.

MT. GREYLOCK (3491') 8 hi-way miles to base of Mt., 6 miles up by car or about 3½ each way on foot, stiff climbing. Interesting combinations of walking and riding possible. Trails vary in length. Lodge, lunches, beacon light with observation platform, picnic grounds, picnic shelter and T.V. sta. on top.

TACONIC RIDGE NORTH SNOW HOLE 7 miles by car on route 2 to summit of Petersburg pass (2090') then on foot 2½ to 3 miles. After the first sharp climb the rest is easy.

TACONIC RIDGE SOUTH TO MT. MACOMBER (2798') Like the above except harder climbing and a little longer. Both trips are sightly.

Bring your own tenting equipment bedding and food. Water, firewood, toilet facilities provided. Additional information in the May & Aug. issues of L.T. News.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Lucy Bishop is travelling in Europe this summer, taking an Extension Course under the auspices of Boston University.

Maude Canty is enjoying her vacation at her camp on Lake Bomoseen.

LAKE GEORGE TRIP

We made it this year - a few of us anyway. It wasn't actually raining when we assembled at Meldon School at 8:30 A.M. on Saturday, July 21st, so in spite of gloomy weather predictions, we started off. Our group of five was glad to be joined by Professor and Mrs. Roy Buchanan from Burlington.

The drive to Lake George Village was uneventful. Occasional spatters of rain attempted to discourage us, but we were in an optimistic mood.

We found Lake George Village to be anything but village-like in atmosphere what with hotels, motels, eating stands, amusement parks, accompanying signs, traffic and the like. After missing a turn for the pier we struggled through a slight involvement with truck traffic, a dead end street and left turns, but finally arrived in plenty of time for the departure of the Ticonderoga at 10:40 A.M.

Even though there were slight sprinkles off and on all day, the mountains around the lake remained clearly visible, so the beauty of the trip was unspoiled. Canvas canopies over the decks of the Ticonderoga protected us from the sprinkles and made it possible to stay out on deck all during the trip.

Lake George is a truly beautiful lake with plenty of variety along its shores. There are elaborate hotels and summer estates, quiet little lake-side villages which are points of call for the steamer, and plenty of wild, rugged country. Then, too, there are the islands, lots of them. Some are privately owned and used for summer homes, but many others are owned by the state and are available for the use of campers. We saw such attractive camp set-ups as we steamed by that it made us start thinking, "How could we arrange to try this sometime?"

The return trip from Ticonderoga Landing was just as interesting, for as always everything had a different look when seen from the opposite direction.

We were back at the Lake George Village pier about 4 P.M. Here we said "Good-bye", to the Buchanans who were returning to Burlington via the Adirondacks, and planning to camp overnight somewhere enroute. Roy pointed out that this had been a really appropriate Mountain Club trip as an advertising folder stated that Lake George was "situated in the crest of the Adirondacks!"

On the way back to Rutland we had a chance to watch two big oil barges negotiate the locks of the canal a short distance below Whitehall. As some of us had never been at the right place at the right time before to see the canal in actual operation, this was a big addition to the day's trip.

All in all it was a most interesting and enjoyable day. You folks who stayed away missed a really good time. This is as nice a day's boat trip as one could ask for. We could find only one possible fault with Lake George - it isn't in Vermont.

IT'S COMING SOON

Yes, it won't be long now before we'll be getting ready for our Annual Rummage Sale.

Remember that the "white elephant" you don't want anymore may be exactly what someone else is looking for. There is always a demand for clothing - children's clothing is especially wanted. Dishes and kitchen equipment are good items, too. In fact, just about anything goes - at a price. We'll have more details later, but start saving and collecting now. Also, we'd be glad to hear from anyone willing to help on the Sale.

C. V. CAMP
BY BOB PAUL

We left Meldon School at 10:45 A.M. Blue skies and a sunny day made it very enjoyable at the C.V. Camp at Chittenden Dam. A group of 23 attended. When we arrived we put our lunches on the chairs and made a mad dash for the water. The first one in was Judy Allard. Her first words were, "The water's fine - Brrrrr." Gradually everyone slipped in. Bob Paul inflated his rubber mattress while others were out in Craigie's rubber boat.

Everyone took turns riding in the C.V. boat. There was a slight leak in the boat so we had to wear our bathing suits.

About noon our stomachs told us it was time to refuel, so we ate. We all enjoyed our picnic lunches and Joe Hadeka especially enjoyed his BEANS. He took one smell of the beans and left the table.

After lunch Bob Paul took Judy Allard for a little ride. By some the afternoon was spent on the dock visiting, while others enjoyed swimming and boat rides.

Our food had not yet run out so we decided to stay for supper.

We left the C.V. Camp about 7:00 P.M. and arrived in Rutland about 7:45 P.M., tired but very relaxed after a pleasant day.

We are very grateful to the C.V. for the use of the camp and to Eleanor Walker for making the arrangements for us.

1956 INTERSECTIONAL HELD

Seventy-five GMCers assembled at the Hopkins Experimental Forest, Williamstown, Mass., on the weekend of Aug. 18-19 for the annual Club Intersectional.

Early comers began arriving late Friday P.M. and enjoyed a fine, moonlight evening.

This was new camping territory for Killington Sec. members and we took advantage of the opportunity to cover some of the southern end of the Long Trail. The general terrain here is much different than the Lincoln Mt. area where we hiked in early July. The Trail here for the most part followed pleasant, woodsy paths and old wood roads.

People were arriving all day Saturday and we returned from our hike to find quite a "tent city". We kept busy for awhile seeing who was there, but soon went down to the small pond where a dip in its cool water was most refreshing after our day's hike.

An after supper shower caused a brief lull in activities, but it was of short duration and we were soon gathered around a blazing campfire. Here the program included songs, Section reports, a talk on the work being done in the Forest, charades representing the names of some Long Trail Shelters by Killington Sec. and a stunt directed by Brattleboro Section. The program concluded abruptly with the advent of another shower. This was soon over, however, and the crowd reassembled to enjoy watermelons provided by Don Kent of the Brattleboro Section.

Early rain on Sunday made the day seem unpromising for either hiking or camping. By noon the majority had broken camp and were on their way.

Those attending from the Killington Sec. were: Miriam, Bennett, and Charlotte Bell; Louise Adams, Betty Ball, Joe Hadeka, Barbie Allard, Mary, Craigie, and Vera Perkins.

Many thanks to the committee for arranging a fine Intersectional

COOPER CLEAN UP

The long awaited repairs at Cooper Lodge on Killington have at last been made.

It all began with a letter from a councilor at Twin Notch Girl Scout Camp near Fort Ann New York. She asked if we had any project for a group of her campers on the Long Trail. After a little correspondence we settled on the repair and cleaning of Cooper Lodge as a proper project.

A trip was made to the Girls Camp to show the slide collection and make more detailed plans.

On a Saturday Bob Paul, Joe Hadeka, and Craigie Perkins made a trip to Killington carrying up paint, brushes, glass, putty, and all the tools needed for a good overhaul.

The camp was found in fairly good condition except for the disconnected stove pipe and a broken leg on the stove. Someone had tried to drag the stove across the stone floor. There doesn't seem to be any way to make repairs and we will eventually have to set the stove on a pile of stones. However it works as well as ever and takes little fuel which is a big advantage on Killington.

On Sunday afternoon fourteen girls and two councilors arrived. They proved to be good hikers and made the trip up the Bucklin Trail in about four hours with three day packs.

At Cooper Lodge we found two Canadian boys who had hiked all the way from Stratton Mt. After supper and getting settled we held a song festival. The boys had some new ones. If you hear "A Guy Had A Game with a Ping-Pong Ball" -- that's where it came from.

Next morning the boys left and we got to work. The window sash with broken glass were taken out one by one.

Old putty was removed, broken glass disposed of, and the sash cleaned up. Then the new glass was set, putty replaced, and the window washed.

The painting crew painted the outside of the sash, replaced it, and painted the inside.

About a dozen sash were done in this way. Meanwhile a gang cut the weeds near the camp and picked up the cans and glass scattered around.

Another group repainted the blue blazes on the spur trail to the peak.

The roof detail daubed two gallons of coating on the worse spots on the roofing paper. (Also on the shoes, hands, elbows, etc. of the girls involved.)

There was plenty of time for fun and several trips to the peak. Tuesday evening was spent at the top watching the lights. The seeing was just fair with considerable haze. However, there wasn't a drop of rain in the three days we were there.

Four or five of the girls slept out on the flat above the Camp, and that area became known as Porcupine Alley.

Before leaving on Wednesday morning the girls swept out the Camp thoroughly and disposed of all food leftovers.

The project was a great success from all angles. The girls had a good outing and the GMC was greatly benefited. The jobs the girls did are the kind we always postpone for what we consider more important work.

If more Campers could be induced to carry out a project like this it would help to make up for our man power shortage.

While we are on the subject, how about a work party to put that wallboard on Sunnyside?

KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB

SEPT. 1956

COMING EVENTS

The next two outings are in our fall series-outings. The transportation on these has to be arranged in advance so if you are planning to go please get in touch with Craigie or Vera Perkins by the Friday evening preceding the hike. These trips give you a chance to add to your total Long Trail mileage. Better come.

Time - Saturday, Sept. 29
Place - Cowles Cove to Birch Glen

This should prove an interesting trip. Since an approach trail is on the west side of the range and the other on the east it looks as though we'd have to divide the group for this one.

One group will drive to Hanksville and the "Beane Farm". Leaving cars there they will hike up to Birch Glen and from there north along The Long Trail to Cowles Cove and on to the intersection of The Long Trail with the Hedgehog Brook Trail, out this trail to the road to North Fayston and Route 100. The other group will go in from North Fayston and do the hike in reverse.

We'll meet somewhere en route (we hope) for lunch and exchange of car keys. Total hiking 7.2 mi.

Time - Saturday, Oct. 13th
Place - Boyce Shelter to Breadloaf Mt.

The last of our Fall series-hikes goes on from where the 1954 fall series left off. We will use the Burnt Hill approach trail which comes out on a public road back of Broad Loaf English School as we did before.

After leaving Boyce Shelter we will go on to Mt. Boyce, Battell Mt. and Breadloaf Mt. From there we will use another approach trail to bring us back down to a public road which leads to Ripton.

This trip promises at least two good lookouts and view of Skylight Pond. The total hiking distance on this one is about 8.3 miles.

RUMMAGE SALE * FRIDAY, OCT. 26

The Rummage Sale date has been set. Mark Thursday, Oct. 25, on your calendar as the day you will bring your load of rummage to be sold on Friday. The Sale will be in the Neighborhood Rooms as usual and we will be there from 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. Thursday to receive material and get it ready for selling.

There is a good market for most anything. Some of the items in the clothing line which we usually find ourselves short of are the larger sizes in women's clothing and all sorts of men's and boy's clothing. We could always sell more children's things if we had them. Underwear is a good item, too, even if in need of small repairs. China, glassware, ornamental objects, cooking utensils, and the like are all good sellers.

If you have material and no way of getting it to us call Craigue Perkins (3-7954) before Thursday, Oct. 25th.

We need helpers anytime Thursday for sorting and pricing. On Friday help is especially needed for the first couple of hours (9-11) when business is really rushing. Please let us hear from you if you can help out at any time.

This is our one big money raising project of the year. It's success depends on having a large supply of material. Let's see if we can top last year's net of $121.39.

UNSCHEDULED WORK PARTY

It started out as an afternoon walk by two Killington Sec. GMCers to take a look at the new bridge over Mill River which is nearing completion. Incidentally, if you don't think this bridge that Emile is building is quite a project you have a surprise coming!

The day was so nice that after viewing the bridge we decided to go on to Clarendon Lodge via the Long Trail. We were glad of the new markings here as the recent lumbering has certainly changed the look of things in this area.

Arrived at the Lodge we found that the last users had left a fine pile of wood and also a collection of leftover supplies which covered about half the table. Their intentions were good as they had left everything well stored in plastic bags and a note saying all was fresh as of September 1st. Apparently it hadn't occurred to them that there might not be anyone along immediately to use them. As the supplies were already more than a week old we decided to dispose of them.

Burning seemed to offer the quickest and neatest method of disposal. So we stuffed a few papers and a little kindling in the stove, lit them and started dumping in the left-overs. Too late we realized that the stove grate was practically non-existent so everything was falling directly into the ash pan!

In the end we carted everything to the dump and cleaned out the stove. We also removed the boughs from the bunks and swept up the needles. Two windows were open when we arrived; these we closed and wedged shut with small pieces of wood - those latches really should be fixed.

There is a roof leak which needs fixing and the whole roof could well be coated. A metal strip should be put on the bottom of the door which is showing the effect of porkie gnawings. Something should be done soon about the stove.

This is the nicest shelter in our Section. A little work now will put it back in A-1 condition. Let's have a planned work party soon and do it.

NEWS FLASH

Two of our Killington Section members, Cecile Campbell and Emile Boselli, who have been working together this year in getting out SMOKE & BLAZES, are soon going into partnership in a big way. Cecile came back from her vacation with a very pretty ring and they have wedding plans for October 27th. Best wishes to you, Cecile and Emile.

CAMEL'S HUMP IN THE RAIN

There are many times during the year when Camel's Hump is a formidable mountain to climb. A few weeks ago, at the end of summer, six Killington Section hikers didn't think there was much to worry about in this respect. However, we had an experience worth remembering.

After planting one car at the Winooski river road crossing, and with the second car reaching the start of our hike, the Forestry Trail, we were ready for the climb. This was quite a time consuming operation. We had left Rutland, Vermont about 7:30 A.M. It was now 10:45 A.M.

By this time, it was raining, a drizzle that we did not know whether or not was to be just a mountain shower or an all day rain. Regardless of weather, we decided to go on. What's a little rain at the end of summer?

This is an easy trail. It climbs at a moderate grade, and goes through beautiful hard wood forest. We had decided to take the Alpine Trail where it crosses the Forestry trail in order to see the remains of the army plane which crashed here in 1944.

With the rain still beating down on us, we were wet from head to toe. In fact we were drenched, cold, and beginning to think we were a bit on the loony side. The sight of the wrecked plane didn't help any to heighten our spirits. The two youngsters (speedy hikers) hadn't been seen for some time.

On reaching the side cliff, just below the summit, the wind was blowing at terrific speed. We hugged the wall and inched our way along. Our hands were numb. The rain was letting up some, but the wind was more difficult to contend with. Someone's cap blow off, and was caught on the fly. We scrambled to the top and were rewarded for about one minute with a view of the valley when the clouds separated just long enough for a quick look. The girls weren't on the peak. We didn't expect they would be waiting for us in that cold. "Most likely they ran for shelter below", was the thought we expressed.

When we reached the tin hut, we found them, cold and shivering, and wondering where we had been. They had missed the Alpine Trail, and didn't get to the top of the mountain at all. Those of us who had wool shirts in our packs, took them out, and after taking the wet ones off, put on the dry ones. What a comfort!

We hurried on to Gorham Lodge. What a blessed relief! A fire was burning in the stove, and two young men were packing and getting ready to leave. We stayed here longer than we should have but we wanted to get warm and a little dryer. We ate our lunch and then moved on.

From here on, the going was rough, in and out of woods, over ridges and several pronounced knobs. The sun was out at last, and the wind blowing strong enough to dry us off.

Over Spruce Knob and down to Wiley Lodge! It was getting late so we stopped only long enough to take a look at this beautiful lodge built in 1949 by the Long Trail Patrol. This Lodge was made possible by a generous gift from William O. Wiley of the New York Section. A fund for its perpetual maintenance has been established.

After leaving Wiley Lodge, we continued north on the Trail through the woods, following Gleason Brook, and finally coming out in a pasture that the Guide Book says comes "to the river road."

It was a long, long day. We won't forget Camel's Hump in the Rain.

BURNT ROCK MOUNTAIN

Saturday, September 15th at 7 A.M.: all aboard for another trip on the Long Trail.

We left one car at Couching Lion Farm and then drove back to North Fayston, if you know where that is. The Hedgehog Brook approach trail was an easy climb. Although it is not well marked we had no trouble following it. It apparently has had some use this summer.

Only an hour and a half was required to reach the Long Trail south of Burnt Rock Mountain. At this point we turned north toward the rocky summit. The Trail had been recently cleared and was in good condition. Blazes and signs were good in this area also.

At 12:30 we had lunch on the bare top of Burnt Rock Mountain which deserves its reputation for providing one of the best views along the Trail. There are no nearby peaks except the Allens directly north. We could see the White Mountains to the east and Vermont from Lake Willoughby to Killington. To the west we could see nearly the full length of Lake Champlain but low clouds hid the Adirondaks.

Speaking of clouds, they began to drift by through the pass below us and for a while we thought we were in for another wetting but it held off till we were most home.

The Trail led by Mt. Ira Allen just under the cliffs near the top. Then came the two peaks of Ethan Allen.

As we started down Camel's Hump came into view and was visible most of the way to Montclair Glen Lodge. The Trail was good and not too rough. The Lodge was clean and in good condition. The register had been there a year. We signed it.

After a short rest we descended to Wind Gap and start of the Dean Trail out to Couching Lion Farm. We passed several beaver ponds near the Gap with some signs of fresh work.

About 6 P.M. after eight hours on the trail we reached our car and started toward home.

This wasn't so exciting a trip as the Camels Hump battle but it was a good hike on a good Trail on a good day.

NEW ARRIVAL

We have a new prospective Killington Section GMC member. Section president, Jack Martin and Janet Martin are the parents of another daughter, Nancy Lynn Martin, born on September 1st. Congratulations.

BOOK REVIEW - SWIFT IN THE NIGHT

"Swift In The Night", by H.B. Mowery is an entertaining and informative book on animals and plants. Anyone who enjoys watching foxes and rabbits, will enjoy the tales of these and other wild creatures, and most readers will be surprised to read that wolves are timid beasts. Hungry hikers will like the chapters on wild mushrooms, and on plants. Ever try fried dandelion blossoms? B.B.

SUMMER HOMES IN NATIONAL FORESTS

An article in the September issue of AMERICAN FORESTS explains how under certain conditions summer homes may be built in National Forests. When summer home sites are available in a specific Forest the location must be approved by the Forestry Service. Permits for the use of the land are issued from year to year, at a moderate fee. Restrictions and special rules vary with local conditions. An interesting idea.

COMING EVENTS

TIME - Sunday, October 21
PLACE - Mt. Okemo

Here is a short hike with a wonderful view to a mountain we have not visited for several years. The road goes to within less than one-half mile from the top, so it will be a very short hike.

The trip will leave the Meldon School at 10:30 A.M., so everyone should be able to make this one without rushing. See you there.

TIME - Saturday, November 3
PLACE - Little Rock Pond

Previous trips to this pleasant pond have usually been during Spring flower or Summer glory. This should be a chance for an "off-season" visit for those familiar with the locale, and a trip of discovery for those new to Little Rock Pond. There is a possible good view from the Green Mts., $\frac{1}{2}$ mile west.

This hike is about 4.8 mi. (2 $\frac{3}{4}$ hrs.), total, all on The Long Trail. The trip will leave Meldon at 9:30 A.M.

TIME - Sunday, November 18
PLACE - ? ? ? MYSTER HIKE ? ? ?

This relatively short hike offers one of the best views in our vicinity, weather permitting. (2 mi. 1500 ft.). We plan on leaving Meldon at 10:00 A.M., with prepared instructions for reaching the still to be revealed goal.

REMINDER

RUMMAGE SALE - OCT. 26th

We need the support of everyone to make the sale a success. Remember we will be in The Neighborhood Rooms all day Thursday, Oct. 25th, to receive your contributions. It is important to have things in that day so they are ready for sale when we open on Friday morning.

We would still like to hear from people who would be able to help on the sale, either Thursday or Friday - or both!

With our big bridge project this year we are more anxious than ever to have the sale net us a good sum to help fill up our treasury. We need plenty of things to sell, so search out everything you have no further use for and let us have it. Contact your friends too, and see if they have anything they'd like to get rid of. Here is a chance to help yourselves and us at the same time.

COWLES COVE TO BIRCH GLEN

Divided we hiked, to save the many miles we would have to drive to plant cars. One group went in from N. Fayston, and one from Hanksville. All were to meet for lunch.

For a while the N. Fayston hikers weren't sure they would ever meet. Remembering a left-hand turn at the start of the approach trail, they started up a wood road, wondering why they didn't remember the little bridge and the old lumbering jobs. They tried a side trail which promptly petered out. The main trail suddenly lost itself too. As the perplexed group started back to the beginning, they remembered a discussion about two bridges when we took this trail two weeks ago. We had crossed one bridge too many. Soon we were on the right trail with its familiar blowdowns and muddy spots. We were glad to finally see the mustard-colored blazes.

It was the warmest day for weeks, which made the ascent seem steeper than before. But the woods were lovely, with that special golden autumn glow, and views near the top colorful indeed. A pause for light refreshment near the top of the Hedgehog Brook Trail gave everyone renewed pep. The last mile to Cowles Cove was through lovely evergreen woods. There the two groups had a leisurely lunch hour, near the nice, new shelter.

The Trail beyond Cowles Cove was pleasantly varied, with the first mile a scramble over rocks and roots, and so side-hilly one wished for wamapoofus legs, temporarily, of course.

The rest of the way was through pleasant woodland, and we stopped briefly at Birch Glen.

We had far-reaching, gloriously colored views as we neared the Beane Farm, and decided nothing was nicer than a hike in the fall.

BREADLOAF HILL

Once again good weather made October 13th another good hiking day.

One car was parked at the Steam Mill site way off up in the woods north of Ripton. The other car was left at Breadloaf Summer School and six of us went up the Burnt Hill Trail to the Long Trail.

It was a long two miles up hill. The Trail was easily followed but could stand some brushing at the upper end and signs near the start.

Going north on the Long Trail, we found it had been recently worked as far as Batell Mountain. Boyce Shelter was in good condition.

The forest across this part of the Trail was almost completely blown down by the hurricanes. Now spruce and balsam are coming in and in a few years this will be a very pretty area.

At Skylight Pond, where we had lunch, we met a party from Middlebury College staying at Skyline Lodge, which was in fine condition.

Even though the air temperature was in the seventies, there was a thin coating of ice over part of the Pond at noon, believe it or not.

The slide down the Breadloaf Trail really was something! Don't ever try to go up that way with a pack. They should build a one mile ladder down from the top.

The trail was easily followed down to a lumber job but beyond that point just disappeared. We saw only two blazes and no signs in the last mile so we followed a wood road which happened to come out where we had left the car.

Too bad more people didn't come out for this one--- it wasn't too hard.

BEHOLD THE MOUNTAINS

"Behold the Mountains" by Frank Smythe, is a fine book on mountain-climbing around the world with good color photographs. Mr. Smythe climbed as high on Everest as anyone had until the last few years, and has climbed in Europe, Canadian Rockies, and on the Long Trail in Vermont. The last place was the only one in which he was hurt. He fell on a root. The book closes with fine autumn color photographs of the Rutland region. This is an exciting book, with many thrilling accounts of climbs, and is one of the most beautifully illustrated books on mountain-climbing I ever saw.

ALONG THE TRAIL

Two Killington Section members hiked the Trail between the Middlebury and Brandon Gaps recently. This was a repeat trip for one of us and we were surprised to discover how much one forgets about a section of Trail in a couple of years. After we left the Lake Pleiad area the only things which seemed familiar were the rain and Sucker Brook Shelter!

We visited the Voter-White Lodge this time and enjoyed its porch which overlooks Lake Pleiad. We reached there before the rain and the Lake was really lovely with its tapestry background of hills in fall foliage. Altogether a good trip in spite of the rain.

We continue to marvel at how other Sections seem to be able to keep registers in their shelters. We'd like to know their secret. These registers are interesting to look over, and give an idea of how much the Trail is being used, and tell of conditions found by hikers.

NATIONAL PARKS ASSOCIATION

The National Parks Assoc. is an independent, non-profit organization with nation-wide membership guarding America's heritage of scenic wilderness. It was founded in 1919, and is the publisher of NATIONAL PARKS MAGAZINE.

21,000,000 acres of the most beautiful land in America belongs to you.

Because these lands are under the protection of the Government, most people believe that they will remain inviolate, but this is not necessarily so--not so long as selfish interests seek to have bills introduced in Congress making it legal to graze livestock, cut forests, develop mines, and dam rivers for power within the parks. It is possible for a small minority working through Congress to have its way over an unorganized majority.

Through the NATIONAL PARKS MAGAZINE, you will be informed of any plans proposed that would provide profit for a few, yet would destroy the heritage of many.

HIGH SIERRA HIKE

Two of our Killington Section, California members, Bob and Thelma Perkins, spent part of their summer vacation hiking with the Sierra Mt. Club.

We think a story about hiking with that Club would be interesting to our Green Mountain Club members. How about a story, Bob or Thelma?

COMING EVENTS

Time - Saturday, Dec. 1st
Place - Beechwood - Covered Dish
 Supper

Once again it is time for our annual covered dish supper at Beechwood. We hope you will all plan to come. In order to be sure of a good variety of food we would like everyone to call Janet Martin, PR 3-8621, and tell her what you would like to bring by Friday night. It would be appreciated if you would call in the evening, if possible. Plan to come early and take a walk, or sit and chat during the afternoon. Supper will be served at 6 P.M. Please bring your own dishes and silver.

Time - Saturday, Dec. 15th
Place - Griffith Lake

This will be a new trip to most of us as we will hike to Griffith Lake by way of the Lake Trail from US 7 two miles south of Danby. According to the Guide Book this trail should be quite scenic as there are two good lookouts.

Since this is a fairly long trip - about 3.7 miles in-(3 hrs. estimate going up; 2 hrs. returning down) we will leave from Meldon School at 8:30 A.M.

RUMMAGE SALE NETS $121.03

Another successful Rummage Sale has come and gone, adding a substantial amount to Killington Section's treasury.

Each year we are pleased with the amount and type of material which comes in for the sale and hope that our members can keep on supplying us. We have a number of regular customers who watch for the GMC sale and come and buy, no matter how many other sales are in progress the same day. This keeps business good and makes us feel sure that we really offer good bargains, so the sale benefits sellers and buyers alike.

It's not too early to put aside a good big box marked "Rummage" to receive any items for which you have no further use as you finish with them. In this way you'll be ready for us when the call for Rummage goes out again next fall.

Our thanks to all who supplied material, and an extra "thank you" to "T" Valiquette, Ruth Postman, and Eleanor Walker who assisted in pricing and/or selling and cleaning up. We needed their help.

MT. OKEMO

Sunny, summer-warm weather, and an easy hike brought out several hikers on October 21st. Most of them drove to a parking lot about a half mile from the top, and had an easy hike up. Here were good picnic facilities, a fire tower with a wide though hazy view, rocks for little Carol Martin to play on, and a generally good place for relaxing. Several of the men tried to measure the fire tower, using various mathematical methods.

Meanwhile, two hikers and a dog, wishing a longer hike, had tried coming up the long way, along the ski lift. They started from a parking place at the bottom of the lift, and followed the poles, thinking this would be more direct than the winding road. It was direct, all right, directly up, a steep but peaceful ascent. Many pauses were made to enjoy the beauty of the woods, and catch the breath. During one of these pauses, a beautiful woodpecker, with glossy, ebony black, back, and a buttercup yellow spot on his head, flew into sight - the rare Artic, three-toed, woodpecker. It turns up in Vermont only once in a couple of years, though fairly common in the spruce forests of Canada. This made the whole trip worthwhile, to one of the hikers, at least.

The next question was what lay over the hill? Would it be more poles, the road, the fire tower in sight, or a dead end? The ridge in question had been in sight ever since leaving the road, but now it was finally topped, and there were more poles!!

Another ridge topped, and sight of a ski hut, but no road, no tower, just forest closing in. However, there was a map, and the hungry-by-now hikers tried to deduce how to get to the top, and started off on an old, rough, woods road. But alas! It soon plunged steeply downhill, and the pair wanted to go up. What to do? A clearing was noted, explored, and it proved to be a ski trail, going up, so it was followed. But it wound around. They were getting discouraged. Mutterings were heard that retreat might be best. A dog barking sounded hopeful, but that, too, went down the mountain, obviously a beagle hunting. Shouts brought no answer. Finally a boy and his mother were spotted ahead. They were on the trail. The old lady said it was a half mile to the tower and a rough trail, but it seemed like a boulevard after the rough ski trail, and soon the tower was in sight.

The party was then reunited, all but the two dogs, who were speedily separated. At last, at 1:30 lunch was enjoyed by the famished pair, their appetites well whetted by the spice of adventure.

After a long, leisurely, lunch hour, everybody went down the mountain, thankful for the opportunity to hike in the sunshine of a wonderful, Indian summer, day.

A SUGGESTION

Recently one of our Jr. members asked why a story of Green Mountain Club activities couldn't be written up in the Rutland Herald so that other young people would know that there is such a thing as a hiking club where young people are welcome.

We think this is a splendid suggestion, and recommend that something be done along this line.

That something could be the appointing of a Jr. as chairman to follow through with the above.

LITTLE ROCK POND TRIP

by

Rachel Bell

On November fourth at ten-thirty, a group of 22 hikers, including Girl Scout Troop Two of Dana School, left Danby for Little Rock Pond, which was a two and a half mile hike on the Long Trail, each way. It was a mild gray day; some of us hiked in shirt sleeves.

When we arrived there, we discovered a beautiful, medium-sized pond. On an island we found a lean-to and a fireplace, over which we cooked our lunch.

We also discovered an old, partly sunken row boat. When it was time to get the water, three of us ---"Captain John Smith, Pocahontas, and an Indian guide"---paddled to the other end of the pond where there was a spring. Standing up we used the primitive paddles which were in the boat for oars.

We were all sorry to leave this lovely spot just as the sun came out, but we will return some time again!

MYSTERY SOLVED

With the first fall of snow, and enthusiastic group of a dozen hikers, the destination of the Mystery Hike was found to be the Tall Timber Camping Area in Mendon.

This proved to be an ideal spot for a day in the woods, to romp and play in the snow, to take short walks on the nearby trails, and to enjoy the shelter of one of the cabins.

We were pleased to see one of our members of long standing, Bill Allard, who was doing some hunting in the area with friends.

Penny, the Bell dog, became so tired, he wanted to stay in camp for the night, but was persuaded to move on.

FOR THE BIRDS

Why not start the interesting hobby of bird watching by feeding birds this winter? These free meals will bring you enjoyment and happiness, for birds soon become daily visitors when given proper food.

Birds appreciate a variety of wholesome seeds. Seeds of sunflower, broken corn, cracked wheat, hemp, buckwheat, millet, hulled oats and certain other seeds are favorite of most birds. A little grit is need to supply calcium and phosphorus.

Outdoor seed mixtures may be bought for as little as five pounds for $1.10.

There are all types of bird feeders on the market. If you are a beginner at this fascinating hobby, why not send for a free catalog. The Hyde Bird Feeder Company of 56 Felton St., Waltham, Massachusetts will be glad to oblige.

A friend of ours with the long standing hobby of bird watching told us that he has come to notice what marked personalities the different species have. The flicker, despite his large size and formidable beak is always the perfect gentleman, so that even the little junco that is being chased off continually by the other birds will eat right alongside him without any fear. The blackbirds are crafty and smart. They are never satisfied with merely finishing the food when it is spread out on a cardboard but afterwards must also move the cardboard to see if they can find any more stray bits underneath.

Once started on this interesting project of feeding the birds, you will want to know more about them. There are books you will want to buy to help you identify your friends. There are even records of expertly recorded bird songs.

Why not get started?

SEASON'S GREETINGS

We know it's not original
And it's certainly not new,
But the staff of SMOKE &
BLAZES

Wishes you a Merry Christmas and a
HAPPY NEW YEAR

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sunday, January 6th
Place - Gov. Clement Shelter-
Snowshoe Hike

It is hoped that this hike will be blessed with a fall of beautiful, new snow, but in any event there should be plenty of snow in this area in January for a good hike that will not be too strenuous. This would be a good trip for skiers too, as it follows an old road which is not plowed in winter. Hope we'll see you there with your skis or snowshoes. We will leave the Melton School at 10:00 A.M.

Time - Saturday, January 19 or
Sunday, January 20
Place - Tucker Lodge - Moonlight
Hike.

COVERED DISH SUPPER

The annual covered dish supper was held at Beechwood on Dec. 1st. There was a good crowd of 36 for supper. About half of them came early enough to hike around a bit in the afternoon.

As usual everyone stuffed themselves on a variety of delicious dishes, including two very nice Hungarian dishes brought by Mrs. Horner. It's always nice to have something different as well as the old standbys like Mary's beans, Joe's mother's spaghetti, and Vera's lemon pies, that we enjoy every year.

The youngest hikers present, Carol Martin and Mike Keenan, even had their own table and chairs. It was good at this party to see some of our members who are not able to be with us as often as we might wish.

After supper, while a few of the ladies cleaned up, our president, Jack Martin, played his accordion and led the group in singing some old familiar songs. Then we looked back over the years to the early forties and some of Killington Section's first hikers. It was certainly amazing to see how many of our junior members had grown up into senior members.

GRIFFITH LAKE HIKE

This is the story of a hike that didn't come off. In spite of a beautiful fresh snowfall only a handful of people showed up at Meldon for the outing.

After a conference it was decided to go into Clarendon for more work on the broken sash.

This plan was carried out and the poor old Clarendon stove put on its usual good performance. We were warm and cozy even though the weather turned blustery and two of the sash were out for repairs.

One more trip to set the glass ought to put this Camp back in the excellent column. Who's going?

WANTED ! WANTED ! WANTED !

Wanted: more material for SMOKE & BLAZES. We need new writers, new viewpoints, new ideas. Too often we are putting out only three pages instead of four. There are plenty of people in the Club who could contribute material that would be of interest to all of us. If you ever did anything interesting it isn't fair to keep it to yourself.

Did you ever go on a trip? Go fishing? Get lost? Got found? Get mad? Read a book? See a movie? Watch an exciting commercial on television? Cultivate a hobby? Have an idea? Have an opinion? Care a darn about anything?

If you can answer "Yes" to any of the above let SMOKE & BLAZES have the story to pass along to the other Club members. They would be interested and maybe surprised.

ATTENTION JUNIOR MEMBERS

For loan - one pair of hiking boots, size 6-E. If interested call Janet Martin

TIPS ON WINTER HIKING

In winter it is very important to be well prepared when one hits the Trail. In summer wet feet may not feel too good but in winter it could be disastrous. Therefore, it is always a good idea to carry a couple of extra pairs of wool socks. (Wool socks are best for hiking because wool retains more of its insulating properties when wet than other fibers which become matted when wet and cause blisters and cold feet.

Another must is an extra sweater. It is better not to be too bundled up when actually hiking because you will get uncomfortably warm and wet with perspiration. When you stop you get very cold. Then is when a spare sweater will feel extra good.

A small pack is a good investment because it will hold your lunch and extra clothing. You will find it easier to hike with your hands free, you are less apt to lose your balance, and if you find you are too warm you have some place to put that jacket or sweater. You may be glad you brought later in the day.

There is no need to stay home in the winter if you dress warmly and take care to be prepared for the cold and possible wetness of winter and spring hiking.

WE'RE SORRY

In one of our frequent mental lapses we omitted the name of Sharon Krause from the list of helpers at our recent Rummage Sale. Our apologies Sharon, we did appreciate your assistance.

TIPS ON CHRISTMAS TREES

Whatever plans you have for your Christmas tree a good tree to start with is important. Some of the things which are generally considered as characteristics of a good tree are: a good green color, symmetrical shape with full bottom branches and a good top, branches stiff enough to support lights, and needles which do not drop too readily.

What kind of a tree will you choose? Personally, we always thought the spruce was the ideal Christmas tree, but the experts say fir is better, especially for indoor use as spruce sheds it's needles too rapidly. Here is how you can distinguish between the two. Firs have flat needles spaced out along the stems which, when pulled off, leave smooth oval scars. Spruce has prickly needles, square in cross section, which leave small projecting stumps when pulled off.

Of course the size tree you will choose will depend entirely on where you want to use it.

You can sometimes improve the shape a bit by adding a branch if one has broken or there bare spots. To do this, bore a hole in the trunk where you want the branch and insert one taken from a place where it will not be missed. A few slivers of wood edged in around it will make it fit tightly.

Of course the fresher your tree is the better it will keep. You can add to its keeping qualities if, when you get it home, you cut an inch diagonal slice from the stump and place your tree in a pail of cold water with a cup of sugar added. Keep it outdoors until you want to use it.

When it comes to decorating your tree, the General Electric Company offers this information on the effect of colored bulbs, which may give you some helpful lighting suggestions. Green bulbs accent the foliage color while red and yellow bulbs wash it out. The order of brightness of the bulbs is: white, orange, red, green, blue. When all colors are used at one time on a tree, using twice as many blue and green as the other colors will give the best effect.

Whatever tree you select and however you trim it, have fun.

OLD SUPERSTITUTIONS ON CHRISTMAS FOODS

Refuse mince pie at Christmas dinner and you'll have ill luck all the year.

Eat an apple at midnight on Christmas Eve and you'll have good health in the coming year.

If the loaf of bread is left on the table after the Christmas Eve celebration there will be no lack of bread in the house in the coming year.

If you do not have plum pudding at Christmas time you will lose a friend during the coming year.

A NEW YEAR'S CUSTOM

It was an old English custom to clean the chimney at New Year's so good luck for the coming year could descend.

Perhaps that is why we "clean the slate" and make New Year's resolutions.

Anyone know where the custom of not keeping them originated?

CHRISTMAS PLANTS

If you are giving plants for Christmas remember to choose those which will survive the warm, dry atmosphere of most of our homes in winter. You can't do much better than the Poinsetta or Christmas Cacti, old standbys but always welcome.

ANNUAL MEETING SET AHEAD

Time - Thursday, January 24th
Place - Riverside Reformatory
 Killington Sec. Annual Meeting

Please note this is one week earlier than the date given on our schedule due to previous booking of the reformatory.

We hope that all our members will try to make the supper and business meeting.

Supper will be served at 6:30 followed directly by a songfest.. The business meeting will be called to order about 8:00 with a short program of films after. The cost of the supper will be $1.00. If you can't make the supper try to make the meeting.

Please make reservations for supper with Janet Martin, Pr-3-8621 by the evening of the 21st of Jan. so we can advise Miss Koltonski the exact number to prepare for.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Saturday, Jan. 19th 8:30PM
Place - Tucker Lodge by Moonlight

Everyone can say a short prayer and cross their fingers for clear not too cold weather on Saturday the 19th for our moonlight hike to Tucker.

After a belated scrutiny of "the Farmer's Almanac" we find that the moon rises at 9:40 on Saturday and around 11 Sunday. So-- we'd best make our trek on Saturday. Be sure to bring your skis or snowshoes for hiking and a cup for the hot coffee and doughnuts which will be served. Hope all the romanticists will join us --- and, bring a friend.

Time - Feb. 9 Saturday, 9:30 AM
Place - Mt. Carmel

This is a new trip for winter hiking. We understand that the road is plowed as far as Mountain Top Inn so we plan to park our cars there. The hike in to Carmel Camp from there is about 3 miles with no very difficult pitches. From Carmel Camp it is 1/2 mile to the top of Mt. Carmel where a small steel tower allows a splendid view. The trip is planned to leave from Meldon.

SPECIAL

Mr. & Mrs. Horner have very kindly offered to conduct a ski class for a group of ten or a dozen members. If there is anyone interested, please notify the Horners at 12 Cottage St. City.

An Unscheduled Visit to Bell's Camp in Winter
By Karen Kennedy

The Killington Section's latest hike was on Sunday the 6th of January. After a slight delay things got underway and everyone was ready to go at 11:00 from Meldon School. The group consisted of Rachel Bell, Joe Hadeka, Jack and Janet Martin, and Mr. & Mrs. Horner. We were joined shortly by the Bells and their Girl Scouts at Bell's Camp. The hike was originally planned to go to Governor Clement Shelter in Shrewsbury for skiing and snowshoeing but as often the plans were altered because of zero weather. The group rode most of the way to Bell's Camp by station wagon and then hiked by road or the frozen lake. A fire was soon started and everyone enjoyed their lunch.

The day proved very interesting, a group of stalwarts hiked across frozen Bomoseen to the site of an old stone house on the opposite shore. Others who were equipped tried skating in front of camp. Alas, all good things must come to an end so the reluctant group headed back to Rutland at 4 PM. Thus ended a very pleasant day.

HAVE YOU NOTICED?

Have you looked recently at our "big mountains" about sunset time, especially after a new fall of snow? With their rosy peaks outlined against the sky, they look so warm and glowing it's hard to believe it's cold up there! Glimpse their frosty whiteness in the middle of the day, though, and you get quite a different feeling. Either way they are a part of winter that you shouldn't miss.

WOODS IN WINTER

Put your snowshoes in the car one of these fine, winter days and start off for a nearby woods. Even if you live near the center of town, 10 or 15 minutes will get you to where you can don snowshoes and take off over clean, unbroken snow, to enjoy the apparent solitude of the winter woods.

There is a great quietness here. You have the whole woods to yourself, or so you think, but you're wrong. Somewhere in crevices in old walls or holes in the ground, are chipmunks with their stores of nuts in semi hibernation. Skunks and woodchucks may be around somewhere even though you neither see nor hear them, as they too, hibernate to some extent. That small pool that you passed by may be the winter home of a turtle. They stay under water all winter. The crust over which your snowshoes click so lightly may cover a whole village of field mice. Wonder if they hear a noise on their roof as you walk over?

Here and there will be tracks. A snowshoe rabbit, a squirrel, or even a deer, may have passed by here not so long ago.

Visit the woods often, keep your eyes open, step lightly as you walk about these winter quarters - perhaps one day you will be rewarded by a glimpse of one of the residents.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Bob Perkins spent the weekend of January 5th with Crague and Mary Perkins. Bob was en route from Los Angeles, where he is now living, to Washington for a business conference.

Betty Ball spent Christmas with her family in Florida.

OLD TIME WEATHER FORECASTING

In Vermont the weather is a topic of never failing interest. It changed too fast to become monotonous and presents a challenge to try and predict what's coming next.

The old timers didn't depend on barometers and high and low pressure areas to foretell the weather. Instead they were guided by a variety of "sayings", supposedly developed from observation and past experience. We find a number of these recorded in copies of VERMONT WHITTIN'S, the publication of The Vermont Folklore Society.

Here are a few applicable to this time of year:

As the days begin to lengthen
The cold begins to strengthen.
(The temperature on Friday, Jan. 11 would seem to bear this out!);

Snow that comes in the "old" of the moon will last, that which comes in the "new" of the moon will melt quickly.

When the cat rushes around and chases its tail the wind will blow.

Thick skin on an onion (or apple) means a "hard" winter.

Sunset clear on Friday night, storm before Monday night.

If the snow on the road melts off, the next storm will be rain, if it blows off, the next storm will be snow. (This is reckoning without salt.)

Did you remember to observe the black and brown caterpillars last fall? No? Then we have no way of telling whether we've had our coldest weather yet or not.
If you had notices and the black was heavy on the front end that would show that the first part of the winter would be the most severe, while if it were heavy on the rear end the last part of the winter would be the worse.

Maybe Ground Hog Day will solve that problem. As you know if he sees his shadow he goes back in for six weeks more of winter. If he doesn't, there will be an early spring. As Ground Hog Day is February 2nd, it's a waste of energy for him to come and look. Anyone want to bet there won't be six more weeks of winter anyway?

For some who don't actively enjoy winter weather it might help to "while away" the time to keep a check on some of these sayings and see how much foundation they have in fact.
We'd like to hear your conclusions-if any!

"THE SINGING WILDERNESS"

THE SINGING WILDERNESS by Sigurd Olson, reviewed in the December issue of AMERICAN FORESTS, sounds like a book many GMCers would enjoy.

We have all heard some of the "music of the wilderness voices", as the spring peeper, the cricket, the robin calling for rain - a few of the more familiar ones around home.

"The SINGING WILDERNESS has to do with the calling of loons, northern lights, and the great silences of the land lying northwest of Lake Superior."

In this country travel is still by pack and canoe over the ancient trails of Indians. A hunter, fisherman, and white water canoist, Mr. Olson has travelled hundreds of miles in the North Woods. He hears music in the "soft guttering of a campfire or the beat of rain on a tent."

Sigurd Olson is writing of the joy and satisfaction to be found in the outdoors if you spend a little effort and imagination.
to discover it.

His book might help us to discover more of it right here in Vermont on our own Long Trail

KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB

Feb. 1957

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

We have had a fine year filled with many and varied activities. My thanks go to those of you who worked to make them a success.

During the coming year we look forward to completion of the new footbridge spanning the Mill River near Route 103. Tentatively a bridge dedication is planned as an activity during the main club annual meeting.

We note that our senior membership has remained steady while the junior membership has declined. Rachel Bell has agreed to act as a Junior Chairman for Publicity.

It is hoped that more joint activities can be planned like the hike with the Brattleboro Section during the year. It may be possible to invite a northern section along for our 4th of July trip.

Harold Valiquette has accepted the job of shelters chairman for this year. It is hoped that a thorough checking system will make it easier to keep all section shelters up to snuff.

Like the coming of seed catalogs we hope this year will be a fruitful and a happy one.

Jack Martin

COMING EVENTS

Winter Weekend - Feb. 23-24

Place - Craigie Perkin's Camp

Once again it is time for our annual Winter Weekend at Craigie's Camp. Those who have attended before will not want to miss this one and new members are urged to attend as this is a wonderful opportunity to really get acquainted.

Vera has volunteered to plan the meals so we know they will be delightful. Since everyone takes their turn at cooking and cleanup it is a holiday for everyone.

As usual the cost will be kept at a minimum and separate charges will be made for each meal. These will average about 50¢ per meal.

Reservations must be made with Mary Perkins by Wednesday, Feb. 20. (Tel. 3-7954) Be sure and tell her whether you plan to stay over night and which meals you wish to attend. If it will be necessary for you to come into Rutland for Church on Sun. please make arrangements for your own transportation.

Time - March 10 or 17

Place - Swezy Camp - Bourn Pond
Joint outing with the Brattleboro Section.

Donald Kent of the Brattleboro Section has written suggesting a joint snowshoe-ski hike from Swezy Camp to Bourn Pond.

We are writing him suggesting either the 10th or 17th of March. Since SMOKE & BLAZES for March probably will not reach you before the 10th, please watch the Rutland Herald, or call Jack Martin the week before the 10th to verify the date and time.

Don reports the road is open from Manchester Depot nearly to Bourn Pond. He suggests, if he can assemble some jeeps, everyone could be transported into Swezy Camp. From there to Bourn Pond is all level or easy grades so should be good terrain for snowshoes or skis.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club was held Jan. 24th at Riverside Reformatory. There were twenty-four members present for the supper and songfest.

The meeting was called to order by Pres. Jack Martin at 8:00 PM. Sec-Treas Eleanor Walker read the Sec. and Treas. reports for 1956. A copy of the Treas. report is on the fourth page of this issue of Smoke and Blazes for the benefit of those who were unable to attend the meeting. Emile Boselli reported on the progress on the Mill River Bridge. If he can get some help drilling bolt holes he hopes to have the bridge completed by the time of the Annual Meeting of the Main Club in May. If this can be accomplished it is hoped to have a formal dedication at that time.

Pres. Martin submitted a proposal for checking the condition of cabins and shelters in our Section on a semi-annual basis. The following members volunteered to take a shelter:

Buffum - Vera and Eleanor

Sunnyside - Harold Valiquette

Clarendon - Mrs. Bell's Scouts
Gov. Clement - Joe, Barbie, Betty and Tucker Holden, Rachel Bell
Cooper - Craigie
Pico - Betty Ball

These people will check the shelters for needed repairs before scheduled trips so that materials may be taken in.

The Winter Weekend outing at Craigie's Camp was set for the weekend of Feb. 23-24th. Although this is the same weekend as the Rutland Winter Carnival the majority of those present felt it was the best date. See Coming Events for further details.

Vice President Bailey is assuming the job of collecting and organizing the group of slides for the Section. Anyone with slides please get them to her as soon as possible.

Pres. Martin announced he would like a second Junior Member on the Executive Council as a Junior Publicity Chairman. Rachel Bell accepted the appointment.

Bennett Bell reported for the nominating committee. The following officers were nominated and re-elected:

President - Jack Martin

Vice President - Helen Bailey

Sec. Treas. - Eleanor Walker

The business meeting was followed by a very informative film called "Rainbow Valley" which was obtained from the National Forest Service Office.

"WELL DONE"

Congratulations to Joe Hadecka and Rachel Bell for the fine article in the Rutland Herald last month. That's the kind of publicity we can use more of.

THE MOONLIGHT HIKE

by

Barbara Allard

The night was clear, the stars were twinkling, and it was the perfect night for a moonlight hike when we went in to Tucker on January 19th.

Five nice people went in a little earlier than the others so they could start the fire and make some hot water. While they were there they spent their extra time sharpening icicles.

When the others came they were welcomed by candles in the windows and inside the soft music of a ukelele. There was a choice of drinks and also a choice of doughnuts. The crowd sang to the music of the ukelele and a harmonica that had come with someone.

Suddenly someone noticed something strange. The stove had gotten red hot along with everyone else. It began to cook the wood in the oven.

Everyone was having a nice time but it had to end so we blew out the candles, packed up the instruments and strapped on our snowshoes. And on the way out we met - Mister Moon.

SPECIAL NOTICE

If your name isn't already on the 1957 membership list- (see last page of this issue), our publishers, Cecile and Emile Boselli, have requested that you get it on as soon as possible. They have to make a new address tape for mailing your SMOKE & BLAZES. The sooner they can do this the easier it will be for them. Your cooperation would be greatly appreciated. (Dues coming in will make Treas. Eleanor Walker happy too)

TUCKER WORK TRIP

On Sunday Jan. 27th, a work party was held at Tucker Lodge, loaded with lunches, tools, glass and putty four Club members walked in over the crust without the use of snowshoes.

Broom and dust pan were applied to bunks and floors. It is remarkable how much junk accumulates between sweepings.

Then it was lunch time. Each had brought his own. Some had coffee and sandwiches while others tried fried mitten. One absent minded put chili sauce on the floor instead of on her hot dogs.

After lunch the process of digging off the hardened putty was started. One at a time the sash were worked on at the table. Of course there was room for only three workers so the poor old cripply was allowed to loaf. One of the workers tried to lay down on the job --- and broke a pane of glass. The putty was "just right" and before long Tucker boasted nine new lights of glass.

Time out for photography. "A picture is worth a thousand words".

Back to Rutland by four-thirty. A good job done and a good time enjoyed by all, When do we go again?

TAKE A LOOK

If you were at the Covered Dish Supper and wore overshoes, you might check and see if you have a mismatched pair. If you find you have, Betty Ball would be glad to hear from you. It appears that overshoes were pretty well scrambled at that party.

SNOW

ON

Vol. 10 No. 3 KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB March 1957

COMING EVENTS

Time - March 10 - Sunday
Place - Sunnyside

A trip to Sunnyside had to be substituted for the proposed joint outing with the Brattleboro Section as Don Kent felt this was too late to get into Bourn Pond as he had suggested. We haven't been to Sunnyside for some time so it is hoped there will be a good turnout.

Time - March 24 - Sunday - 6:30PM
Place - Mendon Town Grange Hall
ANNUAL SUGAR PARTY
Reservations: Jan Martin PR3-8621

Come one, come all to the Annual Sugar-on-snow Party. Make your reservations with Jan Martin by Friday March 22. The cost will be approximately 75¢ per person depending on the price of syrup this year. Jan Catozzi has agreed to be in charge of square dancing in the evening for members and their guests. So everyone get busy and see if we can't have several sets of couples organized for dancing -- Boys bring your girl and girls bring a boy and we'll all have fun.

Time - April 7 - Sunday
Place - Girl Scout Camp

Everyone who attended this hike last year will remember the beautiful walk up the Notch road to the Girl Scout Cabin. To those who didn't go, don't miss it this year. The Scouts have graciously allowed us the use of the cabin again so we hope there will be a good turnout. We will meet at Meldon School at 10:30 AM for this trip. If there are any who prefer to leave at a later time they can meet us at the cabin as we will probably stay a couple of hours.

Time - April 13 - Saturday
Place - Bird Mountain

Please note there is only one week between this and the last hike due to a conflict with Easter weekend. We will hope for good weather and no April Blizzards for this hike to one of our favorite mountains.. The group will meet at Meldon School at 10:00 AM for this trip.

YOUR NEW SCHEDULES ARE EN-CLOSED WITH THIS ISSUE

COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN MEET

The following committee chairmen for 1957 met at the home of Pres. Jack Martin to make plans for this year's activities:

Trails - Craig Perkins
Shelters - Harold Valiquette
Outings - Joe Hadeka
Publicity - Rachel Bell
Photography - Helen Bailey
Smoke and Blazes - Editor:
Janet Martin; Assist. Ed:
Vera Perkins; Publishers:
Emile and Cecile Boselli.

Also present were Sec.-Treas. Eleanor Walker, V. Pres. Helen Bailey and Pres. Jack Martin.

The following budget for 1957 was adopted:

Smoke and Blazes	$55.00
Shelters	20.00
Trails	20.00
Outing	25.00
Photography	20.00
Secretary Exp.	10.00
President Exp.	10.00
GMC Dues(Main Club)	40.00
Fire Ins.	15.00
Publicity	10.00
Bridge (completion)	10.00

The reduction in membership was discussed, especially Junior membership which has dropped considerably. Joe and Rachel agreed to study the old register books and to try and contact some of the young people who have attended our hikes in the past and also to interest other teen-agers in our activities. (Anyone who attended the Winter Weekend knows what a grand group of young people they persuaded to attend.) Senior members could help by inviting any young people they know who like to hike or camp to come on some hike with them. It was stressed that when new young people are asked to attend a specific activity, every effort should be made to see that some one they know or others their age are also planning to attend.

The new Editor of SMOKE AND BLAZES reported that Vera had agreed to stay on as Assistant Ed. and Betty Ball would continue to write book reports and articles from time to time. It is hoped that our other regular contributors will continue to help us out and that new ones may be added. Mr. Kirk has been invited to write for us and has graciously said he would if and when his health permits. We certainly hope he will be feeling stronger soon.

The meeting was closed with light refreshment and informal discussion of various problems of scheduling etc. which confront us.

SLIDE COLLECTION GETS STARTED

A meeting of several members who take pictures was held March 4t to help Photography Chairman, Helen Bailey, in her selection of slides for the collection. A group of about 40 slides was selected. It was noted that we especially need more pictures of activities; Sunnyside and Pico shelters; and fall scenes. If anyone has slides at any time please contact Helen as we want to improve and round out the scope of the collection from time to time.

Helen is now getting duplicates made of the slides selected. We will soon have a group of slides to show interested groups which will give them some idea of our activities. We hope that all members will suggest their use to their friends in other organizations. We will let you know through SMOKE AND BLAZES as soon as the collection is ready for use.

CLARENDON WORK PARTY

by
Joe Hadeka

A group of four ventured to Clarendon Lodge on Saturday, February 16th to repair the broken window latch set glass, and fix whatever needed fisin'. on the way up we soon discovered that the road was a sheet of glare ice and jumping from one bare spot to another required a sensible amount of skill, especially if you were carrying a pack full of glass. Isn't that right Craigue?

We soon arrived and found the Lodge in good condition. A smokey, smokey fire was soon smoking from the stove, but the skilled stovemanship of Barb Allard presently put warmth into the cabin and the smoke up the chimney. So, thanks to Barb a pleasant, smokeless, afternoon was enjoyed by all.

After dinner a three man team was established to screw the sashes into place. Craigue elevated Joe on his shoulders to a presentable height, then Sharon Krause, the screw holder, handed the screws up to Joe, while Barb Allard would dis tract Joe as much as possible from the inside. However, the work was soon concluded and on the way down we discovered slipping to be quite contagious. Oh, members, the next time you see Sharon ask her how her beans were!

CARMEL TRIP

Saturday, Feb. 9th while a wet day in town was a good day on the trail. The country had a good white covering and the air was mild with a promise of more snow. We left our cars at Mountain Top Inn and from there hiked along the old road to "New Boston," where we took the blue trail for Carmel Camp. Shortly before we reached camp fresh snow began slowly drifting down.

Arrived at the shelter, into which the 8 of us just barely fitted, we found evidences of frequent use by some one. There was a fine supply of good wood and a fire was soon crackling merrily, water was on to heat, and wet shoes and socks were drying out.

As there would be no view from the top of the mountain, we spent a leisurely lunch hour and then started the return journey. It looked for a bit as though this might be made in a little blizzard but the storm soon quieted down and gradually "pettered out". Our timing was perfect as just as we reached the cars it began to rain.

This was a good winter hike let's try it again sometime.

"BEARS IN MY KITCHEN"

Anyone who enjoyed the film about forest rangers at the annual meeting will enjoy this amusing and exciting book about a forest ranger and his wife, as related by the wife. Everything seemed to happen to him. He froze his feet on a winter trip in the Back country of the Sierras. He had to rescue two foolish hikers on the bare face of Half Dome. He occasionally had to fight drunken Indians, was once shot by a Mexican, and, in short, led anything but a dull life.

Misadventures of other rangers are also included. Being a ranger's wife is far from dull, too, Margaret Merrill, author, had thrilling times, driving the tortuous road from Tuolumne Meadows down, entertaining Mrs. Roosevelt, keeping a woman from suicide, and enjoying the day to day contacts with people and with wild animals.

This gives a good picture of our National Parks and the rangers who serve there.

WINTER WEEKEND

As usual, a "good time was had by all" at the winter weekend. We have it reported for you from both the junior and the senior point of view.

WINTER WEEKEND

by

Karen Kennedy & Joe Hadeka

The annual winter weekend was held on the 22, 23, and 24th of February. A large number of members attended plus a new group which included Susan Riberdy, Patsey Champney, Karen Kennedy, Frank Altrui, Dave Gouchoe, and Jack Welch, who were Joe Hadeka's guests. Another newcomer was Kate Sargent who came with Betty Ball. The new group arrived Friday afternoon and were assigned to quarters. After this Craigie showed the new guests around.

During the first evening the group hiked up to the service building and cabin on an exploration trip. Two of the members decided to spend the night at the new cabin. After a full day the group retired for the night about 11:30 P.M.

The next two days proved to be equally as interesting and exciting as the first. Kate Sargent amazed the younger members with her eccentric tales and unusual style of playing pinochle.

Delightful meals were prepared by Vera and Mary, and Craigie did his part by keeping everyone comfortable by his friendly actions.

At 7:30 P.M. Sunday the main part of the group headed back to Rutland, leaving a trail of pleasant memories behind.

WINTER WEEKEND

The senior as well as the junior members had a busy, pleasant time at the winter weekend. Some were busy in the preparing delicious meals, and special thanks go to Vera, Mary, Pearl, and Janet for their efforts in this line.

Everyone, however, had time, at some time, to go up to inspect and admire Craigie's new cabin, a beautiful job, with built-in cupboards, bunks, even bookshelves.

Although snowshoes were not necessary there was enough snow to make things beautiful. The woods were full of birds, and showed why birds hadn't needed to come to feeders this winter. The evergreens are loaded with cones, providing plenty of natural food.

Some of the hillsides were a maze of animal tracks. Red squirrels and chipmunks were seen.

The best moment of the trip, for this reporter, was on an early morning birdwalk, when the rising sun gilded the trees in the pond clearing, and a medley of bird song rang out that would have done justice to a spring day. Two purple finches tried to outdo each other, and a half a dozen goldfinches all caroled their spring song with great vehemence. A ruffled grouse drummed in the distance, and five crows flew north, all to remind us that spring would soon be here, though a crisp, winter's day, sunny and brisk like the Sunday of the winter weekend, is near perfection.

There were other pleasures beside the fun of walking, including the sociability of games and chatting with others. Bali proved a favorite as usual.

Pocie thought it dog heaven with so many hikes and people to pet and play with her.

Many thanks to Craigie and Mary for their hospitality, and to Vera for her careful planning.

We would like to add here that all agreed the presence of the junior members and guests was a real addition to the weekend fun. This was a fine group of young people, congenial and cooperative. We hope they will join us often in our activities.

IN MEMORIAM FROM
GMC SECTION SERVICE NEWSLETTER

"Loone E. Smith, President of the Green Mountain Club, died suddenly February 11, while he and his wife were in Boston for a camping meeting.

Our Club has lost a true and active worker. Mr. Smith was sincerely interested in the Long Trail and the G.M.C.

A native of Leominster, Mass., and educated in the public schools there, he graduated from the Univ. of Mass. in 1914. He immediately began a career in boy's work which has continued and developed over the years. In 1921 he started Camp Sangamon for Boys and has been active in Boys Club, Boy Scouts, 4-H, Rotary Club, Rutland Fair Assoc., Masons, School Board, MacLure Library Assoc. He was Pittsford Town Rep., 1943-46, and Supt. Weeks School 1935-37.

In all recent camp catalogs he included the Long Trail as an activity for his camping boys. Most years his boys have hiked on the Trail and usually did some specific work like repairing a shelter. Through this interest and his membership in Killington Section, he became a Trustee, being elected President last annual meeting."

Killington Section has given a copy of the book A FOOT PATH IN THE WILDERNESS and a Guide Book, in his memory, to the MacLure Library in Pittsford of which Leone was a trustee. We join with the entire club in expressing our sympathy to his wife and family.

COMING EVENTS

Time - Sunday May 5 10:30 AM

Place - Greenwall Shelter

This hike offers the interesting variety of woods, old roads and open pasture. You will cross the pasture ridge before reaching the shelter and will want to stop here for a bit and admire the excellent and extensive view.

Greenwall is an open front Forest Service Shelter just a short distance off the Trail. It's an attractive spot for a picnic lunch on what we hope will be a fine day.

The total distance on this one is only $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles so it's not too strenuous for anyone to enjoy. Let's try for a record attendance.

Time - Sat., May 18 - Breakfast

Place - Clarendon Lodge

This is a return to the schedule of an old favorite, the Pancake Breakfast. It's a go-as-you-please affair so pick your own breakfast time and bring your own "makin's for your pancakes. Coffee will be provided as usual. If you need transportation and have difficulty in arranging it call Janet Martin (3-8621) by Friday the 17th and she will help you fix things.

If you'd like to be on hand to greet the breakfasters as they arrive this is a good opportunity for an overnight. Plan to spend the day as there is plenty which can be done in that area. Just what the day's activities will be will depend on weather conditions etc.

Of course there is no law which says you must have pancakes for breakfast, but who can think of anything better? See you at breakfast on May 18th.

HAVE YOU THE 1956 GUIDE BOOK?

Just another reminder to get your copy of the 1956 edition of the Guide Book from Eleanor Walker. Each copy she sells nets a small profit for our section but to get them at the discount she has to buy 10 copies at a time. Eleanor now has 10 copies on hand and would be very glad to sell some.

COMING ARTICLE

Our next issue will have a story on Killington Section members "The Bells" trip to Florida.

WARNING

THIS IS YOUR LAST ISSUE OF S&B UNTIL YOUR NAME GETS ON THE 1957 LIS

SUNNYSIDE HIKE

Sunday, March 10th was a perfect day for the only winter hike to Sunnyside we had this season. There was quite a spring storm of wet, rapidly melting snow in the city on Saturday the 9th. As we climbed the hills from Cuttingsville toward Sunnyside, however, we found 4 or 5 inches of nice, fluffy snow. A couple of die-hard snowshoers had brought along their snowshoes and were able to use them to good advantage after we left the Spring Lake Ranch Road.

Arrived at Sunnyside we found too much evidence of former users as is all too often the case. Apparently no one had even looked for the dump and there was a variety of left-over food and miscellaneous rubbish scattered about. Probably we should be thankful that at least they hadn't thrown it all around the door-yard, as is so frequently the case at Tucker. How can we train these people? One group pitched in picking up rubbish and taking turns wielding the broom and in a comparatively short time it looked like a different camp. During this interval the wood and fire squad had been busy and we were soon enjoying a cozy lunch around the stove.

As usual, after lunch the talk turned to things we hoped to do at Sunnyside (some of these were speedily carried out the next weekend) and to trail work in general.

Some of the party took a hike over to Spring Lake, some going only as far as the hilltop for the view and others going on to the Lake itself.

The return trip to the cars was accomplished without mishap, although the slippery road made walking hazardous in spots and produces some impromptu gymnastics at times. When we could take our attention off our feet we admired the view and all agreed that a trip to Sunnyside makes an excellent winter outing.

GIRL SCOUT CAMP

BY Joe Hadoka

A party of ten met at Mel-don School on Sunday, April 7th. In spite of the few clouds that were floating above it looked like a very promising day. This year we missed the snow and Mrs. Bell's Girl Scouts, but we soon were climbing the hill to "the Notch" with no thought in mind but to reach camp. After an hour of climbing we arrived. We opened the Rotary Building and Craiguo went to get wood. Emile soon started a fire while Churchill Scott and Dave Gouchoc opened the shutters. By the time all had completed their little tasks coffee water was hot and we sat down to enjoy lunch. Some lounged around after lunch while others took short walks around the camp area.

About 4 o'clock we headed back toward home. Craiguo thought we were on a freeway there was so much traffic on the way down. When we reached our cars at the crossroads, the party split up, looking forward to Bird Mountain next week.

VERMONT DIARY

Some of you may have read the delightful diary put out several years ago by this same Middlebury College librarian, Viola White. That was called "No faster than a walk".

This enjoyable book has the same sense of quiet beauty in it, the same appreciation of nature, shows the pleasures of walking, tells briefly of good books. The author has learned to find happiness in simple things, and imparts her joy in living, in fine and descriptive writing.

SUNNYSIDE WORK PARTY

On St. Patrick's Day In The Morning a work party of seven (7 count 8em) drove as far as Sarcka's and walked the rest of the way in to Sunnyside. There were three Old Timers, two Once Beforers and two First Time Outers.

Everybody was full of energy and got busy getting water, sawing wood, build ing the fire, and picking up around camp. Sash were removed and the very tire-some task of digging out the old putty began.

Just about then somebody said "Well look who's here", and Fuzzy (Man Mountain) Miller walked in carrying a big arm-ful of hard wood ready for the stove. He had bummed his way from Rutland to the gorge and hiked in over the Trail. (How about that?)

Fuzz proved to be an expert glass setter and the ten new lights were finally all in. One sash, completely repaired, was dropped flat on top of the wood pile. Not a pane broke! The Luck of the Irish, it is !

Later in the afternoon some of the party explored the countryside, Fuzz started back the way he had come, and more picking up was done around the camp.

During the day the road had thawed out considerably and we were lucky to just barely pull through the mud holes coming out.

Yes, girls, those strange animals were pigs.

Another good job done and a pleasant day all 'round. When do we go again?

GREETINGS FROM R.I.

Mr. & Mrs. Emery Horner sent greetings to their hiker friends from Pawtucket, R.I. where they are now living.

SUGAR-ON-SNOW PARTY

Rachel Bell

It was a pleasant evening when forty people gathered on March 24th at the Grange Hall in Mendon for the Annual Sugar-on-Snow Party. Many were a bit skeptical about where the snow would come from, but it appeared on time, thanks to Joe Hadeka, Bob Paul, and Jack Martin who "mined" it in Mendon.

Of the forty persons present half were adults, fourteen were teenagers and the rest toddlers. Barbara Simpson of New York was a guest.

Donuts and pickles, cokes and coffee were served with the sugar-on-snow. The kitchen duties were handled by Vera Perkins and Eleanor Walker on preparation and Janet Martin, Helen Bailey and Mary Perkins on cleanup.

After we had our fill of sweet stuff we went upstairs for some lively square dancing. Getty Page and Janice Catozzi were very successful in leading this activity. Kind of them to have volunteered. For variety we danced "Rock around the Clock" and the "hokey pokey".

Everyone had a splendid evening. We want to thank the folks who worked hard in order to give us such a good time.

SMOKEY SAYS

"Be Careful With Matches And Fire"

The number of times the fire truck has been by our house in the past few weeks has prompted me to do a little reading up on the subject of fires. We are more apt to think of late summer and fall as the dangerous times of year for fires. Actually there are more fires in April and May according to figures I obtained from the State Forestry Office, thus it is perhaps a good time to review some of the rules for fire building. To quote from our own guide Book:

"Where a stove is provided, it is advisable not to store kindling near it. The fire should be allowed to burn out before leaving. Avoid using water, which may crack the stove.

"On State land, fires may not be built except in authorized fireplaces. In the GM National forest permits are needed for fires except at the shelters.

"A State law prohibits the building of fires on private property between April 1 and November 1 without the consent of the owner. The existence of a shelter means that consent has been given to build fires in the stoves and fireplaces there, and these are the places where fires should be built.

"Of course, even if owner permission has been granted, safe locations should be chosen and safe procedures followed. Mineral matter - sand, gravel, rock - is a safe base if the fire is kept within bounds. However, vegetable soil, roots, needles, stumps, etc are not safe. In dry weather such a fire could be carried underground by smouldering humus and later come to the surface and be fanned into flame by the wind. In any case, the thorough extinguishing of a fire, stirring the ashes and making sure they are cold, is essential to safety. For obvious reasons, fires no larger than necessary are desirable.

"It is well to remember that one serious fire might have a disastrous effect on the good relations the GMC has with land owners, by whose courtesy the Long Trail exists. Within a few years, several Long Trail shelters have burned. Fortunately, weather conditions were such that no forest fires resulted. But hikers were inconvenienced, and the rebuilding cost the Club considerable money and labor. If a little more care had been taken, these expenditures could have been used clearing miles of trail and repairing many shelters."

BIRDS OF THE LONG TRAIL

I believe the commonest year-round bird on the Long Trail is the black-capped chickadee. Everybody knows his lively winter song, but fewer know the spring, clear whistled "phoe-be" The true phoebe has a similar two-parted call, but it is much harsher, and huskier. The phoebe is the little gray bird that always wags its tail. It nests on buildings sometimes, on Clarendon Shelter, I think, and under bridges, and can be found on roadsides, and near homes.

Another tail-wagger is our state bird, the hermit thrush. This thrush has a reddish tail, that it raises and lowers slowly, rather than the gay wag of a phoebe. This is the bird that gives the lovely flute-like song with every phrase repeated higher and higher, singing especially as evening deepens in the deep woods.

Another evening singer is the wood thrush, with a reddish head instead of tail, and larger spots on the breast. This bird sings nearer towns, and in woods of lower elevations.

The most beautiful singer, to my mind, is the tiny winter wren, a small, brown mite that has a bubbling, rippling song that goes on and on and on, often heard in the mountains, especially near mountain brooks.

One bird always found on the mountains and easily seen is the slate-colored junco, with gray breast and back, and white outer tail feathers. They will be migrating in large flocks in late April, sometimes hundreds in a flock, and nest on all our mountains. They have a pleasant trill. They can easily be told by their flashing tail-feathers.

Flashing outer white tail-feathers also tell a meadowlark at a distance, along with his jerky wing-beat. A close view reveals a yellow breast, and black crescent.

Another bird easily told in flight is the flicker, with his typical woodpecker undulating flight, and white rump. This brown-backed bird spends some time on the ground eating ants. He also has a black crescent on a yellowish breast. Like many of the woodpeckers he has a spot of red on the head. The largest of the woodpeckers, the pileated, has a flashing red crest, and is crow-sized. He is seen several times a year in these parts. You can tell where he has been working because he leaves great oblong holes in the tree trunk Another bird that leaves signs of his presence is the yellow-bellied sapsucker, who drills rows of tiny holes in a trunk, and comes back for the sap. This bird can be most easily told by his vertical wing stripe, and his red throat and top of head.

Woodpeckers are easy to find because they give away their presence with their loud pecking.

The ruffled grouse also reveals his presence with his rolling drumming, done with his wings. It is very difficult to see him drum, unless you have a blind near a drumming log, as Henry Potter of Chippenhook has. This bird is often seen in our woods, though, usually as it flies up with a roar. The female is adept at the broken-wing act to protect her young, leading the observer away by pretending to be hurt, and then flying off. Meanwhile, her chicks have hidden themselves so well that it is practically impossible to find them.

The killdeer, a bird of open fields, is apt to do the broken-wing act, too. This handsome plover has two black rings on his chest, pointed wings, and is often seen flying swiftly over a field, crying "kill-dee, kill-dee."

These are just a few of the common birds that may be seen along the trail.

COMING EVENTS

On May 8 the Governor ordered the woods closed due to their tinder dry condition. Therefore hikes will only take place if it rains sufficiently so that they are opened again by the scheduled dates. Watch the Herald for further information.

Time - Saturday May 25 9:30 a.m.
Place - Pico Peak and Shelter

This will be a chance to get up on the mountain and also to get our section of trail in order for the summer hiking season. It has been some time since we've had a trip to Pico so we hope there will be a good turnout. There shouldn't be too much trail work to do since the Patrol was over this section last summer. However the shelter may need a bit of spring cleaning! We will meet at Meldon at 9:30 A.M.

Time - Sat. and Sun. June 1-2
Place - G.M.C. Annual Meeting

The Annual Meeting of the Green Mountain Club will be held in the Baptist Church Rooms and the Long Trail Lodge. Due to the fact the Lodge is unable to accommodate us Sat. morning and at lunch time the meetings and lunch will be held at the Church.

The morning meeting will open at 10:00 o'clock with a coffee hour; followed by the morning meeting at 11:00. Lunch will be served by the ladies of the church at 1:00 and will be followed by the afternoon meeting about 2:00. As in past years, dinner will be served at the Long Trail Lodge at 6:30 P.M. There should be time for a short hike in the afternoon.

On Sunday we have planned to have a dedication ceremony at the bridge over Clarendon Gorge that Emile has been working on so diligently. There will be time and opportunity afterward for hiking either to Clarendon Shelter or Sunnyside for lunch. The dedication will be at 11:00 A.M.

Time - June 15 Sat at 9:30 A.M.
Place - Governor Clement Shelter

This is another of our spring trail checking hikes but also a good trip for those who don't want too strenuous a hike. We will meet at Meldon School at 9:30 for this trip also. Those who find a later hour better can meet the group there for lunch.

BIRD MOUNTAIN

by Joe Hadoka

A promising sky on April 13th provided a beautiful day for our Bird Mountain trip. As everyone knows this mountain usually brings rain or gloomy skies when everybody reaches the top to look at the extensive view. But for the few that climbed to the top a clear view was their reward for the steep pitch. Rachel Bell, Susan Ribordy, Vera Perkins, Eleanor Walker, Betty Ball, and Pokio, Dave Gouchoo, Fuzz Miller and two new boys, Bill Egan and Dan Onion both from Castleton attended. Jack and Janet Martin drove over with us but were unable to attend the hike. There was two inches of snow on top and that's all we ran into. Everyone tried their luck at building a fire but no one succeeded until Vera tried her luck and experience. Soon the water was boiling and everyone ate their lunch. Soon after we left for the cars and a welcoming committee of six dogs plus one three legged one gaily greeted us. Soon after an exciting brawl we were on our way. We finally climbed Bird on clear day, too bad you missed it gang.

MAY

May be chill, may be mild,
May pour, may snow,
May be still, may be wild,
May lower, may glow,
May freeze, may burn,
May be gold, may be gray,
May do all these in turn-
May May.

HIKE TO GREENWALL

Sunday, May 5th, was recognized as a perfect day for a hike by 18 members who met at Meldon school at 10:00 A.M. for the Greenwall trip.

Cars were left at the point where the Trail crosses the Wallingford-East Wallingford "gulf" road. Here we learned for the first time that the people living in the house at the "crossing" were keeping up a register of hikers started by the former residents. Of course they don't get them all, but a quick glance through the pages showed an impressive number of hikers with many states represented. This register went back more than 20 years.

The woods were already putting on their spring flower show with the delicately striped spring beauties, yellow woods violets, and adder's tongues in especial abundance.

Some of the crowd forged ahead swiftly, but most of us took a leisurely pace enjoying the variety of terrain which this hike offers. One of our young members, Carol Martin, who has been hiking with us for a couple years via pack-basket, had fun doing part of this hike on her own, while sister Nancy, age 8 mos., seemed to enjoy her first pack-basket trip.

After a leisurely lunch hour at Greenwall, some mustered up ambition to go the white rocks look-out, but the temptation to take-it-easy was too much for others who spent a pleasant afternoon talking and loafing in the sun.

On the return trip we paused to enjoy again the gorgeous view from the hill pasture which we cross on this trip. When we reached the cars all agreed we could think of no nicer way to have spent the day.

FAMILY JAUNT TO FLORIDA

By Mim Bell

On twenty-four hours' notice the Bells-Ben, Mim, Rachel and Charlotte- went on a southern safari, thirty-five hundred miles in twenty days.

The gear included a Ford station wagon; a "Stowaway" carrier, Wardrobe case, suitcases, two sleeping bags with air mattresses, water jug, thermos, plastic dishes, electric hot plate, canned food, tour guides, a notebook for a log of the trip, and money of course.

Interesting stops included The Motel on the Mountain at Suffern N.Y. the Annapolis Campus; Lee's home in Richmond; Williamsburg and William and Mary College; Norfolk and Virginia Beach; the ferry trip across the Chesapeake Bay; beautiful Washington DC; quaint old New Castle Del; The negro country in the sand hills central section of the Carolinas and the coastal elegance of Charleston and Myrtle Beach; Savannah (Juliette Low's home and the Pirate's Den); the cotton fields and pecan groves of Georgia; old Spanish St. Augustine, with Ripley's Believe It Or Not Museum and the little train to take us around town Castillo San Marcos and the oldest house and school in America; Marine Land, where the trained dolphin jumped 16ft through a hoop for his fish and we saw the sharks fed by hand; driving along the sand at Daytona Beach; watching the spectacular kite flight 60ft. in the air on water skis at Cypress Gardens; Rollins College at Winter Park; the endless groves of citrus trees; a barbeque with friends in their patio in West Palm Beach; beaching and swimming in the olympic-sized salt water pool at the Colonnades in Palm Beach Shores; wonderful meals and entertainment there--dancing, a magician, bingo and movies; a visit to an interesting reptile farm with snakes and alligators; and everywhere the lush palms and flowers of the tropics; the warm Florida sunshine and feeling of gaiety and relaxation.

Going that way without reservations, we were twice glad of the sleeping bags and mattresses for the girls when we found in two places only one room left. Another way we used them was for night travelling. When we wanted to roll off a hundred miles after supper, we put the back seat down and spread out the sleeping bags and air mattresses (quickly blown up at the nearest gas station) and they rested comfortably while we drove.

We planned ten hours of travelling and sightseeing a day, ten hours in bed, and the other four hours were for dressing and meals. We were actually more rested when we reached Florida than when we started, for we were too excited to sleep much the night before we left. We geared our speed to Charlotte's need of ten hours sleep and the rest was good for the older ones as well. We made about 350 miles a day unless we wanted to stop to see spots of especial historic interest or great beauty. We cooked about one meal a day in the motel, either breakfast or supper, but never more than that because we wanted to taste the cooking specialties of each region and to talk with the local people. Our southern clothes were in the car top carrier out of the way on the way down and back and our winter coats and overshoes were up there while we spent the week in Florida.

We felt this a most educational kind of family trip to make--worth the time and money many times over. By taking Route 301 down and Route 17 back we really saw those states along the way, and now when we sing "Carry Me Back To Old Virginny", "Carolina Moon Keep Shining", "Way Down Upon The Swannoe River" we know what we're singing about.

JUNE 1957

COMING EVENTS

Time: Sun -- June 30

Place: Clarendon and Fox Lot

This is the last of the scheduled work parties so we hope that there will be a good turnout even though Clarendon was visited only a month ago. The Fox Lot which we plan to visit on this trip is a part of what is sometimes called "Flat Top" mountain east of Clarendon. From this vantage point, a splendid view of the Otter Creek and its valley can be obtained. Trail work will consist of working North from Beacon Hill. The meeting time at Meldon for this hike is 10:30.

Time: Sat - July 13

Place: Little Rock Pond

Pack your bathing suit or your fishing pole and join us for a hike to Little Rock Pond with its jewel-like setting in the highlands of the Green Mountains. Come along even if you don't swim or fish as this is fine spot to loaf and cool your feet after an hour on the trail. We will meet early at 9:30 at our Meldon School rendezvous a day's outing.

NEWS OF MEMBERS

Killington Section President Jack Martin was elected a trustee of the GMC at the Spring meeting of the Board of Trustees to finish out the one year unexpired term of Leona Smith. At the annual meeting he was appointed chairman of publicity and Membership for the near club. Those of you who attended the meeting at the Baptist Church rooms saw the display of GMC and Conservation material which he arranged. You probably noticed the articles and photographs which appeared in the Rutland Herald the following week about the meeting and bridge opening. Mr Merusi promised a copy of the pictures for our own Killington Section Albums. Our congratulations and wishes for success, Jack.

We hope that you saw the fine display which the main office put on in the window of Wilson's Clothing store publicising the Green Mountain Club. We might add that all can help GMC by talking to one's friends about our work and trips, and by requesting showings of the slide collections of the main club and of our section. The section slides are now at Jack's house due to the resignation of Helen Bailey who leaves Rutland for Springfield, Mass. Good Luck and hiking to you, Helen.

GMC OPENS SUSPENSION FOOTBRIDGE

Sunday, June 2nd was a day we had looked forward to for a long time and it was disappointing to wake that morning to the sound of pouring rain. This was the day set for the opening of our new bridge over Mill River. Hopefulley we recalled the old adage, "Rain before seven, clear before eleven." However as eleven o'clock approached it became evident that something had gone wrong somewhere. There was no sign of clearing.

As the bridge opening appeared to be rained out, we decided to take our lunches and join forces with the GMCers who had spent the night at Craigue's Camp. The camp living room with its cheery fireplace fire was an ideal spot for a rainy day. Jack Martin showed the newly assembled Killington slide collection and Emile had excellent slides showing the bridge at various stages of construction.

Soon after lunch the weather showed definite signs of clearing, so at 3:30 P.M. a group of GMCers were on and at the new suspension footbridge for its official opening.

This bridge is important as a link in the 2050 mile Appalachian trail from Maine to Georgia as well as being a part of the 260 mile Long Trail which runs the length of our own Green Mountain chain. Carol Martin, youngest hiking member of the section was assisted in the ribbon cutting ceremony by Jack Martin, Arthur Koerber and the builders of the bridge, Emile and Cele Boselli.

Killington Section presented Cele and Emile with a colored picture of Mt. Mansfield (Emile's favorite mountain) and a copy of the TREASURY OF VERMONT LIFE, and a token of their appreciation.

PICO SHELTER AND KILLINGTON

By John J. Welch 111

On May 26 the Green Mountain Club hiked up to Pico Shelter. Members of the hiking party, who hiked the two and one-half mile trail to the lodge, were Joseph Hadeka, Jack Welch, Ervols Altrui, Tom Gilbert, Karen Kennedy Paul Anderson, and Betty Brown. Also a few novice hikers accompanied the party. Their names were James Hadeka, Peter Altrui, Robert Leonard, and Gary Blue. The troop was of course accompanied by Craigue Perkins. Joe and Jack were the first members of the party to reach the lodge. The others arrived about 20 minutes later. There the whole party remained, had lunch, and rested.

Jack and Joe then set out alone to hike Killington Mountain. On the way to the summit they met another group of hikers who were spending the night at Cooper Lodge just below the summit of Killington.

The rest of the party set out for the lookout station at the top of Mt. Pico. The party remained a little while before Mr. Perkins drove them home.

According to the schedule set up by Mr. Perkins and the boys he would take the girls home and then pick up the two boys at Brewets Corners and the bottom of Killington at 6:30. They made it with plenty of time to spare---about an hour!

All in all it was a very exciting hike. We all had a great time and are looking forward to another real soon. Anyone interested in attending these hikes is more than welcome and I am sure that they too will find Mr. Perkins a most friendly fellow.

PANCAKE BREAKFAST

BY

Joe Hadeka

This year like last, an overnight crew hiked in to Clarendon on Friday night. The only chapetone was Craigie who accompanied Susan Riberdy, Karen Kennedy, Patsy Chupney, Gena Leonard, Frank Altrui, Dave Gouchoe, and Joe Hadeka. We all were settled by 10:00 PM as stragglers came from after shhool to 10:00 o'clock. At 2 A.M. Saturday morning all were in bed and around 3 o'clock were all quiet. The reason why we stayed up so late was to celebrate Dave Gouchoe's birthday, I guess.

At 7 A.M. we awoke and the only one to have pancakes in that group was Craigie. Around 8 o'clock the cheerful "ruff-ruff" of Pocie could be heard coming up the path. He was followed by Betty and Marie Gray who recently returned from Florida. Later on more members arrived including President Martin and family.

Short walks were taken to the Gorge where we visited Emile who was busily working on the bridge and disturbed the fishermen as much as we could. We all enjoyed our weekend and hope you did too.

TRAIL CHECKING

Trails chairman, Craigie Perkins, made a trip to Cooper Lodge via The Trail from Clement Shelter.

He reported that though the road is a bit rough there is no difficulty in driving a car in to Clement. He found Clement clean, and in reasonably good condition. The top of the chimney here needs repair.

From Clement on to Cooper there is plenty of brushing out to be done above Gov. Clement but the trail can be followed without difficulty.

In the vicinity of Cooper Lodge the birch leaves are just coming out and the general appearance is of early spring.

Cooper Lodge was in good order, but the stove pipe here is down and a trip to Cooper will be necessary with materials to make the needed replacement.

A DAY AT GOV. CLEMENT SHELTER

On Staurday, June 15th, eight people found Gov. Clement a good place to spend a hot day. There was a cool breeze most of the day, and, even more cooling, the icy waters of Cold River.

Even tho we drove way in to the shelter- (the fact that we were taking in the "makings" for a new picnic table furnished the excuse for this) - we got our exercise after we arrived. There was brush to be cut and cleared away and the usual odd and ends to be picked up. Some went to work on this while Craigie built the table which was ready for use at lunch time. After lunch, work was resumed with Craigie and Jack Martin as the most steady workers. The rest of us alternated working and resting with the rest periods predominating.

It is amazing how much can be accomplished around a shelter in a day of moderate work by a few people- and what a good time can be had in the process.

ANNUAL MEETING OF
THE GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB, INC
JUNE 1-2, 1957

Following a ten o'clock coffee hour, the G.M.C. annual meeting was called to order at 11 AM in the Baptist Church rooms in Rutland. The Secretary's report was given by Mrs Lillian P Lodge of Union, N.J. The Treasurer's report was given by Ted n. Goddard of Old Bennington. Section Presidents reported as follows: Jack Martin for the Killington Section; Rod Rice for the Burlington Section; Don Kent for the Brattleboro Section. John Paulson of the Bennington Section reported for his group. Reports by letter were received from the Barre, Montpelier, and Middlebury Sections. Miss Francis Green spoke for the Worcester Section and introduced Mr. and Mrs. Fieldsends who were to speak at the evening meeting. Speaking for the New York Section was Mrs. Laura Woodward Abbott of New York, the woman for whom Laura Woodward Shelter near Jay Peak was named. She has been a member since 1916. Killington Section member George Kirk was the only other member present who has been a member that long.

It was announced that seven persons had earned their End-to-Enders awards during the past year. The Guide Book committee reported that the next revision will be put forth two years hence. One special feature of the meeting was display of GMC publications and Conservation materials arranged by trustees Louise Goeres and Jack Martin.

Unanimously reelected to office were Mr. Ted Goddard of Newfane as Clerk and Miss Minerva Hinchey of Rutland as Corresponding secretary, and the following trustees: Paul Newcomb of Rutland Larry Dean of Burlington, Arthur Koerber of Pittsfield, Mass., Alan Gormly of Holden, Mass. AND Miss Louise Goeres of North Haledon, N.J. A resolution was read and adopted in homage to Mr. Leone Smith of Pittsford the GMC President who died this year.

While the trustees were meeting at the Long Trail Lodge in the afternoon, several members took hikes in the vicinity of Pico and Blue Ridge. At the trustees meeting, the following officers were elected: Treas: Arthur Koerber, Pittsfield, Mass. V-Pres: Ted Talbot, Burlington, Del., Treas: Ted Goddard, Old Bennington, Auditor: Minerva Hinchey, East Old Mill Pond, Union, N.J. Matters discussed and disposed of by the trustees included, the procurement of uniform registers for all shelters on the LT, assignment of trail maintenance to particular sections of the club, the problem of suitable and uniform trail-highway crossing signs, and the appointment of committees. Their meeting closed with the designation of a Long Trail conference and trustees meeting on Nov 2nd.

The business of the day being completed, the group was ready for an evening of sociability. This began with dinner at Long Trail Lodge at 6:30 P.M. Following dinner everyone found comfortable chairs in the Chalet lounge, and started the evening off with community singing of Long Trail songs, Louise Goeres, "Mim" and "Ben" Bell led the singing. The main feature of the evening program was the showing by Mr. Fieldsends of some of his beautiful colored slides of Vermont scenes.

Thanks are due to the chairman of the committee for the Annual Meeting, Mrs. Lillian Lodge, for a most enjoyable day.

Our next GMC get-together will be the Intersectional to be held in the Mt. Mansfield area on Aug. 17-18. We'll give you more details later, but save those dates and plan to attend.

Killington Section Green Mountain Club

July 1957

COMING EVENTS

Time: Sunday, July 28

Place: C V Camp, Chittenden

We hope we'll see you all at this annual affair and that we will have a warm and pleasant day for swimming, sitting, and chatting, and of course eating. So, pack your lunch and your swim suit and join in the fun. This is an outing enjoyed by old and young alike. We will meet at the Nelson School at 10:00 A.M.. Those who can't go until later just come along when you can. Why not ask your folks along on this one, Junior members! I'm sure they would enjoy this outing too.

Time: Saturday, Aug. 10

Place: Lincoln Gap to Breadloaf

This outing was scheduled particularly for those who are seeking to complete the entire length of The Trail for an End-to-End award, but I'm sure it will be a worthwhile trip for anyone to make whether they have done a lot or a little.

This section includes several good sized mountains. Mt. Grant, elev. 3861 ft; Mt. Cleveland, 3500 ft; Mt. Roosevelt, 3580 ft; and Mt. Wilson, 3758 ft.

Since this is a long trip,

(a little over 12 miles), and a long drive, an early start is planned. For this reason and the fact a car must be planted where the group will come out, those who wish to go should contact Vera Perkins (AR 3-2941) before Friday, August 9th so that arrangements can be made.

Time: August 17 - 18

Place: Intersectional
Mount Mansfield Area

The details on this trip have not reached us yet from Don Havens of Burlington, so look for complete details in your Aug. 31 ONE AND BLAZES. Trips to the Mansfield area have always been great favorites so why not plan to attend and make Killington Section's group one of the largest.

NEWS FROM CALIFORNIA

We hear that Officer Bob Perkins has been at the highest point in the U.S. - Mt. Whitney (elev. 14,495 ft.). He hiked in 9 miles and made a base camp at timber line and then went to the top of the mountain and back to camp the next day. We have asked Bob for a story on his trip and hope to have it in time for your August issue of ONE AND BLAZES. If it doesn't arrive in time for that watch for it in a later issue.

SPECIAL NOTICE

As your editor I am very sorry to have to announce that our printers, Ceile and Smile have asked to be relieved of their duties since they are planning to leave Rutland in the near future. We certainly will be sorry to see them go and we wish them the best of luck.

Their resignation leaves us very short handed and unless some of you folks will help us out I'm afraid the paper will have to be curtailed to a one or two page news sheet if it can be continued at all. We hate to do this so won't some of you volunteer to help us out?

What we need is someone to cut the stencils and run off the paper. The first is necessary because I can't seem to get onto speaking terms with Jack's typewriter - granted I'm a poor typist anyway but sometimes I think the thing is a "one man" machine since when I use it it continually skips spaces, gets capitals out of line, and generally behaves like an unruly beast. The second problem is that I have no mimeograph -- Craigue has offered the use of his but we need someone to run them off since I can't do it by remote control and besides it would hardly be safe to let Carol and Nancy in on the production. So---- how about some volunteers? The work can be divided among several. Call me at RR 3-0621 or Vera at 3-2941 right away.

STOVE PIPE INSTALLED

If you happen to arrive at Cooper Lodge, Millington, some cold, wet night, you should find everything in order for your comfort.

Craigue Perkins, Joe Madeka, and a cousin of Joe's made a trip there a short time ago to install the needed stovepipe. On this same trip they also replaced a window sash which someone had removed.

LITTLE ROCK FOND

by

Judy Allard

At 9:30 A.M. on Saturday, July 13, a group of 14 left from Meldon School for Little Rock Pond, on what appeared to be a dreary day. During the 2 1/2 mile hike in, the sky started to clear. By the time the pond was reached it was all cleared and the sun was shining brightly. Craigue Perkins brought the rubber boat in and it was used almost every minute- (except, of course, at meal time). When we got there we found a group of Eagle Boy Scouts from Quincy, Mass., staying for a week in the shelter. Later another group came in to stay over. A few of us went in swimming and the water wasn't too cold! As we started back the sky clouded over again.

We all had a wonderful and joyous day at Little Rock Pond.

"SEAL MORNING"

"Seal Morning" by Rowena Farre is the entertaining account of life in a remote croft in the Scotch Highlands. Rowena and her aunt were 7 miles from the nearest neighbor, but had enough animals to keep them from being lonesome; with a baby seal, two otters, two squirrels, and even a pet rat. They often hiked in the high misty moors and mountains, sometimes dangerous when fog came up. Once Rowena went on a 5 day hike alone across the wilderness, having little left to eat when she finally came out again to civilization. Rowena and her aunt had little money, but found joy in simple things, and this book is full of the happiness found in the world of out-of-doors. This should appeal to G.O.Cers.

SMOKE

AND BLAZES

Vol. 10 No. 8 & 9

KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB

Aug.-Sept. 1951

CO. HIG EVENTS

TIME: Sunday, Sept. 15, 10 A.M.

PLACE: Harwood Pond

This National Forest recreation area is a beautiful spot. From the pond we can follow a USFS road to Mad Tom Notch and Mad Tom Notch Shelter (2½ mi.). There we can have lunch or if ambition prevails we can go on to the summit of Styles Peak (Elev. 3404) from which there is an excellent lookout.

We will leave Feldon School at 10:00 A.M. This is a new trip on our schedule so all you young adventurers come and enjoy this outing. The trip can be as much of a jaunt as you wish to make it.

TIME: Sat. - Sept. 22, 9:00 A.M.

PLACE: Gov. Clement to Cooper Lodge to Shrewsbury Peak.

A Killington Peak trip in the Fall is always a beautiful one. Due to recent lumber operation in the vicinity of Gov. Clement it is possible to drive to the shelter, with care. From there it is 4.1 mi. to Cooper Lodge, (3½ hr.). After about a mile on the return trip a side trail takes us over the summit of Shrewsbury Peak where more fine views should present themselves before our descent to Northam and the home trip.

The return from Cooper is only a half mile longer than to Gov. Clement with a 2½ hr. time estimate. Total hiking time is less than six hours with added time for meals and viewing. The fall foliage should be at or near its high point and the cool autumn weather makes for ideal hiking. Dig out your boots or sturdy shoes and join us.

NOTICE

New schedule cards are enclosed with this issue of SMOKE AND BLAZES. If you know of anyone who might be interested in extra schedules notify President Jack Martin, or Outing Chairman, Joe Madeka or Publicity Chairman, Rachel Bell.

We hope that as many of you as possible can find time to come out for one or more of the events which you find listed on the card. Place your schedule by the 'phone where it will be noticed and handy.

If you look inside a cloud you are supposed to find a silver lining. More likely you'll find our four would-be End-to-Enders.

Yea, we did it again! Started south from Lincoln Gap in the pouring rain. There were only a few real showers during the day. The rest of the time it rained steadily. It was only during the first five minutes that we were getting wet.

The Trail climbed steeply out of the Pass to what should have been a look-out. We decided it would make a good objective for a half-day hike sometime.

Part way up Mt. Grant the Trail followed an old wood road through what is now known as "Hallow Hollow". We noticed the mud here only because it was over a foot deep. The climb to the summit was easy and then we drifted down to Cooley Glen Shelter for a fireless lunch.

The climb up Mt. Cleveland was quite steep and we did it a little too fast. Toward the end of the day we felt the effects.

On to Mt. Roosevelt. Up to this point the Trail was completely overgrown. There were no blow-downs but little to show where the Trail was supposed to go except the feel of the harder packed earth under our feet.

From Mt. Roosevelt south to Breadloaf the Trail was much better. We passed two or three lookouts more or less clouded in.

At Breadloaf Shelter we had another lunch with a fat porky for company. The rain actually let up for a time but soon after really came down again.

At the top of Breadloaf we had our first and only trouble finding the Trail. It seems the Long Trail south actually goes north at this point. We just couldn't believe that the West Lookout arrow really pointed west. Luckily the sun shown through the clouds just long enough to get us oriented and we finally found the Breadloaf side trail. A new and complete set of arrows is needed on this summit.

The Breadloaf side trail was well blazed and in good condition. At least it was in as good condition as a vertical trail can be. We had already hiked eleven miles in the rain and the last two down the mountain to the Steam Mill Meadow (signs?) seemed more like four miles.

At last we reached the car we had planted there the night before. We drove up a back road to Lincoln Pass to retrieve the car we had left there long, long ago that morning. Got there about dark and so home to bed. But definitely!

BUCHANAN MT. DEDICATED

On Sun. Aug. 4th, three Killington Sec. members enjoyed a trip to Westfield for the Dedication of Buchanan Mt.

It was a fine day and the exercises were held on the lawn of the Hitchcock Library, Westfield, in the Jay Peak area.

Roy and Helen Buchanan were escorted to seats of honor on the platform by a group of "End-to-enders". Harold C. Collins, a past President of GMC then told of Roy's years of work on The Long Trail, all but a half mile of its 260 miles having been laid out by him. Roy is also responsible for the erection of 22 of The Trail's shelters.

Buchanan Mt. was formerly known as Old Splatterfoot - a name originally given it by Roy. We hate to lose such a colorful name but we are very happy that there is now a Buchanan Mt. on The Long Trail and glad that we could be present when Roy was accorded this well deserved honor.

OUTING T.C.V. CAMP
by
Bob Paul

At 10:00 A.M. Sunday July 28th, we started off for Chittenden Dam to spend a day at the C.V.P.S. Camp. Although the weather didn't look very promising it seemed as though everyone had a very good time.

Among the people who were there were the following: Vera Perkins, Betty Ball (the Bird Watcher), Marie Gray, Eleanor Walker, Jack Welch, Joe Hadeka, Steve Pfennig, Tom Terenzine, Janet Martin and her two children, Bob Paul, Doreen Paul, Claire Perfetti, and the last of the gang Craigie Perkins. Mary Perkins made a trip up in the morning to supply transportation but couldn't stay because of Camp guests.

Most of the younger group were interested in swimming and boating. A few of the party took in a short walk. Betty Ball and Marie Gray also went for a walk where they discovered a very rare bird. The way Betty described it was that it sounded as though the bird were drinking. The call of this bird was, "Which, three beers".

Before this bird watching expedition occurred, everyone had lunch.

Even though there were scattered showers during the afternoon, all present seemed to be enjoying themselves.

The main party broke up about 6 P.M. All in all it turned out to be a wonderful day.

OFF TO OHIO

We regret to announce that we are losing our bridge builders. Cecile and Emile Boselli left about Sept. 1st for Ohio where Emile has accepted a position with the Ohio Edison Co., in Akron. They will live in Cuiahoga Falls, Ohio.

We were pleased to see a feature article in The Burlington Free Press recently on Cecile and Emile and their bridge building project. We wish them luck in their new location.

HIKE TO GRIFFITH LAKE
by Pat Truneau

Since I am new to the Killington Section of the G.C. by way of my uncle, resident Jack Martin, I will try to write this story as it comes to me.

On Aug. 24th five members met at Seldon School in beautiful weather. They were Joe Hadeka, Judy Allard, Carol and Jack Martin and myself. We drove to Danby and a little below to a gravel road where we found the "Lake Trail" sign indicating our starting point. We followed the trail through pretty woods, by a spring, past a farm, and then steeply up to a fine lookout where we could see out over Danby to a mountain with its quarry piles.

After about 2½ hours we reached Griffith Lake, a small but pretty pond in the middle of the forest. We found an old camp on the lake shore with a sort of a dock over the water, there we chose to eat. An hour or so later, reluctantly, we headed down, reaching the car in about two hours.

EDITOR'S NOTE

We are sorry to be so late with this month's paper. In an effort to get the paper out nearer the first of the month we are making this a two-month issue.

We wish to express our thanks at this time to Pearl Nichols who has assumed the duties of Typist; Craigie Perkins for Printing; and Eleanor Walker for addressing.

G.C. INTERSECTIONAL

On the weekend of August 17-18 the Struggler's Notch State Park was the headquarters for one of the best Intersectionals of recent years. The crowd started assembling early and by Friday evening more than 40 G.Cers were registered.

Saturday morning dawned bright and clear and everyone was eager to get started on the day's activities. Mt. Mansfield was the common objective with some riding the lift, and others hiking up to the top. A variety of trips were taken from the top with everyone enjoying to the fullest a perfect day on the mountain.

The Saturday evening get-together was held in the lounge of the Park Recreation building. The number present from the different sections was reported with Killington tallying 14. After items of special interest had been presented, and a few stories of experiences on The Trail recounted a couple ski movies were shown.

Sunday was another fine day and trips were made to Spruce Peak and Sterling Pond by many groups. Everyone seemed loath to have the weekend over and it was 6 P.M. before the campsite was pretty well cleared.

The total registration reached 107 which must have been rewarding to the committee which did such a splendid job on arrangements; even to providing good weather!

We were sorry not to have more Killington Section members there to enjoy the fun. Better plan now to be on hand next year.

THE CAVE OF THE WINDS

by

Barbara Allard

Among the more interesting spots on Mt. Mansfield is the Cave of the Winds. During the G.C. Intersectional, three other members and myself took a trip down into the cave. Although only one of us had a rope and experience, two others had flashlights and we were ready.

We crawled over a few rocks and made the first and easiest descent by means of a ladder and some heavy rope. Reaching the first level, we stood on a ledge and one by one disappeared into the black hole at our feet.

At the next level there was less room to stand and down we went again. This time quite a ways. Somewhere along the way one of the flashlights took a short cut to the bottom. There were still three of us to get to the bottom. Every once in a while we would get a cold gust of air and out would go the cry, "Close that door!"

Then you are dangling on a rope in total darkness and you don't know where the bottom is, you are apt to get a funny feeling.

The cave itself is just a series of crevices in the rocks and is much colder than a cave. There were sheets of ice over the walls. The walls are mostly from 3 to 4 feet apart and the cave goes down about 60 feet.

When we got to the bottom of the cave we found the flashlight and I guess it wanted to get out as it worked better than before.

After sliding down an ice slide and climbing over several obstacles we were at the very bottom. Ice barred our way to the chamber where the bottle is kept that you can put your name in.

As we were wet and a little chilly we started right back. We can't wait to go again.

UP T. WHITNEY
by Bob Perkins

Mt. Whitney, highest peak in the United States at 14,496 feet, was the destination for this transplanted G.C. on the long 4th of July weekend. Having climbed in the mountains of southern California, but not in the Sierra Nevada, I didn't know what conditions to expect so wife and children were left at home and four day's food was packed.

In order to get an early start I left Los Angeles right after work on Wednesday, drove about 100 miles and slept beside the road in the Mohave Desert. Up at dawn, another 100 mile drive got me to Lone Pine for breakfast. A road leaves the highway at Lone Pine and climbs to 8200 feet at Whitney Portal close up under the abrupt eastern face of the Sierra. I was on the trail by 9:30 with Mt. Whitney 13 trail miles away and 6300 feet up. This works out to be about like climbing Pico three times and the fourth time going on to Killington.

The trail is an excellent one maintained by the Forest Service. It is nowhere very steep or difficult as it is designed for a horse trail as well as for hiking. The grade is very steady with numerous switchbacks. The first part of the climb is thru typical western mountain forests - evergreens, large by Vermont standards but not the giant sequoia. The lack of underbrush is evident. Full grown trees appear to have sprouted from the sand and gravel ground.

In four miles I reached Mirror Lake at 10,600 feet. This is the last camping spot below the timber line and since I needed wood for cooking, this was it for the first day. Another time I would bring a small stove and camp a mile or two further in. After a leisurely meal I unrolled my sleeping bag and went to bed at dusk.

Conveniently at 4:45 AM

I was awakened by a loud blast from Yucca Flats, some 75 miles away. After breakfast, leaving my pack at Mirror Lake and taking only a trail lunch and camera, I was on the trail before seven. I was above the trees almost immediately and in three short miles passed Consolation Lake which was still frozen over solid. Here the climb up the actual face of the mountain begins and the next four miles is a continual series of switchbacks. The trail was clear and dry except in three or four places where large snow drifts remained. I think the altitude was having some effect as each mile seemed longer than the last. However, I reached the pass, 13,600 feet, by 11:30 and decided to go the final two miles to the top.

From the pass to the top the trail goes along the ridge with views over into the Sequoia Park wilderness on the western side of the mountains, with numerous lakes and forests. This final two miles, although partly level, required several rest stops and took nearly two hours. The view from the top was only fair, the day being a little hazy. The Owens Valley and Lone Pine lie to the east, and high mountains in the other three directions. It was sunny and warm on top - tee shirt weather.

The trip down was uneventful. The trail was now a brook in spots, the afternoon sun having melted more of the snow. I was back at Mirror Lake by six o'clock, tired, but no more so than would be expected after any 18 mile hike. I lazed around camp the next morning, packed out to the car after lunch, and was back in Los Angeles by 10:00 that evening.

Next time you're in California - why not climb Mt. Whitney?

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sunday, Oct. 13, 10:30 A.M.

PLACE: Hadeka Farm, Granville,
New York

This will be a good, colorful, fall hike. The trail is about a mile long leading to a picturesque pond. About one quarter mile away on a not too steep hill there is an abandoned tower once used as a library. An extensive view can be seen into a beautiful eastern New York valley, including a view of the Comstock Prison.

We will meet at Meldon School at 10:30 A.M. Our starting point is about 25 miles from Rutland in Middle Granville.

This is not too difficult a hike so I hope as many as can will come, for a very enjoyable day.

TIME: Saturday, Oct. 26, 10:30 A.M.

PLACE: Bald Mountain

It has been several years since we have climbed this nearby mountain. However, it is a very pleasant trip which is not too difficult. The reward is an excellent view of the Otter Creek valley. Since it is so nearby, the starting time will be 10:30 A.M. at Meldon School

HAPGOOD POND TRIP

A very small group consisting of the four Martins and Miss Bjorg Jensen, exchange teacher from Norway now teaching at Rutland High School, went on the trip to Hapgood Pond. By reason of threatening weather we drove close to Mad Tom Notch shelter. The rains descended in the midst of lunch so we beat a hasty retreat into the shelter and decided that even if it stopped the trail would be too wet for hiking to Styles Peak so instead we went for a short auto tour.

RUMMAGE SALE
SATURDAY, NOV. 9

It's that time again! You get out the children's winter clothes only to find they've grown out of them. Your summer things look pretty well beaten up too. You want to freshen up the house for the winter days ahead when you'll be spending more time in it. The GMC Rummage Sale solves your problem. It's just the place to dispose of those things which you no longer want, but which are still too good to throw away.

You'll be doing a bit for GMC too. We need money to help build up the treasury after the expense of materials for that fine bridge over Mill River. We have other Trail and Shelter maintenance projects too. So let's make this the best sale yet.

The Sale will be held in the Neighborhood Rooms on Saturday, Nov. 9. We will be at the Rooms from 9 to 5 Friday and would like to receive everything that day. There is always a big rush when we open the sale so it is important to have everything arranged and priced before then. If you have material but no way to get it to us, call Craigie Perkins - 3-7954 - Thursday evening, or call Vera Perkins - 3-2941 - earlier that week.

We need help on both Friday and Saturday. On Saturday the need is greatest from 9 to 11 A.M. for selling and again at the end of the day for clearing up. We can keep you real busy any time Friday. Let us hear from you if you can help on either (or BOTH) days.

Anything usable is salable. Dishes, kitchen utensils, curtains, bedspreads, clothing of all kinds (especially children's) are some of the items in greatest demand. Costume jewelry, gift items and nic-nacs also sell well.

Get together as much as you can - collect from your friends and neighbors too. If we have a good stock on hand our customers will do the rest.

SOUTH END

It's very dark at 5 A.M. as the would-be-End-to-enders found out when they rose for the trip to the south end of The Trail. Due to the early take-off, though, we were on the trail by 8:30 A.M. at Williamstown, Mass. This was an approach trail and was hilly indeed. In fact at one point it was nearly perpendicular, with slippery rocks and few holds. Fortunately, this didn't last long. We did this hike in the fall, so it would be cool, but it was hot and muggy, which didn't help at all on the climb.

From the top of the rocky scramble, it was a gentler ascent to the junction with the Appalachian Trail. We noted different plants than farther north, with quite a bit of sassafras, and some real chestnut.

From the junction with the AT, the trail went over a lot of rocky open area, colorful with the copper and rust tones of the extensive blueberry bushes. There were blueberries there too. There would have been several fine views if the fog hadn't been too thick.

The woodland we finally entered was unusually beautiful, with many open glades, colorful with clumps of plum colored hobblebush, and carpeted with gayly-colored leaves.

The brooks were dry, so we ate a dry lunch in an open part of the woods. Even the brook at Seth Warner Camp was dry, when we came to that.

The trip down County Road to the waiting car was an easy one, though it was still hot.

One more lap needed doing, the road walk into Fay Fuller, from the main road. We did this and this completed the Long Trail walking for the three Perkinsons.

SIX & SEVEN - MILES AND ANOTHER DAY OLDER

That's Trail miles, and everybody knows a Trail mile is equal to 5280 times the age of the hiker times the weight of his pack, divided by the square of the conversation. (Provided it isn't too square.)

So that we might get a good start in the morning, the car was planted on the East Arlington Road the night before. After a supper in Bennington we drove out to the Fay Fuller Camp to stay over night.

We found the camp in excellent condition in every respect. Somebody had done a good job of cleaning up. (Thank you Bennington.)

After a good night's sleep and a six-thirty breakfast we set off bright and early. (all right, just "early" then.) For some undetermined reason it wasn't raining, and we felt uncomfortable. The Trail up Glastenbury Mt. climbed steadily on an easy grade and we got to the camp well ahead of Guide Book Time.

We couldn't find any water and had to do a little guessing on which path was L.Y. North.

The lookout's cabin near the tower was found open apparently to let out the hedgehogs that had chewed up through the floor.

Too bad these two half ruined Camps on Glastenbury can't be combined to make one completely ruined one.

About eleven-thirty we ate a dry lunch beside what should have been a rushing brook. The Trail was easy and soon we reached Caughnawaga Shelter. A porky lunching on the bunk boards left without exchanging greetings with us. We found water here and rested a few minutes.

About two-thirty it started to drizzle and we felt more at ease.

The Trail was in pretty good condition. Paint had been applied recently apparently by Tom Thumb as the blazes varied from chest high to below waist high.

Two beaver ponds were skirted and at last we came out on the East Arlington Road about five-thirty.

Everybody felt so full of pep that we decided to hike the piece along the road, thus running our total up to sixteen miles and making our longest but not hardest day on the Trail.

TUCKER LODGE REPAIR

In August it was discovered that two sash at Tucker Lodge were ruined and that porkies might be able to get inside.

Joe and Jimmie Hadeka and Craig Perkins lugged in forty pounds of cement and new window-screening. The worst of the holes in the foundation were cemented up and wire placed over all window openings.

On another work party Bob and Churchill Scott helped install the two new sash and paint them. Anybody want to paint the rest of the sash and apply creosote?

BREVITIES

Buffum Shelter was inspected by Vera Perkins and Eleanor Walker and found in neat condition. The old stove needs some repair for when the snows of winter make outdoor cooking difficult.

Margie Allard is home for a two weeks vacation.

Sharon Krauss is at UVM as a member of the Class of '61

KILLINGTON FROM THE SOUTH

Where were you all on Saturday, Sept. 28th? Wherever you were it couldn't have been nicer than it was on Killington.

Starting time found three hikers, Barbie Allard, Vera and Craigie Perkins, at Heldon. Pres. Jack Martin was on hand to help with transportation if needed. However, the hikers decided to omit Shrewsbury Peak and have all the available time at Killington. This eliminated any special transportation problems and we were soon on our way.

First stop was Gov. Clement where we left the car. A quick check of this shelter disclosed one puzzling circumstance. The old picnic table had been replaced in the shelter and the new one left standing on end by the outdoor fireplace. We noted again the improved appearance of the surroundings as a result of the brush cutting and clearing up which was done on a visit there last spring.

Leaving Gov. Clement, we started climbing almost at once. After passing through the fairly recent lumber operations, the trail, worn into the side of the mountain and sloping away steeply on our right, took us through woods, bright with sun on fall leaves and roofed with a sky seeming to grow bluer as we climbed toward it.

After about 2 miles of a gradual but steady climb, the trail follows along the ridge and there is little noticeable climbing. We began asking ourselves, "Where is Killington?", as we couldn't see it ahead. Then, suddenly, there we were at Cooper Lodge!

Craigie had brought up a new grate for the stove and while that was being installed

Barbie initiated a "Clean-up Campaign". The grate fitted perfectly. Water was soon hot and lunch being enjoyed. We counted 7 broken lights of glass which we hope can be replaced before winter.

Immediately after lunch we left for "the Peak". The view was good, especially toward the northeast. There was ice in the rock crevasses and a crisp wind on the peak, but the sun was bright and we lingered there as long as we could. En route to and from the peak we met in all 9 other hikers.

The return trip to Gov. Clement was interesting. The trail seen in reverse, with the sun slanting into the woods at the late afternoon angle, gave us many new impressions.

Back at Gov. Clement, we found Jan and Jack Martin with Carol and Nancy. After a welcome cup of coffee and a pleasant chat, we all headed back to Rutland.

There won't be a better hike this season. Too bad you missed it!

"HILLSIDE HARVEST"

Outdoor lovers will enjoy the beautiful prose descriptions of familiar scenes and of everyday animals, plants, and birds, in this book by Lansing Christman. This a book to be savoured slowly, not swallowed in a gulp. It makes one realize the beauty around us. This countryman finds great joy in his hillside pastures all the year around, and passes on to the reader his keen delight in the world of nature.

He write of such things as summer sunsets, September grapes, old fence rows, hill farm apples, wood-box cricket, hillsides of larch, muskrat marsh.

We hope there will be good attendance for this joint trip with the Burlington Section. The lodge overlooks Lake Pleiad and the Middlebury College ski area. This lodge was built in 1952 by the MMC and has a beautiful site. It is only 0.2 mile west of the Long Trail at a point 1.2 miles from Middlebury Gap. Come along for this easy hike.

COMING EVENTS (con't)

TIME - Sunday, Dec. 8 - 6 P.M.
PLACE - Beechwood - Covered Dish
Supper

The covered dish supper this year will come the first week in December. Due to a conflict with the Community Concert we have changed the date from Saturday to SUNDAY, so please change the date on your schedule cards.

As in the past we would like to know what you plan to bring so that we can keep a fair balance between salads, main dishes, and desserts. Please call Janet Martin, 3-8621, and tell her what you would like to bring. Please remember to bring your own dishes and utensils as it saves on the cleaning up. As usual there will be someone there from 2 P.M. on, so come and enjoy the afternoon too. Supper will be at 6 P.M.

A VISIT TO NEW YORK STATE

It was a perfect fall day when 9 GMCers journeyed to the Hadeka farm in Granville, N.Y., on Sunday, Oct. 13th.

After parking our cars in the farm dooryard, we started out for "the tower", objective for this hike. Joe led us over the hills and through the woods until finally we sighted the golden dome a-top a hill about two fields away.

Our watches and our appetites suggested that we stop for lunch first and investigate the tower later. Accordingly, Joe directed us to a perfect picnic place near a small pond. This spot was complete with a maple grove in full fall coloring, an old stone wall, a ready to use fireplace, and even a handy supply of firewood.

After a leisurely lunch we visited the tower which is an interesting marble structure of three stories, with two fireplaces on the second floor, and topped by a gilt dome set on marble pillars. Unfortunately, what was once quite an imposing structure, now shows the deterioration caused by abandonment and vandalism. The glass which enclosed the sides is broken out. What was once, apparently, a small patio has grown up to weeds. Nothing, however has spoiled the excellent view which the tower affords.

Various legends as to the original owner and his purpose in building the tower have grown up. From a Granville resident we have what seems to be the real story. Unfortunately, it is not as exciting as the legends. It seems that the tower was built by a wealthy bachelor, who, at the time, lived with his mother and owned a fine house in Granville. They also had elaborate homes in several other places. He built the tower as a library and study and used to spend much time there when in Granville. He would often entertain house guests and local friends there for afternoon tea. He lived to be over ninety.

After his death the books were removed and the tower fell into dis-use and disrepair. The story that it belonged to a New York banker who finally committed suicide probably springs from the fact that a close friend of the owner, who also had a home in Granville, was a New York banker, became involved in some International banking deals during the war and eventually did commit suicide.

All in all this was a new and different trip and made another pleasant day to add to the many such which our Out Schedule has provided.

BALD MT. AGAIN

'Quality rather than quantity' was the keynote of the group which gathered for the trip to Bald Mt. It was a return to a favorite spot for two of the five hikers while for the other three it was a first trip.

We drove to the top of 'the Notch'; left the car, and started out on the once familiar trail. We soon discovered that the trail had undergone many changes due to hurricane damage. We were doubtful at times that we were on the trail, but eventually it turned in the right direction and we reached the spring - last chance for getting coffee water. We almost lost the coffee water farther along when a fallen log proved unequal to the combined weights of 3 hikers.

The rocky top, when reached, provided the same splendid view we remembered. On this bright October day it was a most comfortable place for our picnic lunch. It was hard to believe it could ever be cold enough there to freeze coffee in the cups - we still maintain it did though, one December day!

We lingered for awhile considering the possibility of some of the party returning via Red Rocks and Clarendon, but decided to leave this for another day.

Starting back we missed the trail completely and just wandered along in the right general direction enjoying the fall woods. Finally we came out at the road a few yards west of our car, having crossed the trail somewhere without knowing it.

This is a good, near-by, hike and could well be given a place on the schedule quite often. Again, it's too bad so many missed it.

CONSERVATION BEGINS AT HOME

By Charles M. Wilson

from an article in the March '57
Nature Magazine

The author notes that birds and wildlife live mostly on the edges of fields, woodlands, road and waterways. To develop his old Vt. farm as a wildlife refuge he made a survey of his property to "count the blessings".

He found 25 species of grasses of value to wild life. To increase them he did some selective thinning along wood and field edges. He also found intermittent stands of such standbys for bird life as elderberry, wild cherry, sumac, butthorn, haw, wild grapes, and other berries as well as small acorn oaks. These he is protecting, particularly against fire.

Then his attention turned to fence rows and garden edges where he hand sowed such feed supplements as grain, sorghum, kaffir, milo, maize, and dwarf sunflowers.

The last part of the farm he attempted to improve for wild life was along the surface waterways by planting wildlife feed crops which grow in or near water. This is a largely undeveloped field in the U.S., but these plants strengthen edges, make valuable, fertile soil, and help with water conservation and erosion control. One of the plants he used here is wild rice. Others are muskgrass, pondweed, wild celery, pickerel plant, spike-bush, and the American pond lily; in moist places: water smartweed, sweet flag and three square rush.

The author has found evidence that his old farm is now supporting more and varied forms of wild life and he no longer finds starved carcasses of wild life in the spring as he did when he first came to the farm.

TRAIL CONFERENCE

On the 2nd of November the trustees and officers of the GMC met in the main club office at 108 Merchants Row. The reading of the minutes of the June meeting was followed by several reports.

Vice-President Ted Talbot, of Wilmington Delaware, reported on the possible changes which are contemplated for the next edition of the Long Trail Guide Book. His suggestions were concerned with a new and larger map sheet to be used with the various divisions of the LT.

Mr Ben Rolston of Schneckedy presented cost data on the preparation of a supplement to the 1956 edition of the Guide. Material to be included in the supplement as outlined by Mr Rolston are (a) Poor conditions on the LT, (b) Additions to the system, (c) Relocations of the Trail, and (d) Planned or possible changes in the above.

Mr Don Havens of Burlington reported on the 1957 Inter-Sectional which was attended by 109 assorted hikers. Mr Larry Dean of Burlington made a progress report on the GMC history which, it is hoped, will be ready for the 50th year of GMC in 1960.

Mr Paul Newcomb, the GMNF supervisor spoke to the assemblage about the proposals for and status of various ski developments as they affect the GMNF. We were particularly interested in the development which is proposed for the Clay Brook Basin on the Eastern flanks of Lincoln Mountain near Warren. The LT follows the Lincoln Mountain skyline and any ski development proposal might have an adverse effect on the LT or shelters. It was the opinion after some discussion that the development of the Basin as outlined in the prospectus would cause no undue harm to the area in question. Any slight changes in LT location would be the responsibility of the permittee or the GMNF. One advantage would be the increased opportunity for maintenance in a presently somewhat inaccessible stretch of Trail. Mr Gene Bamforth of Montpelier was voted a life member of the GMC.

The 1958 Inter-Sectional outing will be under the direction of the Killington Section. If you have any ideas for sites, trips and activities for the Inter-Sectional please contact the section officers. We are open to suggestion.

An annual Trail Conference was held in the GMC office after the trustee's meeting. Reports were received from the various sections concerning conditions and maintenance of their portions of the Long Trail and shelters.

Problems discussed included that of the extent and nature of vandalism at LT shelters. Reports were received concerning camp registers, trail blazing, Long Trail- highway crossing signs, and the supply of water at certain shelters during dry summers such as we have just had. We were glad to see two members of the Middlebury College Mountain Club at the meeting.

* * * * *

An amusing story heard at the meeting concerns a happening during the summer's LT Patrol. The boys met a strangely constituted party complete with a loaded rifle bearing advance guard. The man scouting "up front" explained that "this was Wild country" and one shouldn't take any chances "in the Green Mts."

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sat. December 21, 10 AM

PLACE: Mount Carmel

Last year's trip to Mount Carmel encountered very bad weather. We hope we will have better luck this year. Hikers will meet at Meldon School at 10:00 AM and drive to the Mountain Top Inn in Chittenden. From there they will hike on to New Boston, thence up the New Boston Trail to Carmel Camp where they will have lunch. A short steep trail leads to the top of Mt Carmel which has a small steel tower on the summit. Fine views of the Green, White, and Adirondack Mountains.

TIME: Sat. or Sun. Jan 4 or 5
7:00 PM

PLACE: Moonlight Hike, to
Tucker Lodge

The winter moonlight hike has become a widely enjoyed annual affair. If you have never been, dig out your snowshoes and red flannels and come along. We promise an unusual and rewarding experience. Weather permitting, the trip will be on Saturday. If that proves cloudy we will go on Sunday. If you are in doubt or need to borrow snowshoes, contact Pres John Martin (3-8621)

Hikers will meet at Meldon at 7:00 PM.

Covered Dish Supper

The annual covered dish supper at Beechwood was held on Sun. Dec. 8th. There were thirty members and guests present. The table was laden with good things to eat and everyone ate and ate and ate. As always there was an excellent variety of old and new favorites to satisfy the tastes of everyone from the three little ones on up. This has always been a good family outing and we were glad to have so many family groups there. We even had two very well behaved four legged guests.

The afternoon found many of the group hiking around the surrounding wooded area where they made note of the growth of the red Pine forest which has been recently been pruned and thinned.

LAKE PLIEAD

A very small group gathered for this trip but the weather seemed too unpleasant for so long a jaunt. We are a bit red-faced to learn that a group from Burlington did go. Our apologies to them for not having the coffee hot on their arrival.

RUMMAGE SALE NETS $96

Once again the Rummage Sale proved to be a successful money-making project. Although we fell a little short of the $100 we aimed for, we were well satisfied with results.

Thanks are due to all the people who brought in material for us to sell and especially to out of town members who took the trouble to send us material.

We also want to thank the following people who helped in getting ready, selling and/or cleaning up: "T" Valiquette, Churchill Scott, Isabel Hanks, Janet and Jack Martin, Betty Ball, Barbie Allard, and Eleanor Walker.

The sale involves a couple of good, full days of work, but it's fun too, and we don't know of an easier or surer way of making around $100. So-- start your box now and begin collecting items for us to sell next fall.

MYSTERY HIKE

The Mystery Hike scheduled for Nov. 10th, remains a mystery. Again this year a first snow fall caused a last minute change in destination.

When we met at Nelson School it looked as though we were in for a wet day, overhead as well as underfoot. As there was no shelter at the planned destination we decided to go to "Tall Timber" instead.

There we found the ground well covered with snow and, walking through the woods, experienced the thrill which the first snow always brings.

While some of the party were getting the fire going in the Service Building, others went for a walk. Barbie Allard and Joe Haecka, finding the rubber boat available, decided it was just the day for a cruise around the newly enlarged pond.

By lunch time the sun was shining, and after a pleasant lunch hour, the ambitious junior members remarked that it would be a good day to go to Clarendon and put in the new window sash. Craigie quickly took them up on this proposition and they were soon on their way.

The rest of the group lingered awhile longer and then returned to Rutland. Arriving about 3 o'clock, it seemed too nice an afternoon to go in early, so four went on to Clarendon to check up on the workers there. The old stove, as usual, was doing its best to smoke the workers out, but they were going ahead valiantly with the work of installing new window frames. Incidentally, plans are underway for getting another stove in this winter.

On the way back to the car we enjoyed a fine sunset and agreed that the day had been successful even though not as planned.

(No, we won't tell you where the mystery hike was to have gone --we're saving it for another time. You'll still have to come to find out.)

COILING SOON KILLINGTON SEC. ANNUAL MEETING

Our annual meeting will be coming in January. Watch for the announcement of date, place, etc., and plan to attend.

KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB

Jan 1958

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sunday, Jan. 13, 11 AM
PLACE: Clarendon Lodge

This is a beautiful but easy trip to make in winter. If we get a good snow it will be a fine opportunity to try out snowshoes and skills from Santa Claus. However, if there isn't much snow between now and then, boots or overshoes will be sufficient.

Come and try out the new stove and view the repairs completed by several recent work parties. We will meet at Meldon School at 11:00 AM. This should make it late enough so that some of our members who can't usually make it on Sun. will be able to be with us too. If not they could always join us later as it is only a short walk. Do try to come along.

TIME: Thur. Jan 23, ANNUAL MEETING
PLACE: Riverside Reformatory

As in the past few years this will be a supper meeting followed by the business meeting, election of officers, and closing with a short program. Because it is necessary for Miss Koltonski to know how many to plan for on meals, reservation must be made by Tues, Jan. 21 by calling Mrs Jack Martin PR 3-8821. Supper will be at 6:30 with the business meeting coming to order about 7:30.

We hope all members will make an effort to be at the meeting as several important matters need to be discussed: (1) How can we increase our membership, especially among young adults? (2) Can our income be increased? (Source-Lues & projects) (3) Should the winter weekend be changed so as not to conflict with the new dates of the Rutland Winter Carnival? (4) Is Smoke and Blazes to be or not to be? (5) suggestions for hike schedules? (Average attendance has been about 5 to 7 with some hikes cancelled because no one showed up.)

TIME: Sat. February 1, 10 AM.
PLACE: Snowshoe to Sunnyside Camp

We certainly hope that by February there will be enough snow for snowshoeing. It has been several months since we last visited Sunnyside so we hope you will all plan to come.

The trip will leave Meldon School at 10:00 o'clock so pack a lunch and join in the fun.

SPECIAL

WINTER WEEKEND - FEB.15-16 OR 22-23

The final decision as to which date to hold this annual affair will be decided at the Annual Meeting on Jan. 23. So-- if you have any preference and can't be at the meeting, let us know before that time. You may call PR 3-861 to state your preference, or let a friend who will be at the meeting know your wishes.

TAKEN ANY KODACHROMES LATELY?

We have made a good start on the Killington Section collection of colored slides, but we want to add to it and perhaps replace some we have with better ones when available. If you have any slides taken since slides were selected last winter, or any you have never submitted for consideration, why not bring them to the Annual Meeting? The Club will get duplicates of any selected for our collection.

HIKE TO CARMEL

The temperature was like early spring, but the prospects for a pleasant day were only so-so on Saturday, December 21st.

Nevertheless, a group of six put aside their Christmas preparations and met at Meldon School for the trip to Carmel.

Driving up the hills to Mt. Top Inn, we found that road conditions too were suggestive of early spring, but we made the parking place at the Inn without difficulty. Leaving our car we hiked briskly along the old road leading to New Boston.

Signs of what was once one of the main Communities of Chittenden are rapidly disappearing. Each time we pass through here we notice the further collapse of some landmark of former habitation. A few cellar holes and the small 'burying ground', a short distance from the settlement, will soon be all the traces left. Incidentally, why was this community called New Boston? Tradition has it that in the "cold year" (this was in 1816 when there was a frost every month in the year and no crops)- a group of people in Boston, Mass., collected food supplies and sent to this community. From then on it was known as New Boston.

The trail from here was doubling as a brook course for most of the way on this particular day, but the sun was peeking out and we found much to enjoy as we covered the distance to Carmel Camp.

We found the camp, though just as small as we had remembered it, in good condition inside. However, the general appearance of the dooryard left much to be desired. It seems strange, as one of our party remarked, that people able to hike the 3 miles to the camp wouldn't have the strength enough to at least throw the cans and bottles a bit farther than just outside the door! Perhaps it would help if there were a specially designated dump area with a directional sign. It might be worth a try.

After lunch most of the party went to the top of the mountain for the view from the fire tower. They found it very windy on top but were rewarded for the climb with a fairly clear view.

On the way back to the car it looked for a time as though we might finish the day with a walk in the rain, but only a few sprinkles materialized. During the ride home from Mt. Top Inn we were treated to a fine sunset.

We had looked forward to this as a good snowshoe outing, but though we were disappointed on that score, it was an enjoyable day all the same.

CLARENDON LODGE REPAIRS

At long last Clarendon Lodge has been restored to Al condition.

Item One: When originally installed the front windows opened outward and were supposed to be operated by a crank arrangement. Impatient people needing air in a hurry soon wrecked these devices and the windows were either nailed shut or let swing in the wind. As a result one sash was torn off and another completely demolished. Two work parties have replaced the broken sash and moved all sash to the inside of the window openings so that they open inward. The badly torn plastic screens will be replaced in the spring by aluminum screens on the outside of the openings.

Item Two: For more than a year the old stove has been a nuisance and a fire hazard. Someone broke out the end of the firebox by trying to jam in wood that was too long. This was wired back in place long ago and we have been lucky it didn't fall off spilling hot coals over the wooden floor. On Dec. 28th an other large kitchen range was carried in and set up. Roger Pike got the loan of a Jeep truck and the following muscle men turned out to juggle the hardware; Churchill Scott, Bennet Bell, Jack Martin, Ray Catozzi, Craigue Perkins, and Fernand Bartlett. (Yeah, that's right! If you remember him you are a real oldtimer.) No snow, only a little ice, and somebody had scraped the road so it was no trick to drive right to the door. All parts went together neatly and the stove was given the "smoke test". OK.

Maybe the Killington Section isn't as nearly dead as it acts sometimes!

MOONLIGHT HIKE

January 4th proved to be a clear but cool day with a beautiful full moon rising over the eastern mountains around 6:00 o'clock. Lured by the full moon eight hikers, bundled as if for a trip to the South Pole, gathered at Meldon School at 7:00 o'clock. Three others followed at 8:00. Everyone journeyed up the mountain, parked the cars, and started in to Tucker Lodge.

The first few minutes we really felt the subzero temperatures but a little brisk hiking soon took care of that and we enjoyed a beautiful walk through the moonlit woods. It was so clear and bright the flashlights proved unnecessary except inside the lodge.

Once at the lodge, the coffee pot was put on the stove and all eight advised and cajoled the stove to do its part. At first it seemed quite reluctant to rouse itself sufficiently to overcome the zero temperatures. But finally, thanks to the beautifully split wood left by Ray Catozzi's Cub Scouts, the stove got red hot and the doughnuts and coffee too. We all agreed store doughnuts never tasted so good. After an enjoyable gab fest all eleven packed up reluctantly for the return trip. As always the walk out seemed all too short and we were back home by 10:30 declaring we'd go again soon.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Betty Ball spent the holidays in Florida visiting her parents at their home there.

Cards recently received bring us the news that the Bob Perkins' family enjoyed a short vacation at Palm Springs, California.

"T" and Harold Valiquette spent Christmas and New Years with Mr. and Mrs. Joe. Valiquette.

Marie Grey has left for Elkton, Florida with her parents to spend the winter. Strangely enough her address is Vermont Heights!

Sharon Krauss was home for the holidays from U.V.M.

We were glad to have a call from Helen Bailey when she was in Rutland for a short time during the holidays. Helen is enjoying her new teaching position in West Springfield, Mass.

A note on a Christmas Card from Maxine and Carl Newhall gives the following news as to their activities - we quote - "--we're raising cats, on a purely involuntary basis; working on the house, and doing very little else.

We both miss the G.M.C.'s, but after removing a couple of floors with their beams single-handed, and replacing them with the same crew, we are a little apathetic about physical effort just for fun--".

It was good to hear from them.

We were glad to have a card from Cecile and Emile Boselli and have asked them to give us some news of their activities. We hope to have this to share with you soon.

HAVE YOU A GMC EMBLEM?

A GMC emblem is a good looking addition to your jacket or knapsack. Not only that, but wearing one helps to let people know there is such an organization as the Green Mountain Club.

Eleanor Walker has a supply of emblems and will have them available at the Annual Meeting for 50¢ apiece.

AN EVERYDAY TREE

The hemlock is an everyday tree. It is often considered as a humble cousin in the evergreen family. The popularity of the spruce and balsam during the Christmas season brings them especially to our attention and we tend to disregard the hemlock with its stately, unpretentious beauty through all the seasons.

The Indians had a name for the hemlock. They called it "Oh-neh-tah" - green-on-the-stick, from its flattened leaves arranged in two ranks on each side of the twigs. These leaves are a glossy, green on the top and a pale grayish green beneath. A crushed handful of the foliage gives off a spicy fragrance. The inner bark is a ruddy, chestnut red.

The hemlock is often found in company with gray birches on rocky, thin-soiled uplands, in cold swamps, and on the sandy banks of ravines. Welcome as it is in winter, adding its touch of green to an often otherwise drab-colored countryside, it attains its greatest beauty in early summer. Then the new growth shows its delicate, light green, and the tiny, new, brown, cones will give glints of bronze in the sunlight.

Yes, the hemlock is an everyday tree, but it holds its own with the other evergreens which together add so much to the beauty of our locality.

SMOKE AND BLAZES

Special Issue KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB Jan. 23, 1958

HOW IT STARTED

One warm, summer day, a group of Killington Section members were soaking up sunshine on the rocks at Lake Pleiad. The talk turned to speculations on what would be a good name for a Section newspaper, when and if we ever had one. Someone suggested that something about blazes might be appropriate. Some wise person (guess who?) said there was usually smoke before you got a blaze. SMOKE AND BLAZES was kindled.

The idea of a Section newspaper had been discussed before but apparently it needed a good name to furnish the spark to really get it going, for in September of that year the first SMOKE AND BLAZES was published. That first issue ended with the following suggestion to readers:

Send criticism to Craigue Perkins
Send suggestions to Mary Perkins
Send favorable comment to
 Vera Perkins

(N.B. We didn't receive any of these!)

With the January 1958 issue SMOKE AND BLAZES started its 11th Vol. We thought its ten year existence might well be celebrated in some way. Result - this special issue made up of bits of this and that about Section Activities, collected from past issues.

ANNUAL EVENTS

We have had the following activities every year:

Rummage Sale
Covered Dish Supper
Annual Meeting
Winter Weekend
Sugar Party

We've had Hikes every year to:

Clarendon Lodge
Tucker Lodge
Spring Lake Camp (wherever it happened to be!)
Little Rock Pond
Cooper Lodge

DO YOU REMEMBER ?

The "Hike Cue" Contest
The "Valiquette Special"
The cold shower at Pico
The Photography Contests
Boiled snow for coffee on a moonlight hike to Tucker
"Rosie The Roaster"
The kerosene torch hike

7 WONDERS OF RUTLAND COUNTY

At the Annual Meeting in 1949 the following were selected by popular vote as the 7 Wonders of Rutland County:

Killington View
Pittsford Ice Caves
White Rocks
Bird Mountain
Spring Lake
McLaughlin Falls
Deer Leap

LARGE PROJECTS

Saga of Sunnyside

Sunnyside, alias Spring Lake Camp, alias the Blue Triangle Camp, has a long and somewhat flighty career. It was first suggested in 1948 that the material in the Blue Triangle be moved to Spring Lake, and accordingly, in Jan. '49 demolition was started. On Feb. 13th the sections and boards were tobogganed across the lake; the laborers being rewarded by a spaghetti supper with Maude Canty's mince pies as the crowning feature.

From Feb. to July the boards and sections were carried up the hill by various members and a group of boys from Camp Sangamon. Reconstruction began in Oct. In July '50 Churchill Scott took in the pipe for anchors. By Nov. the boarding and side walls were in, also the posts along the back and all the rafters. In Dec. 200 boards for the roof and six 90 lb. rolls of roofing paper were taken by truck to within 1/4 mile of camp--from there it went by relay. Ugh. The roofing job and the arrival of the "Valiquette Special" followed this. In April and May of '51 the bunks were installed, joists for the floor laid, the floor completed and the doors hung.

In June of '53 it was decided to line the camp with masonite and this was started. However, in Dec. came a demolition order!

So---1954 saw it moving again; to the present site. In July, holes for the foundation posts were dug and in Nov. the cedar posts were set, levelled, and sawed off and the 6 sills and sleepers joined to them. Then in Jan. '55 rebuilding began and continued, with pauses to dig boards out of snowbanks, until the objective of completion by Annual Meeting time was reached. Thus endeth the 7 year travels of Blue Triangle Camp. Construction engineers all agree that further moves are extremely undesirable, also impossible!

Clarendon Shelter Becomes a Lodge

Perhaps you noted a brief pause in 1952 when no major work was going on at Spring Lake. The club was not resting on its laurels for in Jan. talk of what to do about Old (1921) Clarendon Shelter began. Various makeshift methods were discussed but in May a generous offer of a donation of up to $250 was made by Mr. W.C. Wiley. After this windfall demolition began almost immediately. With Carl Newhall in charge and 5 work parties in May, the new camp rose on the site of the old with amazing rapidity. By June the outside was nearing completion. It should be noted that Carl and Maxine put in 400 hrs. of labor. On Oct. 25, less than a year from the time talk began, a housewarming and spaghetti supper was held with The Catozzis as chefs.

How to Cross the Gorge

Before Sunnyside was completed the unsafe bridge over Mill River was destroyed. In May '55 a Log bridge was installed amid much speculation as to whether there was enough weight (about 500 lbs.) on the ends to withstand the river. Plans were made to add chains to anchor it but the river got the log first and a few people got their feet wet at the Annual Meeting. Something had to be done, but what?

In Aug. Emile Boselli came to the rescue by volunteering, complete with plans and specifications, to build us a steel suspension bridge. The board OKed the plans and from then on it was practically a one man job! Not quite two years later, after untold hours of labor by Emile and Cecile, and $465.84 from the Killington Section treasury, the bridge was completed.

On a rainy Sunday afternoon, June 2, 1957 this important link in The Long Trail was formally opened by the builders and club officials of The Green Mountain Club.

WHEN DID IT HAPPEN ?

Seven 65 lb. rolls of roofing paper carried to Killington. Had nearly 100 at a Card Party in Vera Perkins attic and earned $50.

Making of Killington Section slide collection authorized. SMOKE AND BLAZES staff started hollering for help.

Old bridge over Mill River burned.

New Guide Book came out.

Our Lake George Steamer trip.

Mr. Meron Fisher of New Bedford, Mass., gave Buffum new roof.

Killington Section publicity folders published.

16 windows carried to Cooper Lodge on Killington.

Killington Sec. arranged and staffed a booth at Rutland Fair.

An unscheduled snowshoe party to Killington caught in a thunder shower.

Article on GMC by two junior members appeared in Rutland Herald.

Present stove at Cooper carried in and installed.

How many did you know? Here are the dates: 1948 - 1950 - 1955 - 1950 - 1954 - 1956 - 1956 - 1949 - 1955 - 1949 - 1955 - 1956 - 1957 - 1955.

END-TO-ENDER TRIPS

In the years 1952-57 hikes were scheduled covering the entire length of The Trail. Here are a few facts connected with these trips:

Long Trail mileage 255.3 mi.
Approach trail mileage 75.4 mi.
Number days hiked 40
Number days with rain 13
No. overnight trips 7
Longest day's hike 16 mi.
Shortest day's hike .2 mi (we drove to Bolton with the rubber boat to cross Winooski R.)
Largest no. hiking 8
Smallest no. hiking 3
No. completing End-To-End 3.

DID YOU KNOW THAT ?

We've built or rebuilt 2 shelters.

We've built and officially opened 1 bridge.

We've earned $1056.46 in the 10 years with Rummage Sales.

We've had 210 scheduled trips.

We've cancelled only 6 hikes because of rain.

We've had the most outings at Clarendon Lodge(14), with Tucker and Spring Lake-Sunnyside next(12), and Little Rock Pond third(11).

We've driven as far as 125 mi. to start a hike.

We've scheduled trips covering the entire length of The Long Trail.

We've had 3 trips outside Vermont.

We've had as many as 35 on a hike and as few as 1 - both in 1950. The 35 were at Spring Lake when members from Burlington and Worcester Sections joined with us for an inspection trip and stayed to work. The 1 was when Pres. C. Scott went on the McLaughlin Falls hike the day after the "big blow" of Nov. 1950. The same year also reported 26 on a Stratton hike.

We've had as many as 27 for one meal at the Winter weekend.

Our coffee pot (sometimes black, sometimes shiny) is 20 yrs. old. It's still in use though it now serves merely to boil water as we switched to Nescafe in 1955 - thereby eliminating a major topic of conversation on outings!

DID WE SUCCEED ?

From the files of SMOKE AND BLAZES we have tried in this issue to remind you of some of the accomplishments, the good times, and the special laughs we have all enjoyed as members of the Killington Section G.M.C. over the past 10 years.

We hope we've succeeded.

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Saturday, Feb. 15
PLACE: Parade - Rutland Winter Carnival

It was decided at the Annual Meeting to enter a float in the Rutland Winter Carnival parade. Harold Valiquette has agreed to loan the club a truck. Jack and Janet Martin will supervise the decorating...a Winter Camping scene with a mountain tent, skis, snowshoes, the G.M.C. coffee pot warming on a "fire", and three or four Junior Members to add life and beauty to the scene. If you would like to help contact Jack at 3-8621.

TIME: Fri. thru Sun., Feb. 21-23
PLACE: Winter Weekend - Craigie Perkins Camp, Mendon

Please note the dates of the Winter Weekend are now the weekend of Washington's Birthday due to a conflict with the Winter Carnival. We hope the change will enable more of our out of town members to join us.

This year six meals will be planned and served: Fri. supper; Sat. breakfast, lunch, and supper; and Sun. breakfast and dinner. It is absolutely essential that the food committee know just how many will be there for each meal so that just the right amount of food can be purchased. Everyone please make reservations with Janet Martin (Pr 3-8621, 7 Curtis Ave., Rutland) by Thurs. evening Feb. 20. If you can't come for overnight, come for one or two meals... we'll be glad to see you whenever you can drop in. Plan now to come and help make this the biggest Winter Weekend yet.

For the information of those from out of town - Craigie's camp is ½ mile off Rt. 4 in Mendon. We will be glad to send more detailed information if requested when you make your reservations. This is a share the work - share the cost outing with the cost of meals figured from actual cost. There is no charge for sleeping but you do need to bring blankets or sleeping bag. Snowshoes or skis are advisable for the ½ mile walk from Rt. 4 in to camp. See you there!

TIME: Sun. March 2, 10 A.M.
PLACE: Buffum Shelter

Another good trip for snowshoes to a truly beautiful spot in Winter. We will meet at Meldon School at 10:00 A.M. This may well be the last snowshoe hike of the season so don't miss it.

ANNUAL MEETING

A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by those members who attended our Killington Section Annual Meeting held at Riverside on the evening of January 23rd.

After an excellent chicken pie supper, served to us under the direction of Miss Helen Koltonski, the regular business meeting was held.

President Jack Martin presided at the business meeting. The regular reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were read and accepted.

The matter of the desirability of an increase in dues was discussed and it was decided to take no action at the present time.

It was decided to enter a float in the winter carnival with Janet and Jack Martin in charge of decorations, and Barbie Allard and Joe Hadeka assisting. It was suggested that the outings for the coming year be planned specifically to accomplish the needed work on trails and shelters.

The date for the Winter Weekend was changed to Feb. 21-23 to avoid conflict with the Winter Carnival dates.

In response to an urgent request for more assistance from the staff of SMOKE & BLAZES Ray Catozzi volunteered to type the stencils.

A tenth anniversary issue of SMOKE & BLAZES was distributed to members at the meeting.

The following slate of officers was presented by the Nominating Committee and was elected for the coming year:

President	-	Bennett Bell
V. Pres.	-	Mary Perkins
Sec.-Treas.	-	Eleanor Walker

GMC OUTING TO CLARENDON LODGE

by Bob Paul, Jr.

The sky was blue patched with snow white clouds, when we started out at 11 A.M. from Meldon School on Sunday, Jan. 19.

Lunches packed and snowshoes loaded in the trunk, all three carloads of passengers, winter robed, started for Clarendon Lodge on this very cold day.

Two of the party left their cars at the edge of the main road but one man decided to get his car completely off the road (maybe you all know who - C.S.P.) He plowed into a 4 ft. snow bank.

We all started down the road for the trail. Some went on snowshoes while others walked along. Later all decided snowshoes were the solution to the problem of the best way of travelling.

The camp finally came into view with all the pines around it glittering with beautiful snow.

The first three to arrive were Craigie Perkins, Ray Miller, and Bob Paul. First things must come first, so a stovepipe that had seen better days had to be replaced by a new one which we had brought with us, then a fire was started. About 15 minutes later the rest of our party arrived. The camp was beginning to be warm by that time.

The two little Martin children enjoyed the trip up for Carol got a toboggan ride up, and Nancy came in papoose fashion in her seat on a packboard.

Coffee was made and lunches eaten by hungry hikers.

"T" and Harold Valiquette came in later and had a lunch of delicious hot chicken wrapped in foil.

About 3 P.M. we decided it was time to start back to the cars. Upon arrival everyone packed their equipment and left except C.S.P. and Mary Perkins, Ray Miller and Bob Paul.

We thought we were going to breeze right home but due to circumstances which only the four of us know, we were delayed about an hour. Luckily we were equipped with shovels, chains, a fairly good tripod jack, and muscles. After extensive shovelling, and pushing the car off the jack we managed to get the chains on. Finally we were home ward bound.

TRIP TO SUNNYSIDE

Ten hikers met at Meldon School on February 2nd for the trip to Sunnyside. Four more hikers joined us at the camp during the day and there were still three more whom we never saw but who contributed greatly to the day's enjoyment.

Here's how it was. We started off in a blizzardy snow flurry with some doubts as to just how pleasant this trip would be. We had heard that Sunnyside was in bad condition. We had visions of finding the doors open, the camp half filled with snow and a major operation required to provide an even half-way comfortable lunch hour.

We parked our cars just off the highway at the start of the Spring Lake Ranch road and proceeded on foot up the long hills to the point where we could don snowshoes and take off across the fields to Sunnyside Camp.

Our first glimpse of the camp was encouraging with doors tightly shut against the wind and snow. Imagine our delight when on pushing open the door we found the camp not only spotlessly clean, but fairly warm with a neat pile of dry wood and a stove still warm from an early morning fire. Further investigation informed us that for all this we were indebted to D. Peterson, R. Kenyon, and B Rolston, G.M.C., from Schenectady. They couldn't have been gone long. We were sorry we didn't meet them but we certainly appreciated their efforts! If everone would leave camps in this condition how much it would add to the pleasure of Long Trail hiking.

After lunch part of the group stayed at camp to greet new arrivals while others snowshoed over the hills, and we do mean hills, for a look at Spring Lake. Two of these travellers found that sitting on ones snowshoes and sliding is an excellent way of getting down the steepest places. In addition to the fun of this trip the beauty of the lake, its edge bordered with frosted evergreens and large flakes of snow blowing across its surface, made the excursion well worth while.

With everyone back at camp extra hot drinks were enjoyed after which we started packing up for the return trip.

The journey back to the cars was an exciting one for some of the younger members who, with the help of a sled and a "saucer", made some fast runs down the hills. It really made the oldsters wish they had borrowed sleds and brought them along!

A trip to Sunnyside is an excellent winter outing, especially with good snow conditions. We are glad we have this camp and hope the coming season will see the rest of the wall board up and the camp entirely completed.

1947 - 1957

Those members who were not at the Annual Meeting will find enclosed with this issue of SMOKE & BLAZES a copy of our 10th Anniversary issue which was distributed at the meeting.

Look this over carefully and note how much was accomplished. Let's do as much in 1957 - 1967!

BLAZES

Vol. 11 No. 3 KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB March 1958

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sat., March 15, 10 AM
PLACE: Governor Clement Shelter

This will probably be our last snowshoe hike of the year, weather permitting. The route, by road or trail, will depend upon mud and/or snow conditions so watch the Rutland Herald for details. This trip will leave Meldon School at 10:00 in the morning.

TIME: Sunday, March 30, 6:00 PM
PLACE: Sugar Party, Vera Perkins' attic.

Due to an apparent lack of interest which has kept the crowd rather small at the sugar party the past few years, it has been decided that it is a waste of time and money to hire a hall for this event. Vera has kindly offered the use of her attic again if we don't mind carrying up a few chairs and card tables. We will not attempt to have any square dancing, just sugar-on-snow with pickles, doughnuts, and coffee. Reservations should be made with Janet Martin FR 3-8621 before Friday night, March 28, so that the committee will know how much food to purchase. The charges will depend on the number attending and the price of the syrup this year. Plan to be there at 6:00 PM for this special treat.

TIME: Sunday, April 13, 10:30 AM
PLACE: Mystery hike

Because of trail conditions usually found this time of year this trip will remain a mystery until the day of the hike. I'm sure it will be an interesting trip wherever it goes. One rumor says Blueridge! We will gather at Meldon School at 10:30 AM.

OUR NEW HEADING

The new heading for SMOKE AND BLAZES which appears on this issue was drawn by Janet Martin. Jan designed the heading, reproduced on our Anniversary Issue, which was used on the first issue. During its 10 year existence SMOKE AND BLAZES has also had headings designed by Ray Catozzi, Jane Sabourin, Hilma Erickson, and Emile Boselli. (If you don't have a new heading this time you will next month - we had a few of the others left.)

WINTER WEEKEND by Pat Bruneau

At Saturday noontime I arrived at Tall Timber with a good appetite after snowshoeing up a half mile from the car. On the trail we met Judy Allard with the toboggan. She pulled Carol Martin up to camp behind Bill, Louise, and Lori Wadsworth, and Jack, Jan, and Nancy Martin. Inside we met Mary, Craigie, and Vera Perkins and Barbie Allard. Soon Fran and Jim Green, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell and Helen Mitchell arrived. A delicious lunch was soon served.

After lunch it was decided that the teenagers would sleep in one of the cabins in the woods, and the grownups in the house. So in the afternoon Barb, Judy, Craigie, and I took our packs out to the cabin by toboggan. Craigie slept with us to watch the fire during the night. While we were there we got wood for the fire and made our beds.

While we were doing this Joe Hadeka and Dave Gouche arrived with big appetites from skiing. Just in time for supper Bob Paul and Dave Leonard walked in.

In the evening we had a showing of the Killington Section's slides and others taken by Fran Green, Vera, and Jack.

After Barbie and the boys got back from taking their packs to the cabin, Fran started to pop corn. The stove wasn't hot enough so she put the pop corn inside the stove; that was too hot. So she took the flaming pan out to the snow bank.. too bad, it smelled so good!

When the slides were over the teenagers and Craigie started for the cabin. The sky was beautiful. When we reached the cabin, Craigie made the fire and we waited until it got warm inside. While the fire was going well, the cabin started to get full of smoke because of a little snow in the chimney. So we opened the door and windows. Barbie and I decided that we would close the bedroom door to keep out the smoke. But when we opened it later there was more smoke inside than out. That caused a laugh from the crowd.

Since we still weren't sure the smoke was coming out OK, Craigie went up on the roof to see by flashlight and it was. Then he and Barb got snow for water for tea. The tea wasn't bad either...with a few pine needles from the snow! After that we sat and talked until midnight when all went to bed. Some still talked until 2:00 AM.

At 6:45 AM we were all up and ready to go down to the camp for breakfast at 7:30. After breakfast some went to church and a few went home.

By lunch time the crowd had grown to twenty-four who enjoyed a delicious lunch topped off with a cherry cobbler in honor of Washington's birthday. After lunch those from Massachusetts had to start for home. Although some of us were tired, we had fun and are looking forward to next year.

FEB. 22 OUTING - OLD STYLE

A special gala outing on Feb. 22nd is traditional in Killington Section. This year our Winter Weekend was the big event. Years ago this annual outing consisted of a sled-barge ride to the top of Sherburne Pass, with luncheon served at the Club House by a committee and a program of activities there.

The Herald of Feb. 15, 1924 announced the plans for the outing that year. There was to be a flag raising on Pico, snowshoeing, skiing, dancing, and a sugaring off party.

Unfortunately, a big blizzard on the 21st completely blocked the mt. road. A trip to Bird Mt. was substituted with a special trolley providing transportation. About 30 hikers snowshoed to the peak while the others stayed at "The Rocks" where all had eaten lunch.

Styles in outings change with the times but there are still enough people who enjoy a winter outing to keep alive the February 22 tradition.

BEAVERS AND FLOOD CONTROL

by George L. Kirk

In these times when flood control is necessitating expenditure of large sums of money, it may not be generally known that beavers, which are becoming plentiful in Vermont, may be an important factor in preventing water damage even though they may at times become a nuisance.

An example of their value to man has been cited in the far West. A small stream, having its source in high mountains, became a raging torrent after every heavy rain or during spring thaws. The result was that much valuable soil was washed away on its lower reaches and extensive damage resulted.

Someone thought of introducing beavers and a pair were obtained and liberated on the brook. They went upstream where they and their progeny built a series of dams and in time these held back the water during thaws and storms and further damage was averted.

Beavers were responsible for many of the mountain meadows which hikers on the Long Trail occasionally observe.

Long ago a colony of beavers would build a dam on a stream and live at the site until the food in the area was exhausted. Then they would move on, leaving their dam and pond to Nature.

Years later the barrier rotted and some of the water escaped from the pond. Silt gradually filled up the basin, moss grew where the silt piled up above the water level. Seeds became lodged in the moss and vegetation appeared various growths flourished in the soil formed by rotting grasses and other plants. Man came along and cleared these areas and some are producing good hay today.

Excavations in some of these meadows, as at Lunenburg, Vt., have brought to light sticks, plainly showing the marks of beavers' teeth, which had been preserved in the muck, perhaps for centuries.

WINTER CARNIVAL PARADE

This year for the first time Killington Section had a float in the Winter Carnival Parade. The designer and builder was Jack Martin with assistance from his wife and Ray Catozzi who made the signs. The float was in the form of an open faced shelter with the "forest" encroaching from the rear. In the foreground (on the tailgate of the truck) was a simulated fireplace with our faithful coffee pot on top. Inside the float were five hearty Junior Members: Barbie and Judy Allard, Gay Ward, and the Catozzi boys sittin' or kneeling in the snow. We were sorry that the roof didn't get snow covered...we should have waited a day!

Jack and Jan wish to thank all those who helped in any way: Craigie for trees, Ray for signs, Harold Valiquette for the use of his truck, the Juniors who rode in the float, and Vera and Amy Perkins for baby sitting! Sorry we didn't win a prize, but at least we advertized the Club which was the main object, afterall.

WE REPEAT

As we have said before we always welcome material for use in SMOKE AND BLAZES. We were pleased to receive Mr. Kirk's article and hope more will follow. Material should reach us by the first of the month for use in that month's issue. Why not let us hear from you?

DESERVED PUBLICITY

It seems that "Emile's bridge" is getting some well deserved publicity. A picture of the bridge was used as the cover picture on THE APPALACHIAN TRAILWAY NEWS in January, and the spring issue of VERMONT LIFE carries a story and picture of the bridge. Congratulations, Emile. . .

BUFFUM IN WINTER

Maybe you thought there was still a lot of snow in Rutland on Sunday, March 2nd - however, if you had been with us on the trip to Buffum you would really have seen snow!

As we parked our cars at the side of the East Wallingford Gulf road and took the Trail to Buffum Shelter, we found ourselves surrounded by snow and more snow. The snowshoeing was excellent and a new fall of snow on Saturday night had given the trees a fresh frosting. The sun came out occasionally adding interesting shadows and a general sparkle to the scene.

Arriving at the shelter location, by looking carefully, we found Buffum sandwiched in between 40 inches of snow on its roof and 44 inches on the ground.

An outdoor lunch seemed a good idea and a fire was soon blazing merrily on logs laid on top of the snow. A large piece of canvas spread on the snow in front of the fire made an excellent picnic spot and in an incredibly short time coffee was ready and lunch being enjoyed.

After lunch we relaxed and visited by the fire, taking advantage of the mild temperature. A friendly chickadee hopped about the shelter entrance and seemed not at all disturbed by our presence. Apparently this spot is a favorite of chickadees and well as GMCers.

As four o'clock approached and our fire settled deeper and deeper into the snow we reluctantly decided to start the homeward trip.

As always the hike out was all too short and too soon we were back in town. A good winter outing is pretty hard to beat.

Vol. 11 No. 4 KILLINGTON SECTION-GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB April 1958

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sat., April 26, 10:30 AM
PLACE: Tucker Lodge

It looks now like there might still be considerable snow in the woods for this one. Therefore it would be advisable to watch the HERALD announcement for trail conditions. Although it probably will not be too springlike, we will hope for a bright spring day and perhaps we can find some hobble bush to bring home for indoor forcing into bloom. This will also be a good opportunity to see that Tucker is in shipshape condition for the coming hiking season. We will leave Meldon School at 10:30 AM but if you can't make it until later come along when you can.

TIME: Sat., May 10, 10:00 AM
PLACE: Sunnyside to Clarendon

This is the first of a series of hikes covering the entire Killington Section of the Long Trail. It will start at 10:00 AM from the Meldon School.

There are two reasons for scheduling our entire section. Some of you may wish to start on or continue walking toward an end-to-end award which is given by the Main Club to all those who hike the total length of the Long Trail from Mass. to Canada. Last year three of our members completed the entire trail. In the main this was accomplished by going on hikes scheduled over the past several years by our Section with this objective in mind. This year we are starting the series over by doing our own Section first.

The second reason is that every year our entire section should be checked, blowdowns removed, brush cutback, blazes repainted where needed, and our shelters put into shipshape condition before the summer hiking season. Some of this work can be done on a scheduled hike and note taken of additional work which needs to be done and additional work parties planned accordingly. If the weather is good we will work on the trail. This will be about a 4½ mi. hike. Poor weather will find us working on one of the shelters.

GOV. CLEMENT !
SNOWSHOE

When March 15 rolled around it was obvious that we couldn't get within miles of Gov. Clement because of the snow and road conditions so the group of twelve hikers decided to go to Tall Timber Camp instead. There too there was still plenty of snow... in fact, a bit more was added during the day. The woods were beautiful under their snowy mantle.

After a leisurely lunch at the cabin part of the group took a circle route through the evergreens before returning to the cars. Coming out we passed the top of one of Craigie's signs reading "NO CARS BEYOND". The rest of the sign and post was all under the snow. It seemed to us this was the understatement of the year!

MAPLE SUGAR PARTY
by Ruth Fostman

Our annual Maple Sugar Party was held Sunday, March 30th at 6:30 in the evening.

This took place up in Vera Perkins' attic and what a grand place for it. There were thirty-five people of assorted ages.

When we arrived the two kettles of bubbling new maple syrup were almost ready. It has to be just right for sugar on snow and it was. It was soon time for the boys to bring the snow to the attic. This had been put into half-gallon ice-cream cartons and each person had one. Then the syrup was brought up and kept hot on Jack Martin's camp stove.

Places were set up for everyone on long tables with centerpiece of nasturtiums and candy tuft (grown in Vera's own greenhouse). Everyone had all they wanted and some stirred some down to a creamy texture.

This, together with doughnuts, pickles and good coffee just hit the spot.

Some of the youngsters played billiards and the three youngest, Carol and Nancy Martin and Mary Elizabeth Allard had a small tea table of their own for their sugar on snow.

Afterward we just sat around and visited and some played cards and first we knew it was time to go.

Several non-members were there and we were all so pleased to have them, but it would have been nice to have had more of our own members, too. They missed another good party.

Thank you, Vera, and everyone who helped.

N. E. TRAIL CONFERENCE

Two Killington Section members enjoyed attending the New England Trail Conference in Amherst on Saturday, April 5th. Your next LONG TRAIL NEWS will give you a more complete report, but we'd like to share with you now some of the highlights of the meeting.

Among the organizations represented were many chapters of the Appalachian Club, GMC, and various student Outing Clubs. Many of these Student Clubs reported maintenance of definite sections of the Appalachian Trail. We wonder - could GMC make more use of the Student Outing Clubs which there are in Vermont?

A report of special interest to us was that two Appalachian Club shelters were to be built on the section of their trail between Woodstock and Gifford Woods. These should provide a couple of new objectives for Killington Section hikes.

We saw slides taken along the Long Trail and showing many of our GMC shelters, and slides taken on hikes in Colorado during an Appalachian Club August Camp.

A panel discussion gave pointers on travelling light on the trail, trail clearing tools, and photography along the trail. We were especially fascinated with Ben Rolston's demonstration of how he packs for a summer weekend trail trip. Everything needed, except his sleeping bag, went into a small knapsack which when filled weighed less than 16 lbs!

The concluding treat was an outstanding talk, illustrated with colored slides, on the life in and around swamps and bogs. This opened up a whole new field of interest to which we had previously given but little thought.

It was good to see so many people interested in hiking and maintaining the hiking trails. For an informative and thoroughly enjoyable day among congenial people we heartily recommend attending the New England Trail Conference.

ANOTHER BACKWARD LOOK

Thoughts of the earlier GMC February 22nd outings brought the following reminiscence from a long time member, Bernice R. Tuttle.

"For winter holidays such as New Years' Day and Washington's Birthday the Green Mountain Club liked to open up the Long Trail Lodge (then called the Green Mountain Clubhouse) and make a day of it. After enormous effort, mostly by enthusiastic volunteers, ice still lingered in the corners and chill in the air, and snow banked the windows. Only the big front room was open and lunches were eaten strictly before the fireplace, yet as now, some hikers did venture out on the Pico trail (then it was on snowshoes), or got a lot of snow in the hair climbing Deer's Leap. For myself it was the choice of directly opposite attractions, picnicking at the Clubhouse or attending the sedate luncheon always put on the D.A.R. on Washington's Birthday.

I remember the autumn day that a group picnicking at the foot of Deer's Leap was escorted by Mr. Willis Ross across the road to see the huge rock above and around which the Lodge was to be built, and there we see it yet, covered with moss and green slips constantly renewed for the delight of guests."

We thank Bernice for sending in this interesting bit of material. We hope to hear from her again.

Vol. 11 No. 5 KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB May 1958

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sun., May 25, 10:00 a.m.
PLACE: Buffum to Sunnyside

On Sunday, May 25th, starting from Meldon School at 10:00 A.M. we will have the second in our series of Killington Section hikes. We will start from the Wallingford Gulf Road, go into Buffum and on to Sunnyside. Perhaps if the group finds itself to be of varying degree of ambition and endurance, the more ambitious half could blaze trail from Buffum to Sunnyside and back. The other half could do the part from the Wallingford Gulf road to Buffum. This would make the longer trip about five miles and the shorter one only about one and one half miles. The shorter trip people could probably see to picking up around the shelter and putting it into as good shape as possible for the summer. This would be a good opportunity for those who are busy with church in the morning to get out for the afternoon anyway. Just come along when you can. See you there.

May 31 ANNUAL MEETING June 1
LETS HAVE A GOOD REPRESENTATION
FROM KILLINGTON SECTION

TIME: Sat.-Sun., May 31, June 1
PLACE: G.M.C. Annual Meeting
Long Trail Lodge

Once again it is Annual Meeting time and as in the past it will be held at the Long Trail Lodge. Activities will commence with a coffee hour conducted by Killington Section at 10:00 A. M. The morning business session will convene at 11:00. The various sections will make reports and a change in the by-laws will be considered which would increase the amount of dues to the main club from the sections to 50¢ for adult and 25¢ for juniors.

Lunch will be served at the Lodge at 12:30 for $1.75 per plate. The business meeting will reconvene at 2:00 and will be followed by a trustees meeting. During this time other members will be able to take short hikes in the vicinity.

At 6:00 P.M. dinner will be served at the Lodge for $2.25 per person. Ross McKinney of Dartmouth will be guest Speaker in the evening. There will also be an opportunity to see slides taken by various members so please bring any you may have.

Hikes are planned for Sun. by the Brattleboro (Don Kent, chairman) and Killington Sections (Craigue Perkins; chairman).

SPRING TRIP TO TUCKER

Up to the week before the April 26th hike to Tucker it had looked as though snowshoes would be needed for the trip. However, the 17 hikers found that the warm sun and rains of the early part of the week had reduced the snow in this area to patches here and there. These patches had a surprising depth as an occasional break through showed. The partially overcast skies had cleared before we reached Tucker and we enjoyed a day of bright sun and brilliantly blue sky.

A highlight of the trip in was the sight of two deer by the first arrivals. With plenty of good wood the stove proved cooperative and everyone gathered around for the always popular lunch hour.

One of the objectives for this seasons outings is to accomplish some Trail and Shelter work whenever possible. We started in at Tucker by painting the window sash to the accompaniment of the customary friendly exchange of insults between some members of the group. Unfortunately some "trigger-happy" people had visited here during the winter and a number of window panes will have to be replaced.

A uniform register for use in shelters has been adopted by the main club and we left one of these. We also posted an interesting new set of suggestions for the use of shelters which was drawn up recently.

The painting job completed, we closed up camp and enjoyed the short, pleasant hike back to the cars in the late afternoon.

This hike brought out several new hiking friends and brought back an old friend. We were pleased to have Fernand Bartlett with us again. Many of our long time members will remember Fernand who, along with his sister, Jeannette, hiked with us during his high school years. Fernand is leaving soon for a year in Europe which he has been working toward for five years. "The Carpenters" were new hikers with us and Mary Elizabeth Allard made her first GMC hike. We are glad to see that the Allard representation on hikes will be kept up and hope all these people will join us again - often.

SPECIAL NEWS

Craigie and Mary Perkins have just received word of the birth of another grandson on May 5th. Congratulations to the proud parents, Bob and Thelma Perkins.

Ben Ralston has reported to the main club that Thendara Shelter (4.5 miles south of the Bennington-Brattleboro highway) collapsed under the weight of snow this past winter.

After a weekend spent at the National Guard Range in Northam, Jack Martin reports that in spots there is still four feet of snow and the road is not yet open beyond the Northam picnic area. This mornings Rutland Herald also reported considerable snow in the Killington area to be slowing work on the new ski development.

MYSTERY HIKE

On Sunday, April 13, a good sized group of around eighteen gathered at the Meldon School for the Mystery Hike. It was a beautiful spring day and the crowd soon learned they were bound for a nearby hill west of the city. In the past line Hill has been a favorite spot for outings but it has been several years since we have been there.

This time we went up McKinley Lane and left our cars at the farm house at the top of the hill and the end of the road (at least in April!) Then we hiked a short ways up the roadway to the Postman camp delightfully situated on the east side of the hill with a commanding view of the Green Mountain Range...Pico, Killington, and Mendon still white with snow. There we were greeted by our host and hostesses, Ruth and Herbert Postman, and Maude Canty. Everyone exclaimed over their wonderful location so near the city. Then most of the group took off to explore the surrounding hillside while a few less ambitious ones just sat around and enjoyed some relaxing conversation around the fire in the lovely stone fireplace.

After Ruth and Maude expanded the table to its full length the "stay at camps" ate their lunches, followed by the explorers upon their return. The younger members ate their picnic lunches on the rocks in front of the cabin where they could enjoy the fine weather and commanding view.

The afternoon was leisurely consumed by more exploration and conversation. We all want to thank the Postmans and Maude for their gracious hospitality. It was a thoroughly enjoyable spring outing for young and not so young alike!

CLARENDON TO SUNNYSIDE

After a generally rainy week we were surprised and pleased to awake to bright sunshine on the morning of May 10th. Just the day for a good hike was our first thought! Apparently a number of people felt likewise and 17 were at Meldon School for the take-off at 10 AM.

Sunnyside was our destination with trail work to be done en route and general trimming and picking up to be done at the shelter. Barbie, Craigie and Joe decided to go in over the trail from Clarendon, repainting blazes on the way. The rest went the short way, driving as far as the old road above Spring Lake Ranch. Arrived at Sunnyside some collected wood, started the fire, got water, and cleared up around the dooryard while others hiked to the lake.

Sunnyside is indeed well named and its sunny dooryard was an inviting place to linger after a leisurely lunch. Trail work called, however, and a work crew of 7 soon started back over The Trail to Clarendon, this time to do any needed brushing out and clearing. The rest of the group divided, some returning to Rutland while others drove back to Clarendon and hiked The Trail in from that end as far as "the lookout".

Spring has certainly come on with a rush in the two weeks since our last hike. The woods are now lovely with spring flowers, shad and cherry blossoms, and uncurling ferns.

The turnout for these first two Work Party-Outings has been good. If this keeps up our section of The Trail should be in pretty good shape by mid-summer. We're having fun, too - better join us next time.

SMOKE and BLAZES

Vol. 11 No. 6 KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB

June 1958

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sat., June 28

PLACE: Gov. Clement to Cooper

By this time it is hoped that the group will be able to drive into Gov. Clement as could be done last summer. If this can be done the trip will be about 8 miles round trip. This is one of the easier approaches to Killington so why not join this work party hike. The hikers will leave from Meldon School at 9:30 AM so as to reach Cooper Lodge about noon time.

TIME: Sunday, July 13

PLACE: Long Trail Lodge to
Cooper Lodge

This is the last of our section trips and perhaps the most difficult, but a splendid opportunity for anyone wishing to climb our highest peak, Killington, or for those not quite so ambitious Pico Junction and Shelter are about half as far. From the Long Trail Lodge to Cooper is about 5.4 miles. Two hikers who came through from the south at Annual Meeting time reported the trail to be in fairly good condition. This trip will leave Meldon School at 9:30 AM.

TIME: Saturday, July 26

PLACE: Lake Fleiad

Pack up your swim suit and join us for a trip to a pleasant little lake not far from highway #125 through Middlebury Gap. This should be a pleasant mid-summer trip to a favorite lake-side camp. The group will leave Meldon School at 10:00 AM.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The next issue of Smoke and Blazes will come out at the end of July and will be the July and the August issues in a combined form due to the expected arrival of another little Martin during the first part of the month. We hope no one will mind too much.

ANNUAL MEETING
GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB
May 31 - June 1
by John Martin

The Green Mountain Club's annual meeting was held May 31 at the Long Trail Lodge in Sherburne Pass. The general business meeting of the club started at 11:00 AM. Following the usual secretary's and treasurer's reports, the various club sections reported on the condition of their shelters and of their section of the Long Trail and its approaches.

The New York section reported the erection of the Grenville T. Anderson Memorial Shelter on the Appalachian Trail in New Jersey, named for the late section president. This section also had a 40 year member present, Miss Helen Raymond. The Bennington Section reported the collapse, during the winter, of Thendara Shelter on the Long Trail southeast of Bennington. Other sections reporting were Worcester, Brattleboro, Killington, Montpelier, and Burlington.

Announcement was made of 8 awards during the year, of the "End to End" certificate for those persons who have hiked the length of the Long Trail. Three of these were Killington Section members, Vera, Mary and Craigie Perkins.

The club passed a resolution opposing "further opening of Public Lands in Vermont to commercial interests." The resolution also asked that "future developments be widely publicized at least six months in advance." This action was prompted by recent developments in the Lincoln Mountain area.

Trustees reelected were John Faulson of Bennington, John Martin of Rutland, Don Kent of Newfane, and Roy Buchanan of Burlington. Newly elected to the position of trustee was Harlan Farnsworth of Montpelier. Ted Goddard of Old Bennington was reelected as Clerk, and Miss Minerva Hinchey of Rutland as Corresponding Secretary.

During the trustee's meeting which followed, all officers were reelected. The budget for next year was altered to provide especial emphasis upon the repairing and rebuilding of some of the Long Trail shelters. A Trail conference was announced for the first of November. The Skyline group of the Middlebury College Mountain Club was voted in as the first College Section of the Green Mountain Club.

A fairly large group of members-at-large and of the other sections accepted the hospitality of Craigie Perkins and spent the night at Tall Timber Camp. Several of the local members took their picnic dinners up for noontime. Two ambitious hikers climbed up Blue Ridge and some of the others took shorter hikes in the vicinity. A few of the younger ones did a little fishing. The rest of the people just sat around and enjoyed a leisurely day.

Another group of members met with Don Kent of the Brattleboro section in the vicinity of Manchester Depot for hiking in that area.

SPECIAL

Congratulations to Jan and Ray Catozzi on the birth of their third son, Louis Peter, on May 19.

Barbie Allard is working this summer at Hyacinth House in South Woodstock. We shall miss her on the hikes but hope she has a pleasant and profitable summer.

SUNNYSIDE TO BUFFUM

The weather threatened showers when we left Meldon School on Sunday, May 25th enroute for Buffum and trail work. Three trail workers headed for Sunnyside to work the trail between there and Buffum, while eight others, including four junior Juniors, and the lunches went on to Buffum via the Gulf road approach.

The threatened showers arrived simultaneously with our arrival at the parking spot. Here we waited a short time and debated whether or not we should take to the Trail. Since the workers would be looking for their coffee and lunches at Buffum it was decided that some of us, at least, should hike in there. By this time the current shower was letting up so everyone decided to make the trip. Actually it didn't rain much more, so that though the grass, trees and bushes were plenty wet we didn't get too wet.

Happily, we found that the shelter had stayed up in spite of its heavy load of snow last winter, and there was a good supply of dry wood inside. We still haven't managed to get the much needed "new" stove in here, but the old one cooperated very well on this occasion and we soon had hot water for coffee.

Just as we were well started on lunch the trail workers arrived, surprised and pleased to find us there. They had resigned themselves to the idea of having to walk out to the cars for their lunches. Being thoroughly wet down, as they were on the Trail during all of the shower, they had made a quick trip through. They found this section in reasonably good condition, however, but another trip should be made over this area if possible, under better weather conditions.

Soon after lunch we started the return trip to the cars.

GOV. CLEMENT TO CLARENDON

Sunday, June 15th dawned clear and cool with a brisk breeze. Here was an excellent hiking day. The black flies, the bugbear of June hikes, would be at a minimum and the temperature was perfect for hiking. We confidently expected to find an ambitious group at Meldon School ready for a day's work on the Trail. We found one car with Mary and Craigue, "Butch" Soulia, and Mark and Judy Godnick. Well, if you don't have a crowd you do the best you can with what you have. We added Carol Martin and Vera Perkins to Craigue's group and drove to Gov. Clement. Here Craigue and "Butch" took the Trail to Clarendon to work trail and paint blazes en route.

The rest of us planned to stay at Gov. Clement until after lunch and meet the workers at Clarendon in the afternoon. However, the brisk breeze in Rutland was a high wind here and the temperature cold rather than cool, so, after a quick check of the shelter showed conditions to be OK, we decided to move on at once to the comfort of Clarendon Lodge.

We found the old road which we usually hike in on surprisingly washed and filled with cobbles of all sizes. At the shelter there was protection from the wind and we spent a pleasant day hiking in this area and sitting in the sun. The trail workers arrived about 3:30 PM having found the Trail in good condition.

Clarendon has a pane of glass to be replaced and needs new sections of stovepipe installed. We were distressed to find a piece has already been broken out of the top of the stove so recently put in here.

We left Clarendon late in the PM going out over the Trail, and so just missing Jan, Nancy and Carol Martin who had hiked in over the old road.

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sunday, Aug. 10
PLACE: C. V. Camp, Chittenden

Once again it is time for our outing to the C.V. Camp in Chittenden. For those of you who have never been... here is an opportunity for a good swim and a leisurely day on the beach or at the camp with those of us who plan each year to attend this Very enjoyable outing. We will meet at the Meldon School at 10:00 AM. for those who need transportation. Those wishing to come later may do so at their own convenience. Plan to come for all or part of the day.

TIME: Sat.-Sun., Aug. 16-17
PLACE: Intersectional
Craigie Perkins' Camp
Mendon - Headquarters

Full details on this affair are attached to this Smoke and Blazes. Killington Section is the host to please everybody come up for at least part of the weekend and meet the folks from the other sections.

EDITORIAL

We are very sorry to note such poor turnouts for the Killington Section maintenance work parties. Our hard working trails chairman cannot do the whole section single handed or with one or two helpers. True, the best turnout was eleven, but four of these were under six years old and one had to be carried! Also it rained so about all that could be done was paint blazes. The last two hikes had only two and three show up.

We send out 70 Smoke and Blazes so it seems like we should have at least ten on every hike. We are always hearing complaints that there is nothing to do by some of the younger members of the community. How about getting some of these folks with time and energy on their hands interested in doing a little trail work! It's still there; still needs doing! If you aren't able to do any work yourself, do some recruiting. Your dues don't get the trail brushed out, blow-downs cleared, and blazes painted. Somebody has to put some time on the trail soon or Killington Section cannot be called an active section.

CLEMENT TO COOPER

Saturday, June 28th was a perfect day for the scheduled work party-outing to Killington via Gov. Clement. Attendance*-one trail worker. Result: the trail from Gov. Clement to Cooper Ladge was hiked and blazes painted in one direction. Only a bit of the most essential brushing could be done.

LONG TRAIL LODGE TO COOPER

On Sunday, July 13th, another fine hiking day, two were on hand for the trail work-outing. Realizing that with such a small party we could not hope to cover the trail from Long Trail Lodge to Cooper Lodge and to any work, we decided on Fico Shelter as our destination. Blazes were painted in both directions on most of this section of trail. Although more brushing out would be desirable, we classified most of this section as good and none as poor.

At Fico Shelter we talked with members of a group from the Putney School Work Camp. Their leader had previously discussed with our Trail Chairman their plan to spend four weekends working on the trail. This was their first weekend and they had stayed over night at Fico Shelter and done some brushing in that area. Such groups can be of real service in helping on our maintenance problem.

This was a pleasant day on the Trail. The bugs were not troublesome and the temperature was just high enough to make a stop off at Craigie's Camp for a swim a most enjoyable ending for the day's trip.

ANOTHER HIKER ARRIVES

Congratulations to Jan and Jack Martin on the arrival of Betsy June Martin on July 5th. We expect to see Betsy on a GMC Outing soon.

LAKE FLEIAD

Saturday, July 26th, gave every promise of being hot with a good possibility of showers. The five hikers who finally managed to make connections for this trip, unanimously decided that the woods and pond at Fall Timber had just as much to offer on such a day as Lake Fleiad and was much nearer. Accordingly, the schedule was revised and we were soon enjoying the cooling water of Fall Timber Pond. This was followed by a cook-out lunch at the cabin nearest the pond.

After lunch, invigorated by our swim and the pleasant coolness of the woods, we enjoyed a leisurely hike along a woodland trail noting birds, ferns, and flowers along the way. Betty was rewarded by a good look at a variety of cross-bill she had not seen for eight years.

Warmed up by our hour of hiking we were ready to cool off again. Another swim completed a most enjoyable day.

BIG PROJECT COMING UP

Killington Section has received a donation of $200 from a DAR group in Massachusetts to be used toward rebuilding Fico Shelter. This is a fine start on a needed project, and presents us with a real challenge in carrying it through to completion.

The problems of getting material to the site and the actual building will come later, but first we have the problem of raising the additional money which will be required. Any suggestions on ways and means for doing this will be welcomed.

KILLINGTON SECTION-GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB

Sept. 1958

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sunday, Sept. 14
PLACE: Green Mountain,
Little Rock Pond

You probably noticed in the Long Trail News, as did our hike chairman, that there is now a new trail at Little Rock Pond, our old favorite in spring and fall. It is to Green Mountain which slopes down to the pond's edge. The new trail is .7 mile long and leads to open rock viewing spots looking toward the north and west. The top of the mountain is not attained as it is heavily wooded. This promises to be an enjoyable fall outing. Come and try out the new trail. We will meet at Meldon School at 10:00 AM.

TIME: Saturday, Sept. 27
PLACE: "Mystery Hike"

This should prove interesting if we only get good weather... it had rather poor luck on that score in the past, but... Only clue we can give you is it is a "new" place. Join us at Meldon School at 10:00 AM and see where the trail leads.

TIME: Sunday, October 12
PLACE: Hadeka Farm, Granville

This trip proved so enjoyable last year and the foliage so beautiful that it was scheduled again this fall. If you went last year we know you will want to go again. If you didn't, don't miss it this year... the maples around the pond are beyond compare, even if they are over the line in York state! Join the crowd at Meldon School at 10:30 AM.

INTERSECTIONAL

We are happy to have several writeups about the various trips taken at the intersectional so here we will only make some brief comment. The turnout was good, although it would have been nice if more Killington section members could have been there. The weather was about perfect, and our committee, Jack Martin, Craigie Perkins, and Bill Wadsworth had things running smoothly. A large choice of trips were suggested and worked up as demanded.

TWO AND A BOY WORK PARTY TO TUCKER LODGE

On Saturday, August 9th, two men and a boy ventured forth on the short cut to Tucker Lodge. They were Jack Martin, you know him, with Bill Wadsworth and Ronnie Lussier, two out of town members of our section, on a work party intending to set a "few" lights of glass in Tucker Lodge, and renew the stovepipe.

We arrived at the lodge to find a sorry looking building. The door was propped open and we could see that some "kind" person had scrawled various sentiments all over the inside of the lodge with assorted colors of fluorescent chalk! Other signs of poor housekeeping were the four sash without any glass at all in them (that's 48 lights of glass), and the large perforations (bullets?) in the window screening.

As our first task, we installed the new stovepipe, using old rope climbing knots learned in our collegiate days. This engineering feat required a length of pipe with either two crimped ends or one with two straight ends, if possible!

While sweeping out the lodge with a beech branch broom, we saw two ladies approaching from the south. They were two Hostellers from Detroit on their way to Sunrise Camp and then hopping up to the Mansfield area. They noted that nothing had been said in the Guide Book about maid service!

After setting two lights of glass it was time to leave our somewhat patched up friend in the woods. Tucker still needs the four new sash, some roof spot repairing, some stone masonry, and a good coat of creosote to put it into shape for continued use.

JBM

ON TO TUCKER LODGE FOR A LUNCHTIME HIKE

As Saturday morning of the Intersectional wore on and most of the hikers had departed for the more strenuous trips, your author pondered what short trip he should go on. Tucker Lodge was chosen for its brevity and the lateness of the hour. The next item on the agenda was to form a party.

A VW pulled in bearing Massachusetts plates and three hikers, Lewis and Robin Hodgkinson and Billy Larsons of Oakham, Massachusetts. Almost as soon as they had set up their small wall tent and its adjoining all-purpose cupboard they were recruited for the hike. These three were joined by Jack Martin, Carol Martin, Mary Elizabeth Allard and Judith Allard of Billington Section.

The hike in to Tucker was very pleasant with many signs of deer crossing the trail. Our arrival at the lodge was followed by the departure of a well burdened hiker who had made a lone trip from the Mass. line to Cowles Cove and was on the return stretch.

Tucker was in no worse shape than it had been the week-end before. A little time was spent scouting about before the eating began. Water, it seems, is hard come by at this lodge. While looking for water an aluminum pot was found in the brush. It had been reduced by the spiny wonders to a handle and little more than a rim. This was carried back to illustrate an Intersectional appetite.

Shortly after lunch the seven hikers made their way out from a pleasant luncheon.

JBM

KILLINGTON TRIP INTERSECTIONAL WEEKEND

by Marie Morris

Promptly at 8:30 on Aug. 16th, a party of six left Tall Timber Camp for Mt. Killington. We were Bill Wadsworth, leader and experienced hiker; Barbara Allard, who had climbed it before; Pat Bruneau, who had done some hiking, Ronnie Lussier, also a young hiker; and Mr. and Mrs. Myron O. Morris.

We drove to the Long Trail Lodge and at 8:50 headed for the peak. The three teenagers forged rapidly ahead but only reached Pico Junction about ten minutes before Bill and the Morris's. It was a beautiful day for a hike and as we walked toward Pico Shelter we had some wonderful views.

At the shelter evidence of a dead "Lorky" forced us to go on quite soon. The walk to Cooper was fine except for some very muddy spots, where white sneakers became black. The conversation was stimulating and also humorous. At Cooper we ate lunch and enjoyed the view. Then on to the Peak. This was a rugged climb but true to tradition those ascending for the first time did not look back until the bare rocky pinnacle was reached. It was a breathtaking (literally and figuratively) sight! Clear in all directions, truly the reason for being a hiker. I can truthfully say, with the others, I would not have missed it for anything, but the inspiration of the experienced hikers really made me do the last climb. As we came down the peak a lone hiker was ascending. We surveyed the remains of a stone ranger hut very near the top. Of course, Bill's lemon drops were a help, but for Mr. Morris and myself his helpful suggestions and information on hiking proved invaluable.

The time going up was about three hours actual hiking. The descent was, of course, much shorter.

We were just a short distance down from Cooper when we met a lady, we presumed her to be the mate of the hiker headed up the peak. A short way further down we passed two women hikers who were headed for Cooper overnite. We felt they were not fully equipped for it, but we wished them luck. On the return stop at Pico Shelter we met a family of six from Rutland who had hiked up for lunch. The next one we passed was a weather-beaten, suntanned hiker, fully packed, headed for Killington and points beyond. After leaving Pico Junction, Bill, Mr. Morris and I took the power line trail down and while it was steep it was also rapid. We reached the car at 3:40, tired but happy, and with a sense of great accomplishment.

Mrs. Morris and her husband are members-at-large, and come from Spring Lake, N. J. They were distinguished as the first to arrive and the last to leave the Intersectional. We want to thank her for the above write-up and say we hope to see them at another intersectional gathering. (ED.)

OTHER INTERSECTIONAL ACTIVITIES

The Intersectional crowd really took advantage of the good hiking weather and each day found several groups heading off in various directions.

Beside the Killington and Tucker hikes which are written up elsewhere in this issue, hikes were taken to Lico, Blue Ridge (both the summit and the Cascades), and the beaver dam, as well as around the Fall Timber trails.

Each hike had its own satisfactions. The mountain tops offered the more spectacular appeal, but the trip to the beaver pond offered the beauty of an old road with its play of light and shade, and its borders of wild flowers and ferns.

As we passed the old school house, one of the few buildings now left on this road, it was interesting to speculate on how this area must have looked when there were enough families living around to supply children for a school.

The abundant wildflowers gave us a fine opportunity to test our skill in correctly identifying them.

The last bit of road before the pond is reached is pretty much filled in with alders and about the only way of finding the path is by its feel under foot. The pond itself was a bit disappointing as the area is so overgrown and swampy that it was impossible to get near enough to the beaver house for a good inspection.

Hiking was not the only activity. One group enjoyed a trip to the Marble Exhibit in Proctor, and nearly everyone found that a cooling dip in Fall Timber Pond made a perfect ending to the day's travels.

C. V. CAMP

Sunday, August 10th, was the day of the outing at the C. V. Camp at Chittenden Pond. It looked at first as though the weather was going to fail us at last after six years of cooperating for this event, but our luck held good and we enjoyed another fine day.

This outing brought out the best crowd of the summer, a total of 23, including 9 members of the "youngest set", being on hand at one time or another during the day.

Except for a pleasant luncheon interlude on the screened porch overlooking the pond, most of the day was spent in and on the water. Craigie's rubber boat had a busy day carrying voyagers around the pond.

This outing has been an annual event since it first appeared on our schedule in 1952. Once again our thanks to Eleanor Walker for making the Camp available to us.

CALLING ALL RUMMAGE

Start now to collect all the rummage you can beg or steal, your own and that of your relatives, friends, and neighbors. Our sale will be held in October (the exact date will be announced later), so don't delay, start now. With the Lico re-building project in the offing we really need money. Our Rummage Sale has been the only real money-maker we've found to date, so let's make this year's the best yet.

Remember that dishes, bedspreads, curtains, kitchenware, and nic-nacs, continue to be good sellers as well as clothing. In clothing the demand for large sizes always exceeds the supply, as it also does for children's clothing.

Vol. 11 No. 10 KILLINGTON SECTION-GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB Oct. 1958

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Fri., Oct. 10 RUMMAGE SALE
PLACE: Neighborhood Rooms

Now is the time to collect all articles for our annual RUMMAGE SALE. This year's sale will be for the benefit of the new Pico Shelter, so please search your house from cellar to attic for useful items you no longer want. Call your friends, relatives, and neighbors, too, so this can be our biggest sale yet.

Dishes, bedspreads, curtains, kitchenware, and nic-nacs continue to be good sellers as well as clothing. The demand for children's clothing and large sizes is always greater than the supply.

All rummage should be brought to the Neighborhood Rooms as early as possible on Thursday morning, Oct. 9th. If you cannot get it down yourself call Janet Martin, 3-8621 before Thursday, and we will arrange to have it picked up. If you can work on Thursday or Friday call Vera Perkins, 3-2941.

TIME: Sunday, Oct. 12
PLACE: Hadcka Farm, Granville

This trip proved so enjoyable last year and the foliage so beautiful that it was scheduled again this fall. If you went last year we know you will want to go again. If you didn't, don't miss it this year...the maples around the pond are beyond compare, even if they are in New York state. Join the crowd at Meldon School.

TIME: Saturday, Oct. 25
PLACE: Cooper Lodge

This will probably be your last chance to go to Cooper Lodge before winter sets in on Killington... in fact there might be snow then. At any rate we will hope for a clear and crisp Oct. day for this one and try to get Cooper into top notch condition for Winter. The route to be taken will be decided by the group going. They will leave Meldon School at 9:00 AM.

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sunday, Nov. 9th
PLACE: Gov. Clement Shelter

This is a pleasant place to go in late fall, especially if we are lucky enough to get a sunny day. Those who do not wish to hike far probably would be able to drive in at this time of year. This trip will leave Meldon School at 10:30 A.M.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING

A meeting of the executive board of the Killington Section, G. M. C. was held on September 17th at the home of Jack Martin. Craigie Perkins submitted a resolution concerning the proposed Air Force installation on the Chin of Mt. Mansfield and further reported that G.M.C. President Koerber had requested that action be taken by the individual Sections as well as the main club. The following resolution was adopted:

"WHEREAS a proposed military installation on the Chin of Mount Mansfield requiring a road near the profile ridge would make the State's highest summit inaccessible to the public, and,

WHEREAS the military authorities have raised no technical objection to the use of the Nose of Mount Mansfield for this installation, therefore, BE IT HEREBY RESOLVED that immediate and thorough reconsideration be given to the proposed location of this installation."

Copies of the resolution will be sent to Senator Aiken, Senator Flanders, Representative Frouty, Governor Johnson, and the Vt. Department of Forests and Parks. *

There was considerable discussion of the proposed new Pico Shelter. It was felt it should be a closed shelter and that it would probably cost around $500. It was decided that the proceeds of the annual Rummage Sale held in Oct. would be used toward this amount. This will be followed by a benefit showing of the new collection of Green Mountain Club slides and a speaker sometime in early November. Members felt this would provide an opportunity for non-members who use and enjoy the trail to make a donation for this new shelter.

The chairman of Trails and Shelters, Craigie Perkins, reported the trail to be in fairly good condition although some brushing out should be done. Work parties in the Spring for this purpose unfortunately attracted very few workers. The shelters are almost all in need of attention. Outing Chairman, Jack Martin, reported that outings to several of the shelters had been scheduled for this Fall in the hope some of these repairs could be made. Other work parties are being planned. Anyone wishing to help should contact Craigie Perkins, 3-7954. Some of the repairs are necessitated by the age of the shelters and the very heavy snowfall last Winter, but most of it is due to the misuse of the shelters by some of the people who "use" them. In particular, we note the destructive use of firearms.

* An editorial in support of our stand on Mt. Mansfield was in the Rutland Herald on Oct. 20. There has also been three Letters to the Editor on this subject.

LITTLE ROCK POND

by
Marie Gray

With young Mary Allard setting the pace, our party stepped along the trail in hopes that the sky would be kind. The clouds passed and our ascent was made in jovial spirits with the usual bantering from Craigue and the crowd. The brook bubbled, the birds stared silently. Mr. Bell, sensing their shyness on sight of such a qucer lot, burst into snatches of warbles and trills which could have enchanted a sanctuary of birds. He really could whistle, so no one minded. Betty was delighted to spot another white-winged crossbill.

Along the way there were pieces of flint rock, toadstools, bewildered frogs, a makeshift fish-line, a "cute" toad, a beaver and his hut and above all a perfectly fine piece of pipe discovered by Carol, the youngest member on the trip.

The fire at the shelter was a welcome sight and there we were pleased to find Fran Green, a Killington Section member from Mass. and a friend, Gertrude Cook. They had not only stayed the previous night, but braved the icy pond waters, and climbed the new side trail besides.

Betty and Marie tried the blue section of this same trail. They gingerly squirmed inch by inch up the lengthy spine of a rock, similiar to a prehistoric lizards back, and explored every possible lookout they could find. The trail was well marked and the views were well worth the struggle.

On returning to the shelter the girls found that most of the party had started out, but Mr. Bell was on hand to assume the duty of life guard for one of them who felt she must cool off in the pond. However, his duties were limited to a scant few moments. This last statement comes from a reliable source.

The whole clan finally reunited on the homeward way after a most enjoyable day.

COOPER WORK TRIP

by
Craigue Perkins

Well, it's about time! Bennett Bell and Craigue Perkins spent a beautiful fall day getting Cooper Lodge ready for winter.

We had had several reports of the poor condition of this important camp so we were prepared for the worst. A new sash and several lights of glass were taken up the Bucklin Trail together with the necessary putty and enough tools for a big work party.

The trail in seemed less bushy than usual and we found the camp clean, with a supply of wood. It looked like the work of Ben Rolston who had been camping and hiking in this area. He is a good man to follow.

After the grate had been replaced in the stove, it worked perfectly providing hot coffee and a gentle warmth to the camp at the price of a few sticks of damp wood.

Lunch over, we fitted the new sash and removed one at a time the other sash which had broken lights. There was time for all but two which we hope to replace when we go up again in October. Needed: one second hand broom.

Taking our time, we went up in two and a quarter hours, and came down in one and three quarters hours. One of those days when everything clicked. A fine trip and a much needed job done.

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sun., Dec. 7, 6:00 P.M.
PLACE: "Beechwood",
Covered Dish Supper

This annual event needs no introduction to old members. If you are a new member and like to eat, we know you will enjoy it too. In order to insure a variety of food anyone planning to attend should call Janet Martin (LR 3-8621) by Fri. evening, stating what they prefer to bring. As usual "Beechwood" will be open from around 2 o'clock on so that those who wish to spend the afternoon hiking in the vicinity may do so. Supper will be at 6:00 P.M. Don't forget to bring your own dishes and silver.

After we eat, we will have a program of slides taken in Korea by Jony Fusco. Many of you will remember Jony from the time when he was a junior member, and we are happy he will be with us again.

"Beechwood" is located at the end of Curtis Ave., in the town of Rutland.

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sat., Dec. 20, 10:00 A.M.
PLACE: Mount Carmel

Coming so near Christmas we hope this trip will bring out some of our members who are home on Christmas Vacation, as well as those who are around all year. It would seem this would be a good time to take a break in the hectic days of shopping, don't you think? We will meet at Meldon School at 10:00 A.M.

TIME: Sun., Jan. 11, 10:30 A.M.
PLACE: Clarendon Lodge

This is a pleasant place to go at any time of the year, but particularly so when the snow is on the evergreens, the sky is a brilliant blue, and the air is crisp and clear. Mark this date on your new calendar and plan now to attend. We will meet at Meldon School at 10:30 A.M. Watch the "Rutland Herald" for advice on snow conditions, although there probably will not be enough for snowshoeing.

HADDEKA FARM by Betty Ball

An exceedingly colorful trip was enjoyed by the hikers who went to the Hadeka Farm in Granville on October 12th. With the autumn foliage at its peak, and the weather cool, crisp and sunny, the twelve hikers found it a perfect day for hiking.

Camera-enthusiasts found shots everywhere. The gay contrast of brilliant red berries and blue grapes, a golden birch against a blue, blue sky, and the flaming maples were all opportunities not to be missed.

We climbed up a long hill, getting better and better views back across the low hills to the Vermont mountains, dipped down to a pasture. With ten red coats in the crowd, we carefully skirted the field with the bulls, and ate by a gem of a pond, shimmering with colorful reflections.

A tower was our next goal, built by a wealthy man, and defaced now, but still sturdy with its solid staircase, and the view from the top was rewarding - with the Adirondacks on the west, and the Green Mountains on the east, and miles of farms and hills rolling in between, this panoramic view was one of the finest in these parts, especially in this colorful time of the year.

Reluctantly we turned back towards the Hadeka Farm, enjoying the view of the pond encircled by golden maples as we descended to our lunch stop. The trip back to the cars seemed all too short, as another perfect hiking trip came to an end.

RUMMAGE SALE NETS $117

The Rummage Sale got us off to a good start on our current project of raising money to replace the old Fico Shelter with a new structure.

We didn't offer any prizes to the first 10 customers, but the lobby of the Marble Savings Bank was so crowded just before we opened our doors that we had trouble getting through to open them! How the nickles, dimes, and quarters added up in the first two hours! If we could have material enough to keep business going at that rate all day we could really make money.

Our thanks go to all the people who contributed articles for sale, and special thanks to Bennett Bell for contributing advertising space, to Ruth Fostman, "T" Valiquette and Joe Hadeka for their assistance and to Janet Martin for all the sorting and boxing she did.

STOVE INSTALLATION

It seems that the trip to Killington on Saturday, Oct. 26th generated a lot of steam in some members, for on Sunday P.M. Ray Catozzi called Craigie Perkins with the proposal that they take to needed stoves into Gov. Clement and Buffum that afternoon. The call was perfectly timed as Ben Rolston, GMC member from Schenectady was at Craigie's and offered to go along, too. Accordingly, a second-hand, range-type stove which had been waiting some time for placement was taken to Gov. Clement and installed and the "Valiquette Special" residing at Gov. Clement was moved and located at Buffum. This is a good job done.

KILLINGTON TRIP

The old custom that a GMC trip goes on rain or shine prevailed on Saturday, October 25th. Two of us were on hand at the starting hour and we were shortly joined by a third, a new Junior member from Wallingford. While we were discussing the pros and cons of three people starting for Killington in the rain, three more arrived. This definitely tipped the scales in favor of going, especially as there were a few more window panes to be set at Cooper Lodge. We loaded ourselves into one station wagon and were on our way.

Our approach to the Bucklin trail via the Wheelerville road was enlivened by the necessity of pulling out a car stranded in the one muddy spot on the road. As the car was being pulled out backward, it slipped and slid in the mud, careening wildly to the side in true "movie" rescue fashion, thus giving the station wagon "observers" a bit of excitement to start the day. Now we had to get our car through, and somewhat to our surprise this was accomplished without much trouble.

When we parked our car at the start of the old lumber road it was still raining a bit. In spite of this it wasn't bad hiking weather as the air was crisp and not too cold with little wind. As we started climbing we had a preview of winter with the rain changing to fine snow, and making all the evergreens look as though they had been sprayed for Christmas decorations. The big brook crossing presented an interesting hazard, but was accomplished without mishap.

We found Cooper Lodge in good condition with a good supply of wood. Thanks to the kindling Craigue had brought along in his pack, the fire took hold quickly and we were soon once more praising that efficient little stove for its fine performance.

After the warming up period and lunch, the men were ready to do their work with glass and putty while the women folks concentrated on keeping the fire going. This completed, "afternoon tea" was served, and we started the return trip about 4 P.M., glad that Cooper was being left ready for the winter.

Those making the trip were Ray Catozzi, Churchill and six year old Bobby Scott, Susan Tarbell from Wallingford, and Vera and Craigue Perkins.

A HIKE TO GOV. CLEMENT SHELTER by Charlotte Bell

Last Sunday, eleven of us drove to Governor Clement Shelter near the southern base of Killington Mountain. Since it was hunting season, we decided to drive there together and then hike a short way on the Long Trail after lunch.

When we arrived, we found the woods were damp and uncomfortable so the stove and the fireplace fires were very welcome. When the sun came out, the upper fields and mountains were pretty.

Two hunters came back from a long day of deer hunting. They had slept the night before in a homemade sleeping unit on the back of a truck, parked near the shelter. They showed us their quarters which were equipped with a tiny oil stove, a cupboard, food, and two bunk beds which looked very comfortable.

We had two new hikers from Wallingford... Florence Van Wyck and Susan Tarbell... and a guest, Mary Lull. Everyone had a good time picnicking and hiking up in the mountains.

SUNNYSIDE AND OTHERS

Most of us who started on the hike on Saturday, Nov. 22nd went to Sunnyside for lunch, approaching via Spring Lake Ranch, and were satisfied to take just an additional walk on the Trail for a view of the lake. Four hikers, however, elected to come in via Buffum, planning to join us for lunch. Two arrived as planned. The other two not being familiar with Sunnyside, mistook it for a hunting camp, and continued on until they came out on Route 103 at E. Clarendon. Nothing daunted, however, they reversed direction and hiked back again, finally going out as they had come, via Buffum, having had a really good day's hike.

We found Sunnyside in sad condition. All the window panes were shattered and two of the four window frames broken. One foundation post appeared to have been used for target practice. We cleaned up the mess, and brought the window frames back with us for repairs, leaving the openings temporarily protected with wallboard. When we find a shelter abused in this fashion it makes us wonder why we bother to provide them.

BOARD MEETING HIGHLIGHTS

A meeting of the executive board of the Killington Section, GMC, was held on Nov. 19th at the home of Craigie Perkins.

Plans for the location, type of shelter, and materials needed for the new Fico Shelter were discussed, also means of transporting materials to the location decided upon.

Craigie Perkins reported on condition of shelters and trails, telling of needed repairs and trail work which should be done.

It was voted to try to have another joint card party with the Community Club, the proceeds to go toward Killington Section's share of the cost of the new Fico Shelter.

It was decided to have a Slide Show on January 10th or 12th, with a talk on Wildlife on the Trail to raise funds for the new shelter. The theme of this program would be "Outdoor Life on the Long Trail". Ray Catozzi was appointed Chairman. The show will be further discussed at the Covered Dish Supper, Dec. 7th, at Beechwood.

Contact is to be made with the teenagers at Teen Town to try to interest them in the Green Mountain Club's activities.

KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MT. CLUB

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sat., Jan. 24, 7:00 PM
PLACE: Moonlight Snowshoe Hike to Tucker Lodge

Be sure and have your snowshoes and warmest clothing in shape for this trip which has become an annual affair that several members look forward to each year. For those who have never been....take our word for it.....it's an experience not soon forgotten. The first few hundred yards after leaving the warm cars one thinks "we'll freeze", but soon the brisk swing of snowshoes on glistening snow make one feel really alive: perhaps because of the need to adjust to the stinging cold. By the time we reach Tucker through the shimmering woods everyone is warmed up. The candlelight of the first arrivals beckons us on to coffee or cocoa and doughnuts. We will gather for this trip at Meldon School at 7:00 PM. As in past years if the weather is very poor Sat. we will go on Sun. night. If in doubt call Jack Martin, PR 3-6821.

TIME: Thurs. Jan. 29, 6:30 PM
PLACE: ANNUAL MEETING
Women's Reformatory

The annual meeting of our Section, G.M.C., will be held Thurs. evening, Jan. 29th, following a supper at 6:30 PM at the Women's Reformatory dining room. Supper will cost $1.25. The meeting will start at approximately 7:30 PM. This is the only scheduled business meeting of your club in a year, so your officers would like to see a good representation of the membership present and actively participating. We need new ideas about membership, trail and shelter maintenance, Smoke and Blazes, publicity and fund raising for the new Lico Shelter, and trips members would like scheduled, to mention but a few possible items of business. For entertainment we will view the new slide collection of the main club.

COMING SOON:
WINTER WEEKEND FEB. 21st & 22nd
CRAIGUE PERKINS' CAMP

COMING EVENTS, Cont.

TIME: Sun. Feb. 8, 10:30 AM
PLACE: Snowshoe to Buffum

We certainly don't expect there will be quite as much snow at Buffum this year as last, but there should be plenty for a pleasant snowshoe trip, none the less. The trail to Buffum from the Wallingford Gulf Road follows an old dirt road so the going is comparatively easy and is only eight-tenths of a mile so it is a pleasant little outing for a winter Sunday. The group will leave the Meldon School at 10:30 AM. However, if anyone wished to come along at a later hour, there would be plenty of time and the added advantage that the coffee water would probably be hot when they got there!

COMING SOON: FEB. 21-22

CRAIGUE PERKINS' CAMP

PUBLIC SLIDE SHOWING POSTPONED

A tentative showing this month of the main club's new slide collection in connection with raising money for the new Pico Shelter has been postponed until a later date due to the unavailability of the guest speaker. The committee in charge hopes to pin this speaker down to a definite date the latter part of next month. See February Smoke and Blazes for the complete details, including who and where.

CARMEL ????

Your reporter missed this one, but a brief account from one who went supplied the following information on the trip.

Three hardy hikers set out for Carmel as per schedule on the morning of Dec. 20th. Some of you may recall that this was an extremely cold day with only a light snow cover here in the city. In "New Boston" it was even colder and there was plenty of snow! Our hikers, basing their decision on snow conditions in Rutland, had left their snowshoes at home, so were now wallowing along through quite deep snow. Still, the schedule read, "Carmel - Dec. 20", so on they went.

As lunch time approached and passed, and still no sign of Carmel Camp, they decided to have an outdoor lunch. While not as cozy and relaxing as lunch around a camp stove, an outdoor lunch in winter isn't as bad as it may sound to the in-door enthusiast.

Renewed energy took the party forward once more, but by now it was becoming increasingly evident that something was wrong with the route chosen. Soon one of the party ventured to voice the thought in the minds of all three, "Let's go home."

On their way back they found the place where the trail they should have taken branched off to Carmel. It was marked, but the directional arrow was so placed that it was easily overlooked on the way in. Having by now had their day's outing the group continued on the return trip.

After hearing this report we weren't quite so disappointed as we had been that we had to miss this one.

COVERED DISH SUPPER

The Covered Dish Supper at Beechwood on December 7th drew the usual sizable group of Killington Section members and friends.

The food provided seemed even more bountiful and delicious than usual. As we checked it in we felt sure that there would be quantities left over. We should have known better, for as we have noted before, GMCers are good eaters, and easily took care of it.

Some people arrived in time to take short hikes in the late afternoon while others, anxious to have their "hot dishes" served in perfect condition, came just at supper time.

The evening program was especially enjoyable with Tony Fusco showing slides taken in Korea while on duty for Uncle Sam, and giving a very interesting and informative narration along with them.

CARD PARTY TO BE HELD

On Wednesday evening, Feb. 4, we will once more hold a card party jointly with the Community Club. We have a special interest in making this a real money making event this year as our share of the proceeds will go into our Fund for the new Pico Shelter.

Some of you will be contacted to help on this by providing sandwiches, but most especially we want you all to help by attending and bringing your friends. You will hear more details later, but make plans now and save the date.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Cecile and Emile Boselli had a nice Christmas present; a 7lb-2oz daughter, Terri Lynn, arrived on Dec. 26, 1958. Congratulations.

A card from Maxine and Carl Newhall extended greetings to all former hiking pals in GMC.

CLARENDON LODGE

This trip on January 10th brought out 9 hikers to enjoy a day at a favorite spot for an outing in any season. It was a good winter day in spite of the absence of the bright sun and deep blue sky which have so often characterized a trip to Clarendon Lodge in the winter.

Snow had covered the rocks in the old road sufficiently to make walking easy. In a short time the Lodge was in sight looking even snuggier than usual as there was smoke coming from the chimney.

The occupants proved to be two boys from Schenectady who had spent the night there. They obligingly assembled all their gear in one spot, and in spite of our assurances that it wasn't necessary, they really turned the camp over to us for the lunch hour.

After lunch some kept the fire going and chopped wood, while others took a walk farther up the old road. Here we found that, while not a necessity, snowshoes could be used to good advantage and we were glad to make use of this opportunity.

The Lodge was in good condition and contained a good supply of wood. Even the camp register (which has such a way of disappearing from our shelters) was intact. From this we were interested to learn that Ben Rolston had been there on Dec. 10th and reported a comfortable night in spite of an outside temperature of 12 degrees above zero.

We were pleased to have two new (to us) hikers from GMJC with us and hope they come often.

As we drove home all agreed that this had been an excellent way to spend a winter Sunday.

SMOKE and BLAZES

Vol. 12, No. 2 KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB March April 1959

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sun. March 8, 10-30 AM
PLACE: Appalachian Trail shelter

This is a new shelter and a new trip to most of us. It is located on the Appalachian Trail east of Gifford Woods. This shouldn't be a very difficult trip so why not plan to get out for it. We will meet at the Meldon School at 10-30 Sun. morning.

TIME: Sat. March 21, 10-00 AM
PLACE: Clarendon Lodge

Clarendon is an enjoyable spot any time of the year. The spring runoff may make it necessary to follow the trail rather than the road in, but that would give us an opportunity to check the condition of the trail for blowdowns and brushing that needs doing. Perhaps some work could even be done. The shelter might also receive any repairs that could be done and a thorough house cleaning. Come equipped for a bit of work. We will meet at Meldon School at 10-00 AM.

TIME: Sun. April 5, 6-00 PM
PLACE: Sugar Party
Vera Perkins' Home

Once again we will have our sugar party at Vera Perkins' home on South Main Street. Snow may be terribly hard to find this year but we will hope for a late snow storm! Following the sugar party we will have a Chinese Auction to raise money for the new Pico Shelter. Reservations must be made for this event. Please call Janet Martin PR 3-8621 by Friday April 3.

TIME: Sat. April 18, 10-00 AM
PLACE: Tucker Lodge

This trip is planned primarily to get Tucker Lodge into shape for the summer. However it is a splendid time to get a sprig of hobblebush to force out at home and to look for other signs of the coming of spring. We will meet at Meldon School at 10-00 AM.

NEW HIKE SCHEDULES ENCLOSED

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club was held on Thurs. evening, Jan. 29 at the Riverside dining hall. A group of about 20 members enjoyed a tasty dinner.

The business meeting was called to order by President Bennett Bell at about 7-30 PM. Sec.-Treas. Eleanor Walker gave her report. Craigie Perkins reported on Trails and Shelters. About half of the blazes on our section were repainted last year although he had hoped to do them all. Small turnouts on work parties and poor weather on several scheduled trips were to blame. If members who have a little time to give for trail work would only contact Craigie a time and place could be planned and this work could easily be done. How about you!

He also reported this past year was a hard year on shelters and there is much work that urgently needs doing. He estimated that these repairs will cost around 60 dollars. Here too he needs manpower badly. We will also need to raise about $180.00 additional money for the new Pico Shelter which will be built by the Long Trail patrol. It would help if members who visit a shelter would take the time to report on its condition to Craigie or Bennett as all our shelters should be visited at least once a month. Five of them could be visited after supper of a summer evening. If all our members took a little time to do this our section could be in much better condition than it is. Three volunteers were found to check Cooper, Clarendon, and Buffum each month. This leaves Sunnyside, Gov. Clement, Pico, and Tucker.

The request that groups of young people without a person over 18 years old in charge get permission to use the shelters was renewed. Members could help by publicizing this fact.

Craigie's report was followed by a lively discussion of ways and means to raise money for the new Pico Shelter. The Mass. D.A.R. has written that their $200.00 has been raised. A food sale directly after Easter seemed to be the most popular suggestion and Vera Perkins and Ruth Fostman were named co-chairmen. You will be hearing from them or their committee. A Chinese Auction at the Sugar Party will also be held and members who have something to give to be auctioned off can report this to Janet Martin when making their reservations or by calling Vera Perkins at PR 3-2941.

It was suggested that the new slide collection available from the main office of the G.M.C. be used wherever possible for publicity purposes especially to groups of young people of the Junior and Senior High School age.

Outing Chairman Jack Martin asked for suggestions for the hike schedule. Vera Perkins suggested that the covered dish supper be held in October next year. A trip to Buck Mt. on Lake George was suggested. Any other suggestions should be sent to Jack at 7 Curtis Ave. Rutland. Jack also has the Killington section slides which members may borrow for showing.

Bennett Bell, Mary Perkins, and Eleanor Walker were re-elected as President, Vice President and Secretary-Treasurer respectively. Following the business meeting the group enjoyed a showing of the new slide collection. Well worth seeing!

MOONLIGHT HIKE

January 24th, the time set for the moonlight hike to Tucker, was a snappy winter night but not too cold for comfort.

On the trip in we enjoyed a light snowfall which added fresh beauty to the winter woods. The snowshoeing was fair, a bit tricky in spots owing to a slippery crust, but this added excitement to the trip.

The starting of the fire at Tucker brought the usual smokey period while the chimney warmed up, but this soon passed and the stove became the center of attraction as a pleasant warmth began to surround it.

After the usual interval devoted to doughnuts, coffee, and conversation, we closed camp. We were delighted to find that the skies had cleared and on the hike out we enjoyed the light of the full moon promised for this occasion.

BUFFUM

Eleven hikers braved a cold north wind and slippery walking to make the trip to Buffum on Feb. 8th. Though it wasn't as cold on the trail as it seemed in the city, we welcomed the "Valiquette special" which has replaced the old broken-down stove formerly at Buffum.

We found Ben Rolston, that GMCer from Schnectady who gets around so much on the trail, already there when we arrived. Ben was spending a long weekend on the Trail and had stayed at Clarendon Lodge the previous night.

After lunch a few ambitious hikers went on to the top of Button Hill and it was while on this trip that Sec. President Bennett Bell had the misfortune to fall and crack a rib (as we learned later).

Though indications could be felt of the below zero night which the weather man predicted we enjoyed sun and blue skies on the homeward track.

WINTER WEEKEND

Late afternoon on Feb. 20th found the first contingent arriving at Craigie Perkins' Camp, Tall Timber, for the annual winter weekend. The arrival of a party of 5 from Medford, Mass. soon after supper brought the overnight guests to 9. Everyone slept at the cottage this first night and settled down fairly early, some of those drawing room assignments upstairs taking along a hot brick which proved a most effective bed-warmer.

Saturday dawned clear and cold and most of the morning was taken up with new arrivals, shifting of sleeping quarters, un-packing and settling. Twenty-five gathered around the table for the noon meal.

After dinner everyone participated in hikes of varying lengths and in varying directions.

The weather during the day showed some variety, alternating bright sun and swirling snow. About the time everyone was assembling at the cottage for a supper of baked beans and brown bread it looked as though a big blizzard were in the making. However by the time supper was over the moon was out. In this setting, with the tall white frosted evergreens making long shadows on the snow, and overhead a big moon in a star-studded sky looking near enough to touch, it all combined to make as perfect a winter night as any of us had ever seen. It was too good to miss and everyone took advantage of it. The final check up Saturday night showed a total of 26 - 13 in the cottage and 13 in the two cabins.

Sunday was another bright day and everyone was up and doing early. People were in and out, starting and returning from hikes all morning. There were still more new arrivals and 32 were on hand for chicken pie Sunday noon.

By mid-afternoon the people from Shrewsbury, Mass. and Springfield, Vt., were taking their leave but there was still time for some good hikes for those who lived nearby, however, and 13 die-hards were around to help clean up the leftovers at supper time.

But all good times come to an end and finally the last pack was shouldered, the door closed and locked and another winter weekend was over - almost. There was still the moonlight walk down to the cars but this was accomplished all too quickly and regretfully we left the country behind and headed back to town.

Thanks are due to Mary and Craigie Perkins for the use of their Camping area and to Janet Martin for an excellent job of meal planning and food buying.

CARD PARTY NETS $11.75
for PICO SHELTER FUND

A small but welcome addition to the Pico Shelter fund was provided by the Card Party held on Wednesday, February 5th. This was a co-operative endeavor with the Community Club. Although the crowd was small, "a good time was had by all".

Our thanks go to the Community Club for letting us hold this party with them and to all who assisted on the project.

We have received a few separate contributions to the Pico Fund and would welcome more. Eleanor Walker can be found at the C.V. office every day and would be glad to receive your contribution - large or small.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Congratulations to Luise and Bill Wadsworth on the birth of William Wadsworth III, on December 25, 1958. Luise, Bill and daughter Lori have been Killington Section members for over a year. They live in Medford, Mass. and have participated in several of our activities.

Charles Sabourin has taken a position with E. R. Squibb and Sons. Charlie and his family will soon be leaving us for Burlington which will be his headquarters. We shall miss them but wish them the best of luck in their new location.

Vol.12, No.3 KILLINGTON SECTION-GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB May-June 1959

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sat., May 16, 9:30 AM
PLACE: Route 140 to Sunnyside

This will be our second trip to Sunnyside Shelter this month but it will be approached from the other side...south this time. The section of trail from Rt. 140 into Sunnyside will be checked. Perhaps this year the weatherman will be a bit more cooperative and we can get this section of trail reblazed and brushed if a good work party turns out. The hikers will meet at Meldon School at 9:30 AM with lunch and tools for a day's work.

TIME: Sat. and Sun., May 30-31
PLACE: ANNUAL MEETING, G.M.C.
Long Trail Lodge

Once again it is Annual Meeting time. Plans are now being made to celebrate our 50th anniversary so come and bring some bright ideas!

There will be a coffee hour at 10:00AM on Saturday followed by the business meeting at 11:00 AM. The Sections and various committees will make their reports. The meeting will recess for lunch at 12:30 and be completed afterward. The trustees will meet following adjournment of the Annual Meeting. Non trustees will have the remainder of the afternoon to hike in the area around the Lodge. Dinner will be served at 6:30 PM. There will be a social hour and entertainment following dinner.

Sunday will be devoted to hiking. Trips will be planned to suit the tastes and abilities of all.

TIME: Sat., June 13, 10:00 AM
PLACE: Clarendon Lodge to
Gov. Clement Shelter

Having completed the section of trail south of Rt. 103 we will shift our activities back closer to home. Clarendon Lodge was taken care of in early April so this hike will be primarily for trail work from 103 to Gov. Clement, a distance of 6.5 miles. Departure time: 10:00 AM.

TIME: Sun., June 28
PLACE: Gov. Clement Shelter
to Cooper Lodge

It is hoped that by June 28th it will be possible to drive into Gov. Clement Shelter and hike from there to Cooper and do trail work on this section of 4.5 miles. Since this will be a total of nine miles, round trip, with trail work to do, we will leave Meldon School at 9:30 AM.

SUGAR PARTY

On April 5th the annual Sugar-on-snow Party was held at the home of Vera Perkins. There was an excellent turnout of 32 people. Everyone, from the eight young ones on up, had an enjoyable time indulging their respective sweet tooth. Following the sugar-on-snow, pickles, doughnuts, and coffee, the group had a very enjoyable time having a Chinese auction for the benefit of Pico Shelter. $8.80 was realized from the sale of objects donated by members! This is a profitable and enjoyable way to trade in your white elephants for someone else's! Everyone seemed pleased with what they won. Whereas a large sum was not realized, we felt it was very good for a small crowd.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who helped to make the Sugar Party a success, especially Vera for the use of her attic, the table decorations, and standing over the boiling syrup all afternoon; also her assistant cook, Pearl Nichols.

CLARENDON LODGE

The twenty-first of March was a bright early spring day and a group of almost thirty hiked into Clarendon Lodge to do the spring cleaning! It was one of those hikes when it looked at Meldon like some of the regulars were missing, but gradually the gathering grew. Some of the crowd took advantage of the warm sun and ate out doors. When the work of painting the windows and sash began in earnest. There was an excellent supply of wood thanks to a recent visit by Ben Rolston. The cabin was put in order while Ray Catozzi's cub scouts played cowboys and Indians in the pines. There was still a bit of snow in spots to make it slippery but not too bad... at least Nancy and Betty Martin managed to keep their "mounts" right side up, although sister Carol took a couple of unexpected slides down hill. All in all it was an excellent trip and a much needed job was completed.

LOST TIME

A watch was found on the road leading to Clarendon Lodge a short time after our March hike there. For further information contact "T" Valiquette.

CONGRATULATIONS

Our congratulations to Bill Allard, Jr., on his marriage in Rochester, N.Y., on May 9th, to Miss Rosalie Schifano. Best wishes, Bill and Rosalie.

LAST CALL

This is the last issue of SMOKE & BELLES which will be sent to the 1958 mailing list.

WE STILL HAVEN'T BEEN THERE

The hike scheduled for Sunday, Mar. 8th, was to the new shelter on The Appalachian Trail east of the road running north from Sherburne Center. This trip had been on the schedule once before as the destination of a mystery hike, but had been rained out.

Though there was no snow in the city it was a bright winter day, just right for exploring thought the five hikers who assembled at Meldon School.

As we drove along the road from Sherburne Ctr. we saw no blazes to show where the trail crossed the road and it began to seem doubtful that we would even get started on this trip. However, as so often happens, after parking the car and walking back along the road we found the blazes were right there where they belonged. Accordingly we took off up the hill. It soon became apparent that the two members of the party who had brought snowshoes, just in case, were the lucky ones. The snowshoeing was excellent, but the walking was not so good.

For about an hour we climbed up and up on a ridge between two ravines with time out now and then for relocating the trail which we missed a few times. By now lunch time was approaching and those without snowshoes were tired of plowing through the snow. "Who needs a shelter for lunch on a day like this?", we said. So by climbing the bank on one side of the trail a fine sunny spot, protected from the wind was found. There was even an excellent view and plenty of firewood.

Everyone went to work arranging stones for a fireplace, collecting wood, gathering snow to melt for coffee. In a short time our lunch spot was furnished, complete even to boughs for seats.

Sitting around the fireplace in our sunny "dining room" with its white snow-carpet and backdrop of trees, we all agreed that there is nothing which quite equals an outdoor meal on a bright winter day.

With difficulty of traveling without snowshoes it seemed best to go no farther. We lingered a while after lunch and then made the return trip to the cars.

This was one of those days that will long stay with us as a pleasant memory. We found this new territory interesting and hope to explore it again. Maybe sometime we will actually reach that shelter!

TUCKER LODGE

A good crowd turned out for the Tucker hike and spring cleaning party on Saturday, April 18.

Going in on the side trail wasn't the usual easy, pleasant walk as wood cutting operations and spring thawing had combined to produce muddy ruts which it required most of our attention to skirt. However, Tucker when reached was as inviting as ever in the spring sunshine. We found Dorothy and Ben Rolston already there. They had come in from Long Trail Lodge, over the Long Trail and reported it in good condition.

After lunch some took short walks in search of hobble bush, while others devoted their energies to the painting of window sash, general clean-up activities and repair jobs.

These outings are planned to get as much as possible of the most needed trail and shelter work done before the summer hiking season. Besides this they afford a pleasant day in the open at an interesting time of year. Let's all join in as often as possible for a good time and to help on much needed work.

ROUTE 103 TO SUNNYSIDE

About 16 hikers assembled at Meldon School on Sunday, May 3rd, ready for another spring outing. Since trail work was the chief order of the day, the party divided, some going in over the Long Trail to check the general conditions and spot the places needing more work, while the others went in the short way to get things in readiness for lunch.

Once again the Rolstons were there ahead of us having spent the night at Sunnyside. This arriving to find a good supply of wood, water, and the fire already made is pretty nice! Better watch out, Ben; first thing you know we'll be expecting this service regularly! Aside from the service though, we like having Dorothy and Ben along.

Although the trip down had shown that there was quite a bit of work to be done it was too nice at Sunnyside to hurry away. However, after a long lunch hour, the worker started back along the Trail determined to set that section in shape before dark.

Those who had elected to return by the short route lingered on until late afternoon, then enjoyed a leisurely hike out stopping to investigate the beaver pond on the way. The workers came off the trail about 7 o'clock, having had a long day but quite pleased with their accomplishment. The Trail from Route 103 to Sunnyside is now in good condition. Blowdowns were removed where possible and short relocations made where needed to get around those impractical to remove.

Although so much was accomplished a bigger supply of manpower would have been very much appreciated. Let's have more workers on hand for the next trip.

PICO SHELTER FUND

The fund for the new Pico Shelter is growing slowly, but it still has quite a way to go. It got off to a good start with the contribution of $200 from the Conservation Committee of a Massachusetts chapter of the DAR. The proceeds from our fall Rummage Sale were designated for this project. Since then we have had additions from the following sources:

Card Party.....	$13.95
Winter Weekend.....	8.00
Chinese Auction....	8.80
Individual Donations	8.00

Our thanks to all who have helped so far. We still need at least $150 more to finance this project. Eleanor Walker, Treas., will welcome donations at any time.

Killington Section members were all saddened by the death of Maude Canty. Maude was a long time member and loyal supporter of GMC. Her sincere friendliness and cheerful spirit will be greatly missed and long remembered.

Vol. 12, No. 4 KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB July-Aug. 1959

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sat. July 11, 9:00 AM
PLACE: Long Trail Lodge to
Cooper Lodge

Come all ye Killington aspirants...its off to the mountain tops again. This is a work party trip although we hope there will not be a lot of trail clearing to be done. Any minor repairs at Cooper not completed on the 28th of June will also be taken care of if there is sufficient manpower. Let's all turn out and finish up our scheduled work parties with a flourish!

The group will leave Meldon School at 9:00 A.M.

TIME: Sun. July 26, 10:00 AM
PLACE: CVPS Camp, Chittenden

This trip has become a much enjoyed annual swimming party. We will hope for a cooperative weatherman and a hot sunny day when the cool water and shady porch would be most appreciated. For those who do not know the way, the trip will leave from in front of Meldon School at 10:00 A.M. Anyone wishing to come along at a later time should feel free to come at their own convenience. The group usually stays throughout the afternoon.

TIME: Sat. Aug. 8, 9:00 AM
PLACE: Stratton Pond

It has been some time since we have had a scheduled hike to Stratton Pond. Pack your lunch and swim suit and join the crowd. It is a 3.5 mile hike in from the Grout Job to Stratton Pond around Stratton Mountain.

Because of the distance to be traveled by car this trip will leave Meldon School at 9:00 A.M.

TIME: Sat.-Sun. Aug. 22-23
PLACE: INTERSECTIONAL
Danby - Mt. Tabor

Please note this event is a week later than stated on our Spring-Summer Outing Schedule. For all details and directions see page 4.

COMING EVENTS (contd.)

TIME: Sun. Aug. 30. 9:00 AM
PLACE: Buck Mountain, Lake George, N.Y.

This trip is outside of our own Green Mountains and helps to add variety to our schedule. It is hoped that some of our friends from the Glens Falls area will join us for this one.

The map below was sent to direct us by Mr. Lucius Cary, the last time we had this outing. We thank him again.

The trip will leave from in front of Meldon School at

ROUTE 140 TO SUNNYSIDE

The combined work party and outing held on Saturday, May 16 proved to be the most successful work party held in some time.

Having had a report from a reliable source that The Trail from Route 140 to Sunnyside was in reasonably good condition, it was decided to concentrate most of the effort on getting the windows back in at Sunnyside. Accordingly, while a small group hiked in over The Trail from the south, most of the party went directly to Sunnyside via the Spring Lake Ranch road.

There was still a good supply of wood left from Ben Rolston's visit and our outing of two weeks before, so work on the windows could be started immediately.

While the men worked inside the shelter, a clean-up detail disposed of most of the glass, tin cans, etc., which littered the immediate vicinity outside. With these carried to the dump and some of the dead brush cut and dumped over them, the appearance of both the dump and the outside of the shelter was greatly improved.

By the end of the day the windows were all replaced and one of the doors repaired. Although so much was accomplished, this wasn't an "all work and no play" occasion. In addition to the workers there was a good attendance of young junior members and members of Ray Catozzi's Scout Troop, all of whom appeared to be enjoying the outing. Even the workers, while keeping steadily 'at it' seemed to be having fun as they worked.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Thelma and Bob Perkins and family - David, Anne, Polly, and Timmy - arrived from California the last of May to visit Mary and Craigue Perkins. Although Bob was here for only two weeks he managed to get in several hikes.

ANNUAL MEETING

At 10 A.M. on Saturday, May 30th, G.M.C. members began to assemble at Long Trail Lodge for the 1959 Annual Meeting. It was typical Annual Meeting weather with a foggy mist blotting out everything beyond the immediate foreground - but what's a little rain to GMCers!

The day began with a pleasant coffee hour which offered an excellent opportunity for exchanging greetings.

President, "Art" Koerber opened the business meeting promptly at 10 A.M. With a two hour break for lunch, the rest of the day was taken up with reports from sections, committee reports, election of trustees - all the usual business of an annual meeting. This will be reported in detail in your August LONG TRAIL NEWS.

One of the highlights of the day was the announcement of the dedication of the new edition of the Guide Book to Roy and Helen Buchanan. We understand it took some lifingling to keep the Guide Book away from Roy until the meeting.

At the Trustees' meeting following the annual meeting Don Kent of Brattleboro Section was elected president to take over the duties which Art Koerber has carried on so efficiently during the past two years.

Following a 6:30 dinner, a social hour was enjoyed after which most of those staying for the Sunday hikes adjourned to Craigie and Mary Perkins' Tall Timber Camping Area which was turned over to GMCers for the weekend.

As if to make up for its uncooperative behavior on Saturday, the weather on Sunday was bright and clear - made to order for hiking. The suggested trip to Mt. Horrid met with general approval and by 10 AM the hikers were on their way to the starting point at Brandon Gap.

Late afternoon brot the return of the hikers. Overnight gear was packed, farewells were said, and another Annual Meeting was over.

A LITTLE COLD, A LITTLE MORTAR

Saturday the 13th of June did not dawn with too much of a promise for outdoor activities. Craigie Perkins with tools and coffee pot met the crowd of hikers at Meldon School at the appointed hour. Churchill and Bobby Scott piled into the little blue wagon and off the trio went!

As they gained in altitude, the weather improved. The road to Gov. Clement Shelter didn't prove to be very rough. The three-man team proceeded to check the trail from the bridge up to the shelter before lunch. As noon time rolled around a wandering red bus bounded up the road by the shelter with its passengers, Janet, Jack, Carol, Nancy & Betsy Martin.

Craigie had a little cold which kept him from being too energetic but, lunch brought him off those "waffle" bunks where he was resting. Our meal ration was almost increased by one baby mouse which came out of the fireplace. The youngsters enjoyed his company instead.

Jack announced that he had brought along a package of mortar mix for reducing the voids in the fieldstone chimney, if not closing them up. In a short time the males were having a grand old mud-slinging time. Our advisor explained that this was the best way to apply the mixture to the gaps between the stones.

While this was going on, the girls were down at the river where Janet found the stream more than a little cold, even though Carol went in all over.

Adding a trash pickup, two signs "Dump & Water", and some brush clipping to the above, the party left Gov. Clement shelter in satisfactory shape.

THE GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB, INC.

1959

To: ALL GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB MEMBERS

Abandon the Space Age for just one weekend -- spend a few care-free days with us at the 1959 Intersectional on August 22 - 23. Hikes, frolics, and just plain loafing, will be the order of the day.

Headquarters are once again in the beautiful Danby - Mt. Tabor Valley. Old Timers will remember this spot with nostalgia. No packing is necessary; drive your auto right to the campground.

Plenty of cold spring water nearby, wood, fireplaces, sanitary facilities furnished -- and it is hoped that Roy Buchanan will be present to sound reveille!!

HIKES: The scenic 6-mile round trip to Griffith Lake from the campground is a must.

Little Rock Pond -- A lovely elfin lake easily accessible by a 4-mile round trip on a segment of the Long Trail. Eat lunch at Little Rock Pond Shelter, situated on a rocky island reached by footbridge from the mainland.

Mt. Equinox -- Has a famous "Skyline Drive", accessible by auto or trail.

Several alternate hikes will be offered to interested groups. Some details are not as yet completed.

SATURDAY NIGHT CAMPFIRE: One never knows what to expect at this event! One thing sure -- the Order of The Porcupine will be conferred upon several worthy GMC members. Songs and games interspersed with tall tales of the great outdoors.

Bring the necessary equipment and food for two days. Camp will be opened Friday afternoon for those desiring to arrive Friday evening. For tent space and information write to Don Kent, Newfane, Vermont.

TO REACH THE G. M. C. INTERSECTIONAL CAMPSITE:

Driving north on U.S. 7, turn right about 11 miles north of Manchester, Vt. (or 2 miles south of Danby), cross the railroad tracks, turn right at the GMC Intersectional sign and you will see the campsite in the field ahead. Watch for large GMC Intersectional sign at intersection of side road & U.S. 7. REMEMBER THE DATE - August 22 -23! Let's have a record attendance!

Sincerely,
THE INTERSECTIONAL COMMITTEE

SMOKE and BLAZES

Vol.12 No.5 KILLINGTON SECTION-GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB Sept-Oct. 1959

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sunday, Sept 27, 10:30 AM
PLACE: Pico Lodge, HOUSEWARMING

Now is the time to see the new Pico Shelter..now a Lodge... which was built this past summer by the Long Trail Patrol. This should be a beautiful time to be on the mountain, so won't you make a special effort to attend this outing. We will leave Meldon School at 10:30 AM. If you can't make it until later...come along when you can as we hope to spend the afternoon in and around our newest lodge.

TIME: Saturday, Oct.10, 8:30 AM
PLACE: Camel's Hump

Have you ever seen the fall foliage from the Hump? It should be spectacular, so mark the date and plan to attend. Since it is a rather long drive up to the foot of Camel's Hump we will leave Meldon School at 8:30 AM. This is somewhat more strenuous than many of our outings but well worth the effort.

TIME: Sunday, Oct. 25, 6:00PM
PLACE: Beechwood, upper Curtis Av.
COVERED DISH SUPPER

This year the Covered Dish Supper is earlier than in the past few years. This should make afternoon walks even more enjoyable. Supper will be laid out on the big table in the dining room at six o' clock. If you are planning to attend please let Janet Martin know what you would like to bring. Telephone FR 3-8621 by Friday, October 23. As in past years everyone comes up whenever they wish during the afternoon. To get there follow Curtis Avenue from south Main St. in Rutland east until you get to the end of the road.

TIME: Saturday, Nov. 7, 10:00AM
PLACE: Sunnyside Shelter
(Work Party)

Once again it is time to put our shelters in shape for the winter. It is hoped there will be many of you who will be able to turn out for the very enjoyable outing to Sunnyside Shelter.

YOUR NEW SCHEDULE CARDS ARE ENCLOSED WITH THIS ISSUE

LET'S WAKE UP!

Did you realize that Killington Section memberships have dwindled to the point where we are only sending out about 50 SMOKE AND BLAZES this month? We read in the newspapers that more and more people are camping and hiking than ever before. It would seem that our membership should be growing. What can we do about it?

How about every member bringing a friend, or better still, a friend and his family to the Pico HOUSEWARMING. Get people interested, let them see what the club does, and ask them to join.

Another little reminder to members....Pico Lodge is built but it isn't paid for as yet. How about it.....any money raising ideas?

for
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16th

The date for our annual Rummage Sale has been set for Saturday, October 17th. This means we need all your Rummage at the Neighborhood Rooms on FRIDAY, OCT. 16th for sorting and pricing.

We need money more than ever this year to pay for the new shelter at Pico. How much we make on the Rummage Sale depends on you. SO--REMEMBER THE DATE and come to the Neighborhood Rooms on FRIDAY, OCT. 16th with all the rummage you can collect. if you need help to get it there call Vera Perkins (3-2941) or Janet Martin (3-8621) before Thursday, Oct. 15th.

Besides rummage we need help both on Friday and Saturday. Let us know if you can lend a hand.

COOPER LODGE

Undaunted by lack of numbers, three adults and two junior members started for Cooper Lodge, Killington on Saturday, July 11th.

The plan was to go in over the Long Trail from Sherburne Pass in order to check trail conditions. It was a good summer hiking day - not too hot and black flies only moderately pestiferous. All went well until we reached the ski trail slashes. On the first two we managed, with searching and the use of some imagination, to pick up the trail on the opposite side but on the third we were completely stymied. We felt sure we must be within a half mile of Cooper but after spending considerable time hunting unsuccessfully for the trail, we gave up and turned back toward home. This was especially disappointing as it was to have been the last visit for some time to a favorite mountain for Betty Ball, and a first visit to Killington for the two junior members, David and Anne Perkins. We wonder how many through hikers with heavy packs have met with difficulty in this area this season.

Even though we did not reach Cooper Lodge and the top of Killington we can report that while the trail was quite badly in need of brushing out in some sections, there were few blow-downs and the trail could be easily followed as far as the ski slashes.

NEWS NOTE

Betty Ball, who was a loyal and enthusiastic member of Killington Section during all the time she was in Rutland as Regional Librarian has left to take up a new position in Washington, North Carolina. Best of luck, Betty; we shall miss you.

G.M.C. INTERSECTIONAL

The annual get-to-gether of GMCers known as the Intersectional was held at Danby on August 22-23 with well over 60 registered.

The weather, which had been hot and humid all week, cooperated beautifully and gave us two fresh, comfortable days. Some of the campers even insisted that there was frost on the grass when they got up to thaw out on Sunday morning!

This was the usual pleasant occasion with hikes of varying lengths, a Saturday night Campfire, and much conversation related to GMC and otherwise.

The feature of the Campfire was the initiation of two GMCers into the Order of Porcupine. Prof. Vondell as High Chief Porcupine and Alan Gormley as Light Hand Porcupine officiated at this ceremony. Roy Buchanan and Craigie Perkins were the members so honored. If you missed this you missed it, that's all. It was a lot of fun but no written description could do it justice.

In the excitement over the initiation, the roll call of attendance by sections was overlooked. Probably this was just as well for Killington Sect., as our count would have been only 8, including our 3 members from Worcester, Mass.

C. V. CAMP - CHITTENDEN

July 26th was a fine hot Sunday, a perfect day to spend at a lake. We had free use of a large, comfortable cottage, a beach and a boat. What happened? Three people were at Meldon School for the start of our annual outing at the C. V. Camp in Chittenden. In spite of this we consoled ourselves with the adage that "it's quality not quantity" that counts and set off for an enjoyable day.

Soon after lunch business picked up with the arrival of Craigie Perkins, most of the California Section of the Killington Section, namely, Thelma, David, Anne, Polly, and Timmy Perkins, and the rubber boat. Toward the end of the afternoon "Mim" and Bennett Bell arrived for a swim.

This was a very pleasant occasion for those who attended, and possibly some unusual circumstances made this year's attendance so small. However, we wonder a little if we should continue to reserve the use of this popular cottage for a summer Sunday if so few of our members are interested in this outing.

Vol.12 No.6 KILLINGTON SECTION-GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB Nov.-Dec. 1959

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sun., Nov. 22, 10:30 AM
PLACE: Clarendon Lodge

Although this trip is not listed as a work party we will see that this beautiful lodge is snug for the winter. A good supply of wood should be put in for winter hikers, too, so what better project for an early winter Sunday. Remember, a large turnout insures that none has to work very hard!

We will meet at the old Meldon School at 10:30 AM for a pleasant walk thru the woods to one of our nicest lodges. Come and enjoy our winter woods.

TIME: Sat., Dec. 5, 10:00 AM
PLACE: Buffum Shelter

The big question is..... will there be snow? Let's hope so, although this is also a pleasant walk thru fields and hard woods without snow cover. There is always a good chance to see some of our winter bird neighbors and occasionally other wild life. Buffum is an old shelter in a pleasant woodsy location. We have had good trips here in the heat of summer and in winter when we found forty inches of snow on the roof. Chances are this trip will fall somewhere in between these extremes.

We will meet at Meldon School at 10:00 AM.

Merry Christmas

The turnout has been so poor on the trip nearest to Christmas that this year your outing chairman decided to skip it. The first trip of the new Year will be the annual moonlight hike to Tucker Lodge on Jan 16th.

PICO TRIL

The grand opening of the new PICO LODGE took place on Sunday, Sept. 27th. A bright day, a good crowd, and no speeches!

The new camp was made possible by the efforts of Art Koerber, former president of the GMC, in obtaining a grant of $200 from the Massachusetts DAR. To this was added a few other small gifts. The balance of the $700 cost will come from the funds of the Killington Section and possibly something from the parent GMC.

The Long Trail Patrol built the new camp in July. It is located exactly on the site of the old log shelter giving a fine view to the east. The door is in the north end, a window in the south end, one in the back over the table, and three big ones across the front. Very sightly.

For the trip the Killington Section turnout was twenty-three. Best in months. Keep coming!

Both the Woodstock Country Day School and the Putney School had groups of young people in the Pico area that day. Too bad more such groups don't use the Long Trail.

The trail up from Sherburne Pass was in good condition showing much use. After the Putney School group moved out we put the coffee pot over their outdoor fire and soon had the makings ready. Some hikers went up the the peak while others discussed camp improvements. (Already!) Decided to move the swinging windows to the inside where they will last longer.

A stove has been ordered for Pico and as soon as it arrives we will have a lettle work party. Several "volunteers" are anxiously awaiting for a call to action. The stove will be taken to pieces and make up into several light packs. Project THISTLEDOWN!

CAMEL'S HUMP CLIMB

The sun rose on Oct. 10th to partly cloudy skies. Three hopeful hikers met at Meldon School. After a brief wait to be sure no ambitious soul would be added to our number, we set out for Huntington Center on the west side of the mountain.

After a beautiful ride up through the fall foliage we arrived at the Borroughs Camp, parked the bus and set off for the top of the mountain. For the first mile or so the trail follows an old logging road and was an easy grade for someone who hasn't climbed a real mountain in some time to get his second wind. Soon we were climbing up through the hardwood forest of birch, beech and maple to the higher evergreens. The trail became somewhat steeper as we neared the top of the ridge between the Hump and Bald Hill. The later seemed to be quite well wooded now. The top of the mountain should have been visible from here we felt but it was pretty well hidden by clouds. However, having faith in our trusty Guide Book we traveled on and the trail climbed more steeply. We all got a welcome boost from Craigue's chocolate, and continued on with renewed vigor for the huts.

We arrived there for a late lunch around 2:00 PM. The clouds were quite low and Craigue kidded Jack considerably about the small patches of blue sky. However his faith was rewarded for when we made our way from the Huts to the summit the sky was fast clearing. It was surprisingly warm on top considering the apparently very strong wind aloft. The view was a bit hazy. The top of the mountain was surprisingly well populated, as we were one of four groups there on Camel's Hump that afternoon.

On the way down we met a family from Essex Jct. who inquired about the GMC. Jack just happened (?) to have some Short Trips folders in his pocket and passed them out. Too bad he did not have an extra Guide Book, too.. might have sold one! They had spent some time hunting for the right road from Huntington which we had found with little trouble using the Guide Book.

All in all we would say you all missed one of the nicest trips of the year with nearly perfect hiking conditions...it could have been snowing at that elevation in October!

PIONEER TOUR OF THE WEST by Rachell Bell

On a very hot day in June, thirteen teenagers and a tour director boarded the train in New York for the West. Each of us took only one suitcase and a sleeping bag to last us through six weeks of touring and camping in temperatures ranging from freezing to 120 degrees. Rather excited we spent our first night in reclining seats, chatting and getting acquainted, sometimes singing songs to a guitar.

After a stopover in Chicago to see the Museum of Science and Industry for a day we traveled by night to Denver. The city, like other western cities we saw later, was on a wide, high plain, with spacious streets, flower beds, and clean looking buildings everywhere. Here we met our second tour director and continued our tour by station wagon. Each car had a U-haul-it wagon behind with three tents apiece and camping gear.

Our first night camping was in Rocky Mountain National Park, and wat it rocky! I had forgotten to pack an air mattress, alas, but all the others had theirs.

The gigantic mountains on the Continental Divide were covered with snow. We felt the definite change in altitude here; running 25 yards was like running a hundred. Even walking on the level made us breathless.

In Dinosaur National Park we saw men actually uncovering the huge skeletons of prehistoric monsters, still intact after millions of years. In the Great Salt Lake the next day we swam out on top of the water, unable to get our feet down under us, and emerged coated with salt. To my great surprise, I found myself up at five AM cooking breakfast for fifteen people in Yellowstone Park. Many times after that we rose early and pitched tents late at night, for we drove long distances, covering seven thousand miles in those two station wagons in the following weeks. Old Faithful's eruption and the bears standing hopefully on their haunches waiting for food were interesting sights.

Skiing on Mt. Hood on July 19th in short sleeves and rolled up blue jeans was a lot of fun, as was the horseback riding on a ranch and swimming at Lake Tahoe. Here we visited the night clubs of movie star fame, and the casinos at Reno, as well as the ghost town of gold rush days... Virginia City.

We stayed in hotels in Denver, Salt Lake, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Colorado Springs. We rode in the cable cars up the world's steepest streets in San Francisco and visited China Town, going on to Disneyland and Hollywood; then we crossed the desert with the thermometer at 120 degrees. These were memorable experiences...especially when we lost the other wagon and ours broke down half way across the Mohave Desert with no help in sight.

After hours of delay we drove all night until we arrived at St. George, Utah, at three AM and slept with our sleeping bags rolled out in the city park. Most beautiful Bryce Canyon, Zion and Grand Canyon National Parks came next on our itinerary. At Mesa Verde we saw ancient pueblos and later in the day we saw Indians doing Corn Dances. A tour of the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs interested us all, as did earlier visits to Grand Coolee, Bonnevillie and Hoover Dams, and the copper mine at Salt Lake City.

When the party left for the East, I met an uncle and his family and went to Los Alamos, N. M., to visit for ten days, flying home alone late in Aug. The trip was over eleven thousand miles and its vivid details will be a long time with me. It was called TEENAGE PIONEER TOUR OF THE WEST, sponsored by the Student International Tour Assoc. of New York and Los Angeles.

The teenagers on the trip came from all over the eastern seaboard and the ones from the cities or from sheltered backgrounds found it rugged going some of the time, but I thought the hiking and camping I had done in New England were good preparation for it.

What a huge and interesting country we live in! I hope to be able to go back to the West often later on, and can take this trip over again with my colored slides.

RUMMAGE SALE NETS $102.81

In spite of all the Rummage Sales which had been held and were being held, trade was brisk when we opened the doors on Oct. 17th for our annual Rummage Sale. By the end of the day we had added over $100 to our treasury to help in paying for Fico Lodge.

Once again we thank all who contributed articles; without you there could have been no sale. We also thank those who helped by working in preparation for, during and sale and in cleaning up.

COVERED DISH BULFER

Sunday morning, Oct. 25th, was rainy, dark and unpromising, weatherwise, but by noon the sun was shining. The afternoon was bright and warm, just right for taking walks in the surrounding woods to work up an appetite for supper.

By 6 o'clock everyone was ready for the "grand march" around the dining table, collecting as much food as his plate would hold en route. Then followed a leisurely period of eating and visiting, interrupted only by additional trips to the table for seconds and desserts.

After supper Jack Martin livened things up with his accordion, while the clearing away was being done. After this Jack shared with us a selection of his colored slides.

Although the group was somewhat smaller this year, those attending found it the usual enjoyable occasion.

STOVE INSTALLED AT FICO LODGE

On Sunday, November 1st the installation of the stove at Fico Lodge was completed. During the previous week Craigue had made one trip alone and one with Ray Catozzi to take up some of the parts. On Sunday, with a work party consisting of Craigue, Churchill Scott, George Conlon, Ray and four young boys on hand, the rest of the stove and necessary equipment was packed in, the stove reassembled, cemented together, installed and tried out.

This is a big job done and only those who have participated in such a job appreciate how big. However, this shows how much can be accomplished by even a small group working together. We think the fellows would agree there is fun, too, along with the work. There is still the remodelling of the windows to be done. After that, what next? Let's keep up the good work.

Vol. 13 No. 1 KILLINGTON SECTION-GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB Jan.-Feb. 1960

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sat. Jan. 16, 7:00 PM
PLACE: Moonlight Hike, Tucker Lodge.

Once again with the new year comes that once in a lifetime opportunity to challenge the great outdoors by moonlight. If you have never walked in the winter woods by moonlight don't miss this opportunity. Those of us who have been before will be there never fear. If the weather should prove stormy on Sat. we will take the trip on Sun. night. If in doubt, you can check by calling Jack Martin at 3-8621. We will meet at Meldon School at 7:00 PM.

TIME: Wednesday Jan. 27, 6:00 PM
PLACE: ANNUAL MEETING "Riverside"

The Annual Meeting of the Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club will be held on Wed. instead of Thurs. Jan. 27 not 28 at the Riverside Reformatory. The dinner will be served at 6:00 PM and will cost $1.25 per person. If you are unable to make the dinner the business meeting will follow at about 7:00 PM.

Mr. Paul Newcomb of the U.S. Forest Service will show two color movies on wild life and forests following the business meeting.

TIME: Sun. Jan. 31, 10:30 AM
PLACE: Sno-Shoe to Gov. Clement

If you do not brave the cool night air for the Moonlight Hike dig out your snowshoes for this trip along a back road in Shrewsbury. It should not prove to be overly strenuous but an enjoyable walk thru the winter woods and fields. We will meet at Meldon School at 10:30 AM.

TIME: Sat.-Sun.-Mon. Feb. 20-22
PLACE: WINTER WEEKEND, Tall Timber

Since we are fortunate this year in having a long weekend with Washington's Birthday on Mon. we have decided to have Winter Weekend run from Sat. noon thru Mon. noon. Craigie Perkins has kindly said that if anyone wished to extend it still further to include Fri. night they would be welcome provided they brought their own grub for the extra meals. He will be there warming up the house. (Cont. p.2)

FAMILY CAMPING FUN

By Miriam Bell

Two delightful camping spots for family fun we discovered this summer, favorite spots for years of lots of other folks, but new to us. The first was White Lake, N. H. It is a small lake hidden away at the southern rim of Mt. Chocorua, just south of Conway. Clear water above a white sand beach which extends a long way out invites one to swim lazily or sun on the shore. There is nothing on the whole lake except the state park which is purposely kept small enough to be restful. There were all kinds of fine cottage tents erected and most of them had a pair of aluminum chaise longues in front or in back of them so campers had brought their comforts with them. We met a good many G.E. families there, some of them had been returning for fifteen years...a good ad for the campground. It is important to be at the headquarters office at eight o'clock in the morning to get a site, so we camped at a private spot called White Lake Oasis a quarter of a mile away the night before. The four hour cruise on Lake Winnepesaukee not too far away, summer theatre and shopping in North Conway, and hiking up Mount Chocorua are favorite day trips from White Lake.

The second spot was Fish Creek Pond, N. Y. in the Adirondacks. This is a small lake also with a much larger campground, which extends all around the lake in a white birch forest. Each campsite is on the lake with its own beach, although clamshells make it really more comfortable to swim at the main beach where there are lifeguards. Tenters rent canoes or rowboats in the park, moor them at their tent site and enjoy the same freedom of using the water as if a lakefront cottage had been rented. The mountains and the social events of Lake Placid, Tupper Lake, and Saranac Lake are nearby.

These lake camps make us wish that Vermont might develop some of its lakes which are just as beautiful and make inexpensive camping spots for families from all over the fifty states who would enjoy our Green Mountains, our shops and social events. Camping tourists actually spend a great deal of money in the states where they locate and the state would find increased revenue in their business if as much were done to invite their stay here as is done to invite motel and hotel guests and new industries.

Remember these two interesting camping spots when you sit by the fire this winter planning your safaris for next summer.

We hope that the long weekend will encourage many of our out-of-town members to attend. Please remember that we absolutely must have reservations for this outing in order to obtain exactly the right amount of food. It also helps to know if those in your group are adults or children and the approx. ages of the later. Names help too in planning the division of kitchen duties! All reservations should be made by Wed. Feb. 17th at the latest as planning, shopping, and packing in to camp must be done by Fri. Please make reservations with Janet Martin, PR 3-8621 or write her at 7 Curtis Ave., Rut.

For those of you who are new to the Winter Weekend everyone packs in his own bedding; (sleeping bags are best as the cottage and cabins are heated by wood stoves and it can get pretty cold on a Feb. night.) A flashlight is also a must. It is a half mile walk from US4 to camp so come equipped for deep snow with snowshoes or skis.

CLARENDON LODGE

Sunday, Nov. 22nd, was one of those bright sunny days which seem to coincide quite regularly with a trip to Clarendon Lodge.

This outing brought out one of the best crowds of the year. We were glad to have two faculty members from Green Mt. Junior College with us again, and enjoyed the six student members of their Outing Club who came with them. We hope they will join us again soon.

It was pleasant to find the old road in from Rte. 103 once again in good walking condition. Most of the party took this short cut while a few hiked in over the Long Trail.

We found the Lodge in good condition with little cleaning up needed except for eliminating surplus food supplies which we do not favor leaving in shelters. Even these, however, had been left in as good condition as possible and were carefully dated.

During the morning a "warming bench" for the west side of the shelter near the stove was built. This was a welcome addition as Clarendon Lodge is a popular destination for winter outings and the area around the stove is a favorite focal point. Now all we need is some sort of movable bench which can be drawn up to the front of the stove, so feet can be comfortably warmed in the oven!

After lunch the chief activity was chopping practice by the girls from G.M.J.C. This gave them plenty of exercise and fun while providing an interesting spectator sport for the rest of us. Probably there has never been a larger supply of wood left after an outing.

Around 4 o'clock, reluctantly as always, we closed camp and headed back for Rte. 103, our cars and town.

BUFFUM

Our final outing for the 1959 season was a trip to Buffum on Saturday, Dec. 5th. We had hoped this might be a snowshoe trip but even lacking that it was a good outing, well attended.

There were 9 of us when we left Meldon School for the hiking point where The Long Trail crosses the Gulf Road. We found good walking conditions this year, (pleasant contrast to the icy road over which we slipped and slid to reach Buffum last winter).

We had been at the shelter but a short time when we were joined by 8 hikers from Springfield. Some of this group had attended our Winter Weekend last year. It was fun to meet them again. Attending from the most distant point was Bob Perkins from California whose short visit in Rutland coincided with this hike.

Fires were built both in the outdoor fireplace and in the old stove which functions after a fashion, although a replacement is definitely needed.

After lunch walks were taken north on The Trail to enjoy the fine view which this section provides.

Some time at the shelter was happily spent in considering a possible slight change of site for a new shelter; deciding the present site is really best after all; determining what would be the best construction plan for the new shelter. Of course this project is way in the future as we still have to complete paying our share of the expense of Pico. Still we can dream. This is really a choice location, attractive in all seasons and someday-----.

Some of the Springfield party went on over The Trail to Sunnyside, but we returned by the way we had come. We really should add 3 to this hike's attendance as on our way out we met Churchill, Bobby and Candy Scott coming in.

Vol. 13 No. 2 KILLINGTON SECTION-GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB Mar.-Apr. 1960

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sat. March 5, 10:00 AM
PLACE: Sunnyside

This will be a combined work party and pleasure trip. Snowshoes or skis will probably be very necessary so soon after our Washington's Birthday storm. Shelters' chairman, Churchill Scott reports the doors need some attention. Lets have a good turnout and make Sunnyside shipshape again. We will leave Meldon School at 10:00 AM.

TIME: Sun. March 20, 10:30 AM
PLACE: Clarendon Lodge.

Barring an early thaw this trip will also require snowshoes. It will also be a combined work party and pleasure trip if preliminary investigations reveal any necessary repairs and, or housecleaning. This is a beautiful walk of not too great a distance. See you at Meldon School at 10:30 AM.

TIME: Sun., Mar. 27, 6:30 PM
PLACE: Maple Sugar Party
At home of Vera Perkins
242 So. Main St., Rutland

It was voted at the Annual Meeting to hold the Sugar Party in Vera Perkins' attic again this year. A committee made up of Pearle Nichols, Ruth Fostman, Churchill Scott and Bob Hathaway volunteered to help Vera with boiling the syrup down and setting up the tables and chairs. Reservations are necessary for this event and may be made by calling Janet Martin, PR-3-8621 by Fri, Mar. 25th. The sugar-on-snow will be served about 6:30 PM.

Considerable interest was shown in repeating the very entertaining feature of a Chinese auction as held last year. Nicknacks, books, games, toys, and plants are a few suggestions of items which probably go well. It might increase the fun if you wrapped your contributions and tagged them with some hint as to contents.

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sat., April 9, 10:00 AM.
PLACE: Buffum Shelter

This is usually a very pleasant early Spring outing barring a late blizzard! At any rate we will hope for the best and make do with what we get. It is neither a long nor a strenuous trip and it is always fun to look for the first faint signs of spring. This trip will leave Meldon School at 10:00 AM.

TIME: Sun., April 24, 10:30 AM.
PLACE: Tucker Lodge

Once again we visit Tucker for the annual Spring cleaning bee. It should look quite different around there from the last scheduled trip by moonlight in January. "Many hands make light work" as the saying goes so let's make this a really big work party! We will leave Meldon School at 10:30 AM.

JANUARY 31ST HIKE
GOV. CLEMENT SHELTER

As we arrived at our parking place on the Upper Road, and the seven of us disembarked from the station wagon, we were met by our Schenectady member who was accompanied by his camping partner, a very congenial guest of our outing. They had just arrived from spending the night at Clarendon, and reported the Lodge in very good shape, with an abundance of firewood remaining from our November wood-chopping ceremonies.

What superb snowshoeing, with a foot of light powder snow, a comfortable temperature, a bright sun and no wind! The shelter was soon reached, and Craigie's axe was heard above the chatter of friendly conversation as firewood was prepared. A fire was soon roaring in the stove and on went ye olde faithful coffee pot. Another fire was started in the fireplace and the aroma of hot dogs and hamburgs filled our nostrils. Never did food taste better!

But time passed quickly and soon it was time to leave. As we returned to the road, we were grateful for a pleasant winter outing, felt sorry for those who could not share the day with us, and thanked the weatherman for his cooperation.

ANNUAL MEETING

M. Bell

As reported in Rutland Herald

At the annual meeting of the Killington Section on Jan. 27th, Bennett Bell was reelected president. Raymond Catozzi, vice president, and Eleanor Walker, secretary-treasurer. Harold Valiquette was chairman of the nominating committee.

The Green Mountain Club is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year. It was founded March 11, 1910 in Burlington with Jim Taylor as its first president, the same year that the Dartmouth Outing Club was formed in Hanover, N.H.

The Long Trail was blazed over the tops of the Green Mountains from Canada to the Mass. border, a distance of 256 miles. During the past half-century this "footpath through the wilderness" has drawn visitors from all over the world and its 56 shelters and lodges have always been open without charge to the hikers.

Craigie Perkins, in making his report of our section, stated that Pico and Clarendon Lodges were in excellent condition; Sunnyside, Gov. Clement, and Cooper in good condition; and Buffum in fair condition.

Volunteers are needed to clear the trail of blowdowns and to make repairs on the shelters from time to time. Work parties will be scheduled every month during the next year. He said that several troops of Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, and college groups from Green Mountain, Castleton, and Putney had joined the hikes this past year.

Miss Vera Perkins reported that the annual rummage bazaar netted $100 toward the new Pico Lodge. The Sugar Party, Winter Weekend, and Card Party were well attended.

Jack Martin, publicity chairman, reported that the colored slides which are available to any local group without charge, had been shown in many schools and in club meetings.

Mrs. Mary Perkins, editor of The Long Trail News, mentioned that the intersectional meeting in August, hitherto a weekend affair, is to be lengthened to a full week including Labor Day weekend, so that vacationing families with tents may come for a part or for all of that time. The location is to be in Eden, at the Boy Scout Camp of the Long Trail Council. Raymond Catozzi was appointed to report the Killington Section news for The Long Trail News.

New members introduced were Mr. and Mrs. George Reynolds, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hathaway. They will work with Mr. and Mrs. Perkins and Mr. and Mrs. John Martin on plans for the Winter Weekend in Mendon Feb. 20-22.

Churchill Scott, Mrs. Ruth Postman, Miss Pearle Nichols and Harold Valiquette will assist Miss Perkins with the annual maple sugar party at her home. Churchill Scott, Ben Rolston and club members will assist Craigue Perkins with trail clearance and repair of shelters.

Paul Newcomb, supervisor of the U.S. Forest Service showed three films about conservation.

MOONLIGHT HIKE TO TUCKER
by
Judy Allard

About 8 o'clock on a cold Saturday evening in January a small group of hikers started from the edge of Route 4 near Pico for Tucker Lodge.

The snow was packed quite hard and we did not need snowshoes. Even though the moon was not yet up it was a nice night for hiking.

On arriving at Tucker we soon had a good fire burning without the customary "smoking out" period. While the water was reaching the coffee-making temperature, we warmed up, and then enjoyed doughnuts and coffee to the accompaniment of harmonica music, singing and chatting.

When everyone had eaten as many doughnuts as possible we left for home. On the way out it was snowing lightly, but we did get some brief glimpses of the moon.

It was a good night and a good time was had by all.

(Ed. note) We were surprised and not pleased to find on arriving at Tucker that someone had installed an auxiliary stove for his own convenience, cutting off two roof-supporting beams in so doing, as well as setting the stove directly on the wood floor. We feel this is taking too many liberties with someone else's property. This stove will be removed on our next trip to Tucker and we hope the roof isn't getting too heavy a load of snow this winter.

WINTER WEEKEND
by Susan Barrett

As the snow fell and wind blew, a group of seventeen Green Mountain College Outing Club members accompanied by two teachers, Mrs. Lovejoy and Miss Brainwarth, trudged up the path to the lodge at Tall Timber. None of us knew what we would find at the end of our trek, but our highest expectations could not have been realized more than when we found that we would be spending the night in a quaint cabin with a potbelly stove.

And oh, what a night it was! From the moment the first flash bulb went off to the moment a loud chorus of an old record woke us up, each of us had either been scared by an eerie ghost story, taken a midnight hike with flashlights, or roasted hot days at 4:00 A.M.

During the day each girl was assigned a duty in order to help with the meals; the rest of the time was spent in enjoying the beautiful surroundings in any way that one preferred. Some went for a hike up to Blue Ridge Mountain, others went skiing along pine dotted paths, and several tried tobogganing down the road.

Too soon came the hour to leave, and as we started back down the hill, we all had memories of another wonderful day spent with the Green Mountain Club.

FURTHER NOTES ON THE WEEKEND

Activities of the rest of the group somewhat paralleled those of the G. M. College girls, omitting the "night life".

With both cabins in the woods occupied by two family groups from Springfield, Vt., and the main cottage filled to overflowing with club members from Worcester and Chelmsford, Mass., Schenectady, N.Y. and Rutland, there was never a dull moment.

The 45 gathered around for the excellent Sunday dinner (all meals were capably planned by Janet Martin), represented the largest crowd in the history of Killington Section winter weekends.

With two bright days following the snow storm, ordered for the occasion, nothing was lacking for a perfect Vermont winter weekend and it was much enjoyed by all attending.

TRAILS AND SHELTERS

We feel glad that President Bennett Bell has asked us to serve on the Trails and Shelters Committee and we will do all we can to make 1960 a very successful year. At the recent winter weekend we made preliminary plans for the spring season.

Already we have made trips to Tucker and Sunnyside to compile a list of needed materials and work projects to do on our coming hikes to these camps. Ben Rolston has kindly consented to take care of the Trail from Route 103 to the Gulf Rd.

The committee gives a great deal of time and effort to make the Killington Section the best on the Trail, but without the help and interest of every member we will accomplish very little. Please let us say again, our success will depend on the willingness of everyone to do their bit no matter how small.

SMOKE & BLAZES

Vol. 13 No. 3 KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB May-June 1960

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sat., May 7
PLACE: Bird Mountain

The last time we went to Bird Mt. was in the fall - it should be equally beautiful in the spring. The spring flowers are already blooming along the roadways so this area should be teeming with flora and fauna in another week. Shed the winter doldrums and get out in the woods. Meeting time will be 10:00 AM at Meldon School.

TIME: Sun., May 15
PLACE: Wilcox Hill

This is a new trip on our schedule but not far away as Wilcox Hill is located in Shrewsbury. It is reported to be a very good trip so all you explorers pack up your lunch and plan to go on this one. Explorers will leave Meldon School at 10:30 AM.

TIME: Sat., May 28
PLACE: Annual Meeting, G.M.C.
Long Trail Lodge

Let's have a really good turnout of Killington Section members for this our 50th year. Special observances are planned for dinner at night. Check your Long Trail News for further details and plan to attend.

TIME: Sun. June 12
PLACE: Stoney Brook Shelter

This shelter is on the Appalachian Trail east of Sherburne Pass and is located near Notown Clearing about 6 miles east of Vt. 100. We have been rained out on a couple of hikes planned for here so we hope for better luck this time. Departure time from Meldon School will be at 10:30 AM.

(con't. page 2)

THANKS TO RAY CATOZZI FOR DESIGNING OUR NEW MASTHEAD. WE THINK IT'S PRETTY NICE!

TIME: Sat., June 25
PLACE: Little Rock Pond

This is one of the most beautiful spots on the Long Trail: might even be nice for a dip in the lake. To give us more time at the Pond we will meet for this trip at 9:30 AM at Meldon.

SUGAR PARTY

On Sunday, March 27th, our annual sugar-on-snow party was held. The place this year was again the third floor of Vera Perkins' home.

Members and guests totaling 33 adults and 12 juniors assembled at 6:30 PM to partake of the usual sugar-on-snow, pickles, doughnuts and coffee. For some this was a first sugar-party experience.

Contrary to custom, we succeeded in getting the syrup boiled down to the proper stage at precisely 6:30 o'clock. This was no doubt a surprise to everyone, the committee included!

With the aid of several willing volunteers, the committee soon had everyone settled and enjoying the feast.

After each had reached the limit of his capacity and had "stirred down" any syrup remaining in his dish, snow containers and dishes were quickly cleared away and we were ready for the Chinese Auction.

With chances selling at five cents each, one could safely-indulge his gambling instinct. It really was a gamble too, as items were sold wrapped. Interest was added by the clever hints as to contents which were attached to some of the packages.

After all the parcels had been disposed of and we totaled up the evening's "take" we found that, with some profit from sugar-party plus the proceeds of the auction, there was $16 to add to our treasury. This makes a nice little start toward our next big project - replacing Buffum Shelter.

Thanks go to the members of the committee and several volunteers who helped with the work, and to all who participated and so made this a pleasant and successful evening.

TRAILS AND SHELTERS

The Trails and Shelters Committee has been quite active since the last issue of SMOKE & BLAZES.

Ben Rolston has spent four or five days on the Killington Section. The Trail has been completely cleared and painted from the Gulf Road north to the Smith Road above Beacon Hill.

Buffum Shelter has been made ready for the summer hiking season and the same applies for Clarendon Shelter.

Craig Perkins and Churchill Scott spent Saturday, April 30th, putting a new roof on the back half of Tucker. With such a small work party it was impossible to complete the job. There are still some shingles ripped off so just as soon as possible there should be another work party there.

The Committee has scheduled the following work parties to prepare the Killington Section for summer:

Sunday, May 22 - Pico Shelter
Saturday - June 4 - Trail clearing - Pico to Killington
Sunday, June 19 - Trail clearing - Gov. Clement.

If any members are interested and able to help please contact Churchill Scott, Tel. PR 5-5720

Churchill Scott, Chair.

DONATIONS RECEIVED

Treasurer Eleanor Walker reports that she has received donations totaling $9.80 toward the expense of re-building Pico Shelter. We certainly appreciate these donations.

SUNNYSIDE

The trip to Sunnyside on March 5th was perfectly timed, coming as it did the day after a good March snow storm.

On arrival at Meldon School we were pleased to find a good group of workers assembled, as the main object of this trip, in addition to a snowshoe outing, was repair work on the doors at Sunnyside.

Arriving at the junction of Route 103 and the Spring Lake Ranch road, all the tools, lumber, lunches, snowshoes, and miscellaneous impedimenta were loaded into Harold Valiquette's truck which was equipped to drive in as far as the snowshoeing point.

With nothing to carry we enjoyed a leisurely walk up the hills admiring the beauty of the fresh snow all around us.

Donning snowshoes at the end of the road, we took off through the fields, finding the snowshoeing excellent.

Arriving at Sunnyside a fire was started and the men went to work at once on repairing the doors.

With a good fire in the stove and a tarpaulin hung across nearby to keep out the wintery breezes, we soon had a warm corner for the non-workers to relax in while the coffee water heated.

After a lunchtime break the men continued work while of the rest, some went for walks and others continued to enjoy the cozy stove corner.

When as much work had been completed as time would allow, we packed up our gear for the return trip. This was a real day's work and one more day should complete putting the doors in good shape.

Spurning offers of a ride down we retraced our steps to the cars, while some of the juniors enjoyed the thrills and spills of a sled ride down.

With more good work parties like this 1960 should be a year of accomplishment.

CLARENDON LODGE

Sunday, March 20th was another good day for a winter outing. Opinions varied as to whether or not there would be snowshoeing - so some took snowshoes and some didn't. We found that you could get there either with or without, but we think the "withs" had a little the best of it.

Arriving at Clarendon Lodge, we found, as we had half expected, Ben Rolston there to welcome us, and a good fire going. Ben having spent the night there, the Lodge was in good shape, and as there was little work to be done, the day was pleasantly spent enjoying a leisurely lunch, taking short walks (for those who had snowshoes). and the never failing pastime of just talking. The junior members found the snow excellent for making snowmen.

Everyone seemed reluctant to leave and we lingered on until late afternoon. These late winter (or is it early spring?) outings are often some of the best ones of the year.

TUCKER HIKE

Four people braved the wet weather on Sunday, April 24th to make the hike to Tucker.

On the way in they met a group of hikers from the Middlebury College Outing Club who had spent the night at Tucker. This group reported that they had found the shelter quite "messy" on their arrival but had done a clean-up job. Arriving at Tucker, the Killington Section group found that they had indeed done an excellent piece of work and had also left a good supply of wood. Thanks Middlebury!

As Jack Martin had previously taken in some materials to work with the four hikers were able to make the most of their time at Tucker by doing some in-door repair work.

BUFFUM SHELTER
by
Barbara Allard

The paper said there might be spring flowers, so a total of 17 people, about 9 of them children, gathered to make the trip to Buffum Shelter to see what they could find.

Though the snow was gone in Rutland we found that the trail was covered with snow. The younger members could walk on the top of the crust and thought it was a big joke when the older ones sank up to their knees in snow. The trip in seemed quite short and we soon came to the shelter curled up in the snow in front of the brook. Feeling the pangs of hunger we decided to build the fire outside the shelter in the spot where we thought the fireplace was. It was there too. Even with dampish wood and the snow base the expert fireman soon had a good hot fire and two of the boys were pressed into service to hold the coffee pot over the fire. A few of the others had cleaned up the camp while the fire was being started. Even the littlest ones (three and four years) helped. The sun kept coming in to see what all the commotion was about.

When lunch was over, two of the men took a short walk up Button Hill. The rest of us stayed at camp and discussed the best site for a new shelter. When the men got back with a few pussy-willows it was getting chilly so we decided to start back to Rutland. The snow had softened so that places that were safe on the way up were now too soft. The little ones liked that!

The spring flowers? After we got to the cars and started back toward Rutland we found lots and lots of big fluffy snow-drops. Real ones.

SMOKE & BLAZES

Vol. 13 No. 4 KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB July-Aug. 1960

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sun., July 10 - 9:30 A.M.
PLACE: Abby Pond

This one might well be called a mystery hike. All we know about it is that intrigued by a directional sign ABBY TRAIL on Rte. 116 between East Middlebury and Bristol, we suggested a trip there to the Outing Chairman and here it is.

Better meet with us at Meldon School at 9:30 and come along and see what we find.

TIME: Sat., July 23 - 10 A.M.
PLACE: Shrewsbury Peak

Shrewsbury Peak is one of our nearby mountains of the Coolidge Range. It is reached by a side trail which runs from The Long Trail on Little Killington over the peak to the Northam Camping Area in Coolidge State Forest. It is about a 2 mile hike from the Camping Area to the summit. This is a very pleasant mountain with an excellent view. It is not a very difficult climb so plan to come and bring a friend or the children.

TIME: Sunday, Aug. 7th
PLACE: CVPS Camp

Once again Eleanor Walker has secured the use of the Central Vermont Public Service Corp. camp for an outing at Chittenden Dam. This is always a pleasant family affair for young and old alike, so mark your calendar now and plan to come. Bring your swim suit and a big lunch and make it a big, leisurely day. For the benefit of those who do not know the way the group will gather at Meldon School at 10:30 A.M., or if you wish to come at a later hour directions may be obtained from Outing Chairman, Craigie Perkins (Tel. PR 3-7954). Come any time and stay as long as you wish.

TIME: Aug. 27 to Sept. 5
PLACE: Intersectional at Eden, Vt.

Full details on the Summer Intersectional are found on the last page. This is the first time a full week has been set aside for the Intersectional, so why not plan to attend all or part of the time.

ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting of G.M.C. was held at Long Trail Lodge on Saturday, May 28th.

The day began with a Coffee Hour at 10 A.M. which gave every one a chance to greet old friends and catch up with what was new with them.

The business meeting was called to order about 11 A.M. and proceeded with the customary reports from Sections and general items of business relating to the Club and its Trails and Shelters. This will be reported on in detail in the next LONG TRAIL NEWS.

The fact that this was our 50th Anniversary was commemorated with attractive place mats used on the tables at luncheon and dinner. These anniversary place mats are available from Publicity Chairman, Jack Martin. (Price 50¢ for 25 mats).

Larry Dean of the Burlington Section announced plans for the Intersectional to be held at Lake Eden the last week in August. It is planned to make this the big event of our Anniversary Year. As Larry outlined the plans this is something you won't want to miss.

For the evening program, Ben Rolston, 3 times End-to-End, took us with him on an interesting and easy trip over The Trail by means of his excellent collection of colored slides.

A large number of out of town members made Tall Timber their over night headquarters and the Sunday hikes started from there. Favored with perfect summer hiking weather, enthusiastic groups were organized with various objectives. One group drove to Killington Basin and rode the lift to the top of the mountain, some returning by the same route while others hiked to Pico Shelter and Sherburne Pass. Another group hiked to Pico Shelter and thence to the top of Pico. Still another group, from the New York Section elected to visit one of the shelters on their section of The Trail. Many returned to Tall Timber for a second night and made a leisurely departure on Monday.

All in all it was an interesting and enjoyable GMC weekend.

BIRD MOUNTAIN

On Saturday, May 7th we revisited a spot which has not been included on the schedule recently. Our Schenectady members, Dorothy and Ben Rolston, joined us for this one and nine of us started from Meldon School for Bird Mt.

Outing Chairman, Craig Perkins had heard from the Green Mt. College group that they would join us on the mountain later in the day, so various directional signs were devised along the way to encourage and guide them. These must have been quite effective as even though the trail was a bit hard to follow in spots, we all eventually assembled at the spring and were joined there later by the Green Mt. College group and three more Rutland hikers.

The spring was promptly christened "Rigor Mortis Spring" by two of our Junior members who claimed their hands became numb from cold in clearing it out.

After lunch there was the usual consideration as to whether or not to make the steep climb to the top of the mountain. In the end, also as usual it was felt to be too bad to be so near and miss the fine view. So, we climbed to the top and as always felt well rewarded. There's a feeling gained from being on top of a mountain which can't be described.

For the Green Mt. College group this was a first trip to Bird Mountain and they found it a wholly satisfying experience. It was equally satisfying to those of us who had made the trip many times before.

WILCOX HILL
by Ann Reynolds

In the last issue of SMOKE AND BLAZES, the trip to Wilcox Hill on May 15 was listed as "a new trip on our schedule." It was so new in fact that none of the nine people (including four juniors) who turned out on a gray, unpromising morning, knew just how to get to the top!

We drove out Cold River Road, turned left at the bridge, and left again, near the old cheese factory, where the trail to Gov. Clement Shelter goes off to the right. We continued our ride past several abandoned-looking farm houses, until we came within sight of Wilcox Hill, and parked the cars. Here we asked directions of a farmer. He told us to go up the road which cut through his property until we came to a "big maple". There we were supposed to go left and find a road which would take us to the top of the hill.

Seeing no "big maple", we decided to continue on around the hill in search of water to go with lunch. We finally found a brook and a nice clearing in the woods for a lunch stop. Rain started and stopped several times, but it was never hard enough to dampen our spirits or the fire.

By now, the top of the hill rose rather sharply behind us, and we decided the best way was simply to take off cross country and head for the summit. The woods were quite open with many wild flowers in bloom, and we reached the top without much difficulty. Although the sky hadn't cleared much, the view still was lovely enough to make us want to come back on a clearer day. All in all, it was a very good pioneer trip!

STONEY BROOK SHELTER

When we checked in at Meldon School at 9:30 A.M. on Sunday, June 12th it looked at first as though there weren't going to be enough hikers to carry out this exploration trip as planned. However, just as we were about to give up hope, four more arrived and the trip was underway.

Using two station wagons for transportation, we drove first to the Sherburne schoolhouse on the Sherburne Hollow road, where we left one car. Loading all the hikers into the other station wagon, we drove back to Rts. 100 and on to Gaysville where we turned off on the road leading to "Notown". This good country road followed along beside Stoney Brook crossing and recrossing it at intervals, for about 6 miles. We left the car at what appeared to be the end of navigation for automobiles and proceeded on foot following the old road and the Appalachian Trail marks, expecting to see "Notown" and Stoney Brook Shelter at the top of each rise.

We walked and we walked. The country was interesting, the trail comparatively easy, but no shelter appeared. The usual hour for lunch came and went, still we walked.

Finally, the trail having climbed and veered to the right, leaving Stoney Brook far below and to the left of us, we reluctantly decided we had somewhere by-passed the shelter. It now being about one-thirty we made our lunch stop near the first available water. A place for the fire was dug out, the fire was started and in record time coffee water was boiling. The mosquitoes and black flies which hadn't bothered much up to now, prohibited lingering over lunch and we were soon on our way again.

On and up over the ridge and then the trail followed a logging road down along the shoulder with a deep ravine on one side. We speculated on the identity of some interesting wild flowers and at one point startled a small bird from a nest under a root in the bank on the side of the road. A cautious peek into the nest revealed small white eggs with a brown ring on the end. We needed Betty Ball along to tell us what kind they were.

Finally we reached the spot where we had ended our winter hike in this area and soon came down onto the Sherburne Hollow road. Then to the schoolhouse for the car and back around to our starting point; which we now decided was probably "Notown"; and home.

No, we still haven't been to Stoney Brook Shelter but this was an interesting trip and some day we plan to go back again and find that shelter.

REPORT OF TRAILS AND SHELTERS COMMITTEE

The Trails and Shelters Committee has very little to report for this two month period. The most important work done was to repair the windows at Pico with the help of Mrs. Lovejoy and a group of students from Green Mountain College.

Mr. Ben Rolston has returned from a very interesting drive through the western states and soon we are going to have some more trail clearing parties to finish the work on the Killington Section.

Churchill Scott,
Chairman

LITTLE ROCK POND

Arriving at Meldon at 9:30 A.M., on Saturday, June 25th, we were surprised to find only six hikers on hand for this old favorite. Although not a bright sunny day the temperature was good for hiking and a fresh breeze promised that bugs would be no problem.

Going in most of us decided to go around the east side of the Pond and in so doing found that the beavers had changed the terrain in that area considerably. We spent some time in finding a spot where we could cross without deep wading, but finally made it with Mary Perkins' guidance. Even the bridge to the island was partially under water so at this point one of the party gave up and taking off her shoes and socks, just waded.

At the shelter we found a fire already going, thanks to a group of Massachusetts Boy Scouts and their leaders who had been in camp over night. They reported a very heavy rain and thunder storm in the night.

The wind from the Pond was quite cool and no one felt any urge for a swim or even to linger long after lunch. We made the return trip along the west shore, finding the trail quite wet from the recent storm.

Betty Ball planned a short vacation in Vermont to coincide with this outing and it was good to have her hiking with us again. Betty reports that she likes her work in North Carolina and has recently purchased a bit of land outside of town and a trailer, so she is enjoying country living in her own home.

SEE NEXT PAGE FOR DETAILS OF THE BIG 1960 INTERSECTIONAL!

GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB INTERSECTIONAL WEEK - LAKE EDEN, VERMONT - 50TH YEAR, 1960

PLAN TO ATTEND the Intersectional Week, August 27 through September 5, at Lake Eden, Vermont. The Long Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, has kindly given us the use of the facilities of the Mount Norris Scout Reservation, including camping sites, cook shacks with stoves, recreation hall, beach, boats, canoes, cots, mattresses and even one or two large tents. Stay one day or ten days but be sure to come!

ALL KINDS OF ACTIVITIES can be enjoyed. There is something for everyone. Hiking, camping, swimming, fishing, canoeing, boating, woodland walking, wading, bird watching, just plain loafing and even badminton and volley ball. This is the schedule of hikes the committee has planned, not to mention innumerable hikes you can take on your own. Notice that at least two hikes have been planned each day: usually an easy one and a little harder one.

- Aug. 28 - (1) Mount Norris
(2) Belvedere Mt. to Tillotson Camp and back by way of Frank Post Memorial Trail
- Aug. 29 - (1) Mt. Hunger (Worcester Range)
(2) Spruce Peak (by chair lift or trail) and Elephant's Head
- Aug. 30 - (1) Domey's Dome to Taft Brook and out to Rt. 100 (Bushwhacking)
(2) Burke Mt. (you can drive up if you want to)
- Aug. 31 - (1) Belvedere Mt. to old mine
(2) Ritterbush Pond and Devil's Gulch from Frying Pan Brook
- Sept. 1 - (1) Mt. Pisgah and Lake Willoughby
(2) Westmore or Bald Mt.
- Sept. 2 - (1) Camel's Hump
(2) Pinnacle near Richford
- Sept. 3 - (1) Jay Peak
(2) Journey's End and International Line Post 592
(3) Rt. 105 to Journey's End
- Sept. 4 - (1) Mt. Mansfield by trail, chair lift or toll road
(2) Owls Head and view of Lake Memphremagog

SECTION PRESIDENTS should find out how many of their members plan to attend and should notify Larry Dean by August 5, if possible, so plans can be completed. So let your Section President know your plans by then if you possibly can. If you can't plan in advance, come anyway! Larry Dean, 964 Pine St., Burlington, Vt.

CAMPFIRES OR OTHER ENTERTAINMENT will be presented every evening, the various Sections taking turns as hosts. Stunts, song-singing, story-telling and so forth. Make your Section's night the best and the most fun! The Recognition Campfire event will be Sept. 3, but your Section can pick any one of the other evenings. Tell Don Havens which night and what you plan to do. Don Havens, 46 Alfred Terr., Burlington, Vt.

BRING YOUR OWN food, cooking and eating utensils, hiking and camping clothes, swim suit, bedding, tent, gas or kerosene lantern and/or stove if you prefer (wood stoves and wood provided), flashlight, packsack for carrying lunch, etc. If you have them, bring your own: wife or husband, kids, pets, canoes, musical instruments, sports equipment, imagination and a desire to relax and have fun and hike if you feel like it.

IT WILL COST YOU fifty cents per person per night or $1.00 per family per night, which you can pay on arrival. At this time you will be given a name plate and a souvenir shoulder patch commemorating the 50th Anniversary of the Club.

YOU CAN GET TO THE CAMP by taking Route 100 north from Waterbury. The Mount Norris Reservation is on Lake Eden, just north of Eden Mills, about 15 miles north of Morrisville, which is about 19 miles north of Waterbury, which is on U. S. Route 2 twelve miles west of Montpelier.

Vol. 13 No. 5 Killington Section - Green Mountain Club Sept.-Oct. 1960

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sat. Sept. 24 - 10 A.M.
PLACE: Bald Mt. - Red Rocks

This mountain in our backyard should make an excellent fall foliage trip. The road up the Notch is always beautiful, the trail is not very difficult, and the views worth the effort. Your editor hasn't made the trip since the year the "coffee froze" but think I might risk it again! Red Rocks is down over the side of the mountain and should provide an excellent view and an interesting return route. This trip will leave Meldon School at 10 A.M.

TIME: Sun. Oct. 9 - 10 A.M.
PLACE: Blue Ridge

This is another old favorite close by. The trail is very pleasant through a full range of hard and soft woods with enough opening at the top to afford an excellent view up and down the valley. The beautiful cascades about two-thirds of the way up should make an excellent lunch stop. The foliage should be at its height so set the date down and plan to attend. We will leave Meldon School at 10 A.M. If you wish to go after Sunday School or Church call the Martins (3-8621) as they plan to go around 10:30 AM.

TIME: Sat. Oct. 22 - 6 P.M.
PLACE: Covered Dish Supper at Beechwood.

The covered dish supper is to be held a bit earlier this year so that the last of the fall foliage should still be visible - the walking excellent with many paths and byways to explore in the vicinity before we sit down to the heavily laden board. As usual we'd like to know how many plan to attend and what you'd prefer to bring - hot dish, salad or dessert, or one of the store items. Please call Janet Martin (3-8621) by Saturday A.M. Oct. 22.

Supper will be set out at 6 P.M. but come early if you can to tramp around the woods and renew old friendships.

RUMMAGE SALE - OCT. 29 RUMMAGE SALE - OCT. 29 RUMMAGE SALE - OCT. 29

TIME: Sat Oct. 29
PLACE: Neighborhood Rooms
Activity - RUMMAGE SALE

Now is the time to go through your closets and attics to find everything you can to add to that collection you have been making all year for the RUMMAGE SALE. Call on your neighbors too and see if they haven't some things they'd be glad to get rid of.

Remember this is our one big money making activity. As soon as we feel we can afford it we'd like to replace Buffum Shelter so let's see if we can't add at least $100 to the fund on Oct. 29th. If we have enough to sell we can surely do it.

As usual we'll be at the Neighborhood Rooms all day the day before the sale to receive your donations and get them priced and arranged so bring us your things on FRIDAY OCT. 28. If you can't get them to us call Craigie or Vera Perkins before Friday and we'll arrange to collect them. Anything sells - well almost anything!

We'll need some helpers so get in touch with us if you can help on either Friday or Saturday. If we don't hear from you some of you will hear from us!

TIME: Sun. Nov. 6 - 9 A.M.
PLACE: Mt. Hanley, West Rutland

This might be classified as a mystery hike as it will be our first trip to this haystack shaped mountain near West Rutland. All you explorers pack your sack and come along; reports are this in an interesting mountain. We'll never know until we try it. It is located north of Route 4, west of West Rutland. We will gather at Meldon School at 9-00 AM.

THE ABBEY POND TRIP

by
"Barbie" Allard

It looked at first as though there would be only two to make the trip to Abbey Pond, but by waiting a half hour the number swelled to sixteen. The weather still looked good so we left Rutland to conquer the unknown (to us) trails. Leaving the cars at an intersection of wood roads, we took the one heading into the woods. The trail is an old road though it is now quite impassable to anything but animals, human or otherwise. It isn't so terribly steep but goes up quite steadily until it levels out on the top. The up part was really more interesting than the level part. There are a great many very large rocks, some as large as houses, lying around as if some giant had gotten tired of carrying them and had chucked them out of his pocket. Much of this part of the trail follows a very lively brook. When hunger stopped us we decided to eat where we could sit beside the brook. There we discovered that the men outnumbered the women and for the first time in quite awhile they did all the wood-gathering and fire-building. Since the GMC now uses instant coffee there could be no discussion as to how that should be made, but there was much arguing as to the proper procedure for building a small fire. Regardless of this the water still boiled, finally.

After eating we continued on our way. Abbey Pond turned out to have been taken over by the beavers. It was too mucky around the edges to swim or do much wading. Three of us decided to go back to the brook and try swimming there. We hurried back and had about a half hour before the others came. When they arrived almost everyone stuck his feet in. That's all that was needed to cool off! From there a short jaunt took us back to the cars. For some reason the trail to Abbey Pond is longer than the trail from Abbey Pond.

SHREWSBURY PEAK

Augmented by a sizable group of Cub Scouts and their leaders, we left Meldon School on Saturday, July 23rd for a visit to Shrewsbury Peak.

Driving to the old Northam picnic area, we parked our cars and started hiking along a shady trail. The trail soon became more rocky and steeper - first down and then up. A rain the previous day had left it wet and slippery enough in places to add a touch of excitement.

Lunch time came before most of the group had reached the peak. Since there would be no water available at the top, we decided to make a lunch stop first and go on to our objective after lunch.

Chief firemen, Churchill Scott and Ray Catozzi soon had the coffee water hot and all settled down to the enjoyment of a meal.

With energies revived by food and rest we packed up our gear and started on the last lap to the top.

The trail seemed to be a bit longer and steeper than we had expected, but all was going well until with a sharp crack of thunder the rain, which had been threatening all morning, arrived.

Some of us immediately decided to turn back while others went on a bit farther before concluding that since there would be no view at the top there was little point in a longer walk in the rain. One small group had gone on to the peak before stopping for lunch. This group not only had the distinction of being the only ones to reach the peak but also enjoyed (?) the full effect of a thunder-shower on a mountain top.

The return trip was made in alternate sun and rain with sun predominating sufficiently so that everyone was pretty well dried out by the time we reached the cars. This was a new trip for most of us and the hike was fun. Next time we hope the weather cooperates.

C.V.P.S. CAMP

Our luck still held and Sunday, August 7th was the typical fine summer day we have come to expect for our outing at Chittenden Pond.

The attendance was good this year with nearly everyone arriving in time for a swim before lunch. We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Hans Fritsch, Killington Section members from Copiague, N.Y., who were vacationing at Tall Timber, with us. Mr. Fritsch brought along his telescope which he set up on the beach. This aided not only in observing any birds and other wild life which might be around but also in watching the water skiing which some of the party were trying out.

We missed the Craigie Perkinses the Allards, and the rubber boat, but otherwise the day followed its usual pleasant program of swimming, sunning, eating, and talking.

Most of the group left in the late afternoon but a few stayed on to watch the twilight settle over the Pond.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Marie Bell is now Mrs. George Daley and will be living at 739 Main St. Bennington. Marie and George are both teaching in Bennington this year and hope to hike some of the southern end of the Trail.

During the summer several new prospective GMC members have made their appearance.

Ernest Graham Hathaway, son of Suzanne and Bob Hathaway.

Thomas Philip Martin, son of Jan and Jack Martin. (Tommy has already attended two GMC outings).

Elizabeth Anne Buchanan, daughter of the Andy Buchanans, who though Burlington Section members are known to many in the Killington Section

Congratulations to all.

The week long Intersectional at Lake Eden proved to be a great success and congratulations should go to Larry Dean and all his helpers in the Burlington Section for a well organized and all around excellent performance.

The next LONG TRAIL NEWS will no doubt give an over all story of the week. Each person attending could write a story from his own point of view and each would be different. Your editor, Janet Martin, has written hers as follows:

The Martin clan with the able assistance of Aunt Vera Perkins made the Intersectional Camp for Labor Day weekend by converging on the south and east. Jack had been working on a highway project in Bloomfield, way up in "The Kingdom". The family of course was all in Rutland. By diligent planning, and packing tents, sleeping bags, stove and non-perishables in Jack's car a week in advance (some people may have wondered why anyone would drive a car all over the state with a crib and basinette in the back) and carrying the perishables and clothing with us, we managed to arrive at camp within ten minutes of each other. Just at the time too when our youngest was beginning to get a bit insulted that no one fed him his supper! That situation was soon corrected while Vera got supper out and Jack set up camp - a very efficient team. Supper was soon followed by bedtime for the little ones: Betsy and Tommy in the "bus" and Carol and Nancy in the tent. Soon all was quiet and Jack and Jan went over to the main building for campfire where Jack entertained with his accordion. Several members of other sections related tall tales. Our President, Don Kent, we discovered was quite talented along these lines.

When we returned to camp the moon was up - almost full - and the air was crisp and clear. We made ourselves some hot cocoa from the hot water after warming the baby's bottle and it really hit the spot. The moon was so bright flashlights were unnecessary,

Saturday dawned clear and cold but by putting our clothes on over our pajamas we managed to be quite warm for breakfast. Mid morning found us making a circuit of the main camp area, meeting on the way Florence Van Wyck and Barbie and Judy Allard who were just arriving. We didn't attempt any hikes this year but did take a drive up through Hazen's Notch where Jan waxed nostalgic about a porcupine incident on her honeymoon.

Returning to camp we found that Craigie and Mary Perkins had arrived for the End-To-ENDER's campfire. They ate their picnic supper at our campsite. Note to interested family campers: paper dishes and cups are well worth the investment as the children don't like to hang around while the dishes are washed and mother likes a vacation too. Simple meals with one cooked item seem most convenient for a short trip. Save the complicated meals until the kinder are big enough to do some of the chores. It is also recommended that you get an extra "aunt" or such to go along if you have several little ones - they are worth their weight in gold.

After the End-to-ENDER Campfire program Saturday evening, we once again bedded down for the night in full moonlight with little hint of what was to come. Shortly after midnight the moon was covered with clouds and we awoke in the morning to the ping-ping of rain on the roof. We were thankful our camp site had a cook shack where Jack quickly moved our stove, table and chairs under cover. The rain chased us home after breakfast as it seemed impossible to keep the active youngsters in out of the rain.

REPORT OF TRAILS AND SHELTERS COMMITTEE

The trails and Shelters Committee has been rather inactive during the summer months but there have been a number of individual work parties.

Mr. Henderson and a group of Boy Scouts from Pittsfield, Mass. spent a week hiking the trail from Little Rock Pond to Sherburne Pass staying over night at Buffum and Gov. Clement Shelters. At each shelter they spent a few hours cleaning up the camp, rebuilding the fireplaces and cleaning up the dumps.

Mr. Ben Ralston has spent two days working on the Trail north of Gov. Clement shelter, getting it in good shape as possible but he says it will take much more work to be in A-1 shape.

Ray Catozzi, Ken Day and their sons spent a day clearing trail between Cooper and Pico Lodge. They clipped brush and put up arrows and improved the Trail in general but especially where the ski trails and lifts cross the Long Trail.

Before the snow flies the Committee would like to plan two over-night work parties - one at Pico Lodge to work on the trail and one to Gov. Clement to work on both the shelter and Trail. If anyone is willing and able to help, the Committee will be very glad to hear from them.

ADVENTURE IN THE WEST By Charlotte Bell

On August 1st an invitation came from an uncle in Rochester, N. Y. to drive west with him and his two children - Sue, who is my age and Alan who is twelve. The plan was to meet my other uncle at his home in Los Alamos, N.M. and tent in five national parks, taking along his son Earl, also twelve. That paried up uncles, girl cousins and boy cousins, like three sets of twins.

We left Rochester on the 6th in a station wagon, with our green umbrella tent, an air mattress and sleeping bag apiece. We used the latter for naps along the way.

Being in a hurry to get out to the Rockies, we made a fast trip directly to New Mexico, dirving through New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. On the way out we saved time by staying at motels. After driving 512 miles one day, with the temperature 95 in the shade, we certainly enjoyed our midnight swim in the motel pool.

The flat land of the west stretched on as far as we could see. It made me want to run on and on; it made me feel light and free. It was easy driving; I wished I was old enough! It was smooth riding and I wrote a log of the trip.

Uncle Joe's home in Los Alamos is a new one of western ranch style. He is a physicist working on Uncle Sam's hydrogen bomb project there. Both his home and his office are over a mile high. The altitude made me a little dizzy at first. The skiing is good there in the Rockies.

Our first national park was Frijoles Canyon where we explored the Indian cliff dwellings. At the Otowi Caves I was lucky enough to find an arrowhead chipped out of white quartz and bits of pottery which had been washed down from the dwellings above.

In a half day spent in Santa Fe it was obvious that the boys were most interested in the wild west aspects of the museum - the old guns, covered wagons and prairie stagecoaches - while Sue and I liked best the Indian and Mexican crafts in the gift shops. We bought beautiful rings of turquoise and silver.

On the desert we saw a few pueblos with TV antennas, but usually the adobe houses looked shabby. The roofs were so flat that sometimes the children played on them. Some Indians still live in caves.

SMOKE & BLAZES

Vol. 13 No. 6 Killington Section - Green Mountain Club Nov.-Dec.1960

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sat. Nov. 19, 9-00 AM
PLACE: Pico Peak

Here is an opportunity for one last visit to the mountain tops before they become snow-bound and the special provence of the skier. Bundle up in your warmest windbreaker and join us for the climb to see that our new Pico Shelter is ship-shape for the winter. We will meet at Meldon School at 9:00 AM.

TIME Sun. Dec. 4, 11-00 AM
PLACE: Buffum Shelter

We may find a little snow on the ground for this one, but probably not enough to dig out the snowshoes. Better be looking them over though as they will be needed soon! This is always a favorite winter trip as it isn't too far but always enjoyable. We will leave from Meldon School at 11:00 AM.

TIME: Sat. Dec. 17, 10-00 AM
PLACE: Gov. Clement Shelter

Take a break from the rush of Christmas shopping and get out in the great outdoors. If there is enough snow for snowshoes bring them or skis. If not, the walking will be good up the road to Gov. Clement. We will meet at Meldon School at 10-00 AM

TIME Sat. Jan. 7, 7-00 PM
PLACE: Moonlight Hike, Tucker Lodge

Once again we find on our schedule a moonlight hike into Tucker Lodge. Those who have gone before know how enjoyable this different sort of outing is. We use snowshoes if there is sufficient snow and flashlights before the moon rises. Coffee, cocoa, and doughnuts. are enjoyed at the Lodge. Dig out your "long-Johns" and make plans to go this year. We will gather at Meldon School at 7-00 PM.

THE BLUE RIDGE MOUNTAIN HIKE

by Mary C. Isbell

The hike to the summit of Blue Ridge Mountain was especially rewarding because the Fall Foliage reached its climax that weekend. For this reason we enjoyed the drive to and from the trail almost as much as the hike itself. Starting from Tall Timber Camp, we ambled along what appeared to be an easy trail, until we came to a steep path of jagged rocks which resembled a long ladder or stairway. At this point everyone decided to have lunch and gather strength.

We found a group of flat rocks adjacent to The Cascades and here the women filled canteen and coffee pot while the men cut wood and built our fire. After lunch we climbed briskly until we reached the top of the mountain. There we enjoyed the views and planned our next trip.

Descending proved to be more difficult than climbing. Alas! The rocks bruised feet clad in "sneakers" and plain old shoes and caused the careless to slip and slide.

A tour of the camp was the next attraction. The cabins looked comfortable, and the pond was more inviting than the usual swimming pool. We also sampled the tasty red apples from Craigue's orchard just before we left.

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Dr. Wm. Allard and wife and daughter Kathy are having an interesting experience living and working at The Crow Agency in Montana. "Dr. Bill" is with the U. S. Public Health Service.

BALD MT. AND RED ROCKS

On Saturday, September 24th a sizable group was on hand to take advantage of a perfect fall hiking day.

It was planned to vary the Bald Mt. trip this time by returning over Red Rocks. Accordingly, Vera's car was left at the cement bridge on the Cold River road to await the return of the hikers who all piled into Craigue's station wagon and set off for the top of "The Notch".

The hike up Bald Mt. seemed surprisingly short and easy, possibly because on our last trip the trail was hard to find which resulted in much wandering around.

Lunch hour on the top of the mountain was very pleasant with the sun warm and the trees just beginning to show their fall color.

The trail down over the rocks was sort of "catch-as-catch-can", but since there was no doubt as to which way was down there was little difficulty in striking the old road which would lead us back to the Cold River road and the waiting car.

At just about this time Vera suddenly recalled that the keys to said car she had safely cached in the glove compartment of the station wagon at the top of "The Notch".

Fortunately, a little extra hike of about $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles would procure the spare set of keys. Mary and Vera set off ahead with no dilly-dallying, leaving the others to follow more leisurely, inspect an old cemetery along the route, and generally fill in time. After not too long an interval the group was reunited and everyone eventually reached home.

It's often an unexpected quirk on the part of the weather or some individual which adds a bit of extra spice to an outing.

RUMMAGE SALE NETS $158 TOWARD NEW BUFFUM SHELTER

We were hoping for $125 this year just for the fun of breaking our $121 record. We could hardly believe it when the final tally showed $158 to add to our treasury.

This was possible only because of the excellent cooperation of everyone. Some of our out-of-town members as Helen Bailey and Fran Green took the trouble to bring us their clothing donations. Through the efforts of another out-of-town member, Mrs. Harriot Bryant, and the courtesy of Mr. Lincoln Isham of Dorset, another excellent collection came to us. Some of our newer members as the Bob Hathaways and the George Reynolds, brought in fine material. And of course all our long time in-town supporters must have come through with bigger and better collections than ever.

In addition to raising the most money, this year's sale goes on record as being the least work on the part of those in charge. Again, this was due to fine cooperation. With "Mim" Bell, Ruth Postman, Churchill Scott and "T" Valiquette all on hand most of the day Friday, we went through the work of sorting and pricing like a breeze. On Saturday back they came plus Bennett Bell and Eleanor Walker to help with the selling. Clean-up time brought Jack Martin and Harold Valiquette to lend a hand on that job.

Thanks everyone. Let's make it $175 next year. Maybe we'll have that new shelter at Buffum sooner than we thought.

LOSE A WALLET ANYONE?

A wallet was found at Tall Timber after the Blue Ridge hike. The owner may retrieve it by contacting Mary or Craigie Perkins.

MT. HANLEY

The exploration trip to Mt. Hanley in West Rutland, on Sunday Nov. 6th, proved very successful.

Leaving the cars on the Whipple Hollow road 10 hikers started off through a pasture in the general direction of the mountain. After a short distance we came upon the first of a succession of wood roads. Guided by frequent checking with Churchill's topographical map we were able to choose the right one to lead to the ridge. Here we had a magnificent view of the valley and mountains to the west and south, for miles.

We followed along the ridge to the summit which on a clear day would afford a good view of the Green Mt. Range in this area. However, all agreed the view from the first look-out was the most outstanding.

As always, the lunch stop provided a pleasant interlude. We were especially interested in observing the expertness with which some of our younger hikers cooked and served their meal.

This hike took us through grass carpeted woods dotted with large clumps of deep green wax, or Christmas, ferns. Every now and then a stand of white birch added their own special charm.

Here is a nice mountain almost in our dooryard and it is well worth a visit. Go in late fall as we did, or try early spring, as foliage on the trees would conceal the views.

ANOTHER NEW HIKER

Arriving just too late to be announced in our last issue was John Reynolds, son of George and Ann Reynolds. John came to the Covered Dish Supper and we expect to see him out hiking most any day now! Congratulations.

TRAILS AND SHELTERS COMMITTEE REPORTS

The Trails and Shelters Committee has been quite busy since the last issue of SMOKE & BLAZES.

Ray Catozzi and Churchill Scott have finished putting a new rear roof and replacing rotten roof boards on Tucker. Craigie Perkins has repaired the windows in Pico Lodge and checked it over for our scheduled hike there on Saturday November 19th.

Ray Catozzi, Bobby and Churchill Scott spent one day working on the Trail south of Pico Shelter, and last week a work party of Ray Catozzi, Geo. Reynolds, Craigie Perkins, Stephen Clapp, Ben Rolston and Churchill Scott labored in the snow and cold all day to clear the Trail between the Big Swamp and the ski trails to Killington Basin.

It has been years since we have had as large a work party as listed above. The committee is very glad to see so much enthusiasm in maintaining the Trail properly. We hope that in the future we will have many more such work parties for there are several miles of Trail which have not felt the touch of an axe or saw for years. Please support your Trails and Shelters committee by giving all the help you can to them.

Churchill Scott, Chairman

ADVENTURE IN THE WEST continued By Charlotte Bell

After crossing the lovely Painted Desert, we visited the Petrified Forest and brought back souvenirs of wood long since turned to stone. At Grand Canyon we tented with many people from all over the country. We hiked a mile and a half down into the canyon, in spite of the heat, and back again. We should like to have taken the mule trip down but it took a whole day. The scenery was unbelievable.

By this time we had settled on a rugged and unvaried pioneer lunch - a sandwich made of two slabs of bread with hunks of ham and cheese between - and something to wash it down. It saved a lot of time, but I've tasted better!

Sometimes Sue and I slept in the station wagon with the others in the tent, and occasionally we slept right on the ground under the stars, and sometimes we changed around. We began to look for automats to do the laundry. At the end of the trip we kept four machines going at once!

Zion National Park and Bryce are photographers' paradises. Here the talks by the Rangers were very interesting, and so were the shows put on by college boys and girls who were employed there. (I'd like to spend a summer working out there myself someday).

When we drove through Salt Lake City we saw the first mountains which reminded me of home. In Grand Teton the lovely peaks were mirrored in Jackson Lake. To me this was the most beautiful view of all.

At Yellowstone National Park we had left the hot weather behind. In fact it was snowing when we pitched the tent; then the temperature went down to 29 degrees. There were two inches of snow on the ground in the morning, plenty for the boys to pelt us with snowballs. We shivered all night from cold and from fear of the grumpy bears who had been bothering the tourists. One had smashed a tent and broken a car window, ripping the interior before the ranger shot him. Alan saw a big black bear walking down the tent line. Some of them weighed three hundred pounds.

When Old Faithful erupted, it was a beautiful sight, as were the other geysers and boiling pools, some bright blue or black as ink. This really ended our sight-seeing, as Alan's face began to swell like a chipmunk's with a nut inside his cheek. The Wyoming Hospital said he had mumps! Next day I came down with mumps which stayed with me for five days and seven states.

Like all good Vermonters, I was glad to get home but will long remember the country out west and its fascinating scenery. What a great country we live in!

COVERED DISH SUPPER AT "BEECHWOOD"

"Beechwood", with its wooded trails, its large comfortable kitchen, and a blazing fire in the living room fireplace, once again was the setting, on October 22nd, for our fall covered dish supper. A record crowd of fifty (including two infants--the Martin's Tommy and the Reynolds' John) filled every available table and chair.

The many children present -- not to mention the adults -- made short work of the great variety of main dishes, salads, and desserts. The busy kitchen crew kept the coffee in circulation and the dining room table filled.

After everyone had eaten, and furniture had been moved around in the living room the gang settled down for an interesting slide show. Bennet Bell showed pictures taken by their daughter Rachel, on a camping trip in the West. Ray Katozzi provided scenes from a recent hike, and Churchill Scott showed an assortment of slides from activities during the past year.

Craigie Perkins, as "master of ceremonies", outlined the club schedule for the next few months.

Our thanks go to the Perkins for making possible this evening of good fun and fellowship.

ARE YOU WONDERING?

Are you wondering why you have found on page 5 the article which should have been on page 3; or why page 4 is crowded to the margins while page 5 has plenty of extra space? Don't waste energy trying to find the answers - your editorial assistant confused the issue this time. Cheer up though the year is nearly over and you can hope for a change of management.

In the meantime since this is the last issue of SMOKE AND BLAZES before the holidays we will take this opportunity to wish you all a bountiful Thanksgiving - A Merry Christmas-- and a Happy New Year.

SMOKE & BLAZES

Vol. 14 No. 1 KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB Jan.-Feb. 1961

COMING EVENTS

TIME: Sun. Jan. 22, 10:30 A.M.
PLACE: Sunnyside Camp

Snowshoe time is here with several good trips coming up. This one, familiar to many of you, follows a woodland road to Sunnyside Camp...a favorite spot in the winter time. Pack up a lunch and join the crowd at Meldon School.

TIME: Thurs. Jan. 26, 7:30 P.M.
PLACE: ANNUAL MEETING
C.V.P.S.C. Building

(Please use Maple St. parking lot and go in door from there.)

Your Executive Board this year decided to change our annual meeting from a supper meeting to dessert and coffee. It was felt that perhaps we could get better attendance than in the past few years. Besides the business meeting we hope to have an interesting program with a talk and slides on Alaska. A charge of 25¢ will be made to cover small incidental expenses.

Mark the date on your calendar and plan to attend. It's your club and a large attendance will best assure the planning of activities and projects which will have the support of the majority. We will meet in the lunchroom of the Central Vermont P.S.C. Building.

TIME: Sun. Feb. 5, 10:30 A.M.
PLACE: Clarendon Lodge

Another lovely snowshoe trip in the offing! This is always a favorite trip to one of our best lodges. Bring your family and friends. We'll meet at Meldon School at 10:30 A.M.

TIME: Sat. and Sun. Feb. 18-19
PLACE: Winter Weekend at Tall Timber

Once again it's Winter Weekend time. As in the past exact reservations are necessary...with the large turnout of the last few years it is even more essential than in the past. They may be made by calling or writing Janet Martin at PR 3-8621, 7 Curtis Ave., Rutland, by Wednesday night, Feb. 15th. Meals and sleeping arrangements will be planned on the basis of reservations so help your committee by making them as early as possible. Many hands and paper dishes make light work of the meals, so bring your skis or snowshoes and enjoy the great outdoors.

Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Martin.)

PICO SHELTER
by
Barbara Allard

There were about 17 GMCers present to make the annual trip to Pico Peak. Almost everyone was attired in a bright color as hunting season was in progress. Regardless of the season we met only a few hunters - all empty handed.

The first half the trail was in good condition but we moved rather slowly because of the large supply of beechnuts lying right on the trail. Many chipmunks were out gathering their winter supply. In the upper half of the trail some clearing was done by Churchill Scott and company.

Those who dressed for a dry trail got their feet wet a few times. We did try to drain a few pools that the trail went through.

With these interesting delays it was eating time when we reached the shelter. The sun made it warm enough to sit outside and eat so fires were made both inside and out.

Only seven had ambition enough to go to the summit. There is a regular city of buildings on the top now. When we headed back it began to cool off fast. Rousing those who were napping in the lodge we all headed home. Almost down to the cars we got a beautiful view of Deer's Leap which the setting sun had turned to a golden pink. It was a very nice day. (Barbie picked some hobble bush on this trip for forcing. She reports that it was in full bloom by the first of the year. - Ed.)

GREETINGS RECEIVED

We were pleased to receive Christmas greetings for Killington Section from Cecile, Emile and Terri Boselli and also from Mr. and Mrs. Hans Fritsch. The latter were at the Chittendon Pond Outing last summer, and enclosed a couple snapshots taken there, which we will bring to the annual meeting.

BUFFUM SHELTER
by
Judy Allard

On December 4th, a brisk, sunny day, a group of nine hikers covered the short distance from the road to the open shelter. It was a beautiful day for a hike and we ambled along slowly and marvelled at the nice weather at this time of year. There was a very light dusting of snow and a good amount of ice on the trail. When we arrived at the camp a good hot fire was started and the water boiled in a remarkably short time. We ate our lunch and sat around soaking up sun, cocoa and coffee.

Churchill Scott, Ray Catozzi and George Reynolds, who had been working on the suspension bridge, came up and had lunch. Then we all looked around for a suitable site for the new lodge. There were several proposed sites chosen by different members of the party. The men went back to the bridge and the rest of us left. We stopped at the bridge to see how the work was going. Members were Vera and Mary Perkins, Carol and Nancy Martin, Barbara Judy and John Allard, Mary Isbell and Gerard Coursey.

GOV. CLEMENT SHELTER

The trip to Gov. Clement on Saturday, Dec. 17th, gave us our first real winter hike of the season. A recent snow storm had left a generous covering on the ground and in some shady spots along the road the trees were beautifully etched with white.

We left our car at the crossroad and enjoyed a good hike to the camp. No one brought snowshoes but we found that while not a necessity they could have been used for the last part of the trip.

At the last farmhouse a very well-mannered dog (German Shepard we thought) joined the party and spent the day with us, appearing to enjoy the outing as much as we did.

Arrived at Gov. Clement we found a good supply of wood and fires were soon going in both the stove and the fireplace. A cold wind made the two fires especially welcome. With these plus a "tarp" hung up in front to break the wind the shelter made a very cozy place for lunch.

After being well fed and thoroughly toasted we started the return trip. The attendance on this outing was rather small due possibly to the nearness of the Christmas season. All present however agreed it was an enjoyable day and it certainly provided relaxation in preparation for the busy holidays ahead.

MOONLIGHT HIKE

by Mary Isbel

Only the moon was missing, otherwise our after dark excursion to our mountain shelter fulfilled our fondest expectations. The weather was warm for this time of year (lucky for us members who tried snowshoes for the first time). Experts fastened us to the snowshoes and rescued us from time to time whenever we lost one shoe and sank into the cold snow.

There is a wonderful stillness about a winter night here. One is filled with a sense of solitude and grandeur that is only slightly erased by voices or the sight of a flashlight far ahead.

Once we reached the shelter we were very cozy especially after the wood in the stove was persuaded to burn. The soft cheerful glow of candles lit our feast of doughnuts and coffee. We waited for moonrise but in vain as by then the sky had clouded over. However, it was a beautiful night just as it was.

FROM THE TUCKER REGISTER

Looking over the Tucker register, while waiting for snow to change to hot water for coffee, we were interested to note how general was the comment "found the camp a mess". One such entry especially intrigued us. Two boys recorded that they came in to look the place over as a possible spot for a party. (they didn't say what kind) They decided it was unsuitable as it needed a good cleaning. Apparently cleaning it up never occurred to them. Most of the groups, however, did report some cleaning up activities.

Congratulations to whomever left the excellent diagram and set of instructions for use of the so-called stove. Might it have been Ben Rolston?

And speaking of the Tucker stove, it was the unanimous opinion that a new stove for there should have top priority in our 1961 Budget.

DON'T FORGET!

Your presence is earnestly desired at Killington Section's

Vol. 14 No. 2 KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB March-April 1961

TIME: Sat. March 4, 9:00 A.M.
PLACE: Stonybrook Shelter

Tired of being cooped-up all winter? Get out your hiking boots and come help us find Stonybrook shelter. We've tried twice before, but this time we'll find it. Leaving Meldon at time specified.

TIME: Sun. March 19, 10:00 A.M.
PLACE: Tucker Lodge

This is a good hike for everyone even the little ones. It may turn out to be somewhat of a work party, if the new stove comes. A group will leave from Meldon around 10, but come any time in your own car.

TIME: Sun. April 9, 6-00 P.M.
PLACE: Maple Sugar Party at Vera Perkins' house.

The annual Sugar-on-Snow party will be held at 242 So. Main St. Call PR 3-2941 for reservations before Friday, April 7th. The only hiking necessary for this event is up Vera Perkins' stairs. Eats consist of maple sugar on snow with all the trimmings - pickles, doughnuts, coffee and nice folks.

TIME: Sat. April 22, 1000 A.M.
PLACE: Bald Mountain and Red Rocks.

Here's the first Spring hike. Should be a good one. Up the mountain and maybe lunch-on-the rocks.

TIME: Sun. May 7, 10:00 A.M.
PLACE: Mount Hanley

Bring your binoculars and telescopes along, as Mt. Hanley is supposed to have a beautiful view. It is in West Rutland, and we will leave at 10:00 - promptly.

HIKE SCHEDULES ARE ENCLOSED

Watch the time.

Be careful you aren't left behind.

Groups will leave Meldon School at the hours given above.

Bring yourself to the Maple Sugar Party. It's in town. Pack a lunch for all the hikes unless we announce that refreshments will be provided.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Killing-ton Section of the Green Mountain Club was held on Thurs., Jan. 19 at the Central Vermont Public Service Building.

After a short informal visiting period, President Bennett Bell called the meeting to order at 8 P.M.

The following committee reports were given:

Publicity: Jack Martin

Outings: Craigie Perkins

Trails & Shelters: Churchill Scott

The overall picture of our section looks very good. The bridge at Mill River will be the first job for Spring work parties.

The following officers were elected:

President: Raymond Catozzi

Vice-President: Harold Valiquette

Secy.-Treas.: Churchill Scott.

A vote of thanks was given to Eleanor Walker for the fifteen years of faithful service she has given as Secretary-Treasurer.

A resolution to change the manner of appointing Trustees was discussed, but we came to the conclusion that the present method is best.

After the meeting, Dr. J. D. Schultz, who lives in Ludlow, gave a talk on the two years he spent in Alaska as a member of the U.S. Public Health Service. The talk and the slides were enjoyed by everyone. Coffee, pie, cake and samples of smoked salmon, which Dr. Schultz brought from Alaska, were served later.

We wish to thank Vera Perkins and her helpers for making our evening so enjoyable.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING

An Executive Board meeting was held at Craigie Perkins' on Feb. 8, Craigie, Mary and Vera Perkins, Janet Martin, Mary Isbell, Harold Valiquette, Ray Catozzi and Churchill Scott were present.

Janet Martin gave up her job as Editor of Smoke and Blazes because of her many other responsibilities. She will serve as our reporter for Long Trail News. Mary Isbell will be the new Editor. Judy and Barbara Allard are Assistant Editors.

The following Budget was drawn up: "Smoke and Blazes"	$ 30.00

Schedules	20.00
Pictures	4.00
Outings	5.00
Postage	2.00
Fire Insurance	20.00
G.M.C. Dues	30.00
Trails and Shelters	485.00
Total --	$596.00

Mr. Lincoln Isham donated $100.00 in honor of his great-grandfather, Abraham Lincoln, on Feb. 12th to be used as we think best. A discussion was held to see if a fund for trail and shelter maintenance could be started with a portion of this generous gift.

The outings for the Spring and Summer weekends were chosen, and the new schedule is included in this issue of "Smoke and Blazes". We decided that the annual sugar party would be held as usual.

TRAILS AND SHELTERS

The Trails and Shelters Committee must again remind each and every member that the condition of our section of the Long Trail depends upon the willingness of each one of us to help maintain and improve it.

The following work parties are planned: March 11 - Buffum

March 25 - Sunnyside

April 15 - Gov. Clement

April 29 - Clarendon

Any folks able to help can contact Churchill Scott at PR 5-5720 for details.

ATTENTION WINTER HIKERS!

Mr. George R. Ellwood, 61 Baxter St., Tel. PR 3-8521 has a brand new pair of Tubbs snowshoes with harnesses for sale at a reasonable price.

SUNNYSIDE HIKE
By
Churchill Scott

On a sub-zero morning in the middle of Jan., a small group of G.M.C. hikers made the regular winter hike to Sunnyside.

We had visions of a cold windy day, but after leaving our car at the iron bridge, putting on our packs and starting up the hill, we warmed up fast. The group was very congenial. We put on our snowshoes near Spring Lake Ranch and soon reached Sunnyside - too soon for me.

The sun broke through, scattering the storm clouds, and the temperature rose quickly. The camp was found to be in good condition with all the windows intact and a good supply of firewood.

Everything seemed to work in our favor that day. We all enjoyed a nice snug camp, good food and pleasant company. It was hard to leave, but more fun was in store for us as we slid down the hills, bouncing off banks every once in a while.

We all agreed that it would be good to see more folks interested in coming out every other week to enjoy the fresh air, blue sky and bright sunshine of a cool winter day.

CLARENDON LODGE
By

Barbara and Judy Allard

On a beautiful day with clean fresh snow and a blue sky, only six people came to snowshoe into Clarendon Lodge. Arriving at the start of the trail, we found someone had broken it for us. We made several stops for photographs before we got to the camp. Ben Ralston and two friends had spent the night there. They had the fire going and the camp all warmed up. On went the coffee pot, and we were ready to eat. Just as we were starting, a group came in from Springfield - and then another party of six! Now the eating got a little crowded.

After lunch, some of us took a walk up the road. There, we found many animal tracks. The greens, browns and blues of the trees against the dazzling snow made us want to stay there a few weeks.

When we got back to the shelter for a final cup of coffee, a party of five - and then another couple - arrived. This was a grand total of thirty for the day!

Though a few others claimed to have found the lodge messy, we found it clean and, of course kept it that way.

WINTER WEEKEND
By

Betty Weeks and Frances Roberts

On a spring-like day in Feb., three carloads of Springfield GMC-ers arrived at Tell Timber for the long awaited Winter Weekend. We were met by the hospitable Perkins family and other Killington Section members who already had lunch started. We pulled our sleeping gear on toboggans through the melting snow, around the pond, to the log cabins in the beautiful evergreen woods. By the time we were settled and had fires going to warm the cabins, it was time to return to the farm house for delicious beef stew.

During the afternoon, one group snowshoed into Tucker returning late with two puppies which had hitchhiked on their snowshoes for the last three miles. Others tobogganed, skied and snowshoed on forest trails or told stories around the wood stove in the comfortable farm house living room. By mid-afternoon, about 40 had arrived to enjoy the Winter Weekend - groups coming from Worcester, Mass., Schenectady, N.Y., Springfield, Vt. and, of course, Rutland.

After enjoying Craigie Perkins' Long Trail slides during the evening, we groped our way by flashlight through the drizzle up to our cabins. Exhausted after a day in the out-of-doors, we crawled into our sleeping bags. The crashing of pots and pans and ski poles jolted us out of our deep sleep, and we found our temporary clothes line, fixed for drying mittens and socks, had collapsed. We rose in time for the 7:30 breakfast. The weather had cleared up enough for us to take some pictures before going home.

Dicky Roberts gave the version of the younger set this way:

"This year's Winter Weekend, an experience shared by about 35 people and two D.P. canines, will probably be remembered by me primarily because of the things I'd rather forget, namely, wet feet, a cold night, and bad weather. Not that I didn't have a nice time! When 35 people get together, there is combined friendliness and warmth that can dry even my feet and disperse any rain-cloud".

ABOUT FOLKS WE KNOW

Congratulations to Cecile and Emile Boselli on the birth of a son, Kevin Emile, born Jan. 29, 1961. The Boselli's, who formerly lived in Rutland, built the suspension bridge in Clarendon. They now live in Ohio but are still members of G.M.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Bell are the proud grandparents of little Anne Marie Daley, born Tuesday, Feb. 21, 1961. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Daley of Bennington.

SMOKE & BLAZES

Vol. 14 No. 3 KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB May-June 1961

Sat. May 20 - MT. AEOLUS, Dorset (Formerly Green Peak)

Mt. Aeolus is a good hike for anyone interested in caves. There are also a few old quarries to look into. If you intend to go into the cave, bring a warm jacket, as it is rather chilly in there. Leaving Meldon at nine. Come help us look for spring flowers.

Sat. May 27 - ANNUAL MEETING

Our Annual Meeting will be held at the Long Trail Lodge, starting with a coffee hour at ten A.M. The general meeting starts at eleven and runs to about twelve. The Lodge will then serve lunch to anyone who wishes it. After lunch, another meeting will be held until two o'clock. Then the trustees will meet in the Chalet, and all others are free to explore the woods and trails around there.

The evening meal will be served at six, and if you can't make it, try to get to the surprise entertainment after dinner. Come and see how things are doing in the G.M.C.

Sun. May 28 - PICO CAMP

The Club has a nice new camp on Pico. If you haven't seen it, why not come and look things over. Pico has some beautiful views, and the one from the camp is well worth the climb. We'll be leaving Meldon School at nine. Come and join us.

Sun. June 11 - LITTLE ROCK POND

Leaving at nine. We'll head on for one of the favorite trips. The first swimming hike of the season (if you're brave). If not, you can always wade or watch.

Sat. & Sunday June 24 & 25 - CAMEL'S HUMP

This is a go-as-you-please type hike. You can go Sat. and stay over night in one of the camps or just go for one day. Camel's Hump has one of the most beautiful views in the state (or so I hear). Chances are we'll meet some other sections. Plan to come.

Sat. July 8 - DORSET PEAK

Dorset Peak is a first time hike. Cancelled last year. We should have a good time exploring. Who knows what we'll find? So be ready to leave Meldon at eight.

NOTICE: LAST ISSUE sent to 1960 members. Please send your $2.00 membership dues for 1961 to C. W. Scott, 132 Maple St. Rutland, Vt. if you wish to receive forthcoming issues of "Smoke & Blazes".

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Green Mountain Club is scheduled this year for Sat., May 27. I would like to take this opportunity to urge all Killington Section members who are able to attend this meeting, to do so.

Of particular interest to us all will be the voting on proposed changes in the by-laws concerning the election of trustees. These proposed changes were discussed at the annual meeting of the Killington Section held last January, at the written request of G.M.C. President Don Kent. There, a resolution was passed stating our desire to leave the election of trustees as it has been in the past - that is, elected at large from no particular section. A draft of these proposed changes will appear in the May issue of Long Trail News, so all will have an opportunity to study their pros and cons. If it was your desire last January to leave these by-laws as they are, and if you still feel this way after reading and studying the proposed changes in the News, then you should, by all means, attend this GMC annual meeting May 27th and vote for the status quo.

In past years the Killington Section attendance at the annual GMC meetings has been far from satisfactory, considering the proximity of the meeting place - the Long Trail Lodge. So let us make a mark on our calendar and reserve May 27 for this all important meeting.

There will also be time for short hikes in the immediate area following the afternoon session. Dinner in the Long Trail Lodge dining room, and entertainment in the evening will complete the day. Killington Section will host a hike to Pico Lodge on Sunday, May 28th. See you there!

Ray Catozzi, President
Killington Section

TRAILS AND SHELTERS

The Trails and Shelters Committee has been quite active for the past two months. Ben Ralston has spent a number of weekends working on the trail. So far, he has completely covered the section from the upper Cold River road south to the Gulf Road.

The following are work parties scheduled May through July.

Sat. - May 13	Sun. - June 18
Sun. - May 21	Sun. - July 2
Sun. - May 28
Sat. - June 3

We wish to thank all who have taken part in the past work parties and hope more of you will join us when warm weather comes. Contact W. Churchill Scott. Phone 5-5720 for more complete information.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING

This month's executive meeting was held at Craigie Perkins' house. President Ray Catozzi announced that Jack Martin had added 15 new slides to the Killington Section collection, bringing it to a total of 55. The Trail was reported to be in good condition. Clarendon bridge is scheduled to be repaired, April 29th, if all goes well. The location of Buffum Shelter is still to be decided. Craigie Perkins will handle the purchase of lumber for this new shelter, and a new stove is in cold storage until the time Buffum Lodge is completed. The damage at Cooper Lodge was discussed, and a trip to White Rocks was suggested as an Autumn hike.

Membership was reported to have fallen short of the 1960 total. A committee was formed to phone delinquent members.

STONEY BROOK SHELTER TRIP

By Craigie Perkins

Well, we "dood it!" After failing on two previous occasions to locate the Stoney Brook Shelter, we finally found it. It must have been sitting right there all the time.

Of course, the Perennial Pessimist was sure we wouldn't get within miles of the place, but we paid no attention to him.

Bare ground in Rutland, and when we loaded snowshoes into the car, Doc. Beale raised both eyebrows. However, there was still snow in them thar hills.

The road up Stoney Brook was in very good condition. No snow, and not thawed enough to be muddy. We drove in about three miles and then took to the snowshoes.

We reached No Town and decided which of four roads was the most likely route. In about a quarter of a mile we came to another clearing and had to choose between two roads. While discussing the situation, somebody glanced around, and there in the bushes was the long sought shelter. "You can't miss it".

We found a lot of dry wood, and soon coffee water was hot. Later, Churchill Scott got out his trusty saw and we worked up some more fire wood. Not satisfied with this exertion, he then read to us from a book about the history of Pittsford and we voted "yes".

We had just returned to the cars when who should arrive but President Catozzi. Ray said, "Well, it was a nice day for a ride anyway".

TUPPER - OOP! - TUCKER

By
W. Churchill Scott

The main purpose of this hike was to carry a new stove into the shelter, but that failed to arrive on time (it arrived the following day). Nevertheless we had a very good sized group to help with the other repairs.

It was good to see Fred Field, who brought part of his Scout Troop. There were also some Cub Scouts. Seventeen hikers in all.

After a good hot meal, the window frames were repaired, and plans were made to do extensive repairs to the floor and foundation as soon as the snow disappears.

Two of the more hardy souls snowshoed over the Blue Trail to the Elbow Road and down to meet the returning cars, bringing to a close a very enjoyable winter outing.

SUGAR-ON-SNOW PARTY

By
Florence Van Wyck

On Sunday, April 9th, the annual Sugar-On-Snow party was again held on the third floor of Vera Perkins' home.

Some thirty members and guests of all ages gathered together to partake of the sugar-on-snow, pickles, doughnuts and coffee.

The boiled syrup and steaming hot coffee were served by several willing volunteers, and soon everyone was relaxed and enjoying the feast.

We girls enjoyed the many interesting dolls and other toys Vera and Amy played with as little girls.

We would like to take the opportunity to thank all those who helped make this party a success, particularly Vera and Amy Perkins.

BALD MT. and RED ROCKS

By
Vera Perkins

Where were you all on Saturday April 22nd? Since you weren't with us for this early Spring hike, we will take you along now.

Here we are, all four of us, at Meldon School at 10 A.M.

As there is still enough snow on the mountains to make difficult walking, we decide on a change from the planned route. Instead of going to Bald Mountain, down over Red Rocks to the old Girl Scout Camp, we will drive to the cement bridge on Cold River and follow the old road all the way.

This is an interesting road, as it goes up in easy stages toward the foot of the mountain. As we follow along around the mountain, we find frequent forks in the road where we must make a choice.

Now lunch time is approaching, so we find a sheltered spot, hang the tarp between two trees on the windward side and make our campfire. Soon we are enjoying coffee and sandwiches.

After lunch, we again take to the road which, suprisingly enough, is clear of snow and dry. We hear the sound of water, and looking down from the top of the steep bank, we are following along, we catch glimpses of the river rushing along far below us.

Comes 3 P.M., and we still have not reached our objective. Perhaps we made a wrong chice at one of the road branches. Opinion is divided. Shall we go on further or turn back now?

Finally it is decided that one of the party will wait here for half an hour while the others who wish to go on will see where 15 minutes further advance brings them. Three of us take off at a fast pace and, sure enough, in just 15 minutes, we are opposite the Girl Scout Camp entrance.

Now, at a somewhat slower pace, we are returning. Taking the wrong branch at one fork, we almost pass by our waiting companion.

The return trip is made without incident. Even the rain obligingly holds off.

It is 5:45 P.M., and we are back in Rutland after a relaxing and rewarding day. Now aren't you sorry you didn't come along?

Vol. 14 No. 4 KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB July-Aug. 1961

Sat. July 29 - PLEIAD LAKE

Our group will be leaving from Meldon School at ten Saturday morning for Lake Pleiad. The lake is a good place for sunning and swimming. The trip may also include a stop-off at Texas Falls, a favorite we have not visited in some years. Come along and bring your swim-suit.

Meanwhile, don't forget to make plans for attending the Intersectional. Details ~~in next issue.~~ enclosed.

Sun. Aug. 13 - WALLINGFORD POND

Next trip is to Wallingford Pond, otherwise known as Spectacle Pond. We'll be leaving Meldon about ten o'clock. This is the last on the current schedule of hikes. A new schedule is forthcoming. Hope to see you soon.

ANNUAL MEETING

Following a coffee hour, the annual meeting of Green Mountain Club was called to order May 27, 1961 at 11:05 A.M. at the Long Trail Lodge by President Don Kent. Reports of the various sections were read, and accounts of activities and trail conditions were given. The rebuilding of Mad Tom Shelter, vandalism in the Burlington Section, and the Intersectional Outing at Camp Plymouth were discussed, and appropriate plans were made to take care of these things.

John Vondell reported that the official count of End-to-Enders is now at 107.

After lunch the meeting was reconvened at 2:00 P.M. Ted Goddard reported for the Trust Fund Commission. The main theme was the renewal of the Trust Fund Contract for a period of 10 years. Mr. Stevens invited the G.M.C. to host the Appalachian Trail Conference in Manchester in 1964. Craigie Perkins will assist Mr. Cleveland of Randolph in establishing a new Randolph Section of G.M.C.

The nominating committee, headed by John Vondell, proposed the following names of members who were elected to the respective offices:

Trustees: (5) Roy Buchanan
Harlan Farnsworth
Miss Marion Hardy
William Bartlett
Raymond Catozzi
Clerk - Don Kent
Corresp. Sec. Miss Minerva Hinchey

After much discussion, the proposed changes in the by-laws regarding the election of trustees were passed and will go into effect Jan. 1, 1962.

Two excellent programs of slides and motion pictures were presented in the afternoon and after dinner.

TRUSTEES MEETING

The Trustees Meeting of the Green Mountain Club Inc. was called to order at 4:20 P.M., following the annual meeting, by retiring President Don Kent.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President	John Vondell
Vice President	Ben Rolston
Treasurer	Ted Goddard
Auditor	H. Gale Spaulding

Next, repairs and improvements of various shelters were discussed.

Retiring President Don Kent then turned the symbol of office, the gavel, over to incoming President John Vondell, who adjourned the meeting at 5:30 P.M.

PICO HIKE

What a beautiful day for a hike! And what a contrast to Sat's. weather! The activities were even more interesting than usual. One group went up the chair lift which Mr. Smith ran especially for them. Another took a new stove up to Cooper Lodge on Killington Peak and cleared the trail on the way back. A few people went all the way to the tower and visited with the new Fire Warden. The rest just hiked. And what fun they had!

Craigie Perkins was host at the Tall Timbers Camp for visitors who stayed overnight for this hike.

LITTLE ROCKY POND

This was a trip through Mudville following a week of rainy weather. Two of us silly females wore old worn-out footwear because our new hiking shoes were too nice and shiney to soil just yet. Ofcourse the clod-hoppers sank before long. Somehow we lost them and had to wallow barefoot in the bog to retrieve them. Eleanor Walker walked ahead and told us when to leave the trail and where the dry ground was. The Martins carried their baby and their little girl through it all.

Little Rocky Pond was unusually beautiful and in the most lovely stage of Spring. But alas! some careless outlander had burnt the front logs of the shelter when he had evidently moved the outdoor fireplace inside (under the roof of the shelter) and had built a fire during a storm. Fortunately this shelter is maintained by the Forestry Service. Jack Martin moved the fireplace back where it belongs.

The return trip was easy hiking. We kept meeting more members who got a late start. Two coeds from College were with our group. They were here working with the children in our hospital as part of their practice teaching program.

C.V. CAMP OUTING

The law of averages finally caught up with the Chittenden Pond Outing, and for the first time, the weather was uncooperative for our day at the C.V. camp. The skies were dark and overcast, and mist hung low on the mountains for most of the day.

A family party from Pennsylvania, father and three sons, joined us for a short time in the morning. Their original plan was to get to the Long Trail and spend most of the day hiking, but the dubious weather caused them to decide to investigate activities at Killington Basin instead.

Mary and Craigie Perkins arrived in time to eat their lunch with us, and, taking a short breather from business at Tall Timber, stayed to relax and chat a while before the fire.

Late in the afternoon "The Martins" and "The Hudsons" (their Sunday company from UVM Summer School), came in, bringing their picnic supper. Before supper, however, the really young set, taking advantage of a few minutes of (almost sun), indulged in the only swimming of the day. The water was warm, but a chilly wind made the fire doubly welcome after their dip.

After supper the families piled into their cars for the trip back to Summer School, and we closed camp.

Thus ended another GMC outing, rather different than our others at Chittenden Pond, but a pleasant one nevertheless.

Other hikes previously scheduled were canceled.

SWINGING BRIDGE

After a span of over two years the Trails and Shelters Committee can report that the bridge over Mill River has been repaired.

Ray Catozzi, George Reynolds, and Churchill Scott worked one full weekend in helping George Holden and Donald Schmidt cut cable, remove broken suspenders, level up the cat-walk, and tighten up the various fasteners.

Now we feel that even the most timid can walk over this bridge and feel secure in the knowledge that it will not collapse while he takes the next step.

WORK PARTIES

The Trails and Shelters Committee has only had two work parties since the last report. Bill Mitchell and Churchill Scott spent a very pleasant Sunday cleaning trail from Governor Clement shelter north toward Killington Peak. About one mile of trail was taken care of, brush clipped, blow-downs cut out, and arrows replaced.

During the next week Ray Catozzi and Churchill Scott spent an afternoon working the the same spot. At this time a steady two hours was spent, and then, when it was time to return, it took only seven minutes to cover the length of trail that was improved. One can see how many man hours of hard work it will take to cover the 4.1 miles of trail between Cooper Lodge and Gov. Clement Shelter. This is the part of our trail the Killington Section is responsible for keeping in A-1 condition.

In spite of the numerous work parties listed in "Smoke and Blazes" only three members spent any time attending these. It seems very hard to believe that out of about 70 members we are unable to get more than 3 people to show the GMC what we can do to make the Intersection an enjoyable one from a hiking standpoint. Ben Ralston deserves a vote of thanks for all he has done in addition to all the other parts of trail he has worked on this season.

Ben has also prepared very detailed instructions on how to reach Baker Peak, via a new trail he has cut from the U.S.F.S. Lake Trail to Griffith Lake below Denby. He has also made some forms to report recent trail and camp conditions. If anyone is anxious to have these two items contact Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt.

FOLKS WE KNOW

We have received word of the birth of a son, Mark William, to Dr. and Mrs. William E. Allard of Crow Agency, Montana. Dr. Allard is a former GMC'er.

W. Churchill Scott received an award from the American Red Cross for giving 50 pints of blood over a period of time. Congratulations also on your new son, Kim Shappy Scott, Churchill.

In case you didn't know, Barbara Allard and Miriam, Rachel and Charlotte Bell are exhibiting their paintings at the Rutland Museum of the Arts, July 16 - Aug. 13.

GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB INTERSECTIONAL WEEK-ECHO LAKE, TYSON, VERMONT

THE TIME-Monday, August 28 through Monday, September 4, 1961.

THE PLACE The Calvin Coolidge Council, Boy Scouts of America, has kindly given us the use of facilities of Camp Plymouth, on the east side of Echo Lake in Tyson, Vt. (1 mile from village center and store). Facilities include large meeting hall, piped mountain spring water, 14 open front shelters, and a babbling mountain stream near some of the camp sites. Camp reservation is 265 acres with trails to nearby hills. Good beaches and swimming, boats and raft. Ample area for tents. This camp does not have cook houses like last year, so campers should come prepared to cook on their own stoves, or on small open fires. We will furnish dry wood.

ACTIVITIES-Lots of fun for all ages. Hiking, camping, swimming, boating, loafing, swapping hiking experiences, badminton, ping pong, and whatever else you like. We are planning on hikes to Mt. Killington, Mt. Okemo, a day on the LONG TRAIL near Cold River and south to Clarendon Camp and Gorge. A day around Plymouth and the new Coolidge Cheese Factory. At one time gold was mined in this area, so we plan to explore for some by panning in local streams.

AFTER SUPPER GET-TOGETHER-We plan to meet each evening in the large new dining hall or outside for a campfire at the Council Ring. We will have singing, story telling, and movies, both educational, and entertaining. A special surprise colored slide showing, by one of our good members. One night will be "Show Your Best Slides Nite". Will each of you "Shutterbugs" bring 10 or 12 of your choice slides of outdoor life, and we will have a projector and screen ready to show them. Musical talent will be appreciated too, so bring your instruments.

FOR CAMPING-Bring your own food, eating and cooking utensils, hiking and camping clothes, swim suits, bedding, and tents. There will be 14 shelters which sleep 5 comfortably. Please write Robert Humes, 50 Miles St., Millbury, Mass., to reserve shelter. Bring stove, or fireplace grate, and camp refrigerator. Food stores are in Tyson or Ludlow, (5 miles).

COST TO YOU-A charge of 50¢ per person/night or $1.00 per family per night, or $5.00 for whole week per family.

HOW YOU GET TO CAMP-Camp is located one mile northeast of Tyson just off Route 100 5 miles north of Ludlow, Vt. Ludlow and Route 100 from southeast or north is reached best via Route 103. New York or Conn. folks will find Route 7 north to Wallingford Vt. then east on 140 to Route 103 best. As you approach Tyson look for Echo Lake Inn at center, and cross the cement bridge to the east. This road with one left turn will take you to camp area. Be on lookout for G.M.C. signs.

SMOKE & BLAZES

Vol. 14, No. 5 KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB Sept.-Oct. 1961

Sat. Sept. 16 - BAKER PEAK

This week we try a new trail. Ben Rolston did the heavy job of making and blazing it. Now it needs to be packed down. Ben also made a map with very good directions, and they say that there is a good view. So bring the binoculars! Leaving Meldon at 9 o'clock and we hope to see you all.

Sun. Oct. 1 - MENDON PEAK

This promises to be a long (around eight miles) rugged hike. We will start at Clement Shelter and go to Consultation Point. There we will leave the trail and follow the height of land west. Should be exciting. Take a light pack and meet us at Meldon at nine o'clock. Total hike - about eight miles. Should try to learn the story of Consultation Point.

Sat. Oct. 14 - MOUNT AEOLEUS

Wear old clothes and bring a flashlight if you have any intention of exploring the cave on the mountain. There are old quarries to look into also. This will be a nice easy hike of not more than four miles. Leave at nine o'clock.

Sat. Oct. 21 - CALLING ALL RUMMAGE

Now is the time to go through those closets, cupboards, attics, etc. to collect any and all items you have no use for which could be donated to our Rummage Sale.

Remember, this is our one big money making event for the year, and its success depends on you.

This year we have a change of location, as the Neighborhood Rooms are no longer available. We expect to have the use of the former Adams & Noe store, corner of State and Grove Sts. This should be an excellent location, being near the parking lot and with good show windows to afford additional publicity. With all this, we might even top last year's record!

As usual, we will be on hand all day Friday, Oct. 20th, to receive your donations and get things organized and priced. The change of location will make some additional problems in preparations, so we will need plenty of help. Anyone who can give some assistance please contact Vera, Mary, or Crague Perkins.

Remember that dishes, household equipment, nic-nacs and so on are good sellers as well as clothing and such items as bedspreads, curtains etc.

Proceeds of the sale will go toward the expense of rebuilding Buffum. The lumber for this is already on hand, and we hope the shelter will be built this fall.

All together now, let's have the cooperation we had last year and we can't miss!

Sat. Oct. 28 - COVERED DISH
SUPPER - BEECHWOOD

This year we have an addition to the supper - an afternoon hike. A group will leave Beechwood about 2 PM for "The Bump". If you don't know where that is, come early and find out.

You'll be back in time for supper, naturally. We will have a large selection of good food to appease your appetite. After supper, there will be an entertainment.

Call Vera Perkins for reservations by Thursday, Oct. 26th. Her number is PR 3-2941. Supper at six-thirty. See you there!

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING

The Executive Board of the Killington Section held a meeting recently at Tall Timbers. Ray Catozzi, Crague, Mary and Vera Perkins, Eleanor Walker, Barbara Allard and Churchill Scott spent a very pleasant evening around the fire at the Perkins' cottage.

The construction of the new camp at Buffum was the most important subject covered. Ray has received permission from the owners of the land. Crague has ordered the lumber, and construction will start as soon as possible. After much controversy during the past year, it was finally decided to build it in the same location.

The fall and winter schedule of activities was drawn up, and the meeting came to a close as the last of the dying embers of our fire faded into the darkness. We all agreed that membership in the Killington Section becomes more enjoyable each year.

WORK PARTIES

There have been a number of trail cleaning work parties during the past month, so now we can say our section is in good condition. Ben Rolston has finished from Gov. Clement Shelter to the Gulf Road. The other have gotten the rest of our section cut out and cleared.

Now we are all looking forward to building a new closed camp at Buffum. This will add another snug, warm camp to visit while the cold winter winds blow.

INTERSECTIONAL DOINGS By Ann Reynolds

If the rest of the 1961 Intersectional was as full of fun and friendliness as the last two days, which we attended, we know everyone must have enjoyed it. The setting on Echo Lake, with its many trees and surrounding mountains, was beautiful, and the facilities of the Boy Scout camp were excellent. Many members worked hard to provide an outstanding program to make everyone comfortable.

A grand total of 177 were registered during the eight days, with 37 members-at-large accounting for the largest number. Burlington Section with 31 and Killington Section with 28, were two of the largest groups.

On Sunday, campers had a choice of several scheduled hikes, as they had throughout the week. Ben Royston led a group to Baker Peak and hiked out along the Long Trail while the less ambitious visited a nearby abandoned gold mine. Two tardy 'day-ers' spent the whole afternoon at Plymouth and did not reach the camp until after dark.

Sunday night the new Memorial Hall dining room was again the gathering place for singing and slides. Terry Gulick, who works at the Coolidge cheese factory in Plymouth, read an interesting article about the gold mining in that area. The previous night John Vondell had shown some of his favorite slides - his work often appears in "Vermont Life".

Swimming in the lake was always an attraction, especially when hikers came down from the Trail, hot and dusty. And GMC'ers were always ready for impromptu pranks-- as on Monday morning, when a group decided to give Larry Dean the "cold water treatment", because he had waked them up every other morning. Larry foiled their plans, however, by crawling out of his tent just as they started to drip water on him. Practical joker Don Kent was continually thinking up tricks, such as substituting raw eggs for hard-cooked ones in his tentmate's trail lunch, and putting coconuts in sleeping bags.

No hikes were scheduled for Monday, because people were leaving throughout the day, but a group of us did make the trip to the gold mine. No gold on this trip, but there was talk of the GMC's "gold reserve" -- a few flecks in a bottle -- which had been gathered on an earlier panning expedition.

The Martins had come over for the day, after spending four days camping here earlier in the week, and we joined them for a swim. When we left late in the afternoon, Chairman Bob Humes, Roy and Mrs. Buchanan and Don Kent and others remained to do the cleanup work.

Once again we were impressed by the easygoing friendliness and helpfulness of GMC members and by the fact that the Club's activities are enjoyed by so many of all ages and varied occupations.

WALLINGFORD POND
By Florence Van Wyck

On Sunday, the 13th of August some 23 people met at Meldon School. We were happy to see Ella and Hans Fritsch Killington Section members from Copiague, N.Y., who were vacationing at Tall Timber. We hadn't seen them since last Aug. at Chittenden Pond. Hans brought along his telescope which he set up. This aided him in observing any birds and wild life which might be around.

It was a clear, cool day, for a change, and we drove to Wallingford, turned off Route 7 at Wallingford Inn and up 140. Instead of turning to the White Rocks picnic area, we followed the road up Sugar Hill beyond the Cemetery until we came to a sign marked "2 miles to Wallingford Pond". Next, we turned right and followed that road until we couldn't drive any farther, so we parked and hiked the rest of the way, - a good 2 miles.

Arriving at our destination, we were met by two interesting fishermen who had brought their boat, food, etc. by truck all the way to the pond. (Later when ready to leave, some of us were lucky enough to ride on the back of their truck to our cars. What a ride!)

When an interesting spot was found, a fire was started with one match and no paper. In the meantime Churchill Scott went by boat with our two fishermen clear to the other side of the pond for water, and since he was quite a while, we thought the water was being boiled.

After he returned, we were anxious to settle down to the enjoyment of a meal, rest and chatter. We shared our fire with the helpful fishermen whose pithy wit added zest to the occasion.

When our energies had been revived we walked around the pond enjoying the many interesting things along the way, especially the wild flowers of the following varieties: Queen Ann's Lace, Indian Pipe, etc.

Vol. 14, No. 6 KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB Nov. Dec. 1961

Sun. Nov. 12 - MT. HANLEY

One of our newer hikes in recent years. Those who have been there before enjoyed it very much. In case you don't know, Mt. Hanley is located west of West Rutland. At 10:30 we will leave Meldon. Come have lunch with us.

Sun. Nov. 26 - PICO COMP

The group will be leaving at nine o'clock on a fall trip to Pico Peak and Lodge. We always have a good time here, even if you take a nap after lunch. Anyway bring your family, friends and otherwise and come along.

Sat. Dec. 16 - GOV. CLEMENT
SHELTER

Time to start checking the shelters before winter. This time bring something to cook instead of a sandwich. See if you can cook a steak or maybe bacon outdoors. Get the idea? See you at ten.

Sat. Dec. 30 - BUFFUM LODGE

This is the first scheduled hike to our newest camp. If you haven't gotten there by now it's time you did. Take time off from the mad holiday dash and come relax with us for a while (You may need a breath of fresh air by now, it's very restful). Leaving at ten from Meldon, but you are welcome to come anytime.

Sun. Jan. 7 - SUNNYSIDE CAMP

Break out the snowshoes and skis. Bring a sled or toboggan along if you like to slide. It's Sunnyside this trip. Hope for lots of snow and sun and come along at ten.

BAKER PEAK
By Crague Perkins

Wherezat?

This was a new one on our schedule and should be repeated soon.

Equipped with Ben Ralston's step by step instructions, we set out up the Lake Trail from Danby. The weather was fine, and we took the time to visit the lookout on a short branch trail.

The brook was reached at mealtime, the coffee pot was put on the fire, and hikers did a little cooking over the grate provided by Churchill Scott. What, no sink? Fried peppers flavored with forest herbs. Yum! Yum! Someone suggested that we ought to have an honest-to-goodness cook out sometime. We have gotten too much into the sandwich habit.

After lunch, we set off up the new Baker Peak Trail. The going was easy along a terrace, but then the trail climbed to another terrace and led around the shoulder of the mountain. Very soon we came out on an open ledge on the west side of the peak. The rock was of an interesting formation, being much wrinkled and broken. We pursued a very large porcupine which ran very slowly. We ran very rapidly but the porcupine escaped. Mystery.

Baker Peak, situated just east and far above the village of Danby gives views equal to those from Equinox. Most of the peaks from Bloodroot to Stratton were visible. Dorset Peak, just opposite, reminded us of our much scheduled and much postponed trip to its summit.

After a couple of hours in the sun, we registered in Ben's mailbox and returned to the cars. A fine new trip to a scenic spot. Thank you! Ben, for discovering and building this train.

GOV. CLEMENT TO GIRL SCOUT CAMP

By Susan Tarbell

The mountains rolled in the distance
The birds beneath us flew
And God was in His heaven
As we looked at his world anew.

We walked and walked along the trail
Until we reached Four Brooks
And there we sat and ate and talked
For no one had brought any books.

Some opened a can of sardines
And some a can of pop
The sardines didn't have a key
And the pop it wouldn't stop.

By then it was getting close to twelve
So again we hit the trail
And walked the county up and down
Where beauty did prevail.

But then at the point consultation
We departed from the trail
Our navigator fixed his compass
And we settled down for travail.

We first went up Little Killington
Three times we did it, no less
The views were quite satisfactory
The footing was not of the best.

Then past the thick pines of the summit
Down into the slash underneath
The walking was very bouncy
The air was still cool and smelled sweet.

Soon we went off that nice broad trail
And into the marsh beyond
And followed there the ridge to the west
'On to Mendon' was our song.

Then on with our packs and down we went Down four foot, six foot or two
I tried not to step on the hands of my friends
But my feet were lost in green stew!

Then down to the relative flat of a slope
Where the drop is in fractions, not feet

And past the uncut telephone poles
While stopping at clearings petite

And then we followed some 'Loggins Roads'

That went this way then that If we can lose roads as recent as these Crown Point hasn't got a chance.

Well, on we went and on and on 'Til we could trudge no more
And then we saw a miracle
Lefe had opened another door.

For there was a road, a substantial one
And we followed it to the end
And thanks to our clever geniuses
We ended where we had planned.

So while we waited for the car
We made plans of going anew
And blaxing a trail to Mendon
For the lucky ones like you.

RUMMAGE SALE NETS $123

In spite of slightly higher expenses due to a necessary change in location, the Rummage Sale went over the top with a take of $123. This will be a substantial aid in paying for the materials in our new Buffum Shelter.

We want to thank all those who donated articles. Additional thanks go to these people who worked on the sale - "T" Valiquette, Ruth Fostman, Churchill and Bobby Scott and Barbie Allard helped in pricing and selling; Eleanor Walker acted as cashier; Janet Martin provided the advertising posters; Jack Martin arranged a window display of GMC material; and at closing time we welcomed the help of Harold Valiquette and his truck for the clean-up job.

COVERED DISH SUPPER AT BEECHWOOD

This fall foliage hike and tasting supper is one of our sections most cherished festivities. The comfortable old farm house at Beechwood is a perfect setting for this event. I am always reminded of the Victorian house parties one reads about in 19th Century English novels, or in American ones for that matter. Only this is more confused. A taste of this and a taste of that. Soon the plates are piled high and it's a scrimmage for a seat somewhere.

After several desserts, the conversation is interrupted by a program. This year Barbara Allard gave a witty talk on her trip to Montana last summer, (accompanied by sister Marjorie) and showed us some beautiful slides. John Reynolds flirted outrageously with the ladies, both during the entertainment and after it was over.

Suddenly, the guests departed leaving a few hangers on to tour the house, an antiquarian's delight.
Did you get to see the darling little stoves upstairs? You might have, if you hadn't hurried off so fast.

WORK PARTIES

After months of planning, the rebuilding of Buffum Shelter finally got underway. On Sunday Sept. 24 Mr. Walter Gartner loaned us a truck and a good sized work party of Ray, Jimmie and Johnie
Catozzi, Candy and Churchill
Scott loaded it up and took off with high hopes of a short afternoon's work.

The plans all worked out well until we got to the last grade about 100 yards from camp. There a combination of wet grass and a bit of mud stopped us. There we stayed, as every known trick was tried to ease us over that last little hill. Finally, with heavy hearts, as darkness descended, we threw off the supplies so neatly piled a short time before.

The next day Ray and Churchill were loaned a jeep by Mr. Henry Douglas and were able to take all the heavy material the last few hundred yards.

On the following Sunday Mr. Vic Randolph and two of his older Scouts spent the weekend there and helped to carry the remaining boards, helped by Ben Ralston.

On Sunday, Oct. 29, another work party put the finishing touches on Buffum. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Weeks of Springfield, Prof. and Mrs. Buchanan of Burlington, Ben Ralston and George Reynolds were a few of those present.

The Killington Section owes a great deal to Craig Perkins for the great amount of time, effort and energy he has spent to make Buffum a camp we can all be proud of. Also to the many folks who have contributed both money and manual labor to the completion of our latest addition, we all owe so very much and shall be grateful for many years to come.

TRAIL CLEARING

Pres. Ray Catozzi has led two recent work parties to trail clearing spots. Last month a group of Boy Scouts finished the mile and 900 (according to Ben Ralston) south of Killington Peak, so that now the trail from Gov. Clement to Cooper Lodge is in fine shape.

Later he took another group of Scouts up between Pico and Killington at the swamp area and spent the day clearing the trail in this area. Even though a great deal of work was done, he reports that there is still more, and we don't know if time and the weather will allow us to complete this work before snow flies.

Lots of people you don't see very often will be there, so why not come?

ACH TUNG ! ! ! ANNUAL MEETING

TIME: Thurs. Jan. 25, 7:30 PM
PLACE: C.V.P.S.C. Bldg. (Please use Maple St. parking lot and go in back door from there.)

ONCE AGAIN we have been fortunate in obtaining the use of the C.V. Conference rooms for our annual meeting, and we have planned the evening to follow the pattern of last year: business, entertainment and then refreshments. Following the business meeting, we will take an interesting trip to another continent via a talk and a showing of colored slides by Dr. A. G. Barrett of Granville, N.Y. Dr. Barrett has traveled extensively in foreign lands, and we have heard glowing praise for his beautiful color photography and pleasant talks.

Going to a meeting isn't as strenuous as some of our other planned events, like going cross-country over Mendon Peak, so we want to see all you armchair hikers as well as the active ones at this annual meeting.

A slight charge will be made to cover incidental expenses of the evening.

MT. HANDLEY

By

Churchill Scott

On Sunday, Nov. 12, we held our annual hike to Mt. Handley. A rather small group left Meldon School in the face of threatening weather. The walk started smoothly enough, but soon we had missed the turn onto the old wood road. Soon we were bushwhacking through the woods toward the summit. But then this came quite natural since our trip over Mendon Peak.

At last we hit the road and hiked along a nice easy path, looking forward to eating by a nice cool brook. But when we got there, it was bone dry!

Nevertheless, we built a fire and Susan shared her hot chocolate with those who had no drinks. Carol and Vera decided to rest by the fire as the rest of us hiked on,

As time went by, the weather continued to improve, and after a final short climb, we reached the top in bright sunshine. We rested for some time, enjoying the view to the south and west - planning hikes to some of the other mountains visible from Mt. Handley.

Soon we were headed for home, drawing to a close another enjoyable fall hike.

SUNNYSIDE CAMP

Since Sat. had been a bit nasty, it was surprising to have ten show up for Sunnyside. Snowshoes made the going a bit easier for a couple.

We found the camp with plenty of wood, but too many grates in the stove and an oven door that fell on the feet of those who stood in the wrong place. This troublesome door went under the stove with three of the five grates. Once lit, the fire did very well and produced hot water and heated both various foods and the campers.

After lunch, only four had enough energy to go on to the clearing that overlooks the lake and valley. The view was well worth the effort. Going back to Sunnyside, we were ambushed by a couple of Indians who used snowballs instead of arrows. After they made us wash 'our' faces in snow!

In camp, things were just as strange. Someone was smashing the furniture. Naturally we had to fix it before we could leave. Then we headed for the cars. Four by way of some wild sledding down the icy hill. The rest slid on their feet (I guess).

We came to the conclusion that just because it looks unpleasant out from beside the fire, doesn't mean it's like that when you get out.

GOVERNOR CLEMENT SHELTER

Five members came. It was a beautiful blue-sky day, with snow, and the river was full of blue ice and green water.

The stove at Clement is lacking a decent top to cook on, so we used the fireplace for our fire. That is getting a little smaller each year. Still, plenty of room to heat water and burn hotdogs.

This shelter is going to need a little attention next summer - new bunks, stove top etc.

It was a lovely winter hike.

PICO CAMP
by George Reynolds

It was a cloudy, wintery day when the group donned their hiking gear at Sherburne Pass and started up the trail. The No Trespassing signs on the gate to Long Trail Lodge seemed to apply as much to the trail as to the Lodge, but we ignored them. The going was a little slippery in spots where previous hikers had trod, but thanks to the crust, it wasn't too rough.

Before we got to Pico Camp, we passed a group of high school boys from New Jersey hiking out with their teacher. They had hiked in Thursday in the rain and snow.

We arrived at the camp with our bundle of newspapers, only to find a large pile already there. Before the water had a chance to boil, a family arrived and was invited to join us for coffee as soon as the water got warm. We then directed them up to Pico and back down on a route which would not pass the shelter, so they never got their coffee. We wondered later what they thought of this kind of hospitality.

The weather cleared so that we got good views of the surrounding mountains both from the camp and later from the fire tower on top. For a time the light was such that the mountains stood out in emphasized perspective.

Killington, Shrewsbury, Mendon, Blue Ridge and Ascutney were positively identified, while Washington, Mansfield, Camel's Hump and others were found in various locations depending on the viewer. Anyway, no matter which mountain was which, the view was well worth the hike.

The trail down was difficult to locate, due to the cut for the new lift, but a few signs should remedy this.

I guess it is only fitting that as a first-timer on Pico, I should be drafted to write this piece.

TWENTY-THREE OUT FOR THE BUFFUM HIKE
By Miriam Bell

On Sat., Dec. 30th, there was a really good-sized turn out for the hike into New Buffum shelter in North Wallingford (twenty-three in all). We traveled through a winter wonderland, almost a mile up to the spot from the main road.

The closed shelter was warm because another member-at-large, Ben Ralston, and his young friend, Raymond Secor of Schenectady had spent the night there as part of a long weekend - two days and three nights --- in the cabin. "It takes a lot of wood chopping to keep us warm," they said.

Water from the winter brook was soon boiling in the old club coffee pot, and lunches were cooked on the good wood stove. Then the young children went outside to play in the snow in the yard, while Joe Mandella and Peter Hadeka explored a bit, and the older folks just sat around the stove visiting. They talked of how Churchill Scott, Ray Catozzi and George Reynolds had hauled in the wood to build the shelter last fall and of how Craigie Perkins had hiked in nearly every day in October to build the cabin all by himself. The neat painting of the sash by Mary Perkins was admired too.

The Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club now maintains five such shelters and is proud of them. Their guest registers show the public appreciates them too. The only one which remains an open shelter now is Gov! Clement. While the buildings were formerly used mainly in people's summer vacations, an increase in leisure time and an increased interest in winter camping mean that the closed shelters are most welcome all the year round.

Buffum is one of the most cheerful shelters because its new windows face the west, and even when we left at three-thirty, the cabin was flooded with sunshine. Coming down the trail, we stopped to take pictures of the big trees laden with new snow. Some of those hemlocks stood forty or fifty feet tall. They were like giants of old, guarding the mountain passes.

We hated to leave the winter woods, the quiet broken only by chickadees' chirping; but as we came down the Long Trail, we chatted with three cheerful strangers on their way up, their snowshoes under their arms - so we knew someone else would be enjoying the beauty we had left.

TRAIL TALES

Many of us, we are sure, have enjoyed reading the registers placed in our shelters and camps along the Long Trail. There is rarely one that doesn't disclose abundant writing talent amongst the hikers and campers who take more than the time to write just their names and where they come from. There are many humorous anecdotes, beautiful descriptions of scenery and sunsets, sad tales of uncooperative Vermont weather and pesky porkies, and even a few entries of good poetry.

Starting with this issue we are going to print some of these items, in part or in whole, some old, some of recent times, all interesting, we believe. We will use names as they appear if we feel they have any bearing on the story's interest, or if we feel the writer should be credited for his excellent work.

For an opener we couldn't find a better one than this from the Tucker Lodge register dated June 6-7, 1959 -

"...spending our 0th wedding anniversary, having successfully escaped attacks of various MMC-ers.

Mr. & Mrs. Frank Day
Middlebury Mountain Club"

This from the Montclair Glen Lodge register of Aug. 11, 1957: "...arrived in fine condition at 6 p.m. - not even breathing hard; in fact, not breathing. Art Watson recorded our respective pulses at 200 (+), blood pressures unobtainable. Expired at 11 p.m."

From an entry in the Clarendon Lodge register on Aug. 10, 1960: "...arrived about noon Aug. 9th, foot-sore and weary, was so pleased with this camp that we decided to rest, wash up and enjoy ourselves. Beautiful afternoon, studied ferns, birds and generally enjoyed ourselves. Have now identified seventeen different ferns, and several birds, some new for some of our party. Light rain about 3:00 AM, E.D.T. Still showery as we leave 7:45 AM.

Nine members of the Forest Audubon Club.
Steubenville, Ohio

From the same register on Aug. 16th, a postscript: "...we left some paper plates, hamburger rolls and some triscuit wafers..."

followed by this entry on Aug. 18: "...we ate the triscuits at a short lunch stop here on the way to Killington. Thanks."

Here is a lengthy piece from the register at Cooper Lodge on Killington, dated July 15-16, 1947, a year when Tom Pease was the caretaker for the Killington section there that summer:

"Twenty-two campers spent the night after a rainy afternoon. Nine came up from Sherburne Pass, arriving in a cloud-burst. Later on thirteen boys and councillors came in from the south and dried out after a wet hike up from Blue Triangle.

"It was a bit of a job to manage meals with the young fry dashing about, but we managed by cooking in shifts. We used up a lot of Tom Pease's nice dry wood, but have chopped up some rather wet stuff that will eventually dry out.

"Both parties leave in the morning for Sherburne Pass and will try to leave the place ship shape.

"A few of us are old timers who have been to Killington on and off since the old hotel woodshed was still standing, and it is an old story to us but the youngsters are getting a real thrill out of it.

"It is a great improvement to have a camp like this, especially when well taken care of. Quite a contrast from the January day in 1921, when the writer and a friend came up from Rutland via the Notch road and old hotel trail to the tin shack, and slept on a sheet of ice that had formed on the floor.

"Incidentally, the first group were students of St. Albans School, Washington, D.C.
Walter Boyd"

This same register at Cooper Lodge had many interesting entries by Tom Pease, himself, and is almost a day to day record of Tom's experiences on Killington Peak that summer. We plan to do a whole column on just Tom's interesting entries in a future issue of S & B.

One of the following four persons from New York City wrote this ode to camping in the register of the new Pico Camp in November of 1960:

"...Joy Hornung - Julio de la Torre, Harry Sydor - Iere Brian ...arrived tired 11/15/60

departed wet 11/16/60 with provisional thanks for the knotty pine mattress, heatless stove, and solid salt.

Let us go, oh, friend
To where the cloud bends way, way down
To plant a gooey smooch on Pico's crest
And gaze with awe
At autumn's sauce and gravy stains
On Pico's once green vest.
Abandon, man, the city's enervating warmth and rich food, Wallow through wet ferns, stumble over moldy rocks and roots, Recapture anew that near-lost sylvan mood.

Eat dry bread, salami, weak tea - man's food!

Stumble in blackness unsullied by watts and amps!

Crouch around a stinking fire!
Sleep with that healthy awareness of a pine-scented board mattress!

The wild joy of morning rain!

Let us go, oh, friend, and cast
our city sins away,
And gather strength from secret thought
That it's only for a day!"

How many of us have had similar experiences such as these that have been written in the camp registers!

Even though we have a fairly large supply of old filled registers in which to find these entries, if any of you readers find any interesting ones on your hikes or camping trips, write them down and send them to Ray Catozzi, 103 Bellevue Ave., Rutland, Vt. We would like to print them for all to enjoy.

SEE YOU ALL AT THE BIG

ANNUAL MEETING OF

KILLINGTON SECTION, GMC

BE THERE, 'CAUSE

WE'LL BE LOOKING FOR YOU

Vol. 15, No. 2 - KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB Mar. Apr. 1962

Sunday, Feb. 25 - BALCH PASTURE

Di. out the snowshoes and check your harnesses. We're leaving Meldon at 10 AM for a rough-it hike (no shelter) covering some territory south of Bald Mt. Those who have already been there say that the country is lovely.

Saturday, Mar. 10 - SUNNYSIDE
FROM CLARENDON GORGE

We'll be going into Sunnyside from the north today. This ought to be a good snowshoe hike too. Shake your legs and meet us at Meldon at 10 AM. P.S. If you'd rather, you can go in by Spring Lake Ranch.

Saturday, Apr. 7 - MAPLE SUGAR PARTY

How long has it been since you have come and enjoyed the donuts, dill pickles and sugar-on-snow? The party will be at the Perkins' home, 242 So. Main St. Serving will start at 6:30 PM. If you haven't paid your dues yet, this will be a good time to do it! Call PR 3-2941 for reservations before Thursday, April 5th.

Saturday, Apr. 14 - HAYSTACK MT.

We will leave at 9 AM from Meldon for Haystack Mt. in Pawlet. We predict that this will be a snowshoe or a sunshine hike. This might prove to be interesting. Coming along?

Sat. & Sun., Apr. 28 and 29 -
BUFFUM SHELTER OVERNIGHT

Sort of a do-it-yourself hike this time. Come along whenever you can. Bring your own transportation, food and sleeping bag. It's supposed to be a pancake breakfast Sunday morning, so bring along the makings. If it's been a long time - or never - since you've slept in one of our camps, now is your chance. You are welcome just to drop in and visit too.

DEADLINE FOR THE NEXT ISSUE is Wednesday, April 25th. Please get copy to Ann Reynolds, at 33 Temple St., on or before this date. No reminder calls will be made, so it's up to the members what will appear in Smoke and Blazes. Ideas and suggestions welcome - Call Ann at PR 3-3295.

1962 ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Killington Section of G.M.C. was held at the CVPS rooms on Thursday Jan. 25, 1962.

President Ray Catozzi began the activities at 7:30. Craig Perkins gave a report on outings, saying that four were called off during the year because of bad weather. Future hikes were discussed for the new schedule.

Jack Martin reported on photos, photo album, and publicity. He stated that new slides or pictures are always welcome.

Trails and shelters were taken care of by Ben Ralston and Churchill Scott. Ben Ralston and Craig Perkins were thanked for the great amount of time and effort given to clearing trail and building Buffum, respectively. The suspension bridge over Mill River has again been repaired.

Mary Isbell was commended for the good work she has done as editor of "Smoke and Blazes". Ann Reynolds has agreed to act as the new editor.

The Secretary and Treasurer's report was read by Churchill Scott. (See separate page for Treasurer's report.)

The Nominating Committee presented the following slate of officers: Ray Catozzi, President; Harold Valiquette, Vice President; Churchill Scott, Secretary-Treasurer. A motion was made for the Secretary to cast one ballot for the slate of officers.

President Catozzi explained the election of trustees, and Ben Ralston was elected to represent the Killington Section.

Ben Ralston spoke of the 1964 Appalachian Trail Conference to be held in the Manchesters with the G.M.C. as host.

Craig Perkins made a motion that Lincoln Isham be made a Life Member of our section in appreciation of his generous gifts. Also discussed was a fund (to be named the Lincoln Isham Fund) to be set aside for major repairs and maintenance work on our section.

After the business meeting was adjourned at 8:30, Dr. A. G. Barrett of Granville, N.Y. gave a very interesting talk, complete with many colorful slides, of a recent trip to Africa. Members enjoyed the comparison of wildlife encountered by Dr. Barrett with that which we meet hiking in the Green Mts.

Refreshments served by Vera Perkins, Ruth Postman and Eleanor Walker, ended another very warm and friendly get-together of the Killington Section.

TRAILS AND SHELTERS REPORT

By W. Churchill Scott

The year 1961 has been the most active one in the memory of present members. A great deal of thanks and appreciation go to Ben Ralston for his endless work of clearing trail and repairing camps. Thanks also to Craig Perkins for the good job of constructing Buffum Lodge as another closed shelter that the Killington Section can be proud of.

This coming year promises to be just as busy, with many odds and ends to do. To name a few: Sunnyside - door repaired, camp creosoted, annex built. Swinging bridge - catwalk creosoted. Clarendon - stove pipe repaired, annex rebuilt. Gov. Clement - roof and lower bunks repaired, annex built. Pico - windows rehung, outside creosoted. Tucker - foundation rebuilt, upper windows repaired, annex built. In addition we have 22 miles of trail to maintain. Anyone willing and able to help with these projects please contact Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St.

The new spring and summer outing schedule is enclosed with this issue. If you would like extra copies for "prospects", see Craig Perkins. Have a few handy in your pocket when you're on the trail!

WINTER WEEKEND at "TALL TIMBER"
By Barbara Allard

The party began Saturday morning with the arrival of several groups in time for lunch. They must have smelled the good stew. Everyone enjoyed the meal.

The afternoon was perfectly beautiful - blue sky and lots of sun. Also no mosquitoes. One group went into the woods to inspect the cabins. They soon came back to the fire and games, as feet had a tendency to cool off.

Supper was a gay affair serving about 30 people. After cleanup we saw an interesting group of photographs with comments by Craigie Perkins. Then one group went out to the workshop and tried somewhat unsuccessfully to pop some corn. All the others stayed in the house and saw slides belonging to Ben Rolston.

Bedtime came, with a bit of discussion as to who would keep fire watch. This was important, as the temperature was now heading toward 20 below zero.

Morning came, and while none of us froze, some of the cars were slow in starting. Hot air and elbow grease finally got them going.

Sunday dinner was somewhat smaller than in former years - not in the amount of food, but the number served! Then it was time to start heading for home. Thanks once again to "Tall Timber" owners for the use of their very nice camp.

- - - - -

David John Martin timed his arrival into the world most auspiciously, coinciding with the beginning of the "Winter Weekend". He weighed in at almost 10 pounds early on the morning of February 10th. Congratulations Janet and Jack!

MOONLIGHT HIKE TO TUCKER
By Judy Allard

On a rather brisk evening in January, six brave souls started out on a moonlight excursion to Tucker Lodge. Before the shelter in the woods was reached, the wind was cutting and cold. Snowshoes were not needed on account of the crusty snow. However, the going was quite rough. The snow made the woods seem very bright, even though the moon didn't show its face until later, and the lodge was reached without the aid of flashlights.

A fire was quickly started and water for warm drinks was put on. Donuts were put in the oven to warm. The hikers huddled around the stove and helped immensely by watching the pot. Contrary to popular superstition, the water boiled anyway, and we were soon warmed by the coffee, tea, cocoa and donuts. Three of the four dozen donuts were devoured, and there were even donuts on the roof!

After six appetites had been satisfied, and the hour noticed, we prepared to start for home. As usual, the moon appeared as soon as we left. The short walk out was very invigorating and a perfect ending to a very pleasant evening.

Vol. 15, No. 3 - KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB May-June 1962

Saturday, May 12 - MT. AEOLUS

If you see anyone doing a rain dance about this time -- shoot them! Once again we are headed for Aeolus, the cave, and maybe spring flowers. The group leaves Meldon at 10 AM.

Sunday, May 27 - PICO CAMP

Meet us at Meldon at 9 AM for a beautiful day and a nice climb to Pico Camp. We always have a good time here. If you haven't seen the new camp by now, you really should come.

Saturday, June 9 - DORSET MT.

We have heard that Dorset Mt. had a trail. Seemed a bit doubtful that we could find it now, but we are going to try anyhow. There will be a good view, if we can find the top! Leaving Meldon at 9 AM, and this will be a hard one, if you haven't already guessed.

(P.S. Remember the fun we had on Mendon--another hard one.)

Sunday, June 24 - KILLINGTON

A trip to an old pal, with a slightly different twist. Leaving Meldon at 10 AM, we'll go to Clement Shelter and head north on the Long Trail up to the peak. It is a very beautiful walk. Of course, if you're lazy, there's always the lift.

ANNUAL MEETING
Saturday, May 26

The annual meeting of the entire Green Mountain Club will be held at the Long Trail Lodge annex on Saturday, May 26th. There will be a "get-acquainted" coffee hour at 10 AM, followed by a business meeting.

The afternoon program, to be planned by the Killington Section, will feature hikes to nearby spots. The evening program, at 8 PM, will feature Roy Buchanan of Burlington as speaker. He will reminisce about "50 Years of the GMC".

Lunch and dinner will be available at the Lodge, with members signing up on arrival.

A new feature this year will be displays by the various sections, depicting the history, activities, etc. of each section.

The annual meeting offers an excellent opportunity to meet members from other sections and to renew old friendships. We look for a good representation from Killington Section.

MAPLE SUGAR PARTY--M-M-M-M!
by Eleanor Walker

On April 7th at 3:30 PM the maple syrup was put on to cook. All preparations for the annual event to take place that day at Vera Perkins' home had been made. The tables were set on the third floor, and were gay with vases of flowers from Vera's greenhouse. At the top of the stairs we were greeted by branches hung with eggs that had been decorated by Janet, Carol, Nancy and Betsey Martin.

The syrup boiled and was watched by Vera, Pearl and Eleanor and at 6:30 was ready to be served, along with pickles, doughnuts and coffee.

The snow was carried up from Vera's freezer by Jack Martin, George Reynolds and Harold Valiquette. Between 45 and 50 members and their friends gathered to partake of sugar on snow.

The work of clearing was done quickly by the committee, assisted by Mary Allard, Candy and Bob Scott, and Carol Martin.

Barbara Allard, the Reynolds, Churchill Scott and Mary Perkins brought slides of past activities and Barbara operated the projector. It was fun to see where we had been and to see members who are now living in other states.

Among those from out-of-town who attended were Ben Rolston, Ray Secour, Mr. and Mrs. John Vondell, and Bob Humes.

All Killington members who did not attend missed a good time.

BUFFUM OVERNIGHT

The Killington Section held its first official overnight trip to the new Buffum Shelter the weekend of April 28-29, with warm spring weather prevailing.

Craigie Perkins, Churchill and Bobby Scott, Ben and Dorothy Rolston, Ray Secour and his sister Joan (from Schenectady), and Susan Tarbell initiated the new bunks and proclaimed them comfortable. Brian and Richard Gallagher came for the day on Saturday and returned on Sunday, while George, Ann and John Reynolds, Vera Perkins and the Martin girls joined the Sunday group.

Although the trip was billed to include a pancake breakfast Sunday morning, the Reynolds seemed to be the only ones enjoying that treat! Part of the fun on each trip is to see the interesting variety of food brought by the members, and this outing was no exception.

Saturday's activities included a climb to Button Hill and looking for deer (none sighted). Got a report that Susan found "a utensil", but no further details! Pulling stuck cars out of the mud was a diversion on both days, with Craigie's car being the victim on Saturday and the Reynolds' on Sunday.

The outdoor picnic table and benches made by Ben Rolston during the winter "when he had nothing else to do" were put to immediate use.

It was good to see in the register the names of some of our members from Springfield--the Roberts family, the Weeks family, and Mr. Herick Cahee. We missed them up at the Winter Weekend, but were glad to see they have been enjoying some of our section just the same.

SPAGHETTI SUPPER
at CLARENDON LODGE
by Florence Van Wyck

(Editor's note: This writeup arrived too late for publication in the last issue, but it serves as a good reminder that we better enjoy summer--while we may!)

On Groundhog Eve, February 1, a spaghetti supper was held at Clarendon Lodge. The hike to and from the Lodge was quite an experience, since it was the coldest night of the year--and I do mean cold--20 below zero. The walking was fair, a bit slippery in spots, owing to ice under the snow, but this added excitement to the trip.

We parked our cars in a clearing off 103 about 50 or more yards from the trail and walked to the path.

Ray Catozzi, John Allard, Vera Perkins and others had arrived early. The frost-bitten stragglers came upon a most welcome sight as they approached the warm and glowing Lodge.

The delicious spaghetti contributed by Mary Perkins and sauce by Jan Catozzi, along with the hot coffee, climaxed an interesting day for the hungry hikers.

CAMPING GUIDES

Mary Isbell reports that the Rutland Free Library has added two camping atlases to its reference collection. They are "Campground Atlas of the United States and Canada", by James A. Bier and Henry A. Raup, and "Camping Family's Guide to Campsites", Hammond and Co. "These should be useful for outdoors-minded vacationers who plan to do a little sightseeing this summer", says Mary.

DEADLINE FOR THE NEXT ISSUE
Wednesday, June 21st. Please send material to Ann Reynolds at 33 Temple St. or call her at 3-3295 if you have anything you wish to be included.

HAYSTACK MOUNTAIN
by George Reynolds

It was a dark damp day when a group of seven diehards assembled at Meldon School.

After a drive through slate-quarried hills and along Lake St. Catharine, we finally arrived at a farm near the base of Haystack Mountain in Pawlet.

During the first part of the hike, we came upon a handful of small deer which promptly took off. Soon we turned off what appeared to be a trail and struggled up a steep slope through numerous trees knocked down by one of the hurricanes.

Reaching what appeared to be a trail, we followed it a short distance along the ridge to the top. From the bare knob we could see off in all directions and the various shades of gray made a striking view.

Being cold and hungry, we moved back down the ridge a short distance to a pine sheltered spot to light a fire. The fire finally decided to flourish without benefit of kerosene and soon got hot enough to burn marshmallows, hot dogs and a few boots.

The hike down turned out to be easy, as we followed the old trail back to the car.

As we passed Mt. Aeolus, Baker Peak and Dorset Peak, we thought of hikes to come.

BALCH PASTURE
by Churchill Scott

"Smoke and Blazes" did not get out in time enough to give this hike in late February much publicity, so when the departure hour came, there were only three hardy souls at Meldon.

We were at the point of tossing a coin to decide whether or not to go, but the brilliant sun, blue sky and warm air proved to be too much of an attraction for us to stay home.

The snow was perfect for snowshoeing, and as we passed the Balch Cemetery, then the Locust Spring, we began to get hungry. We stopped by a huge pine windfall, hung up the tarp, rested our backs against a side hill, and let the sun pour in.

Soon we were on our way again, but the warm sun made the snow too sticky to enjoy good traveling, so we turned around and headed for home.

TRAILS AND SHELTERS COMMITTEE

The committee has been quite busy since the last issue of "Smoke and Blazes". Ben Rolston and Ray Secour report that they have covered the Trail from Rt. 140 (the Gulf Road) north to the Lower Cold River Road, and have done all the necessary repair work to have it ready for the summer season. They also repaired a broken pane of glass at Clarendon Lodge.

On the winter hike to Sunnyside, the door was repaired, and on the recent overnight trip to Buffum, one light of glass was repaired, the annex was given a roof and a creosote job.

As we see the snow line move up and up the mountain sides, it means the summer hiking season is getting nearer and nearer. There remains a great amount of work to be done in the next two months to put our section in first class condition.

PICO CAMP by Judy Allard

At 9 AM on Sunday, May 27, an ambitious group started for Pico on a beautiful and promising day. After a short ride we reached the Long Trail Lodge, our starting point.

The trail was in rather bad condition. One member remarked that this particular section hadn't been quite that bad since the '52 hurricane. It was damp in spots, and this added to the hard going. One thing which surprised us, though, was the absence of bugs in the woods.

Despite the trail's condition, the outing was a lively one, with the youngsters setting the pace. About noon we arrived at the camp and set about starting a fire. Water was soon boiling and we occupied ourselves with devouring our lunches. We were soon joined by three adventurous people who had hiked over from Killington.

Later, different groups started for either the top or the bottom. The only broken panes of glass were fixed and then the fix-it men proceeded to the top to get a look at the marvelous view. After the camera bugs had taken enough shots, the last group started for home. The trip down was very pleasant, with the many wild flowers making the trail look like a garden path.

The whole outing was enjoyable for all, and everyone went home with a feeling of accomplishment.

KILLINGTON CLIMB by Barbara Allard

The day started cloudy, but nine brave (??) adventurers showed up at Meldon. No one stopped us, so we headed for Killington by way of Clement Shelter. The sun did try, so we can say that much for it.

At Clement we found a familiar black VW from N.Y.

Up the trail we went and by the time we reached the brooks (there were three then), it was time to eat. Our expert firemen had only damp wood, but they soon had a fire going that could not only cook but also keep the bugs away.

Our energy renewed, we hiked along, meeting Ben Rolston disguised as Robin Hood. He was clearing trail.

Cooper Lodge, we found, is in a very sad state. Vandals have smashed every one of the 96 panes of glass, allowing the porkies to take over the camp. It was a mess.

We took a quick trip to the summit, where we got a short cloudy peek at Pico--over to inspect the top of the lift and then back to do a quick cleanup job at the lodge. All hands pitched in and we worked until thunder drove us out. However, if you feel like helping out, there is still lots of broken glass outside the camp.

Thunder and clouds began to roll and so did we. About half way down the trail ran (or changed) into a brook. Everyone slid the rest of the way to Clement. It was a change from walking.

WORK PARTIES

The Trails and Shelters Committee has planned a number of work parties for June and early July to prepare our section of the trail for the summer season.

With the Girl Scout Roundup at Button Bay and the increased interest in hiking the Long Trail, we feel that this year will be the largest ever.

Ben Rolston has cleared the Trail from Rte. 140 north to Gov. Clement. This leaves the rest (about 10 miles) up to the remainder of the section.

Anyone who is willing and able to help in any way at all, Please contact. W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland.

MT. AEOLUS
by W. Churchill Scott

On a bright and sunny day in May, a hardy group of G.M.C.ers left to find the caves and summit of Mt. Aeolus.

At East Dorset the local rural mailman directed us to the correct path, where we left the cars. After a short time this trail divided three ways, and with a great deal of talk we chose the most likely looking one. We followed up a small stream beside the wood road and at last came to a very small marble dump and a surface marble quarry where the wooden derrick had long since rotted away.

Here the road swung north, so we bush-whacked south a ways and hit another road. Soon we had a tasty pot of coffee, thanks to the jug of water Craigue had carried. As we were resting, a bit of red flashed by and upon closer look we saw two scarlet tanagers.

Soon we were climbing up the steepest wood road we had ever seen. Near the top we had some very good views of the Coolidge Range, Bromley, Stratton and Mt. Equinox.

The road bore around the south shoulder of the mountain and Craigue believed we'd gone too far, so he led us in a likely direction and sure enough, we hit some red blazes (seen earlier), which we had thought were property lines. Nevertheless, as we followed them they went on and on over a rather hard trail. Along the way we had numerous views to the east and north, at last reaching the summit where the blazes changed to yellow and a sign said "Dorset". Here on a small ledge there was a beautiful view south down the valley toward Bennington and Glastonbury Mt.

On the way back we met Carol Martin and Vera Perkins resting by the Trail. Soon we hit the wood road and left the red blazes. Perhaps this is where we made our mistake--we should have followed the trail to the east in order to find the cave, according to our later conversation with Mr. Aldrich, who knows a great deal of Mt. Aeolus.

At last we got back to the cars and found a note from President Catozzi, saying that he'd been there but couldn't find us. So ended an enjoyable hike to another new spot, and thanks to Craigue's perseverance, we found one of our goals.

COOPER LODGE--AND REGRETS

Because of recent vandalism--and we suspect that it may have been ADULT vandalism--all 96 panes of glass have been smashed from the windows of Cooper Lodge.

The few are evil. And the majority of innocent, as usual, must suffer. Until such time that we can determine the reasons for vandalism, and a method of preventing it, we must take the following action on Cooper Lodge:

The cabin will be cleaned up, screening will be installed over the windows to prevent the entry of porcupines, a missing stove part will be replaced, and a new stove pipe will be installed. Cooper Lodge will then be AN OPEN SHELTER.

Therefore, it is suggested that those planning trips in the Killington area be advised that, should the weather report predict cold or stormy conditions, the use of Pico Lodge or Clement Shelter is recommended for over-night stops.

DEADLINE FOR NEXT ISSUE OF SMOKE AND BLAZES -Wednesday
August 29.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT -
By Ben Rolston

I am most pleased that, after an absence of five years, the Killington Section once again has one of its own trustees in the presidential seat of the Green Mountain Club. Your new president will, through personal contacts and his huge volume of correspondence, do all he can to boost the Killington Section and to bring to the hiking public the advantages of hiking and camping on this section of the Long Trail.

We are proud of our portion of the Long Trail, and proud of our volunteers who have made it the fine trail that it is today. Volunteers conquered the engineering feat of constructing a suspension bridge across Clarendon Gorge. Volunteers built Clarendon Lodge, one of the finest on the entire Long Trail. Another volunteer built, almost single-handed, the magnificent new Buffum Lodge. And untold thousands of hours of volunteer labor have continued to keep the Killington Section of the Long Trail alive.

We salute these volunteers--those from the Rutland area and those from our neighboring states. Why have they contributed, with throbbing hearts, aching muscles, and sweating brows, those efforts--without any thought of monetary remuneration? Because they LOVE the Trail and Shelters, and want to make them available for others to enjoy.

We are proud of our views too. Not counting the horizon-sweeping panoramas from the heights of Killington and Pico, we have views which we consider among the finest in Vermont. The pastoral view from Button Hill Ridge, with the cliffs of White Rocks across the valley. The view from Spring Lake clearing of the range of mountains named for one of our native Vermonters who attained the highest position in our nation. And the view from under those maple trees atop the hill just south of the Cold River School--a view of the peaceful valley of the Cold River. PEACE-FULL VALLEY--a dream of millions of enslaved people throughout the world--yet enjoyed so freely in our beloved Vermont

Yes, we are proud of our section of the Long Trail. To the hundreds of hikers from near and far who will hike our section of the Trail this season, we sincerely say WELCOME! We hope that you will receive the same enjoyment and inspiration--yes, the mental and spiritual uplift--during the use of our Trail and Shelters that we have experienced in preparing them for your hiking pleasure.

Best wishes to all for a most enjoyable summer season.

END-TO-END, ANYONE?

About 12 years ago, the Killington Section planned a series of hikes designed to qualify the participants for the End-to-End Award. We utilized the long Fourth of July and Labor Day weekends for distant parts of the Trail and hiked over closer parts at other times of the year.

After seven years of steady effort Mary, Craigie and Vera Perkins covered the whole length of the Trail and won the End-to-End Award.

About three years ago this idea was started again, but interest died out and it was forgotten. Now a number of members feel this might be an easy way to cover the Trail, so we would like to try it again.

Anyone interested in this type of hike is asked to contact W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St. Rutland.

Vol. 15, No. 5 - KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - Sept. Oct. '62

COMING EVENTS

Unless otherwise noted, all hikes depart from the old Meldon School building, on Center St. just off South Main St.

DATE - Sunday, Sept. 16
 DESTINATION - Bromley
 DEPARTURE TIME - 10 A.M.

It's time now for the fall hikes--no more bugs! Come along and enjoy the view. Bring your camera.

DATE - Saturday, Sept. 29
 DESTINATION - Mt. Cushman
 DEPARTURE TIME - 9 A.M.

This is a new hike to most of us. Maybe it'll be a good one!

DATE - Sunday, Oct. 14
 DESTINATION - Mt. Hanley
 DEPARTURE TIME - 10 A.M.

The color should be nice today. Everyone who has hiked this mountain in West Rutland has enjoyed it.

DATE - Saturday, Oct. 27
 DESTINATION - Beechwood, for the annual covered dish supper.
 TIME - Supper begins at 6 P.M., but come earlier if you want to take a walk.

Call Vera Perkins at 3-2941 by Friday, Oct. 26, for reservations and instructions about what dish to bring. Please bring your own plate, cup and silverware. After supper you'll be properly entertained. GMC Trustees meet in Rutland the same day and we hope to have some of them present.

DEADLINE DATE

Deadline for the next issue of "Smoke and Blazes" will be Wednesday, Oct. 31. Please get material to editor Ann Reynolds at 33 Temple St. on or before that date. If you are asked to write up a trip that you attend, please try to do it as soon as possible and send it on in. The editor is making no follow-ups, as you can see by the size of this issue!

GREENWALL SHELTER by John Carnahan

A week of gray, muggy weather in Rutland broke almost on the hour for our departure from Meldon School on Sunday, August 12, and our small group of eight had a perfect day for the hike into Greenwall from Wallingford Gulf Road.

Just below U.S.F.S. road #19, we were joined by Ben and Dorothy Rolston, who had been camping at Gifford Woods for the weekend. Their appearance on the trail was most welcome.

Biggest surprise was the progress on the new shelter at Greenwall. A completely new, prefabricated-spearing leanto, facing west and nearer the trail, was awaiting us, together with steel-covered picnic table to ward off the porkies. Some cleaning up and perhaps some finishing touches were all that remained to be done to this handsome shelter.

For lunch our group preferred the sunshine and pleasant solidness of the older log shelter. Also, the older shelter is closer to the outhouse and the spring. Water is in short supply at this camp and along most of this section of the Trail.

All were agreed that the log shelter should be allowed to remain. Forest Service, please take note! It is in good repair and has many more years of useful life. Furthermore, it is a beautiful job of log construction and has a Long Trail character which newer structures cannot duplicate.

For a short hike after lunch, the group went on up to the peak of the cliffs at White Rocks. There we were joined by Crague Perkins for the homeward trip. All in all, it was a good half-day outing.

LATE NEWS FLASH

RUMMAGE SALE NOV. 17th --

NEIGHBORHOOD ROOMS

RUMMAGE SALE

The date and place for the annual rummage sale, Killington Section's chief fund-raising event, have not yet been set -- but it will be SOON, and you will be notified in some way, if it is before the next issue of "Smoke and Blazes".

In the meantime, start gathering your donations. The committee reports that the following items have sold especially well in the past: books, jewelry, puzzles, yarn, toys, dishes, wallets and handbags.

LITTLE ROCKY POND

The first Saturday in July proved to be an ideal one for a trip to Little Rocky--not too hot, yet warm enough for swimming and sunning, and the bugs seemed conspicuous by their absence, compared with last year.

The trip was marked by its large attendance, with some 25 people joining in at one point or another. In addition, a large group of Boy Scouts stopped for a rest.

Everyone traveled at his own pace, so that actual arrivals and departures from the pond were spread out over a long period--and no one seemed in a hurry to leave.

As the next-to-last groups got in their cars at the road, we wondered how six Allards and one additional hiker were going to return in one small volkswagen, but somehow they made it, we learned later!

NEW OUTING SCHEDULE

With this issue of "Smoke and Blazes" you'll find enclosed the fall and winter outing schedule. We'll visit each of the shelters in our section, as well as other hikes, old and new. Extra copies of the schedule may be obtained from club officers.

All trips leave from the old Meldon School building, on Center St. just off South Main St. unless otherwise noted.

DATE - Sunday, Nov. 11
DESTINATION - Saltash Mountain
DEPARTURE TIME - 10 A.M.

This is a new one and I don't know much about it. Come and see if I'm wrong.

DATE - Saturday, Nov. 24
DESTINATION - Pico Shelter
DEPARTURE TIME - 9 A.M.

The view from the tower last year was marvelous. The beechnuts might be good, and the company is always excellent-- naturally.

DATE - Sunday, Dec. 9
DESTINATION - Tucker Lodge,
Moonlight Hike
DEPARTURE TIME - 7 P.M.

After much consulting of charts, graphs, etc., the powers that rule decided this was the right time for moonlight. Let's see if they are right.

DATE - Saturday, Dec. 22
DESTINATION - Clement Shelter
DEPARTURE TIME - 9 A.M.

If the season is getting you down, and you slump into a valley of fatigue, come out into the fresh air and get rid of your worries.

DATE - Sunday, Jan. 6
DESTINATION - Buffum Lodge
DEPARTURE TIME - 10 A.M.

This will probably be a snowshoe hike. Try to get them in shape before you leave, but bring along a piece of string, just in case. It always comes in handy!

RUMMAGE SALE

The annual GMC rummage sale will be Saturday, Nov. 17th, at the Neighborhood Rooms, starting at 9 A.M. Please bring rummage on Friday, for sorting and pricing. If you need to have your contributions picked up, call Craigie Perkins. Let's make this fund-raising event a successful one.

BROMLEY MOUNTAIN

On Sunday, Sept. 16, a large group took advantage of a good fall day to climb Bromley Mountain. Mr. and Mrs. Paddock's daughter and family from Manchester accompanied us, along with little Louie Catozzi, who started working on his End-to-End award.

After a short trip from the road, we arrived at Bromley Shelter, where we ate lunch. This is a rather small camp, but snug and in a nice spot. Nearby a good-sized brook supplies the water.

With lunch finished and a good rest, we hiked up a very well-kept trail gently climbing through brilliant hard-wood foliage. Everyone set his own pace and soon we broke out into the ski runs. From here the trail became pretty steep and soon we were at the top.

Some folks were content to bask in the sun and enjoy the view of mountain after mountain to the east, south and west. Others went on to the tower, where we could get a 360 degree view of the Adirondacks, Green and White Mountains and the Berkshires. But none of us could figure out what is the fifth state one can see from there, according to the publicity. Soon it was time to go and we ended another enjoyable day hiking to the top of another beautiful mountain of Vermont. May we always be able to walk to the summits instead of taking the easy way via chairlift!

ANOTHER NEW HIKER

George and Ann Reynolds are the happy parents of a second son, born Sept. 17. Bob was introduced at the covered dish supper, just as his brother was two years ago. Your editor thanks the GMC members for their cards and expressions of good wishes.

TRAILS AND SHELTERS

On Oct. 27, Ray Secor checked the Trail from Clarendon to Gov. Clement and reported that it was in good condition, in spite of the recent wind and rain storm. Clarendon was in good shape, with only one broken window. Ray and Ben Rolston spent the night of Oct. 26 there.

On the same date Churchill Scott checked from Clarendon south to the Gulf Road. There was a small amount of brush and blow-downs. The camps were in excellent shape, with no broken windows, a good supply of wood, and were swept clean.

There were at least three entries in the Sunnyside log book about the poor water supply. This will have to be taken care of on our next trip there.

On Nov. 24, when we have a hike to Pico, there are a number of things that can be done before winter. The window frames can be moved, the trail cleared from Pico Junction, and if time permits, a new annex can at least be started. If weather permits, we plan to cut a new trail around the big swamp south of the near junction.

COVERD DISH SUPPER by Mary Isbell

Almost 60 people attended the annual covered dish supper at Beechwood on Oct. 27. This gathering included several GMC Trustees and their families, who had come for a Trustees' meeting that day. Among them were Ben Rolston, Bob Humes, Roy Buchanan and Bill Bartlett.

The food was delicious, as usual, with a variety of dishes and desserts. Although we expected to bring our own dishes and silver, we found that silver, and paper plates and cups had been provided. We had a lot of fun visiting with our out-of-town guests before and after dinner.

LONG TRAIL HIKE by W. Churchill Scott

From Aug. 19-23, I enjoyed leading a group of Girl Scouts and their leaders on a trip from the Wardsboro-Arlington Road 26 miles north to Mad Tom Shelter and out to East Dorset.

When I volunteered for this job, I figured there would be seven or eight in the group. But when it came time to go and I was informed there would be seventeen of us in all, I had my doubts. Our section has always maintained that only small groups should use the Trail, so I was hoping I'd meet no one on the Trail that I knew.

However, after four days of watching these girls handle themselves and the various situations they met, I'm sure that if all groups conducted themselves as well, the GMC would have nothing to worry about.

We left Grout Job about 3 P.M. Sunday and hiked up the logging road to Willis Ross Camp, passing a good-sized beaver dam on the way. Each group set its own pace, with a counselor in charge. With 12 girls and five leaders, this was no problem. We just missed the work party, for they had been going over the Trail and had painted the annex. We dug a temporary one with the trench shovel we'd carried for just this purpose. This first night we all crowded into the shelter.

Next day we went on to Swezey past Bigelow and Stratton View. Beavers have done a lot of work at Stratton Pond, and at the outlet there is a 30-foot log to cross. With the packs some girls had, this was a job. I finally wound up taking off my shoes and socks and going in up to my knees. You should try that early some morning!

New Swezey is a good camp, but we went on to Old Swezey. We decided to sleep out in spite of the threatening rain, making shelters of our ground cloths and ponchos.

The following day we went on by Spruce Peak, where we got a good view of the Manchester Valley and arrived at Bromley Camp in the early afternoon. Since it was occupied, we decided to eat, fill our canteens, and go on to the two brooks mentioned in the Guide Book. They were dry as a bone when we got there. We felt full of pep, and the brisk northwest wind had cleared the sky, so it was good and cool.

So we kept going, and soon were on top of Bromley. Here we made our beds, planned to have a dry lunch, and eat at Mad Tom the next morning. There wasn't a cloud in the sky, but about 3 A.M. the clouds rolled in and everything got wet. We ate and went on to Mad Tom, where we ate a breakfast-lunch, rested and viewed the new Mad Tom Shelter. We hiked down the Mad Tom Brook Trail to East Dorset.

In this 26 miles of hiking, there are only 2.5 miles - climbing Bromley - that is uphill. The Worcester and Brattleboro Sections have done wonderful work on the Trail and shelters. The group I was with came from California, New York, Maine and all over Vermont, and they all learned a great deal about the GMC and the Long Trail. We all want to thank the GMC for a wonderful experience.

MT. CUSHMAN
by Vera Perkins

A small but optimistic group met at Meldon School on Saturday Sept. 28th for the trip to Mt. Cushman. Tho the morning was foggy we anticipated clearing weather and a colorful drive up scenic Route 100 to Rochester. Tho we kept telling each other that over the next hill or around the next bend we would run out of the fog, it stayed with us all the way. We had occasional glimpses of bright trees - just enough to show us what we were missing.

At Rochester we took the road toward the east just beyond The Common and stopped for directions soon after leaving the village. Following these brought us to the place for leaving the cars and beginning the actual hike. Here we crossed an open pasture and after several false starts found the trail. A fairly steep but not too long climb brought us in sight of the fire tower which proved to us that we were on the top of something. The fire warden assured us that it was Mt. Cushman, but for all we could see it might have been anywhere as we were enveloped in clouds.

After a brief warm up in the warden's cabin, Churchill built one of his famous fires in spite of the dampness. The hot coffee never tasted better.

We learned from the warden that there is a Jeep road practically to the top. An old issue of THE VERMONTIER tells of a proposed project of the Rochester Improvement Association to develop Mt. Cushman. The old road leading from Rochester to Randolph and passing near the summit was to be restored, also a connecting road leading over to Bethel.

The first annual Mt. Cushman Day was held on the summit on August 27, 1936 with 600 persons picnicing there. Many years earlier a building 30 x 40 ft. had been erected on the summit by the original Artemis Cushing for parties and dancing.

In spite of all this enthusiasm 25 years ago, two fireplaces for picnic parties are the only remaining "developments" and the warden reported that the mountain had very few visitors these days.

The view from here is said to be excellent. We wouldn't know about that but we'd like to go again and find out.

We returned to our cars by the same trail we had followed up the mountain, arriving just as a steady rain began which accompanied us all the way to Rutland. In spite of the poor weather this was an interesting trip.

CHRISTMAS GIFT SUGGESTION

For that friend or relative "who has everything", why not a membership in the GMC and/or the GMC Guide Book? Churchill Scott 132 Maple St., will be happy to help Santa Claus by filling your order.

BEWARE - HUNTING SEASON!

With not one, but two hikes scheduled during hunting season, it might be well to equip yourself with an item seen in a local sports store - a bright red vest boldly labeled, "DON'T SHOOT - I'M A MAN!"

A Note About Numbers

Smoke and Blazes started in 1948 as a monthly publication and continued so until about 1959 when it became a bimonthly. In about 1967 it switched to quarterly publication. Occasionally issues were skipped, especially in 1970 and 1971.

In general each calendar year was assigned a new "Volume" and "Numbers" were assigned consecutively from "1" through each year.

There is some lack of consistency in the months of publication, and there are some out-and-out errors in the numbering.

The following Table of Contents lists the issues in this binder showing the Volume, Number, and Date as printed, and, where different, what the Volume, Number, and Date probably should have been.

Dedication

This set of copies of Smoke and Blazes is donated to the Rutland Historical Society in memory of my parents, Mary and Craig Perkins and my aunt, Vera Perkins. They conceived the idea for a Killington Section newsletter in 1948 and served as editors and publishers for the first several years of its existence, cutting stencils, and running mimeograph copies in our living room. They continued as frequent contributors to the publication and as active members of the Club for over a half century. Fortunately, Dad had a pack rat proclivity which I seem to have inherited. By combining his collection of Smoke and Blazes with mine, I have been able to put together this complete run of the publication.

Vol. 15, No. 7 - KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - Jan. Feb. '63

Sat., Jan. 19 - SUNNYSIDE

We'll be leaving at nine A.M. from Meldon School for a good snowshoe trip to Sunnyside Shelter. Bring along your cameras, and sleds if you like to slide.

Sun. Feb. 3 - SPAGHETTI SUPPER AT CLARENDON LODGE

The dinner gong rings at six P.M. GMC provides the spaghetti and sauce free. Bring your own salad, garlic bread, wine, or whatever else you like with spaghetti. Come right to the lodge at six or sooner. Those of you who went last year remember what a smashing success this hike was. Come on and join the fun.

Sat. & Sun., Feb. 16 and 17 - WINTER WEEKEND AT TALL TIMBER

Reservations will be necessary for this weekend. Call the Perkins at 773-7954 by Tuesday, the 12th. If you can't come for the whole time, come and visit us and take a walk in the woods.

Sat. Jan. 26 - ANNUAL MEETING

President Ray Catozzi will call the annual meeting of the Killington Section to order at 8 P.M., Saturday Jan. 26, in the CVPS rooms. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Weeks of Springfield will show slides of their Long Trail travels, and refreshments will be served at the end of the evening. Anyone willing to provide refreshments is asked to call Vera Perkins at 773-2941.

RUMMAGE SALE REPORT

Vera Perkins and her committee report that the annual fall rummage sale netted about $115.00, which they felt was a good return. They want to thank everyone who contributed rummage, including the out-of-town folks who brought or sent items--including Betty Ball, who sent rummage all the way from Florida.

In the 15 years since they began, rummage sales have netted the Killington Section nearly $1,800.00--a lot of money we wouldn't have had otherwise.

A MESSAGE FROM SCHENECTADY -

It was surely nice getting out again with the Killington Section on the January 6th Buffum Lodge trip. One of the nicest camps on the Long Trail, and one of the friendliest groups to hike with. It was encouraging to see the many children along --these young people will be tomorrow's GMC leaders.

On the 5th, made a snowshoe trip over one of my favorite sections of the Trail--between Upper Road and Lower Road. A most inspiring walk--the sound of Cold River gurgling under its coating of ice; the surface of the snow broken only by the footprints of the deer, rabbits and other wildlife in search of food; the quiet of the winter woods broken only by the sound of whirring partridge wings, or the chickadee-dee-dee of my favorite bird. These are the rewards of snowshoeing thru the wilderness.

Munch will probably be written and discussed about the recent vandalism at Clarendon Lodge. Such acts are most discouraging. Yet we can feel fortunate, for this is the first major vandalism to hit Clarendon since it was built 10 years ago. Perhaps such damage, instead of discouraging us, may make us so mad that we will be even more determined to work hard to keep our Long Trail program moving ahead. And our appreciation goes to Churchill Scott who has been working so diligently to repair the windows.

As 1963 starts to roll forward, we know that the program of the Killington Section will move forward too, keeping pace with the increasing interest in hiking, camping, and enjoying the beauty of our Vermont forests, streams, and mountains. With our combined efforts, 1963 will be a great year for GMC.

--Ben Rolston

MOONLIGHT HIKE TO TUCKER

by Doris Newton

At take-off time the first real snowfall of the season was in full progress, but after all, when did snow ever stop the GMC? After some sliding around on the road, cars were parked, equipment gathered, and we were off on the path to Tucker.

Isn't it surprising how light the open hard-woods can be at night and in a snowstorm? Still, lights in the window of Tucker were a pleasant sight. Members from Springfield were already there after an afternoon of scrambling around on Deer Leap. They had been as glad as we were not to find a stone cold cabin and to find dry wood and coals in the stove; thanks to a morning trip by Craigie Perkins and Churchill Scott. (Thanks to both of you from all of us there!)

With about 25 people present, Tucker was not quite bursting at the seams, but space was at a premium and the upper berths were well filled. After good talk, good coffee, good doughnuts, and a pleasant walk out thru heavily falling snow, the "Moonlight" hike was pronounced very satisfactory.

PICO PEAK

by Barbara Allard

Even though the weather looked bad, quite a few showed up to climb Pico. We even had some of our members from way down in Springfield. There was just enough snow to make the walking interesting. The higher we got on the mountain the lovelier our surroundings. Everything was covered with white.

In camp we found some clever person had knocked a hole in the stove so he could build a fire in the oven. Makes it difficult for people who know how to use the stove.

After lunch the expert carpenters had an audience while they rehung windows. After the traditional last cup of coffee, it was time to go home. It had been overcast all day, but with sunset came some clear and colorful views. So you missed a good one if you didn't come along.

BUFFUM SHELTER By W. Churchill Scott

Our annual winter hike to Buffum proved to be a big success with visitors from New York and Massachusetts.

The early arrivals decided not to wear snowshoes, except for George Reynolds, but when we saw the amount of snow in the woods--14½ inches deep, according to Craigue Perkins--we were sorry.

Ben Rolston, Vic Randolph and family and friends were there, and as usual, a good fire and warm cabin greeted us. Soon lunches were being eaten, and then all we wanted to do was sit around the fire and talk.

George tried many times to promote a hike to Sunnyside, but after numerous attempts said "What a bunch of hikers!"

After lunch the Martins, Vera Perkins, Doris Newton and the Valiquettes arrived to swell our total number to 26.

Soon it was time to leave and all of us are very grateful to the Wallachs, for permission to use their land, and to Craigue, for his willingness to build such an enjoyable shelter for us.

SALTASH MOUNTAIN by W. Churchill Scott

The day for this hike was very threatening, and as the five of us sat in the car hoping more would show up, rain fell now and then, Craigue, Churchill and the Gallagher boys discussed the pros and cons of going. Seeing this was a new trip, we finally decided to try it.

After many crooks and turns we arrived at the spot where, according to the topographical and Vt. State Dept. of Highways maps, a road was to lead us to Bear Mt., a peak just north of Saltash.

Just as we left the car snow began to fall and lasted all day. We hiked along a well defined wood road, choosing the right turns for over a half mile. Then, seeing we were turning north too far, we found a good spot to eat.

With Craigue's ever-present tarp, good dry wood and a brook, we had a very comfortable rest and a chance to dry out the boys' socks. We decided to return a ways to a fork in the wood road, which turned to the east. This proved to be a very easy grade through young pine trees. We made a mental note that this would be an ideal snowshoe hike for the future.

Soon the boys were getting wet and tired, and the sun was setting, so we turned toward home as the clouds broke. The last few minutes' walk was beautiful, with the sun's rays piercing the clouds to speed over the snow covered farm land.

We feel that if we'd been able to see Saltash we'd have had better luck, but now we'll have to wait till next time.

SMOKE & BLAZES

Vol. 15, No. 8 KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - Apr.-May 1963

DATE - Saturday April 6
DESTINATION - Sugar Party at Universalist Church, West Street
TIME - 6:30 PM
The GMC is holding its annual "sugar on snow" party in a public place this year. Call 773-2941 for reservations by Thursday April 4th.

DATE - Sunday, April 21
DESTINATION - Greenwall Shelter
DEPARTURE TIME - 10:00 AM
We have a new shelter at Greenwall.
We may still have a bit of snow,
so be sure to wear good boots.
There'll be a chance to visit
White Rocks too. Leave from Meldon School.

DATE - Saturday and Sunday, May 4-5
DESTINATION - Tucker Lodge
The club will be meeting right at the lodge. It seems that since the lodge was built in 1936, it now needs an operation. We'll be using all the consultants and assistants we can get. Activities will be going on both days, and you're welcome to stay overnight.

DATE - Sunday, May 19
DESTINATION - Clement Shelter
DEPARTURE TIME - 10:00 AM
Clement also needs a bit of attention, so this will be a combination work and pleasure hike. We may be able to drive right to the shelter by this time. Leave from Meldon School.

TRAILS AND SHELTERS

At a recent meeting of the committee, it was decided that with the tremendous amount of snow (29 inches on top of table at Buffum) it will not be possible to do much work until after the next issue of "Smoke and Blazes". At that time we will have more information on
work parties.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Mr. Lincoln Isham has given the Killington Section another very generous contribution in honor of Abraham Lincoln, to be used in trails and shelter work.

WINTER WEEKEND AT TALL TIMBER
By the Days and Cahees of Springfield, Vt.

The bright sun and cloudless blue sky made the 40 hikers forget the frigid air and biting wind as they packed their gear up the hill to the Perkins's camp Tall Timber, on Feb. 16. A total of 50 people registered, coming from Schenectady, New York City, Worcester and Shrewsbury, Mass. Springfield and Rutland, Vt., with 26 staying overnight.

Beef stew, the kind that sticks to the ribs, and all one could eat, was served at noon in two sittings to about 40. This grand meal with all the trimmings gave everyone extra energy for the afternoon activities.

After lunch, six hikers, led by Ben Rolston, snowshoed to Tucker Lodge, arriving at 4:30. After a short rest they continued on to the main road and hiked back to Tall Timber on foot, enjoying the colorful alpine glow as the sun set, on Pico Peak.

The Springfield group chopped umpteen cords of wood to help keep Jack Frost out of their cabins, while others took short snowshoe hikes over the beautiful countryside and snapped many pictures of the sparkling white snow and the bluest sky imaginable.

The hearty supper of corned beef hash, cabbage salad, and chocolate bread pudding, more than satisfied the appetites of the hungry hikers. The lively after-dinner discussions were suddenly hushed as many found themselves engrossed in trying to extricate the pencils with string attached which Harold Valiquette had deftly fastened to sweater or shirt buttonhole.

Around nine o'clock, 12 of the group left the cozy farmhouse and braved the 15 below zero temperature to hike to the cabins - to sleep? During the night, the temperature dropped to about 20 below.

Those in the farmhouse and workshop retired soon, and all met the next morning for a welcome breakfast featuring hot oatmeal.

After breakfast had been digested, one group snowshoed to the Beaver Pond near the old Chittenden road crossing and beyond to the Long Trail, arriving back just in time for dinner. Others took advantage of the second day of pure blue skies to take further short hikes and more colored pictures. Still another group spent the morning enjoying the excellent skiing at Pico.

Another sumptuous meal, starring fricasseed chicken breasts, was enjoyed by the Winter Weekenders at noon on Sunday. After dinner, gear was gathered up into packs as all reluctantly prepared to head down the trail to the cars.

No one will ever forget the hospitality of the Perkins, the warmth and cheer of the comfortable farmhouse, the delicious meals so ably planned and prepared, and the good fellowship of old and new friends.

BOOK NEWS

THE FUN OF FAMILY CAMPING, by George S. Wells, is a new addition at the Rutland Library. It contains everything imaginable about family camping, from menus to stoves. "Ignoring outdated wood lore, 'The Fun of Family Camping' is an invaluable handbook for lovers of today's tamed wilderness,"

SMOKE & BLAZES

Vol. 15, No. 9 KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - June-July 1963

COMING EVENTS

Saturday, June 1 - GMC ANNUAL MEETING

As announced in the recent Long Trail News, the annual meeting of the Green Mountain Club will be Saturday, June 1st at the Long Trail Lodge.

Here's the schedule:

- 10:00 AM - Coffee hour
- 11:00 AM - Business meeting
- 12:15 PM - Lunch at the Lodge
- 2:00 PM - Conclusion of business meeting
- 6:15 PM - Dinner at the Lodge
- 8:00 PM - Program to be announced.

Let's have a good representation of the Killington Section. No advance reservations required for meals; they'll "count noses" at morning session.

Sunday, June 2 - BLUE RIDGE

Bring a good pair of shoes to hike in if you're coming along today. We'll be passing the Cascades, and the view from the top is very nice. Leaving Meldon School at 10:00 AM

Saturday, June 15 - STRATTON POND

Stratton Pond comes under the heading of a difficult hike. Whoever comes along should have at least some idea of what he is doing. Don't forget your swim suit if you like to swim. Meet at Meldon at 9:00 AM.

Sunday, June 30 - WILCOX HILL

The GMC'ers are going to try a different assault on Wilcox. The view should be tremendous from the top, so don't forget the cameras. Meldon School at 10:00 AM.

Saturday, July 13 - SALTASH MT.

We now have another of our famous discovery hikes. We don't know what we'll find here. The Club meets at 9:00 AM at Meldon. Come looking with us.

CLEMENT CLEARING AND CLEANING TRIP

An excellent cleanup crew appeared to give Clement shelter a good spring cleaning. We found the shelter fairly clean, but walled against the winter wind with balsam branches. After lunch and hot, hot coffee, we moved out the branches and swept the floor. A bit of discussion went on as to how the lower bunk should be repaired.

The shelter now spotless, all but three people left for home. These three steamed up the trail about a mile and a half, tore out blowdowns, ripped out brush, and in general smoothed the way for future travelers. Upon returning to camp, we found more visitors and a final cup of coffee. All day we never saw even one porkie.

---Barbara Allard

MEMBERSHIP LIST

Secretary-Treasurer Churchill Scott reports the following names added to the 1963 membership:

Helen Bailey
Allen Camp
John Carnahan
Mary Carnahan
Paul Carnahan
Sarah Carnahan
Ruth Fostman
Helen Frink
Brian Gallagher
Richard Gallagher
H. Minerva Hinchey
Elsie Maier
Margot Montague
William Montague
Craig Perkins
Mary Perkins
Charles Sabourin
Gerard Sabourin
Mary Sabourin
Michelle Sabourin
Patricia Sabourin
M. Eleanor Walker

It's nice to see some new names on this list, as well as old familiar ones. When did you last get a new member for the GMC?

"SHORT TRIPS" FOLDER

A revised edition of the popular folder, "Short Trips on the Long Trail", is now available from the GMC office in Rutland. The state of Vermont has also purchased a large quantity of the folders for distribution to visitors.

GREENWALL SHELTER

On a bright spring day, a good-sized group of hikers drove to the Gulf Road and walked south on the Trail to Greenwall Shelter. There were a number of new faces and we all had an enjoyable walk as we climbed toward the Boule Farm. At the upper road we found a jeep parked and decided it belonged to Don Kent.

After plowing through a number of snow drifts and passing numerous pussywillows, we soon arrived at the new Greenwall Shelter, built last year by the U.S.F.S.

Sure enough, there was Don Kent with a couple from Middlebury College, and two more girls from Middlebury who had come in over the Keowaydin Trail from the White Rocks picnic area. They had a good fire going and in no time dinner and coffee were served.

After a short rest, the more active members continued on to the top of the White Rocks Cliff, and on a side trail had a beautiful view of the Otter Creek Valley, the western mountains of Vermont, and the Adirondacks.

At last we began to head for home in our own little groups, talking over plans for our future hikes and work parties. Just as we crossed the brook by our cars, it started to rain; once again the weather had treated us very good.

--- W. Churchill Scott

TUCKER WORK PARTY

On our first scheduled work party in a number of years, we hiked in to Tucker where there were a number of jobs to do before the camp would be ready for the summer season.

Craigie and Churchill had made a special trip the day before to carry the material in. On Saturday most of the day was spent in tearing up the floor, jacking up the joists, putting solid footing under them, and relaying the floor. We leveled up the bunks and secured the stove pipe. Eleanor and Vera came in to wash the windows for us, but we were almost ready to leave, so they came out with us.

On Sunday we tackled the foundation that has given us so much trouble for years. Thanks to Harold's and Craigie's knowledge of masonry, a new wall was built. One would have to see it to believe what a big difference this makes in the appearance of Tucker. The front roof was repaired, a gutter added, and the front steps rebuilt.

In mid-afternoon a large group from Springfield stopped in for coffee after spending the day clearing the Deer Leap Summit Trail. This had not been done for a number of years and will be a welcome addition for use at both the Annual Meeting and Intersectional.

We did quite a bit of work, but there is still much more that could be done if we had just a few more members who could give a few more hours of help, in return for the many days of enjoyment they have had on the Trail.

"LONG TRAIL NEWS"

There continues to be reports that some members of the Killington Section have not been receiving the "Long Trail News". Please notify W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt., if this happens to you, so the mistake can be corrected.

A MESSAGE FROM YOUR GMC PRESIDENT

As my term of office draws to a close, I think back with pleasure and gratitude on the events of the past year. True, there has been a lot of work -- most of it involving editing of the new Guide Book and a continuous job of keeping up with the biggest amount of correspondence I have ever tackled.

But this type of work is most gratifying, knowing that each effort is directed toward improvement of the Green Mountain Club and its program. I trust that my efforts have achieved the goals toward which they were directed.

I am sure that hikers will be very pleased with our new Guide Book. This book is possible only because of the splendid help given by our Guide Book Committee and others who volunteered their services. We are again indebted to Janet Martin, for most of the sketches she prepared for past editions of the book have again been used as page fillers.

Am also pleased that the Killington Section has offered to make all arrangements for the 1963 Intersectional, to be held at the Tamarack Notch Girl Scout Camp near Rutland. Once again, our Killington Section trails will be swarming with happy GMC'ers and prospective End-to-Enders.

Dorothy and I enjoyed attending the Killington Annual Meeting, the spaghetti supper at Clarendon, and once again, the Winter Weekend. I also extend the appreciation of the Trustees for your arranging the October covered dish supper and the April sugar party so that many Trustees could attend.

As the GMC year ends, I extend my official and personal thanks to the Killington Section members who contributed so much of their time and efforts toward the Trail, the shelters, and the Club program. And as the new GMC year begins, I wish all Killington members a very enjoyable season of GMC activities, a successful program of Trail and Shelter Maintenance, any many miles of good hiking in sunny weather!

---Ben Rolston

WORK PARTIES

In addition to clearing trail from the Long Trail Lodge south to within one and a half miles north of Governor Clement, each camp we maintain will need to have at least one day's work put in to prepare them for the coming hiking season.

With the 1963 Intersectional to be held at the Tamarack Notch Girl Scout Camp, we must also improve the side trails in our section so that we can take pride in them.

Work parties are scheduled on each Saturday that we do not have a scheduled hike. Each member is asked to do as much as possible to help. We need old brooms and large metal containers for trash cans.

Anyone who is able to help is asked to contact Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland.

NEW LONG TRAIL GUIDE BOOKS

According to the current Long Trail News, the 1963 edition of the Guide Book is now available. Any Killington section members wishing to purchase them are asked to remember that Churchill Scott will have them for sale at $1.50 each, with the Section making a small profit from each sale.

Also available are the new sleeve patches, in addition to about ten of the old style, which some folks might like for keepsakes.

SMOKE & BLAZES

Vol. 15, No. 10 KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - Aug. 1963

COMING EVENTS

Sunday, July 28 - ROCKY POND

The hike to Rocky Pond is slightly over two miles, but with a very nice reward at the end of the trail. Two new shelters and an excellent place to swim. The new shelters make room for many more people. The group will leave Meldon School at 10 a.m. All are welcome.

Saturday, August 10 - LAKE PLEIAD

This will be sort of a double feature swimming party. We're leaving Meldon at 9 a.m. First stop is Lake Pleiad for swimming and lunch. The rocks here are a good place for sunbathing.

We will probably leave here early enough to stop at Texas Falls for a cooling off swim. This is a fairly easy trip, so bring the kids along.

Saturday, August 24 to Monday September 2 - 1963 INTERSECTIONAL

Killington Section will be hosts for the Intersectional at Tamarack Notch Girl Scout Camp. With two weekends included, everyone should be able to come for at least a little while. Details written up separately, or call Ray Catozzi for further information. Ray will be needing lots of help, so volunteer if you can.

EDITOR'S NOTE

As you can see from reading the bylines in this issue of Smoke and Blazes, as well as in other recent issues, we wouldn't have much of a paper if it weren't for Churchill Scott. Let's have come contributions from other members. Your editor will especially welcome firsthand coverage of the Intersectional. Please send material to Ann Reynolds, 33 Temple St., Rutland, or call me at 773-3295 if you have any ideas, etc.

SALTASH MOUNTAIN by Churchill Scott

On Saturday, July 13, we reached the summit of a new mountain, after a rather poor attempt last fall. The group, consisting of four young members, Vera, Churchill, Mrs. Preston, and Mrs. Biddle of Eastham, met at the latter's summer home, with a handful of different directions for climbing Saltash.

After much discussion we walked up an old CCC road to an abandoned stone bolt, where our instructions said to go straight up. Soon it was noon and after a good hearty meal we were ready to go again.

Bushwacking was rather hard for a time, but soon we hit the ledge right on the nose and at last we arrived at what we felt was our destination. The view was good to the west and southwest, but would improve after the leaves fall.

Saltash Mountain Camp has a trail painted yellow from the south, and we scouted around the top for it, but at last cut south down the grade.

We all agreed it is easy to get mixed up on Saltash, but already are looking forward to it as a snowshoe hike or a trip up the south trail in the near future.

TRAILS AND SHELTERS REPORT

The latest report from Ben Rolston is that the Trail from Route 140 to Gov. Clement is in good shape. North to Cooper Lodge is in good shape too, having been cleared during July. From Route 4 to the northern ski trail has been cleared, leaving the middle section undone as usual. This will need to be done during August to have it in good condition for the Intersectional.

Once again Clarendon and Sunnyside have suffered from vandalism, with at least 20 broken windowpanes in each camp.

In view of all the work we have to do on the trail and shelters, the following work parties have been scheduled:

July 29 - Gov. Clement Shelter

July 30 - Sunnyside

July 31, August 1 - Overnight to Pico

August 2-3-4 - Bucklin Trail

This year the Club will furnish meals for all members of the work parties, and the oldtimers will tell you how delicious those meals can be. Why don't you come along and see?

Please contact W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt.

BLUE RIDGE by Churchill Scott

On Sunday, June 2, after the GMC annual meeting, a good sized group hiked up Blue Ridge. Ray Catozzi and his Scout group brought the number to over 20, in spite of a rather hot and humid day, and many bugs.

By the time the Cascades was reached, the hikers were well spread out, with the resulting confusion of lunches being in one spot and eaters in another! Soon the hot drinks were served and the climb started again.

After a short stiff climb the trail leveled off and within minutes we reached the summit.

It was pleasant to visit with Mr. Gene Banforth as we enjoyed the view and planned summer activities.

At last we had to hike our way home, and as we neared the end we met John Reynolds with his mother and father and Allan Camp, just starting up the trail. We learned later that John and his mother failed to reach the summit, but George and Allan made the grade.

ADDITIONS TO MEMBERSHIP LIST

The following names have been added to the 1963 membership list of the Killington Section:

Barbara Allard	Kenneth R. LaPlant	Dennis Payne
Johnny Allard	Jack Martin	Tim Payne
Judy Allard	Janet Martin	Leslie Pfenning
Mary E. Allard	Betsy Martin	Marc Pfenning
Mark Battles	Carol Martin	Susan Pfenning
Edith Ewald	David Martin	Francis Roberts
Earle E. Johnson	Nancy Martin	Bernice Tuttle
Kenneth A. LaPlant	Tom Martin	Bard Wheeden

THE BUCKLIN TRAIL
by Churchill Scott

After hearing many reports about the very poor condition of the Bucklin Trail, we have had a chance to observe it at first hand.

A short time ago a group of Girl Scouts from Tamarack Notch hiked to Killington for overnight. They made a wrong turn, wandered over the ridge, hit the old Rooney Trail and returned to Brewer's Corners.

On July 17, we tried again and found the right way, marking the old road and clearing the brush from the blazes along the way.

Now it is passable as far as the spring, but the last mile is a terrific tangle. It will take a great deal of work to clear this trail, and unless it is done soon, it will be an outstanding example of how very little the 110 members of the Killington Section care about the success of the hiking program of the 1963 Intersectional. At that time this trail will be a most important one.

Cooper Lodge was in worse condition than ever, yet many people use it. That one night there were 13 Girl Scouts, 4 young men from Shelburne, Mass., (via USFS Road #10), and 10 campers from the Farm and Wilderness Camps.

SWIMMING TRIP TO WILCOX HILL
by Ann Reynolds

When Churchill Scott, George, Ann, John and Bob Reynolds, and Allan Camp were the only ones to show up for the scheduled trip to Wilcox Hill, we decided to change our destination.

With only a vague plan in mind, we stopped off at Spring Lake Ranch to say hello, parked our car further up the road, and made the short trip in to Sunnyside camp. Here we were very disappointed to find the place a mess, with the floor dirty, the register gone, and nearly all windowpanes broken. We decided windows were unnecessary in the summer, if they are only to be broken, and Churchill removed the damaged sashes and took them home.

Although we got the place in pretty good shape, we felt it would be more pleasant to eat on the trail, and soon found a shady spot. Instead of continuing on the level open road to reach Spring Lake, we stayed on the Long Trail, and began to wish we hadn't. We had not come prepared for swimming, but the water looked tempting, and nearly everyone managed to get wet. We thought we were at the Spring Lake Ranch dock, where we had been invited to come, but found out that the Ranch has traded docks with the Shrewsbury Outing Club. Later we went on up to the other dock and tried the water there,

We certainly didn't see much of Wilcox Hill, but we had a good time!

Vol. 15, No. 11 - KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - FALL 1963

COMING EVENTS

Sunday, October 6 - Mt. CUSHMAN

Fall color time is here. Now is the time for a walk in the leaves. Hamburgers sizzling over a fire. How can you possibly stand not to meet us at Meldon at 10 A.M.?

Saturday, October 19 - BAKER PEAK

Leaving Meldon at 9 A.M. to hike down Danby way. We first head toward Griffith Lake and then cut off to head for Baker Peak. Bring the children. There are many nice views too.

Saturday, October 26 - COVERED DISH SUPPER AT BEECHWOOD

Supper will be served at 6 P.M. at Beechwood. Call 773-2941 by Thursday, Oct. 24 for reservations. Plan to bring along one of your favorite dishes for everyone to taste.

Sunday, November 10 - BALD MOUNTAIN

Leaving Meldon School at 10 A.M. The Bald Mountain hike will be a nice walk in the woods.

Saturday, November 16 - PICO CAMP

Always a good hike. You can meet with the Club at 9 A.M. at Meldon School or come along later.

Sunday, December 1 - GOV. CLEMENT
SHELTER

The GMC leaves Meldon at 10 A.M. Clement has had some work done on it this past summer. Besides that there is a good walk up the road. We would like to have you along.

1963 GMC INTERSECTIONAL by W. Churchill Scott

A very successful Intersectional drew to a close on Labor Day at Tamarack Notch Girl Scout Camp, with the Killington Section acting as host.

The weather was just right for hiking with only one day of rain. Many folks were able to do short sections of nearby trails for their End-To-End award. Baker Peak, Blue Ridge, Bird Mountain, Deer Leap, Killington Peak, Pico, and Mendon were visited. The trail was covered from Lincoln-Warren Pass to USFS #10 at Danby.

Killington Section was third in attendance behind Burlington and the members-at-large. More than 200 overnight visitors were registered, probably a record for Intersectionals.

NEW MEMBERS -

Added to the Killington Section membership list since last issue were:

Wilson F. Fowle, Jr.
Charles B. Gulick

(Ed Note: A special welcome to "Terry" Gulick. Some of us met him at the Intersectional two years ago, when he was working in Plymouth, Vt. He is now director of student activities and bookstore manager at Castleton College.)

TRAILS AND SHELTERS REPORT -

The section is very grateful for the work done by Ben Rolston, George Reynolds, Allan Camp, John Carnahan, and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Weeks of Springfield to clear the trails and to make our part of the Trail in such good condition for the many hikers at the Intersectional.

There are going to be a number of day-long work parties to the various camps to prepare them for winter. The roofs must be checked, the windows repaired, exteriors creosoted if possible, and nearby areas cleaned up. The swinging bridge at Clarendon Gorge must also be creosoted this fall without fail, and the cables checked and tightened if necessary.

Anyone who can help on any of these projects is asked to contact W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St. Rutland.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING -

The Executive Board of the Killington Section met recently at the home of President Harold Valiquette to discuss plans for the Intersectional and also the problem of increased damage to our shelters.

Clarendon and Sunnyside have been hard hit and the board voted to offer a $50 reward for information leading to arrest and conviction of any person damaging the camps or surrounding property.

We feel that it may be necessary to visit each one of our shelters, except Pico, once a week, in order to keep a closer check on their condition and to keep repairs up to date.

A VOTE OF THANKS -

I propose a vote of thanks to all who pitched in to make the Intersectional a success: Mrs. Whitney for helping in many, many ways; Ray Catozzi for the advance planning, maps, and signs; Churchill Scott for long hours of trail clearing and working all week at the camp; Jim and John Catozzi for pitching in around the camp, and all the others who also helped.

LAKE PLEIAD
by Vera Perkins

The weather on August 10th was clear and cool. Black flies, the plague of summer hiking, were gone. A perfect day for going to Lake Pleiad.

Hikers assembled at Meldon School and proceeded by car, via Goshen, to the top of Ripton-Hancock pass. This was a lovely drive, much of it over wooded secondary roads.

Leaving our cars where the Long Trail crosses the highway, we enjoyed the easy hike to Lake Pleiad. Our party included two family groups with four small children. This is a perfect "family outing" as the distance is short and much of the Trail can be negotiated by even the toddlers.

The Lake was as lovely as ever in its mountain setting, with its rock ledge on the near side for lunching and sunning.

After lunch one or two braved the chilly water for a quick swim. Others enjoyed voyages on the old raft, while the rest of us loafed in the pleasant sunshine.

Early in the afternoon we packed up for the return hike and the trip to Texas Falls which is a traditional part of a Lake Pleiad outing.

At Texas Falls we enjoyed the Nature Trail with its explanatory leaflet. For once, no one took a swim in the icy waters below the Falls!

Leaving the Falls area, we drove home by way of Hancock and Route 100, always a beautiful drive, thus ending another enjoyable GMC outing.

RUMMAGE SALE COMING!

We can't give you the exact date of the Rummage Sale at present. However, we know that there is going to be one --So--- if you haven't already started collecting items for it, do it now.

Remember that housewares, dishes, curtains, spreads, kitchen utensils, gadgets, nicknacks are all good sellers, as well as clothing. Children's clothing is especially in demand.

Let's have a big supply of salable items and a good corps of volunteer helpers. We'll let you know the date soon.

COMING EVENTS

SPAGHETTI SUPPER

On Saturday Jan 11 comes our annual shaggetti supper. For reasons explained elsewhere in this issue the event will be held at Tall Timber instead of Clarendon Lodge. The Club will serve spaghetti and coffee. If you want all the fixin's bring your own. It wont be necessary to bring cups plates, or cutlery. Supper will be ready at 6 P.M. Come when you like. To get to TALL TIMBER turn north from Route 4 opposite the Mendon Fico Hotel. Dont park your car so as to block the road or any drive way.

ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting of the Killington Section of the G.M.C. will be held at the Central Vermont Pub.Serv. Corp. hall at 7:30 P.M. Friday Jan.17,1964

This is an important event in the program of the Section and all members should try to be in attendance.

First will come the short business meeting. Pres.Harold Valiquette has appointed a nominating committee composed of Eleanor Walker, Susan Tarbell, and Craigue Perkins. Officers will be chosen, reports of committees will be heard, and it is rumored that some action will be proposed to try to curb the vandalism that has been so bad this last year.

For entertainment we have a very special treat. Mr.Fernand Bartlett will be on hand to tell us about his travels in Africa. He has slides momentoes, and a big stock of anecdotes. Some of our older members will remember when Fernand started hiking with the Section in 1938. It is nice to have him back in Rutland for a while.

After the entertainment there will be refreshments.

Let's try to get a big crowd out for this affair and start the Club off with a bang on the New Year.

WINTER SPORTS DAY

Sunday, January 26, 1964 has been designated G.M.C. Winter Sports Day. The place will be at Tall Timber where warming facilities and coffee will be available all day. This will be a good chance for our outdoor cooking enthusiasts to try their skills. There will be twelve fireplaces available. Also we are planning games of skill and chance to keep everybody from climbing Blue Ridge Mountain. Now be there!

MT. H. ANLEY

At 10 A.M. we meet at Meldon School for our ~~Saturday~~ ^{Sun} Feb. 9 hike to Mt. Hanley. This is the first time we have made it on snowshoes. It should be good going on these old wood roads. For those from Castleton and points west we should be on the Whipple Hollow Road just off Route 4 about 10:30. You could meet us there and save a trip into Rutland.

BUFFUM LODGE

Saturday Feb. 22 at 9 A.M. we meet at Meldon to go to Buffum Lodge. This trip always brings out a good crowd. Sometimes even a big crowd. There are lots of hills for free-style skiing or you can snowshoe up Button Hill. Or you can just toast yourself by the stove.

Isn't that quite a program of "coming events"? O.K. then, let's see some action.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

Treasurer Scott requests that all bill due for Club expenses be presented to him at once so he can get his books cleared up for the ANNUAL MEETING.

PAST EVENTS

PICO CAMP

The annual get-ready-for-winter hike to Pico earned the Club some much needed recognition from the Rutland Herald. Mr. Jackson went all the way with us, took several pictures, and wrote an interesting account of the outing. Thank you.

The camp was found in perfect condition. The damaged stove was patched with aluminum and that was all that was necessary.

GOV. CLEMENT SHELTER

We parked our cars on the upper road and walked all the way in to the shelter. For the last several hunting seasons a group has been "winterizing" this open shelter and using it as a camp. This year they donated a good new stove. Believe it or not! It has two griddles and is made of cast iron so it should withstand the rust pretty well. Thanks, boys wish we knew who you were.

We were happy to have with us Fernand Bartlett who has been out of Rutland for several years.

SUNNYSIDE CAMP

(by Harold Valiquette)

The weather was cloudy and cold, only a few of us showed up. Churchill Scott checked with us at Meldon School to let us know he is working around the clock to get your Christmas card through, and could not make the trip with us.

Craig, Peter Hadaka and myself arrived at Sunnyside and found things in pretty good shape. We repaired the stove and the door and then who ?? dropped in but the chickadee man from Schenectady, who told us he was going to sleep there that night.

Us natives didnt like the idea of this---it being so cold--but he did never the less. I told him I would be back Sunday morning at 9 A.M. to thaw him out. When I arrived at 9:15 A.M. Sunday the temperature was zero and it was winday. Two brave men from Schonectady joined Ben about 11 P.M. Saturday---- Clifford Farrington and Richard Kenyon.

We all pitched in and put a 12 foot strip of tar paper on the roof. We were finished about 11:15 and I was back home by 12:30.

TUCKER LODGE

This was the moonlight hike and no flashlights were required. Thirty people (count 'em) with two staying over night. The camp was clean and in good repair. The stove worked perfectly and a good time was had by all. We enjoyed the company of several new comers and hope they can be with us often.

WORK PARTIES

CLARENDON LODGE

Some time ago we learned that all the sash had been smashed out of this camp. At last we have them replaced. The cost will run over $40. Those participating in this little exercise were Judy Allard, Churchill Scott, Michel Wiley, and Craigho Perkins.

First a trip to view the wreckage and get measurements. Then ordering the windows and waiting for them to come. Then a quick trip with the sled to get them to the Lodge before the snow got too deep. Then two trips to fit them in and put on the hardware. We found that more work was required to keep the stove from smoking us out than was needed to replace the windows.

We plan one more trip to replace the stove pipe. This may improve the smoke problem (we hope). However a new stove should be provided next summer. It was discovered that after the fire was going good the smoke could be prevented by closing all drafts. Only trouble was that the fire promptly went out. So you have a choice; a fire and a room full of smoke, or no fire and no smoke.

It was the opinion of those who took the cure that it was impractical to try to boil a big pot of water for the spaghetti supper on that stove under winter conditions. So we had to change the location for the party.

And next summer let's try to get a coat of creosote on Clarendon. It is beginning to look shabby.

PROJECTS PROJECTS PROJECTS

We have more projects than members in our Section. The Annual Meeting is a good time to bring several friends and prospective members. If everybody would bring just one other person think of what it would mean in terms of money and muscle to help keep up our part of the Trail.

The main Club's slides are again available for showing. By choosing from them, from our Section slides, and from slides belonging to the members it should be possible to put on an interesting program for Clubs and so forth.

Let's see if we cant build our Section membership up to two hundred this year. It can be done if everyone gives it a try.

SMOKE & BLAZES

Vol. 17, No. 1 - KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - Jan.-Feb. 1964

COMING EVENTS

RUMMAGE SALE - Saturday, Feb. 29th at the Neighborhood Rooms, Marble Savings Bank Bldg. We need a lot of things-----not only clothing, but dishes, nicknacks, books, toys, etc. There will be someone at the rooms Friday the 28th after 9 o'clock so bring your things there, or if you can't bring them in call Craig Perkins 773-7954 or Harold Valiquette 773-8422 and they will pick them up.

SUNNYSIDE - This is a favorite of us all, so let's be at Meldon School at 10:00 o'clock on March 8th, (it's a Sunday). We will probably hike in from Spring Lake Ranch so this will be a good time to bring the young'uns.

GOVERNOR CLEMENT - Sat. March 21st will see us on our way to Governor Clement. We'll leave Meldon at 9 a.m. If the roads are good we may be able to ride right in.

MAPLE SUGAR PARTY - What do you know - it's Sugar-on-Snow time again. This year we're holding it at _____ better be there at _____ o'clock if you expect us to leave you some. Place and time will be announced in the paper. It will be held Saturday, April 4th.

TUCKER LODGE doesn't live up to it's name; so, come on everybody it's an easy hike and the company is usually good. We'll leave Meldon at 10 a.m. Sunday, Apr. 19th.

NEW SCHEDULES

The new spring and summer hike schedules are inclosed. The outing committee hopes that these hikes will meet with your approval and if any extra copies are desired they are available from C. Perkins H. Valiquette or C. Scott.

SMOKE & BLAZES deadline

The deadline for the next issue of Smoke & Blazes will be Apr. 13. Please have all the items in to the editor before that date so that the issue may go out on time.

I was very pleased to see such a large attendance at our Annual Meeting. As I begin my second year, I wish to thank all the committeemen who served with me this past year. This year we hope to make 1964 a bigger and most interesting year for the Green Mt. Club members.

As most of you know January 11th we had our Annual Spaghetti Supper. It was held at Tall Timbers and 26 people turned out for this supper. On Jan. 17th 50 people turned out for our Annual meeting. On Jan. 26th 52 turned out for Winter Sports Day held at Tall Timbers.

Let's keep it up! Nice going.

Harold D. Valiquette
President

ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting of the Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club was held on Friday, Jan. 17, 1964 at 7:30 p.m. at the Central Vermont Public Service rooms.

Among the out-of-town members and guests that came to the well attended meeting were Mr. & Mrs. Wilman Day, Mr. & Mrs. Lloyd Weeks and Mr. & Mrs. Hedrick Cahee of Springfield, Vt., Terry Gulick and Miss Edith Ewald of Castleton State College, Ray Secor and Pres. Ben Rolston of Schenectady and Peter Sikakana of Southern Rhodesia visiting the U.S. to study the teaching methods of this country.

The Treasurer's report will be found in this issue.

Adult membership stayed the same at 67, but juniors increased from 35 to 47 making a total of 114 - twelve more than 1962.

Craigie Perkins spoke on Outings. The season was very good with a number of new spots visited. As usual the Winter Weekend, Sugar-on-Snow, and covered dish Supper were well attended.

The 1963 Intersectional was hosted by this section. It was favored by very good weather. Attendance and hiking records were broken and our section was well represented.

George Reynolds spoke on behalf of Ann as editor of Smoke and Blazes. She asked to be relieved of her job but would be willing to be correspondent for the Long Trail News. The section voted to thank Ann for the very good work she has done and to express sorrow that she must resign.

Ben Rolston spoke for the Trails and Shelters. He said the section was in good shape with just one lumber job between lower and upper Cold River Road giving any trouble.

The present officers were re-elected to serve another year and W. Churchill Scott was chosen as Trustee to replace Ray Catozzi whose term will expire in May.

Fernan Bartlett gave an illustrated talk of his vagabond trip throughout Africa. He also had many interesting articles on display showing different styles of native handiwork.

Once again the ladies served very delicious refreshments of cakes, pies, cookies and coffee. The section thanks them for putting on a pleasant finish to a very successful meeting.

REPORT OF TRAINS & SHELTERS COMM.

At our Annual Meeting Ben Rolston gave a very complete report of the southern half of our section. The trail is in good shape with the exception of a lumber job between the lower and upper Cold River Road. The shelters are in good condition. Clarendon has all new windows, new stove pipe, and roof patched and coated.

The northern section was completely worked over this year, including that remote area between the near and far junctions on Pico, thanks to George Reynolds and Allen Camp. Pico is in good shape and Tucker had a coat of creosote and most important the floor was leveled and the foundation was strengthened greatly.

There are still many jobs to be done on the trail and to the shelters which will improve them very much for the many hikers whom we hope to have use our section this season.

We need a great deal of help and if anyone can spare some time please contact W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vermont.

SPAGHETTI SUPPER W.C.Scott

After a number of trips to Clarendon to repair the windows and stove the Outing Committee decided to change the locale of our Annual Spaghetti Supper to Tall Timbers.

Once again our section is indebted to Craigie and Mary for the use of Tall Timbers. Each time we visit this spot it is more enjoyable. Also to "T" and Harold for preparing the tremendous amount of spaghetti.

The group began arriving in the afternoon and soon the water was boiling fast and furious. There was a bit of confusion due to the notice in the Rutland Herald about folks bringing their own sauce. So consequently there were many different types of sauce for different types of appetites, but in the end everyone was fed and happy.

The night was clear and cold with many stars, the road was all ice for fast sliding, and the stoves good and warm for sitting and talking.

There were 29 folks at Tall Timbers including Fernand Bartlett, an old timer, to enjoy a very pleasant evening.

WINTER SPORTS DAY - TALL TIMBER by Vera Perkins

On Sunday, January 26th, following a week of thawing weather, a number of winter enthusiasts gathered at Tall Timber to enjoy a Winter Sports Day.

When we arrived, soon after 10 a.m. we found the cottage warm and cozy thanks to Mary and Craigie. Among other early arrivals were three GMCers from Massachusetts who planned to climb Blue Ridge.

By noon quite a sizeable group had gathered, including several of our Springfield friends and Ben Rolston from Schenectady.

Lunch time was a busy hour with each one assembling his or her own meal supplemented by the standard GMC coffee, tea or cocoa.

After lunch everyone was ready to see what could be found for outdoor activity. The thaw of the previous week had left a rather thin, breakable crust over ice, so that neither walking nor snowshoeing were top notch. In spite of this many short trips were taken. These same conditions made for excellent sliding and tobogganing which were greatly enjoyed by the Junior members (as well as some Senior ones!).

Perhaps another time with different snow conditions more varied and ambitious "Winter Sports" could be carried on, but we feel sure all attending agree that the day was a most successful and enjoyable one.

MT. HANLEY
H. D. Valiquette

Sunday Feb. 9th was clear, crisp and sunny. Eight GNC hikers met at Meldon school and we traveled to West Rutland in two cars.

After parking our cars we started up the old logging road. Before hiking too far we were very glad we brought our snowshoes.

The ones in the lead started a fire about 1½ miles in and when the rest arrived the coffee pot was boiling briskly and soon everyone was enjoying his lunch.

The hike to the top was pretty steep in places. If you couldn't make it standing up you crawled up on your hands and knees (coming back you sat on your snowshoes and slid down). It was well worth the effort when you reached the top. The view was magnificent.

On our way back we found the fire still burning and the water in the coffee pot boiling so we enjoyed hot drinks again. After chatting a while we picked up our packs and started back to the cars. All in all it was a very enjoyable day.

SMOKE & BLAZES

Vol. 17, No. 2 - KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - Mar.-Apr. 1964

COMING EVENTS

by
Susan Tarbell

Up Mendon Mountain we'll go,
It's a bushwhacking trip you know,
We'll leave Meldon at 9:00,
And we'll have a good time,
So on May 2nd - let's go.

May 17th is a Sunday,
And East Mountain is our goal,
It truly should be a fun day,
Be at Meldon at 10:00 if you go.

On May 31st is a trip we all like,
The spring flowers should make an interesting hike,
We'll leave Meldon at 10:00,
Go to Pico and then,
We will eat and come home when we like.

Bird Mountain is a favorite of mine,
The view is simply divine,
June 13 is the date,
Please don't be late,
Cause we're leaving the school
at 9:00.

The Killington Section has been requested to furnish the coffee and donuts for the "Get Acquainted Hour" at the Annual Meeting of the Green Mountain Club to be held at the Long Trail Lodge, Saturday, May 30th.

We will need a few folks to volunteer to help with this project which will probably last from 9:00 to 10:15 AM. Anyone willing to do this, please contact President Harold Valiquette or Churchill Scott.

TRAILS and SHELTERS REPORT

Once again as the snow slowly recedes up the mountains we must think of putting our section of the Long Trail and its shelters in first class shape for the coming hiking season.

This year it is more imperative than ever, for in addition to the Annual Meeting in May, the A.T.C. gathering in June at Stratton Mt. and the recent article in FORD TIMES by Fran. Green about hiking the Long Trail has brought many inquiries to the main club for information about the Long Trail.

We have over 30 miles of main and side trails to maintain plus 6 shelters. It is hardly fair to expect Ben Rolston, who lives 100 miles away, to almost single-handedly take care of our section.

There are over 100 members in our group and it certainly seems that more than 3 or 4 could be able to attend the very infrequent work parties we schedule.

This year we hope to cover the entire section to continue the good work started last year. Each camp will have to have a great deal of odds and ends done to it. Clarendon Gorge bridge must be checked and given a good coat of creosote.

Work parties will be scheduled for each Saturday that a regular hike is not planned.

Anyone able to help please contact W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St. Rutland, Vt. 05701. Tel 5-5720.

THE LONG TRAIL NEWS

It has been brought to our attention that some members are not on the mailing list for The Long Trail News.

If anyone is not receiving a copy please notify W. Churchill Scott, Secretary-Treasurer.

BUFFUM LODGE
by
Vera Perkins

There are some of us who always maintain that a good winter outing just can't be beat. Saturday, February 22nd seemed made to order for such an outing, Clear, snappy weather, good snowshoeing, and cozy Buffum Lodge for our destination. All that was lacking was the crowd! However, we started off gaily with one car load - and we do mean load! Eleanor Walker, Churchill, Janet Martin, Carol, Nancy, Betsy and Tommy Martin, all squeezed into Vera's car and we were on our way.

After parking at the Trail crossing on the Gulf Road, we donned snowshoes and enjoyed a leisurely hike up snow covered hills to Buffum. There we found a good supply of wood, and the fire was soon crackling merrily and the stove sending out a welcome warmth.

The "mitten line" above the stove was appreciated and used to capacity. So too, the "sitting space" on the bench around the stove.

We were soon joined by Michael Wiley and his sister and brother who were visiting him in Chittenden, and by George Reynolds and son John.

After lunch the junior members enjoyed building snow tunnels and forts, providing a fresh supply of damp mittens for "the line". The rest did a little picking up, loafed around the fire, turned the mittens as needed, and exchanged the customary wise-cracks.

About 2:30, having decided there would be no more arrivals and the mitten supply being completely exhausted, we started the return trip. This was made the easy way by some of the youngest using a snowshoe as a toboggan.

About half way down we exchanged greetings with Marjorie Burditt and Doris Newton who were making the trip as an afternoon jaunt.

Arriving at the car, we peeled the wet clothing from the juniors, wrapped them in sweaters and car robes and proceeded happily on our way to Rutland.

RUMMAGE SALE NETS $102.48

Killington Section's 16th Rummage Sale was held on Saturday Feb. 29th. The usual crowd was assembled in the lobby of the Marble Bank awaiting the opening of the gate and business was brisk for the first 2 hours. After that a steady trickle of customers throughout most of the day gradually pushed the sales up over our goal of "at least $100".

A willing and able committee was on hand Friday, collecting, setting up tables, sorting, marking and arranging. The same workers, augmented by several additional volunteers, helped out on Saturday. This extra help was especially welcome in the early part of the day as the first hour of a Rummage Sale is always a "rush hour". The stand-bys who were on hand for the clean-up deserve a special vote of thanks. This is a discouraging part of the project if help is scarce.

We are continually amazed at the amount of rummage our small group of GMCers can round up year after year. Without these faithful contributors there could of course be no sale.

The fact that this sale was held at a different time of year appeared to make no appreciable difference in the results. However, most of the workers felt that our usual fall date has some advantages. So we will probably have our next sale next fall. We realize this brings two rather close together so start now to collect all those things you overlooked or couldn't decide to part with this time.

With plenty of help, working on these sales is really fun. We look forward to seeing our regular customers each year and to what your attics and cupboards will produce for us to sell. It's nice too, to have money in our treasury for needed projects as they arise. So start now, get set for our 17th Rummage Sale.

SUNNYSIDE TRIP by Ann Reynolds

From the first arrival (Susan Tarbell, who had hiked in from Wallingford and gotten the fire going) to the last (Churchill Scott, who arrived just in time to have a cup of coffee and turn around to start back), all 32 people who took part in the Sunnyside outing on March 8th enjoyed an early glimpse of spring.

Pussywillows were in bud, and the road was not so much snow as MUD. Most of the intrepid drivers went all the way to the clearing beyond Spring Lake Ranch, but Craig Perkins extended his hike by parking at the bottom of the road.

Youngsters of all ages were in the group, as well as a dog or two, and the shelter was really humming with activity. (Item: Fernand Bartlett was catching a nap while one of the smallest GMC'ers was trying to rouse him.

A highlight of the trip was the unveiling of the handsome Killington Section banner which President Harold Valiquette presented to the Club.

Ben Rolston, President of the main Club, dropped in long enough to make a few announcements and tell of his week-end adventures. Several people from Spring Lake Ranch joined us for the morning, and when they expressed an interest in hiking to Clarendon Gorge, Geo. Reynolds was a willing companion.

There were a number of new faces in the group, and we hope they will be with us often.

GOVERNOR CLEMENT by Doris Newton

Perhaps the March 21st outing should have been called "open house" at Gov. Clement. People arrived and departed at different times and by different routes. We even hear that two members did not arrive at all - Churchill Scott and George Reynolds went up the Long Trail from the Lower to Upper Roads, studied the tracks at the bridge - decided that everyone had left and so came out themselves.

By whatever route or at whatever time one arrived (or didn't arrive) it was a perfect day to be out-of-doors. There was still a good deal of snow in the woods, but the track was so well packed that snowshoes were not necessary.

As Marjorie Burditt and I came up the road, we were joined by a large and amiable dog. It seems that the GMCers bound for Governor Clement are usually joined by him. Maybe he should be made official Governor Clement mascot?

It was pleasant to hear voices as we approached the shelter, to smell woodsmoke, and to see the famous big black coffee pot on the fireplace. I'm sure we all went home with the feeling, well known to GMC members, of a pleasant day, well spent in the open.

SUGAR ON SNOW PARTY
by W. Churchill Scott

The Annual Sugar-On-Snow party of the Killington Section was held on Saturday, April 4th at the Universalist Church.

Even the weatherman helped to provide new snow which Pete Hadeke, Patrick Riordan and Harold V. gathered near the Long Trail Lodge Saturday morning. In the afternoon Mary Ellen Connors helped the boys fill the 80 cartons.

Along the middle of the afternoon the workers began to boil the syrup and the sweet aroma filled the entire hall. Carol, Betsy and Nancy Martin helped set the tables.

At 6:00 PM the guests began to arrive and soon we had the largest group in the history of our sugar-on-snow parties. About 80 persons including 7 Trustees of the main Club enjoyed the sugar, donuts and coffee, as well as Jack Martin's music and the usual talk fest about past experiences on the trail and planning things to do in the future.

Following is a list of additional members paid to April 17th. You can still pay your dues ($2.00 for adults, 50¢ for juniors) to W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt. 05701. This issue of "Smoke and Blazes" will be the last one mailed to the 1963 list.

Vol. 17, No. 3 - KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - May-June 1964

COMING EVENTS by Susan Tarbell

Baker Peak
Nice treat
June 28
Sunday's the date
Meldon at 10
See you then.

Let's have enough at Sucker Brook
So we can trade cars at the trail
Some come in from Mt. Horrid cliff
And some from the Lake Pleiad trail
So July 11 from Meldon school at 9:00 we'll go
Shake your bones, leave your troubles at home
It's only 9 miles - Tally---Ho!

We're going to Tinmouth
Where?
We're going to Tinmouth
Why?
We're going to Tinmouth
To see what's to see
And when we get there
We'll decide.
Meldon - July 26 (Sunday) 10:00

Mystery Hike (Saturday)
We know what day we're going-Aug 8
We know what time we're leaving-9:00
We know who's taking us-Terry Gulick
We know where to start - Meldon
So what's the mystery?
Where we are going!!!
Come dressed for anything
From caving to climbing.

Aeolus - Aug. 23 - Sunday
This one we got lost on
The last time we went up
We got out of the woods all right
But without any sup
No kidding tho this hike is fun
And there is a cave to see
So leave with us from Meldon
You all come now, it's Sunday.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Our section has again received a very generous gift from Mr. Lincoln Isham for use to help maintain our trails and shelters. Mr. Isham's generosity for a number of years has enabled the Killington Section to keep its trails and shelters in very excellent condition and we are all very grateful for this help.

TUCKER LODGE

Peter Hadeka

The party of eight hikers left Meldon School at 10 A.M. Sunday. Soon after arriving at our hiking point we were joined by a group of Castleton State College boys.

After the stove pipe was repaired by Harold V. and Craigie P. and ample firewood was gathered by the boys, we proceeded with the fire and the hot water. As the first of the small group sat down to eat their lunches we were joined by more and more members until the day's total reached 26 hikers.

Side trips of the day included Deer Leap and other little mountain summits nearby. It was a most enjoyable day in which many merely sat in the sun and soaked up the fine spring weather.

MENDON MOUNTAIN

Patrick Riordan

On Sat. May 2nd Craigie, Churchill and I took off for Mendon at about 9:15 AM in Craigie's car.

We took the road to Governor Clement Shelter. Before we got there we left the car in a small clearing off to the side of the road. When we reached the shelter we signed the new register. Then we started up the trail to Cooper Lodge. About halfway up we stopped to eat. We then cut off the trail and went up the mountain. It was pretty hard going with no trail to follow.

We finally reached a shoulder of Mendon. For a while the three of us did a little looking around. At times we weren't too sure of ourselves but thanks to Craigie and Churchill's skillful guiding we got back safe and sound.

On our way back we cut down the side of the mountain to save time - the going was rugged. Another day well spent.

WHERE HAS EAST MOUNTAIN GONE?

Fernand Bartlett

For a variety of reasons and lack of numbers the East Mt. May 17 hike missed the area by a wide mark. It was go south boys, so south for an eventful and sunny jog near Clement to Clarendon Gorge.

Enthusiastic Mark Pfenning led the group a merry chase and run on, off across the trail. Daniel Boone would have found him an apt and enthusiastic companion. With Terry Gulick keeping all happy with endless discovery of 7 varieties of violets, crinkle root, painted and red trillium, dog-tooth violet, cowslip, oceans of wild strawberries (sorry only in flower) wild columbine, pink lady-slippers, etc.

Heard and/or seen among the birds scarlet tanager, red breasted grosbeak, robins, red-yellow throats, song thrush, white throated sparrow, oven bird, catbird and some others.

The luscious scenery, rushing streams, swaying evergreen forest did on rare occasion distract from the nature lore hunt. Pat Riordan who nobly protected the rear was detailed to keep his sharp lookout for Okra. This strange and mysterious beast was continually brought to the hikers attention by numerous notes left by previous UVM geology field trippers. We still are trying to learn whether Pat was able to corner the Okra market thru his halo of mosquitoes. Our impression at times being that if he continued to swing his arms any faster at his mosquito monopoly, he would be the next man in space.

Chance meeting on the trail were 11 students from Putney School and 2 staff who trekked from Old Job to north of Clarendon. At Clarendon Lodge about 26 from Springfield rushed Beacon Hill and we suspect 80 years young Mr. Aldrich was first on all counts. A young miss hailing from Argentina only regret on her trip "do we have to leave such a beautiful place".

We are still in need of help to discover the meaning of a comment of Mark's as we entered the cow pasture on the far side of Beacon Hill. "Watch out for all the country fudge"???

ANNUAL MEETING
Churchill Scott

The Annual Meeting of G.M.C was held at the Long Trail Lodge on Saturday May 30th.

Killington Section had charge of the get together coffee hour before the meeting and Vera, Thelma, Harold and Churchill poured and served.

Very cool, clear and windy weather helped to keep the black flies away and boost the attendance to about 125 (a record we believe). Killington Section was very well represented with about 32 members present.

Bob Humes was elected President by the Board of Trustees to replace Ben Rolston. Ben has certainly done a wonderful job for the past two years and we feel the Club owes him a great deal of thanks.

THE SEARCH ON PICO
M. G. Wiley

On Sunday May 31 at 10:30 A.M. Ferd. Bertlett, Peter Hadeka and I left Meldon School with every expectation of finding at least a dozen more Killington Section people on Pico. The weather was fine and we were sure to have a fine trip. On reaching the parking lot at Long Trail Lodge we found only one familiar car and that belonged to a friend of Ferd's who we did not locate either. Where had everyone gone? Were we on the right mountain? Where were Craigie and Churchill? Oh! they are at the shelter already of course---so we began to climb the 3,900 ft. peak.

Our first encounter with another mammal was a small chipmunk and we tiptoed past so as not to disturb him. Farther up the trail we met a man and his wife and oddly the man was lying in the grass. As we approached we found that he was taking a picture of a maroon or red trillium--supposed to be rare in this area? The trillium became the topic of conversation over the rest of the trip. We agreed that photos were the best method of collecting wild flowers, however there was much speculation as to how rare this maroon trillium really was. As we climbed they became more and more

- 3- frequent with sometimes as many as 20 in a single area.

By now we were sure that our Killington section was on top having lunch and enjoying the view. Water temperature at the spring was 37°. We again began to climb and got our first taste of bushwacking as we lost or never started on the trail. It was slow going zig-zagging over blow downs and crawling thru low spruce. Suddenly without any warning from a large clump of low spruce on our right we came on the trail. We proceeded most rapidly up the remaining few hundred feet to the summit but still no sign of anyone - not even the look-out tower. This was the first time any of us had seen Pico without the tower and it was not a pleasant sight. The peak was littered with rubbish and its face was torn with scars left by heavy machinery. The ranger's cabin was in a similar shambles and we sat down to contemplate the fate of this mighty peak. With our spirits dampened it took a little time to decide that it was time to head down but we now had a problem. Which route should we take? Finally we decided upon the road which crossed the newly cut lift line.

As we descended our spirits livened and we soon entered Pico's famous Sunset Schuss trail which Ferd had skied in the days past. We found the walking much easier with wild flowers and grass at our feet instead of the rocks and gravel of the road. The water temperature here was 39° and Ferd and Peter quipped that we might soon be overcome by heat exhaustion. When we reached the tower at the head of the main ski area it seemed to challenge us, after all we had climbed the mighty Pico, and although the stairs were broken and the railing was shaky we climbed on. On top the view was beautiful but our unsteady vantage point seemed to be trying to tell us something as it creaked under our weight. When Ferd suggested that the platform would be a fine place for a square dance Peter and I decided the altitude was too much for him and convinced him that we better head down.

Upon reaching the parking lot we

Upon reaching the parking lot we⁻⁴ still saw no familiar Killington Sec. cars and decided to give up the search. We returned tired but happy GMCers after a fine trip and only regretted that more could not have enjoyed the fun.

BIRD MOUNTAIN SOLO

M. G. Wiley

It was rainy but looked like a fine day for a Green Mt. Club hike. After waiting for a half hour I decided the crew must have already left so off to Bird Mt. I ventured expecting to find hikers. I had been to Bird before and in my estimation it is one of the most beautiful mountains and views in the Rutland area. It is a fine example of the Taconic mountains and although not as high as some of the Green Mts. certainly as good a climb.

I did not go south far enough when starting and as a result had to climb and descend two other smaller peaks before getting to the summit of Bird. It was misty and a bit rainy at times but just as lovely as ever. Looking across to Pico and Killington one could see these two summits seemingly floating on an ocean of clouds.

I returned via the trail doing some clearing as I went and would like to suggest that the Club - with the permission of land owners - again take the responsibility of keeping this trail open. It was a fine trip in spite of the rain and I still think that Bird Mt. is one of the finest in the area. How about coming along next time and judging for yourself.

FAREWELL TO KIP

Kip - the big black pack dog of Caroline Parmenter's has passed away. A recent note from Frances Green, Caroline's long time friend, told us this news.

Kip made friends with the Killington section about 1950-51 at Stratton Mt. where his mistress was fire warden. When they transferred to Pico he made many new admirers with his ability to travel down to the spring and return with full water jugs on his back. All he asked was that someone be there to fill them. In recent years his activities were curtailed by old age and arthritis but many of us will always remember him striding up and down the slopes of Pico.

TRAILS AND SHELTERS

W. Churchill Scott

Terry Gulick and Churchill Scott have been out on work parties a number of times clearing the trail up Pico. On Sunday June 21st at the urging of Wm. Mitchell of Worcester, Mass. we are having a work party to do as much trail clearing as possible on Pico and on toward Killington. Also any work on Pico Camp that is necessary. There will be more work parties this summer so how about some of the members who did not go on the last work party getting out and doing their bit.

The Trails and Shelters Comm. have decided to furnish the meals for the members of work parties as was the custom years ago during the 1950's. If anyone has any suggestions to offer we'll be very glad to hear them.

MYSTERY HIKE AUG. 8th

Destination - A part of Vermont

For a treat of a Vermont phenomenon unknown to many, the much talked about Mystery Hike scheduled for Sat. Aug. 8th will provide a spectacle that only camera can record! To be led by Terry Gulick of Castleton, the hike will start from Meldon at 10 A.M. using motor vehicles for the initial phase. Walking will be the final method of reaching the mystery destination. Total one way distance by foot is estimated at 3 (or so) miles. Recommended to bring: waterproof footwear (boots or bare feet), camera, lunch and a cup, and a jeep if you or your friends have one.

Make the summer complete by including the Mystery Hike in your plans -- Remember the date Saturday August 8th''''

The Intersectional's coming at last
The information's enclosed, come have a blast.

Vol. 17, No. 3 - KILLINGTON SECTION

GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - July-Aug. 1964

COMING EVENTS by Susan Tarbell

Sunday Sept. 20

A compass, a road map
A spy glass and lunch,
Are what you will need
If you follow my hunch.

For we're going up Stratton
(There's a view at the top)
And we'll have to leave early 9:00 by my watch.

So meet me at Meldon
In warm hiking togs
And we head up Mt. Stratton
And hope there's no fog.

P.S. For the less energetic a ski lift ($2.00) will bring you to within a flat 3/4 mile of the fire tower where we will eat lunch.
The view is tremendous.

Sunday Oct. 4th -

A mystery hike again I see
I wonder where this one will be,
It might be high if the color's good
Or it might be low, a walk in the wood
So if you have a mystery hike yen
Meet Terry at Meldon, he's leaving
at 10:00

Saturday, Oct. 17th

East Mountain again for this foliage season
I wonder if the view is the reason
If you would go, be at Meldon
at 9:00
and come on everyone, you'll have a good time.

Saturday, Oct. 24th

Many people like food. They like to look at it, eat it, make it, or smell it.
If you belong to one of these categories I would strongly suggest that you be at Beechwood for a covered dish supper on Oct. 24th at 6:00. And, please, don't tell anybody or we will be crowded.
Call 773-2941 by Friday, Oct. 23rd for reservations. Plan to bring along one of your favorite dishes for everyone to taste.

Sunday, Nov. 1st

Weaklings don't come
This is work for men
We're having a work party
Leave Meldon at 10:00
We'll go where we're needed
That should be fun 'cause
We're needed most everywhere
Come on gang, let's run.

(Ladies see next page.)

Now ladies don't cry
You're needed there, too
Who else do you think's
Going to lug in the stew.
By stew, I mean food
A conglomeration.
Let's make something special,
Have a celebration.

Sunday, Nov. 15th, Meldon at 10:00
Here's the nearest hike
To the snowy season
It may be your last chance to hike without freezin'.

So come up to Pico, the Gang will be there
Get clean air in your lungs
And pine in your hair.

Saturday, Nov. 14th -RUMMAGE SALE at the Neighborhood Rooms, Marble Savings Bank Building. Anything that anyone can spare in the line of clothing, dishes, nicknacks, books, toys, etc. will be appreciated. There will be someone at the rooms Friday, Nov. 13th, after 9 o'clock. If you can't bring your articles in, call Craigue
Perkins 773-7954 or Harold Valiquette
773-8422 and they will pick them up.

BAKER PEAK
Harriot Bryant - Dorset

Hiked into the Peak on the new section of trail from USF.S. #10, admiring the new shelter and suspension bridge over Big Branch.
A beautiful sunny day and fine hiking. The new section is great!
My Welsh Corgi friend and I enjoye ed every inch and were welcomed by Mike Wiley and two friends on the Peak. They came as scheduled from the McGinn Brook Trail (right straight up they said). Mike had a fire going in no time for coffee and treated us to cookies while we waited for the others and enjoyed the fine panorama below us and in all directions. The rest of the party did not arrive and Laurie Berglie and Susan Wiley decided they would like to walk back with me. Enjoyed their company and Mike was waiting for them when we emerged from the woods on #10.

P.S. The rest of the party had left a note that they had gone home.

SUCKER BROOK
Florence Herrick

On July 11th an enthusiastic twelve people from Springfield joined the Killington Section of G.M.C. on the 9.8 mile hike from Brandon Gap to Middlebury Gap. Although it was a very warm day, a cool breeze was felt along the mountain ridges.

After climbing Mt. Horrid, Cape Lookout, White Rocks and Romance Mt.
we arrived at Sucker Brook Shelter newly constructed by the U.S.
Forestry Department. We stayed here to eat lunch and catch our breaths before climbing Mt. Worth and the long trek home. It is worth mentioning that the woods were very lush with vegetation.
Wood sorrell was evident as were several species of fern.

A variety of ages was represented in the group with hikers ranging from 10 to 80 summers. A variety of hiking speeds was also represented, as Churchill Scott can confirm! The octogenarian not only held his own but put those half his age to shame by bush-wacking to the top of Romance Mt.
This was a long, arduous trip but a day well spent in the peace and serenity of the woodland trail.

MYSTERY HIKE
A mystery of interest

With warm, threatening weather on tap, and an hour's hopeful wait at Meldon, the small but enthusiastic hikers left for destinations unknown to anyone but the leader, Terry Gulick. (One report was heard that the mystery was so mysterious, some parties became apprehensive about it, and so, did not turn out.)

All kidding aside, the group, consisting of the leader, Les

Pfenning, and a group of youngsters from Castleton, headed south towards the junction and after much guessing found the NW heading south on U.S. 7.

Winding along through Wallingford South Wallingford, the course remained unchanged down into Denby and Mt. Tabor, on that new stretch of 60 MPH highway.

Suddenly, after slowing down and the course changed---No, not to Baker's Peak, or the Green Mts., but a right hand turn into the Taconics! Up a paved road, under the Vermont Marble Railway, and the old country road (as we were told to call it) until we came to a stop.

A while later, after some walking, a landmark---an arrow and a path, and a cave!!! Exploring the entrance, it was concluded that a return trip was in order. Returning to the road, the hike continued until a bridge (in good condition) was approached. Then, a left hand turn into a brook (dry), and suddenly a gorge opened up ahead. Under rocks and through wide crevasses the group trudged on 'til a natural foot bridge was discovered overhead, then, more gorge, and a picnic spot! right in the middle of the brook bed.

Lots of fun. As a matter of fact the gang wants to go again. Join them this fall. See the schedule.

TRAILS AND SHELTERS W. Churchill Scott

As the summer hiking season draws to a close the Trails and Shelters Committee wants to thank all the members that have worked so much to make our section of the Long Trail so well kept.

There are numerous entries in the registers at the various shelters expressing amazement and appreciation for the very well cleared and marked trails and the snug clean shelters.

Nevertheless there are many small details that must be done at our various shelters to get them ready to go through another Vermont winter.

If anyone is willing and able to help please contact W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt. Phone 5-5720.

According to a number of reports the suspension bridge over Mill River is in very great need of extensive repairs. President Harold Valiquette is going to inspect it and if there is any work that he feels the members can do, we will have a work party leaving Meldon School on Saturday Sept. 26th at 1:30 PM. Anyone willing and able to go can contact W. Churchill Scott. Phone 5-5720 for more details.

INTERSECTIONAL 1964 LAKE EDEN Janet Martin

The Martins, all 7, accompanied by Vera Perkins spent three days at the Intersectional at Lake Eden. Sunday, Aug. 30th, was a beautiful day when we left Rutland about 10 AM. After lunching at a way-side park we arrived at Lake Eden about 2:30, chose a camp site which would get the morning sun, and proceeded to set up our two umbrella tents.

Ours went up in a breeze but Craigue's, which we had borrowed, proved to be a bit more of a problem. However, we finally got it up with only a slight list! and got our corn cooking for supper.

In the evening there was the usual gathering in the main lodge with singing which Jack accompanied on the accordin, followed by a park service movie about Yosemite Park.

Monday we awakened to threatening skies and the heavens opened up in the middle of breakfast. It became necessary from time to time to dump the water from the large tent fly we had rigged up in front of the tents. We had planned to try Owl's Head in Canada but the periodic showers discouraged us and we settled for a swim and tramping around camp.

Monday night's entertainment was much the same with a movie on Trans Canada. The hikers reported several showers and we were glad we had stayed in camp.

Tuesday morning we spent breaking camp and drying out the canvas. Following lunch we headed for home.

Following is a list of additional members to date -

H. Minerva Hinchey
Paul Magoon
Frances H. Roberts
Katherine E. Roberts
Richard N. Roberts
Raymond A. Catozzi
Mrs. Jean S. Davies
Father Raymond A. Giroux
Kenneth A. Laplant
Kenneth R. Laplant
James Watson Jutte
Joseph Pyne O'Ryan
Susan Tarbell

Harold Valiquette received the following letter from Bob Humes, President of the Main Club. Let's make a special effort to attend the dedication.

"I would like to inform you about a new shelter dedication on the Long Trail so you can pass the information along to your section.

The new Sunrise Shelter, replacing old Sunrise Camp, has now been completed by Roy Buchanan, and the trail crew. As you probably know this is located one mile south of Brandon Gap, (Route 73) on the Long Trail. We plan to have a dedication at the shelter on October 11, 1964, Sunday 11:30 AM.

Mr. Mortimer Proctor, an old friend of the Club has donated the cost of labor and materials and made it a gift to the Green Mountain Club. Any who might be up in that section on a foliage trip are invited to attend the exercises. Please spread the information in your section.

Happy Hiking
(signed) Bob Humes, President G.M.C.

NEW SCHEDULES

The new fall and winter hike schedules are enclosed. The Outing Committee hopes that these hikes will meet with your approval and if any extra copies are desired they are available from C. Perkins, H. Valiquette or C. Scott.

Vol. 17, No. 5 - KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB Fall 1964

COMING EVENTS by Susan Tarbell

Good gracious, it's Gov. Clement time, and
On Sunday again this year, so grab your lunch and Volley forth before the snow you must fear.

Come and meet us at Meldon School
and Let us be your guide. We'll show you a camp
Erected with stone in 1929.

Many's the pleasure that is in store
behind
Now if you'd be there on
November 29
Ten o'clock would be on time.

Come one, come all and Let us begin to erase
All our Thanksgiving dining,
Really, you should come to Clarendon

E're the Christmas season starts winding, at Nine o'clock we will be on our way
Don't try to reach there after
On December 12 we'll meet at our school, and let
No one forget to bring laughter.

Moon light is best for many things
and
One of them is hiking

Or if you prefer a-Nother term maybe showshoeing's to your Liking.

If so, and you want to join the Gang, we'll gather on 12/19

Here's to Tucker Lodge and our
Moonlight hike
Time for take off 7:13.

Sunnyside is not too far, only
Up one rise, so come and bring your Neighbors or your Nephew or Your bride.
Sunday is the day to come
It's january three so Dig out your knapsack and long woolen wear
Else you all are liable to freeze.

Green Mountain clubers, the time has come,
If I read this schedule right, when Robust hikers gather inside to give fire and
Light, we'll play a few games and

Sing a few songs and some will go out in the Cold, all will do whatever they wish Or maybe whatever they're told. The Usual procedure (meet at Meldon at nine) will again work
Today, but if you are late, don't worry much

Cause you can come anyway.

At the Rotary Cabin you'll find us all Munching on food hot and cold, so
Pack up your games and your sandwiches, come along now, do as you are told.

Buffum is the place we'll be
Up the hill and over the tree
Fun and laughter, snow galore
Few G&Cers dare ask for more Unless I'm wrong and I

-2- Must be right

Life starts at Buffum

On Sunday night NO

Daylight it is (Leave from Meldon at ten)

Guys and gals this trip is the End of January the 31st.

To tell the honest to goodness truth

All's not as it should be, I may be

Lying when I say to meet on Feb one three and

Lying again about Craigie Perkins' camp and also about

The time, but elsewhere

In this nice news sheet the details

Might be there to find

But whatever does happen I know one thing

Every one will have a ball so spaghetti fans heed this call.

STRATTON MOUNTAIN
W. Churchill Scott

On Sunday Sept. 20th a hike was held to Stratton Mt. and pond. It will long be remembered by each and every hiker for various reasons.
Some for riding backwards, other for not knowing whether we were flying or riding and for one it was his first hike with such a controversial group. Our route via the Manchest-ers, Bromley, Jamaicas and Wards-boros covered a lot of road with our wheels touching most of the time.

After a threat of rain the weather cleared, sun shone and visibility improved as we ascended the mountain.
A pleasant feature along the trail was the rustic benches placed at the various lookouts along with signs pointing out the prominent landmarks. Terry Gulick caught up with us along the way. Mrs. Harriot Bryant of Dorset, (who was fire lookout on Stratton Mt. after Caroline Parmenter and her dog) joined us for lunch. After enjoying the excellent view in every direction, visiting with a group that came up the lift and hiked over from the north peak, Mr. Weeks and Mr. Cahoe of Springfield returned to the cars and the rest of the group continued on to the pond.

Passing a number of beaver dams we arrived at Willis Ross Lodge where the fast hikers had a fire going and hot water for a good coffee break. The lodge was in good shape and the pond looked good too.

We had to make tracks soon for the cars and everyone hurried to get out of the woods before dark. On the way we met Mr. Coleman, a trustee of the G.M.C. from the Brattleboro section, and his wife going in to Bourne Pond for the night.

Upon arriving at the road we continued along to the Webster marker erected to commemorate Mr. Webster's speech to a Whig Convention in July 1840. As we stood there it was hard to picture a gathering of 15,000 people where now is heard only the rustle of the wind in the leaves and the occasional passing of a wild animal.

At last we fastened our safety belts, held our breaths and took off. Terry almost had some fresh venison when an old deer did not bother to look before he crossed the road. Again Stratton mountain favored us with very wonderful weather and each trip there is more enjoyable than the last and more members should try to come along.

OCTOBER MYSTERY HIKE
An Adventuresome Success
by Terry Gulick

With colorful scenery and ideal weather conditions, Killington Section members followed Mystery Hike Leader Terry Gulick to destinations unknown Sunday Oct. 4.

The trip originally scheduled during the summer, was attended by 22 GMCers and guests who kept prodding their hike guide as to what was so mysterious about it all. They soon found the answer.

After meeting the Springfield delegation at the Vermont Marble Co. quarry tracks on U.S. 7, the entourage motored over nearly vertical inclines to a point on the so-called "County Road" on Dorset mountain. The hike then began. First stop: the water fountain nicely located beside the road which, after ascending the mountain a short way, eased south for a distance before rising up further on the big rock conglomerate, one of several composing the Taconic Range on the western side of Vermont.

Many, many steps later, after taking inventory of the butternut trees and this year's production, tension built as the gang learned that part of the mystery was to unfold. A sudden right turn off the trail and a short walk brought the hikers to a large rock formation with a deep cavity leading into an underground cave. Much exploration ensued.

Lunch became the order of events next. Craigie Perkins and John Paddock took charge of fire building operations, and with freshly heated drip water from the rocks, a sort of drip instant coffee was consumed by those assembled! After some more cave exploring, the group terminated the mysterious walk by descending a gorge which at times is part of a brook. This body of water apparently was vacationing at the time. Suddenly, to the surprise of the outdoorsmen, a natural foot bridge appeared before the group. Not all parties cared to try it out, but others photographed it, walked across it, ran, or just simply napped on it awhile.

Rock specialists found the trip a field day. Others enjoyed the two unusual sights and the rest enjoyed the colorful foliage along the hike route.

THE EAST MOUNTAIN HIKE By Doris Newton

It must be the fates don't want us on East Mountain. On the very day of the hike the woods were closed south of Route 4. A bit of discussion at Melton resulted in a decision for Tucker Lodge, and a little car spotting made it possible to vary our routes.

Some went in by the regular route, and some by the Long Trail. While the coffee brewed, the men rebuilt the steps and repaired a window. Folks of all ages kept arriving until there were 26 present; about 16 junior members among them.

After lunch departures began in the same way. Some went back by the regular route and two groups came out by the trail to the "Old Turnpike Road" where a car waiting at Craigie Perkins' camp returned drivers to cars on the Mountain Road. East Mountain still awaits exploration, but even so, the day was a most pleasant one.

COVERED DISH SUPPER By Eleanor Walker

The Annual Covered Dish supper at Beechwood on Oct. 24th was attended by the usual fine crowd of about 40 members and guests.

Vera Perkins went to Beechwood at 10:30 and built three fires so by the time the first guests arrived the house was toasty.

The adults liked the fires so sat around and talked while the children played out doors until called to supper at 6:30. The young people were starved and could hardly wait their turn in line to fill their plates. The food was delicious and plenty of it so that no one went away hungry.

After supper, Mr. Alex Nagy entertained the group by showing pictures of the Mystery Hike to Dorset Mountain and the hike up Killington showing the snow on the trees and bushes after the early snow storm.

Thanks to Vera Perkins another Covered Dish Supper and evening was enjoyed at Beechwood.

PICO by W. Churchill Scott

Six of us hiked up Pico Nov. 15th. After dinner Alex Nagy, Marc Pfenning and Betty Gilman hiked up to the top. The view was excellent. The rest of us excused the cabin as far as we could reach. Replaced a pane of glass and cleaned up the cabin. After we got through working around the cabin Terry Gulick, Marc Pfenning and I went out as far as the Big Swamp to see how you could get the trail past there without being so wet, but here wasn't much that could be done. Craigie Perkins stayed around the cabin and worked, Terry Gulick jumped a good size deer. It was getting dark so we had to hurry down.

RUMMAGE SALE

Our 17th Rummage Sale was held Saturday Nov. 14th at the Neighborhood rooms in the Maple Savings Bank Building. We netted about $60.00. This is the first time we have gone below the $100 mark. We had about the usual amount of clothing but we had very few items for the "Cutlery and Miscellaneous" tables.

There have been a number of rummage sales this fall and probably we were a little late with ours. Next fall we hope to have it earlier - so start saving now. Thanks to everyone who contributed and worked.

We will soon be making up new schedules. If you have a special hike you would like included please let us know.

Since the last issue of "Smoke & Blazes" the Trails and Shelters Committee has been bushwhacking. A work party at the Mill River Bridge straightened the towers, tightened the horizontal cables, leveled the catwalk and added extra cable to secure the towers in position. The next day Harold Valiquette gave it a coat of creosote. Now all that remains is another coat of creosote and some grading around the approaches.

On Nov. 1st our work party spent the morning at Buffum. Mr. & Mrs. Weeks and Mr. Cahoe of Springfield met us there and everyone pitched in and repaired the steps, cleaned up the yard, swept the cabin, moved the stove to secure the pipe, creosoted the cabin to window level and replaced glass. The water was soon boiling away so we ceased our labors to eat and visit a while.

The Springfield folks left and the rest journeyed to Sunnyside where the camp was found to be in perfect shape.

Clarendon Camp was also visited and found to be in good shape. Clarendon and Sunny-side will soon need new stoves. Otherwise the shelters are in very good condition.

The Bronze Plaque in memory of James P. Taylor, the Father of the Long Trail, has been placed on a large boulder at the Long Trail Lodge.

The Annual Meeting is going to be held Friday January 22nd at the Central Vermont Public Service rooms. Please keep this in mind. There will be a notice in the Herald.

COMING HIKES

CLARENDON LODGE - Sunday Feb. 28th
10 AM. Meet at Meldon School. Another hike to Ben Rolston's favorite. See the new stove in action. Help repair camp. If good snowshoeing visit old cellar hole, mill site, dam and cemetery of early 19th Century settlers.

TUCKER LODGE - Saturday, March 13th,
10 AM. Meet at Meldon School. Snow shoes will probably be needed for this trip. Come early - stay late - enjoy pleasant company and surroundings. Be prepared to talk over plans for spring work parties.

BUFFUM LODGE - Sunday, March 28th,
10 AM. Meet at Meldon School. A new idea will be tried this trip. Depending on snow conditions, a hike will be attempted to Sunnyside. If some wish they can go to top of Button Hill and east along prominent ridge with good views along the way.

SUGAR-ON-SNOW PARTY - Saturday
April 10, 6 PM at Mendon Grange Hall. Here is another big affair of our section. We will need help to make this another successful party. We have planned this to coincide with the Trustees' meeting so plan to attend and meet some folks from other sections. A nominal charge will be made to meet the expenses.

EAST MOUNTAIN - Saturday, April 24th
9AM. Meet at Meldon. Here is our old nemesis again. Please note the 9-00 AM starting time for this will be an exploratory hike, covering new ground to most of us. Bring a good lunch and walking shoes.

GOVERNOR CLEMENT

The weather was cold and threatening as a small group of us left Meldon for Governor Clement. Alex, Marc, Don and Churchill finally got a ride to the Four Corners where we parked the car. A short hike up the road brought us to the oldest shelter in our section and the only open front structure between Sucker Brook and Greenwall.

After a good meal and hot drinks from the old coffee pot the pros and cons of trying to improve this shelter were discussed. All suggestions will be appreciated.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

A thank you is due to Ray Secor for his gift to help purchase a new stove for Clarendon Lodge.

CLARENDON LODGE

The early snow fall made walking rather hard but Harold and Churchill followed tracks into Clarendon hoping to find others there with some hot water for that delicious cup of instant coffee, but all there was, was a note in the register from Ben Rolston saying he was checking Sunnyside and Buffum and returning to spend the night.

The cabin was creosoted and the fire started for Ben. It was soon time to leave and a bit down the trail Ben was met and the latest news of the GMC discussed. Ben turned over Ray Secor's gift to be used to help purchase a chunk stove for Clarendon. For that we want to again thank Ray very much.

MOONLIGHT HIKE

by

Vera Perkins

This year the annual Tucker Lodge Moonlight Hike coincided exactly with the full moon, and on Saturday December 19th the moon, though a bit hazy, was right on the job. Soon after 7 PM a good sized group had assembled at the meeting place. After distributing the hikers among the available cars we were on our way up Route 4 to our starting point.

Leaving the cars where the "short-cut" to Tucker takes off from the highway we were soon enjoying the quiet beauty of the woods. While there was not enough snow for snow-shoeing, there was enough to give the woods their winter charm. Walking was a bit tricky as any step might be the one on which the crust broke through suddenly letting the foot down a few inches, but this only added a slight element of excitement to the trip.

In what seemed like a very short time welcoming lights were streaming towards us across the snow from Tucker where a candle was glowing brightly in each window. Within the Lodge all was cozy and warm with coffee water already steaming. Two of our ambitious members (guess who), had come in and worked up wood in the afternoon and four more had come in later for supper and so had "kept the home fires burning" for our arrival.

There was the usual feast of doughnuts warmed in the oven, accompanied by coffee and more coffee. The junior members indulged in tobogganing and snow fights outside while the rest of us enjoyed the warmth and sociability within. We were glad to have Diane and George Conlon with us again, accompanied by "Muggs" the successor to our old friend "Punchie".

As the moon rose higher and the hour grew later we reluctantly, as always, decided it was time to pack up for the homeward journey. Hiking out we found the moon brighter and the woods even more beautiful. The temperature was perfect, cold enough to give the air a snap, but in pleasant contrast to the below zero temperatures we have often had on this outing. For a grand finale, just before we reached Route 4 we had a breath taking view of Pico in the moonlight, which alone would have been well worth the trip.

SUNNYSIDE HIKE

by
Judy Allard

On the clear, cold Sunday of January 3rd, a brave (??) group of eight hikers started from the main highway and set off up the road to the Spring Lake Ranch on their way to Sunnyside Shelter. The packs, snowshoes and the sleds brought along for the return trip, went on ahead with the ninth hiker in his trusty truck. It was expected that the packs 'n' stuff would be left "by the pig pen". When we arrived at the designated spot, neither the truck nor its contents could be seen. After deducting that the "trusty truck" must be ahead of us, we proceeded on to the shelter.

When we arrived at Sunnyside the green truck was out in front, the fire started, the shelter was warm and the water in the coffee pot was well on its way to boiling. Plenty of wood was found near the shelter, dragged back, and cut up. We then had our lunch, and, after the sandwiches and coffee were consumed, we discussed the need of a new floor in the shelter. It was decided that the wood should be brought in and the floor replaced sometime in the near future while the truck could get all the way up to the shelter.

The return trip was as pleasant as the morning outing and much faster for some of the hikers as they rode a sled down the steep hill between the Spring Lake Ranch and the main road.

When we had all gotten down and loaded the car, we took off for home, having had a very pleasant day.

ROTARY CABIN

Where were the rest of you on that nice cool day, January 16th, when we took a jaunt to the Girl Scout Camp? Home by your cozy fire no doubt. Maybe you were the smart ones at that. However, we all got a bit of good bracing air and we all survived. We must admit that some of us probably wouldn't have been there except that we expected to be able to ride all the way. A light covering of snow over icy roads changed our minds for us on that little idea.

Even a good fire and Harold's 'plastic partition' to conserve its heat failed to make Rotary Cabin exactly a cozy spot. Lunch with its accompanying hot coffee was especially welcome.

The low temperature, (close to zero) plus an icy wind dispelled any inclination for further hiking around the area for most of us. We were soon ready to return to warmer quarters.

Once again the Valiquette truck, which had made the hills, served us well. As many as possible piled into the back and enjoyed a ride to the cars, while the more rugged did it the hard, cold way.

BUFFUM

Buffum seems to be a lucky draw for a winter hike. We so often have a perfect day for this one and January 31st was no exception. Snowshoes were not a must but several took advantage of the opportunity, rare this winter, to use them and found the snowshoeing excellent.

The first arrivals had to spend some time in collecting and re-assembling various parts of the stove before a fire could be made. We often wish it were possible to give some of the users of our shelters a course in The Care and Feeding of Wood-burning Stoves. We realize that such stoves are a new experience to many of them but we haven't yet figured out why they think it will help solve their problems to take them apart and put them together differently. However there was a fine supply of wood and the cabin was soon very comfortable.

There was some talk early in the day of going on to Button Hill but after lunch everyone seemed content to enjoy the comfort of the cabin and make short explorations in the area, or take a few pictures. We really appreciate our several closed cabins. They add much to the pleasure of winter hiking.

The trip back to the cars seemed all too short ending a most successful and well attended winter outing.

SPAGHETTI SUPPER

The annual spaghetti supper of our section was held at Tall Timber on February 13th. The weatherman favored us with a beautiful sunlit day and a cool clear night with almost a full moon. Perhaps he knew Mr. & Mrs. George Kirk were coming to visit us and it was so very good to see them again.

Some of the group came early to move benches, cut and gather firewood, and to get the building ready for the crowd. Others enjoyed hiking along the Elbow Road as far as the Beaver Dam.

At 6 PM, thanks to the old faithful group that seems to be there when the work needs to be done, we all sat down to a hearty and delicious meal of spaghetti. The folks kept arriving until at last the register held 48 names which seems to indicate the popularity of this affair.

We were very happy to at last meet Miss Elsie Maier and her group of friends from New York who have visited Tall Timber many times. Even though at one time it looked like we'd have to send a search party for some of the group who were out walking way after dark without lights. Also we were glad to see a number of new members who made this their first outing and we hope they will continue.

Our thanks go again to Craigie and Mary Perkins and the many others who helped to make this supper a good one to remember.

ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting of the Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club was held at the C.V. P.S. meeting rooms at 7:30 PM Friday January 22nd. 1965.

In spite of the small attendance there was a great deal of interest and many interesting items were discussed. Ben Rolston turned over two trail side registers to the section along with a record that Mrs. Jakeway kept of hikers passing her home near the suspension bridge and railroad crossing at East Clarendon.

Mr. & Mrs. Fujiwara and two of their friends of the Japan Publications Trading Company were invited guests and we hope to see them at some more of our activities during the year.

The following officers were elected and during the coming year will try to serve to the best of their ability -

President George Reynolds
Vice President-Alex Nagy
Sec'y-Treas. - W.Churchill Scott

Again the meeting was climaxed by a social hour with the most delicious cakes, pies, cookies and hot drinks served by the ladies of the section. Our thanks once more to them for such a pleasant evening.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING

A board meeting was held at the home of President George Reynolds recently. Plans were discussed for the coming season and the following Chairmen appointed -

Outing - Alex Nagy
Trails & Shelters - Harold Valiquette
Long Trail News Reporter - Ben Rolston
Smoke & Blazes - Vera Perkins,
Doris Newton, Terry Gulick
Eleanor Walker, Betty Gilman.

The February issue of the Long Trail News should be mailed soon. If there are any members of the Killington Section who do not receive a copy within a reasonable time please notify W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St. Rutland, Vermont 05701.

TRAILS & SHELTERS REPORT

Once again the southern portion of our section is in tip-top shape due to the very great amount of time and effort that Ben Rolston spends each year.

Many trail clearing trips were held in the northern part also. For the first time in many years the trail between Pico Junction and Pico Camp has been cleared very thoroughly. The swamp problem near Killington has been surveyed and at last it has been decided to bridge, ditch and trim the present route.

Pico shelter received two coats of creosote, windows and stove repaired, knot holes patched.

Clarendon a new stove and creosote.

Sunnyside creosote, walls painted, roof fixed and a double floor laid.

Thanks to Harold Valiquette's equipment and knowledge the suspension bridge was repaired at Clarendon. The uprights were straightened and secured and the wood was given two coats of creosote.

Following is a list of new members paid to February 20th. You can still pay your dues to W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt. 05701. $2.00 for adults, 50¢ for juniors. This issue of Smoke & Blazes will be the last sent to the 1964 members.

Vol. 18, No. 2 - KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - Mar. Apr. '65

COMING HIKES

Date - Saturday May 8, 1965
 Destination - Tinmouth Mountain
 Departure - Meldon School site 10 A.M. This is an exploration trip to a mountain that we have not climbed for a long time. Come along and see what a view from the Taconic Range looks like.

Date - Saturday May 22, 1965
 Destination - Sherburne Pass to Mt. Carmel
 Departure - Meldon School site 9 A.M. First of a series of hikes to allow Killington Section members to work for their End-to-End award. Choice of distances: to Noyes Pond and out via South Pond Trail 7.8 miles; to North Pond and out via abandoned Pittsfield-Chittenden road 9.8 miles; to Mt. Carmel and out via New Boston trail 10.1 miles.

Date - Sunday May 30, 1965
 Destination - New shelter on Baker Peak relocation.
 Departure - Meldon School site 9 A.M. In place of our annual hike to Pico and Killington after the GMC meeting, Ben Rolston has suggested a trip to the dedication of the new shelter on the Baker Peak relocation. Transportation will be provided at both ends so hikers can leave USFS #10 road above Danby or via Lake Trail over Baker Peak.

Date - Saturday June 12, 1965
 Destination - Branbury Beach
 Departure - Meldon School site at 10 A.M.. Here is an outing for those who may enjoy taking it easy. Bring along a chair and swim suit and relax. For the hikers there will be trips to Mt. Mooselamoo, Silver Lake and the historical Ethan Allen caves.

Date - Saturday June 19, 1965
 Destination - Route 140 to Little Rock Pond
 Departure - Meldon School site at 9 A.M. Another End-to-End series hike. This time only 9.2 miles via USFS #10 road or 8.7 miles via Homer Stone Brook Trail. Come along and enjoy one of the beauty spots of the trail.

Date - Saturday June 26, 1965
 Destination - Grout Job to Prospect Rock Departure - Meldon School site at 9 A.M. Eat a good breakfast and put on your walking shoes for this will be the longest hike of the year 12.7 miles with no approach trails. The hiking is easy and very pretty so plan to take advantage of the long days to hike with us.

CLARENDON LODGE

February 28 was a beautiful spring-like day when we left Meldon School by car to go to Rt. 103 where the cars were left and we started on our journey.

There was a group from Schenectady, N.Y. at the shelter when we arrived. They had come in for the weekend. We, therefore, started a fire outside to heat water for coffee and after the other group left we went inside for lunch. After lunch some left and hiked up to where some early settlers are buried, then on to the old Lotery Road, and then on the Long Trail to Beacon Hill and back to the shelter.

The new stove sure works well. The windows had to be opened while lunch was being eaten. One car had motor trouble but Craigue Perkins came to their rescue.

TUCKER LODGE Alex J. Nagy

On March 13th about thirteen hikers participated in a hike to Tucker Lodge. They met at 10 A.M. at the old Meldon School area as usual. It was a partly cloudy and rather cold but typical March day. The crusty surface in the woods made easy walking as it was hard enough so there was very little or no breaking through. Lunch and coffee were enjoyed at noon at the lodge. On the way home we met Harold Valiquette and Churchill Scott just going into the woods. We wonder how Churchill made it without his usual coffee break. At least he wasn't the last one to have his coffee this time. The group returned at 3:30 PM.

BUFFUM LODGE TO SUNNYSIDE Eleanor Walker

Sunday morning March 28th the crowd had gathered at Meldon School for the trip to Buffum Lodge then over the hill to Sunnyside Camp. After parking the cars on the Gulf Road in Wallingford the members at various paces hiked to Buffum. The weatherman gave us a beautiful day to be out in the open. There was some snow but walking was easy.

On arriving at the Lodge, the wood was cut, a good fire was started and the water in the coffee pot set to boil for that cup of coffee or hot chocolate each one looks forward to having. When the water had started to boil the cooking for lunch began. We never did find out when Churchill Scott's lunch was ready for he helped the other cooks prepare theirs.

After Vera Perkins with the Martin girls - Carol, Nancy and Betsy - arrived the number eating totaled twenty-one.

Several of the hikers proceeded on the trail to Sunnyside while others hiked to the top of Button Hill and back to Buffum. Harold, Thelma and Johnny Valiquette visited Sunnyside, then drove to the Gulf Road to say "hello" to the crowd there.

When everyone was back in the cars and we were heading home, it was agreed we had had a very pleasant day.

WINTER WEEKEND AT CLARENDON LODGE BY Elizabeth Weeks, Springfield, Vt.

Taking advantage of a lovely, mild winter weekend, nine adventurers from Springfield shouldered their packs at Clarendon crossing and headed for Clarendon Lodge.

All winter we had talked about the much missed annual winter week-end at Tall Timbers. Finally we decided to plan one of our own. So on Saturday, March 6, undaunted by light rain, we set out.

There was very little snow, so showshoes were unnecessary. The mud in the trail in places made it seem more like spring than winter.

The lodge looked as inviting as always to us in its beautiful pine woods setting, and it wasn't long before the men had built a roaring fire in the big new chunk stove. It seemed quite wonderful not to be smoked out. Does that stove warm the cabin? Wow! Most of the time we had to have the door and windows open.

Just as we were preparing a most delicious spaghetti supper, a most welcome hiker, Ben Rolston, arrived to spend the night after a trail clearing trip.

After supper some enjoyed visiting in the cabin and popping corn while others took a short walk enjoying the beauty of the pine woods by moonlight.

The night stayed warm, and in spite of a flat air mattress and plenty of snoring, all was peaceful until a skunk and some other night prowler engaged in a battle at the corner of the cabin. The odor woke us all and remained with us until we left for home the next morning.

Camping in winter is fun! Clarendon Lodge proved to be the ideal place for our winter adventure.

SUGAR-ON-SNOW PARTY by Peter Hadeka

The annual Sugar Party was held on April 10th at the Mendon Grange Hall. It was a very fine spring day and the attendance was at least 70 people. The chief cook was George Reynolds, who I might add, did a very good job although by 8 o'clock he was pretty well cooked on one side by the heat of the old wood stove which was used.

Although Alex Nagy could not attend he was the one who organized the party and did much of the work before the party.

The snow was obtained by Terry Gulick, Edward Wagner and myself. I would also like to mention Churchill Scott who did the shopping for pickles, donuts, milk etc. and our cashier was Craig Perkins. There were a number of officials of the GMC attending the party as they were in town for a meeting the afternoon before the party. Everyone had a good time and are looking forward to next year.

JULY 4th WEEK-END

A group of section members is going to take advantage of the long holiday week-end and hike from the Massachusetts line north as far as possible.

We plan to eat family style so plans will be made according to the number of people making reservations to go on this trip. Anyone wishing to go can contact Churchill Scott for further information.

TRUSTEES' MEETING

The Trustees' meeting of the GMC was held at Fred Field's office April 10th with Ben Rolston, Harold Valiquette and Churchill Scott attending.

Mr. Maslack of the Forest Service gave a very enlightening and informative talk about the proposed Parkway through Vermont. After a long question and answer period the group felt that this project was far in the future and even though the present route plan does not interfere with the Long Trail greatly it should be watched with interest.

The Guide Books are selling at a faster rate than ever before and the committee hopes to have enough to last until fall and then a new one will be available for the 1966 hiking season.

The Long Trail Patrol is going to do the usual job of clearing trail from the Chilcoat Trail north to the Canadian border. Also they are going to assist the Bennington Section work on Seth Warner and Glastonbury Mountain shelters.

EAST MOUNTAIN by W. Churchill Scott

On Saturday April 24th a small group of adventurous GMC hikers finally started for East Mountain. Betty Gilman, Vera Perkins, Bob and George Reynolds and Churchill Scott. Parked the car at the top of the Notch and hiked over to Power's camp. Then we turned north on an old road toward the Dyer meadows.

Soon we broke out of the woods into an immense pasture stretching up the side of East Mountain. Advance information told us to turn left and follow a wood road but as we looked at the road straight ahead winding up the old meadow we chose that direction.

We came to a large rock which protected us from the wind, with a good supply of wood and a nearby stream. Here we ate our dinner and had our hot drinks minus cream which someone (?) forgot, but just the same it tasted good.

From this spot we could get a very good view to the east and south from Mendon Peak to Bear Mt. near Wallingford. But this was nothing as compared to about a quarter of a mile farther up a steep climb past the remains of Col. Dyer's summer home. Here we could see Mendon, Okemo, Wilcox, Baker, Styles and Dorset.

At the height of land we turned west and reached the western slope (we thought). Within a few minutes we saw a gully and another ridge before us so we turned south and returned to the Dyer meadows where we found the largest group of pussywillows and the tallest bush we've ever seen along with the spring peepers singing sweetly.

This was a very good hike but next time we all felt we should have an expert guide with us so we could tell where to go. In the future we hope to have more of these hikes to explore interesting spots and visit places that are not located on the Long Trail.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Once again the Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club is very grateful to Mr. Lincoln Isham for his generous gift to help with our repair and upkeep of our section of the Trail and our shelters.

ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting of the Green Mountain Club will be held at 10:00 AM May 29, Saturday, at the Long Trail Lodge. A coffee hour and get-together period will precede the regular business meeting.

The Killington Section has been asked to put on a buffet lunch at a nominal cost and the Trustees voted to spend $100.00 to insure that our section will not go into debt for this affair. This will be further discussed at the next executive board meeting and in the meantime the members should be thinking of ideas to help make this affair a success.

The evening program hopes to be Mr. Perry Merrill of the Vermont State Department of Forests and Parks, or one of his aides.

Please try to attend to meet old friends and to give the Killington Section a good representation.

TRAILS & SHELTERS by Harold Valiquette

Trails are in good shape thanks to Ben Rolston. March 8th he reported he cleared and clipped trail from Route 140 to Button Hill ridge, and from Route 103 to Beacon.

April 5th he brushed out section from Route 140 to Gov. Clement, April 21st he received a report from a Pennsylvania man, who had just returned from a weekend trip on the Long Trail, that there was a window missing at Clarendon. Also he found Buffum very dirty with a piece of stove missing and some damage to ends of bunk boards.

Vol. 18, No. 3 - KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - May-June '65

COMING EVENTS

Date- Sunday July 11, 1965.

Destination- Stage Road to Killington Peak.

Departure - Meldon School site 9 AM.

This is our most rugged hike to date. Our leader Alex Nagy says wear head covering and take fly dope. We will see the Rooney Mill site and follow old carriage road used in 1880s when the hotel at Killington Peak was in its heyday.

Date - Sunday, July 25, 1965.

Destination- Gov. Clement Shelter to Killington Peak.

Departure- Meldon School site 9 AM.

This is another stretch in our chance to earn an "End to End" patch. An easy way up Killington and it will give us a chance to check on Gov. Clement shelter and the trail.

Date - Saturday, Aug. 7, 1965.

Destination - Brandon Gap to Mt. Carmel.

Departure - Meldon School site 9 AM.

We hope to have Mauri Wintturi with us again for this hike and can assure him that we will have transportation so that it won't be necessary to hike 18 miles.

Date - Saturday Aug. 21, 1965

Destination - Pittsford Ice Caves

Departure - Meldon school site 10 AM

Here is a very interesting spot that we've not visited for many years. Wear old clothes and bring a flashlight and we may find some ice.

INTERSECTIONAL

The enclosed flier will tell you all about the 1965 G.M.C. Intersectional to be held at Camp Plymouth, Echo Lake, Tyson, Vt. Let's all try to attend and have a good time.

On behalf of the Trustees and the members of G.M.C. who attended the Annual Meeting, I want to thank Vera Perkins, Chairman, and all her many workers who put on such a very tasty buffet lunch.
Churchill Scott

MEMBERS WITNESS DEDICATION

Nearly thirty GMCers and guests hiked close to two miles to witness the dedication of the Long Trail's newest shelter, Sunday May 30th, following the GMC Annual Meeting. Killington members attending included Ben Ralston, Joseph O'Ryan, James Tarbell and Terry Gulick. Located on a new section of the Trail north of Baker's peak in Danby, the shelter, donated by Mr. Louis Stare, Jr., of Bass River, Mass., was named Lost Pond Shelter.

Ben Ralston, who did much in helping to arrange for locating the shelter, did the honors using Long Trail "champagne". With a plastic bag full of clear brook water, from a brook below the shelter, he christened the structure with its new name.

The shelter is named for a nearby small body of water, Lost Pond, at the request of Mr. Stare, according to Ben.

OF INTEREST

The latest issue of the Vermont Natural Resources Council newsletter cites the action taken by the GMC at its annual meeting in which the Club voiced opposition to the current proposed location of the Scenic Highway. If it became a reality, the road would go along the Green Mountain range.

The Deerleap Trail, starting at the Long Trail Lodge and going over Deer's Leap and eventually back onto the Long Trail, has been cleared and blazed according to Mr. & Mrs. Lloyd Weeks. They, with the help of Mr. & Mrs. Richard Roberts performed the task recently.

Ben Ralston reports that he and his wife completed a 7700 mile trip taking them through 19 states. They took their car this trip and camped in a tent staying overnight in twelve of the states for a total of ten nights in Arizona, California and Colorado. Ben states that after all this traveling, he still likes Vermont best.

Ben reports that George Pearlstein has cleared and placed signs on the Tucker Loop Trail.

In spite of reports and stories coming this way, the New York World's Fair is a success as far as the Green Mountain Club is concerned, This reporter met a couple from Brooklyn who, after picking up a Short Walks folder at the Fair, decided to bee-line it to Vermont to investigate the Long Trail, and ended up spending a week-end in Clarendon Lodge! The word does get around, doesn't it.

And then there is the guy from "down country" who arrived in Vermont, and not being sure of the way, stopped in front of a general store in southern Vermont and asked the old timer sitting on the porch "Where is West Rupert, Vt?" The old-timer (not sure of where it was himself): "We-e-ll, I reckon it must be west of Rupert".

BIRDS EYE MOUNTAIN
Betty Gilman and Doris Newton

Since just Churchill Scott, Doris Newton and Betty Gilman were the only ones that turned up for Timmouth on May 8th, we held a conference and decided to go to Bird's Eye. The car was left at the usual place and we took the old road east of the mountain. Fortunately Churchill knew the trail on the south side so we were soon up to the spring near the notch where we had our lunch. The trail climbs to the notch and then follows the ridge to the summit where the views are magnificent.

We believe we located the site of the old monument and we found the view from the cliff top as rewarding as we anticipated. We then retraced our steps to the north and eventually found an old logging road which came out closer to our car.

The clearing weather, the interesting country and early spring flowers, made it a rewarding day. Note: The black flies seemed to enjoy us, too!

THE HIKE THAT WAS!!!

By Terry Gulick

Four members of our section were joined by Mauri Wintturi of Worcester Section in hiking from Sherburne to Mt. Carmel, May 22nd. According to reports the trail was in need of clearing and a lack of water became evident before the day's journey ended.

What started out to be a 12 mile hike ended in an 18 mile walk, according to the group. Unfortunately connections by the group to meet a ride with Doris Newton failed to materialize. The hike took longer than expected, Miss Newton waited patiently, but gave up the troops for lost, and the hikers were obliged to walk the extra miles to a phone!

All returned safely and no worse for the experience!! From our Section were Alex Nagy, Peter Hadeka, Churchill and Bobby Scott.

THE HIKE THAT "WAN'T"!

By Terry Gulick

The Pico-Killington hike was not carried out due to the dedication hike near the Big Branch section of the Long Trail.

Three young members of the section were disappointed to find no one going to Branbury Beach June 12th. However, Susan and Mark Pfenning with Bob Stanley got as far as the old Meldon site. Let's hope they're not disappointed again!

Alex Nagy and Pete Hadeka showed up for the June 19th and July 11th hikes and both times went up the Stage Road to Killington. Rough going through underbrush and over blowdowns made an endurance test for both.

Alex states he hopes to have the Stage Road trail cleared and marked within the next few weeks.

TRUSTEES MEETING

The Trustees meeting was held at the close of the regular meeting of the G.M.C. on May 29th at the

-3-

Long Trail Lodge.

Most of the discussion was about the Long Trail News and the necessity of having the various deadlines met in order to have the publication reach the members on time.

Also the 1965 GMC Intersectional Committee responsibility was dumped into the lap of Trustee Churchill Scott without any authorization. The Killington Section had this responsibility only two years ago and your reporter does not feel it is fair to ask for any this year.

UP THE LAKE TRAIL AND SOUTH(?)

By Churchill Scott

On Thursday, April 24th, Bobby Scott and I started up the Lake Trail bright and early with hopes to do the Long Trail south to Route #11. Under bright blue skies, cool air and dry under foot we were soon climbing toward Griffith Lake. We jumped a deer at one spot and were amused to see how he struggled to get through a tangled mass of uprooted trees.

At the McGinn brook crossing we had a bite to eat and then began to run into snow as we continued on. As we kept going higher the snow was deeper and the sensible thing to do would have been to turn back but we didn't.

Next we hit the south end of the Baker Peak relocation trail and then arrived at Griffith Lake still ice bound. In a small clear spot of dry ground we ate lunch and as we looked up the north slope of Peru Peak at all the snow we reluctantly turned north.

We felt that the snow might have melted in the old lumber road to Old Job but for four miles we walked through 2 to 3 foot drifts and struggled across snow fed raging torrents.

At last we arrived at Old Job Shelter where we spent a very pleasant night and enjoyed the clear skies and warm air. No porkies disturbed a very sound sleep.

Continuing north we passed the north end of the Baker Peak relocation trail, crossed the new bridge over Big Branch and visited Big Branch Shelter (a beautiful spot and shelter).

The new trail out to U.S.F.S. road #10 slants through hardwood forest above Big Branch hitting the road about 200 ft. east of Black Branch where the trail goes to Little Rock Pond. We hiked to the road to Danby where we got a ride home in the mail truck.

The old adage of Craigie Perkins to stay out of the woods until all the snow is gone was learned the hard way by us and we are certain it will not happen again.

SOUP'S ON ---- AGAIN!

Killington Section members exhibited their excellent hospitality during the recent annual meeting of the Green Mountain Club when they served lunch to about one hundred folks during the noon recess. A typically cool spring day caused most of the gathering to retreat inside the annex building to eat. The servers were on the front patio dishing out baked beans, salad, roast beef, ham, desserts and other goodies.

This marks the first year that our section has served a noon picnic meal during the G.M.C. Annual Meeting.

Special thanks to all who helped!

Vol. 18, No. 4 - KILLINGTON SECTION - GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - July-Sept.'65

COMING EVENTS

Date - Saturday, Oct. 2nd, 1965
Destination - Beechwood Covered Dish Supper

Once again it's time for one of our favorite gatherings. Come early in the P.M. to enjoy the fall foliage and short walks. The Trustees are invited to this supper so here is a chance to meet some of the folks that direct your club. Call Vera Perkins by Friday P.M. Oct. 1st, 3-2941 for reservations and to find out what to contribute.

Date - Saturday Oct. 16, 1965 9:00 A.M.

Destination - East Mountain
Departure - Meldon School area.
This trip we hope to have Harold, an experienced guide with us. Come along and enjoy the foliage and the view from the Dyer meadows. Also a bit of bush-whacking for the more ambitious.

Date - Sunday Oct. 24, 1965-9:00AM
Destination - Stage Coach Road to Killington

Departure - Meldon School area.
Here is a trip for the more muscular members of our section. If desired arrangements will be made for cars to pick us up at Killington Basin which we can reach via chair lift or Tractor road from Killington.

Date - Sunday Oct. 21, 10:00 AM.
Destination - Mt. Carmel
Departure - Meldon School Area.
Here is an opportunity to climb an old mountain that we have not visited for many years and hear Craigue's exciting tales of his trips up this peak. If desired a trip from Brandon Gap may be included.

Date - Sunday Nov. 7 10:00 AM.
Destination - Pico Shelter
Departure - Meldon School area.
Now we start our annual fall visits to check and prepare our shelters for the winter. Come along to help the workers and enjoy the beautiful fall views from the cozy spot on the Long Trail.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The Killington Section of the GMC want to acknowledge the many letters, maps and diagrams sent by Mr. Herbert G. Ogden, both Junior and Senior, in connection with the large amount of volunteer work they have done to clear out, blaze and erect signs on both the Jugernaut and Bucklin Trails.

During the summer they have worked to make both trails in tip-top shape. They have made a number of engraved signs to mark the trails and also one for Cooper Lodge. The Bucklin Trail received one day's work in 1963 and until this year has been in very poor condition. Now Mr. Ogden says there are almost 50 names in the Trail-side register erected just as the ascent starts up from Brewer Brook.

Our section wants to thank both Mr. Ogden so very much for doing such a good job to improve our part of the Long Trail System and to say that each time we use it we will think of the many hard hours of work they have devoted to to improvement and repair and to say again "Well Done".

THE FARM AND WILDERNESS CAMPS
By Churchill Scott

During the past summer once again the Farm and Wilderness Camps of Mr. Kenneth Webb have been busy covering the Long Trail from Sherburne Pass to Shrewsbury Cut-off Trail and in addition the Jugernaut Trail.

The groups replaced roof boards and roofing at Cooper, tarred the roof, replaced bunk boards, turned over table boards, cleaned up interior of the Lodge and replaced two plexiglass windows. Also improved latrine, put up trail, dump and water signs and cleaned up the camp dump area. Also they worked to improve the Shrewsbury Cut-off Trail and are at present working with George Pearlstein and the Vermont State Department of Forest and Parks to relocate this trail so that it will pass over State land and not over private land.

We owe this group a great big thank you for the long hours of hard work they have given to improve our section of the trail and Cooper lodge.

ANOTHER HIKE THAT WASN'T

On Sunday July 11th Betty Gilman, Mr. Westin, a GMC member from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Churchill Scott arrived at Meldon ready to go up the Stage Road to Killington. Our guide Alex was unable to make it so we finally decided to go up the easy way via the tractor road from the Basin.

After a short visit with Howard, at the fire lookout we spent some time at Cooper measuring up the shelter for repairing by the Farm and Wilderness Camp work parties the following week.

There were a number of hikers going both north and south and Cooper seemed to be a very popular spot but due to the terrific amount of vandalism it is impossible to keep this spot in the A-1 condition that such a mountain should have.

GOV. CLEMENT TO KILLINGTON
By W. Churchill Scott

On Sunday, July 25th, Betty Gilman, Alex Nagy, Kevin Hogan and the writer hiked to Cooper Lodge via the Long Trail from Gov. Clement Shelter. The weather was sunny and mild, visibility rather poor but all in all a very good day to hike.

In spite of the dry weather there was water at Government Brook and at the four brook crossings. We met very few people using the Trail but Mr. Parsons, the fire lookout on Killington, says Cooper has had many campers this year.

After eating a bit of lunch on the summit Alex and Betty rode the lift down to the Basin and return. The other two spent some time at Cooper working on the old spring located south of the shelter.

We managed to get it cleaned out enough to keep running but in order to have it as good as it was years ago it should be dug out deeper. This will be a job for the water is ice cold and if you miss picking up a rock on first try your hand would be paralyzed before the second try.

After a short time we left Cooper once again and started down the Trail. The trip was easy and quick and ended with the usual argument about how far we had hiked and if the guidebook mileage is correct.

PITTSFORD ICE CAVES By Betty Gilman

It was a beautiful day when Churchill Scott, Bobby Scott, Mark Pfenning, a friend of Bob's and my three nieces left Meldon area about 10:15 Aug. 21st. Churchill went to get gas, Bob batteries for his flashling and I returned home to get mine and then we met again at Pittsford Mills. From there Churchill led the way to where we parked the cars.

We followed an old road into the meadow, missing the marker that pointed to the caves. We walked along into the woods following what turned out to be deer paths. We stopped for lunch and then started on and shortly came to a gulley which we crossed and went up the other side to where there was a beautiful view looking off towards the fish hatchery. At that time we were quite a ways above the caves. Starting back we followed the ridge to where we could get down to the path. going up to the caves. From there some of us went to the cave and the rest waited for their return. We then returned to our cars and were back in Rutland shortly after 3 o'clock.

Miss Helen Bailey, A Killington Section member who teaches in West Springfield, Mass. and Miss Betty Ball, a Killington Section member now living in Florida, called on some of the Rutland members recently.

The Saturday, Aug. 7th hike was not held as no one appeared at Meldon to participate. What happens to all our G.M.Cs.

INTERSECTIONAL DRAWS 225 CAMPERS by Terry Gulick

From the northeast they came, both young and old, to enjoy the last days of summer in the Green Mountains and lakes of Vermont. Nearly 225 GMC'ers and guests attended the 1965 Intersectional held at Camp Plymouth on Lake Echo in Tyson, Vt. Aug. 28th - Sept. 6th.

Churchill Scott is credited with much of the arrangements along with Ben Rolston, resulting in the sixth successful gathering of its kind since the Fiftieth Anniversary celebration Intersection in 1960.

Both hot and cold, sunny and rainy weather challenged the outdoor enthusiasts, but nobody give up.

Many activities created memorable moments including the gold panning, the trip to Cavendish Gorge, several mountain climbs, the completing of the Long Trail by two GMC'ers, the evening entertainment featuring trips around the U.S., Canada and Europe, through slides: square dancing, soccer games, swimming, boating and canoeing, eating, telling tall tales (some were actually true!) and just generally socializing.

Killington Section members who attended overnight during the week were Churchill, Bobby and Candace Scott; Susan, Jamey and Kate Tarbell; President George Reynolds and family; Les, Marc and Susan Pfenning; Betty Weeks, Ben Rolston, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Fritsch and Terry Gulick.

In addition many more section members visited the Intersectional during the week but were unable to stay overnight.

Vol. 18 No 5 - KILLINGTON SECTION-GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB -Oct.Nov. 1965

COMING EVENTS

Date - Saturday Nov. 27 - 9:00 AM

Destination - Sunnyside Lodge

Departure - Meldon School area

Here is another hike and work party combined so let's have a good crowd to help repair the windows, roof and stove in addition to building up the spring.

Date - Sunday Dec. 5 10:00 AM

Destination - Tucker Lodge

Departure - Meldon School area

Perhaps there will be snow for this one so why not bring snowshoes along to get in shape for the winter season. Have plenty to eat and we'll furnish the coffee and plan how to fix this shelter up for next year.

Date - Sunday Dec. 19 - 10:00 AM

Destination - Buffum Lodge

Departure - Meldon School area

Visit our newest shelter built by Craige Perkins in 1961. A snowy winter setting among the pines should make this trip very enjoyable so come along and spend a happy day.

Date - Saturday Jan. 8 6:00 PM

Destination - Clarendon Lodge by Moonlight

Departure - Meldon School area

Come and have coffee and doughnuts at a new spot this year.

Let's hope it will not be a minus

18°- 20° this year but anyway

Clarendon will be warm and cozy.

Date - Sunday Jan. 23, 10:00 AM

Destination - Balch Pasture snowshoe hike

Departure - Meldon School area

Please watch the Herald for a notice of this hike. It may have to be changed to Wilcox Hill because of privately owned land. Never the less a good time is planned for all.

Date - Saturday Feb. 13, 6:00 PM

Destination - Spaghetti Supper at Tall Timbers

The Perkins family have once again offered the use of Tall Timbers Field House for our annual spaghetti supper. Remember the good time we had last year. Come early to help gather wood, set tables and help in other ways. Also, we hope to meet our section members from New York City again.

BEECHWOOD SUPPER By Ann Reynolds

Despite the fact that most people had rather short notice about the covered dish supper at Beechwood on October 2nd, a good sized group turned out for the affair, including a number of the G.M.C. Trustees who had met that day.

Because the supper was held several weeks earlier than usual, the darkness did not come so early, and quite a few people enjoyed strolling in the warm Autumn twilight.

The usual capable crew was on deck in the kitchen to see that all the offerings of food were arranged on the table and to dispense coffee and cocoa.

The party began to disperse around 8 o'clock or so, after a pleasant evening of good food and good company.

Our annual Rummage Sale was held October 30th in the Neighborhood rooms. We made $66.50. Thanks to everyone who contributed and worked.

EAST MOUNTAIN by Craigie Perkins

Only five hikers turned out for this one on a cool cloudy day. We drove over the Notch and turned left behind East Mountain leaving our car near the old Haskell Camp.

An old jeep-rutted farm road climbed steadily westward up the mountain through brush and hardwood. This area is known as the Dyer Meadows. For some unknown reason it seems to resist the invasion of forest growth. Scattered spruces and the usual tangle of blackberry bushes are lacking.

There were however many apple trees of all varieties and non-varieties. The early freeze had spoiled most of the fruit but we did locate one tree with excellent pocket-stuffers.

After the usual series of consultations and arguments we turned right at the top of the cleared land and climbed steeply to the grove of spruces on top of one of the "summits" of the mountain. The mist limited the view to Mendon Peak and that long, long (remember?) ridge running down to the west.

We circled the top and finally selected a sheltered place on the east side below a ledge where we proceeded to build a fire and boil coffee water in record time. Lunch was uneventful. Nobody kicked over the milk can till all had been served.

Returning to the car by a route further north we went through an area of young hardwoods with no signs of old logs or stumps anywhere. It was concluded that this land must have been cleared and the logs burned at sometime long ago, and if you don't agree what's your solution?

Eagle-eye Scott spotted a partridge in the brush about forty yards away and we watched him stroll slowly out of sight.

We came back to Rutland by way of Wheelerville. Too bad so many missed this hike.

CARRIAGE ROAD TO KILLINGTON PEAK by M. G. Wiley

On a cold rainy Sunday some 30 climbers led by Alex Nagy conquered the mighty Vermont Peak for which our Section of the G.M.C. is named. The group included Churchill Scott, Craigie Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. Fleming from Sherburne, a sizeable group from the Castleton State College Outing Club led by Terry Gulick and a small group from Sherburne Valley School Outing Club led by Janet Bent.

Our route of ascent was via the Old Carriage Road which in past times led to a hotel near the summit. We ate lunch at Cooper Lodge which was in fine condition including the windows. After lunch we climbed to the top of the 4,241 foot windswept peak. It was here that we met Howard Parsons, the Killington Fire Ranger, who lives on this mountain for seven months of the year. Howard invited us in and the warmth was quite comforting especially to those with cold, wet feet.

We were indeed fortunate to have our precipitation in hardened form on top although it seemed to be a quasi-snow. The semi-snow was accumulating rapidly though, and with the accompanying hoar frost made us feel as though we had really climbed a mountain.

On our descent down the Bucklin Trail one of the Castleton boys found a porcupine which he carried for some distance on his shoulders (in a barrel). The Bucklin Trail was in fine shape thanks to Mr. Herbert Ogden and son. The sun was seen before we reached the cars and the end of a fine trip.

MT. CARMEL
by W. Churchill Scott

On Sunday October 31st, Kevin Hogan, Alex Nagy, Robert and Churchill Scott were let off at Brandon Gap to hike south to Carmel Camp and meet the rest of the Killington Section hikers. The weather was cool and cloudy but with good visibility.

A bit of snow under foot made walking a bit hard but afforded us with an excellent chance to observe many tracks: deer, bobcat, rabbits and bear - small and large.

We passed the new Sunrise Shelter - had a good view of the Mt. Hoorid Cliffs from a point where the U.S.F.S. had opened up. After skirting Bloodroot mountain we turned south and descended into Bloodroot Gap. Hurrying along we climbed a bit and then once more went down to Wetmore Gap where we ran out of the snow.

Here the Guide Book said about .07 to go but a sign said 1.5 miles to Carmel. Being tired, hungry and wet we were discouraged but after a short climb and walk through a picturesque hardwood forest we came to the side trail up Mt. Carmel and knew the camp was not far - within 10 minutes of our estimated time.

Arriving at the shelter we found no one there and once again we had visions of walking another six miles before we got a ride. After a short rest we left the tin hut and as we were going down the trail we spied a couple of bright colored jackets coming up. Soon we were discussing with Betty and Doris what to do but finally they decided to turn around with us and return.

This was an easy hike and too bad that more folks were not along for it is a good piece of Trail to get finished for an End-to-End award.

PICO SHELTER
by Betty Gilman

Sunday November 7th was a warm rainy day when eight of us left for Pico. Churchill Scott, Craigie Perkins, Danny and Kevin Hogan went along ahead and had the shelter all nice and warm by the time Ruth Fostman, Vera Perkins, Mary Perkins and myself reached it. We hung up our clothes to dry, then we ate our lunch and had coffee. After lunch the men replaced nine windows that were broken.

When we left the shelter about 2:30 it had stopped raining, part way down the sun came out for a while and then the fog started coming in.

Incidentally it sure seemed good to have Ruth Fostman out on a hike.

ANNUAL MEETING - Sometime in January. Members will be notified by postcard.

Dues for 1966 may be paid at any time to W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vermont 05701. $2.00 for adults, 50¢ for students and juniors.

Following is a list of members paid for 1966 -

David L. Baker
Janet Bent
Mary Jane Bosworth
Mitchell A. Dondero
Charles B. Gulick
Dorothy Hegerman
Kevin Hogan
Elsie Maier
Terry McDonnell
Florence Van Wyck

END-toEND AWARD

As stated in the last issue of Smoke and Blazes all interested members should send to the Secretary-Treasurer, up to date information on the parts of the Long Trail hiked and the dates so that a record may be kept on each member's file card.

Vol. 19 No. 1 - KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - Jan. Feb. 1966

COMING EVENTS

BUFFUM LODGE - Sunday, Feb. 27th
10:00 AM Meldon School site.
Come snowshoe with us to our newest shelter and see what Craigue constructed singlehanded.

SUNNYSIDE LODGE - Sunday March 13
10:00 AM Meldon School site.
Here is a pleasant spot to visit on a warm spring day. (Let's hope it is.) We can discuss the many odd jobs that must be done to fix this camp and possibly solve the new stove problem.

CLARENDON LODGE - Sunday, March 27
10:00 AM Meldon School site.
Let's visit this beauty spot in spite of recent lumbering and police the area so it will look good for the many campers that use this shelter throughout the year.

SUGAR-ON-SNOW PARTY - Saturday,
April 2nd, 6:00 PM

GOV. CLEMENT SHELTER - Sunday
April 3, 10:00 AM. Meldon School site. Our only open front shelter must have a great deal of work done this year so come along to see what we can all do to help.

TUCKER LODGE - Saturday, April 16,
10:00 AM Meldon School site.
This lodge must have the front wall repaired, floor leveled and a new toilet constructed. The middle of April should be perfect for spring flowers so let's see how many we can find.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The Killington Section of the G.M.C. want to express our most grateful appreciation to Mr. Lincoln
Isham, Fran Green and Mrs. Harriot Bryant for the recent gifts they have given.

NEW SCHEDULES

The new schedule is enclosed and the Outing Committee has tried to include a few new spots to visit in addition to cover a bit of the Long Trail for those working on their End-To-End Award.

SUNNYSIDE

On the last day of deer hunting a few hardy GMCers: Kevin, Danny Craigue, Churchill and Bill Gragen braved another wet and stormy day to visit Sunnyside. In spite of slippery roads Craigue's car brought us to Spring Lake Ranch and after a short walk we arrived at Sunnyside.

Each time we visit this camp we are more certain a new stove is needed and this time it smoked more than usual but finally we got it warmed up and good hard wood to dry out as we repaired the broken windows.

After a good dinner and hot coffee we sat around discussing the good job Harold did on laying a double floor and building a bench, and then planning work parties for the spring season.

During the afternoon the wind changed to the N.W and snow began falling making the countryside look more like the winter-time it should for the middle of November.

CLARENDON LODGE

by Betty Gilman

The weather was lousy, snowing, wind blowing and the roads were snow covered. This hike was originally set for a snowshoe hike in the Balch pasture until Craigue Perkins said that the people who owned the land didn't want anyone up there, so then it was decided to go to Shrewsbury until the weather condition changed our minds and we went into Clarendon instead. It was good walking in the woods and when we reached Clarendon the shelter was warm as Mr. and Mrs. Roberts, their two daughters and son-in-law had stayed there overnight and were just leaving.

After having coffee and lunch we walked up to the old cemetery where the Bullards are buried. Returned back to the shelter and stayed long enough for one of the Hogan boys to have a cup of hot chocolate and Churchill a cup of coffee and after that we packed up and went home. We were home a little after three.

MOONLIGHT SNOWSHOE HIKE

by W. Churchill Scott

During the afternoon of Saturday Jan. 8th Craigue, Harold and I visited Clarendon Lodge to check on the shelter and to make sure of plenty of firewood on hand. But it was an unnecessary trip for there was a group of Scouts from South Londonderry there for overnight and the camp was warm and cozy.

At 6:00 PM twenty-two GMCers and friends left for Clarendon where in the meantime about seventeen members of the Middlebury College Outing Club arrived to spend the night. They built a shelter and fire to sleep outside with the understanding that they could use the shelter if too cold.

The camp provided shelter for us, and a sack of donuts and coffee just hit the spot. After a pleasant visit with the other two groups we left for home as the temperature reached - 12°.

P.S. According to the register before dawn there were twenty-four sleeping in the shelter with only two hardy souls staying in the lean-to.

Also on Sunday night Terry came back with a group of Castleton State College Outing Club members for supper, so you can see how very popular this spot has become.

LONG TRAIL NEWS

The February issue of the Long Trail News should be mailed about February 15th. If any members of the Killington Section do not receive their copy within a reasonable time, please inform W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St. Rutland, Vt. 05701 so the mailing list of the Main Club may be brought up to date.

SPAGHETTI SUPPER by Vera Perkins

The weather-man was most cooperative and provided a fine day for the Spaghetti Supper served at Tall Timber, on Saturday, February 12th. Blue skies, bright sun and a spring-time temperature, enticed a number to go up early in the afternoon. Although we regretted that the warm weather had softened and taken away so much snow that show-shoeing was ruined, the woods still had a lovely white carpet and walking on the ploughed paths was easy and pleasant. Then too, the soft snow was good for snowmen and the like, and the yard in front of the Recreation building held a variety of snow structures by the end of the afternoon.

After tiring of outdoor activities, the group assembled in-doors for games and visiting. Meanwhile the "cooks" took over in the kitchen and by six o'clock the welcome call of "Come and get it." was heard. Things quieted down temporarily while everyone was busy putting away the generous helpings of spaghetti and sauce.

Supper was followed by another period of games and visiting until the younger members finally showed signs of running down and the party began to break up.

We were glad to have with us beside our local members, two of our member from Springfield - Betty and Lloyd Weeks, and Elsie Maier a member from New York City and her party of friends who were week-ending at Tall Timber.

This is one of the looked-forward to events on our schedule and thanks to Craigue and Mary Perkins for the use of Tall Timber facilities, and to all those who helped with the collection of supplies, moving tables, getting wood, cooking, serving and cleaning up, and so made the outing possible.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Killington Section, Green Mountain Club was held at the Central Vt. Public Service rooms on Friday January 21, 1966.

There were about 30 members and guests present including Mr. Herbert G. Ogden, Sr. who gave a short explanation of the Vermont Roads and Trails Conference, a newly formed group interested in preserving old roads and trails for recreational purposes.

The various committee reports were heard and they are reported in detail in this issue of Smoke & Blazes.

Mr. Larry Goss, Vice President of the Dartmouth Outing Club and his assistant gave an illustrated talk on the Hut and Trail System of the White Mountains.

Finally the ladies served a delicious lunch of home made pies, cakes, cookies and hot tea and coffee. Once again we are grateful to these folks for putting on the perfect ending to a very enjoyable evening.

Officers elected:

George Reynolds, President
Michael Wiley, Vice-President
W. Churchill Scott, Secy.-Treas.

----- OUTING COMMITTEE REPORT

The hikes during 1965 were varied and interesting. Attendance ranged from one or two to forty and forty-five. As usual the Sugar-on-snow and Covered Dish Supper were favorites.

On the End-to-End Award trips were scheduled for Route #140 to U. S.F.S. Sherburne Pass to Brandon Gap. But only the latter stretch was covered. We hope to put new points of interest on the 1966 outings in addition to new stretches of the Long Trail.

TRAILS & SHELTERS

By Harold Valiquette

Things to be done in 1966:

Tucker Lodge needs a new floor. The front wall should be boxed in and shelter should be creosoted. An out house should be built. A large tree on the north west side of the shelter should be cabled to another tree to prevent it from falling onto the shelter. This tree shows some decayed spots.

Trail from Tucker to Route 4 will have to be moved to Grover Wright's west property line as this is where he wants it to go across Route 4 west of his swimming pool.

Pico shelter needs creosoting. The trail is OK.

Cooper Lodge??

Governor Clement shelter needs a lot of work - new bunks and roof repaired.

Buffum is in good shape and has a good outhouse.

Clarendon needs metal eve drip to prevent water from soaking into the roof rafters as they are getting decayed. Needs an outhouse. There is also a tall dead tree on the north side that should be cut down before it falls on the shelter, and it should be creosoted.

Suspension bridge is in good shape but it should be creosoted this spring.

Sunnyside should be creosoted and by all means a new stove. Also an outhouse.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Date: May 28-29, Sat.-Sun.

ANNUAL MEETING

Beginning at 9:30 Sat. morning we should try to attend this affair.

On Sunday we are having a hike to Killington and Pico. In addition we are asked to provide leaders for Blue Ridge, Bird Mt., Little Rock Pond and Baker Peak.

The Killington Section of the G.M.C. want to express our most grateful appreciation to the Misses Helen Frink and Mary Isbell for their recent gifts.

BUFFUM LODGE TRIP

On Sunday, Feb. 27th eight clubbers made the snowshoe trip to Buffum Lodge. It was a beautiful spring day with two feet of snow and the temperature up in the fiftys.

The afternoon before Kevin Hogan and Churchill Scott went in to stay over night. They gathered a big pile of wood and reported a very comfortable night. Churchill said he came within two feet of being warm enough.

So when the rest of us struggled in about noon the camp was bright and warm and the coffee water boiling.

After dinner we checked over the camp for necessary repairs. Two lights of glass, apparently the victims of an air gun, and a few short floor boards, to replace those chopped through, will put the place in A 1 condition.

And how about a camp sign?

We all agreed that it was too nice a day to stay inside so we sat around the stove for a couple of hours.

Returning to Rutland about four P.M. we wondered where everybody was. Another good day and another small crowd. What do we have to do to get you out?

SUNNYSIDE

Sunday, March 13th was one of those days that cant be classified as being either fair or foul. It snowed, but not much. It rained, but not much. The sun almost came out a couple of times but couldn't quite make it.

As is often the case we had a good turn out in spite of the weather. Seventeen hiked from "the bottom of the hill" in to the Camp and back down again. Several new hikers were welcomed including Mr. Louis Stare from Cape Cod. Mr. Stare is the man who constructed the Lost Pond Shelter and got it moved from Cape Cod to the Long Trail near Danby.

On the way in we passed two cars that had unwisely tried to rush the hill with the usual result. The last quarter mile through the fields was easy for the snowshoers but a little rough for the unprepared.

"The boys" got in first and had a good fire going when the rest of us arrived. There was plenty of good hard wood left from their efforts of the weekend before.

The camp was in good condition with the exception of the stove which has been in bad shape for some time. No grate, griddles don't fit, chimney sagging, little things like that. How about a new stove soon?

After a cozy dinner and a spirited snowball fight we packed up and slid down the hill to the cars.

CLARENDON LODGE

Our trip to Clarendon Lodge on March 27th attracted seventeen hikers including one first timer. Keep up the good work.

On Saturday afternoon Kevin Hogan, Bob and Churchill Scott, and Craig Perkins lugged their overnight packs in to the Lodge. Easy going. Snow most gone in the open. There was a large supply of dry wood inside the camp and the yard was filled with the trimmings from the lumbering operation. Fuel will be plentiful for some time to come.

SUGAR ON SNOW PARTY

The camp was in excellent shape due to frequent use by responsible hikers. When the weather gets warmer and dryer we should clean up the yard and remove a couple of dead or dying trees that threaten to fall on the camp.

After getting things squared away for the night we took a hike up the road and through the woods to a rocky peak we had noticed on the way up. This proved to be an interesting place with grass and oak trees on the top. The ground drops off about a hundred feet or so on three sides very steeply. We plan to visit it again in the summer. On the way back we saw at least a hundred robins flocking in the tree tops and complaining about something or other.

The camp was hot when we went to bed, warm part of the night, and cold in the early morning. Bob was the first to weaken. He got the fire going and soon we smelled bacon frying.

After breakfast Churchill and Kevin hiked north to the divide near Cold River. About an inch of fresh snow made the going a bit slippery they reported.

About eleven o'clock the Sunday hikers began to arrive from Rutland. The youngsters had a great time building a "fort" out of the brush left from the lumbering. They even had a "watch tower."

Meanwhile, back at the camp, Churchill demonstrated how to stalk the wild asparagus in his stalking feet.

The more ambitious hikers visited a small graveyard some distance up the road, said to be of considerable historical interest.

The less ambitious took a short course in "The Care and Feeding of the Apple Tree Virus"

And so home after a pleasant day in the woods.

The 1966 edition of our annual Sugar on snow party was held on April 2nd in the basement of the Universalist Church. Sixty three starving citizens of all ages stuffed themselves with sugar, pickles, doughnuts and coffee.

Vera Perkins was chairman of the affair and many members helped out with the varied details. On the afternoon before Terry Gulick, Michael Wiley, Bertha Wiley, and two boys from Michael's school went up into the woods and got a truck load of snow. About four o'clock on Saturday the boiling down began. Eleanor Walker, Carol Martin, Doris Newton, Betty Gilman and Thelma Valiquette got everything ready and on the tables. After slaving over a hot Trustees' meeting all the afternoon Harold Valiquette and Churchill Scott came in to put on the finishing touches.

At six P.M. the people started coming in and for an hour things moved rapidly and sweetly. We were honored by the attendance of Mr. Rohrbaugh the club president and his wife, and by several of the trustees.

Many helped with the cleanup and all was in shipshape at a reasonable hour.

It was concluded that this party should be continued each year if there continues to be a good turn out, if we can have it in a well equipped place, and if members help with the work. All these requirements were certainly met this year, and the 1966 party should go in the book as one of our best.

GOVERNOR CLEMENT SHELTER

On Sunday, April 3rd, a good crowd turned out for the trip to the Governor Clement Shelter. The road was a little slippery due to mud but all cars stayed between the fences.

The cars were left at the Upper Road and the footing from there in to camp was surprisingly good on the snow covered back road.

Once again "the boys" pushed on ahead and had a good fire going when the rest of us arrived. The canvas was hung by the chimney with care to keep the cold wind from the ones who were there. (Sorry, I had to do that).

A glance at the register showed that a snow cart club had visited the camp twice recently. How about some help with the up-keep fellows? Gary tossed his pack on the top bunk and soon found that a mouse was trying to share his lunch.

After lunch we put the stove together from the assorted parts lying around, and it worked fine.

Some of the youngsters built a fire in the outside fireplace so with three fires going you would expect we would have been warm, but that open front!

Checking on the repairs needed we agreed on a new chimney top, new stove pipe, and the desirability of removing the top bunk and replacing it where the bottom bunk is now.

The roof needs repair but would it be worth while to put a new roof on the camp in its present form? Some suggest a wood floor and a window studded front with some of the overhanging roof cut off. Have to think it over.

On the way out we discussed the possibility of trips to the Jockey Cap, Black Swamp, and Robinson Hill. Sometime maybe.

PANCAKE SUPPER

After a reasonable amount of argument it was decided to turn the April 16th Tucker Lodge hike into a Pancake Supper. We used to schedule a Pancake Breakfast every spring but enthusiasm for early morning walks wore too thin. It was hoped that supper time would prove more popular. It did. We had twelve people.

On Friday afternoon Churchill and Bob Scott, Kevin Hogan, and Craigie Perkins went in to Tucker for over night. "Breakable crust" over snow up to a foot deep made the going somewhat laborious.

The camp required only the usual picking up. Good fire wood, a good supper, and spring temperatures made for a pleasant evening.

In the morning a proposed hike "to the top of the hill" proved to be too much work through the still deep snow. Five people came in for lunch, and a sixth during the early afternoon.

Just in time for supper the Martin family arrived and proceeded to show us how to cook pancakes in record time with minimum fuel by way of tin can cookery on a rock outdoors. Very successful.

Oh yes, from a couple of bare spots two handfuls of wild onions were gathered. And were they wild!

Back out to the cars through the miserable slush at dark. We'll have to try this one again next year.

CAMPING SHOW

The Rutland Family Camping Association will sponsor a Camping Show on May 7 and 8 at the Rutland Fair grounds. Members will set up and explain their camping equipment, and answer questions for novice campers.

GMC member Harold Valiquette, who is also a charter member of the camping group, will be among those exhibiting.

TRAILS & SHELTERS

This is the time of year when this group will be very busy.

There are many things to be done. Roofs to patch, cover with tar, toilet houses to build, dumps to locate, creosote to apply, signs to make and trails to clear.

Each week that a hike is not planned a work party will be scheduled. Anyone willing and able to help at this time please contact W.C. Scott, 132 Maple St. for more information.

May we point out at this time that it is not a hard job or a strenuous one which many of our tasks demand and the ladies could help a great deal in addition to preparing meals for the workers.

GUIDE BOOKS

According to information from the main office of the Green Mountain Club a new 1966 edition of the Long Trail Guidebook will be off the press and available around May 1. Due to the higher cost of printing the cost of the new issue will be $1.95.

TRUSTEE'S MEETING

On April 2, the Spring Meeting of the trustees of the Green Mountain Club was held at the Rutland Office. About 23 persons attended from all the sections plus Peggy Pons, Long Trail News Editor and new president-elect of the New York section, and Jim Barrett of the new Springfield, Mass. section-to-be named Pioneer Valley.

Vic Randolph reported on the 1966 InterSectional to be held at Grout Pond Scout Camp on Aug. 27-Sept. 5. The committee has worked hard on this program and we should do all we can to make it a success. Possibly two square dance nights are planned plus many hikes arranged to help G.M.C.'er's get their End-to-End award. The schedule should be in the flyer which will be available at the annual meeting on May 28.

Bob Deemer of U.S.F.S. stated new shelters would be built at Lake Griffith and Bourne Pond in addition to a second one on the north-west shore of the pond.

OFFICERS MEET

New officers and committee chairmen of the Killington Section met for an organizational session at the home of president George Reynolds in late February.

Craig Perkins volunteered to take over the editorship of "Smoke & Blazes," with Betty Gilman doing the mimeograph stencils. Craig called for eight volunteers to contribute at least 3 columns of copy sometime during the coming year. M. Wiley, T. Gulick, A. Reynolds, C. Scott, V. Perkins, Har. & Thelma Valiquette have agreed to provide material. Anyone else wishing to help in this way is asked to call Craig, or Ann Reynolds.

The section extends its appreciation to Thelma Valiquette, who has faithfully gotten out the bulletin for the past two years or more, and to Pearl Nichols, who has been cutting the stencils for many years.

COMING HIKES

Long Trail End-to-End Trip.
July 2-4, 1966.

This trip originally planned for the Canadian line south will have to be changed to a portion of the trail farther south due to the construction work on Jay Peak. Because of the length and duration of this hike final plans will be made on Wed. June 29 at the home of W.C. Scott, 132 Maple St. Rutland, Vt. 05701.

Shrewsbury Loop Trail
Sat. July 16, 9:00 A.M.
Meldon School Area

This hike will take us over a new section of trail to many members. We plan to go from Gov. Clement Shelter north, eat lunch at the Four Brooks and return by way of the trail over Shrewsbury Peak.. Then down the new relocated trail to the picnic area.

Mount Cushman - Rochester, Vt.
Sun.. July 31, 10:00 A. M.
Meldon School Area

This will be a chance to visit a fire lookout tower and see the Green Mountains from another angle.. A easy walk and the black flies should be about gone.

Long Trail-Middlebury Gap to Breadloaf Mt.
Sat. August 6

Another leg on our End-to-End trip. We will leave Meldon School at 8:00 A..M. in order to spot a car and go north over the trail and then down to Steam Mill Meadows. About 8.5 miles.

Killington Peak via Juggernaut Trail.
Sun.. Aug. 21, 10:00 A.M.
Meldon School Area

Let's try to climb Killington from a different direction this time. Mr. Ogden and his son have this trail in good shape.

Vic Randolph and his committee have done a great deal of work to make this year a success.

A flyer of the intersectional is enclosed to help plan the week's activities. With good weather our members could hike the southern 40-50 miles of the trail for our End-to-End award.

TRAILS AND SHELTERS

A number of work parties have been held both individually and with a group. This reporter can not recall everyone but some of the highlights in addition to Ben Rolston's fine job of cleaning the lower half of our section, the floor has been repaired at Buffum, toilet hole dug at Sunny-side and annex started, suspension bridge at Mill River creosoted, relocation around Deer Leap measured and begun.

The planned work parties for July and August will be as follows:

July 9-10. Gov. Clement.
Toilet house, dump, bunks and the grounds picked up.

July 23-24. Trail cleaning
Cooper Lodge to Sherburne Pass.
This will depend on how much work Mr. Ogden and his son are able to do before July 23. Also if enough workers are available a new toilet house is needed at Pico.

Aug. 13-14. Tucker Lodge.
An overnight work party is to build a new toilet house, establish a dump, raise up floor, fix the stone foundation and replace the stove pipe.

This is a very loose schedule and a great deal depends on the number of workers we are able to have.

If reservations are made by Friday before each trip meals will be provided by the Club.

For more information on any part of the above items please contact W. Churchill Scott Sect'y.

CANTILEVER ROCK

On June 5, Sunday Kevin Hogan and Churchill Scott met at Meldon to go to Cantilever Rock on Mount Mansfield. Fortunately Mr. and Mrs. Weeks of Springfield, Vt. were there otherwise it would have been a long long walk. After an enjoyable ride in a new Ford convertible we arrived at the Underhill State Forest Camping area. Overnighters Mauri Wintturi and the Brown family met us and soon we were walking up the C.C.C. road by the Halfway House site for one mile to where the sunset Ridge Trail begins. Crossing a number of brooks (unnecessarily getting water to lug) we climbed 0.4 mile to the Cantilever Rock Trail. Another short 0.4 mile brought us to the Rock where Mr. Morse and his daughter along with a young couple from Burlington, Vt. and their son riding a Pack-a-Poose shared lunch and coffee with us.

Ascending the mountain The Sunset Ridge Trail breaks out into the open rocks and for a mile it winds up an interesting ridge to the Ohin, highest point in Vermont. Here the party split up and after meeting George Pearlstein we walked back down the trail with him. George listed a number of other trails to plan future hikes upon and if enough interest is shown another trip to this spot will be made.

EAST MOUNTAIN TRIP

Well, we finally did it !
After four or five false starts and no starts six Clubbers got to the very top of East Mountain.

It looked like a rainy day as we started but soon the sun came out and we had a warm spring day.

We approached the mountain by way of the Dyer Meadow as we did last fall. This time we had an experienced guide--- Harold Valiquette--- who had been to the top several times. He led us off to the left from just above the big rock. When we got to the top of the ridge we turned left again and followed the ridge to the true top of the mountain. Pretty easy, huh ? It's all in knowing how.

Several years ago Harold put a flag on a tree at the top of the mountain and since then a few groups of hikers have wondered and wandered. Come to think of it,
East Mountain is as easy to climb as Pine Hill or Bald Mountain, and it seems strange more people dont get up there and enjoy an excellent view of the city.

We found a place where we could enjoy the sunshine and had our lunch. It got so warm that Harold picked a ripe banana from a near by tree. He did too, I saw him.

After lunch we had a lengthy discussion on the various kinds of oak trees, which is a-corny subject under the best of conditions. Then Harold whipped out a bran new red flag to replace the old ruined one. The boys climbed a big tree and tied it in place.

So now if you see the flag up there you know all about it.

DANBY ROAD TO GRIFFITH LAKE

By Doris Newton

May 14th, the day of the hike from "USFS 10 Road "to Griffith Lake was one of those days that kept us saying "What a day ! How lucky we are ! Five of us left Meldon at eight o'clock for the Lake Trail where we left one car.
After chatting with the Rolstons who had camped there, we went in the other car to the Long Trail crossing at "Black Branch".

The section of trail along Big Branch is rewarding..The stream with spring high water, the two new shelters, the fine bridge (USFS), the site of the old mill, the early spring flowers, provided constant interest. We encountered a group of hikers from Putney School out for several days on the Trail. The fireplace at Lost Pond Shelter was still warm from their morning fire when our noon fore was started and the familar coffee pot put on. We contentedly basked in the sun during lunch, then began the mild climb up the ridge toward Baker Peak. Here it must be reported that one of us succeeded in sitting down in an extremely wet and muddy bit of trail -- in a brook in fact !

Baker Peak was a splendid climax to a fine walk. After a rest here to enjoy the view, and a second meeting with Ben, now hard at work painting the bad weather by-pass, we detoured over to Griffith Lake, then back down the Lake Trail to the waiting car. A perfect day of hiking dampened only externally by sitting in the brook ! (It really didn't take too long to dry out !)

BARBARA BECOMES A HIKER By Barbara Barron

This was the first time I had ever gone on a hike in a group, you know adults and all. Well, let me tell you it was fun.

Mary Ellen Connors wanted to know if I wanted to go hiking to Tucker Lodge with her family one Sunday. I said "sure sounds fun". It was not until later I found out what horrors awaited me.

First there was Uncle Harold (Valiquette) he said I wasn't dressed properly. I thought it was kind of funny, everyone else was all bundled up and were wearing boots. It was such a beautiful day I just wore slacks, sweater and sneakers. Uncle Harold said the snow was at least two feet deep up there, well I was willing to take my chances.

When we got up there, there wasn't a bit of snow in sight, boy did those people look ridiculous.

So we started on our 15 min. walk (which lasted 30 min). First there was Mary Ellen, Joanne and I. Then came Mr. Connors, Uncle Harold and some other men. Then came the pack mules namely Mrs. Connors and Aunt "T" (Uncle Harold's poor unfortunate wife, she must have worn highly magnified glasses when she married him), carrying the food.

Well when we arrived at Tucker Lodge I was horrified, So THAT was Tucker Lodge it looked like they cut down some trees and glued them together with Elmer's Glue.

Inside was worse. I made the mistake of asking what those slabs of wood were. Someone said "beds".

After everyone had rested, Mr. Connors asked if anyone wanted to go for a walk (straight up a mountain). So Mary Ellen, Mrs. Connors and I decided to go. About three feet up the hill we stopped to give Mrs. Connors a rest (this went on all the way up). Finally on top we decided to go down (sounded reasonable).

Did you ever go down a mountain 120 m.p.h., using trees as breaks - it's not exactly going first class; but what was even sillier Mrs. Connors was slower coming down than going up (sometimes I wonder about her).

When we finally got down the first lap, we all had just one question for Davey Croquette, Jr. Where were we?

He said "don't get excited just look for a tree with a blue spot on it". About three thousand trees and we had to find one with a blue dot. Thanks to Mr. Connors keen sense of direction he bumped into that very tree. So we followed the blue dotted trees back.

I guess Mary Ellen and I were being punished for something cause we had to ride back with Uncle Harold (personally I think he thinks he is Frank Sinatra) THAT VOICE. It must have been banned from every state in the union. No Wonder he is always up at Tucker Lodge, probably exercising his vocal cords.

REMINDERS and REMAINDERS

Closing date for the next Smoke and Blazes will be Aug. 15. It is better if our outings are written up by someone who has attended, so if you go on a hike and are willing to write it up check with the editor.

Churchill Scott is still producing about half of your club paper. How about lending a hand?

According to the new topo map Most of Bald Mt. is part of the Aiken State Forest. Why can't the Killington Section G.M.C. take the necessary steps to make sure it isn't turned over to some one for commercial development. An area so near the Girl Scout Camp and the city of Rutland should be saved for hiking and other forms of non destructive recreation.

SMOKE & BLAZES

Vol. 19 No. 4 - KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - July. Aug. 1966

COMING HIKES

Long Trail End-to-End Trip.
Sept. 10, 8:00 A.M. Sat.
Meldon School Area

This trip will be from Mad Tom Shelter south to Prospect Rock and then down a side trail to Route #30. To save time a fire and coffee will be ready at Bromley Shelter. About 12 miles total distance.

PICO CAMP AND PEAK
Sunday Sept. 25, 10:00 A.M.
Meldon School Area

Here will be a good opportunity to see a small part of the work that The Farm and Wilderness Camps have done for our Section and also the fine signs the Ogden's have erected. An easy walk of about 6-8 miles.

LONG TRAIL END-TO-END TRIP
Sunday Oct. 9, 8:00 A.M.
Skyline Lodge to Lincoln Gap.
Meldon School Area

A 14 mile hike planned to help Mauri Wintturi and the John Himmelbergers work on their End-to-End award. This is a long walk but not too hard a trail so let's turn out.

CROSS COUNTRY WALK. IRA-BIRD MT.
Saturday Oct. 22, 9:00 A.M.

Meldon School Area

Perhaps we can get Miss Newton to lead this walk over an old road through unknown woods to most of us.

CAMP TENDARA

Annual open house featuring an exhibit of arts and crafts. No house fees will be charged for G.M. C. members and guests on Sun. Oct. 2. Here is a good time to visit the very fine facilities of the New York Section and meet many new friends of the Long Trail who have done much to maintain their part. A long trip but well worth the effort. For more information contact W.C. Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt.

MUSHROOM HUNT

On Sunday Sept. 18, at 2:00 P.M. the Springfield, Vt. Family Field Trip Program has listed a walk in their local area looking for mushrooms. This walk will be led by experienced folks who will identify the edible types. For more information contact W. C. Scott.

END-TO- END HIKES

This past Spring and Summer as a group, members of the Killington Section have covered 34.7 miles from Mad Tom Shelter to Big Branch, Sky-line Lodge to Middlebury Gap and Frying Pan Brook to Barrows Camp.

Also Kevin Hogan and Bill Gragen hiked from the Mass. line to Mad Tom Shelter.

This Fall we have planned two more trips before the snow flies. Let's see if we can have a larger crowd on our next series of walks.

If enough interest is shown it is possible to undertake a half-day or one day hike on the week-ends that do not conflict with our regular outings.

For more information about this opportunity to earn an End-to-End award please contact W.C.Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt. 05701.

----- TRAILS AND SHELTERS

The past two months have been busy times for a few members and non members of the Killington Section.

The Ogdens have finished erecting signs at all of our shelters and along the entire 21.2 miles of long trail we maintain in addition to the side trails. Also they have cut out blowdowns, brushed trails, painted blazes and many other activities to put the trail in first class condition.

They are also responsible for new hardware cloth bunks at Gov. Clement Shelter (after so many years of talk and argument), chimney repaired and heightened, an adjustable swinging crane. Everyone should make a special effort to visit this camp to see the great improvements that has been made.

The Farm and Wilderness Camps have sent a number of work parties onto our section to brush trail, paint blazes, dig toilet holes and erect temporary seats, and clean up around the shelters. They are doing a great deal of work on the Shrewsbury trail under the leadership of Miss Shelia Ashley and Mr. Susumi Ishitani.

As usual there is still more to do at our shelters. The most important job at this time is Tucker. Here many odds and ends should be taken care of. Notably the toilet house constructed, floor raised and leveled, walls repaired and chinked up for the winter.

----- BARROWS CAMP TO FRYING PAN BROOK

On Friday July 1 two cars left Rutland for a 3 day trip on the trail. After much discussion and at the suggestion of Mr. & Mrs. Lloyd Weeks that due to the construction on Jay Peak we begin our hike at Barrows Camp.

This camp 0.2 miles from the road was found easily thanks to a map drawn for us by Mr. Mould, a G. M.C. member of the Sterling Section at Morrisville, Vt.

A quick supper was eaten and then with a group of 15 Scouts and their leaders staying there we felt it best to swing around to Parker Camp. Due to a new lumber job we were able to drive up the Davis Neighborhood Trail and spend a very restful night.

Bright and early Saturday morning Wilbur Weston of Ft. Lauderdale, Rascal, his dog, Kevin Hogan and Churchill Scott started south up Laraway Mt.

At Laraway Lookout the view must be spectacular on a clear day but this day was hot, humid and hazy.

Passing by a number of high ledges we dropped to Codding Hollow Brook where we ate lunch in a big patch of mint, some of which was gathered to stew up with a small amount of water and sugar.

Soon we were climbing up a low hill and then down to Barrows Camp where there is a very good water supply. Here we picked up a car and returned to Parker.

After another good meal and rest we started out on Sun. morning to hike up Butternut Mt. and on north. Running most of the time to keep up to Kevin we descended to Devil's Gulch and arrived at Ritterbush Camp in time to eat lunch.

Swinging around Ritterbush Pond we again climbed a low hill and then coasted down to Frying Pan Brook where Mr. Weston picked us up.

BREADLOAF TO MIDDLEBURY GAP

On a hot, humid day in August a group of G.M.C. hikers drove to Middlebury for another link on our End-to-End award.

Mauri Wintturi, Mr. & Mrs. John Himmelberger, Betty Gilman and Churchill Scott at the suggestion of Mr. Irving White the new trustee from Worcester, Mass. began the trip at the bottom of the Skylight Pond Trail. The path was very poorly marked or cleared but after a bit more than an hour with only a few stops to search for the trail we arrived at the Long Trail. (This would be a good hike in the fall after the leaves go.)

Soon a short walk brought us to Skyline Lodge, a snug cabin of peeled logs with a front porch overlooking a small beaver pond and a beautiful view to the East. Had a good lunch at this spot with our faithful coffee pot putting on the finishing touch.

Mauri spent most of the time gathering names from the register for Rod Rice of Burlington who in turn hopes to use them to show to the State Recreation Dept. pointing out how large a part of the hikers are from out of state and how far they travel to enjoy all that we have to offer.

There was a short discussion about going north 1.8 miles to the next side trail so that on the Fall hike we have the distance would be less but that idea fell through. Soon we started for Middlebury Gap and within a short time it was easy to see why Mr. White said to go South for the whole 5 miles was downhill.

At last we were at the road and we said goodbye to the Himmelbergers who were going to do the trail to Brandon Gap the next day from Lake Placid, picked up Mauri's car and spotted the car of John and Edna's.

Once again it is hard to understand why some folks will close up shop, drive all night, hike the trail two days and drive back for work the next morning. And yet it is an impossible job to get members of the Killington Section interested in End-to-End hikes.

JUGGERNAUT TRAIL TRIP

Due to the fact that we had no cars except Mr. Hogan, Kevin and Churchill decided to hike from Rt. #4 over the Long Trail around Pico, check on the conditions of everything and then journey on to Killington.

After many years thanks to the F. & W. Camps we have a toilet hole dug at both locations. Also the campers have done a very good job of cleaning the trail, painting the blazes and picking up the camps in general. In addition to all this the Ogdens say these campers have done much work on the Shrewsbury Trail. Mr. Parsons, the fire warden at Killington has a great deal of good words to say for the very well mannered and behaved groups which worked for us this year.

We feel that we are indeed fortunate to have the help of all these young people that Mr. Webb has sent out on the trail this year.

Lunch was eaten on the summit and the view enjoyed with many who rode up the lift.

Mr. Parsons pointed out a number of new peaks to us including Burke, Olympus, Stratton and Cushman whose open summit and buildings were easily picked up with the glasses.

Soon it was time to head for home and so we headed down the tractor road (another new one this time) and when we reached the Basin Dr. Pingree gave us a ride home.
WELL BETTER LUCK NEXT TIME

SHREWSBURY LOOP TRIP

On Saturday July 16 a good sized group of ambitious hikers met at Meldon School site. The weather was clear, cool and a perfect day to walk.

Out of town guests were Wilbur Weston, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Della Ellison, Ludlow, Vt., Linda Rozowicz and Elsie Maier, New York City.

When we arrived at Gov. Clement it was arranged that the hikers would take a trip up Killington due to the beautiful weather and also because of the poor report from George Pearlstein on the condition of the Shrewsbury Trail. (This has now been improved by the F.&W. Camps).

While the others were hiking the Ogdens and Churchill Scott began a long day's work at the shelter. The lower bunks were taken out, the debris of many years raked away, the chimney chinked up and raised another two feet above the roof line, an adjustable swinging crane was installed in the cleaned out fireplace.

At last we were ready to go on the bunks. The Ogdens had pre-cut all the lumber and drilled it in the proper spots so that it was possible to cut the hardware cloth the correct length, bolt the 2 x 4's together and roll up the five bunks and fasten them in the correct spot.

This sounds like an easy job but we were still going strong at 4:00 when Dr. James Howard of Mendon came along and having lost his beagle on Killington decided to stay around camp for awhile to see if Jo-Jo would pick up his scent. He pitched in and helped us so very much by crawling up in under the bunks to tighten the bolts and nuts.

Soon the hikers returned and after resting awhile headed for home but not before they had told how far one could see from the summit and the large number of people using the lift. After a very small supper we put the finishing touches on our work while trying to keep the no-see-ems off for only about one hour then they left of their accord.

At 9:45 P.M. working the last hour by the lights of the VW we finally picked up our tools and headed for home after a good day's work and one which will improve the appearance of Gov. Clement 100%. Everyone should make a special effort to visit here and see how big a change has been made.

However it all boils down to the same question which has been asked so many times by so many people.

"Why does the Killington Section with almost 100 Members have to rely on out-of-town members or non-members to do so much of the work on our trails and shelters?"

MOUNT CUSHMAN

On Sunday July 31, Kevin Hogan, George, John and Bob Reynolds and Churchill Scott took off from Meldon headed for Randolph-Rochester area. The weather was clear and cool and a beautiful day to hike. With the aid of a topo map and a vague remembrance of the other trip some years ago we arrived at the foot of the trail to the fire lookout.

This time there was no mist to hide our destination and after a short search we found the trail and that was the last we saw of Kevin. About noon the boys got hungry and so we stopped a short time for lunch.

After a few more remarks from George about the short, easy hike mentioned in Smoke & Blazes we broke out into the open and saw the tower ahead of us.

The tower was not manned this summer but we were able to climb to the top of the stairs and from there we could see for miles. Ascutney, the White Mountains to the East, the Adirondacks to the West, Pico and Killington stood out plainly to the South and Mt. Mansfield to the North.

While we were resting and talking of the peace and quiet along came a Scout up the road. Most of the time we would be rather put out at this but there was an elderly couple on the mountain for the first time. It was a pleasure to see the enjoyment they received from the marvelous day.

Soon it was time to head for home and we hiked down the mountain. On the way home we decided to ride over Rochester Mt. and that was a very enjoyable ending to a perfect day.

BARBARA BECOMES A CAMPER

My family are not campers, and if you saw them you would understand why. You couldn't drag my mother away from her soap operas, and my young sisters are afraid of being scalped.

The first time I went camping was with the Connors'. Mary Ellen used to show me their equipment, gas stove, kitchen and even an oven where Mrs. Connors could bake her sunken cakes. Well, all this equipment really floored me. I guess camping was going to be a cinch.

Mr. Connors told me to have all my clothes and equipment ready at 7:30 sharp and bring them over, because we were going to leave at 8:30. I wondered why he wanted me over there so early, but I soon found out we had to get all that equipment on to Connors' run down Rambler. Poor Mr. Connors used to get so tired sitting on the hill supervising the packing. When we finally finished, they had to find room for little ole me, they found an 11 by 12 inch opening forme and stuck me in, you should try and sit in a car with all the windows closed and Mr. Connors smoking that stinky pipe. When we finally arrived almost an empty gas tank later, I got out, unfolded myself and got ready to go swimming, but Hitler Jr., called me back and said we had to unburden our mechanical donkey, this time the old man pitched in a tent or two and let me supervise a little. And when we finished it was too late to go swimming and we had to go to bed. I'll never forget that first horrible night. Mr. Connors kept the dead awake with his snoring. Mary Ellen must store up all her day's breathing and let it out a mile a minute at night. We don't have to worry about the mosquitos, Joanne catches them with her wide open mouth. And Mrs. Connors tosses and turns on the squeaky cot, and even though I whistle when I sleep you couldn't hear me above the rest of the racket. (yes).

Yes one way to find out about people is to go camping, you'd never guess Mr. Connors takes medicine for his liver.

Seriously though I love camping, you meet very interesting and handsome people. I've been camping with the Connors a few times and I love every minute of it. I'd give anything to convince my parents to go camping I know if they tried it once they would love it.

If you're ever up our way we are the conspicuous lot under the orange tarp.

LITTLE ROCK POND NORTH TO ROUTE 140

May 30 was a nice afternoon when we left Meldon School site shortly after 1 o'clock leaving one car in Wallingford and the other one near Little Rock Pond.

It was beautiful walking along up to Little Rock Pond where we stopped for a few minutes to look around, then on to Homer Stone Brook where we stopped again for Churchill to have some lunch and the rest to catch our breath. We all had our dinner before venturing out except Mr. Scott who had slaved away sorting mail that morning.

Churchill got spruce gum to chew to help us make it to the White Rocks where we stopped and looked at the beautiful view for about a half hour which was well worth the trip and after that we reluctantly started on the last of the walk and everyone was back home by 8:00.

Vol. 19 No. 5 - KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - Sept. Oct. 1966

COMING HIKES

CROSS COUNTRY WALK

Greendale Picnic Area, Weston, Vt. to Wallingford Pond Area.

Sunday Oct. 30, 10:00 A.M.

Meldon School Area

Here is a wonderful opportunity to follow Craigie through the woods on a trip that has been talked and discussed for years. This is a walk for everyone, young and old, so come along and enjoy yourself.

EAST MOUNTAIN

Sat. Nov. 5, 9:00 A.M.

Meldon School Area

This will be the last hike before deer hunting so let's have a good turnout to go with Harold to the top of East Mt. again and see Rutland, Vt. from a different viewpoint.

BUFFUM LODGE

Sat. Dec. 3, 9:00 A.M.

Meldon School Area

This will be our first hike in almost a month so let's get out again and visit the newest shelter in the Killington Section and to help prepare it for Winter.

SUNNYSIDE CAMP

Sun. Dec. 18, 10:00 A.M.

A new stove will be installed at Sunnyside by the time of this hike so let the Winter wind blow and the snow fly we should be warm and comfortable. Perhaps we can slide down the hill at Spring Lake so bring along your sled if the weather is right.

CLARENDON LODGE

Sun. Jan. 8, 10:00 A.M.

An overnight hike to this favorite spot of so many members of our section is planned for this trip so why don't you make plans to come along and enjoy a change. More information from W.C. Scott if desired.

RUMMAGE SALE NETS $52.

Our annual Rummage Sale was held on Saturday, September 31. This year we had to find new quarters and were fortunate to have the facilities of the Universalist Church Rooms available. The weather was uncooperative with a steady rain most of the day. This did not seem to affect the morning attendance too greatly but not as many returned in the afternoon to take advantage of reduced prices.

Several factors probably contributed to the lower than usual profit; higher expenses; as the rent although nominal was more than the janitor's fee which was all we formerly had to pay for the Neighborhood Rooms; a smaller stock of salable articles; and possibly a little blame can be placed on the weather.

We have $52. more in the treasury because of the sale so it was worthwhile. However we would like next year to get back to our customary approximate $100. even with increased expenses. So-- won't you all START NOW putting aside material for us?

So often we have heard people say, "I know I have more things around that I'd be glad to get rid of but I just didn't get to collecting them." Why not put a large carton in some convenient place and as you come to such items deposit them in it. Let your relatives, neighbors, and friends know you have such a box and they may be glad to add articles now and then. That way you will be already for our next sale which is planned for Sept. 1967. START TODAY. We appreciated your donations and hope for even more next year.

Over the years what appears to be a standing Rummage Sale Committee seems to have developed; Mary, Crague Perkins, "T" & Harold Valiquette, Churchill Scott and Vera Perkins. They appreciated the help of this year's assistants, Ruth Fostman, Betty Gilman and Ruth LaBrake.

Let's have a bigger and better sale in 1967.

PICO CAMP

About a dozen hikers made this one on a good hiking day.

The new by-pass at the Long Trail Lodge came in for some criticism because of the "artificial springs" at the start. Either the trail will have to be moved further down the mountain or several cat walks provided.

Pico Camp was in good shape with only one broken window pane which was temporarily replaced with metal. One new section of stovepipe was installed, and new metal put in where the pipe goes through the wall. All set for winter now.

The stove worked well providing hot water for coffee in jig time. After lunch some hikers went to the top of the mountain. Back to the cars just before dark. Another good day in the woods.

IRA WALK

We picked ideal weather for this one. A car was parked on the Bird Mt. road and then all hikers were transported around to a back road between Ira and West Rutland.

We followed the old road west to a point near the pass where we had lunch. Continuing on the party dropped down the side of the mountain ridge, crossed a valley, and arrived at the previously spotted car. Two hikers retrieved the other car, and so home.

We met a lucky hunter with a deer he had taken with bow and arrow.

This is the first time in years the Club has visited this area. Further exploration toward Mt. Herrick would be interesting.

A QUICK 45-MILE HIKE

On Sun. Aug. 28, Kevin Hogan, Chucky Wener and Churchill Scott were left off at Smuggler's Notch by Betty Gilman to whom we are very grateful. Here we began a hike to Appalachian Gap by Wed. night.

At Taft Lodge we found a bit of orange marmalade and instant tea mix to add to our supplies and before the day was over we were glad to have them.

The day was clear as a bell with a cool north wind and on the summit we could see Killington and Pico to the South and Belvidere to the North. It was very pleasing to see so many people of all ages walking along the trails of Mt. Mansfield. Near the Chin we met a group of hikers who had just finished a trip from Lincoln Gap and they advised us the trail was pretty wet.

About 6:00 P.M. we hit Nebraska Notch hungry and tired but a short stop for water and tea and orange marmalade sandwiches carried us on to Taylor Lodge. This large lodge is a beautiful one in a very pretty spot overlooking Lake Mansfield. In the evening a full moon came up to make our stay here even more enjoyable.

On Monday it seemed that we would never stop going up and down mountains. After sloughing through mud or trying to dodge it many times during the day we decided not to worry so much about the swamp up there between Pico and Killington. This evening was spent at the new Duck Brook Shelter, a shelter built to break up the 10 miles from Bolton Lodge to Wiley Lodge. This is another very nice spot overlooking a deep ravine and a cool, clear stream. Here again a full moon shone down into the camp to make the end of this day more enjoyable.

Tuesday broke clear but hot and humid so following the weather report on Chucky's radio we covered our gear with plastic to keep it dry. Early in the day we reached Jonesville and had tasty drink of Chocolate milk and ice cream and wrote cards home to say we were still hiking.

Next came the long haul up Camel's Hump forewarned by Craigie that any way up that mountain is rough and hard. Up Robins Mt. back down to Wiley Lodge and then up again toward Montclair Glen but off in the distance we heard the rumble of an approaching storm. Soon the wind blew and before long the rain fell and Kevin took off for Gorham Lodge. We followed as fast as possible getting wetter by the minute. At last the Lodge appeared and a nice warm fire greeted us. Here the evening was spent checking the weather and figuring how we could cover 13.5 miles to our ride.

Wed. dawned clear, cool and beautiful. After an early start the Summit of Camel's Hump was reached with the clouds just breaking away. Here is another peak that our section must climb and with so many side trails it should not be too hard. Once again it was a day spent going up the Allens, Burnt Rock (a peak which we agree with Craigie is a very pretty spot for a one day trip) and the Starks where we enjoyed the view very much from Molly Stark's Balcony. Soon we were at Appalachian Gap where Mr. Hogan met us within 10 minutes.

A few items we learned on this trip is the importance of leaving dry wood in a camp for the next party for they might come in a rain-storm as we did. Also in spite of the added weight a radio is very useful to get the latest report on the weather so one will know what to look for.

Our very great thanks are due to Miss Gilman and Mr. Hogan for making this very enjoyable trip possible.

REMINDER

The deadline for the next issue of Smoke and Blazes will be Dec. 15. By that time plans for the Annual Meeting should be made.

In typing up two column copy please leave three-fourths inch margin all around and one-half inch between columns.

TRAILS AND SHELTERS

During the deer season this year we are not planning any hikes. But we will have a number of work parties. The shelters need a great deal of all types of work.

BUFFUM-new boards on the bottom bunks, new top layer on the floor, bench around stove, wash windows, creosote and tar on roof.

SUNNYSIDE-new stove, pipe and chimney, patches on the roof, wash windows and creosote. Also finish the toilet house if not done before.

CLARENDON-dig toilet hole, construct toilet, replace corner boards, replace windows, wash same and creosote. The roof should be tared.

TUCKER-there are almost too many repairs to mention on this shelter. Level the whole insides up, repair foundation, fix up stairs and check on the toilet facilities.

Our section needs a lot of help to do all these jobs that are listed so if any folks are able to give us a hand we would be very grateful. In order to get these shelters ready for the winter hikes they must be made snug and tight. W.C. Scott will be in charge of these work parties and will welcome any help available.

ANOTHER QUICK TRIP

On Wed. Oct. 12 Kevin Hogan and Churchill Scott were taken to the bottom of the Skylight Pond Trail thanks to the kindness of Miss Doris Newton. Heading for the Long Trail we soon ran into snow (once again Craigie will have the last laugh on us), met a bow and arrow hunter who told us he shot at a bear.

After a short side trip to Skyline Pond we retraced our steps and headed north. Very soon we spotted an arrow in the trail and upon closer examination we could see it was smeared with blood and had a few bear hairs on it. Recalling all the stories of wounded bear we had a few anxious minutes.

Emily Proctor Shelter was the place to stay for the night but what a place. No floor only Hardware Cloth stretched on poles only two of which were whole. During supper a flight of 50 geese flew over making a very pretty sight.

After a very cold and long night we started on the trail again. This day was spent in covering the part we had planned to do the Sunday before and as each mile went by we were more happy that it fell through for it was up one mountain and down the other side. Ate at Cooley Glen, a new camp built by U.S.F.S.

The next night was spent at Battell an old shelter but good water, wood and location. We put into practice a few things we learned the night before to keep warm, such as a big fire, dry and warm clothes, stay up as late as possible and a good hot drink.

The hike up Mt. Abraham was short and easy, the view was very good and as we looked up toward Camel's Hump and Mt. Mansfield we knew it was a good thing we did not go to the Canadian Line. This day three ski areas were passed and it is a sad sight to see so much of the wilderness cut up in this manner. A Side trip to the new Glen Ellen Lodge was made and there a party was at work reopening the Barton Trail. The new Threon Dean Shelter was a very good spot and soon we were on our way over to Stark's wall and down. At Appalachian Gap we were picked up by Mr. Hogan and returned via Route 100 seeing many deer on the way. At the Rochester Inn we were all treated to a tasty meal by Mr. Carroll, Mrs. Hogan's father which put a perfect finishing touch to an enjoyable trip.

Our thanks again to Miss Newton and Mr. Hogan for transportation.

Vol. 19 No. 6 - KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - Nov. Dec. 1966

COMING EVENTS

DATE - SATURDAY - JAN. 21
 DESTINATION-TUCKER LODGE
 MOONLIGHT HIKE

We will leave the Meldon School area at 7:00 P.M. and take the short way into Tucker on snowshoes if necessary. Coffee and doughnuts will be served by the Club and a nice warm camp is hoped for so we may talk over (as usual) all the work that needs to be done and how it will be undertaken when the frost is out of the ground. Let's try to have a good group on our trip tonight so we may put the final touch on the annual meeting plans.

DATE - SUNDAY - FEB. 19
 DESTINATION - SNOWSHOE HIKE
 BROWN BRIDGE TO (?)

There are a number of paths we may take from this spot. To the Notch Road via either side of the North Branch depending on the chance of crossing the river. Or we can follow Doris, Vera or Eleanor's advice and go around to the East.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

As we come to the end of another year of work on our Section the T. & S. comm. want to thank the many folks who have given of their time and effort to improve our Trails and Shelters.

The Herb Ogdens have made their very wonderful signs for the whole length of our section in addition to the side trails also. (Perhaps a number of folks saw a sample of their work at the Annual Meeting of the G.M.C. in May). New bridges have been built for the Bucklin Trail and it has also been cleaned and blazed. Gov. Clement shelter has new bottom bunks, an adjustable fireplace crane, chimney lengthened and a new toilet house (a two-holer so we've heard).

Too we want to thank the Farm and Wilderness Camps for their help in improving the sanitary facilities at Pico and Killington. In addition they spent many hours clearing trails and painting blazes. We have heard that the Shrewsbury Trail is extra good and this next Spring we must plan a trip there.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Killington Section, Green Mountain Club, will be held Friday, Jan. 27, at 8 p.m. at the CVPS rooms on Grove Street (please use Maple Street entrance).

President George Reynolds will conduct the business meeting, which will include secretary's and treasurer's reports and committee reports. Ann Reynolds is chairman of a nominating committee to present a new slate of officers.

Entertainment, not yet finalized, will follow the business meeting, and the ladies will provide the usual array of desserts and coffee at the conclusion of the program. All members are urged to attend and to bring guests.

BUFFUM LODGE HIKE

A small group visited the site of Buffum Lodge and salvaged a few parts from the stove. Everything else was burned up. Only a few lumps of melted glass and the ruined cement blocks showed that a camp had ever been there. A very neat job.

GMV IN ALASKA

Imagine my surprise, upon phoning our vice-president Michael Wiley to inform him of a meeting, to learn that he has been in Alaska since June!

He and his wife, the former Bertha (Sis) Prior of Sherburne, drove to Alaska where their first child was born three days after their arrival. His name is Bryce and he certainly appears to have the stamina to be a real hiker!

Mike is teaching a fifth grade class and reports they have met several other transplanted Vermonters there. Their address:

SUNNYSIDE CAMP HIKE

Another very small group hiked in to Sunnyside and tried out the new stove. Very nice. The camp was clean and the creosote job inside and out was a big improvement. There is one small leak in the roof yet and a set of steps instead of the present chicken ladder would be much safer. Too bad more hikers didn't make this trip as the road, the weather, and the accomodations were ideal.

MEMBERSHIP

The dues for the year 1967 are now payable to the Treasurer, W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St. Rutland, Vt. 05701.

Also we have on hand a few 1966 Guidebooks so why not pick one up in order to plan some of the trips up North to work on the End-to-End award again.

WORK PARTIES

This year we were very lucky to have so many people help on the many projects we had planned.

First and foremost is the big improvement in the toilet houses which will bring joy to Pres. John Rohrbaugh and everyone in the main club.

A new kitchen range has been put in Sunnyside but as yet it has not had a good test for heating quality yet. This camp has also been creosoted and cleaned up.

Clarendon Lodge has had the windows replaced, creosoted, cleaned up and the grounds around the camp picked up.

Pico Shelter had new windows, new tin for chimney, new door hinges and a good cleaning.

Tucker -(?) perhaps next year. Although Chuck Wener supervised the construction of a latrine here which was a big improvement.

We look forward to 1967 with a great deal of hope and expectation that we will be as lucky to have as much and as willing help to work on all the jobs we hope to do this next summer as soon as the snow goes.

EAST MOUNTAIN HIKE

This time we went in from Route Four at the cement bridge near where the Wheelerville Road turns off.

We climbed steeply, crossed an old road and continued south for a long way through the woods.

There was a good brook and at noontime we made coffee in the shelter of a big rock with the canvas hung to keep off the cold wind.

Our objective was one of the many "tops" of the mountain. We didn't find any with a view until we were well on the way out. Some rocks were seen through the trees and we investigated. An open ledge was found on the edge of a patch of thick spruces. There was a good view of the main range to the East. Now if we can find the spot again we have a new place to go.

HOW MUCH LONGER ?

The burning of Buffum Lodge illustrates the price we pay for not trying to control how our camps are used. Buffum was a well constructed camp with masonry chimney, cemented in stove pipe, and tight stove in good condition. Its destruction must have been due to carelessness.

For years our camps have been used by large and small groups without responsible supervision. Most users of this type are not Club members and care nothing for the Club or the Long Trail.

How much longer before we put into effect a system of camp checking to remind users of their responsibilities and to limit the use of the camps to properly supervised groups?

CLARENDON, SUNNYSIDE & BUFFUM LODGE By Anne Loveland

October 9 might be said to be the turning point of my hiking life. I arose on that morning, not altogether sure I could face what was to come, but prepared for the hike, (thank goodness I had stayed at Sue's overnight, at least we could keep each other awake).

Borrowing the Girl Scout truck, our merry group of 6, drove to the Clarendon part of the Long Trail. From there hiking, what seemed to me, straight up, we arrived at Sunnyside Lodge with only minor difficulties (meeting snakes, getting stung by bees, etc.) The view was great and somehow, it made every step worth the while.

After recuperating, we gaily made our way to Buffum Lodge, (which was our lunch stop). Never in my life have I appreciated the humble peanut butter and jelly sandwich more.

The foliage was at its peak, the air was perfect and the "company" was grand. Even to a "first-timer", like myself, it was evident that hiking was going to be a main activity in my life from now on.

STRATTON MOUNTAIN INTERSECTIONAL By Sue Pfenning

This summer, Mrs. Janet Martin, a member of the Killington Section Green Mt. Club, was counselor at Tamarack Notch Girl Scout Camp for a group of 14 girls who were Counselors In Training. Toward the end of the camp session, she began thinking about the G.M.C. Intersectional, to which she and her family planned on going. A few of the girls seemed interested in it, and Mrs. Martin's kindness made it possible for us to participate. So we all began plotting and planning as soon as we got home from camp, and before we knew it, we were off for a wonderful weekend at Stratton Mountain Scout Reservation, where the Intersectional was held this year. We piled Mr. & Mrs. Martin, their five children, Vera, and three of us girls into their bus and Vera's car, along with all our gear, tents, food and equipment. We were to meet two other C.I.T. when we got there Saturday, at about 2:30. By suppertime, we had cleared our campsite, pitched our tents, and were all ready for a hot, nourishing supper. In the four days we were there, we participated in campfires, swimming, and hikes, and we all had a wonderful time.

This encouraged the other two Rutland girls, Sue Crichton and Judy Paul, to join the G.M.C. We'd like to use this opportunity to publicly thank the Martins.

GREENDALE HIKE

On a cool Sunday a group of GMC'ers followed an abandoned road northwest from the Greendale Picnic Area toward Wallingford Pond. The road, or rather trail, followed up a brook to its source and then just disappeared. On the way up we discovered right out there in the wilderness a well constructed stone and concrete bridge it stood high across the brook but led strickly from nowhere to North Nowhere. Also beside the trail was a section of six foot concrete culvert. Perhaps these are the remains of advanced work done by the C.C.C. on the original Parkway.

We ought to try this hike again starting from another point in Greendale. We apparently followed up the wrong valley but these are nice woods, and the Greendale Area is an attractive place for a cook out.

 Taconic Range from a different point of view.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The Killington Section wants to thank Lincoln Isham, the Roberts family, the Cahee family, the Bryant family, Kevin Hogan and Herbert Ogden, Jr. for the recent gifts for work on the Long Trail and Shelters.

BROWN BRIDGE

On a cold clear February morning the local hikers were met by a group of Mass. & Conn. G.M.C. 'ers who stayed overnight at Clarendon. (Irving and Eric White, Mauri Winturri, Bob Hunus, Bob Attenborough and Nick Anelli).

Along the old town road a number of snow-cats had broken trail so snowshoes were not needed. After passing a number of camps and following along the river we came to an old foundation where the road divided. At this point a future hike could turn right, go up to the Rousseau road, go South to the upper Cold River Road and complete the swing. We turned left, crossed the river by a large rock used as an old bridge abutment and then ascended to the Girl Scout Camp.

Here as we built a fire, took pictures and ate a hearty meal many pleasant memories of the 1963 G.M.C. Intersectional were recalled. Wildlife seen included a deer, rabbit, a porkie entering his den and many birds.

After a short trip back to the cars it was time to say goodbye once again and hope that Betty didn't mind being teased so hard to be the only girl with us.

SPAGHETTI SUPPER

On March 11th the spaghetti supper was scheduled for 6:00 P.M. at Tall Timber.

At 1:30 P.M. Ruth LaBrake and Eleanor Walker took off for the camp to go snowshoeing. At the cottage they persuaded Mary Perkins and Doris Newton to go walking as the snow was too wet for snowshoeing. They walked in the woods where Craigie had plowed, and up the road.

Back at the Recreation Hall they found games in progress and Johnny Allard and his friends were still out in the snow having a fine time.

At 6:00 PM Churchill Scott had the spaghetti cooked and the sauce hot and about 25 members brought their plates to the stove for their helping, which was generous. Each group brought their own bread and green salad.

The Hall was a buzz with chatter while the crowd ate. Mr. & Mrs. Lloyd Weeks came up from Springfield, Vermont to be with the Section and every one was glad to see them. The two youngest and future workers for the Club who came and had a good time were Thelma and Harold Valiquette's grandchildren.

Thanks Mary & Craigie for another Green Mountain Club good time. Sorry for all who didn't attend.

PANCAKE SUPPER

On March 19th ten merry souls tramped into Clarendon Lodge to feast on pancakes and syrup. When we arrived the Lodge was warm and cozy although we soon learned the more hearty Boy Scouts had found it a bit cool over night. ..the official low was zero for the night!

It was a pleasure to see Jim Catozzi back on the trail. His last hike before his accident had been to Bromley on the Intersectional.

A couple of our younger members cooked outside on a tin-can stove... ..found it a bit slow going and had some of Churchill's specials for seconds and thirds!

Too bad more of you didn't come as you missed a beautiful clear day of sparkling snow and azure sky. Once again we remarked the sky always seems a deeper blue on the trail up to Clarendon.

MT. ASCUTNEY HIKE

The newly formed Ascutney Trails Association have invited us to be their guests on our scheduled hike to Mt. Ascutney on Sat. May 6, leaving Rutland at 8:00 A.M.

The A.T.A. is publishing a guide to the trails on the mountain including the Windsor Trail, Weathersfield Trail and a History of them since 1825. These will be available by May 1 so that anyone interested can read up on the background of Ascutney before our trip. The price is one dollar from W.C.Scott.

This will be a wonderful opportunity to meet new people who have worked hard to re-open the trails up Ascutney and who have the same love and affection for the Green Mountains that we have. So let's try our best to have a big crowd ready to go on Saturday May 6 at 8:00 A.M.

IN MEMORIUM

Since this paper last went to press Killington Section has lost one of its oldest and most loyal members. It is with great sorrow that we note the passing of George Kirk. Many of us who hiked with the club in our teens remember what a fund of information George was about the flora and fauna and how he was always willing to take the time to show us plants and flowers along the trail which we in the hast of youth were want to overlook.

COMING EVENTS

PLACE - MT. AEOLUS

DATE: Saturday - June 10, 9:00 A.M.

MEET: Meldon School Area.

Gus Aldrich and the Springfield folks plan to be with us so let's all go and find the famous bat cave this trip.

PLACE - APPALACHIAN TRAIL

DATE: SUNDAY, JUNE 25, 10:00 A.M.

MEET: Meldon School Area

The first hike on the A.T. for some time. A fine chance to see the elusive Stony Brook Shelter and to cover some different trail.

END TO END TRIP

This year we will once again try to start at the Canadian line and hike as far south as time will allow. Anyone interested in working toward their End-to-End award can get more information from W.C. Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt.

PLACE - SKYLINE LODGE

DATE: SATURDAY, JULY 8, 9:00 A.M.

MEET: Meldon School Area

Here is an easy hike to Skyline Lodge, a very pretty spot for lunch and then north to Breadloaf and Mt.

Wilson. Next home via the Clark Brook Trail.

PLACE - BIRD MT.

DATE: SUNDAY, JULY 23, 10:00 A.M.

MEET: Meldon School Area

This old favorite should attract a good number of hikers and perhaps this time we can follow Miss Newton's directions and return via the west side of the mountain.

PLACE - SHREWSBURY LOOP TRAIL

DATE: Saturday August 5, 9:00 A.M.

MEET: Meldon School Area.

Perhaps this time we'll make this swing and not be side-tracked to Cooper Lodge. A good chance to see the work done by Mr. Webb's Farm & Wilderness Camps.

PLACE - JUGGERNAUT TRAIL

DATE: SUNDAY, AUGUST 20, 10:00 A.M.

MEET: Meldon School Area

A new direction to climb Killington and at this time of the year good visibility is quite frequent.

Let's hike up this trail maintained by the Herb Ogdens'.

WORK PARTIES

Work Parties will be held on weeks that no scheduled outings are planned. Meals will be provided if reservations are made by Thursday preceding the scheduled work trip.

If enough interest is shown overnight trips will be planned. For further information anyone may contact W. Churchill Scott, Chairman of Trails and Shelters.

Here is a tentative list of parties.

- June 18 Tucker Lodge: Build Toilet House, Creosote building, clean up yard, make a permanent dump and improve water supply.
- July 15 Clarendon Lodge
Replace windows, clean up Yard, finish toilet house, repair holes in roof and improve table top.
- July 29 Pico
Build Toilet house, pick up yard, repair roof, replace windows, clean out Loop Trail and creosote outside.

SUGAR PARTY

The fun of the Sugar Party really began in the morning with the snow-gathering expedition to Tall Timbers. George Reynolds' station wagon was loaded to the sagging point with the freshly fallen white stuff, and then backed into his garage to be out of the sun until needed.

Vera Perkins and Thelma Valiquette presided at the boiling in the Universalist Church kitchen with the help of Ruth Labrake. At serving time some of the young members filled cartons from George's load and carried them in for all comers.

Sugar on snow was a new experience for some guests, but all comments indicated the first time wouldn't be the last. Again thanks to Vera Perkins, the organizing chairman, for a pleasant party enjoyed by some sixty people.

EAST MOUNTAIN

The day broke clear and cool for our annual hike up East Mountain. Donald Moulton and son, Stephen, Della Ellison of Springfield, Harold Valiquette and Churchill Scott started up the notch road ready for a short easy hike to the Summit. But the road was too dangerous to drive up so we backtracked to Joe Valiquette's where we left the cars.

Soon Harold lead us up an old wood road (one we should travel more often) making very good time due to the cool crisp air forming a perfect crust to walk upon. The going kept getting steeper and steeper as we past tremendous hedges and rock formations.

At last we decided to go right up and soon it felt like dinner time. A combination of Tarp, warm fire and bright sun provided a perfect lunch time stop.

Mr. Moulton and his son had to return for lack of time but the rest donned their snow shoes and continued on. Within a very few minutes Harold lead us to the ridge, then north a short distance to the top of East Mountain.

Here he found an old flag he'd erected last fall and while he was replacing it in the tree the rest of us enjoyed the wonderful view in every direction. This is a perfect spot on a clear day and sometime we hope to get Vera and Mary Perkins there.

Soon it was time to leave and after studying the many deer tracks Harold took us down to the Dyer meadows out to the Notch Rd. and back to our car where we could see the bright red flag waving where we'd been a short time before.

ASCUTNEY MT.

Early on the morning of Sat. May 6, fourteen members of the Killing-ton Section left Rutland for the long awaited hike to Mt. Ascutney as guests of the Ascutney Trails Association.

Under threatening skies, adverse weather reports and inability to contact Mr. Ogden we had visions of perhaps being tired, wet cold and hungry on the summit. In addition, Craigie missed the last turn due to the fact that Churchill Scott didn't know it either when final directions were given.

At the parking spot everyone started up the Windsor trail at their own leisurely pace following the newly printed Guide Book of the A.T.A.. This booklet is a wonderful source of information for both hikers who will walk the Trails and also those who want to know more about the history of this mountain.

The appearance of snow for the last .8 mile reminded us of winter but it was packed so the walking was good. The sun burned off the clouds and at lunch time everything was perfect.

The A.T.A. is to be commended upon the comfortable accomadations and tasty lunch they served to over 50 persons from age 4 to 71. Mr. Deane Mulligan and his helpers are to be thanked for such an enjoyable day.

Next we had trips to Brownsville Rock where a beautiful view may be obtained of the Green Mt. Range. A trip to the "Lemon Squeezer" past a number of carvings dating back to the 1840's and then over to the fire tower were conducted by Mr. Gus Aldrich. He also gave us information on the bat caves at Aeolus with a statement that he would try to be there.

Members from Springfield were Mr. & Mrs. Lloyd Weeks, Mr. Hedrick Cahee, Mrs. Florence Herrick and Mrs. Ogden of Hartland.

As the day and our hike drew to a close we all felt that this had been one of the most interesting hikes we had every attempted and our thanks go to all the members of the A.T.A. who made this day one to remember for a long time to come.

GROUT JOB TO PROSPECT ROCK

The above hike was never made we decided to up to Shrewsbury take a couple of old roads and then on to Clement Shelter. Mrs. Kirk, Churchill Scott and Betty Gilman were the only adventurous souls for the day.

We parked the car below Mrs. Aborns' camp and walked up the road until we came to the second side road which took us up to the Old Gilman place which is all gone. We saw a few wild flowers and Mrs. Kirk explained what they were, much to our surprise we found some have two or three names. We continued on the road past the old cellar hole until we came to a camp which use to belong to Percy Adams, saw a couple of cars that had been taken up there and discarded. Churchill remarked what a beautiful spot it would be to camp out. (We all agreed but I think he might have the company of a nice cuddly bear before morning from the stories I've heard.) From here we went to the Herb Haley place where the first G.M.C. annual meeting was held and approximately 10 or 12 people attended and stayed overnight. (The above information was just given to me by the aboves wife). This house is now all gone with just part of the barn standing.

We then went on to Clements Shelter picked up around the camp and inside, ate lunch and then did a little more cleaning and started for home by taking the Long Trail to the Upper Cold River Road.

COX MOUNTAIN

On May 21, a good clear day we started for Cox Mt, this has been a goal that Craigue Perkins has tried to reach for years and we are sure that before the day was over he was not disappointed.

In Pittsford we met Mr. Andersen, his children and Mr. & Mrs. Charles Davies who led us up the Sugar Hollow Road to where we started up the mountain via a well laid out logging road.

Going at a leisurely pace we surprised a porphyrio along the way and a little later we all saw a scarlet tanager very plainly.

According to our records the last one seen was on a hike to Mt. Asclepias May 21, 1960

The Davies turned back due to a planned dinner at home and soon we found water and decided we were hungry. On an open ledge looking towards the east and south we had a very enjoyable lunch.

Within a short distance we reached the high point of the lumber road and after a bit of discussion Mary, Vera and the girls turned back while the rest of us headed for the height of land and then westward to find the ledges we believed were near.

There were a series of long ridges running north and south covered with grass like the Taconic Mts. mixed with evergreens and hardwoods with many openings where views to the west were possible.

Walking to the south we came to a spot where overlooking Route 7 directly below we could see to Stratton, Dorset and Mother Myrick, the Taconic Range, Adirondacks, and the flooded lowland of Otter Creek Valley.

On the way back at the same spot we saw the Scarlet Tanager again and coming down the mountain we discussed the chance of having a snowshoe trip.

Our route home took us north along Sugar Hollow Brook, past many interesting ledges and cliffs on Mt. Nickwacket and finally out onto the Forestdale Road via Goodnows' orchard.

VACATION HIKES

Plans were made to do some overnight hiking during the spring vacation April 17-21 but rain every day stopped this.

Finally on Thursday the weather cleared and Kevin Hogan and Churchill Scott left for Johnson. Here Kevin drove the car around to Barrows Camp where he cut wood, cleaned up the area and packed in the supplies while Churchill hiked from Ithiel Falls Camp Meeting Ground to Barrows camp.

Here we spent a very comfortable night in spite of all we could do to prevent the stove from smoking and a partridge that insisted on drumming all night long.

Friday dawned bright, clear and cold, below freezing and after breakfast we were on our way to Frying Pan Brook where we started up Belvidere Mt.

Walking up the south slope the traveling was very good but soon the trail took a sharp turn and headed east. Then the snow began but the cold temperature made walking very easy on top of the crust.

This was a very pretty trip as the trail broke out onto a vista first to the west, then the south and finally the east. We had to keep a sharp lookout for Blazes and retraced our steps a few times but at last we were at the Forester Trail.

Here we talked things over very seriously and due to the warm Sun, deep snow, etc. we decided to go to the summit of Belvidere and eat and start back as soon as possible.

Due to the recent ice storm the trees were coated with a thick layer of sleet and ice and were a very beautiful sight glistening in the bright sun against a blue sky. Perfect visibility allowed sights of Canada, The White Mts., Adirondacks, Lake Champlain and Memphre magog

A fast pace was set coming down the mountain for we were racing against the warm sun and rising temperature. Lucky we did hurry for about the last two minutes every other step was breaking through the crust and very hard work.

This is a very enjoyable walk and one that should be planned for in the fall possibly after the leaves go, in order to take advantage of the many views going up the south from Frying Pan Brook.

PIONEER VALLEY SECTION

The Pioneer Valley Section is having a four day camp-out at the site of the G.M.C. Intersectional near the bottom of the Lake Trail from Lake Griffith July 1-4, 1967. They would be glad to see members of other sections during this long holiday period. LET'S GO.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

The Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club wants to thank Miss Frances Green and Miss Helen Frink for their recent contributions to help maintain the shelters and trails of our section.

NOTE: Anyone interested in writing something for Smoke & Blazes it will be very much appreciated. Articles maybe sent to Betty Gilman, 52 Chestnut Ave., Rutland, Vt.

NEW OUTING SCHEDULES

The Outing Committee has arranged a schedule of events for the fall and winter. Schedule cards should reach you with this copy of SMOKE AND BLAZES.

We have tried to provide a variety of outings; some long hikes, some short hikes, and some eating exercises. Most of the hikes will leave the Meldon School area at 9 A.M. on Saturdays and 10 A.M. on Sundays. If you are too young to remember the Meldon School go to the Minute Man statue in Main St. Park and look around for us. We do not guarantee transportation but we haven't left anyone standing at the curb yet.

For further information call 773-7954 or 775-5720. We may not know anything about it either but we will give you lots of advice, reassurance, and encouragement.

The first hike on the schedule planned for Rolstons Roost was cancelled due to lack of a quorum.

COMING EVENTS

Saturday Sept. 30
Covered Dish Supper

This annual event will be held again this year at Beechwood. Reservations should be made with Vera Perkins 773-2941 before the preceeding Friday night so that she may assign a variety of foods to be brought by the various people. The Club will furnish coffee and also paper dishes and eating tools. Or if you prefer to eat with your fingers that will be alright too.

Useful hints: (1) Don't eat any dinner Saturday. (2) Come early and walk up an appetite. (3) It is possible to sneak back into line for seconds.

Sunday Oct. 15
Hedgehog Brook Trail

This is an approach trail to the Long Trail from the east. We drive to North Fayston and then drive west and north to the end of the road where the Hedgehog Brook Trail starts. Two and a half miles of steady climbing will bring us to the Long Trail at a point .9 miles north of Cowles cove shelter and

.6 miles south of Burnt Rock Mountain summit. Time, weather, and inclination (pun intended) will determine which way we will go and how far.

Saturday Oct. 28
Bald Mountain

This time we will use Janet Martin's new trail starting near the Girl Scout Camp. There should be time to circumnavigate the mountain following more or less the state forest boundary. Also we can take a good look at the bog. And, if we can find it, we will see the stone jug handle.

Sunday Nov. 12
Gov. Clement Shelter

Our annual fall trip to one of the real old time shelters. It is a three sided affair built of stone with an inside fireplace and a dirt floor. Last year major repairs were made to the chimney and bunks. Do we need a new roof? Come on this hike and hear us argue.

Saturday Nov. 25
Pico Camp

We try to plan outings to all our camps in the fall and early winter. Let's hope the snow isn't too deep for this trip, and that the stove and windows are in working order. Dress for winter.

MT. AEOLUS

Bats in a cave, the rare one-flowered clematis on a cliff and a pool of cold, clear water on the grassy floor of an abandoned marble quarry were the rewards of nine geology and botany enthusiasts as they climbed Mt. Aeolus Saturday.

With famed Green Mountain hiker Gus Aldrich in the lead, the group left U.S. 7 three miles south of East Dorset Village and drove for four miles along a town road skirting the eastern slope of Mt. Aeolus, named Green Peak on early maps.

The network of wood roads was skillfully traversed by Aldrich who paused frequently along the trail to point out a rare lady's slipper or long-spurred violet.

The goal of the hikers was the famed cave penetrating hundreds of feet into the limestone heart of Mt. Aeolus. The cave, located two-thirds of the way up on the east side of the mountain is said to have been visited by members of a Greek society from Amherst College in 1870. The professor accompanying the group, apparently feeling Green Peak was a rather commonplace name, bestowed the Greek name of Aeolus to the 3,185 foot mountain. Dates cut into the limestone rock at the cave entrance indicate that cave hunters had visited the site in 1859, 1866 and 1876.

Donning his spelunker's helmet, complete with battery light, Gus disappeared into the black tunnel followed by several of the hikers. The cave soon narrows from its vaulted 15-foot entrance into three major passageways, some so narrow that the group had to crawl over the slippery, boulder strewn floors of the tunnels. One passageway closely resembles a cylindrical sewer pipe with a trickle of water running through it, they said.

The explorers turned around after following the passageway for some 250 or 300 feet but reported that the tunnels continued to pierce the heart of this mountain mass which forms one of the higher peaks of the Taconic range. Gus says he knows of a cave on the opposite side of the mountain and "It seems logical to think that perhaps one of the passageways leads through to the other side."

With the words, "I never say I've climbed a mountain until I've walked from the bottom to the top," Gus was able to convince the other hikers that to stop at the cave, two-thirds up the mountainside, wasn't really cricket and that real mountain climbers "must go to the top." An hour later, the weary hikers, after climbing over giant blown down trees and scaling columbine-festooned ledges, reached the summit only to discover that the best view was yet higher up from the top of a yellow birch monarch of the forest. Cross pieces had been nailed to the trunk of the tree forming a ladder for those bent on a unimpaired view of the Taconic and Green Mountain ranges and the "Great Valley" which separates them.

The rare one-flowered clematis, its purple petals covering the ground was the botanical discovery of the day, Miss Doris Newton of Rutland said. Listed as one of the most rare of all wild flowers, Miss Newton said it is only the second one in her lifetime that she has seen. A Member of the Green Mountain Club and the Appalachian Club, Miss Newton shared with Gus the identification of such other rare wild flowers as the delicate fringed or showy orchis, two varieties of yellow lady's slippers, long-spurred violet and sheep dock with its tiny rose-magenta blossoms. Among other varieties of wild flowers adorning the sides of the Aeolus trail were wild ginger, jack-in-the-pulpit, foam flower, true and false nitrewort, wood betony, saxifrage, three varieties of Solomon's seal, Canada Mayflower, four varieties of violet, blue spring daisy, Clintonia, star flower, trillium, blue-eyed grass and wild onion.

Hikers included Aldrich, Miss Newton, Frank Sullivan and son Mike of Brandon, Churchill Scott, Kevin Hogan, Bill Gragen and Tom Hogan, all of Rutland, and Mrs. Della Ellison of Springfield.

SKYLIGHT POND

No trip only Jimmie Catozzi and Churchill Scott.

SHREWSBURY LOOP TRAIL

No Trip.

JUGGERNAUT TRAIL

No Trip - Mauri Winturri and the Catozzis only.

APPALACHIAN TRAIL

Kim Scott and Churchill Scott made a quick trip to Stony Brook Shelter where a very pleasant time was spent with Herb Ogden jr., who left in July to spend the next year in Germany pursuing his college studies.

BIRD MOUNTAIN

Another day of hot, humid and hazy weather ushered in this Sunday morning when Mauri Winturri, Roy McDonald and Churchill Scott gathered at Meldon for the scheduled trip, the visibility was very poor so after looking over Maur's folder of Hiking Trails in the Bristol, Vt. area we took off for Bristol, Vermont. There were a number of interesting trips but finally we chose the Trail to "Hogback Mountain."

Following an easy grade up a good wood road we passed a reservoir built in 1905 and then continued about one mile where we broke out onto a ledge overlooking Bristol Village.

On a clear day Lake Champlain and the Adirondacks would be a beautiful sight.

After returning to the car Mauri gave us a tour of the country. From Bristol we drove to Lincoln Gap to check on the trail crossing and hikers. Next down to Ripton and Breadloaf, Robert Frosts' summer home, start of the Burnt Hill Trail, then south by Ripton Job Corps Center, Mooselano Camp Area, Goshen and then on to Pittsford where we visited the Ice Caves, eating our supper at the spring house.

Once again we have found a good area for future hikes and one that we must visit again.

ROUTE 4 TO CANADA
(By Alton Wilcox)

While things are still fresh in my mind some notes about the trail north. One traveling north should always make sure of a full canteen of water before leaving as water is scarce in some places.

In the Vöter White Area, water only at Lake Pleiad, must be boiled. Water again at Skyline is scant, water at Lake. Battell shelter is finished and the youth group were digging latrine when I went by.

Up in the Jonesville section a new shelter at Duck Brook 1.7 miles from Jonesville which is very nice and is called Cascade.

Be careful around Madonna Peak Ski Area: If any one should take the side trail to Beaver Meadows, be careful, poor signs on way out. This part of the Trail needs a little more attention especially as far as signs from White face shelter to French Camp. There is a logging operation going on and some of the blazes are down. Part way down the trail there are two arrows, one pointing up and the other down but nothing to French Camp. I missed the trail and went all the way to Johnson City.

Be careful around Jay Peak Area. Instead of trying to follow trail use the ski trail.

As a final note there is a lack of signs as far as distance between camps. Also what I would call starter signs, arrows pointing north and south with the letters L. T. N.

Check your water

Check your guide book.

Check the scenery.

I had a wonderful time.

ALASKA

Here are some of the highlights taken from a most interesting letter written to Churchill Scott from Mike Wiley.

"Hiking in Alaska is truly as fine as Vermont though certainly different. Here we do have trails as in Vermont but lots of work needs to be done on them. They used to have an Alpine Club in Skagway but recently there has not been enough interest. I hope we are generating some however and can again activate this Club. Maybe I'll be able to spend the summer hiking and clearing old trails in the vicinity. I do have a part time job working on the Chilkoot Trail to help in packing goods to the shelters. We will be using pack horses and it should be an exciting and interesting experience.

The mountains are very young and very, very steep. Trails are usually built to zig-zag up and down. We don't have snakes, deer or poison ivy but do encounter bald eagles, mountain goats and an unfriendly plant called devils club. The latter is the biggest problem when building a trail below 3,000 feet. Oh yes we have glaciers too which cause problems or views and goals when trying to locate trails at higher elevations. The mountains are truly amazing reaching heights of from 5,000 to 8,000 feet above sea level within a short distance from the sea. Many of these peaks are unnamed and unclimbed. They are really steep and most have glaciers on them or ice fields of some kind. Berry picking is fabulous in the late summer and it is not as cold as we thought it would be in the winter on the coast."

TRAILS AND SHELTERS REPORT

Ben Rolston has done his usual very thorough job on the lower half of the Killington Section and so this part is in good condition.

Herb Ogden in addition to clearing the Bucklin and Juggernaut Trails has spent three days clearing and brushing from Gov. Clement south to the Lower Road.

On Aug. 19 Mr. Ogden and Kevin Hogan spent the day putting a new roof on Gov. Clement Shelter.

According to Craigie Perkins this camp's roof hasn't had any major repair since it was built in 1929 so that must be some kind of a record. Let's hope this roof can last even half as long.

Thanks to "Doc" Howard we have progressed a long way to building a toilet at Tucker after many years. Speaking of Tucker once again this shelter is in very poor condition, over 20 windows are broken, many roof shingles are missing, and in fact the whole building could stand a general overhauling.

In spite of at least half a day work parties each week during the summer there is still much work that should be done before winter to make our shelters snug and tight.

Vol. 20 No. 4 - KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB Oct. - Nov. 1967

COMING OUTINGS

SUNDAY DEC. 17 6:30 P.M.
MOONLIGHT HIKE TO TUCKER

This hike has been one of our most successful for several years. A group will go in the afternoon to prepare the camp and gather fire wood. Any volunteers? There will be coffee and doughnuts later in the evening. And maybe even a moon.

SATURDAY DEC. 30 9 A.M.
SUNNYSIDE CAMP

There are several short hikes available from this camp; south to Button Hill, North to Spring Lake or the gorge, a loop over the hill back of camp, or cross country toward Bear Mountain. This will be a chance to do some real cooking on a good old stove.

SUNDAY JAN. 14 10 A.M.
CLARENDON LODGE

Clarendon is our best closed camp and is at its best in winter. Arrangements have been made to have three feet of snow so let's turn our and enjoy it.

SATURDAY JAN. 27 9 A.M.
DAGGET MOUNTAIN

This is a new one on the schedule. Dagget Mt. is a long ridge running southeast from the old Pittsfield road to Deer Leap Mt. back of Tucker Lodge. There are good views from the west end and from the summit overlooking the Beaver Pond on Route 4. There is a wood road leading up the west end of the ridge and after we get up there the going should be quite easy. Dress warm as we will be eating out in the snow.

SUNDAY FEB. 11 10 A.M.
COX MOUNTAIN

If we have good weather this should be an ideal snowshoe trip with easy grades and much open going. There are good views of the Otter Creek Valley from the west side of the ridge.

NOTE

All items for SMOKE & BLAZES should be in by February 14, 1968.

COVERED DISH SUPPER

By Ruth Postman

Our annual covered dish supper was held September 30th at Beechwood, the Perkins' Homestead, and we were pleased to welcome some new members at this time.

As usual we had a good turn out of thirty-one members of assorted ages and sizes. Some of us came early and enjoyed short hikes up and around the loop. We found a few late blackberries and saw some colored foliage. We also admired the new pond which is opposite the house.

The youngsters and possibly some of us oldsters are looking forward to skating or swimming in the future.

Helen Bailey from Charlestown, N. H. and a member of long standing was with us.

We had a most beautiful supper and everyone seemed to out do themselves with the nice food they brought. There was plenty for seconds and even thirds if we wanted it. After supper we had music furnished by Jack Martin.

The new schedule of hikes was talked over and does sound interesting, also challenging for some of us.

It was a beautiful mild day and I am sure everyone had a good time and are looking forward to the next one.

BURNT ROCK TRIP

By Craig Perkins

On a sunny October 15th a small group of hikers made the trip to Burnt Rock Mountain by way of the Hedgehog Brook Trail. Starting at 10 A.M. we returned to Rutland by dark without hurrying at all.

We drove up Route 100 to the Fayston turn off and then hunted for North Fayston, which is not the same as Fayston Center by several miles. Lots of nice wild country.

After making a couple of inquiries we finally located the trail and started the climb. The trail had been much improved since we last saw it and could be followed with little trouble.

We climbed and climbed, and when the guidebook timing said we were about half way up we suddenly hit the thick evergreens on the ridge and the Long Trail.

Soon we met Mauri on his way down and learned there were no other Killington Section hikers ahead of us as we had thought.

After a short scramble over the rocks we were on the summit with views in all directions cut down somewhat by haze.

This is a huge rocky summit with room for several hot dog stands. A good chance for development. Maybe it is already on the list for there were several big sheets of white plastic draped over the rocks.

We had a good look around and then descended to the brook for a late, late lunch. About a mile from the end of the trail the party was joined briefly by a black bear who dropped in on us from a tree. At once he remembered important business elsewhere and took off up the mountain.

BALD MOUNTAIN

By Janet Martin

On Saturday Oct. 28 eight members and friends gathered at Center Street to explore the new trail on Bald Mt. After driving to the entrance to Tamarack Notch Girl Scout Camp we started off along the fire break road which follows the base of the mountain on the east side. After a short walk the trail turns off to the right and ascends the north-east corner of the mountain. (Girl Scouts please note we need a sign or arrow at the turn for those people in a hurry!) The boys, who were leading, soon discovered their error, retraced their steps and came bounding up the trail past the rest of us. We enjoyed the widening panorama with each rest stop. This time of year the views toward Pico and Mendon are indeed beautiful thru the bare trees.

From the first ledge one looks eastward across the virgin forest. A few camps are visible across the Cold River which one can hear but not see, rushing over the rocks far below. A succession of ledges are visible along the East side of the Mt.

Once at the top, part of the group descended into the dip between the North and South summits in search of the bog. Although the bog itself didn't seem very wet we found the outlet brooks to the North to have water running in them. A spring seems likely. Various samples of moss and lichen were collected.

It was pleasant to find the fire going and water hot when we returned to the Girl Scout Camp. With the arrival of the younger Martins and Craigie the ranks were swelled to 13.

After lunch four of the group decided they were ready to go home but the rest followed the North Boundry to another lookout the Senior Scouts had located just the week before on their hike to Camp Via Curtis Ave. and the North Boundry. This group saw several deer crossing above them along an old wood road. Although it was not a clear day it was easy to see why the girls had been impressed with the view.

CLEMENT SHELTER

This hike was cancelled due to lack of quorum and poor weather

PICO SHELTER By Churchill Scott

The long planned overnight trip to Pico with a group of young people from Montreal did not come true for at 9:00 A.M. a heavy, wet snow was falling with zero visibility. Not a soul and no fresh tracks were seen and so I returned home.

At 10:10 the phone rang and Mr. Dobbs with a group of eight young folks were waiting at the Long Trail Lodge wondering where the Killington Section was.

After a short discussion we chose Clarendon for our hike and soon we were on our way after meeting Jack and Janet Martin and picking up the old coffee pot.

Snow kept falling as we made our way to the shelter where a thoughtful hunter had left a fire. Soon he returned, followed shortly after by his father and aunt who spent the day there with us. With the help of a G.M.C. plup saw and many hands a good supply of wood was cut for the hunters' overnight stay.

After dinner a figure approached on snowshoes, who turned out to be Dick Metcalf, Pioneer Valley Trails and Shelter chairman.

The afternoon was spent walking up the Ezra Oliver road, south by the Hollanders on the Lottery road, and back to camp on the trail. The Long Trail was hiked to Rt. 103 so the group could get one more mile on the End to End award.

Goodbyes were finally said with a few regrets that more members of the Killington Section were not able to meet these folks, including one from Wales, one from Australia and two from Ireland.

But plans are already being made for the Spagetti Supper and the Sugar-on-snow Party when certainly there will be many folks in attendance

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS ITEMS By Churchill Scott

Two executive board meetings have been held recently and many subjects were brought up and discussed thoroughly.

No rummage sale this year due to small profit and large amount of work done by a few people.

Notice of Annual meeting will be sent to each member at a later date.

Jim Catozzi has been elected Castleton State College Outing Club President.

Interest was shown in providing other activities for members that do not do much hiking and camping.

Harold Valiquette gave a very detailed report on the Trails and Shelters. Pointing out the great amount of work done this year and the major repairs that will have to be made to Tucker next year. All members working on the Trails or Shelters are asked to report the time spent on these projects to Mr. Valiquette, 93 Killington Ave., Rutland, Vt. 05701

Janet and Jack Martin spoke a great deal about Aiken Forest and Bald Mt. future development and the status of Tamarac Notch Girl Scout Camp.

GREEN MOUNTAIN INTERSECTIONAL 1967 By Sue Pfenning

The annual GMC Intersectional, held this year at Tamarac Notch Girl Scout Camp in Mendon, brought together many old friends and the opportunity to make new friends. On August 26th., several energetic campers poured in to established campsites and meet their neighbors to-be. Many were deceived by the warm sunshiny days; but when night came, one and all dug deep for the warmest clothes and blankets they owned.

On the first evening we were entertained with slides and commentary on Taiwan, given by Hunter Eu. A program was held every evening, and at that time plans were announced and signing up was done for the activities to be held the next day. Hiking groups went out nearly every day-- rain or shine; and a few excursions deep into the ice caves drew the heartiest of the lot. For those who preferred to stay in camp, there was swimming, volleyball, badmitton, exploring, and sun-bathing. On rainy days we all gathered around the warm fireplace in the Lodge to read, sing, tell jokes, and just plain talk.

There were two well-attended square dances under the direction of Lou Rousseau. These always prove to be a popular activity, and we appreciate Lou's visits with us. Other entertainment included movies and slides on forest conversation and attractions in various other states and sing alongs.

The best part of this, as with any Intersectional, is the SHARING; both the work and the fun.

Despite a flood in our tent-- and an occasional mishap, Judy and Penny Paul, Carrie Burchardt and myself managed to eat well, sleep little, keep active, and build memories. We kept the rest of the campers guessing as to the meaning of CHIKUSHO, which we dubbed our campsite.....Maybe next year we'll let YOU in on the secret.

THE END OF THE TRAIL
By Ben Rolston

Suddenly, on September 22 nd, the Green Mountain Club lost one of its most beloved members. John H. Vondell, age 69, seemed to be in the best of health. But that day, as he was working around in his yard at home, an apparent heart attack became the end of John's Trail.

It seemed that everyone knew John. For more than 30 years he was a professor of poultry husbandry at the University of Mass., retiring in 1960. He was an honorary member of the Executive Committee of the New England Trail Conference, and for many years he planned the programs for the annual Conference meetings. He served as a Trustee of the Green Mountain Club, and in 1961 became our Club president, but due to By-Laws limitations was only able to serve one term.

John was a native Vermonter, being born under the shadow of Mt. Ascutney. But not only was he a native of our state; he was a spokesman for Vermont. Through his magnificent photography displayed in "Vermont Life" and other publications, he showed America the beauty of Vermont.

In the early days of our End-to-End program, John became an End-to-End-er. But throughout the years he continued to roam up and down our Trail, seeking out its beauty for his photography. He showed his slides at our Annual Meetings, and at our Intersectionals, and at Section gatherings. Only last January he brought the beauty of his photography to the Killington Section's annual meeting.

But he not only showed the views of his beloved mountains. His subjects might include a weathered barn, an odd mail box, a bewhiskered farmer at an auction, and perhaps some candid shots of our members who didn't know that John's camera was pointed their way! And his witty commentaries always added spice to his presentations.

Our sincere expressions of sympathy go out to Esther Vondell, who has lost a devoted companion. And we of the Green Mountain Club have lost a wonderful friend. As the months pass by, we will miss John more and more. The recent fall foliage passed by without John's God-given talent capturing its beauty. And so will this winter's mantle of snow. And next spring's array of apple blossoms.

But John's memory will linger with us for many years. As we view a scene of beauty, we will unconsciously say, "There's a shot for John Vondell to take." But John won't be there. But we who remain can perhaps enjoy Vermont's beauty more because John taught us how to find that beauty.

We are all richer because John Vondell walked with us.

KILLINGTON SECTION

GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB

JANUARY 1968

WARNING!

HEAR YE!

HEAR YE!

HEAR YE!

HEAR YE!

TO ALL THE MEMBERS OF THE KILLINGTON SECTION OF THE GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB, INC.:
You are hereby notified and warned to meet at the Mount Saint Joseph Academy on Convent Avenue in Rutland, Vermont, on Friday, January 19, 1968, at 7:30 o'clock in the evening to transact the following business:

- Article 1. To hear the sound of the gavel.
- Article 2. To hear the report of the Secretary.
- Article 3. To hear the report of the Treasurer.
- Article 4. To hear the report of the several standing and other committees.
- Article 5. Old Business, if any - Article 6. New Business, if any.
- Article 7. To act on any other business that properly may be brought before this meeting.
- Article 8. To hear the report of the Entertainment Committee and the Entertainment itself!
- Article 9. To hear the report of the Refreshments Committee and sample its endeavors!

The purpose of this meeting will be to make acquaintances with new members and renew old ones, talk business now and again, reminisce, present new and old ideas, tell "tall stories" of past hiking experiences, discuss the future of our Section, listen to some musical entertainment, fill up on delicious eats, view slides and listen to a poem or two about the LT, and have fun!

This meeting is called by the officers of the Section because of the fact that the Section always has a meeting this time of year and because we need to reassure one another that summer hiking and camping weather will return once again soon!

You are further "warned" that the meeting will be held in the cafeteria of Mount Saint Joseph Academy. Use Convent Avenue main entrance and follow signs to cafeteria.

(The officers assume no responsibility for any mistakes in the weather, though they look for a good clear evening!)

COMING OUTINGS

WHEN - SUN. MAR. 17, 10:00 A.M.

WHERE - TUCKER LODGE

Our leader Harold Valiquette has planned a good trip for the first of our Spring & Summer outings. Let's have a good turn out so we can decide what is best to do to repair Tucker.

WHAT - MAPLE SUGAR PARTY

WHEN - SAT. MAR. 30,

WHERE - UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

Shall we try to beat the number of 51 who attended the Spaghetti supper. Plenty of sugar on snow, pickles, doughnuts and coffee will be provided and a short entertainment will end the activities. Serving will start at 6:00 P.M. There will be a nominal charge to cover expenses.

WHEN - SAT. APRIL 13, 10:00 A.M.

WHERE - MOOSAMALOO MT. near Lake Dunmore. About 2 Miles

A mountain climb taking the hiker through interesting rock formations including a crevasse. Not too difficult, though some short stretches of steep climbing will be encountered. Several lookouts with views including Lake Dunmore and the Adirondacks is the reward for this hike.

WHEN - SUN. APRIL 21, 10:00 A.M.

WHERE - CLARENDON LODGE

Leader C. Scott has mapped out a number of side hikes for all of the more active hikers who do not want to go home as soon as lunch is over and the last cup of coffee consumed.

WHEN - SAT. MAY 4, 10:00 A.M.

WHERE - SUNNYSIDE CAMP

Vera Perkins has offered to act as leader of this trip. This is a favorite spot and as the spring flowers start to appear this area is most interesting.

SPECIAL OUTINGS

The Outing Committee have planned a number of new types of activities this spring and summer for us to enjoy.

Mr. & Mrs. Lloyd Weeks have suggested a Canoe trip and have expressed a willingness to lead one so on Sat. July 13, we hope to begin a new type of outing on Otter Creek.

Also over the Easter week vacation we hope to take a two night trip to the Belvidere-Hazen's Notch Jay Peak Area. For more information contact W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt. 05701

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Once again the Killington Section is most grateful for the contributions of Mrs. Harriot Bryant, Mr. Lincoln Isham, and the Richard Roberts family. These amounts will be used for the improvement of the trails, and shelters maintained, by the Section.

MOONLIGHT HIKE

By: Judy Allard

The night was clear and cold and there was, amazingly enough, a full moon. Several inches of soft, powdery snow had fallen during the day covering the ice which had accumulated during the week due to rain. The moonlight changed the snow into a blanket of sparkling diamonds.

Because of the glare ice under the snow, some of the hikers used snowshoes. These were not absolutely necessary, however, because the trail was fairly well packed down and the walking was quite easy. Flashlights were not necessary either because of the light of the moon.

The distance to the shelter was covered in no time and we soon arrived at Tucker Lodge. The shelter was already warmed, the fire having been built and kept up by the party that went in earlier in the afternoon. The water was hot and so we had coffee, cocoa and doughnuts. The younger members spent some of their excess energy outside in the snow. Later on in the evening a surprise birthday party was held for Phyllis Pfenning. A cake was brought in with all the trimmings including a full compliment of candles. The cake was promptly devoured and especially appreciated by the younger members present.

The walk out was just as beautiful as the one in. The weather was clear and cold and the stars were out in full force. We all considered ourselves lucky to have a full moon for our annual moonlight hike.

SUNNYSIDE

By: Churchill Scott

On a bright, clear and cool day in December the Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club held their annual winter hike to Sunnyside.

As we left Meldon there were only seven in the party but on the way up Spring Lake Hill we met Rev. Van Luvern and six young men of his parish. Before the day was over Terry, his friend and Ben came along.

The recent heavy snow had filled the chimney so it took all of Harold's skill and knowledge to get the fire going and with all the young folks pitching in we soon had a good warm shelter.

After dinner Rev. Vanluvern and his group took off to make a circle around by Spring Lake and down the hill to their car at Rt. 103.

Next Jim and Harold snowshoed around to the clearing and site of the old Spring Lake Shelter, then down to the pond and back to the jeep.

After picking up the shelter the rest of us spent the afternoon tobogganning down the road past Spring Lake Ranch.

At last the shadows lengthened, the air turned cool and we decided to call it a day. It is too bad that more members can not come out and enjoy this beautiful winter weather we were lucky enough to have today.

CLARENDON

As always the Clarendon outing on January 14, was well attended, with people coming and going all afternoon. Some were lunching, while others were exploring up the road and climbing the steep little hill with the view. That view is worth the scramble, even with a bit of ice under the snow and a high wind on top. How about a "Clarendon Plus" trip with lunch up there some warm spring Saturday?

Probably the longest distance driven to make the trip was from Fitchburg, Massachusetts (Mauri Winturi)- youngest attendant - David Martin. Are there any other awards?

THE ADVENTURES OF GREEN MOUNTAIN
BU IWACKERS, or DOES DAGGET MOUNTAIN HAVE A TOP?
By: Sue Pfenning

Well, maybe the top of Dagget Mountain has never been reached on snow-shoes; maybe it has. At any rate, it was at least attempted this winter. Six warmly clad hikers started up it; within a half-hour there were four, and after another half-hour, only three continued climbing. The mountain is very steep and irregular, and, on that particular day, your arm would sink in to snow up to your shoulder if you should put your hand down to catch your balance.

So, if it looks like you'll never reach the top, what's the next best thing to do?? Build a nice, warm fire right there in the snow and eat lunch, right? That we did.

The perfect weather, little wind and sunny skies, made it a joy to be out that January 27th. Despite sore feet and weary legs, no one returned disappointed.

COX MOUNTAIN
By: Carol Burchardt
Staten Island, N. Y.

February 11 was a peaceful, sparkly day, after a long, night snowfall had hushed the forest. Judy Paul, Sue Crichton, Dale Mangleri, Mr. & Mrs. Perkins, Churchill Scott, Jim Frink, and I "Clunched" up Cox Mountain with snowshoes, forever amazed at the beauty of the snow-clad trees. For me, it was an especially magical adventure, since only the day before, I was sitting in a classroom in New York City. I had never seen Vermont in the snow, but now I was becoming almost a part of it, as my colliding snowshoes kept bombarding me into the snow. Sue Crichton and I tied for the most casualties. Although she was way ahead of me in the number of times she fell, I topped her when I slipped while drinking hot cocoa, and burned my mittens in the fire! We had lunch on top of the mountain and thawed out by the fire. The view was magnificent-like a fantasy land. I think the nicest part was the realization that I could hike in snowshoes, survive in the winter, and even build a fire in the snow. Now back in New York I still feel awed and rather privileged to have climbed a snow palace.

REGRETS

It is with a great deal of regret that Eleanor Walker is no longer able to act as Publicity Chairman for our Section. Each of us hate to see her leave and want to thank her for a job well done.

HIKING-MINDED CANADIANS OBSERVE CENTENNIAL

Canada appears to have celebrated its Centennial year in many ways. Getting into the act was a group of outdoorsmen way out West in British Columbia. Their idea? The Centennial Trail, as it is being called, was completed this past summer between Simon Fraser University near Vancouver, and the Manning Provincial Park southeast of Hope. Now measuring about 175 miles, some sources state the trail may grow to a length of 450 miles extending to the Alberta border. All depends upon public interest!

The Canadian Youth Hostels Association originated the idea in 1964 and received official approval for establishing the trail from the B.C. provincial government.

The trail currently makes use of existing forest and logging roads, dikes and existing trails. Day hiking has been recommended so far for many sections but some scenic two-day hikes also are possible. Eventually over-night accommodations will be added to already existing facilities.

Not only is there hiking; bicycle routes are being established.

According to a story about the Centennial Trail in the September 15, 1967, issue of The Daily Province, more information including maps may be obtained from the CYHA, West Broadway, Vancouver 9, B.C. If anyone plans to go west sometime soon and do some hiking, keep The Centennial Trail in mind.

Like the relationship between The Green Mountain Club and U.S. F.S., cooperation was a key to the success of developing the first leg of this group's dream. According to Roland Wild in The New York Times of January 16, 1966, another trail was scheduled to open in 1967 in Ontario.

Perhaps an idea such as this might spur some thinking into developing a Bi-centennial Trail somewhere in the U.S. about 1977!

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Participation at our annual meeting was most gratifying this year. Spiced with a good business session, an exhibit with slides of the Green Mountain National Forest sponsored by the U.S.F.S., folk songs by Miss Reny Hayden of Castleton, and slides with poetry about the L.T. by the Cahees, along with the famous feed put on by the refreshments group, the evening turned out to be most enjoyable. Many thanks to everyone for starting our new year off so well.

It was great to see the momentum continue with a large turnout for the Spaghetti Supper. We counted 51 people and almost no food was left for the wildlife residing around Tall Timbers.

In the secretary's report you will note that we discussed dues and Tamarack Notch at the annual meeting. The directors were asked to study the present dues situation with the idea of possibly raising them per individual next year and, at the same time, see if we might incorporate a family membership plan. Results of this study will be presented prior to the next annual meeting. The other topic concerned an explanation of the newly formed Tamarack Notch Association which will carry on the responsibility of the camp located in Aitken State Forest east of Rutland. G.M.C.ers have used this facility for both outings and Intersectionals.

The big project scheduled this year is a major overhaul of Tucker Lodge. Assistance from the Long Trail Patrol is being requested.

Of concern to us all is the growing pressure on land use throughout Vermont for many uses. It appears likely to continue at an ever increasing rate. Though the Trail is not in jeopardy at the moment, it will be most important for us to be aware of developments occurring in areas on the Long Trail System. Diplomacy and good public relations along with proper trail "manners" can help insure continued uninterrupted hiking and camping on the L.T.

The new spring and summer activity schedules will be coming off the press soon. Hope one or two of the events will be of particular interest to you. By request we have incorporated an overnight hike to Mt. Mansfield and a canoe trip.

Do plan to attend the G.M.C. Annual Meeting at the Bavarian Castle in Proctorsville, June 1st, and plan now to attend part or all of the Intersectional at Lake Eden in Northern Vermont this fall.

See you on the trail!

ANNUAL MEETING

On Jan. 19, 1968 the Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club held their annual meeting at the M.S.J. cafeteria.

About 45 persons were present including Bob Attenborough, Pres. of the Main Club, George Pearlstein, Guide Book Committeeman, Mauri Winturri and Dr. & Mrs. Stewart Holmes, Members at Large.

H. Ogden, H. Valiquette and L. Weeks reported on various trail and shelter maintenance.

Among the highlights were Pres. Attenborough's talk on 1968 Intersectional at Lake Eden, changes in New Guide Book, new G.M.C. office address: PO Box 94, Rutland, Vt. 05701, and 73% hiker survey questionnaire answered.

Mr. Ogden suggested an increase in dues to begin in 1969. This was referred to the executive board to discuss and report.

Janet Martin spoke on Tamarac Notch Assoc. and presented two resolutions which were past. (1) To have the Editor of Smoke & Blazes and the Secretary belong to the Assoc. so the Section can be better informed of developments of Aitken State Forest. (2) That the Section write Mr. Williams of the State Dept. of Forest and Parks stating the interest we have in the Aitken State Forest and our concern that the present boundary lines do not sufficiently protect the Forest Area from possible encroachment of housing developments along the Notch Road.

List of Officers for 1968:
Pres. - Terry Gulick
V. Pres. - Janet Martin
Secty-Treas. - Churchill Scott
Trustee - Bennett Bell

The highlight was the 30th Birthday party for our sturdy coffee pot complete with cake, singing and picture taking. How many miles has that traveled?

Miss Hayden of C.S.C. entertained us with folk songs. Mr. & Mrs. Hedrick Cahee presented a program of slides, and poetry by Mr. Geo. Perry which was most enjoyable.

Finally as has been the custom the ladies put on a very enjoyable lunch for which we are all very grateful.

1968 DUES

The 1968 dues are now payable to W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt. 05701.

Adults $2.00

Students .50

Miscellaneous	13.90

Total Expenses 452.30

Balance on Hand December 31, 1967 $2,275.89

Balance on Hand Dec. 31, 1967 is larger than a year ago due to the loss of Buffum which returned $700.00 to Savings account.

Insurance paid is higher because of (1) increased fire insurance rates per year and (2) there is a savings realized by paying for entire period insurance covers (3 years) than spreading payments over each year.

COMING OUTINGS

GOVERNOR CLEMENT

WHEN - Sun. May 19. B. Gilman
Leader.

LEAVE: 10:00 A.M. Meldon School
Area.

There have been requests to begin our trip to Gov. Clement Shelter from the Lower Cold River Road. Let's see how many real hikers we have in the Section on this trip.

OKEMO MT.

WHEN: Sun. June 2. T. Gulick
Leader

LEAVE: 10:00 A.M. Meldon School
Area.

It has been a long time since the Killington Section has climbed Okemo so lets show our leader Terry Gulick that we still can.

He has promised a good day in spite of the black flies and any other misfortunes.

There may possibly be others from the G.M.C. annual meeting so lets try to have a good crowd.

PICO

WHEN: Sat. June 16, C. Scott
Leader

LEAVE: 9:00 A.M. Meldon School
Area.

This should be a work party and hike combined for soon the schools will begin their vacations, summer camps will be hiking and we hope to have Pico in good shape for the season. Let's all pitch in and help.

TINMOUTH MOUNTAIN

WHEN: Sun. June 30, C. Scott
Leader

LEAVE: 10:00 A.M. Meldon School
Area.

Once again we are planning to climb one of Craigie's favorite peaks and hope this time someone will be there to go and the weather is good. Also the leader will need all the help available for its a new trip for him too.

ANNUAL MEETING

See your latest issue of Long Trail News for all the information on the G.M.C. Annual Meeting.

Articles for the next issue of Smoke & Blazes should be sent to Betty Gilman, 52 Chestnut Ave., Rutland, Vt. Not later than July 3.

SUGAR ON SNOW PARTY

B. Gilman

On March 30 the Annual Sugar on Snow party was held at the Universalist Church. There was approximately 55 people who came to enjoy the sugar on snow, doughnuts, pickles, coffee and milk.

Vera Perkins and T. Valiquette and Ruth LaBrake boiled the syrup down, Carol, Betsy, and Nancy Martin set the tables up. Last but not least Harold Valiquette went to Killington Basin to get the snow and then packed the containers as they were needed.

Mr. & Mrs. Weston from Manchester, Mr. Magoon and son, Jeffry, from Springfield, Peter Perkins and family from Holy Cross College, were some of the out of towners that attended. There was a number of regulars that were unable to come as the New England Trails Conference was held the same day in Amherst.

MT. MOOSEHAMMOO

C. Scott

Leader Terry Gulick picked a rugged mountain for us to start in on after a long winter lay off.

Seventeen people began the hike and as we climbed we spread out with everyone setting their own pace. A number of lookouts on the ledges overlooking Lake Dunmore proved perfect rest stops.

At last the ledges and cliffs proved just too much for Rascal so she and Wes sat down to rest and await our return.

The highest cliffs had perfect examples to show that at one time it must have been the shore of an inland sea.

At the summit we ate, enjoyed the view of the Green Mts., and Adirondacks and looked down on Silver Lake with ice still around the shore and held our breath as Mr. Magoon did some serious rock climbing while Mr. Baxandall acted as anchor man.

This hike was well worth the effort and now that once again the Killington Section has visited it we shall try to climb it from the way Craig Perkins suggests this fall.

LONG TRAIL NEWS

C. Scott

On May 8 the current issue of the Long Trail News was mailed. If any members of the Killington Section failed to receive a copy within a reasonable time please notify the Secretary so our mailing address list maybe corrected.

CLARENDON LODGE

C. Scott

On a nice warm sunny day in April, Mark Pfanning, Craig, Mary and Churchill met to hike to Clarendon. Due to the small crowd and other work the Perkins family left for home and the rest of us left for a hike.

After lunch Mrs. Kirk walked up to visit the shelter for the first time in many years.

We hope that Mrs. Kirk will be able to go with us up to Gov. Clement this year and help us identify all the wild flowers as she did last time. That made a very interesting trip.

EASTER VACATION TRIP

C. Scott

On Wednesday April 17, Wilbur Weston, Doc Howard, Churchill Scott and Rascal set out for the Jay Peak Area with plans to stay at Jay Camp.

Along the way the discussion went against ones better judgement and we finally drove all the way to the Sargent Farm and stayed at Journey's End.

After a good supper, dishes were washed and lights turned off early. A good rest was had until 1:00 A.M. when the temperature dropped to below 32 degrees and we had to get up and build another fire to warm up, all the while feeling happy we did not go to Shooting Star as someone had suggested.

Morning finally came and after a hearty breakfast we loaded the car, Wes & Churchill hiked back up to the Border and South to Route 105. The weather was clear, cool and beautiful. At Post #592 one could see the border stretching over the mountain to the West. A 2 hour hike took four hours for snow made the walking very slow. We were able to skirt most of it but it was up to shoulder depth in some larger drifts.

Driving to Jay Camp the weather stayed perfect. After a short nap, wood was cut, supper made and air mattresses and foam rubber pads were discussed.

A short walk to the Atlas Lumber Company's open front camp overlooking Route 242 ended the days activities.

This camp gave us a perfect nights rest and we have grown very attached to it again this year. Everything is just right.

The night was spent very comfortably and after a hearty breakfast everyone decided the trail could wait so we walked the lift up to Jay Peak. A short but steep climb and at last we picked a way over rocks, stones, and boulders between patches of snow to the top.

Then as we enjoyed lunch we soaked up the sunshine and identified mountains. Mt. Royal, & Montreal to the North, Breadloaf to the South, White Mts. to the east and Adirondacks to the West.

Walking back down the tractor road plans were made to come again to Jay Camp and enjoy it once more

SUNNYSIDE

C. Scott

Before the day was over fourteen people had enjoyed the hot drinks from our 30 year old coffee pot.

Mr. Weldon of Castleton, Mr. Weston of Manchester and Susan Tarbell and her group from Wallingford were among those who spent the day at Sunnyside.

This camp is in pretty good shape but as usual there are a lot of odds and ends that should be done.

After lunch a circle trip to the clearing and over the hill to check the register ended the days walk.

ASCUTNEY DAY HIKE & PICNIC MAY 4

By: Herbert G. Ogden

In spite of soggy skies, a consistent forecast of day-long showers and a mountain top shrouded in low lying clouds, close to 200 people and 6 dogs climbed Mount Ascutney on ATA trails last Saturday to mark the 2nd Annual Ascutney Day Hike & Picnic put on by the Ascutney Trails Association. Attendance so far exceeded expectations that picnic supplies were completely exhausted before the last several hikers arrived around 2 PM. The 1967 attendance was only 60.

The hikers were about equally divided between youngsters and adults. Harold Austin, 72, of Woodstock, was again the oldest to make the climb. His only comment: he wished the ATA had not made the Windsor Trail just that little bit steeper and longer than last year! Honor for being the youngest went to David Pieter Hoekstra, 3, of Hanover. There were several 5 and 6 year old hikers, including Richard Burroughs, 5, of Brownsville, who had been the youngest on the 1967 hike. Most traveled trail was the Windsor, followed by the Browns-ville, then the Weathersfield.

In spite of the gloomy skies and forecast, there was not even one shower, although the ATA had provided canopy shelter just in case. The clouds lifted around noon and the sun even showed from time to time. Hanson Carroll of Norwich, one of Vermont's best-known photographers, was on hand all day taking pictures for a possible Vermont Life magazine feature.

All picnic supplies, prepared under the supervision of Picnic Chairman Deane Milligan of Windsor, were packed up from the motor road parking lot by ATA members. The picnic was free to all who cared to make the climb, although several contributed on the spot toward expenses. Food was either donated by ATA members or bought out of funds raised by dues, donations or the sale of Guide Books. Contributions to help support the 1969 Picnic and other ATA activities may be sent to Sec'y-Treasurer Ralph Bissell, 90 State St., Windsor, Vt.

SPECIAL-END-TO-END-TRIP

On May 24, 25, 26 a special trip will be made to Jay Camp for the purpose of allowing folks to work on their End-to-End award.

The group will leave the home of W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt. 05701 at 4:30 P.M. Friday May 24. Travel to Jay Camp set up headquarters there and spend Sat. and Sunday hiking the Long Trail.

Some young folks from the Montreal Area may be hiking with us so lets have a good turn out and see how many miles we can cover.

For any more details please contact W. Churchill Scott.

SMOKE and BLAZES

Vol. 21 NO. 3 - KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB MAY - JUNE, 1968

COMING HIKES

WHAT-- Canoe Trip

WHEN?-- Saturday July 13

WHERE?-- Otter Creek

Our leader, Lloyd Weeks, has planned something different, a canoe trip on the Otter Creek. Bring your lunch and something to float in! If you don't have a canoe, borrow one. We will meet at Meldon School at 9:00 A.M. From there we will proceed to Florence where we will launch our boats for a thirteen mile paddle to the Fish and Game Access area on route 73 west of Brandon. Those preferring a shorter trip, $7\frac{1}{2}$ mi., will find a good place to leave the water at the covered bridge on the Florence road just south of Brandon.

This is beautiful country with splendid mountain views. There are no dams or other hazards. The river meanders in a broad valley and has clear water and a sandy bottom.

By: Betty Weeks

ROLSTON'S REST

WHEN-- Sun. July 28. B. Rolston
Leader.

LEAVE-- 9:00 A.M. Meldon School

This will be a first time visit to the shelter built by the Long Trail Patrol to replace Noyes Pond. Ben Rolston our leader, will be at Gifford Wood Sat. and has suggested hiking from Route #1 to the Shelter and then down the Birch Road to Route #100 or down the South Pond Trail.

MOUNT MANSFIELD

WHEN-- Sat.-Sun. Aug. 10 and 11,
Leader - C. Scott

LEAVE-- 9:00 A.M. Meldon School

Here is a good chance to hike the many trails on Vermont's highest Peak. Possibly may stay at Underhill State Park, visit Cantiliever Rock among other places. Derrick Dobbs of the Canadian Youth Hostel of Montreal has promised to have a group with us then, so let's make this a good hike with lots of members along.

1968 G.M.C. INTERSECTIONAL
Aug. 24 - Sept. 2

Each member should have a flyer in the last issue of the Long Trail News describing this annual affair.

Lake Eden is a favorite spot of many of our members and this will be a good opportunity for many to work some more on their End-to-End award.

Articles for the next issue of "Smoke & Blazes" should be sent to Betty Gilman, 52 Chestnut Ave., Rutland, Vt. not later than Sept. 5.

WORK PARTIES

By: C. Scott

In view of the large amount of repair work to be done there will be work parties scheduled for each week-end a hike is not planned. Each shelter has a great amount of work needed to put them in shape for the hiking season.

Anyone wanting to help our section is urged to contact W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt. 05701.

There have been a number of work parties recently. A new toilet house has been built at Tucker, thanks to Doc. Howard.

Terry Gulick has led a party to the Swinging Bridge over Mill River where the cable work was painted, wood creosoted and extra fixtures and wire removed.

Terry also led an overnight trip to Pico where the shelter was repaired and another trip to brush out the trail south of the Long Trail Lodge.

Mr. Weldon and Mike Barrett spent a day at Gov. Clement cleaning up around the camp, replacing register and so.

Thanks to Terry, Doc. Howard, Jamie Tarbell, Marc Pfenning, Kay Howard, Cathy Welch, Sharon Atwood, J. Weldon, Mike Barrett, Kim Scott, Frank Drake and any one else I've overlooked.

PICO CAMP

Rained out.

GOVERNOR CLEMENT

By: C. Scott

After a spell of wet weather all of the ambitious hikers left their cars at the Lower Cold River Road and hiked over the trail to Gov. Clement. Mrs. Howard drove our supplies to the camp where Mrs. Weeks and her daughter and grandchildren already had a fire going.

The wet feet and clothing were soon dry and a good meal was eaten as we all discussed plans for our coming Canoe Trip down the Otter Creek.

This fine shelter was in very good shape and the new bunks, fireplace and roof make this one of our best camps at the present time.

OKEMO MOUNTAIN TRIP - Cancelled

Replaced by Sunnyside Camp

By: Michael Barrett

After a brief but lively discussion we decided to hike to Sunnyside in a group of eight. On the wet but enjoyable trip we met Churchill Scott traveling north with girl scouts, we exchanged Hello's and talked briefly. On arrival we had one man go ahead to build the fire. The shelter was fairly clean with ample supply of wood. Before leaving we fixed up the camp leaving supply of wood and cleaning inside and out. The trip was pleasant and enjoyed by all.

TINMOUTH

By: C. Scott

Once again we failed to reach our objective. It seems as though this mountain is a jinx to us.

After days of rain and wet weather the sun broke through and all concerned decided to go to the White Rocks picnic area. Here we climbed the Cliffside Trail and enjoyed the view of the slide and across the valley to our original destination.

Lunch was eaten and then Mrs. McKinney and Kathy took us up the Keywayden Trail a short ways then over to a series of very pretty waterfalls. This would be a perfect spot for a cooling dip on a hot August day.

A quote from a May 22nd letter received by Herbert Ogden from his son, who is now spending his junior year in college at the University of Munich.

8 Munich 13
Hesstrasse 77
German Federal Republic

" On Saturday we took part in the Fruhjahrsmarsch around the Starnberger See (alias Wurm See) about 30 km south of here. It's a 50 km walk all around the lake, sponsored by the German Automobile Club and the Munich Abendzeitung. I'd known about it for some time, but never decided if I wanted to go, 'till Bob asked me if I'd like to Friday night. So I accepted and got up at 4 AM like the rest of them. We drove down in Bob's VW. Started at 6 and finished (very finished, too) at 5:15 PM or so. Walking time was 10 hours. The walk is 6 years old; it was inspired by the New Frontier 50-mile hike! And I'd assumed it was some good, old German tradition or the like. Over 12,000 (yes, over twelve thousand) took part, and over 9,000 made it all the way. If you were registered beforehand you got a medal, but Said and I, having done it on the spur of the moment, got nothing. The scenery is sort of boring and it rained off and on but we had fun. Incredible: 'till the 30 km mark there was an unbroken line of people. Even after that you could always see 20 or so and were constantly passing or being passed.

Too crowded for my taste, really, but fun to do once. All manner of people, except for the very young, were there. I guess most of the crowd was out of its teens and there were even a good number of distinctly old people-- even a few old ladies! And they had all manner of crummy shoes that I couldn't have taken for 5 kms. I guess some of them must get in condition beforehand, though. We sang a good deal at the beginning, as did some others. Bob and I know some German songs and Said and Folker knew many American ones, so we had a grand old time dredging back into our fading knowledge of US folks songs and the like. The best marching songs proved to be Yankee Doodle and the Battle Hymn of the Republic. Around 10 kms from the end when we were all feeling pretty poorly, we started singing again as a distraction. That time we were singing alone. We finally limped across the finish line and took a taxi to where the car was parked, about a mile away. We were pretty decrepit lot staggering from the car to the dorm, too. I ate supper and went to bed for 12 hours; some just went straight to bed."

COMING HIKES

BOURNE POND

LEADER: C. Scott

WHEN: Sat-Sun. Sept. 14-15

MEET: Meldon School Area 9:00 A.M.

Here is a chance to cover the trail from Grout Job north to Prospect Rock visiting the new Vondell and two Bourne Pond Shelters staying overnight at the Pond. Lets have a good turnout and add some end-to-end mileage.

EAST MOUNTAIN

LEADER: H. Valiquette

WHEN: Sun. Sept. 29.

MEET: Meldon School Area 10:00 A.M.

The foliage season should be underway to make this trip an extra special one to an old favorite peak.

BAKER PEAK

WHEN: Sunday October 6

MEET: Meldon School Area 9:00 A.M.

LEADER: R. Roberts

Mr. Roberts of Springfield has offered to act as leader on this trip. So let's have everybody there to enjoy the views, foliage and new shelter at Griffith Lake.

COVERED DISH SUPPER

WHEN: Saturday October 19, 6:00PM

WHERE: Beechwood-Perkins Lane Ext.

Once again through the kindness of the Perkins family we are all invited to have our covered dish supper at Beechwood. This annual affair has grown to be one of our big events of the year so lets all come early to enjoy a few fall walks or at 6:00 to eat.

MT. MONADNOCK

WHEN: Sunday, November 3

WHERE: Meldon School Area 9:A.M.

LEADER: T. Gulick

This time an out of state hike is planned for all of the eager members. The peak is a large bare rock strewn area and if good weather prevails it should be an enjoyable trip.

If some of the Springfield folks go perhaps we can learn more of the cold weather rescue they participated in a few years ago.

Articles for the next issue of "Smoke & Blazes" should be sent to Betty Gilman, 52 Chestnut Ave., Rutland, Vt. November 6 or 7.

CANOE TRIP
By: Betty Weeks

A beautiful day, July 13, brought a surprising number of enthusiastic canoeists out for the trip on the Otter Creek. Fourteen canoes and twenty eight people enjoyed the delightful journey from Florence Village to the Fishing Access area on route 73 west of Brandon.

Finally the last of the canoes were launched, after placing cans both at the access area and at a point near Dean bridge, for those who preferred a shorter trip. At first there was a good current and the canoes sped along under a covered bridge and then on down the winding river. Great trees lined the banks, hanging out over the creek to make a shaded archway. There was a cool breeze making an otherwise hot day, delightful. Occasionally a muskrat swam ahead only to dive under water or disappear in a hole in the bank. A mother duck, pretending a broken wing, lured us away from her brood of ducklings. Occasionally we had views of the Green Mountains to the east but usually the banks of the creek were too high for us to see them.

We stopped for lunch and to stretch the stiff and aching legs in a cow pasture near Dean Bridge, south of Brandon. Here we made coffee and enjoyed visiting with some of our guests, among whom were other G.M.C. members: Sanborn Partridge, a life member from Proctor, and William Willis Jr., a member at large, who drove down from St. Albans to enjoy the trip. Here three canoes left the water while the others continued on to finish the 13 mile trip.

A sense of seclusion pervades the Otter Creek, the only time we saw or heard automobiles was just before we reached the access area where Route 73 follows the winding river.

Soon after 3 P.M. the last canoe was pulled up the steep, muddy bank. In spite of weary muscles, everyone agreed that a canoe trip should be an annual affair.

ROLSTON REST
By: Ben Rolston

Ray Secor and I waited in the rain, on Route 4 at the Tucker Lodge shortcut, for the main group of Killington hikers. The way the weather looked, we really didn't expect anyone. But soon a jeep truck appeared, occupied by Doc Howard and Churchill Scott.

True to tradition, the hike must go on. But after a short consultation, Doc offered to drive us up the private Noyes Pond road, thus getting us to Rolston Rest shelter without the soggy walk in the rain via Tucker Lodge and Willard Gap.

We went around to Route 100, and up Mr. Burch's road. But wait a minute--this was to be a hike. Why were we riding? So a compromise was agreed upon. We would go as far as the barrier (altho the chain was open) and walk the rest of the way. Thus we wouldn't be cheating (or at least we'd only be half cheating).

So we parked at the chain. The rain had stopped! We hiked the remaining distance up the road and then the cut off to the shelter. Firemaster Secor got a conflagration going in the fireplace and we all had hot drinks with our assorted lunches.

After a relaxing sojourn at the shelter, we went back to the road and hiked up to Noyes Pond to see Mr. Burch's beautiful home. After a brief visit with Mrs. Burch, we began the descent to the parked truck.

Just as we arrived, the heavens opened up. Call it liquid sunshine or whatever you wish. But it was a ride in the open back end of a truck, slowly descending a rough road, during a cloudburst?

Sorry more members didn't join us. It WAS a nice hike. Only the RIDE was wet!

MANSFIELD OVERNIGHT

By: Terry Gulick

The Mt. Mansfield overnighter saw four hearty souls climbing over the highest mountain in Vermont in early August. With headquarters at Taft Lodge, Terry Gulick and 3 guests observed the sun setting from the summit, explored the cave of the winds and other points of interest and met a number of hikers and Burlington Section members. The Long Trail Patrol was on hand also repairing Taft Lodge.

While rather noisy an interesting sight was provided by a helicopter lifting materials from the base to the top of the new ski lift site.

BUFFUM-JUST REMINISCING

By: Ben Rolston

Of the three nights that I camped at the old Buffum Shelter, perhaps the most memorable one was a rainy November night. I walked up the road with full pack, by flashlight, with a bundle of dry wood under one arm and the other holding a big umbrella. A small fire, a hot meal, and slumber.

Then came progress. In 1961 the Killington Section built Buffum Lodge to replace the poor old shelter, which was badly showing its age of 39 years.

This luxurious new lodge put a new dimension into overnight camping. Perhaps the most remembered acceptance of its hospitality was the New Year's weekend when Ray Secor and I spent three nights there.

In between cutting firewood and cooking exotic meals (such as homemade beef stew, baked potatoes, baked apples, puddings, and spareribs and sauerkraut), we entertained members of the Killington Section on their annual winter trip, and built a new outhouse. The latter project was interrupted by frequent trips to the lodge to stoke the fire, warm our hands, and stir the stew. Our new sign proclaimed our work of art at Buffum Annex.

Our last special overnighter to Buffum Lodge was on Ray's last weekend before he left for four years in the U.S. Navy. Buffum had sentimentality added to its charm.

I spent a total of 13 nights at Buffum Lodge (none of them in the summer months.) Then in November, 1966 someone had a careless moment. A spark, a flame, and it was all over. Buffum Lodge had burned to the ground.

Buffum has many memories, the intangible. Physical evidence leaves me with only a couple of color slides, and the door handle which I retrieved from the ashes some time after the fire.

As I view the site, and see the faithful little brook of pure water, and witness the mighty hemlocks overhead, and hear the chickadees in the nearby forest, I have a vision of a NEW Buffum arising from the ashes. Not a cabin, but a simple open shelter, where once again hikers may sit by the fire-side, gaze through the hemlock branches into the heavens above, and be inspired by the serenity of this site. I hope my vision becomes a reality.

PRESIDENTS' NOTES

Many thanks to individuals and groups who assisted in work done on the Killington Section of the Trail. There is still work to do, but several improvements have been made this summer. New signs, a new roof and outhouse at Tucker, maintenance work at Pico, trail clearing in a couple of spots up Pico, and some clearing and "bridge" work over swampy areas between Pico and Killington are a few of the activities undertaken.

On the other side of the coin, Clarendon is showing signs of wear and Sunnyside went up in flames late in August. The directors will be faced with deciding what to do as a replacement for both this camp and Buffum.

Trail usage is increasing. Membership is increasing. Vandalism appears to be also. This creates newer and more problems for G.M.C. but with the enthusiasm and support of the many members we shall carry on!

It was great to see the number of Killington Section members at the Intersection this year. If you've never been, plan on it next year. The 1969 chairman is getting started with plans already.

In the new activities schedule you will note the annual meeting date has been changed. It is hoped that temperature and weather will be more conducive to traveling at this time. Hope you agree. Have a happy autumn!

ANOTHER ITEM OF INTEREST

GMC'ers are watching 86 year old Frederick W. Leuhning of Swarthmore, Penna. complete the Long Trail.

Having completed the A. T. 5 years ago the retired professor is hoping to becoming the next Vt. end-to-ender. He hopes to arrive at the Long Trail Lodge by Mid-September.

During the Intersection, Dr. Leuhning hiked some 50 miles in the northern part of Vermont.

His current trek started at the Lamoille River near Johnson.

WORK PARTIES By: C. Scott

Once again summer is drawing to a close and we must sum up all we have done and all we must do to get all of our shelters repaired and tightened up for the winter.

The trails have all been checked and worked. Route #140 to the Lower Cold River Road by Ben Rolston, Lower Cold River Road to Cooper Lodge by Herb Ogden, etc. in addition to all his work on Ascutney Mt. and Killington to Rt. #4 plus Juggernaut and Shrewsbury Trails by The Farm and Wilderness Camps.

Sunnyside has had roof patched. Clarendon-needs roof patched, many new windows, a new toilet house and creosote.

Gov. Clement- in good condition. Pico- needs creosote, new stove and roof patched.

Tucker- has had new roof. Thanks to Doc Howard. It still needs major repair work plus a new stove.

Swinging Bridge- needs a work party to halt erosion to the bridge supports.

In view of all the needed work the Trails and Shelters Committee will have work parties on every week-end that hikes are not planned.

If anyone is able to help they may contact W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vermont. Schedule of Work Parties.

Sat., Sept. 21. Swinging Bridge at Mill River.

Sat., Oct. 12, Sunnyside.

Sat., Oct. 26, Tucker

OUTING SCHEDULES

By: C. Scott

The Fall and Winter schedules are enclosed. If any additional copies are wanted they may be obtained from Churchill Scott, Harold Valiquette or Craigue Perkins. Let's get behind the folks who have offered to lead the hikes and come out for some fresh air and sunshine.

LONG TRAIL NEWS

COMING HIKES

STONY BROOK SHELTER

WHEN: Sat. Nov. 16, 9:00 A.M.

Mr. Hedrick Cahee of Springfield will lead this trip over the Appalachian Trail from the shelter for about 4 miles west to the River Road in Sherburne, Vt.

PICO CAMP

WHEN: Sun. Dec. 1, 10:00 A.M.

Betty Gilman our editor is in charge of this hike. If there is not too much snow let's make this a combined work and hike trip.

BIRD MT.

WHEN: Sat. Dec. 14, 9:00 A.M.

This season the outing committee was fortunate to have Mr. Frink offer to lead this trip to Bird Mt. and explain to us all the many interesting geology formations of this area. Let's have everyone turn out for this outing.

TUCKER LODGE

WHEN: Sun. Dec. 29, 6:00 P.M.

Note the evening starting time and Kevin Hogan has promised enough doughnuts for everyone to go with the hot drinks. We can use some help to go up early in the day to cut wood and warm the camp up. Any hands raised?

SUNNYSIDE

WHEN: Sat. Jan. 11, 9:00 A.M.

One of our newer members "Doc" Howard has offered to lead this hike. The only question will be the weather and snow conditions to see where we'll go. Let's hope for warm sunshine and perhaps we can look over the spot for our new Sunnyside.

Articles for the next issue of "Smoke & Blazes" should be sent to Betty Gilman, 52 Chestnut Ave., Rutland, Vt. No later than Jan. 14, 1969

EAST MOUNTAIN

By: Margot McKinney

Sunday, September 29 was one of those days of which Robert Frost says that a cloud across the sun can make a difference of one whole month in temperature and mood. When the sun was out, summer was back for an instance, when it disappeared behind the extraordinarily thick, black and frequent clouds, Thanksgiving seemed near.

The initial gathering at the usual meeting place seemed meager but by the time we left the cars at that certain spot known only to Mr. Valiquette, the party had swelled to 16 people.

The ascent was accomplished nicely, especially by the two youngest members who were only five years old. Good show, John and Tessa.

At the top the view was the first point of importance, the second to get out of the sharp wind which made the climbers shiver. While the fire crackled under the venerable coffee pot, Mr. Valiquette, assisted by Terry Gulick and some of the younger hikers put up a brand new edition of his famous red flag which can be seen all the way down in Rutland.

An astonishing variety of refreshments were produced around the fire, including sardines, cleverly speared with a forked stick. There was some good talk of old times as well as planning of new hikes and after the last spark was doused, the descent began. Again the youngsters did very well, needing only occasional help to negotiate tree trunks and puddles. One of the puddles turned out to be a spring, seeping out fast enough to provide a patient traveler with drinking water. On the last stretch across a swampy meadow the sun came out again and made the hikers wish it could have been out up there on the top of East Mountain.

BAKER PEAK TRIP

By: Richard Roberts

Sunday October 6 was the occasion of the Baker Peak trip. Nineteen hikers from the Springfield and Rutland areas joined in an enjoyable outing. The air was brisk reminding us that fall is well on its way finally after a warm September. The foliage was not at its peak but color was beginning to show in many of the maple stands.

The hike commenced on U.S.F.S. road #10 East of Danby at Long Trail South. Just across the swinging bridge we passed a troop of Boy Scouts from Charlestown, New Hampshire traveling North. At this point it was most interesting to view the remains of the old Charcoal kilns. These are located close to the junction of the two trails. It is hard to picture industry that these represent being in operation so far off what we today consider the beaten path.

Lost Pond shelter was the site of our lunch with coffee from the famous coffee pot. It would be interesting to know how many trips this pot has made. (Is it an End to Ender). The afternoon saw us journey along the trail to Baker Peak to view the peaceful valley below. A tremendous panorama.

Our journey down the Baker Peak and Lake trail took us through beautiful, peaceful and clean forests. (Is this why we have Ben's Bathtub). Our only concern at this point was the disappearance of 4 of our Boy Scouts. But experience scouts and Churchill Scott went to the rescue rounding them up at Griffith Lake. Our day ended with all accounted for.

BAKER PEAK
By: Vera Perkins

Nineteen two-legged hikers and one dog were on hand for the trip to Baker Peak on Sunday, Oct. 6th. The hike was lead by Mr. Roberts, one of our Springfield members and four other Springfield members participated.

Original plans were to start hiking where the Trail crosses the Danby - Mt. Tabor road going south to Lost Pond Shelter and Baker Peak, thence to Griffith Lake and down the Lake Trail to Rte. 7. Here a car was stationed to take the drivers back to their cars at the starting point. This would make a total hike of about 10 miles. This seemlike quite a jaunt to some of us considering a late start, but not daunted we set forth.

We started in over the Forest Service suspension bridge. This is quite a bridge by the way and worth seeing. Just beyond the bridge we made a side trip of a few hundred yards to visit the site of one of the old charcoal kilns which used to operate in this area.

It was a perfect hiking day. The air had a bit of a fall snap, the trees were showing enough color to shed a bright light which was reflected by the color of the leaves already on the ground - and NO BUGS. One of the best times of year to be in the woods.

Lunch stop was at Lost Pond Shelter and here it was decided to omit Griffith Lake and go directly down from Baker Peak. So a leisurely lunch time was enjoyed before continuing our journey.

Baker Peak was inspiring as always with its rocky summit affording a fine view of the valley to the west.

The trek down the Lake Trail seemed longer to some of us than we remembered it, but finally we did arrive at the waiting car. Here we found we were missing 3 of our number who apparently failed to get the word of the change of plans and had gone on to Griffith Lake.

Eventually however, the party was all collected and arrived home safe and sound although somewhat later than expected.

It was a good trip and thanks go to Mr. Roberts for arrangements and driver transportation between points.

The following information on the operations of charcoal kilns which appeared in an article in the April 1885 issue of Outlook Magazine may be of interest. The writer, J. K. Chapin had recently visited this site and described a kiln as follows:

"Walls of hard brick are 12 inches thick and kilns are from 25 to 30 feet in diameter; 12 feet high to the crown and about a 7 foot crown with a circular opening in it about 5 ft. in diameter. The only other opening besides the vent is a door closed by a heavy slab of iron. Floor is of clay and well tamped. Foundations are well grout before beginning to build as kilns expand when heated and contract when cooled.

Three tiers of vents the size of a brick are left in the walls to draw the fire back and forth - 120 vents to each kiln - called waist, knee and ankle vents.

Logs to be burned are piled in two tiers, filling the kiln to within 3 feet of the crown - logs radiate from the center where a space of about 4 ft. is filled with soft light wood for kindling.

A rag saturated with kerosene on a pole is used for lighting. The door is then closed, the thimble or iron plate, is placed over the opening in the crown and the charring process goes on for 10 to 12 days regulated by the opening and closing of the vents around the base of the kiln."

The article gave much more detail and an interesting diagram but this summary may give those interested a general idea of "how it was done".

It was estimated it took 14 days to burn a kiln - 2 to fill, 10 to burn and 2 to cool. Before leaving to cool the body of kiln was thoroughly white-washed and crown covered with coal tar to make air tight.

MT. ASCUTNEY NEW SHELTER
By: Herbert G. Ogden

The Ascutney Trail Association reports that a shelter is now ready for use on the Windsor Trail on Mt. Ascutney. Located at the Upper Spring (above the famous Half Way Spring) and named The Log Shelter, it is a 12' x 14' open face type, with back wall and one end of heavy spruce logs cut on the site; a vertical rock slab serves as the other end. Against the slab is a fireplace and 12' chimney, built of stones stone-boated down from the bank above. Cutting of a few trees has opened up a pleasant view to the northeast, featuring the Trafton Hoisington farm.

Construction, begun on Memorial Day of this year, was completed on September 18th, save for finishing touches, such as caulking, grading, construction of a proper privy, etc. Folks wishing to help out during the remainder of the fall may call Richard Burroughs (484-3384), Paul Magoon (885-4056) or Herbert Ogden (436-4452). Some 20 ATA Shirtsleeve Members, under the general direction of amateur mason & cabin builder Ogden, worked on the project. Almost one ton of mortar mix, some 400 pounds of metal roofing and all the tools were back-packed or trundled in from the Motor Road parking lot, up to Castle Rock then down the Windsor Trail--a total of one and one fifth miles. All the roofing was donated by Ronald Clay, through his son, Arnold Clay, a member of the ATA Board. The Frost Lumber Company of Woodstock helped by granting a discount on the mortar mix.

Among those working on the project were Richard Burroughs and family, Arnold Clay, Gus Aldrich, Robert Ely, Randy Spooner, Herbert Ogden, Paul Magoon, Jeffry Magoon, Eugene Ely, Mark Rivers, Francis Greenwood, Tom Ward, Kenneth Hatch, Melvin Hatch, Gary Burke, Michael Georg, Thomas Sitsch, Paul Massie and son.

The Log Shelter now becomes the property of the State of Vermont, since it is on State land. It will be maintained by the ATA, as are all the hiking trails on the Mountain. Besides completing the Shelter, the ATA has also re-opened the original route of the Windsor Trail from the Half Way Spring to the Upper Spring, and back onto the present Windsor Trail. In addition, a new side trail has been opened from Blood Rock back up on to the Windsor Trail above the Spring switchbacks.

The three trails (Windsor, Brownsville, Weathersfield) are well travelled, Registers, located toward the top of each one, show a total of 997 signatures, as of September 5th. Many hikers do not bother to sign, especially on repeat trips. Well over half the signatures are of youngsters. The Windsor Trail, with around 450, is the most popular, followed by the Weathersfield, 316, and the Brownsville, 231. Folks wishing to support the ATA with a $2.00 membership or help as a Shirtsleeve member, may write to Richard Burroughs, ATA Treas., Box 82, Reading.

COVERED DISH SUPPER
By: Betty Gilman

We all want to thank Vera Perkins for putting on the Annual Covered Dish supper which was enjoyed by all. There was about 28 members that attended, some coming in the early afternoon so as to take a couple of short walks in the woods.

Supper was served about 6:30 and everyone ate all they could hold and then coming events were discussed for a short time. Vera, T. Valiquette, Ruth LaBrake and Eleanor Walker did the clean up work in the kitchen and then about 8 o'clock everyone decided to venture out in the rain to go home after having a wonderful time as usual.

COMING HIKES

GOVERNOR CLEMENT

WHEN: Sat. February 8, 9:00 A.M.

Doris Newton is the leader for this trip. If the weather is warm and sunny this will be a good chance to explore the many old roads in this area.

MT. HANDLEY

WHEN: Sun. February 23, 10:00 A.M.

C. Scott will lead this hike up this Taconic Mountain to a favorite ledge where very good views may be obtained. Snow shoes will be a must for this trip along with warm clothes and a hearty lunch.

BLUERIDGE MOUNTAIN

WHEN: Sat. March 15, 9:00 A.M.

C. Perkins has promised many interesting things to do today. We can snow-shoe, ski, slide or just loaf in the comfortable field house of Tall Timber. It will also be a good time to start thinking of a new series of hikes so your outing committee can draw up a new schedule.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting will be held around March 1. The final plans are not drawn up at this time but each member will be informed of the time and place as soon as possible.

Please send the articles for the next "Smoke & Blazes" to Betty Gilman, 52 Chestnut Ave., Rutland, Vt. No later than Mar. 18. You can send them anytime before this date I promise I will not lose them.

STONY BROOK SHELTER

Mr. Hedrick Cahee of Springfield and a group from there waited for over 45 minutes on Sat. Nov. 16 to lead our section on a trip over the Appalachian Trail. No one showed up (this seems to be getting a habit) so everyone took an urban tour which turned into an expensive one according to one report.

We want to thank Mr. Cahee for his part and hope next time things will go better.

By: Churchill Scott

PICO CAMP

By: B. Gilman

The day was started by Churchill Scott and myself showing up and then about 10:30 we went to Doc Howards. When we got there we found it had been one of those days for him that everything seems to go wrong.

Mr. Weston was up for the weekend and so after Mr. Howard had seen to everything we left to go into Tucker to see how much work needed to be done before the moonlight hike and it was then decided it was hopeless to try and get it fixed up in time.

The men built a fire outside of the shelter to heat the water for coffee and then after eating we returned to Doc Howards to look at some maps and then about 3 o'clock we left there to go to Clement Shelter and pick up the stove pipe that was left behind by who ever walked off with the stove.

BIRD MOUNTAIN

By: James Frink

December 14 was a very rainy slushy day. Harold Valiquette and I went to the rendezvous at 9:00 A.M. and talked with Churchill Scott, who passed by, said he could not go, and asked us if we wanted him to get us the Coffee

Pot. We said 'Thank You, but no,' and waited until 9:20 not really expecting anyone to show up in such miserable hiking weather.

Harold and I took off for Gov. Clement Shelter and on the way I gave Harold a fine lecture on the geology and Petrology of Bird Mountain. He is now well qualified in the subject!

We drove the Jeep through six inches of slushy snow and ice all the way to the shelter. We built a roaring fire in the big stone fireplace, and warmed our sandwiches on the grille. Harold brought a large thermos of hot tea.

After pleasant food and conversation in quiet peaceful surroundings, we signed the register and drove back to route 4 heading East.

At Kent Pond we took Thunderbrook Road down to the valley and headed North to where we joined Route 100 at the fish pond. From there we drove to Rochester, Vermont and went all through that beautiful foothill section of the Green Mountains known as North Hollow.

On the way out, we stopped at the active Verd Antique quarry of the Vermont Marble Co. and described its geology, history, and quarrying processes to Harold. Verd Antique is called Marble but it is serpentine produced when water from magmas changed basalt, peridotite, dunite, and similar igneous rocks or when such water metamorphosed hornblende schists that once were sediments.

We started for home over Brandon Gap, and from Brandon, took the western back road to Florence, Proctor and Center Rutland. Just south of Proctor on Route 3, we saw four deer in our headlights, about to cross the road. All day in the woods, and the only deer seen were in towns for the day!

We really had a good day and I'm sorry there were not more to enjoy it.

MOONLIGHT HIKE

By: C. Scott

This was changed from Tucker to Clarendon Lodge due to the very poor condition of the former shelter (windows missing, no stove pipe, and the stove in disaray.)

There was only one car for 11 hikers so one load went to the parking area but due to the heavy snow of the previous day the spot was not usable so the best thing we decided to do was come home and try again some better day.

CLARENDON LODGE

By: C. Scott

Mary Perkins (leader) must be the magic word for on a beautiful day in January around 20 folks walked into Clarendon Lodge.

The Cahees, Roberts, Weeks and Mrs. Herrick of Springfield, Mauri Winturri of Fitchburg, Ray Secor of Schenectady and Mr. Weston of Manchester with Rascal were among the out of town folks.

Some cut wood, others built the fire, fixed the shelter but in a short while the pot was boiling and everyone began to eat and talk.

Plans were talked over about the new shelters we must build this year, hikes on the trail for End to End awards and new places to visit on the Spring and Summer schedule.

In spite of all the help the stove pipe was still not taken care of so it was stored away to be finished next time. Perhaps it is just as well for it insures an other trip to Clarendon to fix it up a bit more.

A good time was had by all and with the coming of Spring we should have good attendance on our trips.

Vol. 22 No. 2 - KILLINGTON SECTION GREEN MOUNTAIN CLUB - Feb. - Mar. '6

COMING HIKES

This Spring we have planned to spend the month of April working on Gov. Clement, Clarendon, Tucker and Sunnyside.

SAT. APR. 5	Clarendon Lodge
" " 12	Sunnyside Area.
" " 26	Gov. Clement
" MAY 3	Tucker Lodge
" " 10	Pico Camp

We do not expect everyone to be able to go on every work party BUT we do hope that as many as possible will try to help at any time.

More information maybe obtained from W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt. 05701

BIRD MOUNTAIN

WHEN: Sun. May 25, 10:00 A.M.

Here will be another chance to visit this interesting mountain in the Taconic Range. Perhaps the weather will be nice this time and Mr. James Frink can be along to describe the geological highlights of the area.

PICO-KILLINGTON

WHEN: Sun. June 1, 10:00 A. M.

Today we can act as host to the folks that attended the annual meeting of the Green Mountain Club on Saturday. There will be a number of interesting walks we can take in this area and at the same time check on the trail and camps.

SUGAR ON SNOW PARTY

The annual sugar on snow party will be held on Sat. March 29, at St. Paul's Universalist-Unitarian Church on West St. across from the Grand Theatre, beginning at 6:00 P.M.

Once again we indebted to Miss Vera Perkins for offering to head the group who will have the long, hard and exact job of boiling the syrup.

Carol Martin will have the younger girls help her set up the dining room so you see there is a job for everyone and in order to insure the yearly coming of this event we must all do our share.

T. Gulick will supervise snow gathering. Mr. & Mrs. Charles B. Gull will show slides of trip to Green

THE GOVERNOR CLEMENT TRIP

By: Doris Newton

The day of the Governor Clement trip proved to be one of the winter's finest. A coating of ice on the trees as well as fresh snow, made the countryside a wonderland. In the clear air every detail of the mountains stood out.

Doc, Howard, Churchill, Betsy Martin and I made up the party. At one of the old roads we separated, Doc to go directly to the shelter and we to explore. After a good bushwhack we came out on an old road and down to the trail at the shelter where Doc had a welcome fire going. Lunch was soon underway. Another short cut by the old Haley farm brought us back down to the car at the corner and so home, after a very satisfactory day.

MT. HANDLEY

By: C. Scott

Mrs. George Kirk, Jim Frink and Churchill Scott were the only folks with enough get up and go to tackle Mt. Handley on a very enjoyable day in February.

After parking in the usual place just over the Castleton River on the Whipple Hollow Road we missed the beginning of the wood road so walked along the new Interstate for a short distance. At last we felt it was time to cut up to the road. As we came to the fence there was quite a discussion as to going over or under it. After digging in under it we continued to bushwhack north in hopes of finding the trail. Soon we were climbing quite rapidly along fresh snowmobile tracks and came to an inviting spot of evergreens, brook and firewood. Here we suffered the only casualty of the day as we sat on a makeshift seat it gave way and a bit of delicious coffee was lost.

At last the ski do tracks bore to the East and we were on our own but the snow conditions were just perfect traveling. We kept on going until the next switchback was reached where we were able to see over Little Handley to the East.

It was soon time to head for home and at each stop for breath Jim would give us a brief talk of the geological features or track identification. At one spot the biggest (?) snowshoe rabbit tracks in the world were seen which gave us quite a challenge to identify.

On the way to the cars we took care to learn the correct start so that next time (hopefully with more folks along) we will get a good start.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

The Killington Section is very grateful for the contributions of Lincoln Isham, Paul Megoon, Helen Frink and Harriot Bryant. These will be used to help maintain the shelters and trails throughout the coming year and to improve them where ever possible.

G.M.C. ANNUAL MEETING

The May issue of the Long Trail News will have all necessary information on the time, place and date. So please keep this in mind and save the day to learn what the Club is doing for you. Don't forget last year our section had the largest number of members.

LET'S DO IT AGAIN

LONG TRAIL NEWS

The February issue of the Long Trail News was mailed about Feb. 20. If anyone has not received their copy yet please notify W. C. Scott, so that the Corresponding Secretary of the Main Club may be informed.

ANNUAL MEETING

By: C. Scott

The annual meeting of The Killington Section of the Green Mountain Club was held at the C.V.P.S. rooms on Feb. 28, 1969.

About 34 were present and a very active evening was spent.

The following reports were made.

H. Ogden, sr. & jr., A.T.A work on Ascutney Mt., building of new shelter on Windsor Trail and invitation to attend the annual hike in May.

G. Pearlstein, work being done on outlying trail bulletins and help asked on supplying information about others around the state.

R. Deemer, work being done by the U.S.F.S. along the trail and elsewhere within their area.

Pres. Gulick let the discussion on work projects for the coming year, rebuilding Sunnyside, improving the approaches to the Mill River Bridge, repairing Tucker (possibly only necessary work with the plan in mind to relocate this camp on the main Long Trail a bit north of Willard Gap.

End to Enders with us included G. Pearlstein, R. Roberts, Mr. & Mrs. Weeks, H. Ogden jr. and Mrs. Dorothy Johnson who had a very interesting scrapbook of her trips while doing the trail during the early 1940's.

New officers were elected.

Pres. Wilbur F. Weston

V. P. J. Harold Howard

Sect'y -

Treas. W. Churchill Scott

Finally the ladies served the best refreshments ever. As each year goes by it does not seem possible that Vera can do any better at providing more delicious cakes, pies, cookies and coffee but she does and we all thank her along with every other one.

SUNNYSIDE

By: C. Scott

The owners of Spring Lake Ranch have given the Killington Section permission to construct a new shelter on the site of the former Sunnyside Camp.

Sat, April 12, has been set for a work party there and at that time we will try to pick up the area and determine the best way to rebuild.

At a recent executive board meeting it was voted to have the new camp the same size and with folding doors as before.

During the week of April 14-18 the public schools and W. C. Scott are having a vacation. At this time we hope to be at the site as much as possible and begin the ground work.

The big question remaining is, Can we get enough volunteer help, to have a shelter there by the beginning of the hiking season which starts as soon as the snow leaves. Or will we have to hire the Long Trail Patrol with an additional expense of $400. to $500. and with the possibility that it may not be constructed until August.

Anyone able to help can contact W.C. Scott 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt.

SHATTERACK MT.

By: Betty Weeks

Six Killington Section members from Springfield took advantage of the beautiful weather March 10 and snowshoed up Shatterack Mt. in Jamaica. After driving out Glebe Mountain road as far as possible, we snowshoed up the unplowed road a mile into the notch between Shatterack Mt. and Glebe Mt. At the height of land we ventured off on a wood road to the right, bush-whacking our way up an easy but steady grade through lovely hard wood forest to the summit of the mountain. The mountain top is all ledges with fir trees and blueberry bushes between. At this time of the year, only the fir trees show. From many places on and near the top there are spectacular views to the east, south, and west. We could look almost directly down at the Ball Mountain Flood Control dam which was built in the narrow West River Valley between Shatterack and Ball Mtns. The West River, where canoe races are held each Spring, was a miniature stream far below. We could see Monadnock Mt. in New Hampshire, Glastenbury, Stratton and Mt. Snow to the south. In the west, Bromley, Equinox and other peaks in the Taconic and Green Mountain ranges stood out against a brilliant blue sky.

After eating a leisurely lunch in a sunny sheltered spot near the top we returned to our cars, planning a return trip to this sightly mountain in the Spring.

By: Wilbur F. (Wes) Weston

From the President-Elect of the Killington Section, G.M.C. to all members of the Section; GREETINGS. For those of you who do not know me, I am the short, chubby old guy most generally seen in the company of Churchill Scott and "Doc" Howard, and invariably followed by my favorite Sheltie, Rascal. I sincerely hope that in the ensuing year I may become better acquainted with many more of you. Barring mumps; measles; hoof-and-mouth- disease and the like, it is my intention to work for the best interests of the section and to participate fully in its activities. Through the weeks and months to follow it is hoped that our program will be sufficiently interesting to induce more of you members in becoming active participants. Let's have an all out year.

NOTE OF THANKS
By: Terry Gulick

To all those members of our Section who assisted in the tasks of the past two years, my sincere thanks. Anchor man Churchill Scott certainly deserves much credit for his tireless efforts as Secretary-Treasurer. Betty Gilman has faithfully produced our Smoke and Blazes and deserves many thanks.

BUILDING PLANS
By: Terry Gulick

Building plans are a topic of conversation these days among Killington Section members. The need for a new shelter to replace both Buffum and Sunnyside Camp - lost by recent fires - is creating one major project for the coming summer. Interest by a nearby summer camp to construct a shelter for the G.M.C., on Killington section of trail, is being sketched into reality.

On the latter development, plans are being mapped in co-operation with International Paper Company to have constructed an open shelter on property owned by them. Location of the proposed shelter would be approximately 1/10 mile from the L.T. on the Shrewsbury Peak Trail near an excellent water supply.

Manpower is scheduled to come from Farm and Wilderness Camps in Bridgewater. This summer camp provided the incentive for constructing a new shelter by offering their services. The project if implemented would provide a means for some of this summer's campers to attain a goal. Learning how to construct an open-faced shelter. Supervision along with other details, is being worked out by both G.M.C. and I.P.C. representatives.

Providing all goes well, G.M.C. ers can look forward to a new overnight facility in the Killington area by the end of next summer supplementing Cooper Lodge which sees increasing usage each year.

For Sunnyside replacement, Long Trail Patrol assistance is being contemplated.

COMING HIKES

Where: Fire Hill, Pittsford, Vt.

When: Sun. June 22, 9:00 A.M.

The leader of this outing, Miss Ruth LaBrake has been very kind to offer the facilities of her family camp to the members of the Killington Section and their friends. It may be possible to drive all the way so we hope to see many there to enjoy the numerous short walks to nearby points of interest.

Also Mr. Weston hopes to be able to have a short meeting with interested members to formulate plans for the coming fall and winter program.-----

MIDDLEBURY TO LINCOLN GAP

Nineteen (?) years ago this long holiday weekend members of the Killington Section started their work on the End to End award.

After seven long and hard years of hiking the trail, Mary, Vera and Craig Perkins finished but the rest of us are still working at it.

This July 4th we hope to go to Skylight Pond Shelter on Friday night, Cooley Glen on Saturday and then a short walk to Lincoln gap on Sunday.

For more detailed information contact leader W.C. Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt. 05701

CANOE TRIP ON THE OTTER CREEK

When: Saturday, July 19

Leader: B. & L. Weeks

Leave: 9:00 A.M. Meldon School

Last year's canoe trip proved so successful, another trip on the Otter Creek is planned for this summer. This will be a continuation for all those who wish to be Otter Creek "end to enders". We will put the canoes in the water at the Fish & Game access area west of Brandon on Route 73. From here we will paddle 15 mi. downstream through pleasant farm land to the Cornwall-E. Middlebury Road crossing near the jct. with the Middlebury River. For those who prefer a shorter trip canoes may leave the water at Leicester Jct., 5 mi. or the Salisbury Station Road crossing at 11 mi.

Wildlife abounds along the river. Ducks, muskrats, and other birds and animals are frequently seen. Bring your lunch and canoe and come with us to enjoy this outing.

Where: Scrag Mt., Waitsfield, Vt.
When: Sun. Aug. 3, 9:00 A.M.

Here is a new hike for the more adventurous members. A trip of about 4 miles round trip. Should be rewarded with a fine view from the Fire Tower of mountains between Killington and Mansfield.

G.M.C. INTERSECTIONAL

The 1969 G.M.C. Intersectional will be held in the Montpelier area Aug. 23 to Labor Day, Sept. 1.

For more information you may read again the May issue of the Long Trail News.

Let us all get behind the Montpelier Section and show them how very much we appreciate the work they have done to provide such an interesting program.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

The Killington Section, G.M.C. needs and requests the more active support of it's better than one hundred members in carrying out the program of planned activities for the ensuing year including hikes, work parties, etc.

We are very well aware that many of our members, for one reason or another, are prevented from a more active participation, and that many of you who read this are already committed to an active role in our program. To those of you who have the time: the interest: and the physical energy, we would greatly appreciate your services in helping to make our program more effective.

Our urgent need is for Committee Chairmen for each of the following:

Building Committee
Publicity Committee
Finance Committee
Planning Committee (Hikes, Etc.)

WINTER DAY AT TALL TIMBERS

By: Miriam Bell

Twenty-three people enjoyed a winter day on Saturday, March 15th, at Tall Timbers in Mendon, with Craigie and Mary Perkins offering the use of the new Recreation Hall to their guests.

It was a fine, mild day, with blue sky and sunshine appearing in the afternoon, giving excellent chances for photographic shots of heavy snow on giant evergreens nearby. It was beautiful wherever one looked.

The snowshoeing was ideal-snow knee-deep and soft. A good many people walked easily about on their snowshoes, both morning and afternoon, showing they kept in practice; one young fellow ran through the woods on snowshoes like an Indian!

It was a pleasure to welcome new hikers, Bob and Helen Robinson, recently from Salt Lake City, who are completing their new home nearby on Cream Hill Rd. Bob grew up in Rutland.

While the older crowd sat around the stoves visiting after lunch, the younger ones played games inside or built snowmen outside.

All day the mildness of the air suggested spring. What a lovely month March is in Vermont, at least on days like these in the snowy woods.

K.S. MEMBERS ON WINTER HIKE IN APR.

By: T. Gulick

With two experienced hikers from Charlotte, Vt., I attempted-and succeeded--hiking to Pico Camp the first weekend in April. Why such a challenge at this time of year? Read on!

Starting at Sherburne Pass on snowshoes, there was no difficulty in following blazes up to the Alpine Lift, the spring which was snow covered, and on up towards Pico Junction. At this elevation, about 2800 feet, the snow depth had reached the 6 ft mark thus covering up every other blaze. Closer towards Pico Junction all the blazes appeared obliterated. Counsel was held and we considered three alternatives: Camp where we were, go back to Rt. 4, or go on via the summit. The latter idea won, of course, so on we went to the top. Using the Guide Book Map, we sighted the direction of Pico Camp and plunged downward over 6-8' of snow finding only one blue blaze to reassure us we were O.K.

Reaching a small clearing (if you can believe such exists in this area at 8 ft. above ground,) and the correct elevation where we figured Pico Camp and the trail should be found, we set up a temporary camp site. Upon starting on a "sweep" of the area, the two youngsters both Boy Scouts, and I came upon the camp we were looking for. It was hidden from our stopping point by some evergreen.

Digging our way to the doorway of the shelter with snowshoes created some work, but once the door could be opened we tumbled inside with glee! Ample firewood greeted us, and food preparation began in earnest with sleep overtaking us at an early hour.

Following a leisurely breakfast next morning we packed up, moved out and headed along the trail route, we think! Shortly we came upon our previous days tracks and completed the trip back to the Pass.

Recalling the event now, it seems unbelievable so much snow was piled up there! What a novelty to pick off dead branches from trees 12-14' above ground, right beside the camp. The forest appeared to be a groomed lawn interrupted only by well established trees. To top it off we had to climb down a six foot snow bank to water which managed not to become buried.

Labeling this overnight hike a success, we can proudly say we survived the Winter of '69.

ASCUTNEY TRAILS ASSOC. ANNUAL MEETING

By: H. Ogden

Some 50 people attended the annual meeting of the Ascutney Trails Assoc. held at the Old Lodge, Ascutney Ski Area Sunday evening. Treasurer, Richard Burroughs reported a bank balance of close to $400, and membership of some 25 supporting members and 50 shirt-sleeve members. Chairman Herbert Ogden reported on the year's activities which included the May picnic, construction of the Log Shelter on the Windsor Trail and the opening of two new side trails on the Wt. He previewed the forthcoming Picnic, to be held Saturday, May 10 and the preparations being made for an attendance of 400 or more. (1968 attendance: 200). Main event of the evening was an enthusiastically received slide program presented by Maurice LaFontaine of Claremont, showing Ascutney scenes and trail activities.

New directors elected from the floor were: Gary Burke, Brownsville; Dennis Fontaine, Claremont; Robert Morse, Springfield. At the Directors meeting later in the evening the following officers were re-elected:

Chairman: Herbert Ogden, Hartland;
Treasurer: Richard Burroughs,
Brownsville; Sec.: Arnold Clay,
Brownsville. Further arrangements for the Picnic were discussed, with emphasis on the providing of 1600 sandwiches.

ROCHESTER HIGH SCHOOL WORK PARTY

By: C. Scott

On a clear day in April Mr.
Hubert Lary, our member from Rochester brought over a group of high school students to spend the day working on Clarendon Shelter.

It has been a long time since our section has seen such a large, active and busy group. And it does seem very pleasant to see the looks of the grounds and camp improve as the day wore on.

The roof was patched, new stove pipe and cap were added and fastened securely, the whole camp creosoted, the yard raked and barrel after barrel of trash carted to the dump.

The lone young lady started in washing the windows (the first time in years) and what an improvement after which the floor and table were given a thorough cleaning.

After lunch a short hike was taken up to the graveyard and then down the Lottery Road, over Beacon Hill, back to camp and then down the trail to the cars.

The Killington Section wants to express our thanks to Mr. Lary and his students for their very well mannered conduct both at camp and on the trail and for the tremendous amount of work accomplished in one day.

WORK PARTIES

By: C. Scott

A number of our scheduled work parties did not materialize because of the more pressing demand of aerial photo marking and also rebuilding Sunnyside.

Gov. Clement was visited, bunks repaired, window replaced in gazabo, brush cut and area cleaned up.

Clarendon was thoroughly taken care of by Mr. Lary and his students from Rochester High School.

Sunnyside area was cleared of debris and made ready for a new shelter by a number of new members and their friends. On May 17 work began in earnest when Sandy Stare arrived on the scene. Since then he, Ray Secor and many others have worked long and hard to have Sunnyside standing once again. And our Vice. Pres. Doc Howard has finished a new toilet house also.

Our most grateful thanks go to Sandy and Ray and to the many others who have been able to help in some way.

THIRD ANNUAL MAY PICNIC

By: H. Ogden

In spite of some two feet of snow on the upper trails, and cold, cloudy, raw, windy weather (especially up top), the May 10
ATA Picnic was well received:
some 330 people turned up. Since well over half of them were children and since the primary purpose of the ATA is to introduce young people to hiking, the ATA feels that the 60 people who contributed to the day's success should feel a glow of achievement. The picnic committee had prepared for a crowd of around 400. If the out-ofstayers who had turned up on the previous Saturday (on account of the VERMONT LIFE article) had come on the right day and if the weather had been even a little less discouraging the tally would have run well over that 400! Cost of the picnic, when all bills are in, will run around $200.; this still leaves some $300. in the treasury for other activities.
It was a pleasure to note that there was hardly any cleaning up to do at the picnic site, along the trails or at the bottom parking lots. Youngest hiker was Ashley Bromley, 4, of Springfield. Oldest (as in the past 2 years) was Harold Austin, 73, of Woodstock. The menu included some 1800 sandwiches, 5 bushels of apples, 1000 cookies and 40 gallons of beverage.

KILLINGTON SECTION MEMBERS MARK TRAIL FOR PHOTOGRAPHERS BOY SCOUTS ASSIST.
By: T. Gulick

In early May, many GMC'ers in southern Vermont busied themselves marking the Appalachian Trail section of the L.T. for aerial photographing. The project resulted from passage of the National Trails bill by the last Congress in which the Appalachian Trail is included.

Killington Section was faced with late winter conditions making it almost impossible to place plastic strips used for markers. Nevertheless, K.S. members from Springfield, Churchill Scott, Doris Newton and President "Wes" covered Killington Section's portion of trail. This reported tackled the difficult section, only to be turned back by lingering snow starting just below Pico Junction.

However, the job eventually was completed and copies of photographs are scheduled to be returned for further identification by the trail marking teams. K.S. members.

Assisting on one of the trips were two members of Boy Scout Troop 317, Mt. Holly, who also helped with some trail clearing. Many thanks to you fellas, Gene Syria and Robert Link.

ANNUAL MEETING
By: Betty Weeks

The 1969 Annual Meeting of the Green Mountain Club was held on Saturday, May 31, at the Bavarian Castle, Proctorsville, Vermont. With 149 registered we set a new attendance record.

Registration time with coffee and doughnuts at 9:30 A.M. was followed by the morning business session at 10:00 A.M. A panel discussion, moderated by Dave Otis, brought lively discussion. The panel, representing views of the local sections, officers of the club, and members-at-large raised some new ideas on the future relation of the club to the sections and its members.

A noon lunch was served at the Chopping Block. The afternoon session included reports from the various sections and committees. Shirley Strong of Burlington was elected president of the club for 1969-70.

Free moments between meetings were used for browsing in Dick Metcalfs' Swap Shop where used camping and sporting gear was sold and traded. People enjoyed the interesting exhibits on trail sign making, presented by Herbert Ogden, Sr.

Highlight of the afternoon session was the presentation of the "Golden Hatchet Award" by Better Camping Magazine to the Green Mountain Club, for contribution to outdoor living. The presentation was made by Catherine E. McMullen, editor of "Better Camping", and accepted by Roy Buchanan of Burlington. The award included $100 and a trophy. The Better Camping Magazine had a lead story in its June Issue of the GMC award with the caption "Fifty-nine years on the Long Trail."

The meeting was adjourned at 4:00 P.M. After the late afternoon Trustees' Meeting, dinner was served at the Castle. The evening program in the Rathskeller featured Ronald Rood, well known nature writer and Vermont naturalist and lecturer.

SUNNYSIDE DEDICATION

By: W. Weston

On Sunday, June 1, 1969, over forty members of the Green Mountain Club from various sections and at-large, gathered in the vicinity of Spring Lake, Cuttingsville to dedicate the new Sunnyside Shelter. Many members had hiked in over the trail to attend the festivities. It was a very fine day, weatherwise. Ben Rolston, Co-ordinator for the project, made a few brief remarks having to do with the problems encountered in getting started, etc. and "Wes" Weston added words of appreciation to the many who assisted in the construction. Shirley Strong, newly elected President of the GMC performed the rite of dedication, using a plastic bag filled with water. In the process, she inadvertently doused "Sandy" Stare who was an innocent bystander. However, this harmless mishap was most appropriate as Sandy has been a most dedicated person in the building of Sunnyside. It seems proper to acknowledge the help that has been given by many of our members, in and out of the section. These include "Doc" Howard with his jeep; the indomitable Churchill Scott; Louis "Sandy" Stare, who gave unselfishly of his many days and energies; Ray Secor; Mauri Wintturi; Vic Randolph; Ben & Dorothy Rolston; Lloyd and Betty Weeks with a group from Springfield, Vt.; Rascal; Joey and others whom we may have missed because no daily record of attendance was kept. It is a good shelter and we hope many hikers will benefit from it's being there. Let us hope it is used but not abused.

BIRD MT. TRIP

By: Doris Newton

At last! We have made the crossing of Bird Mt. The day was pleasant, the bugs not too bad, and ten people turned out. Jim Frink decided his jeep could make the first two miles of the East side road, and with his skillful driving, so it did. Churchill guided us to the luncheon spring under the high ledges. As the lunch fire was building (just for atmosphere, not for heat, or even coffee!) the boys discovered an old shovel, and cleared out the spring.

Luncheon over, we were joined by a friend of Churchill's who had come up the west side with his sons. A scramble up the steep traces of the old trail in the little notch, and a walk up the summit ridge, with stops for the fine views to the east, brought us to the real summit, site of the old Masonic Monument, now completely grown over, and a bit further to the top of the southern cliff. Here we rested and studied the landscape, and were fortunate to have Jim explain the geology of the Taconic Range.

Then Mr. Woodruff guided us down the steep west side, again with some traces of a trail, out to the high pastures, and down to the west side road, the old main road to Poultney, now abandoned a mile or so beyond here. We turned east at the even more abandoned road that once circled the mountain under the cliffs, and rejoined the east road where Jim's jeep was a welcome sight. A visit to a most interesting geological sight, a perfect example of "folding" in a cliff on the shore of Glen Lake, again thru the courtesy of Jim and his jeep, ended a most satisfactory day of hiking.

OUTING & ACTIVITY IDEAS

Thanks to Terry for a very good form to fill out for those members who are anxious to have new places included on the outing schedule.

Last year our Otter Creek canoe trip was the result of this form and it was a new, and exciting experience for many of us. Lets' see if we can do as well this next time.

Also there is a section for those who are willing and able to work on trail and shelter upkeep. Also for anyone who would care to serve on the various committees.

Please return these forms as soon as possible to W. Churchill Scott, 132 Maple St., Rutland, Vt. 05701.

You will find the above forms on the next page.

COMING HIKES

WHERE: COOPER LODGE-TAMARACK
SHELTER

WHEN: Sat. Sept 27, 9:00 A.M.

Here is a chance to see what the Vt. Forest and Parks have done to repair Cooper Lodge. Also we hope to visit the newest shelter in our section, Tamarack Shelter and see what a good job the Farm and Wilderness Camps did. The plans are to hike up the chair lift or ride it and walk to the shelters.

WHERE: JOHNSON SHELTER

WHEN: Sun. Oct. 5, 1:00 P.M.

This new open front shelter will replace Tucker now that the beech tree finally fell on it. Located about $\frac{1}{2}$ mile north of Willard Gap this will be the scene of a new plan for outings. We hope to have a few trips begin in the P.M. and have supper.

WHERE: EAST MOUNTAIN

WHEN: Sun. Oct. 12, 10:00 A.M.

A good family trip is this short walk through the Dyer meadows to the summit overlooking Rutland. We all hope that Vera can make this trip and with Harold along to show the way it should be an enjoyable day.

WHERE: COVERED DISH SUPPER,
BEECHWOOD

WHEN: Sat. Oct. 18, 6:00 P.M.

The most delightful day of the fall schedule will be held at Beechwood through the kindness of the Perkins family. As always we can come early and enjoy some walks in the nearby woods.

WHERE: MERCK FOREST, RUPERT, VT.

WHEN: Sat. Oct. 25, 10:00 A.M.

Mr. Weston has received permission from the caretaker of the Merck Forest Preserve to use its facilities. There are a few open front shelters along the various hiking trails and it is full moon time so hopefully we would like to plan for all those who are able to make this an overnight trip.

WHERE: PITTSFORD ICE CAVES

WHEN: Sun. Nov. 2, 1:00 P.M.

Another afternoon outing with a short walk to an old favorite spot. Let's try to have a good crowd this trip and will try to go the right way.

WHERE: CLARENDON LODGE

WHEN: Sat. Nov. 15, 10:00 A.M.

If this shelter has not been repaired for the winter camping season before, now will be a good time so everybody should come in their work clothers.

NEW OUTING SCHEDULE

By: C. Scott

The new Fall and Winter Outing Schedule is enclosed with this issue of Smoke & Blazes. Additional copies are available from Craigie Perkins, Harold Valiquette, Dr. J. Harold Howard or Churchill Scott.

If there are any new hikes desired please fill out and return the questionnaire which was included in the last issue of Smoke & Blazes. So far only 2 out of almost 80 have been received and it is very difficult to make up an interesting outing schedule unless we get some help and new suggestions from the members.

THE NEW SUNNYSIDE CAMP

By: Ben Rolston

&

Frances Roberts

The fire. The need. The offer. The planning. The workers. The construction. The Dedication. And the first customers.

The fire last August brought an urgent need for a new Sunnyside Camp. Plans were made for the Long Trail Patrol to build the new camp this summer.

Then along came Sandy Stare of Cape Cod, the GMC'er who, in 1965, built Lost Pond Shelter at his home and brought it to Vermont for assembly on the Long Trail north of Baker Peak. Sandy decided that he'd like to build another shelter.

Then along came Ben Rolston, who persuaded Sandy to direct his shelter-building efforts toward the construction of our Sunnyside Camp.

Visits with Craigie, Churchill, Terry and others completed the arrangements. Killington would design the camp, Sandy would specify the materials, and Killington would purchase them. Then Sandy would go to work.

We assembled at the site on May 17. Sandy, Ben, Ray Secor, Churchill, Terry, President Weston, John Himmelberger, and Ben's friend Don MacKellar. Plus Kathy Hayes and Dorothy Rolston to cheer us on. We prepared the site as we waited for the lumber to arrive. And we waited. No lumber. Finally our healthy work party disbanded, much disappointed. I can imagine Churchill's chagrin (for want of a better word) when he arrived home and found the lumber in his yard!

During the next week, the lumber company moved the lumber to the end of the field, where it should have been moved on May 17. Sandy, Wes, Churchill and Doc Howard moved the lumber in to the site with Doc's jeep. Sandy began work on the foundation, and floor joists. His helpers returned, and by the 24th quite a bit of the framework had been erected.

The morning of the 24th Sandy, Ray, Ben, Irving White and his son Eric went to work on the rafters and other phases of construction, and were later joined by Mauri Wintturi. That night they all camped in the field by the access road.

Sunday, May 25th, the area became crowded with workers! Let Frances Roberts tell you about it. (I'll be back later.)

The last Sunday in May brought back memories of barn raisin' days when 22 people and 2 dogs met to help rebuild Sunnyside camp. Most of the party were dressed for a cold, raw day with threats of showers, but it turned out to be just the opposite. The men who worked up on the roof during the late morning and early afternoon can vouch for that. There were bugs around, too--but they could have been worse. Perhaps the smoke from the fire under that big, black hulk of a coffeepot helped.

The four women in the party cleared out some thorn bushes, picked up scraps of glass and rusty tin cans, and, of course, gave freely of their good advice to the carpenters. Karen and Allen Randolph panned for fool's gold in the spring, while baby brother Warren meandered over heaps of debris, stopping now and then to hug the muddy dogs--the muddier the better!

Meanwhile, back at the camp, the men pounded and sawed and swarmed all over the roof. Those working down below handed up nails, hammers and roofing, and propped each other up on jobs where the ladder couldn't quite reach.

The photographers kept busy, too. Betty Weeks added to her collection of GMC pictures. Ray Secor got a fascinating shot of Vic Randolph up on the ridgepole a picture all but Vic felt should be kept for posterior-ty.

In the late afternoon the work party broke up, leaving the Hero of Sunnyside Camp Raisin', Louis (Sandy) Stare, still pounding away on the roof. I suspect each one of us went home with the "let's do it more often" feeling that comes from a day of good fellowship and accomplishment.

Registered for this May 25th work party were Cliff and Carol Farrington, Ray Secor, Kim Scott, W.C. Scott, Doc Howard, Kay Howard Dick and Frances Roberts, Vic and Lois Randolph, Mauri Wintturi, Ben Rolston, Eric E. White, Irving E. White, Louis Stare, Fred Herrick, Betty and Lloyd Weeks. Also, Suki and Tawna, who signed the register with their paw prints.

(Rolston's back again)

During that next week, more lumber arrived. Sandy continued work, assisted by Churchill, Wes, Doc, and Vic Randolph, with visits by George Pearlstein and others.

Then a short pause for Memorial Day and the GMC Annual Meeting, which Sandy attended for the first time.

Sunday morning, June 1st, Sandy was back at it again, with the help of Ray Secor and Don Wallace. In the meantime, a dedication hike was in progress! A few cheated and came in the short way. But the majority made the trip in from Route 140 (and after the dedication continued on to Route 103).

What a crowd! Over 40 adults, plus some children and canine participants. During the height of the activities, the clearing was filled with GMC'ers and guests enjoying a fine day and an interesting assortment of lunches.

Ben started the ceremony with a history of old Sunnyside Camp and the details of Sandy's shelter-building experiences.

Just then, with perfect timing, Killington President Weston arrived to take part in the ceremony and to give Killington's greetings to those assembled.

Then our new GMC President, Shirley Strong, performed her FIRST official duty - she christened the new Sunnyside Camp with Green Mountain Champagne (cold, clear water from the nearby spring.) And in the spirit of the occasion, Sandy got christened too!

One by one, our friends went up the Trail. A few stayed on to work. Just as we were leaving, Sunnyside Camp got its first customers-- a young couple who were hiking the Appalachian Trail northward from Tennessee. They had great praise for our Long Trail and its fine shelters, and were pleased to be the first to use new Sunnyside Camp.

Sandy and Ray stayed on a few more days, to put the finishing touches on the camp. Now it is ready for hikers. We hope that they will enjoy using it as much as we all enjoyed building it. And the Killington Section extends thanks to all those who helped, and especially to Sandy Stare who donated so much of his time to this special project. A fine job done, Sandy!

CANOE TRIP

By: Betty Weeks

On Saturday, July 19, five canoes and fourteen enthusiastic canoeists met at the Fish and Game access area on Route 73 west of Brandon for a day's trip on the Otter Creek. The weather couldn't have been better and everyone was in good spirits as we launched our canoes on the placid creek. At the access ~~area~~ we were surprised to find members of the Connecticut Section just breaking camp and preparing for a two day trip on the creek. Our party swelled to nine canoes, but the heavily loaded ones from Connecticut soon fell far behind.

Terry Gulick served as navigator, plotting our location on topographical maps.

Majestic trees, including silver maples, line the bank giving one a feeling of seclusion from the outside world. The banks are usually steep and covered with tall ferns. Occasionally we would catch a glimpse of the Green Mountains through drainage ditches which had been cut through the banks. Though a great deal of the area surrounding this part of the creek is swamp land, you see little evidence of this from the water. Perhaps the swarms of stinging flies which troubled us came from the surrounding swamps. Muskrats and sandpipers were frequently seen.

After passing under the bridge at Leicester Junction, we heard no sound of civilization for many miles.

Beyond a railroad bridge we beached our canoes in a drainage ditch and in cool shade beside a corn field, we ate lunch. Even though we took the faithful coffee pot for the ride, we all agreed it was too hot for coffee.

Continuing along the Creek we encountered several log jams. Many of them like floating islands alive with vegetation. In one place we had to push aside debris before we could proceed.
